30 And Ahias taking his new garment, wherewith he was clad, divided it into twelve parts:

31 And he said to Jeroboam: Take to thee ten pieces: for thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give thee ten tribes.

32 But one tribe shall remain to him for the sake of my servant, David, and Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:

33 Because he hath forsaken me, and hath adored Astarthe, the goddess of the Sidonians, and Chamos, the god of Moab, and Moloch, the god of the children of Ammon: and hath not walked in my ways, to do justice before me, and to keep my precepts, and judgments, as did David, his father.

^a 2 Par. xiii. 6.—^b 2 Par. x. 15.

very formidable to the Jews, particularly Razin, (4 K. xv. and xvi.) who was slain by Thuglathphalassar. Ib. v. 9. C.

VER. 25. Solomon, after he once began. H.—Adad. Heb. "and with the evil of Adad, and he detested Israel." M.—Razon and Adad conspired to attack Solomon. H.—Adad may be the common name of the kings of Damascus. Some copies of the Sept. do not speak of Razon, but continue the history of Adad, v. 14. They also read Edom here instead of Aram, or Syria, which would remove the confusion. C.—Adad, Razon, and Jeroboam always oppugn Solomon after his fall; and signify the flesh, the world, and the devil. W.

VER. 26. King, attempting to draw the people into rebellion, as he perceived that they were discontent with the buildings at Mello. He had a command over them; and though he was, for the present, obliged to save himself by flight, he had sown the seeds of rebellion by his discourses, in such a manner, that the imprudent answer of Roboam (C.) easily brought them to maturity. H.

VER. 28. Joseph, Ephraim, and Manasses. M.—He was of the former tribe. Salien.—At first Solomon employed none of the Israelites to work. C. ix. 22. But he afterwards oppressed them grievously. The king's right was to make his subjects cultivate his lands, &c. 1 K. viii. 11. They did not pay money, (Mat. xvii. 24,) but wrought for the king. Heb. "he made him ruler over all the charge," (or levy.) H.—The Vulg. often uses the word tribute (C.) for sebel. Josephus believes that Jeroboam had the command over the forces of the house of Joseph; but he had rather the superintendency over the workmen. H.

VER. 29. Garment. Salma occurs 16 times in this sense, and simlee 27. The latter, we may presume, is the true reading, as it is in the Sam. Pentateuch invariably; Ex. xxii. 26, 27, both words are printed in the Heb. Bible. But it is not probable that Moses should have written them so; no more than a Latin author would use both vestimentum and vestimentum. Shamal, in Arabic, signifies "he clothed himself all over." Kennicott.—Way leading to Ephraim, (M.) his department. C.—Field. Sept. "he drew him aside out of the road; and Ahias had or a new cloak, and both were in the field." H.—Jeroboam would not probably go unattended; (M.) and it seems this transaction soon transpired, and came to the ears of Solomon. H.

VER. 30. Parts. He speaks by his actions, (M.) thus foretelling what should happen, as was customary with the prophets. Osee i. 2. Jer. xxvii. 2. Ezec. xii. 7. Acts xxi. 11. C.—This tended to make a deeper impression on the mind, (H.) and to convince all, that what was spoken, was not in jest. W.

VER. 34. Make, or permit him to reign. M.

VER. 36. A lamp. Posterity, (2 K. xxi. 17.) power, and glory. 4 K. viii. 19.

VER. 37. Desireth. It seems he was already disposed to revolt. C.

VER. 38. Faithful house, which shall not be destroyed, nor lose the kingdom, for a long time. Jeroboam never complied with the condition. C.

34 Yet I will not take away all the kingdom out of his hand, but I will make him prince all the days of his life, for David my servant's sake, whom I chose, who kept my commandments, and my precepts.

35 But I will take away the kingdom out of his son's hand, and will give thee ten tribes:

36 And to his son I will give one tribe, that there may remain a lamp for my servant, David, before me always in Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen, that my name might be there.

37 And I will take thee, and thou shalt reign over all that thy soul desireth, and thou shalt be king over Israel.

38 If then thou wilt hearken to all that I shall command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do what is right before me, keeping my commandments, and my precepts, as David, my servant, did: I will be with thee, and will build thee up a faithful house, as I built a house for David, and I will deliver Israel to thee:

39 And I will for this afflict the seed of David, but yet not for ever.

40 Solomon, therefore, sought to kill Jeroboam: but he arose, and fled into Egypt, to Sesac, the king of Egypt, and was in Egypt till the death of Solomon.

41 And the rest of the words of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom: behold they are all written in the Book of the words of the days of Solomon.

42 And the days that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem, over all Israel, were forty years.

43 And ^aSolomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David, his father; and Roboam, his son, reigned in his stead.

^a A. M. 3029, A. C. 975.

VER. 39. For this infidelity of Solomon, (H.) afflict, by raising up a rival. M.—For ever. Notwithstanding the wickedness of many of its princes, this family was to subsist, in a distinguished rank, till the coming of the Messiah; that the completion of the promises might be more observable. C.—After 250 years, the throne of Israel was subverted. M.

VER. 40. Therefore, being apprized of what had passed, as well as to prevent the farther attempts of Jeroboam. H.—Sesac. He is the first, whose proper name is given in Scripture. Whether he was of the same family, as the Pharaoh, whose daughter Solomon had married, cannot be ascertained. Marsham makes Sesac the same with the renowned Sesostris, the Sethosis of Manetho. But Usher thinks that Sesostris reigned immediately after the Israelites left Egypt; while Pezron, &c. suppose that Amenophis, who was drowned, was even his grandson. C.

VER. 41. Words, or transactions. H.—Book. This book is lost, with divers others mentioned in holy writ. Ch.—Nathan, Ahias, and Addo, composed these journals. 2 Par. ix. 29. H.—Similar works were kept at the courts of Persia and of Babylon. Est. vi. 1. and 1 Esd. vi. 2. Plutarch quotes the journal of Alexander; and Tacitus (An. iii.) informs us, that the smallest occurrences were specified in journals, at Rome, while things of greater importance were recorded in the annals. The books of days, are cited in the Paral. so that we cannot suppose that these journals are the same with that work. C.—God was pleased that those writings should not come down to us; so that we can only speak from conjecture of the repentance of Solomon. Salien, A. 3058.

VER. 42. Forty. Josephus says eighty; and some suppose, that the Scripture only specifies the years during which Solomon reigned virtuously. Pezron is of the same opinion as Josephus. H.—Others contend that it is a manifest mistake. Immoderate pleasures hastened his old age and death, when he was about fifty-eight years old. All in him was great, whether we consider the virtues of his early days, or the vices of his old age. He falls from heaven into the abyss. His repentance is a problem. C.

VER. 43. Solomon slept, &c. That is, died. He was then about fifty-eight years of age, having reigned forty years. Ch.—S. Chrysostom, at different times, seems to have entertained opposite opinions on this head, (H.) which has been a matter of controversy among the Fathers, as it is at present with us. We ought to adore and imitate, with trembling, the silence of Scripture. C.—Sept. seem favourable to Solomon: (Prov. xxiv. 32.) "At last I did penance, and looked forward, to embrace discipline." H.—But the Heb. Chal. and Vulg. have nothing similar. C.—Some think that the Book of Proverbs, as well as that of Ecclesiastes, was composed by him after his repentance; and that he expresses his sentiments of affliction and self-condemnation, (Prov. xxx. 2.) and his opinion of all earthly gratifications. Eccles. i. 2. &c. H.—Yet this dreadful uncertainty

CHAP. XII.

Roboam, following the counsel of young men, alienateth from him the minds of the people. They make Jeroboam king over ten tribes: he setteth up idolatry.

AND *Roboam went to Sichem: for thither were all Israel come together to make him king.

2 But Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who was yet in Egypt, a fugitive from the face of king Solomon, hearing of his death, returned out of Egypt.

3 And they sent and called him: and Jeroboam came, and all the multitude of Israel, and they spoke to Roboam, saying:

4 Thy father laid a grievous yoke upon us: now, therefore, do thou take off a little of the grievous service of thy father, and of his most heavy yoke, which he put upon us, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said to them: Go till the third day, and come to me again. And when the people was gone,

6 King Roboam took counsel with the old men, that stood before Solomon, his father, while he yet lived, and he said: What counsel do you give me, that I may answer this people?

7 They said to him: If thou wilt yield to this people to-day, and condescend to them, and grant their petition, and wilt speak gentle words to them, they will be thy servants always.

8 But he left the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men that had been brought up with him, and stood before him.

9 And he said to them: What counsel do you give me, that I may answer this people, who have said to me: Make the yoke, which thy father put upon us, lighter?

* A. M. 8029. 2 Par. x. 1.

may serve to keep us all in humble fear, and teach us to work out our salvation with trembling. C.—If Solomon really repented, (H.) he might not have time or power to remove all the vestiges, and the very foundations of the idolatrous temples, which Ezechias also neglected in ruins, as no longer dangerous, and as so many monuments of the folly of Solomon. But Josias caused them to be entirely removed. 4 K. xxiii. 13. Salien. A. 3059. The daughter of Pharaoh would probably imitate her beloved husband. Pineda.—Sadoc seems to have departed this life about the same time with Solomon; as his son Achimaas, who had married Basemath, the king's daughter, succeeded him in the pontificate, at the commencement of Roboam's reign. Chron. Min. Heb. Salien.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. King, or to acknowledge his right, provided he would grant their request. The discontented assembled at Sichem, rather than at Jerusalem, as they would be under less restraint. C.—They appointed Jeroboam to prefer their petition. M.—Roboam was probably the only son whom Solomon had by his wives. C.—We read of two daughters, Japheth and Basemath. C. iv. 11. and 15. H.—Naama, the Ammonite, was the mother of Roboam, who, though 40 years old, was devoid of good sense. 2 Par. xiii. 7. Eccles. ii. 18. Eccli. xlvii. 27. C.

VER. 2. Hearing of. Heb. "It (the assembly) and Jeroboam dwelt in Egypt." H.—But in 2 Paral. x. 2, we find he returned. It is probable that both texts agreed in the days of S. Jerom; as the same letters, if read in a different manner, may have both meanings. C.—Sept. have also "returned." H.

VER. 4. Yoke, of personal service, (C.) first to build the temple, and afterwards to erect palaces, fortify cities, &c. The works of Mello gave the greatest discontent. H.

VER. 6. Old men. Banaïas and Jahiel. S. Jer. Trad.

VER. 7. They said. Heb. "he said." The transcribers, probably not understanding what they wrote, frequently mistake singular for plural verbs. So v. 21. "they came," instead of he came. Some MSS. and the ancient versions are correct. Kennicott.—Yield. Heb. "serve." By the submission of one day he might have acquired the kingdom. Great attention is requisite at first. Tacitus (Hist. iv.) represents Vespasian, Novo principatu suspensum, & vultus quoque ac sermones omnium circumspiciantem.

VER. 8. Him. They were young, compared with the former, though they might be 40 years old. M.—It was frequently the custom in the eastern courts, to educate young noblemen along with the heir to the crown. Such formed the captains of Alexander, (1 Mac. i. 7,) and the warriors of Sesostris, whose father ordered all the male children who were born on the same day in his dominions, to be brought to court, to be educated with his son. Diocl. i.—The Persian no-

10 And the young men that had been brought up with him, said: Thus shalt thou speak to this people, who have spoken to thee, saying: Thy father made our yoke heavy, do thou ease us. Thou shalt say to them: My little finger is thicker than the back of my father.

11 And now my father put a heavy yoke upon you, but I will add to your yoke: my father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam, and all the people, came to Roboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying: Come to me again the third day.

13 And the king answered the people roughly, leaving the counsel of the old men, which they had given him,

14 And he spoke to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying: My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke: My father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions.

15 And the king condescended not to the people: for the Lord was turned away from him, to make good his word, * which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias, the Silonite, to Jeroboam, the son of Nabat.

16 Then the people, seeing that the king would not hearken to them, answered him, saying: What portion have we in David? or what inheritance in the son of Isai? Go home to thy dwellings, O Israel: now, David, look to thy own house. So Israel departed to their dwellings.

17 But as for all the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Juda, Roboam reigned over them.

18 Then king Roboam sent Aduram, who was over the tribute: and all Israel stoned him, and he died. Wherefore king Roboam made haste to get him up into his chariot, and he fled to Jerusalem:

* Supra xi. 31. A. M. 8030, A. C. 974.

bility were brought up at the gate of the prince, that they might learn temperance and the art of governing. Xenoph. Cyrop. i.—The endeavours of Solomon were frustrated by the evil disposition of his son, and of those about his person.

VER. 10. Finger is not expressed in Heb. or Sept. but the Syr. and Josephus agree with the Vulg. In Paral. we read loins, instead of back. Heb. and Sept. my little (Prot. supply finger). Sept. "my littleness," μικρότης; but in Paral. finger is added. H.—Chal. "my weakness is stronger than my father's strength." The loins denote strength. Roboam did not use these boasting and insolent expressions: but he adopted their spirit. C.—He insinuates that he was twice as old as his father when he began to reign, (Pineda vii. 24,) or he uses a proverbial exaggeration. Delrio. adag. 202. M.

VER. 11. Scorpions. Chal. "thorns." Heb. has both significations. Like a tyrant, Roboam threatens to beat the people with sharp thorns. M.

VER. 15. Turned. Heb. "for the cause (revolution) was from the Lord, (C.) that he might verify his word." H.—God permitted the king to act imprudently, and disposed things in such a manner, that the prediction took effect. C.—Indeed, the prophet had only spoken, because things would happen. H.—"There are two sorts of persecutors, those who blame, and those who flatter: the tongue of the flatterer persecutes more than the hand of him who kills." S. Aug. in Ps. lxxx. D.—Roboam fell a prey to his evil counsellors. H.—That, (v. 16) denotes the sequel, not the final cause, as C. xiv. 9. W.

VER. 16. Look to. Chal. "rule over thy own tribe." They imitate those who give a bill of divorce. C.—Herein they were not excusable, no more than those who persecuted God's people, though he permitted their wickedness, to chastise the guilty. M.—Seba had formerly withdrawn the people from David in the same manner. 2 K. xx. 1. H.—Abulensis thinks that as God had chosen Jeroboam, and his rival acted tyrannically, the people did right. T.

VER. 17. Them, as well as over many, who came into his territory, that they might practise the true religion, without restraint. H. C. xi. 13.—The kings of Juda afterwards made various conquests. C. xiii. 19. Hence they were able to contend with the other tribes (C.) with advantage. H.—Even at first, Roboam put himself at the head of 180,000 chosen men, v. 21. Abia had an army of 400,000, and Asa near 600,000; while Josaphat had 1,160,000 soldiers. 2 Par. xiii. 3. and xiv. 8. and xvii. 14.

VER. 18. Aduram. One of the same name had occupied this post under David. 2 K. xx. 24. C.—Some suppose that this is the same with Adoniram. C. iv. 6. Roboam imprudently sent him to appease the people, (Salien) or haughtily to demand the usual tribute; unless the king abandoned him to the fury of the populace, as an object of their horror. The people have often been appeased by the 19 And Israel revolted from the house of David, unto this day.

20 And it came to pass when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they gathered an assembly, and sent and called him, and made him king over all Israel, and there was none that followed the house of David but the tribe of Juda only.

21 And Roboam came to Jerusalem, and gathered together all the house of Juda, and the tribe of Benjamin, a hundred fourscore thousand chosen men for war, to fight against the house of Israel, and to bring the kingdom again under Roboam, the son of Solomon.

22 ^aBut the word of the Lord came to Semeias, the man of God, saying :

23 Speak to Roboam, the son of Solomon, the king of Juda, and to all the house of Juda, and Benjamin, and the rest of the people, saying :

24 Thus saith the Lord : You shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren, the children of Israel : let every man return to his house, for this thing is from me. They hearkened to the word of the Lord, and returned from their journey, as the Lord had commanded them.

25 And Jeroboam built Sichem in Mount Ephraim, and dwelt there, and going out from thence, he built Phanuel.

26 And Jeroboam said in his heart : Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David,

27 If this people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the Lord at Jerusalem : and the heart of this people will turn to their lord Roboam, the king of Juda, and they will kill me, and return to him.

28 ^bAnd finding out a device, he made two golden calves, and said to them : Go ye up no more to Jerusalem : ^cBehold thy gods, O Israel, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt.

29 And he set the one in Bethel, and the other in Dan :

30 And this thing became an occasion of sin : for the people went to adore the calf as far as Dan.

31 And he made temples in the high places, ^dand priests of the lowest of the people, who were not of the sons of Levi.

32 And he appointed a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, after the manner of the feast that was celebrated in Juda. And going up to the altar, he did in like manner in Bethel, to sacrifice to the calves, which he had made : and he placed in Bethel priests of the high places, which he had made.

33 And he went up to the altar, which he had built in Bethel, on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, which he had devised of his own heart : and he ordained a feast to the children of Israel, and went on the altar to burn incense.

CHAP. XIII.

A prophet sent from Juda to Bethel, foretelleth the birth of Josias, and the destruction of Jeroboam's altar. Jeroboam's hand, offering violence to the prophet, withereth, but is restored by the prophet's prayer : the same prophet is deceived by another prophet, and slain by a lion.

AND ^ebehold there came a man of God out of Juda, by the word of the Lord, to Bethel, when Jerodeath of rapacious ministers.—Haste. Heb. "he strengthened himself," or obstinately persisted in his resolution of reducing the people by force ; and thus those, who might now have been easily reclaimed, were driven to choose another king, and the evil became irremediable. C.

^a 2 Par. xi. 2.—^b Tob. i. 5.

^c Ex. xxxii. 8.—^d 2 Par. xi. 15.—^e A. M. 8080.

VER. 20. Again, from Egypt, v. 2. H.—He had not been present, it seems, at the second assembly ; or, at least, he had retired as soon as Roboam had given his decision. But the people having stoned Aduram, and thus rendered a reconciliation very difficult, Jeroboam was invited to accept the crown. C.—As this was conformable to his utmost desires and the prophet's declaration, he made no demur. C. xi. 37. H. Only. Benjamin was a small tribe, and so intermixed with the tribe of Juda, (the very city of Jerusalem being partly in Juda, partly in Benjamin) that they are here counted but as one tribe. Ch.—Perhaps Benjamin at first hesitated ; but, considering the greater danger to which it would be exposed, embraced the party of Roboam, v. 21. Salien.

VER. 21. Fourscore. Sept. "twenty." D.—But the Alex. copy agrees with the Heb. H.

VER. 24. Them. This shews the great authority of Semeias. He wrote the history of Roboam. 2 Par. xii. 15. He also foretold the irruption of Sesea, to punish the house of Israel ; but not to destroy it. C.—The obedience of Roboam deserves applause ; though it would have been a vain attempt to resist God, who was resolved to punish his family. M.—God must have touched the hearts of the leaders, to convince them that he spoke by the mouth of Semeias. Salien.—The Vat. Sept. here subjoins almost the whole history of Jeroboam, improperly. H. See C. xiv.

VER. 25. Built, or "had built," while Roboam was preparing for his invasion. Salien.—Sichem and Phanuel had been ruined by Abimelech, and by Geleon. Judg. viii. 17. and ix. 45. C.—By means of these fortresses, he secured both sides of the Jordan. H.—Jeroboam afterwards fixed his residence at Thirsa, where the court was kept, till Amri built Samaria.

VER. 27. Him. Jeroboam chose to follow the dictates of human policy, rather than to depend on the express declaration of God, who had given him the kingdom. It was natural that the people should have a predilection for the house of David ; (C.) and he might fear that the priests would prevail upon them to return to their old master, as they dwelt about Jerusalem. Salien.

VER. 28. Device. Wicked policy, to make religion subservient to the state. W.—Jeroboam was right in judging, (H.) that it is one of the strongest foundations of government, (C.) and therefore he would have a peculiar religion for his subjects. H.—Strange blindness, caused by ambition ! As if God could not have maintained him on the throne. The sequel evinces how delusive were his wicked projects. C.—Calves. It is likely, by making his gods in this form, he mimicked the Egyptians, among whom he had sojourned, who worshipped their Apis and their Osiris under the form of a bullock. Ch. S. Jerom in Osee iv. 15. and v. &c.—The Greeks commonly style these idols, heifers, as more contemptible than bulls ; (T.) and some Fathers style them, "calf-heads." Lact. iv.

10. Monceau pretends that they resembled the cherubim, and were intended to represent the true God ; thus endeavouring to excuse the Israelites from idolatry, on this occasion, as well as when they came out of Egypt. Ex. xxxii. 4. But his arguments are weak, and Jeroboam is constantly condemned as a most wicked and idolatrous prince. C. xiv. 9. 4 K. xxiii. 15. Osee viii. 5. and x. 5. C.—Egypt. The same had been said by Aaron. M.

VER. 29. Bethel ad Dan. Bethel was a city of the tribe of Ephraim, in the southern parts of the dominions of Jeroboam, about six leagues from Jerusalem : Dan was in the extremity of his dominions, to the north, on the confines of Syria. Ch.—The Israelites did not hesitate to travel so far, v. 30. C.—Those who lived nearer Bethel, went thither along with their king. Salien.—The latter city was assigned to Benjamin. Jos. xviii. 22. M.—But probably many of the subjects of Jeroboam dwelt in it ; so that it was the most southern city of his dominions. It had been consecrated by Jacob, (Gen. xxviii. 19.) and was a famous place of devotion. 1 K. x. 3. Sept. (Alex.) and S. Cyril (in Osee, p. 5.) read Galgal. Dan had been long before infected with idolatry. Judg. xviii. 30.

VER. 30. Sin, almost irreparable, which brought on the ruin of the ten tribes. Though the calves were taken away along with them into captivity, the people did not return to the service of the Lord ; but the greatest part imitated the conduct of the pagans, with whom they mixed ; while some few returned with the tribe of Juda, and made a part of that kingdom. The Samaritans, who were sent to inhabit their country, were not of the race of Jacob. C.

VER. 31. Places, to other idols or devils, (2 Par. xi. 15. H.) not merely at Bethel. C. xiii.—Lowest. Such places were fittest for him. W.—Heb. "extremity ;" others understand people of reputation ; but it seems he took any whosoever would (C. xiii. 33.) accept the office, without confining himself to the Levites. C.—Indeed most of them were banished, as refractory ; (2 Par. xi. 18.) though some were so weak as to take part with him ; (Ezec. xlv. 10.) probably the descendants of Michah. Judg. xviii. 31. H.—They were not punished with instant death, like Core, though their crime seemed greater. Salien.

VER. 32. Day. God had prescribed the seventh month, (C.) and this wicked prince purposely made choice of another, that the observance of the days appointed might be obliterated. Thus the Jacobins, in France, decreed that the tenth day should be the day of rest, instead of Sunday. H.—Religious assemblies tend greatly to promote the spirit of concord and peace.

VER. 33. To : lit. "up on," (super) as at the end of the verse. H.—The altars were very high and large. C.—Month. Sept. add, "on the festival which," &c. M.—Heart. Heb. reads millibod, (præter) instead of molbu, (ex corde suo.) Some MSS. retain the latter word, as it is printed also in the marginal keri. Leusden tells us, we are by no means to say it is the truer reading, because then the text must be allowed to be corrupted ; but it only explains what is meant by præter, "besides." A marvellous explanation ! and perhaps it is only to be paralleled by ex explained by non. Kennicott.—Jeroboam has a mind to do honour to his new worship, and unites in his own person the sacerdotal and regal dignity, as boam was standing upon the altar, and burning incense.

2 And he cried out against the altar in the word of the Lord, and said: O altar, altar, thus saith the Lord: Behold a child shall be born to the house of David, Josias by name, and he shall immolate upon thee the priests of the high places, who now burn incense upon thee, and he shall burn men's bones upon thee.

3 And he gave a sign the same day, saying: This shall be the sign, that the Lord hath spoken: Behold the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it, shall be poured out.

4 And when the king had heard the word of the man of God, which he had cried out against the altar in Bethel, he stretched forth his hand from the altar, saying: Lay hold on him. And his hand which he stretched forth against him, withered: and he was not able to draw it back again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes were poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given before in the word of the Lord.

6 And the king said to the man of God: Entreat the face of the Lord thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me. And the man of God besought the face of the Lord, and the king's hand was restored to him, and it became as it was before.

7 And the king said to the man of God: Come home with me to dine, and I will make thee presents.

8 And the man of God answered the king: If thou wouldst give me half thy house, I will not go with thee, nor eat bread, nor drink water in this place:

9 For so it was enjoined me by the word of the Lord, commanding me: Thou shalt not eat bread, nor drink water, nor return by the same way that thou camest.

10 So he departed by another way, and returned not by the way that he came into Bethel.

11 Now a certain old prophet dwelt in Bethel, and his sons came to him, and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Bethel: and they told their father the words which he had spoken to the king.

= 4 Kings xxiii. 16.

the Roman emperors did. C.—Incense. Sept. "to sacrifice." H.—From this period, many learned men date the 390 years of the iniquity of Israel. Eze. i. 5. D.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. A man. Some suppose his name was Addo. 2 Par. x. 29. But this is quite uncertain.—Incense, or victims. C.

VER. 2. Altar, in which the prodigy was to take place, for the instruction of all. M.—Name: 340 (C.) or 350 years after. Salien.—This prediction proves the truth of the religion; for, though the author of this book might have seen it verified, yet he would undoubtedly insert the very words of the prophet, which were known to all the people. 4 K. xxiii. 15. In this passage we do not read that Josias destroyed the priests. But v. 19. and 20, it is clearly insinuated. C.—Who now. He will reduce their bones to ashes upon this altar; or, those who shall imitate these priests, shall be there burnt alive. H.

VER. 3. Sign. This would take place immediately, to convince the king that what he had said would be accomplished. So Moses and Achaz were treated. Ex. iii. 2. 12. Isai. vii. 14. 16. C.

VER. 6. Thy God. He does not say my, being conscious that he had abandoned his service. M.—Before. We may be surprised that God thus heals a man, whose heart was not changed, v. 33. E.—But miracles do not always work a conversion. Pharaoh, Saul, and Achaz beheld them in vain: only one of the ten lepers returned to give thanks. Lu. xvii. 17. This miracle rendered Jeroboam still more inexcusable. C.

VER. 8. With thee. He considers the king as one excommunicated, that he may thus be induced to repent. Salien.

VER. 10. Bethel, which was defiled. 1 K. xxi. 5. God would thus caution us to keep at the greatest distance (T.) possible from evil company, (H.) and from whatever may lead to sin. M.—Besides the literal sense, Sanchez believes that the prophet was thus admonished to comply exactly with his injunctions, and to 12 And their father said to them: What way went he? His sons shewed him the way by which the man of God went, who came out of Juda.

13 And he said to his sons: Saddle me the ass. And when they had saddled it, he got up,

14 And went after the man of God, and found him sitting under a turpentine-tree: and he said to him: Art thou the man of God who camest from Juda? He answered: I am.

15 And he said to him: Come home with me to eat bread.

16 But he said: I must not return, nor go with thee, neither will I eat bread, or drink water in this place:

17 Because the Lord spoke to me, in the word of the Lord, saying: Thou shalt not eat bread, and thou shalt not drink water there, nor return by the way thou wentest.

18 He said to him: I also am a prophet like unto thee: and an angel spoke to me, in the word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back with thee into thy house, that he may eat bread, and drink water. He deceived him, 19 And brought him back with him: so he ate bread, and drank water in his house.

20 And as they sat at table, the word of the Lord came to the prophet that brought him back:

21 And he cried out to the man of God who came out of Juda, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Because thou hast not been obedient to the Lord, and hast not kept the commandment which the Lord thy God commanded thee,

22 And hast returned, and eaten bread, and drunk water in the place wherein he commanded thee that thou should not eat bread, nor drink water, thy dead body shall not be brought into the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 And when he had eaten and drunk, he saddled his ass for the prophet, whom he had brought back.

24 And when he was gone, a lion found him in the way, and killed him, and his body was cast in the way: and the ass stood by him, and the lion stood by the dead body.

leave nothing unfinished; as God says, by the way that he came, he shall return, (Isai. xxxvii. 34.) to denote that Sennacherib's attempts should be frustrated. C.

VER. 11. Bethel, originally (H.) from Samaria. 4 K. xxiii. 18. M.—Josias would have burnt his bones, like those of the false prophets, if they had not been blended with those of the man of God. C.

VER. 18. An angel spoke to me, &c. This old man of Bethel was indeed a prophet, but he sinned in thus deceiving the man of God; the more, because he pretended a revelation for what he did; (Ch. W.) though he did it with a good intention, and supposed that the prophet had only been forbidden to eat with Jeroboam and his followers. Theod. q. 42.—This lie might cause him to be styled, "a false prophet," by Josephus. Abulensis thinks he was a wicked man, like Balaam; and many suppose that he was the chief instrument in deluding the king. Josep. S. Greg. &c.—After the man of God had been torn to pieces, he might easily persuade the people that he was only an impostor, and that the pretended miracles were merely the effects of natural causes. It is not certain that this man was inspired by God, v. 20.—Deceived. Heb. "he lied unto him," (C.) and thus caused him to transgress. W.

VER. 20. Table. After this the Masorets place a piska, or circle, to denote some omission, which the Syriac version alone supplies; "and did eat." Kenn.—Back. Some translate, "whom he had brought back;" Junius, Syr. &c.—This would destroy the principal proof of those who esteem the man of Bethel to have been a true prophet. C.—Prot. agree with us; and the context seems to assert, that God addressed his servant by another's mouth. H.

VER. 22. Fathers. This was a great punishment for the Hebrews. Gen. xlix. 29.

VER. 23. For. Some Latin MSS. read propheta, as if the prophet saddled his own ass. But he probably came on foot, and the man of Bethel lent him one. C.

VER. 24. Killed him. Thus the Lord often punishes his servants here, that he

25 And behold, men passing by, saw the dead body cast in the way, and the lion standing by the body. And they came and told it in the city, wherein that old prophet dwelt.

26 And when that prophet, who had brought him back out of the way, heard of it, he said: It is the man of God, that was disobedient to the mouth of the Lord, and the Lord hath delivered him to the lion, and he hath torn him, and killed him, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke to him.

27 And he said to his sons: Saddle me an ass. And when they had saddled it, 28 And he was gone, he found the dead body cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcass: the lion had not eaten of the dead body, nor hurt the ass.

29 And the prophet took up the body of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and going back brought it into the city of the old prophet, to mourn for him.

30 And he laid his dead body in his own sepulchre: and they mourned over him, saying: Alas! alas, my brother.

31 And when they had mourned over him, he said to his sons: When I am dead, bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried: lay my bones beside his bones.

32 For assuredly the word shall come to pass which he hath foretold in the word of the Lord, against the altar that is in Bethel: and against all the temples of the high places, that are in the cities of Samaria.

33 After these words, Jeroboam came not back from his wicked way: but on the contrary, he made of the meanest of the people priests of the high places: whosoever would, he filled his hand, and he was made a priest of the high places.

34 And for this cause did the house of Jeroboam sin, and was cut off, and destroyed from the face of the earth.

* Supra xi. 31.

may spare them hereafter. For the generality of divines are of opinion, that the sin of this prophet, considered with all its circumstances, was not mortal. Ch.—He had received a positive order, and ought to have tried the spirits, whether they were from God. 1 Jo. iv. 1. Gal. vi. 18. Every prophecy which contradicts the word of God, comes from an evil principle. C.—The prophet might suppose, however, that some cause had intervened, which authorized him to eat with this his brother, (v. 30) whom he probably revered as a true prophet. Many of God's commands are conditional. H.—Serenus observes, that God often inflicts death for the smallest faults. Cassian vii. 26. S. Greg. Dial. iv. 24.—S. Augustine (cura, c. 7.) doubts not of the prophet's salvation.—Body, without even hurting the ass, v. 28. H.—God protected the relics of his servant, by stationing the lion for a guard. Procop. M.—How impenetrable are the counsels of God! He suffers Jeroboam, and the prophet who had seduced his servant, to live; while he punishes the latter for a fault which he had committed undesignedly. But he thus purified him from guilt, (C.) while he reserved Jeroboam for more lasting torments in another world. H.—Nothing could prove more forcibly the existence of future rewards and punishments. C.—Not only the deceiver, but he also who is deceived, so as to transgress God's orders, must be punished. W.

VER. 30. Brother. Such titles were customary. Jer. xxii. 18. M.

VER. 31. Bones. Sept. add, "that my bones may be saved along with his." The conduct and faith of this man would lead us to conclude that he had done wrong, without any malicious design, v. 18. H.

VER. 32. Samaria. The city was built by Amri, fifty years after the death of Jeroboam. C. xvi. 24. But the sacred writer speaks of places by the names which they bore in his time. C.—If this man was a prophet, he might easily mention Samaria, which would give its name to the kingdom of Israel. There was also probably a village of this name long before, on the mountain Samir, where one of the judges was buried. Judg. x. 2. H.

VER. 33. Way. Every thing promotes the salvation of the just, while the wicked pervert the most gracious designs of Providence to their own ruin. The king concluded that the prediction deserved no regard, v. 18. C.—Meanest. C. xii. 31. Thus he wished to eradicate all sense of religion. H.—His, suam, "own." Any person who brought the and the necessary victims, might assume the office of priest. See Ex. xxviii. 41. H.

CHAP. XIV.

Ahias prophesieth the destruction of the family of Jeroboam. He dieth, and is succeeded by his son Nadab. The king of Egypt taketh and pillageth Jerusalem. Roboam dieth, and his son Abiam succeedeth.

AT that time Abia, the son of Jeroboam, fell sick.

2 And Jeroboam said to his wife: Arise, and change thy dress, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Silo, where Ahias, the prophet is, * who told me that I should reign over this people.

3 Take also with thee ten loaves, and cracknels, and a pot of honey, and go to him: for he will tell thee what will become of this child.

4 Jeroboam's wife did as he told her: and rising up, went to Silo, and came to the house of Ahias; but he could not see, for his eyes were dim by reason of his age.

5 And the Lord said to Ahias: Behold the wife of Jeroboam cometh in, to consult thee concerning her son, that is sick: thus and thus shalt thou speak to her. So when she was coming in, and made as if she were another woman,

6 Ahias heard the sound of her feet, coming in at the door, and said: Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam: why dost thou feign thyself to be another? But I am sent to thee with heavy tidings.

7 Go, and tell Jeroboam: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: For as much as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel;

8 And rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to thee, and thou hast not been as my servant, David, who kept my commandments, and followed me with all his heart, doing that which was well pleasing in my sight:

9 But hast done evil above all that were before thee, and hast made thee strange gods, and molten gods, to provoke me to anger, and hast cast me behind thy back:

VER. 34. Earth. Heb. "to destroy it from the face of the earth." The Vulg. insinuates that it had taken place before the author wrote. In the third year of Aza, 22 years after this revolt, Baasa slew the whole family. C. xv. 29.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. At. The Sept. omit the 20 verses following. But Grabe's edition has them marked with asterisks, (H.) as being supplied from Theodotion, &c. The Vat. copy gives a great part, with some circumstances which occur no where else. C. xii. 24. C.—The wife of Jeroboam is there called Ano, (M.) the elder sister of the queen of Egypt, Thekemina. See C. xi. 19; where Adad marries another sister. H.—Time. This expression does not determine the year. S. Chrysa. &c.—The passage in the Vat. Sept. seems to place this death before Jeroboam ascended the throne: but it took place rather at the end of his reign, v. 14. Abia seems to have been his eldest son, and fit for command; so that the people mourn for him, which they would hardly have done for an infant. C.

VER. 2. Dress. As if the prophet, who could dive into futurity, could be thus imposed upon. Jeroboam was aware that he would be full of indignation at the changes which had been introduced. He might also fear, lest his wife might be exposed to danger in (C.) or near (H.) the enemy's country, (C.) and the people would have been more convinced of the vanity of their idols, if they had seen that it was necessary to have recourse to a prophet of the true God. M.—The mother might ask without the least suspicion, "Will my son recover?"—Sic might still be attached to the service of God, in consequence of the ark residing there so long, and the presence of the revered Ahias; so that, if it formed a part of the dominions of Israel, (T.) as it was in the tribe of Ephraim, though nearer Jerusalem than Sichem, (C.) Jeroboam might reasonably fear lest his wife should be treated with indignity. T.

VER. 3. Cracknels. Heb. nikkudim, "cakes full of holes," &c. Jos. ix. 12. C.—Sept. give a double translation, "cakes and raisins." Arab. "fruits." Syr. adds "dried." It was customary to make presents to the prophets, 1 K. ix. 7. C.—But these were mean, that the woman might not be known. D.—It is not said that Ahias deigned to receive them. S. Jer. in Mic. iii.

VER. 4. Dim. Heb. "swelled," &c. C.—Sept. inform us that the prophet was 60 years old. H.

VER. 5. Tidings. Heb. "I am a hard messenger to thee" C.

10 Therefore, behold I will bring evils upon the house of Jeroboam, and "will cut off from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in Israel: and I will sweep away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as dung is swept away till all be clean.

11 Them that shall die of Jeroboam in the city, the dogs shall eat: and them that shall die in the field, the birds of the air shall devour: for the Lord hath spoken it.

12 Arise thou, therefore, and go to thy house: and when thy feet shall be entering into the city, the child shall die,

13 And all Israel shall mourn for him, and shall bury him: for he only of Jeroboam shall be laid in a sepulchre, because in his regard there is found a good word from the Lord, the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam.

14 And the Lord hath appointed himself a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam in this day, and in this time:

15 And the Lord God shall strike Israel as a reed is shaken in the water: and he shall root up Israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river: because they have made to themselves groves, to provoke the Lord.

16 And the Lord shall give up Israel for the sins of Jeroboam, who hath sinned, and made Israel to sin.

17 And the wife of Jeroboam arose, and departed, and came to Thersa: and when she was coming in to the threshold of the house, the child died, 18 And they buried him. And all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of his servant Ahias, the prophet.

19 And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he

* Infra xv. 29.—b 2 Par. xii. 13.

VER. 9. Strange gods; that is, foreign gods; which expression destroys the opinion of those who imagine that Jeroboam designed by his calves to worship the Lord God of Israel. Ch.—Back. Lit. "body."

VER. 10. Wall. Every male child, or every dog. See 1 K. xxv. 22. H.—The Heb. word mashtin, in Spanish and French, signifies a "shepherd's dog."—Israel. This proverbial expression signifies, that even those who keep at home, and meddle not with the affairs of war, will not escape; (C.) nor shall those who have run away from the field of battle, (H.) nor the most precious or contemptible things be spared. Deut. xxxii. 36. 4 K. xiv. 26. M.—Clean. This family is compared to something most disgusting, (H.) because it had introduced idolatry, and the prediction against it was literally fulfilled by Baasa, (C. xv. 29. T.) "as the vintner seeks in the vineyard even for the last grape." Syr. and Arab.

VER. 11. Devour. They shall have the burial of asses. Jer. xxii. 19.

VER. 13. Word from. Heb. or "thought towards." Grot.—He has entertained sentiments of piety (C.) in the midst of a wicked court; therefore, God will hasten to draw him out of the midst of iniquity. H.—The Rabbins say that he had pulled down the walls, which his father had built, to prevent the people from going to Jerusalem. C.—God was pleased to show mercy to him. M.

VER. 14. Time. Prot. "But what! even now." The young prince, (H.) who was the firmest support of the family, was presently hurried away. Abia, king of Juda, slew above 500,000 of Jeroboam's subjects at once; and Baasa exterminated his family. C.—The latter had now begun his conspiracy. Abulensis, q. 26.

VER. 15. Water. The kingdom of Israel was continually agitated with wars.—River Euphrates, by degrees. The kings of Assyria verified these predictions; and we know not what is become of these ten tribes. C.—To provoke. These people did not perhaps design (H.) to make God their enemy, no more than their king did, v. 9. But their actions had that effect. Such expressions denote not the final cause, but the sequel of other facts, without direct intention. W.—Yet these sins might probably be called sins of malice. H.—They were all involved in ruin, because they had been accomplices in wickedness. M.

VER. 16. Sin. This is the common effect of evil example in kings. Plus exemplo quam peccato nocent Cicero, Leg. iii. "As it is esteemed a sort of service to imitate the customs and vices of the king; they laid aside all piety, lest they might seem to upbraid the king with his impiety, if they should live in a virtuous manner." Lact. v. 6. The crimes of kings are seldom confined to their own persons. C.

VER. 17. Thersa. Sept. inform us that Jeroboam had built this place, which fought, and how he reigned, behold they are written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel.

20 And the days that Jeroboam reigned, were two and twenty years: and he slept with his fathers: and Nadab, his son, reigned in his stead.

21 And Roboam, the son of Solomon, reigned in Juda: Roboam was one and forty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the Lord chose out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naama, an Ammonitess.

22 And Juda did evil in the sight of the Lord, and provoked him above all that their fathers had done, in their sins which they committed.

23 For they also built them altars, and statues, and groves, upon every high hill, and under every green tree:

24 There were also the effeminate in the land, and they did according to all the abominations of the people, whom the Lord had destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

25 And in the fifth year of the reign of Roboam, Sesac, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem.

26 And he took away the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the king's treasures, and carried all off: as also the shields of gold which Solomon had made:

27 And Roboam made shields of brass instead of them, and delivered them into the hand of the captains of the shield-bearers, and of them that kept watch before the gate of the king's house.

28 And when the king went into the house of the Lord, they whose office it was to go before him, carried them: and afterwards they brought them back to the armoury of the shield-bearers.

* A. M. 3080.—d Supra x. 16.

they call Savira, while he was employed by Solomon. No wonder, therefore, that it is not mentioned by Josue. Its exact situation is not known, though it must have been very delightful, since Solomon compares the spouse to it. C.—Where we read sorel, (Cant. vi. 3.) Heb. has, "Thou art beautiful . . as Thersa, and comely as Jerusalem." Hither Jeroboam had removed his court from Sichem. T.—Some place Thersa in the tribe of Manasses; (Adric.) others, in that of Ephraim. Bonfrere.—House. Heb. "door," or gate of the city, when the prophet had denounced that the child should die, (v. 12.) unless the palace was contiguous to the walls. H.

VER. 19. The book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel. This book, which is often mentioned in the Book of Kings, is long since lost. For as to the books of Paralipomenon, or Chronicles, (which the Hebrews call the words of the days) they were certainly written after the Book of Kings, since they frequently refer to them; (Ch.) and they also remit us to these journals for farther information. H.

VER. 21. Forty. Some suspect there is a mistake, and that it should be twenty-one. See 1 Par. xxii. 5. Grotius. D.—Hardouin dates from the era of Solomon. Roboam was young, in the Scripture style. But he might be forty-one years old. C. xii. 10. C.—Ammonitess. She probably perverted her son; (M.) so that he only continued three years faithful to the Lord; (2 Par. xi. 17.) when his people readily imitated the idolatry of Israel, as they had been already staggered in their faith by the conduct of Solomon. C.

VER. 23. High hill. Such places of devotion had been tolerated, before the temple was built: but now they were deemed profane. C.

VER. 24. The effeminate. Catamites, or men addicted to unnatural lust. Ch.—This crime had been punished in the Sodomites, and in the people of Chanaan, and of Benjamin. Yet they continued prevalent in the country. C. xv. 12. and 4 K. xxiii. 7. and Isai. ii. 6. and 2 Mac. iv. 12. C.—These were perpetrated in honour of Venus, Priapus, &c. M. See Deut. xxiii. 17. H.

VER. 25. Sesac. See C. xi. 40. He was allied to Jeroboam, (C.) so that he might come to his assistance, (H.) being attracted by the ivory throne, (Rabbins) and the immense riches of Jerusalem. C.—Roboam was informed by Semeias, that resistance would be fruitless; and being humbled, he repaired more frequently to the temple, v. 18. But his piety was of short duration, as it was influenced only by fear. 2 Par. xii. 14.

VER. 27. Hand. Sym. "the place where the courtiers" (guards) stood, (H.) in the hall; (C.) or he made the guards carry these shields before him, v. 28. H.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Roboam, and all that he did, behold they are written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda.

30 And there was war between Roboam and Jeroboam always.

31 And Roboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with them, in the city of David: and his mother's name was Naama, an Ammonitess: and Abiam, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XV.

The acts of Abiam, and of Asa, kings of Juda. And of Nadab, and Baasa, kings of Israel.

NOW "in the eighteenth year of the reign of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, Abiam reigned over Juda.

2 He reigned three years in Jerusalem: "the name of his mother was Maacha, the daughter of Abessalom.

3 And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him: and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David, his father.

4 But for David's sake the Lord his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and to establish Jerusalem:

5 Because David had done that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, and had not turned aside from any thing that he commanded him, all the days of his life, "except the matter of Urias, the Hethite.

6 But there was war between Roboam and Jeroboam all the time of his life.

* A. M. 3046, A. C. 955.—^b 2 Par. xiii. 2.—^c 2 Kings xi. 14.

VER. 30. Always. The two kingdoms were constantly divided, and did each other all the harm they could; though we know not that they ever came to a pitched battle. Roboam was too great a coward. 2 Par. xiii. 7.

VER. 31. Roboam. He deserved some commendation for procuring provisions, and fortifying his dominions; (2 Par. xi. 5, 12.) but was a prince devoid of wisdom or religion. He married 18 wives and 60 concubines. The son of Maacha, his most favourite queen, succeeded him, after he had reigned seventeen years, and lived fifty-eight. C.—Semeias and Addo wrote his history. 2 Par. xii. 15.

CHAP. XV. VER. 2. Years, wanting some months. Maacha. She is called elsewhere, Michai, daughter of Uriel; but it was a common thing, in those days, for the same person to have two names. Ch.—Abessalom and Absalom, the son of David, are the same. 2 Par. xi. 21. C.—S. Jerom (Trad.) is of a different opinion. M.—Josephus (viii. 10.) intimates that Maacha was daughter of Thamar. The eldest daughter, in the kingdom of Gessur, seems to have been usually styled Maacha, v. 10. T.

VER. 4. Lamp, son; (C. xi. 36.) though he deserved to have his family exterminated. C.—He is preserved for his father's sake. W.

VER. 5. Hethite. This could not be excused. But all his other imperfections might not appear criminal in the eyes of the world, as they had some pretext of virtue; so that God reserves the judgment of them to himself, and to David's conscience, who confessed that he had sinned. 2 K. xxiv. 10. T.—Except David, Ezechias, and Josias, all the kings of Juda committed sin; (Eccl. xlix. 5. C.) and not one of those who ruled over Israel, gave an example of virtue. H.—David soon entered into himself, with respect to his other failings. But he continued for a long time involved in the guilt of adultery and murder. Sanchez.

VER. 6. Roboam. This had been remarked, C. xiv. 30. H.—There was a domestic quarrel between the two families. C.—Some suspect that Roboam is pleased to designate his successors, or that we ought to read, Abia. Sanchez.—Casta' va rashly ventures to alter the text. C.—Abiam gained a decisive victory over Jeroboam, v. 7. 2 Par. xiii. 3.

VER. 9. Year complete, when the 21st was running on. Usher.—Sept. "the 21th." C.—But Grabe's edition agrees with the Heb. H.

VER. 10. His mother's, &c. That is, his grandmother; unless we suppose, which is not improbable, that the Maacha here named is different from the Maacha mentioned v. 2. Ch.—She was probably another grand-daughter of David's son, (C.) as such are frequently styled simply daughters. So David is called the father of Asa, (v. 11. H.) though he was really his great-grandfather. M.

VER. 12. Effeminate. See C. xiv. 24. Yet his zeal could not entirely eradicate this evil. There was room for the exertions of his son Josaphat. C. xxi. 17. C.—The king punished with death such as he could discover. H.

VER. 13. Priapus. He would not spare such abominations in his own family. H.—He took from his mother the direction of the priests, (Vatab.) and her

7 And the rest of the words of Abiam, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?^a And there was war between Abiam and Jeroboam.

8 And Abiam slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: "and Asa, his son, reigned in his stead.

9 So in the 'twentieth year of Jeroboam, king of Israel, reigned Asa, king of Juda,

10 And he reigned one and forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Maacha, the daughter of Abessalom.

11 And Asa did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, as did David, his father:

12 And he took away the effeminate out of the land, and removed all the filth of the idols, which his fathers had made.

13 Moreover, he also removed his mother, Maacha, from being the princess in the sacrifices of Priapus, and in the grove which she had consecrated to him: and he destroyed her den, and broke in pieces the filthy idol, and burnt it by the torrent Cedron:

14 But the high places he did not take away. Nevertheless, the heart of Asa was perfect with the Lord all his days:

15 And he brought in the things which his father had dedicated, and he had vowed, into the house of the Lord, silver and gold, and vessels.

16 And there was war between Asa, and Baasa, king of Israel, all their days.

^a 2 Par. xiii. 2.—^b 2 Par. xiv. 1.—^c A. M. 3049, A. C. 955.

guards. Grot.—Heb. "when he removed from being queen, because she had made a Miphlatstah." H.—Sept. render this term a synod, "meeting," or something shameful; also a cavern, or den; and in Par. the "idol" Astarte. S. Jerom also gives different meanings; so that the precise import is not well known. Most people translate, "a scarecrow;" (C.) terriculum. In the gardens of Greece and of Rome, the figure of Priapus was set up (D.) to frighten thieves and birds away.

*Inde ego furum aversionem
Maxima formido.*—Hor. Sat. 1. 8.

Others understand that Pan, another frightening idol, is here meant; (Castalion) or the abominations of Phallus and Ithyphallus, derived from the same Heb. word. Selden.—As the goddess Astarte, or Asera, "the grove," here the object of adoration, was the wife of Adonis, it is probable that the same obscenities were carried in triumph, as Herodotus (ii. 28. and 49.) specifies in the description of the festival of Bacchus, celebrated by the Egyptians.—To him. Prot. "She had made an idol in the grove." Heb. also, "to Asera; and Asa destroyed her idol, (miphlatstah) and burnt it." H.

VER. 14. The high places. There were excelsa, or high places, of two different kinds. Some were set up and dedicated to the worship of idols, or strange gods; and these Asa removed. 2 Par. xiv. 2. Others were only altars of the true God, but were erected contrary to the law, which allowed of no sacrifices but in the temple; and these were not removed by Asa. Ch.—They had been built before the temple, and tolerated by the prophets; (C.) and, though they were now improper for sacrifices, (H.) Asa thought it would be imprudent to molest them (C.) as perhaps he could not take them away. D.—He left also the ruins of (H) the temples built by Solomon, (W.) on Mount Olivet, (4 K. xxiii. M.) as no longer dangerous. Salien.—Lord. Asa had his faults; but never forsook the worship of the Lord. Ch.—In the same sense, David is so often praised as a just prince. Asa threw a prophet into prison, and placed his trust as much in physicians, &c. 2 Par. xvi. 10, 12. But he did penance, and deserves to be ranked (C.) among the few just kings of Juda. H.

VER. 15. Vowed. Heb. "which he himself had dedicated," or vowed. 2 Par. xv. 18. H.—Asa made liberal presents to the Lord, and gave what his father had promised, (M.) probably during the famous battle against Jeroboam. 2 Par. xiii. 5. Abulens. q. 17.—Abiam was a wicked prince, and had neglected this duty, though he reigned three years. Hence he was slain by God, ib. v. 20. It seems that heirs were bound to execute the vows of their parents, though Moses does not express it. C.

VER. 16. Their days: not that they were always fighting. H.—Open war was declared only in the 35th year of Asa, (2 Par. xv. 19.) which must be dated from the schism, and not from the commencement of his reign; since his rival Baasa, enjoyed the sovereignty only 24 years, and died in the 26th of Asa, which was the 36th from the division of the two kingdoms. Thus Hardouin observes that the years of Commodus, in some ancient Egyptian medals, are dated from the reign of M. Aurelius, chief of that family; so that the first of Commodus is in 17 *And Baasa, king of Israel, went up against Juda, and built Rama, that no man might go out or come in of the side of Asa, king of Juda.

18 Then Asa took all the silver and gold that remained in the treasures of the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the king's house, and delivered it into the hands of his servants: and sent them to Benadad, son of Tabremon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, saying:

19 There is a league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father: therefore I have sent thee presents of silver and gold: and I desire thee to come, and break thy league with Baasa, king of Israel, that he may depart from me.

20 Benadad, hearkening to king Asa, sent the captains of his army against the cities of Israel, and they smote Ahion, and Dan, and Abel-bethmaacha, and all Ceneroth; that is, all the land of Nephthali.

21 And when Baasa had heard this, he left off building Rama, and returned into Thersa.

22 But king Asa sent word into all Juda, saying: Let no man be excused: and they took away the stones from Rama, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasa had been building, and with them king Asa built Gabaa of Benjamin, and Maspha.

23 But the rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his strength, and all that he did, and the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? But in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet.

24 And he slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, his father.^b And Josaphat, his son, reigned in his place.

25 But Nadab, the son of Jeroboam, reigned over Israel the second year^c of Asa, king of Juda: and he reigned over Israel two years.

26 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the ways of his father, and in his sins, wherewith he made Israel to sin.

^a 2 Par. xvi. 1. A. M. 3051, A. C. 958.—^b 2 Par. xvii. 1.—^c A. M. 3050, A. C. 954.

scribed the twenty-first of Aurelius. Asa defeated Zara in the fifteenth, and attacked Israel in the sixteenth year of his reign. Usher. T. C.—Others would substitute 25 for 35, (Grot. Capel.) though contrary to the text, and to all the versions. C.

VER. 17. Rama, fortifying it with a wall all round. 2 Paral. xvi. H.—Rama signifies, "a height." This fort commanded a narrow pass, between the two kingdoms, (C.) and cut off all communication; which Baasa dreaded, lest his subjects should return to the service of the true God, and of Juda. H.—Josue (xviii. 25.) mentions Rama, near Gabaa, (C.) about five miles north of Jerusalem. S. Jerom.—There was another towards the south. M.—But there the king of Israel would have no power. H.

VER. 18. House. Saseac had not carried off all the treasures, (C.) and the losses had been since in a great measure repaired, v. 15. H.—Asa thought himself justified in employing these treasures in such a pressing necessity, (C.) perhaps (H.) without reason, as the danger was not so great; and he might have gained the victory without having recourse to an infidel, if he had placed more confidence in God. 2 Par. xvi. 7, 9. M.—He had already discomfited Zara, king of Ethiopia, and had an army of 580,000 men. C. 2 Par. xiv. 8.—Tabremon, "Good Remmon," idol of Damascus. H.—Hezion, the same with Razon. C. xi. 23. M.

VER. 19. League. The infidel is ready to take part with the best bidder. H.—Benadad gains a double reward, as he plunders the conquered. M.

VER. 20. Ahion, or Ain, remote in the north, whence Theglathphalasar took away captives, (4 K. xv. 29.) is perhaps the Enan of Eze. xlviii. 1. Num. xxxiv. 9.—Maacha. In Paral. Abel-maim, "Abela of the waters." 2 K. xx. 14.—Ceneroth, near the sea of Tiberias. Jos. xi. 2. Benadad kept possession of some of these places, and even built streets in Samaria. C. xx. 34.

VER. 21. Returned. So the Sept. Heb. "dwelt." C.—He returned to protect his own dominions, (M.) and shut himself up in his capital. C.

VER. 22. Excused. "When the country is to be defended, all exemptions cease." Leg. ult. C.—Sept. seem to preserve the terms of the original untrans-

27 And Baasa, the son of Ahias, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him, and slew him in Gebbethon, which is a city of the Philistines: for Nadab and all Israel besieged Gebbethon.

28 So Baasa slew him in the third year^d of Asa, king of Juda, and reigned in his place.

29 *And when he was king, he cut off all the house of Jeroboam: he left not so much as one soul of his seed, till he had utterly destroyed him, according to the word of the Lord,^e which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias, the Silonite:

30 Because of the sin of Jeroboam, which he had sinned, and wherewith he had made Israel to sin, and for the offence wherewith he provoked the Lord, the God of Israel.

31 But the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

32 And there was war between Asa and Baasa, the king of Israel, all their days.

33 In the third year^f of Asa, king of Juda, Baasa, the son of Ahias, reigned over all Israel, in Thersa, four and twenty years.

34 And he did evil before the Lord, and walked in the ways of Jeroboam, and in his sins, wherewith he made Israel to sin.

CHAP. XVI.

Jehu prophesieth against Baasa: his son Ela is slain, and all his family destroyed by Zambri: of the reign of Amri, father of Achab.

THEN the word of the Lord came to Jehu, the son of Hanani, against Baasa, saying:

2 For as much as I have exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins:

3 Behold I will cut down the posterity of Baasa, and the posterity of his house, and I will make thy house as the house of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat.

^d A. M. 3051.—^e Infra xxi. 22.—^f Supra xiv. 10.—^g A. M. 3051.

lated, "Asa called all . . . to Annacim." Heb. en naki, (H.) means, "no one exempt." C.—Rama belonged to the enemy; and, as it appears from this passage, was in the vicinity of Maspha. H.—Gabaa, the city of Saul, (M.) adding fresh fortifications, as this and Maspha were frontier towns, against the inroads of Israel. H.

VER. 23. Strength. Sept. "dynasty," or power, whether of his dominions or of his person. C.—Feet, with the gout, (M.) three years before his death. He did not confide in the Lord sufficiently. 2 Par. xvi. 12. His body was embalmed or burnt, unless aromatic spices evaporated while it was laid on a bed of state, before it was consigned to the tomb, which Asa had prepared for himself in the city of David. Ibid.

VER. 25. Two years, incomplete; since he commenced his reign in the second, and died in the third year of Asa, v. 28. C.—Petau only allows him, "a few months;" and supposes, that he had been associated on the throne with Jeroboam. But this is unnecessary. Houbigant.—Nadab was the first king of Israel, who fell a prey to the fury of his subjects. Salien, A. C. 971.

VER. 27. Gebbethon, of the tribe of Dan, occupied by the Philistines. It was often attacked. C. xvi. 15. C.—The occasion of this war is not known. M.

VER. 29. Jeroboam. The author of schism is punished in his posterity. W.—The body of Nadab was left unburied. C. xiv. 11. M.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 1. Jehu was different from one of the same name and parentage, who came to Josaphat; (2 Par. xix. 2. D. T.) though, if Baasa did not put him to death, as there is some reason to doubt, he might be the same, v. 7. C.—Hanani had been sent to Asa, 2 Par. xvi. 7. Abulens. q. 3.

VER. 2. I have. All power comes from God, though he frequently disapproves of the means by which people obtain it. H.—Baasa was a traitorous usurper.—My people. Many had abandoned the Lord: (H.) yet he still regards Israel as his people, sending prophets to reclaim them, and preserving many from bending the knee before Baal.

VER. 3. Posterity, (posteriors. H.) children, and all that he shall leave behind. C.—Baasa himself died a natural death, v. 8. Salien.

4 *Him that dieth of Baasa, in the city, the dogs shall eat: and him that dieth of his in the country, the fowls of the air shall devour.

5 *But the rest of the acts of Baasa, and all that he did, and his battles, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

6 So Baasa slept with his fathers, and was buried in Thersa: and Ela, his son, reigned in his stead.

7 And when the word of the Lord came in the hand of Jehu, the son of Hanani, the prophet, against Baasa, and against his house, and against all the evil that he had done before the Lord, to provoke him to anger by the works of his hands, to become as the house of Jeroboam: for this cause he slew him; that is to say, Jehu, the son of Hanani, the prophet.

8 In the *six and twentieth year of Asa, king of Juda, Ela, the son of Baasa, reigned over Israel, in Thersa, two years.

9 And his servant Zambri, who was captain of half the horsemen, rebelled against him: now Ela was drinking in Thersa, and drunk in the house of Arsa, the governor of Thersa.

10 *And Zambri rushing in, struck him, and slew him, in the seven and twentieth year of Asa, king of Juda; and he reigned in his stead.

11 And when he was king, and sat upon his throne, he slew all the house of Baasa, and he left not one thereof to piss against a wall and all his kinsfolks and friends.

12 And Zambri destroyed all the house of Baasa, according to the word of the Lord, that he had spoken to Baasa, in the hand of Jehu, the prophet, 13 For all the sins of Baasa, and the sins of Ela, his son, who sinned, and made Israel to sin, provoking the Lord, the God of Israel, with their vanities.

14 But the rest of the acts of Ela, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

15 In the seven and twentieth year *of Asa, king of Juda, Zambri reigned seven days in Thersa: now the army was besieging Gebbethon, a city of the Philistines.

16 And when they heard that Zambri had rebelled,

* Supra xiv. 11.—b 2 Par. xvi. 1.—c A. M. 8074, A. C. 980.—d 4 Kings ix. 81.

VER. 7. The evil, to punish it. M.—He, God, slew him, Bansa, (C.) or “because the latter slew” Nadab, &c. Grotius.—God punished his usurpation and murders. C.—That is, &c. is not found in Heb. Chal. Sept. nor in some Latin copies. E.—Hence Jehu might survive to admonish Josaphat, v. 1. C.

VER. 8. Years, in part, as he was slain in the 27th year of Asa, v. 10.

VER. 9. Horsemen, Heb. “chariots.” Sept. C.—But Josephus styles him, Hipparchon, “general of the horse.” M.—Rebelled. Heb. “conspired.” H.—He acted privately at first. M.—Governor. Heb. “steward of his house.” Chal. and Arab. “in the temple of the idol Arsa,” the earth, whom the pagans worshipped as the mother of gods and men; unless Arsa be put for Asera, or Astarte. C.

VER. 11. Wall. See 1 K. xxv. 22.—Friends, from whom he had any thing to fear. M.

VER. 13. Vanities; idols. H.—They raised fresh altars; or, by their example, encouraged the people to persevere in their impiety. M.

VER. 16. All Israel, that was in the army, while others took part with Zambri. W.

VER. 18. Himself. Heb. may also signify, “he (Amri) burnt him.”—Zambri, his rival. But the other sense is more natural. C.—Thus Sardanapalus chose to destroy himself, with all his riches, (Justin l. Athen. xii. 7.) to prevent the dead body from being insulted. It was for this reason that Sylla, the first of the Cornelian family, ordered his remains to be burnt. Cic. Leg. l. 1. T.

VER. 19. To sin. Zambri had sufficient time, in seven days, (H.) to manifest his evil dispositions, of which he had perhaps given proof before. C.

VER. 21. Parts. Those who had not chosen Amri, were mortified at the elec-and slain the king, all Israel made Amri their king, who was general over Israel in the camp that day.

17 And Amri went up, and all Israel with him, from Gebbethon, and they besieged Thersa.

18 And Zambri, seeing that the city was about to be taken, went into the palace, and burnt himself with the king's house: and he died

19 In his sins, which he had sinned, doing evil before the Lord, and walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin, wherewith he made Israel to sin.

20 But the rest of the acts of Zambri, and of his conspiracy and tyranny, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

21 Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts: one half of the people followed Thebni, the son of Gineth, to make him king: and one half followed Amri.

22 But the people that were with Amri, prevailed over the people that followed Thebni, the son of Gineth: and Thebni died, and Amri reigned.

23 In the one and thirtieth year *of Asa, king of Juda, Amri reigned over Israel twelve years: in Thersa he reigned six years.

24 And he bought the hill of Samaria of Semer, for two talents of silver: and he built upon it, and he called the city which he built Samaria, after the name of Semer, the owner of the hill.

25 And Amri did evil in the sight of the Lord, and acted wickedly above all that were before him.

26 And he walked in all the way of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, and in his sins, wherewith he made Israel to sin: to provoke the Lord, the God of Israel, to anger with their vanities.

27 Now the rest of the acts of Amri, and the battles he fought, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

28 And *Amri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab, his son, reigned in his stead.

29 Now Achab, the son of Amri, reigned over Israel in the eight and thirtieth year of Asa, king of Juda. And Achab, the son of Amri, reigned over Israel in Samaria two and twenty years.

A. M. 8075, A. C. 929.—f A. M. 8078, A. C. 925.—g A. M. 8086, A. C. 918.

tion made by the army, and therefore set up another king. C.—The contest seems to have lasted four years. Houbigant.

VER. 22. Diad in the battle, wherein Amri prevailed. M.

VER. 23. In the one and thirtieth year, &c. Amri began to reign in the seven and twentieth year of Asa; but had not the quiet possession of the kingdom, till the death of his competitor Thebni, which was in the one and thirtieth year of Asa's reign. Ch.—Twelve years in all, (W.) comprehending the four of civil war six at Thersa, and two in Samaria. Houbigant.

VER. 24. Silver: 884l. 7s. 6d. sterling. Arbuthnot.—The place was sold so cheap, on condition that it should be called after the original owner. Salien.—Somer dwelt there; and several houses had been already erected, (C. xiii. 32.) and even streets, by the king of Syria, for the convenience of his merchants. C. xx. 34. H.—Thersa had lately been so much ruined by civil wars, that Amri thought proper to choose a new seat of government. Samaria was greatly adorned by succeeding kings. C. xxii. 39. It stood in a delightful and commanding situation, and gave its name to the adjacent territory, and to the whole kingdom of Israel. Benadad besieged it twice; and Salmanasar took it. The kings of Egypt laid claim to it, after the death of Alexander: but Antiochus, of Syria, took it from them. Hyrcanus levelled it with the ground. Herod the Great rebuilt the city, and called it Sebaste, in honour of Augustus.

VER. 25. Above. He made a law, (C.) to force all to, conform to the established irreligion. Mic. vi. 16. H.

VER. 26. With their vanities. That is, their idols, their golden calves, vain false, deceitful things.

30 And Achab, the son of Amri, did evil in the sight of the Lord above all that were before him.

31 Nor was it enough for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat: but he also took to wife Jezabel, daughter of Ethbaal, king of the Sidonians. And he went, and served Baal, and adored him.

32 And he set up an altar for Baal, in the temple of Baal, which he had built in Samaria;

33 And he planted a grove: and Achab did more to provoke the Lord, the God of Israel, than all the kings of Israel that were before him.

34 In his days Hiel, of Bethel, built Jericho: in Abiram, his first-born, he laid its foundations: and in his youngest son, Segub, he set up the gates thereof: according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke in the hand of Josue, the son of^a Nun.

CHAP. XVII.

Elias shutteth up the heavens from raining. He is fed by ravens, and afterwards by a widow of Sarephta. He raiseth the widow's son to life.

AND^b Elias the Thesbite, of the inhabitants of Galaad, said to Achab: As the Lord liveth, the God of Israel, in whose sight I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to the words of my mouth.

2 And the word of the Lord came to him, saying:

3 Get thee hence, and go towards the east, and hide thyself by the torrent of Carith, which is over-against the Jordan;

4 And there thou shalt drink of the torrent: and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there.

5 So he went, and did according to the word of the Lord: and going, he dwelt by the torrent Carith, which is over-against the Jordan.

6 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the torrent.

^a Josue vi. 28.—^b Eccli. xlviii. 1. James v. 17. A. M. circiter 3092, VER. 31. Jezabel, whose name is become proverbial, to designate a proud, lewd, cruel, and impious woman. Apoc. ii. 20. Grotius compares her with Tullia, Fulvia, and Eudoxia, the respective wives of Tarquin, Anthony, and Arcadius. She was the chief promoter of all the evils of Achab's reign. He did not insist that she should embrace the true religion, when he married her; as it is supposed former kings had done, when they espoused women who had been brought up in idolatry. C.—He even introduced her country's idols, and thus enhanced upon the wickedness of his predecessors. H.—Ethbaal. Menander (ap. Jos. c. Ap. i.) calls him Ithobaal, and remarks that his reign was memorable for a year's drought; probably that of three years, under Achaz. C. xvii. 1. Ethbaal was king of Tyre, and ruled over the Sidonians likewise. C. v. 6.

VER. 34. Hand. Josue had committed this curse to writing. H.—Hiel, an idolater, did not regard it, and Achab had not zeal to attempt to hinder him. But divine Providence punished his audacity. C.—All his sons perished, while the city was rebuilding. W.—See Jos. vi. 26. C.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Elias means, "the strong God." Some Greeks derive the name of the prophet from hælos, "the sun," improperly. His parentage is not known, nor even his tribe. Thesebe was situated in the tribe of Gad. The Fathers agree that Elias never was married. He seems to have had no fixed abode; but was sent to the house of Israel, to maintain the cause of the true God, with the most active and generous zeal. He may have presided over the colleges of the prophets, (C.) which were then numerous in Israel, particularly at Mount Carmel, (T.) notwithstanding the general corruption. C. xviii. 13. and xix. 10. H.—I stand, to serve (Num. iii. 6.) and pray. Jam. v. 17. Luke iv. 25. He calls God to witness, like S. Paul. Gal. i. 20.—Mouth. Stupendous power and assurance of the prophet, with which the pagans have nothing to compare. C.—God had threatened his people with drought, if they proved faithless. Dent. xxviii. 24. Elias begs that this punishment may now serve to open their eyes. T.

VER. 3. Carith, between Samaria and the Jordan. It was a torrent or valley. C.

VER. 4. Ravens. Heb. horebim, (H.) is sometimes rendered "Arabs," by the Vulg. 2 Par. xxi. 16. Others would translate, "merchants," or the inhabitants of Arabo, which was near Carith. They suppose that the ravens, being unclean birds, would never have been employed. But they were only forbidden to be eaten or touched, when dead; and God is not restricted by his own laws. He might thus choose to display his wonderful providence. S. Jerom relates

7 But^c after some time the torrent was dried up: for it had not rained upon the earth

8 Then the word of the Lord came to him, saying:

9 Arise, and go to Sarephta, of the Sidonians, and dwell there: for I have commanded a widow-woman there to feed thee.

10^d He arose, and went to Sarephta. And when he was come to the gate of the city, he saw the widow woman gathering sticks, and he called her, and said to her: Give me a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.

11 And when she was going to fetch it, he called after her, saying: Bring me also, I beseech thee, a morsel of bread in thy hand.

12 And she answered: As the Lord thy God liveth, I have no bread, but only a handful of meal in a pot, and a little oil in a cruise: behold I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it, for me and my son, that we may eat it and die.

13 And Elias said to her: Fear not; but go, and do as thou hast said: but first make for me of the same meal a little hearth-cake, and bring it to me, and after make for thyself and thy son.

14 For thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: The pot of meal shall not waste, nor the cruise of oil be diminished, until the day wherein the Lord will give rain upon the face of the earth.

15 She went, and did according to the word of Elias: and he ate, and she, and her house: and from that day

16 The pot of meal wasted not, and the cruise of oil was not diminished, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke in the hand of Elias.

17 And it came to pass after this, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick, and the sickness was very grievous, so that there was no breath left in him.

A. C. 912.—^c A. M. 3093.—^d Luke iv. 26.

how S. Paul, the first hermit, was fed thus by a raven, with half a loaf a day; and a whole one was sent, when S. Anthony went to see him. C.—Yet Kennicott mentions this as one of the improvements which might be now made in the Prot. version, "the Orbin," or inhabitants of Oreb, or Orbo. Orbin, accola villa in finibus Arabum Elias dederunt alimenta. Jerom iii. 119.—It is not clear to what passage he refers. Dias. ii. p. 581. Another instance occurs, Judg. xv. 4, where instead of foxes, he would substitute, "300 sheaves of corn, placed end to end." But if there were no mistranslations of greater importance, the version might subsist. H.

VER. 6. And flesh. So the Heb. &c. But some copies of the Sept. have, "bread in the morning, and flesh in the evening." Theod. q. 52.—It is idle to inquire whence the ravens took this food. C.—Some say from the kitchen of Achab. Abulensis.—The ministry of angels undoubtedly intervened. T.—God provides his servant with what may support nature, without any wine or delicacies. H.

VER. 7. Some time. Lit. "after days," (H.) which some explain of a year. others, of half that time, or less, as the torrent would not be long supplied with water.

VER. 9. Sidonians, and nearer their city than it was to Tyra. C.—Commanded, or provided that she shall feed thee. So he commanded the ravens, v. 4. M.—It appears that the widow had received no precise intimation, v. 12. She was not an Israelite, (Luke iv. 25.) but probably a pagan. S. Chrys. &c.—Many suppose that Elias did not know, at first, that she was to entertain him. C.—But both the one and the other might be divinely instructed how to act. In due time the widow and the prophet became acquainted with the will of God, and complied with it. H.

VER. 13. First. He puts the faith of the widow to a severe trial; and the gospel requires nothing more perfect than what she practised. The true faith, which she then received, was her first and most precious recompense: and we shall soon see, that her guest drew down blessings upon her. C.

VER. 14. Until, nor for some time afterwards; otherwise they would still have been in danger of perishing, as the corn could not grow immediately. Salien, A. C. 929.

VER. 17. In him. He died. H.—The Jews, followed by some Christians, assert that this boy was the prophet Jonas. But Jonas was a Hebrew, from Geth-opher. 4 K. xiv. 25. Jon. i. 9 C.

18 And she said to Elias: What have I to do with thee, thou man of God? art thou come to me, that my iniquities should be remembered, and that thou shouldst kill my son?

19 And Elias said to her: Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him into the upper chamber where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.

20 And he cried to the Lord, and said: O Lord, my God, hast thou afflicted also the widow, with whom I am after a sort maintained, so as to kill her son?

21 And he stretched, and measured himself upon the child three times, and cried to the Lord, and said: O Lord, my God, let the soul of this child, I beseech thee, return into his body.

22 And the Lord heard the voice of Elias: and the soul of the child returned into him, and he revived.

23 And Elias took the child, and brought him down from the upper chamber to the house below, and delivered him to his mother, and said to her: Behold thy son liveth.

24 And the woman said to Elias: Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and the word of the Lord in thy mouth is true.

CHAP. XVIII.

Elias cometh before Achab. He convinceth the false prophets by bringing fire from heaven: he obtaineth rain by his prayer.

AFTER "many days, the word of the Lord came to Elias, in the third year, saying: Go, and shew thyself to Achab, that I may give rain upon the face of the earth.

2 And Elias went to shew himself to Achab, and there was a grievous famine in Samaria.

3 And Achab called Abdias the governor of his house: now Abdias feared the Lord very much.

4 For when Jezabel killed the prophets of the Lord, he took a hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water.

5 And Achab said to Abdias: Go into the land unto

* A. M. 3096, A. C. 908.

VER. 18. Remembered. Have I not waited upon thee with sufficient attention? or have not thine eyes been able to bear with my imperfections? H.—Before thy arrival, God seemed not to notice my transgressions. She is convinced that "all just punishment presupposes an offence." S. Aug. Retract. i. 9. This child died like Lazarus for the greater glory of God. Id. ad Simp. ii. 5. John xi. 4. W.

VER. 20. Her son. He speaks in the most earnest and familiar manner, shewing his confidence in God. Salien.

VER. 21. Times, in honour of the blessed Trinity. M.—He puts himself in this posture, as if to co-operate with God in warming the child; as Eliseus did, (4 K. iv. 34,) as well as S. Paul, (Acts xx. 10,) and S. Benedict. S. Greg. Dial. ii. 32. This posture represented the condescension of Jesus Christ in assuming our nature, to give us life; and the Old Testament affords few more striking figures of this union. C. S. Aug. ser. 201. de Temp. S. Bern. xvi. in Cant. T.

VER. 24. True. She saw the force of miracles; (H.) and was now, at least, thoroughly converted. Salien.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 1. Year of his sojourning at Sarephta. As other six months elapsed before the drought was removed, it is probable that Elias had spent them at Carith. S. Jam. v. 17. C.—Earth. God is pleased to withdraw his chastisement, though the guilty were not yet reclaimed. Salien.

VER. 2. Samaria, and the vicinity. The people could procure corn from, a distance. But Achab is solicitous to find grass, v. 5.

VER. 3. Abdias. Some suppose that he was the fourth of the minor prophets, or the husband of the Sunamitess, (4 K. iv.) or the third of the captains, who were ordered by Ochozias to seize Elias, 4 K. i. 13. T.—But this is uncertain. He took care of the persecuted prophets, (v. 4. 18,) judging it better to obey God than man. C.

VER. 6. Himself. So Providence ordered it, that the prophet might declare his sentiments to him freely. H.—Achab would go in person, another way, that he might not be imposed upon. He was more solicitous for his cattle than for his subjects. M.

all fountains of waters, and into all valleys, to see if we can find grass, and save the horses and mules, that the beasts may not utterly perish.

6 And they divided the countries between them, that they might go round about them: Achab went one way, and Abdias another way by himself.

7 And as Abdias was in the way, Elias met him: and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said: Art thou my lord Elias?

8 And he answered: I am. Go, and tell thy master: Elias is here.

9 And he said: What have I sinned, that thou wouldst deliver me, thy servant, into the hand of Achab, that he should kill me?

10 As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when all answered: He is not here: he took an oath of every kingdom and nation, because thou wast not found.

11 And now thou sayest to me: Go and tell thy master: Elias is here.

12 And when I am gone from thee, the Spirit of the Lord will carry thee into a place that I know not: and I shall go in and tell Achab; and he, not finding thee, will kill me: but thy servant feareth the Lord from his infancy.

13 Hath it not been told thee, my lord, what I did when Jezabel killed the prophets of the Lord; how I hid a hundred men of the prophets of the Lord, by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water?

14 And now thou sayest: Go and tell thy master: Elias is here: that he may kill me.

15 And Elias said: As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whose face I stand, this day I will shew myself unto him.

16 Abdias therefore went to meet Achab, and told him: and Achab came to meet Elias.

17 And when he had seen him, he said: Art thou he that troublest Israel?

VER. 7. Face, to shew him a religious veneration, due to the servant of God. W.

VER. 9. Kill me, as an impostor, or an accomplice of thy escape, if afterwards thou shouldst disappear, v. 12. C.

VER. 10. An oath of every kingdom, adjuring all his neighbours to tell if they knew any thing about Elias. H.—Achab wished to make him restore rain, or to punish him for the refusal. C.—How stupid he must have been, not to perceive that God was punishing him! H.—Elias must have kept himself very retired, not to be discovered at Sarephta, which was so near, (C.) and where Jezabel's father reigned. But God could render him invisible, even upon the high road, when he went thither. H.

VER. 12. Spirit. Abdias supposed that the prophet had been transported to some unknown country, (C.) as he was afterwards to paradise. His disciples imagined, by a violent wind. 4 K. ii. 16. H.—Thus the spirit of the Lord took away Philip, (Acts viii. 39,) and conducted Jesus into the desert. Mat. iv. 1. Mar. i. 12. C.—Infancy. This he mentions, that the prophet might take pity on him. M.

VER. 13. A hundred. Hence we may judge how numerous they were. These prophets were not perhaps all inspired: but they had such at their head; and spent their time in working and in the divine praises. They were the salt and light of the earth, the pillars of the true religion, against whom Jezabel bent all her fury, during the first years of the drought. C.

VER. 14. Kill me. He had expressed this fear twice before. Elias perceiving how much he was agitated, confirmed him with an oath. H.

VER. 16. Meet Elias, out of respect, (Abulensis) or rather to upbraid him.

VER. 17. Troublest Israel? Thus the wicked esteem those disturbers of the public repose, who will not suffer them to go on in their wickedness unmolested. Thus the Jews complain of Jesus Christ. Luke xxiii. 5. Such a war is better than a false peace: and Achab, in fact, proclaims the praise of Elias, who strove by easy means to make the people open their eyes and return to their God. C.

18 And he said: I have not troubled Israel, but thou and thy father's house, who have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and have followed Baalim.

19 Nevertheless send now, and gather unto me all Israel, unto Mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, who eat at Jezabel's table.

20 Achab sent to all the children of Israel, and gathered together the prophets unto Mount Carmel.

21 And Elias coming to all the people, said: How long do you halt between two sides? If the Lord be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people did not answer him a word.

22 And Elias said again to the people: I only remain a prophet of the Lord: but the prophets of Baal are four hundred and fifty men.

23 Let two bullocks be given us, and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it upon wood, but put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under it.

24 Call ye on the names of your gods, and I will call on the name of my Lord: and the God that shall answer by fire, let him be God. And all the people answering, said: A very good proposal.

25 Then Elias said to the prophets of Baal: Choose you one bullock and dress it first, because you are many: and call on the names of your gods; but put no fire under.

26 And they took the bullock, which he gave them, and dressed it: and they called on the name of Baal from morning even until noon, saying: O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any that answered: and they leaped over the altar that they had made.

27 And when it was now noon, Elias jested at them, saying: Cry with a louder voice: for he is a god; and perhaps he is talking, or is in an inn, or on a journey; or perhaps he is asleep, and must be awaked.

VER. 18. House. Your impiety has brought on this scourge. I only denounced it. Salien.

VER. 19. Fifty. Fifty, attached to Baal, and fed by the king; while the prophets of the groves, or of Astarte, lived at the queen's expense. They imitated the lives of the true prophets, to delude the people.—Carmel was long after famous for the worship of Apollo, who was the same with Baal, or the sun. Jos. xix. 26. C.—No mention is made of rain: but it was understood that it would be given, when the people should assemble to hear God's determination. M.—Achab durst not therefore refuse to convoke them. H.

VER. 21. Sides: sometimes adoring God; at other times the devil. C.—Such an expostulation ought to be made to those who are indifferent about religion. W.—You cannot serve two masters. C.—They wished to unite the service of both, foolishly supposing that there might be many gods; as some, at present, assert that many religions may be pleasing to heaven. H.—A word, not knowing the drift of his proposal. But, as they might perhaps rely that they considered Baal also as a god, Elias puts this to the test of a miracle; being convinced that God would never suffer the devils to prevail on this occasion. Salien.—They might otherwise have brought down fire, as they will do in the days of Antichrist. Apoc. xiii. 13. M.

VER. 22. I. Heb. repeats "I," to make the contrast more striking. Elias alone was present, in this assembly, as the prophet of the Lord. H.—He knew that Abdias had preserved 100: but they were concealed.—Men. The other 400 of Jezabel did not appear.

VER. 24. Call ye. He does not order them to invoke idols; but challenges them to prove their divinity, if they can.—By fire. On such trying occasions, it is not tempting God to ask for a miracle. God had given this proof of fire repeatedly. Gen. xv. 17. Lev. ix. 24. and 2 Par. vii. 1. He will restrain the devil's power, to confirm the truth. Mark. ult. W.

VER. 26. That they. Heb. "which he (Achab) had made;" (C.) or, "which was made." H.—The altar of Elias was erected afterwards, v. 30. The prophets of Baal acted in a foolish manner, (C.) as if in jest, but really despairing of success. H.—The pagans were accustomed to dance round their altars:—Pingues

28 So they cried with a loud voice, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till they were all covered with blood.

29 And after mid-day was past, and while they were prophesying, the time was come of offering sacrifice, and there was no voice heard, nor did any one answer, nor regard them as they prayed.

30 Elias said to all the people: Come ye unto me. And the people coming near unto him, he repaired the altar of the Lord, that was broken down:

31 And he took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the Lord came, saying: "Israel shall be thy name."

32 And he built with the stones an altar to the name of the Lord: and he made a trench for water, of the breadth of two furrows, round about the altar.

33 And he laid the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid it upon the wood.

34 And he said: Fill four buckets with water, and pour it upon the burnt-offering, and upon the wood. And again he said: Do the same the second time. And when they had done it the second time, he said: Do the same also the third time. And they did so the third time.

35 And the water run round about the altar, and the trench was filled with water.

36 And when it was now time to offer the holocaust, Elias, the prophet, came near and said: O Lord God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Israel, shew this day that thou art the God of Israel, and I thy servant, and that according to thy commandment I have done all these things.

37 Hear me, O Lord, hear me: that this people may learn that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart again.

38 Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the holocaust, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench.

a Gen. xxxii. 28.

spatiatur ad aras. Æneid iv.—and some would translate, "near the altar." Wa might apply to these prophets, the verses of Horace:—

*Dedit risusque jocosque,
Dum, flammâ sine, thura liquescere limine sacro
Persuadere cupit: credat Judæus Apella
Non ego.*

Sat. i. 5.

VER. 27. Talking to some of his prophets, (C.) or in deep contemplation. Mont.—An inn. Sept. "giving oracles;" or, "he is pursuing," Pagnin.

VER. 28. Blood. Strange infatuation! which has nevertheless prevailed in many pagan mysteries and countries. Thus were Bellona, Cybele, the Syrian goddess, &c. honoured and appeased. C.—God prohibits this fury. Deut. xiv. 1. The devil always endeavours to destroy or to injure man. M.

"Ipsa bipenne suos cædit violenta lacertos, Sanguineque effuso spargit inepta deam." Tibullus.

VER. 29. Prophesying, "acting like fools;" (Chal.) performing their superstitious rites, and singing the praises of their god, &c. C.—Sacrifice, by Elias, who had assigned all the morning to Baal's prophets. Perhaps he waited till the time of the evening sacrifice. Ex. xxix. 38. M.

VER. 30. Down, by the false prophets, whose fury the people now repressed. T.—The altar might have been erected, under the judges, lawfully. C.

VER. 31. Twelve stones, (as Ex. xxiv. &c.) intimating that he acted in the name of all; (M.) and in order that all Israel might return with one heart to the service of God. H.—The prophet did not follow his own spirit in erecting this altar. C.

VER. 32. Furrows. Heb. "of two (sathayim) measures of seed." These furrows Elias filled with water, to impede the natural activity of fire, and to shew the miracle in a more striking light; (H.) as also to convince all that there was no deceit. An author quoted, under the name of S. Chrysostom, says that the pagans had sometimes subterraneous passages, by which they kindled the wood on the altar, as if by miracle, ita ut multi decepti ignem illum celestem esse existiment. ap. Surium iv.

VER. 34. Time. So that the wood was less disposed to catch fire. M.

39 And when all the people saw this, they fell on their faces, and they said: The Lord, he is God; the Lord, he is God.

40 And Elias said to them: Take the prophets of Baal, and let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Elias brought them down to the torrent Cison, and killed them there.

41 And Elias said to Achab: Go up, eat and drink: for there is a sound of abundance of rain.

42 Achab went up to eat and drink: and Elias went up to the top of Carmel, and casting himself down upon the earth, put his face between his knees,

43 And he said to his servant: Go up, and look towards the sea. And he went up, and looked, and said: There is nothing. And again he said to him: Return seven times.

44 And at the seventh time: Behold a little cloud arose out of the sea like a man's foot. And he said: Go up, and say to Achab: Prepare thy chariot, and go down, lest the rain prevent thee.

45 And while he turned himself this way and that way, behold the heavens grew dark, with clouds and wind, and there fell a great rain. And Achab getting up, went away to Jezrahel:

46 And the hand of the Lord was upon Elias, and he girded up his loins, and ran before Achab, till he came to Jezrahel.

CHAP. XIX.

Elias, fleeing from Jezabel, is fed by an angel in the desert; and by the strength of that food walketh forty days, till he cometh to Horeb, where he hath a vision of God.

AND Achab told Jezabel all that Elias had done, and how he had slain all the prophets with the sword.

2 And Jezabel sent a messenger to Elias, saying: Such and such things may the gods do to me, and add still more, if by this hour to-morrow I make not thy life as the life of one of them.

3 Then *Elias was afraid, and rising up, he went whithersoever he had a mind: and he came to Bersabee of Juda, and left his servant there,

4 And he went forward, one day's journey into the desert. And when he was there, and sat under a juniper-tree, he requested for his soul that he might die, and said: It is enough for me, Lord; take away my soul: for I am no better than my fathers.

5 And he cast himself down, and slept in the shadow of the juniper-tree: and behold an angel of the Lord touched him, and said to him: Arise and eat.

6 He looked, and behold there was at his head a hearth-cake, and a vessel of water: and he ate and drank, and he fell asleep again.

7 And the angel of the Lord came again the second time, and touched him, and said to him: Arise, eat: for thou hast yet a great way to go.

8 And he arose, and ate and drank, and walked in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights, unto the mount of God, Horeb.

9 And when he was come thither, he abode in a cave: and behold the word of the Lord came unto him, and he said to him: What dost thou here, Elias?

10 And he answered: With zeal have I been zealous for the Lord God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant: they have thrown down thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword, and I alone am left, and they seek my life to take it away.

11 And he said to him: Go forth, and stand upon the mount before the Lord: and behold the Lord passeth, and a great and strong wind before the Lord, overthrowing the mountains, and breaking the rocks in

* A. M. 3097, A. C. 907.

VER. 37. Again. This effect he hoped for from the miracle.

VER. 38. Trench, as if it had been of an inflammable nature. Julian himself was forced to acknowledge this miracle. "The same," says he, "once happened under Moses, and, a long while after, again under Elias, the Thesbite."

VER. 40. Cison, at the foot of Carmel. Adrichomius.—Achab durst not protect his prophets, being confounded by the evidence of the miracle, (M.) and the unanimity of the people's cry. H.—Killed them, by God's inspiration, (C.) as impostors, who had deluded the people, and were worthy of death.

VER. 41. Sound. It will as surely come, as if you heard it falling. H.

VER. 42. Knees, in fervent and humble prayer. God made his servant wait some time before he granted his request, that he might not give way to vanity. The people were not present, so that there was no danger of their being scandalized. M.

VER. 44. Sea, the Mediterranean, which could be seen from Carmel. H.—Hence the rain commonly came in that country. Luke xii. 54.

VER. 45. Jezrahel, where Achab had a palace. C. xxi. 1. C.—He stopped for shelter, as he had not time to reach Samaria. M.

VER. 46. Before Achab, notwithstanding the king was drawn by horses, (C.) and Elias was advanced in years. C. xix. 4. M.—The invigorating spirit gave him such strength and agility, (H.) as Jezrahel was 12 or 15 leagues, (C.) or about 86 miles, from Carmel. In the Levant, impostors still run very swiftly before the chariots of princes, to imitate Elias. C.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 3. Afraid. Heb. "he saw, arose, and went for his life." H.—He was aware of a woman's anger. Eccl. xxv. 23. Though he goes intrepidly to meet Achab, he flees before a woman, God being desirous that he should exercise humility, (Theod. q. 57, &c.) though some think that he had given way to a secret fault; (C.) which is a groundless assertion. H.—He must confess that all his strength is from above. T.—Mind, to escape notice. M.—Bersabee, at the southern extremity of the kingdom of Juda, perhaps fifty leagues from Samaria, and five more from Jezrahel. C.—Servant, the boy whom he had raised to life. Abulensis.

VER. 4. Desert. It seems, towards Horeb. C.—Tree. Heb. Rothem, which term the Sept. retain, "Rathmen." Syn. has, "a shade." H.—Die. Elias requested to die, not out of impatience or pusillanimity, but out of zeal against sin; and that he might no longer be witness of the miseries of his people, and the war they were waging against God and his servants. See v. 10. Ch.—He does not wish to fall into the hands of Jezabel, lest the idolaters should triumph: but he is willing to die, if God so order it. C.—Mathathias entertained the like sentiments. 1 Mac. ii. 7.—Fathers: that I should live longer than they did. M. Eccl. xxx. 17.—If he had been weary of life, why did he flee? His answer to Achab shews that he was by no means timid. C.

VER. 6. Cake, baked in a hollow stone, covered with fire. The Arabs call such cakes, Ridpha. An angel brought this nourishment. C.

VER. 7. Go. Heb. "the journey is too great for thee," without this support. H.—He spent forty days in this journey, as he did not follow the straightest road. Horeb is only about fifty leagues from Bersabee. C.—He might have travelled thither in four or five days. M.

VER. 8. In the strength of that food, &c. This bread with which Elias was fed in the wilderness, was a figure of the bread of life, which we receive in the blessed sacrament: by the strength of which we are to be supported in our journey through the wilderness of this world, till we come to the true mountain of God, and his vision in a happy eternity. Ch.—Horeb signifies "a rock, or dry wilderness." C.

VER. 9. Here. Thy presence is necessary in Israel. T.—Elias had been guided by a natural fear. M.—"With how great familiarity is he received by God!" Tert. c. Psychic. vi.

VER. 10. Zeal: ordering the idolatrous prophets to be destroyed, (M.) which has enkindled the rage of Jezabel against me. I cannot bear to see the general corruption. C.—Covenant; neglecting circumcision, (Rabbins) and almost the whole law. H.—Altars. Some had been erected by the prophets, (E.) as the king would suffer none to go to Jerusalem. H.—The idolaters threw them down. C. xviii. 30. Such altars would have been unlawful in Juda. C.—I alone am left: viz. of the prophets in the kingdom of Israel, or of the ten tribes; for in the kingdom of Juda, religion was at that time in a very flourishing condition, under the kings Asa and Josaphat. And even in Israel there remained several prophets, though not then known to Elias. See C. xx. 13, 28, 35. Ch. W.—Heb. repeats I, as v. 14, and C. xviii. 22. He might justly fear that those had been destroyed at last, whom Abdias had protected. At any rate, none durst appear in public to assist Elias. H.—God informs him (v. 18) that all is not yet lost.

VER. 11. Lord; the angel, his representative. M.—God had formerly granted the like favour to Moses, in the same place. Ex. xxxiii. 21.

VER. 12. Air. Something similar happened at the giving of the law, and at the promulgation of the gospel. Ex. xix. 9, 16. Acts ii. 2. The Lord was pleased to shew his prophet the difference between the two laws: the one was pieces: but the Lord is not in the wind. And after the wind, an earthquake: but the Lord is not in the earthquake.

12 And after the earthquake, a fire: but the Lord is not in the fire. And after the fire, a whistling of a gentle air.

13 And when Elias heard it, he covered his face with his mantle, and coming forth, stood in the entering in of the cave, and behold a voice unto him, saying: What dost thou here, Elias? And he answered:

14 With zeal have I been zealous for the Lord God of hosts: *because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant: they have destroyed thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword; and I alone am left, and they seek my life to take it away.

15 And the Lord said to him: Go, and return on thy way, through the desert, to Damascus: and when thou art come thither, thou shalt anoint Hazael to be king over Syria;

16 *And thou shalt anoint Jehu, the son of Namsi, to be king over Israel: and Eliseus, the son of Saphat, of Abelmeula, thou shalt anoint to be prophet in thy room.

17 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall escape the sword of Hazael, shall be slain by Jehu: and whosoever shall escape the sword of Jehu, shall be slain by Eliseus.

18 *And I will leave me seven thousand men in Israel, whose knees have not been bowed before Baal, and every mouth that hath not worshipped him, kissing the hands.

19 And Elias departing from thence, found Eliseus, the son of Saphat, ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen:

* Rom. xi. 8.—^d 4 Kings ix. 1.

full of terror, the other of mildness. Grotius.—He insinuated likewise, that he could easily exterminate the offenders, but he chose to bear patiently with them; (T.) and taught his prophet to moderate his zeal, and, after terrifying sinners, to bring them to a sense of their duty by gentle means. Sanctius. C.—“His spirit is most indulgent and mild.” . . . est tenerus serenitatis, apertus et simplex. Tert. c. Marcion xxiii.

VER. 13. Mantle, out of respect, like Moses. Ex. iii. 6. So the cherubim veil their faces with their wings. Isai. vi. 2. M.—Among the Orientals, to cover the face has the same import as when we pull off our hats. C.

VER. 15. Desert, avoiding the towns as much as possible, (C.) and travelling through the country of Ammon to Damascus. M.—God does not send Elias again into the midst of danger, at Achab's court. H.—Hazael. God exercises his authority over all nations, and disposes of crowns. He appoints Hazael to punish his people. It does not appear that Elias performed this commission in person, but by the hand of Eliseus. 4 K. viii. 12. Neither do we find that Hazael was anointed, but he was “declared king;” in which sense the term is used. Judg. ix. 8. Salien. C.—Yet Torniell believes, that Elias really anointed both Hazael and Jehu. He foretold, at least, (H.) that they should reign. W.

VER. 16. Jehu, the son of Josaphat, (4 K. ix. 2.) and grandson of Namsi. M.—Eliseus sent one of his disciples to anoint him, (4 K. ix. 1. C.) with common oil: the sacred was reserved for priests and the kings of Juda, according to the Rabbins.—Anoint, or call to the ministry, perhaps by placing a mantle on his head, v. 19. No mention is made of unction. C.—Yet the Fathers have hence inferred that prophets received it, as well as priests and kings. Sanctius.—Elias had complained that he was left alone. God appoints him a coadjutor, and successor; a person who seemed to have yet made no immediate preparation for the office. His parents were probably known for their probity, and had taken no part in the worship of idols. C.—Abelmeula was in the great plain, ten miles south of Scythopolis. Ens.

VER. 17. Shall be slain by Eliseus. Eliseus did not kill any of the idolaters with the material sword; but he is here joined with Hazael and Jehu, the great instruments of God in punishing the idolatry of Israel, because he foretold to the former his exaltation to the kingdom of Syria, and the vengeance he would execute against Israel, and anointed the latter by one of his disciples to be king of Israel, with commission to extirpate the house of Achab. Ch.—They left nothing imperfect in their vengeance. 4 K. viii. and ix. Eliseus sent bears to destroy forty-two children of Bethel; (4 K. ii. 23, C.) and Abulensis (q. 23) thinks that he might put many false prophets to death, as the Scripture does not mention every thing, (M.) and as Elias had done himself. H.—Eliseus may also be the name of some general. D and he was one of them that were ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen: and when Elias came up to him, he cast his mantle upon him.

20 And he forthwith left the oxen, and run after Elias, and said: Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee. And he said to him: Go, and return back: for that which was my part, I have done to thee.

21 And returning back from him, he took a yoke of oxen, and killed them, and boiled the flesh with the plough of the oxen, and gave to the people, and they ate: and rising up, he went away, and followed Elias, and ministered to him.

CHAP. XX.

The Syrians besiege Samaria: they are twice defeated by Achab; who is reprehended by a prophet for letting Benadad go.

AND *Benadad, king of Syria, gathered together all his host, and there were two and thirty kings with him, and horses, and chariots: and going up, he fought against Samaria, and besieged it.

2 And sending messengers to Achab, king of Israel, into the city,

3 Hē said: Thus saith Benadad: Thy silver and thy gold is mine: and thy wives and thy goodliest children are mine.

4 And the king of Israel answered: According to thy word, my lord, O king, I am thine, and all that I have.

5 And the messengers came again, and said: Thus saith Benadad, who sent us unto thee: Thy silver and thy gold, and thy wives and thy children, thou shalt deliver up to me.

6 To-morrow, therefore, at this same hour, I will send

* Rom. xi. 4.—^d A. M. 3108, A. C. 901.

VER. 18. Will leave. Heb. also, “I have left,” as Rom. xi. 4. Sept. “thou shalt leave.” H.—After answering the first part of the prophet's complaint, and informing him that the guilty should not pass unpunished, God lets him know that he is not left alone, but that many thousands (C.) even in Israel still continue faithful; so far was the true Church from being in danger of perishing entirely. H.—Seven is often put for a great number. Prov. xxiv. 18. Yet some suppose, (C.) that only this number served God out of 1,110,000 men in Israel. 1 Par. xxi. 5. Grotius, &c.—Hands. To this custom the word adore owes its rise. H.—The pagans kissed their right-hand, or the statue itself, when they could reach it, to testify their veneration. Inter adorandum, dexteram ad osculum referimus. Pliny xxviii. 2. Cicero (in Ver. 4.) mentions a beautiful statue of Hercules, the cheeks and beard of which had been rather worn with kissing; non solum id venerari, sed etiam osculari solent. See Gen. xviii. 2. C.—Job xxxi. 27. M.

VER. 19. Mantle, perhaps to signify that he must change his manner of living. M.

VER. 20. Kiss, and bid them adieu. M.—To thee. I have no farther orders. Obey the spirit of God. Hoc age. Heb. “for what have I done to thee?” Did I require thee to follow me? Act as God may direct thee. Yet remember the ceremony which thou hast seen, and do not turn back (C.) to neglect thy office. H. Matt. viii. 22. Luke ix. 62.

VER. 21. Oxen, to show that he had relinquished his profession. M.—“He makes a vow of them.” S. Jerom, ep. xxviii.—Elias waited for him in the field, while he made a feast for his fellow-citizens, at parting. C.—Then both probably retreated to Carmel, (Salien) to watch over the instruction of the college of prophets. H.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. And. The Rom. Sept. and Josephus place this war after the account of Naboth. C. xxi. But the Alex. copy follows the order of the Hebrew. H.—They style Benadad, “the son of Ader.” He succeeded (v. 34,) the king who attacked Baasa. C. xv. 18. We know not the time nor the occasion of this war. C.—Probably Achab had refused to pay tribute, and God had a mind to try if his obstinacy would yield to kindness, v. 13 and 28. Salien, A. C. 919.—Kings. Almost every city had one.

VER. 3. Mine. He had a desire to dispose of them, as he thought proper. Achab was willing to pay tribute, to remove the impending danger. C.

VER. 4. Have. Achab is not in earnest, but strives to pacify the barbarian. M.

VER. 6. Servants, or subjects. The king of Israel has thus a plea to interest all his people, as the danger was common. Salien.—He assumes the character of disinterestedness, as if he had been willing to abandon all his private property; knowing that Benadad would not accede even to that hard proposal. H.—Thus my servants to thee, and they shall search thy house, and the houses of thy servants: and all that pleaseth them, they shall put in their hands, and take away.

7 And the king of Israel called all the ancients of the land, and said: Mark, and see that he layeth snares for us. For he sent to me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver and gold: and I said not nay.

8 And all the ancients, and all the people said to him: Harken not to him, nor consent to him.

9 Wherefore he answered the messengers of Benadad: Tell my lord, the king: All that thou didst send for to me, thy servant, at first, I will do: but this thing I cannot do.

10 And the messengers returning brought him word. And he sent again, and said: Such and such things may the gods do to me, and more may they add, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that follow me.

11 And the king of Israel answering, said: Tell him: Let not the girded boast himself as the ungirded.

12 And it came to pass, when Benadad heard this word, that he and the kings were drinking in pavilions, and he said to his servants: Beset the city. And they beset it.

13 And behold a prophet coming to Achab, king of Israel, said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Hast thou seen all this exceeding great multitude? behold I will deliver them into thy hand this day: that thou mayst know that I am the Lord.

14 And Achab said: By whom? And he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: By the servants of the princes of the provinces. And he said: Who shall begin to fight? And he said: Thou.

15 So he mustered the servants of the princes of the provinces, and he found the number of two hundred and thirty-two: and he mustered after them the people, all the children of Israel, seven thousand:

16 And they went out at noon. But Benadad was drinking himself drunk in his pavilion, and the two and thirty kings with him, who were come to help him.

17 And the servants of the princes of the provinces went out first. And Benadad sent. And they told him, saying: There are men come out of Samaria.

18 And he said: Whether they come for peace, take them alive: or whether they come to fight, take them alive.

19 So the servants of the princes of the provinces went out, and the rest of the army followed:

20 And every one slew the man that came against him: and the Syrians fled, and Israel pursued after them. And Benadad, king of Syria, fled away on horseback with his horsemen.

21 But the king of Israel going out overthrew the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter.

22 (And a prophet coming to the king of Israel, said to him: Go, and strengthen thyself, and know, and see what thou dost: for the next year the king of Syria will come up against thee.)

23 But the servants of the king of Syria said to him: Their gods are gods of the hills, therefore they have overcome us: but it is better that we should fight against them in the plains, and we shall overcome them.

24 Do thou, therefore, this thing: Remove all the kings from thy army, and put captains in their stead:

25 And make up the number of soldiers that have been slain of thine, and horses, according to the former horses, and chariots, according to the chariots which thou hadst before: and we will fight against them in the plains, and thou shalt see that we shall overcome them. He believed their counsel, and did so.

26 Wherefore, at the return of the year,* Benadad

* A. M. 8104, A. C. 900.

* Nero consulted the first men of the city, whether they would prefer a doubtful war or a disgraceful peace." Tacit. An. xv.

VER. 10. Handfuls. Heb. shohal. The Sept. read "shuhal" and render it, "suffice for the foxes, for all the people, (even for) my infantry;" (H.) as if his forces were so numerous as to cover the whole land, and leave no room for even foxes to occupy. The hyperbole is equally great, supposing that his soldiers could by each taking a handful, or what might stick to his feet, (Chal.) carry off all Samaria. Josephus intimates, that Benadad speaks of erecting terraces of equal height with the walls; others, that he would level the city with the ground. Eze. xxvi. 4. Sanctius.

VER. 11. Let not the girded, &c. Let him not boast before the victory: it will then be time to glory when he putteth off his armour, having overcome his adversary. Ch.—"Let not him who goes to battle, though well armed, boast; but the man who returns victorious." Chal. "Enough: let not the man with a crooked back boast, as one that is upright." Sept. "Let not him that girdeth, (H.) or is bound," (Heb.) or rather "shutteth up, boast, as he that openeth." Syriae. It is easy to besiege: but the city does not always fall. Neither people in arms, nor the unarmed, have reason to boast; as the former are often made prisoners, as soon as the latter. C.—A despised enemy sometimes proves most dangerous. H.—Those who distrust in themselves, and place their confidence in God, prevail: a necessary lesson both in temporal and spiritual warfare. W.—The fortune of war is very doubtful. T.

VER. 12. Pavilions, (umbraculis) or even under "the shade" of the trees, in full security. M.—Beset. Heb. "set, and they set against the city." Chal. "hold yourselves in readiness, and they laid ambushes round the city." The siege had not been yet commenced in form, as it was never expected that Achab would dare to make any resistance.

VER. 13. Prophet. It does not appear who this and the other prophets were who address Achab so boldly during these wars; if indeed they were different persons: Elias is never mentioned. Did Jezabel leave the rest alone? or did these wars break out before she began to persecute them? C.—Many suppose that the prophet, who spoke on this occasion, was Micah. M.—But Achab complains that he always brought him evil tidings. C. xxii. 8. Salien.

VER. 14. Servants. Lit. "footmen." H.—Heb. means either "sons or servants." The pages of honour, or the menial servants of the lords, were not likely to gain the victory. C.—They were 232 in number, v. 15. Achab followed them, (v. 19.) with 7000; and this army defeated the Syrians.—Thou, not in person, but thy men must begin the attack.

VER. 18. Alive. This he said out of contempt, and too great confidence; (M.) and this gave occasion to his defeat. For, while his men were endeavouring to execute his orders punctually, the Israelites cut many in pieces, and routed the rest. Salien.

VER. 23. Hills. All the high places of Israel were covered with idols. Samaria, Bethel, Dan, &c. were built on eminences. M.—Altars had also been erected to the true God on the most famous mountains. The law had been given at Sinai, and promulgated at Garizim. The late miracle at Carmel was known to all. Hence the pagans, (C.) conformably to their notions of assigning different parts of the creation to different gods, suspected that the god of Israel might preside only over the mountains. H.—People are always ready to blame any but themselves. C.—They lay the fault on fortune, &c. T.—The pride of Benadad could not bear to be told that his own temerity had brought on the defeat. H.

VER. 24. Stead, who may obey thy orders more implicitly. Rex unius esto. C.—Captains, who have been inured to warfare, would not so easily run away. M.—Thus, in the late French republic, commanders were chosen from the common ranks, while the nobles were neglected. H.

VER. 26. Aphec, belonging to the tribe of Aser, though it does not appear that they ever obtained possession of it. Jos. xix. 30. A subterraneous fire and earthquake have caused the city to sink; and a lake, nine miles in circumference, now occupies its place. The ruins may still be discerned in its waters. It is about two hours walk from the plains of Balbec, (Paul Lucas. Levant i. 20.) at the foot of Libanus. The waters must be very thick and bituminous, if what is related by the ancients be true; namely, that the presents, offered to the Aphacite goddess, were tried by them, and deemed agreeable to her, if they sunk; as wool would do, while tiles, and often metals, would swim. C.—Adrichomius places this Aphec on the great plain of Esdrelon, not far from Jesabel. M. mustered the Syrians, and went up to Aphec, to fight against Israel.

27 And the children of Israel were mustered, and taking victuals, went out on the other side, and encamped over-against them, like two little flocks of goats: but the Syrians filled the land.

28 (And a man of God coming, said to the king of Israel: Thus saith the Lord: Because the Syrians have said: The Lord is God of the hills, but is not God of the valleys: I will deliver all this great multitude into thy hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord.)

29 And both sides set their armies in array one against the other seven days, and on the seventh day the battle was fought: and the children of Israel slew, of the Syrians, a hundred thousand footmen in one day.

30 And they that remained fled to Aphec, into the city: and the wall fell upon seven and twenty thousand men, that were left. And Benadad fleeing, went into the city, into a chamber that was within a chamber.

31 And his servants said to him: Behold, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful; so let us put sackcloths on our loins, and ropes on our heads, and go out to the king of Israel: perhaps he will save our lives.

32 So they girded sackcloths on their loins, and put ropes on their heads, and came to the king of Israel, and said to him: Thy servant, Benadad, saith: I beseech thee let me have my life. And he said: If he be yet alive, he is my brother.

33 The men took this for good luck: and in haste caught the word out of his mouth, and said: Thy brother Benadad. And he said to them: Go, and bring him to me. Then Benadad came out to him, and he lifted him up into his chariot.

34 And he said to him: The cities which my father took from thy father, I will restore: and do thou make thee streets in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria, and having made a league, I will depart from thee. So he made a league with him, and let him go.

• Infra xxii. 28.

VER. 27. Victuals. Heb. also, "they were all present." Chal. "ready." Syr. "in battle array."—Goats. They were comparatively so contemptible, v. 15. H.—At the same time, Josaphat could muster above a million warriors; for piety makes kingdoms prosper. Salien.

VER. 28. Lord. Many favours were bestowed on Achab, but he died impenitent. W.

VER. 29. Days. The Syrians durst not begin the attack. H.

VER. 30. Went, or had gone before, and commanded his men to defend the walls of Aphec. H.—But the slaughter of these 27,000 is joined to the preceding. M.—God caused the walls to fall, as he had done those of Jericho; or the Israelites beat them down with battering rams, and the defendants perished in the ruins.—Chamber. Josephus observes that it was under ground. Micheas told Benadad that he would have thus to hide himself again. C. xxii. 25. C.

VER. 31. Heads, or necks, to indicate that they deserved to die. H.—The Syrians acted thus, when they came as supplicants. Josephus viii. 14.—The son of Psammetichus, king of Egypt, was led in this manner to execution, with 2000 others. Herodot. iii. 14.—Bessus was conducted to Alexander with a chain round his neck. Curt. vii. C.—What a reverse of fortune do we here behold! Salien.

VER. 33. Men. Prot. "Now the men did diligently observe whether any thing would come from him, and did hastily catch it, and they said." They heard him mention the title of brother with joy, concluding that he was not so much irritated, as they might have expected. Allied kings style each other brother; those who are tributary, call themselves servants, (like Achaz 4 K. xvi. 7. C.) as well as those who seek for favour; as Benadad does at present, v. 32. H.—Luck. The pagans were accustomed to make vain observations. M.

VER. 34. Thy father. Benadad did not know the changes which had taken place in the royal family of Israel. He speaks of the cities which his predecessor had wrested from Baasa. C. xv. 20.—Streets, for merchants, of whom he would receive tribute: or military stations, as David had done, (2 K. viii. 6.) to prevent any invasions. Benadad does not appear to have complied with these conditions, 35 Then a certain man of the sons of the prophets, said to his companion, in the word of the Lord: Strike me. But he would not strike.

36 Then he said to him: Because thou wouldst not hearken to the word of the Lord, behold thou shalt depart from me, and a lion shall slay thee. And when he was gone a little from him, a lion found him, and slew him.

37 Then he found another man, and said to him: Strike me. And he struck him and wounded him.

38 So the prophet went, and met the king in the way, and disguised himself by sprinkling dust on his face and his eyes.

39 And as the king passed by, he cried to the king, and said: Thy servant went out to fight hand to hand: and when a certain man was run away, one brought him to me, and said: Keep this man: and if he shall slip away, thy life shall be for his life, or thou shalt pay a talent of silver.

40 And whilst I, in the hurry, turned this way and that, on a sudden he was not to be seen. And the king of Israel said to him: This is thy judgment, which thyself hast decreed.

41 But he forthwith wiped off the dust from his face, and the king of Israel knew him, that he was one of the prophets.

42 And he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: "Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man worthy of death, thy life shall be for his life, and thy people for his people."

43 And the king of Israel returned to his house, slighting to hear, and raging came into Samaria.

CHAP. XXI.

Naboth, for denying his vineyard to king Achab, is, by Jezabel's command, falsely accused and stoned to death: for which crime Elias denounceth to Achab the judgments of God. Upon his humbling himself, the sentence is mitigated.

AND "after these things, Naboth the Jezrahelite, who was in Jezrahel, had at that time a vineyard, near the palace of Achab, king of Samaria.

• A. M. 3105, A. C. 899.

as the king of Israel had to take Ramath by force. C. xxii. 3.—And having. These words seem to be the conclusion of Benadad's proposition: but, according to the Heb. they contain Achab's reply. C.—Prot. "Then said Achab: I will send thee away with this covenant." H.—How generous does the conduct of Achab appear to the world! Yet it displeased God. Salien.—He severely punished this foolish pity towards a dangerous foe. W.

VER. 35. In the word, or by the authority. The person who refused to comply, out of a false compassion, displeased God. The wound of the prophet was a symbol of what would happen to Achab. It was a prophetic action. C. xi. 30. C.

VER. 38. Dust. Chal. and Sept. "he tied a veil," &c. Apher has both meanings.

VER. 39. One. Thus God delivered the proud and blasphemous Benadad to Achab. H.

VER. 40. Decreed. Thou must either die or pay the money. M.—Thus the king pronounced sentence against himself, as David had done. 2 K. xii. 1. and xiv. 4. The Rabbins assert, that Achab had received an express order from God to destroy and subjugate all the Syrians. He ought, at least, to have been consulted, as he had given the enemy into the hands of the Israelites; (C.) and thus insinuated, that he would have them punished, (v. 28. Rupert v. 13.) for restricting his power to the hills. T.

VER. 42. Worthy. Heb. "of my anathema;" or, "the man who has fallen into my snares." Vatab. Cherem is taken in this sense. Mic. vii. 2. &c. He was my prey, and you ought not to have disposed of him without my leave. C.—People. This was verified (C. xxii. M.) within three years. Salien.

VER. 43. Raging, (furibundus) full of indignation. Heb. "went to his house, heavy and displeased." Sept. "confounded and fainting," through rage; ἐκδιέμενος. H.—"Vexed at the prophet, he ordered him to be kept in prison; and confounded at what Micheas had said, he went to his own house." Joseph, viii. 14.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 1. Who was. Heb. Chal. &c. place this after vineyard, (453)

2 And Achab spoke to Naboth, saying: Give me thy vineyard, that I may make me a garden of herbs, because it is nigh, and adjoining to my house; and I will give thee for it a better vineyard: or if thou think it more convenient for thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

3 Naboth answered him: The Lord be merciful to me, and not let me give thee the inheritance of my fathers.

4 And Achab came into his house angry and fretting, because of the word that Naboth, the Jezrahelite, had spoken to him, saying: I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. And casting himself upon his bed, he turned away his face to the wall, and would eat no bread.

5 And Jezabel, his wife, went in to him, and said to him: What is the matter that thy soul is so grieved? and why eatest thou no bread?

6 And he answered her: I spoke to Naboth, the Jezrahelite, and said to him: Give me thy vineyard, and take money for it: or if it please thee, I will give thee a better vineyard for it. And he said: I will not give thee my vineyard.

7 Then Jezabel, his wife, said to him: Thou art of great authority indeed, and governest well the kingdom of Israel. Arise, and eat bread, and be of good cheer; I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezrahelite.

8 So she wrote letters in Achab's name, and sealed them with his ring, and sent them to the ancients, and the chief men that were in his city, and that dwelt with Naboth.

9 And this was the tenor of the letters: Proclaim a fast, and make Naboth sit among the chief of the people;

10 And suborn two men, sons of Belial, against him, and let them bear false witness; that he hath blasphemed God and the king: and then carry him out, and stone him, and so let him die.

11 And the men of his city, the ancients and nobles, that dwelt with him in the city, did as Jezabel had commanded them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent to them;

12 They proclaimed a fast, and made Naboth sit among the chief of the people.

13 And bringing two men, sons of the devil, they made them sit against him: and they, like men of the devil, bore witness against him before the people: saying: Naboth hath blasphemed God and the king. Wherefore they brought him forth without the city, and stoned him to death.

14 And they sent to Jezabel, saying: Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

15 And it came to pass, when Jezabel heard that Naboth was stoned, and dead, that she said to Achab: Arise, and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, who would not agree with thee, and give it thee for money: for Naboth is not alive, but dead.

16 And when Achab heard this, to wit, that Naboth was dead, he arose, and went down into the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.

17 And the word of the Lord came to Elias, the Thesbite, saying:

18 Arise, and go down to meet Achab, king of Israel, who is in Samaria: behold he is going down to the vineyard of Naboth, to take possession of it:

19 And thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Thou hast slain: moreover also thou hast taken possession. And after these words thou shalt and read which, referring it to the ground; which we might naturally suppose would be the place of Naboth's nativity, as it was his paternal estate, 4 K. ix. 21. Josephus calls the place Azari, and says it was a field contiguous to the king's palace. Sept. ἀνα, "threshing-floor."

VER. 2. Herbs. The taste of eastern nations is very different from ours. The Syrians delight in seeing gardens filled with melons, onions, &c. and they cannot conceive what pleasure we can find in rambling round our long walks for the sake of exercise.—Money. Hence we perceive that, notwithstanding the despotic power of the kings of Israel, they did not imagine that they had a right to take their subjects' lands. 1 K. viii. 14. C.—Naboth's conduct is therefore here applauded; and S. Ambrose (Off. iii. 9), styles him a martyr, (W.) and a great saint. T.—Maluit periculum cum honestate, quam utilitatem cum opprobrio.

VER. 3. Fathers. He would have deemed it a mark of disrespect and a crime, as he was not in a state of indigence; which alone could authorize him to sell his property, and then only till the year of jubilee; (Lev. xxv. 23,) and as his field was to be turned into a royal garden, and the law was disregarded by the king, there was no prospect of his regaining it at that period. The law of Moses was still in force; and there were some, like Naboth, who were resolved to comply with it, (C.) even at the hazard of their lives. T.

VER. 4. Fretting. The Heb. terms are the same as C. xx. 43. What weakness in Achab! Riches and honours are not capable of ensuring content. C.—"Who, thinkest thou, is poor; the man who is content with his own, or he who covets another's property?" S. Amb. Naboth ii.—Wall, as Ezechias did afterwards, in very different dispositions; though both were oppressed with grief. Isai. xxxviii. 2. Sept. "he covered his face." H.

VER. 7. Israel. Heb. simply, "Now thou wilt make the kingdom of Israel." C.—Prot. "Dost thou now govern this?" &c. H.—Thou art a fit person indeed to establish a kingdom! Ought not a king to take what he has a mind to! Syr. "Are you fit to reign?" Arab. "You do not deserve to govern." C.—Sept. "Dost thou now act the king over Israel, in this manner?" H.

VER. 8. Chief men. Heb. chorim, "those in white," the usual colour of magistrates and noblemen. Eccl. ix. 8. Dan. vii. 9. The angels generally appear arrayed in white. Among the Egyptians and the Greeks, the rich were remarkable for the whiteness of their robes. Herod. ii. 36. Odys. 2.

VER. 9. Fast, as in a case of the greatest importance, where the welfare of the king and of the state are concerned. We have frequent mention of such extraordinary fasts. 2 Par. xx. 3. 1 Esd. viii. 21. Joel i. 14, &c. Some would translate, "Call an assembly." Vatab.—But the Chal. &c. are for the fast. Josephus joins both. All the people were collected, (C.) and Naboth was (Heb.) "set on high, or at the head, as president, on account of his riches and nobility, (H.) that he might be unprepared, and afterwards be more disgraced. M.—Abulensis (g. 4,) thinks that the judges were accustomed to fast, to shew their pity for the criminal, and that they were moved only by a zeal for justice.

VER. 10. Belial, without restraint or conscience.—Blasphemed. Heb. "blest-ed."—Elohim, (H.) or god, the gods, magistrates, &c. C.—Blessing is equally put, to avoid the horrible sound of blaspheming. W. Job i. 5. and ii. 9.—Martin de Roa (i. 9,) maintains, that the word implies to "bid adieu," or quit; as if Naboth had relinquished the service both of God and of the king. He was accused as a traitor. The law did not condemn the person to death who had spoken ill of the prince. Ex. xxii. 28. But the wicked judges complied with the intimation of Jezabel; (C.) as she pretended that he had also blasphemed God. H.—Josephus introduces three witnesses, which was more conformable to the practice of the Jews. Grot.—But the text specifies two; and that number would suffice. H.—All Naboth's family were involved in his ruin; (4 K. ix. 26. T.) as it was necessary for Achab's purpose. So Achan's children perished with him. Jos. vii. 25. H.—What a complication of crimes! T.—"They proclaim a fast, in order to commit murder." S. Chrys. ser. 68. Hypocrisy, falsehood, perjury, perversion of justice, all are employed to take away the life, honour, and property of the innocent. See S. Amb. Seneca Benef. ii. 27. T.

VER. 13. Devil. Heb. Belial, v. 10. Prot. "and the men of Belial witnessed against him."—City, as was requisite. C.—Stoned him, for blasphemy. Lev. xxiv. 16. and 23.

VER. 16. Of it, on the title of confiscation, as Naboth had been condemned for high treason; (see 2 K. ix. 7. M.) or because there was no heir left, v. 10. Some assert, that Naboth was Achab's uncle. But this wants proof. C.—Achab only waited one day, and then Elias met him to denounce to him a similar fate after he was dead. 4 K. ix. 26. Sept. have, "he tore his garments, and put on sackcloth; and it came to pass afterwards, that Achab arose," &c. This addition would intimate that the king pretended to be sorry. They repeat the same thing, v. 27. "he had put on sackcloth, on the day when he slew Naboth, and went along east down." It is probable that Achab might assume this garb, to make people suppose that he had no hand in the death of Naboth; but this was all hypocrisy and Elias boldly accused him of guilt. Thou hast slain, &c. v. 19 H.—He knew, at least, of his wife's machinations. Salien.

VER. 19. Possession, by desire; though he was yet only on the road. M.—Perhaps he had sent his servants before. H.—Place, not precisely, as Achab was slain in Samaria. M.—But Naboth's vineyard, perhaps, was not far distant from the pool, where dogs licked the blood of the king. H.—On account of add: Thus saith the Lord: "In this place, wherein the dogs have licked the blood of Naboth, they shall lick thy blood also.

20 And Achab said to Elias: Hast thou found me thy enemy? He said: I have found thee, because thou art sold to do evil in the sight of the Lord.

21 "Behold I will bring evil upon thee, and I will cut down thy posterity, and I will kill of Achab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in Israel.

22 And I will make thy house like the "house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, and like the house of "Baasa the son of Ahias: for what thou hast done to provoke me to anger, and for making Israel to sin.

23 "And of Jezabel also, the Lord spoke, saying: The dogs shall eat Jezabel in the field of Jezrahel.

24 If Achab die in the city, the dogs shall eat him: but if he die in the field, the birds of the air shall eat him.

25 Now, there was not such another as Achab, who was sold to do evil in the sight of the Lord: for his wife, Jezabel, set him on,

26 And he became abominable, insomuch that he followed the idols which the Amorrhites had made, whom the Lord destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

27 And when Achab had heard these words, he rent his garments, and put hair-cloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and slept in sackcloth, and walked with his head cast down.

28 And the word of the Lord came to Elias, the Thesbite, saying:

29 Hast thou not seen Achab humbled before me? therefore, because he hath humbled himself, for my sake,

* Infra xxii. 38.—^b 4 Kings ix. 8.—^c Supra xv. 29.—^d Supra xvi. 3.

Achab's repentance, the sentence was (v. 29. C.) rather changed, and his son Joram was substituted in his stead. 4 K. ix. 25. Jehu, and his captain, Badacer, were present, when Elias denounced this judgment upon the family of Achab; and they concluded that the prediction regarded Joram. He had, perhaps, taken part with his impious parents, and promoted the same crimes. H.

VER. 20. Thy enemy. Have I done thee any harm, whenever thou hast appeared before me? Heb. and Sept. "O my enemy." H.—To find, often means to attack or take by surprise. Art thou come thus, to fall upon me on the road? C.—Sold. That is, so addicted to evil, as if thou hadst sold thyself to the devil, to be his slave to work all kind of evil. Ch. W. S. Greg. in Ecce. hom. 10.—The expression strongly marks the empire of the passions. Achab was sovereignly wicked, without any restraint. C.—So Vitellius was: Luxui saginæque mancipatus, emptusque. Tacit. Hist. ii.—Sold, or "abandoned," are used in the same sense. Ps. xlii. 13.

VER. 21. Wall. See 1 K. xxv. 22.—Israel. C. xiv. 10. M.

VER. 22. Sin. God frequently inculcates the enormity of the crime of public scandal. M.

VER. 23. Field. Heb. wall, or "before the wall." This was exactly fulfilled, 4 K. ix. 32. Jezabel was hurled from a window over the gate or wall of the city. C.

VER. 24. Eat him. Yet God remitted something from the severity of this sentence; and Achab was buried in Samaria. C. xlii. 37. But his son was deprived of burial. T. 4 K. ix. 26.—According to the Heb. the prediction related to Achab's posterity, as the Chal. Sept. Syr. &c. have understood it. C.—Prot. "him that dieth of Achab in the city," &c.

VER. 25. Now. Sept. "Moreover, Achab was foolishly sold, a man who was sold, &c. since Jezabel . . . changed him:" περίσθεν. His natural disposition was not perhaps so bad. But his unfortunate connexion with a most wicked wife involved him in ruin. Even when he began to relent, and was on the point of reforming his life, (v. 27) her influence spoiled all. H.—He was sold to her, and she exercised a most severe tyranny over him, using his seal at pleasure, and treating him with indignity, v. 7, 8. T.

VER. 26. Amorrhites. The Sidonians still adored the idols Baal and Astaroth, with the utmost exertions of cruelty and lust. This was the religion which Achab wished to establish, more than any of his predecessors. C.

VER. 27. Down. Heb. "uncovered," (Malv. 2 K. xv. 30.) or "barefoot," (Chal. Syr.) or "softly," (Vat. Prot.) or "he walked bent down." Sept. This variety shows that the signification of at (H.) is not well known. The repentance of Achab is not more certain. Some believe that it was insincere, and only external: yet God was pleased to reward it in this life, (Lyran. Theod. &c.) as

I will not bring the evil in his days, 'but in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

CHAP. XXII.

Achab believing his false prophets, rather than Micheas, is slain in Ramoth-Galaad. Ochozias succeedeth him. Good king Josaphat dieth, and his son Joram succeedeth him.

AND there passed three years without war between Syria and Israel.

2 And "in the third year, Josaphat, king of Juda came down to the king of Israel.

3 (And the king of Israel said to his servants: Know ye not that Ramoth-Galaad is ours, and we neglect to take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?)

4 And he said to Josaphat: Wilt thou come with me to battle to Ramoth-Galaad?

5 And Josaphat said to the king of Israel: As I am, so art thou: my people and thy people are one: and my horsemen are thy horsemen. And Josaphat said to the king of Israel: Inquire, I beseech thee, this day the word of the Lord.

6 Then the king of Israel assembled the prophets, about four hundred men, and he said to them: Shall I go to Ramoth-Galaad to fight, or shall I forbear? They answered: Go up, and the Lord will deliver it into the hand of the king.

7 And Josaphat said: Is there not here some prophet of the Lord, that we may inquire by him?

8 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: There is one man left, by whom we may inquire of the Lord; Micheas, the son of Jemla: but I hate him, for he doth not prophecy good to me, but evil. And Josaphat said: Speak not so, O king.

9 Then the king of Israel called an eunuch, and said

* 4 Kings ix. 36.—^f 4 Kings ix. 26.—^g 2 Par. xviii. 1. A. M. 3107, A. C. 897.

it might have some influence on the people. H.—Others suppose that Achab really repented for what he had done, but presently relapsed at the instigation of Jezabel; so that his reward was equally of a temporal nature; though S. Chrysostom (ad Theod. laps.) seems to be convinced that he "obtained the remission of all his sins, and entirely changed his life." ser. 63, et hom. 5. ad Antioch.—But here lies the difficulty. C.—"His groans would have found favour, if the lurking envy had not increased his offence." S. Amb. in Pa. xxxvii. de Naboth. C. iv. See v. 25.—A relapse renders the sincerity of former conversions doubtful; and the more so, when no radical change, but only external sorrow, has appeared.

VER. 29. Sake. Heb. "before me," publicly. H.—The threat of the prophet caused Achab to invest his son with the royal dignity, and Josaphat followed his example. Salien, A. C. 916.—But some call this in question. H.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 1. Israel, from the time when Benadad and Achab had made a league. C. xx. 34.

VER. 2. Josaphat. It is wonderful that a prince of so great piety, should lay on terms of such strict friendship with a most wicked king. God did not approve of it; and the event was unfortunate. 2 Par. xx. 37. Achab received the king of Juda with extraordinary magnificence. ib. xviii. 2. It is thought that (C.) the latter had married his daughter, (Grot.) or rather (H.) he had taken Athalia for his son Joram. 2 Par. xviii. 1. T. M.

VER. 3. Syria. Benadad had not restored it; either because he no longer regarded his treaty, or because the city had not been taken by his father. C.

VER. 5. One, in concord, (H.) and ready to march against the same enemy.—Lord. This was rather late, if (M.) the army was already receiving its pay under the walls of Samaria. Joseph. viii. 15.—God ought to have been consulted at first. M.

VER. 6. Men, probably the prophets of the groves, who had not gone to Carmel. C. xviii. 19. 22. C.—The recent slaughter had not deterred others from imitating the example of the false prophets. H.

VER. 7. Lord. Josaphat knew that these four hundred were addicted to idol-worship, (H.) and suspected that they only flattered their king. Josephus.

VER. 8. One man. Perhaps Micheas alone resided at Samaria. Elias and his disciples were in the country. Josephus and some others think, (C.) that the son of Jemla had been cast into prison for what he had said to Achab, when he had dismissed the king of Syria. C. xx. 43. H.—Not so. Good advice should be followed, though it be not pleasant. M.—Josaphat justly suspected the schismatical false prophets. W.

VER. 9. Eunuch. Heb. saris, denotes also "a servant;" or Achab might have purchased this stranger.

to him: Make haste, and bring hither Micheas, the son of Jemla.

10 And the king of Israel, and Josaphat, king of Juda, sat each on his throne, clothed with royal robes, in a court, by the entrance of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets prophesied before them.

11 And Sedecias, the son of Chanaana, made himself horns of iron, and said: Thus saith the Lord: With these shalt thou push Syria, till thou destroy it.

12 And all the prophets prophesied in like manner, saying: Go up to Ramoth-Galaad, and prosper, for the Lord will deliver it into the king's hands.

13 And the messenger that went to call Micheas, spoke to him, saying: Behold the words of the prophets with one mouth declare good things to the king: let thy word, therefore, be like to theirs, and speak that which is good.

14 But Micheas said to him: As the Lord liveth, whatsoever the Lord shall say to me, that will I speak.

15 So he came to the king, and the king said to him: Micheas, shall we go to Ramoth-Galaad to battle, or shall we forbear? He answered him: Go up, and prosper, and the Lord shall deliver it into the king's hands.

16 But the king said to him: I adjure thee again and again, that thou tell me nothing but that which is true, in the name of the Lord.

17 And he said: I saw all Israel scattered upon the hills, like sheep that have no shepherd; *and the Lord said: These have no master: let every man of them return to his house in peace.

18 (Then the king of Israel said to Josaphat: Did I not tell thee, that he prophesieth no good to me, but always evil?)

19 And he added and said: Hear thou, therefore, the word of the Lord: I saw the Lord sitting on his throne,

* Num. xxvii. 17. Mat. ix. 36.

VER. 10. Court, or barn floor. They were in or near cities, that they might be so protected from the incursions of enemies, who strove to set the corn on fire. 1 K. xxiii. 1. Judg. xv. 5.

VER. 11. Push, "with the horn," (κρητίζω; Sept.) and throw into the air, (M.) like a bull. C.—Nothing shall withstand thy power. The actions of Sedecias were of the same import as his words. H. See Jer. xxvii. 2. and xxviii. 10. —Such horns were shewn to Zacharias; (i. 18.) as false prophets often do, like the true ones. W.

VER. 15. Go up, &c. This was spoken ironically, and by way of jesting at the flattering speeches of the false prophets: and so the king understood it, as appears by his adjuring Micheas, in the following verse, to tell him the truth in the name of the Lord. Ch.—Micheas had only repeated their words, and by his accent and gestures (D.) might easily explain his meaning. H.—Similar examples of irony may be seen. C. xviii. 27, and Gen. iii. 22. C.—The prophet might also pray for success. But the king begged for a positive answer. W.

VER. 17. No shepherd . . . no master, clearly intimated (M.) that the king should perish in the battle. (Paral. reads: These have no masters. H.)

VER. 19. He, Micheas, added, (M.) not fearing the king's displeasure, who seemed to regard his former denunciation as an effect of his ill-will. Hence he explains his vision more at large. God often conforms to our ideas, and even prejudices. The people were then accustomed to look upon him as a king, environed with his army of good and evil spirits; the one at his right-hand, to execute his designs of mercy, and the other at his left, to execute his judgments. Job (i. 6, 12.) speaks in the like manner. We know that God stands in need of no counsellors; (Rom. xi. 34.) and that the angels of satan have no place in heaven. Isai. xiv. 12. Apoc. xii. 9. Jude 6.

VER. 20. The Lord said, &c. God standeth not in need of any counsellor; nor are we to suppose, that things pass in heaven in the manner here described: but this representation was made to the prophet, to be delivered by him in a manner adapted to the common ways and notions of men. Ch. S. Greg. Mor. ii. 21. &c. W.—God did not enable the king to discern the falsehood. Bellarm. ii. 13. Grat. Amis.

VER. 22. Go forth, and do so. This was not a command, but a permission; for God never ordaineth lies, though he often permitteth the lying spirit to deceive those who love not the truth. 2 Thessal. ii. 10. And in this sense it is said in the following verse, the Lord hath given a lying spirit in the mouth of all thy prophets. Ch.—What is translated in the imperative, denotes frequently what will come to pass, though it be displeasing to God. C.—He permits it, therefore, only by not exerting his power to prevent the execution. H.—The devils can (456) and all the army of heaven standing by him on the right hand and on the left:

20 And the Lord said: Who shall deceive Achab, king of Israel, that he may go up, and fall at Ramoth-Galaad? And one spoke words of this manner, and another otherwise.

21 And there came forth a spirit, and stood before the Lord, and said: I will deceive him. And the Lord said to him: By what means?

22 And he said: I will go forth, and be a lying spirit, in the mouth of all his prophets. And the Lord said: Thou shalt deceive him, and shalt prevail: go forth, and do so.

23 Now, therefore, behold the Lord hath given a lying spirit, in the mouth of all thy prophets that are here, and the Lord hath spoken evil against thee.

24 And Sedecias, the son of Chanaana, came, and struck Micheas on the cheek, and said: Hath then the spirit of the Lord left me, and spoken to thee?

25 And Micheas said: Thou shalt see, in the day when thou shalt go into a chamber, within a chamber, to hide thyself.

26 And the king of Israel said: Take Micheas, and let him abide with Amon, the governor of the city, and with Joas, the son of Amalech;

27 And tell them: Thus saith the king: Put this man in prison, and feed him with bread of affliction, and water of distress, till I return in peace.

28 And Micheas said: If thou return in peace, the Lord hath not spoken by me. And he said: Hear, all ye people.

29 So the king of Israel, and Josaphat, king of Juda, went up to Ramoth-Galaad.

30 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: Take thy armour, and go into the battle, and put on thy own

b Vide Mat. viii. 32. and Apoc. xx. 3.

do nothing without such a permission. Achab deserved to be deceived by the false prophets, as he would not hearken to a true one. S. Aug. con. Jul. v. 4. and q. 53. inter. 83.

VER. 24. Cheek. Josephus says he had told the king, that if his hand did not wither, like that of Jeroboam, he might conclude that Micheas was a false prophet; particularly as his prediction was at variance with that of Elias; who had asserted that Achab should die at Jezrahel, while Micheas seemed to condemn him to die at Ramoth. But these circumstances are by no means certain, though they be adopted by the author of the Scholastic History, by Lyran, &c. C.—If Sedecias had the assurance to make such a declaration, God was not obliged to work a miracle to prevent the king's mistake; and Micheas had never said that Achab should die at Ramoth. H.—Hath. In 2 Par. xviii. 23, it is expressed, Which way went the spirit of the Lord from me to speak to thee? If he could have proved that he had ever possessed the spirit, he might have spoken with some confidence; though sin may easily banish him. Thus Catholics may ask the pretended reformers, who boast of the spirit, how He came to abandon the Church with which all agree He once resided, to establish a contrary one? The spirit of God cannot be at variance with himself, nor reveal contradictory things. H.

VER. 25. Go into a chamber, &c. This happened when he heard the king was slain, and justly apprehended that he should be punished for his false prophecy; (Ch.) though this be nowhere recorded, (C.) except in Josephus. W.—He probably escaped death. Salien.

VER. 27. Distress, both "in small quantity," (Paral.) and very bad. Grot. T. Isai. xxx. 20.—Peace, when I will punish thee, as an impostor. M.—How grating must this have been to the good king Josaphat; and still he does not abandon the company of such infatuated people! v. 29. H.

VER. 30. Thy own. Sept. "I will disguise myself, and go into the battle; and do thou put on my garment." Hence the Syrians mistook Josaphat for Achab, (v. 32. C.) as "it had been agreed between them, that he should wear the robes of Achab, to elude more easily the prediction of Micheas." Joseph. viii. 15.—Vain and impious attempt! Providence found him out, though undisciplined. H.—Achab might pretend thus to honour the king of Juda! (M.) and perhaps he had been apprized of the order given to the Syrians, to single him out, v. 31. What could prompt such an order, cannot be easily ascertained. Benadad might wish to revenge himself, for being brought out as a prisoner to Achab; or he might be informed of the prediction of Micheas.

VER. 31. Captains of, or mounted "on chariots." There would hardly be so many general officers over the chariots alone. The same number of kings had garments. But the king of Israel changed his dress, and went into the battle.

31 And the king of Syria had commanded the two and thirty captains of the chariots, saying: You shall not fight against any, small or great, but against the king of Israel only.

32 So when the captains of the chariots saw Josaphat, they suspected that he was the king of Israel, and making a violent assault, they fought against him: and Josaphat cried out.

33 And the captains of the chariots perceived that he was not the king of Israel, and they turned away from him.

34 And a certain man bent his bow, shooting at a venture, and chanced to strike the king of Israel, between the lungs and the stomach. But he said to the driver of his chariot: Turn thy hand, and carry me out of the army, for I am grievously wounded.

35 And the battle was fought that day, and the king of Israel stood in his chariot against the Syrians, and he died in the evening: and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst of the chariot.

36 And the herald proclaimed through all the army, before the sun set, saying: Let every man return to his own city, and to his own country.

37 And the king died, and was carried into Samaria: and they buried the king in Samaria.

38 And they washed his chariot in the pool of Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood, and they washed the reins according to the word of the Lord which he had spoken.

39 But the rest of the acts of Achab, and all that he did, and the house of ivory that he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

40 So Achab slept with his fathers; and Ochozias, his son, reigned in his stead.

41 But Josaphat, the son of Asa, began to reign over Juda, in the fourth year of Achab, king of Israel.

* A. M. 3107.—^b Supra xxi. 19.—A. M. 3090, A. C. 914.—^d A. M. 3108.

been in a former engagement, and they had been replaced by these captains. C. xx. 24. C.—Only. Not that the Syrians were to avoid hurting any body else, as they could not thus come at the king; (Salien) and we find one shot an arrow at the army of Israel; (v. 34. H.) but the main onset was to be directed against Achab, either to kill or to take him prisoner. M.

VER. 31. Cried out. Par. add, to the Lord, and he helped him, and turned them away from him. The Jews (in Seder. Olam xvii.) acknowledge the same thing; and thus it was known that Josaphat was not the king of Israel, who would rather have invoked Baal. M.—Perhaps he also declared the truth, and who he was, when he saw the Syrians surround him, crying, This is the king of Israel! 2 Par. xviii. 3. T.

VER. 34. Smack. Par. between the neck and the shoulders. The arrow went in at the lungs, and came out at the shoulders, as it was shot from a lower ground. M.—Some explain the Heb. "between the joints and the coat of mail." Prot. "joints of the harness." Sept. "between the lungs and the thorax." H.—Syr. "between the juncture of the coat of mail," where it is connected with the armour of the thighs. Grot.—God directed the random shot. Salien. W.—Hand. It was deemed unbecoming for the king to touch the reins. Diod. Sic. xvii. Brisson iii. p. 383.

VER. 35. Evening. Achab had only retired to the hinder ranks, while Josaphat, by his valour, maintained the day, till the death of the former put an end to the war.

VER. 38. Of Samaria. Josephus says, of Jezara, (Jezrahel) conformably to the prediction. But God had relented in that particular, on Achab's repentance; (C. C. xxi. 24. 29.) unless it regarded his son Joram. H. Salien.—Reins. Heb. zonoth, may also signify "arms," (Munster) and "harlots." Sept. Some suspect that such were painted upon the chariot. Josephus intimates, with the Sept. that "harlots bathed in the blood," (Ant. viii. 15.) which would tend to the greater contempt of Achab. M.—Spoken, respecting dogs licking up Achab's blood. No mention had been made of the chariot. God was thus pleased to shew how easily he could have executed the sentence in all its rigour.

VER. 39. Of ivory. The palace was greatly adorned with it, (see Amos iii. 15. and Ps. xlv. 9. C.) like the throne of Solomon. C. x. 18. Pliny (xvi. 43.) speaks of bedsteads and vehicles of ivory, in the same sense. T.

42 He was five and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and twenty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Azuba, the daughter of Salai.

43 And he walked in all the way of Asa, his father, and he declined not from it: and he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord.

44 Nevertheless, he took not away the high places: for as yet the people offered sacrifice, and burnt incense in the high places.

45 And Josaphat had peace with the king of Israel.

46 But the rest of the acts of Josaphat, and his works which he did, and his battles, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

47 And the remnant also of the effeminate, who remained in the days of Asa, his father, he took out of the land.

48 And there was then no king appointed in Edom.

49 But king Josaphat made navies on the sea, to sail into Ophir for gold: but they could not go, for the ships were broken in Asiongaber.

50 Then Ochozias, the son of Achab, said to Josaphat: Let my servants go with thy servants in the ships. And Josaphat would not.

51 And Josaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, his father: and Joram, his son, reigned in his stead.

52 And Ochozias, the son of Achab, began to reign over Israel, in Samaria, in the seventeenth year of Josaphat, king of Juda, and he reigned over Israel two years.

53 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father and his mother, and in the way of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin.

54 He served also Baal, and worshipped him, and provoked the Lord, the God of Israel, according to all that his father had done.

* 2 Par. xx. 36.—^d A. M. 3115, A. C. 889.—^e A. M. 3106.

VER. 44. He took not away, &c. He left some of the high places, viz. those in which they worshipped the true God: but took away all others, 2 Par. xvii. 6; (Ch.) and even those also, before the end of his reign; (C.) as they were contrary to the law. M.—Others think that the passage in Par. is incorrect; via being substituted for vaud. He took away the high places, (C. xix. 8.) and the groves. Grot. Capell.—We know that such remained in the days of Joas; and Josaphat is not ranked among the irreproachable kings. Eccli. xlix. 5. C.—He attempted perhaps to remove those places, but was prevented by the people. M. See C. xv. 14.

VER. 45. Israel. The five subsequent verses are omitted in the Roman Sept.

VER. 47. Effeminate. Men addicted to unnatural lust. C. xiv. 24. and xv. 12.

VER. 48. Edom. Heb. and Chal. "but a deputy king," or viceroy; (T.) so that the kings of Juda might equip fleets at Asiongaber, as the country of Idumea was subject to them ever since the time of David. 2 Par. xvii. 17. Under Ochozias, the son of Josaphat, the kings of Edom became independent, 4 K. viii. 20. C.—Hitherto they had paid tribute. M.

VER. 49. Made. Heb. incorrectly reads hasar, "ten," instead of hasa, "made;" (C.) which the Prot. follow, "made ships of Tharshish, to go to Ophir." H. See C. ix. 26. and 28.

VER. 50. Would not. He had been reprehended before for admitting such a partner: and therefore would have no more to do with him. Ch.—They had formerly joined in equipping such a fleet, (2 Par. xx. 36. and 37. C.) and it had been dashed to pieces in the very port. H.

VER. 52. Years, not complete; as the first is comprized in the reign of Achab, and the last in that of Joram. 4 K. iii. 1. Usher, A. 3108.—Yet, his very short reign was memorable for many disasters; the revolt of the dependant king of Moab, the ruin of his navy, &c. that he might thus be reclaimed from his evil ways. Salien, A. C. 915.—Houbigant allows this king two full years; and rejects the notion of his being associated by his father, as he does on other similar occasions, where the Scripture is silent. He makes Ochozias commence in the 19th, and end in the 22d of Josaphat, and not in the second of Joram. 4 K. i. 17. The Heb. and Greek copies vary. H.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF KINGS.

THIS Book brings us to the conclusion of the kingdom of Israel, (C. xvii.) and to the captivity of Juda, at Babylon. C. xxv. We behold some virtuous princes reigning over the two tribes, while the ten were uniformly governed by men of perverse morals. W.—Yet there were some who adhered to the Lord in both kingdoms. David and his descendants (H.) occupy the throne near 480 years; and, after the captivity, continue in some degree of honour till the coming of Christ. W.—But various families rule over Israel; some by usurpation, (H.) others by God's appointment: who thus chooses to chastise the wicked. He still watches over his Church, and sends his prophets for the instruction of all. W.—We have enquired in the preface to the former Book, who composed this. H.—The kingdom of Israel subsists about 250, (W.) or 254 years. This Book contains the transactions of 308 years. C.—But the chronology is extremely perplexed. To the sixth year of Ezechias, when Israel was led away captive, the kingdom of Juda seems to have lasted 260, and that of Israel only 241 years, though they both commenced at the same period. The errors regard the kings of Israel, according to Houbigant, who would assign the following years to the respective kings of Juda and of Israel. 1. Of Juda: Solomon, 40; Roboam, 17; Abiam, 3; Asa, 41; Josaphat, 25; Joram, 8; Ochozias, 1; (the same is said to have begun to reign in the preceding year, the 11th of Joram, 4 K. ix. 29, incorrectly) Athalia, 6; Joas, 40; Amasias, 29; (he reigns 15 after the death of Joas, king of Israel) Azarias, 52; Joatham, 16; Achaz, 16; Ezechias, 6; in which year, the three hundredth from the commencement of Solomon's reign, and the two hundred and sixtieth of the kingdom of Juda, Samaria was taken. 2. The kings of Israel: Jeroboam, 22; Nadab, 2; Bansa, 24; Ela, 2; Zambri, 7 days; Amri, 12; Achab, 22; Ochozias, 2; Joram, 12; Jehu, 28; Joachaz, 17; Joas, 16; Jeroboam, 41; Zacharias, 10½; (in the text 10 is omitted. H.) Sellum, 1 month; Manahem, 10; Phaceia, 2; Phacee, 30; (in the text, 20. H.) Osee, 9; in all, 261½ years, (Houbig. Chron. Sac.) or 261 years and 7 months. The variation of 19 months, which still appears, may be owing to some of the years being incomplete. H.—3. After a reign of 28 years over Juda, Ezechias is succeeded by Manasses, who reigns 55: Amon, 2; Josias, 31; Joachaz, a few months; Eliacim, or Joakim, 11; Joachin, Conias, or Jechonias, had reigned ten years with his father. After three months and ten days reigning alone, he is led away to Babylon with part of the people. Matthanias, or Sedecias, is appointed in his stead; but proving refractory, is also, after nine years, deprived of his sight, and conducted with 832 of his subjects to Babylon. Nabuchodonosor had already led away 3023, under Joachin. After the death of Godolias, who was left to govern the miserable remains of the people, A. 3117, he made 745 more captives, and thus an end was put to the kingdom of Juda. The scourge had been retarded for some time, by the repentance of Manasses, and the prayers of the prophets. C.

CHAP. I.

Ochozias sendeth to consult Beelzebub: Elias foretelleth his death: and causeth fire to come down from heaven, upon two captains and their companies.

AND Moab rebelled against Israel, after the death of Achab.

2 And Ochozias fell through the lattices of his upper chamber, which he had in Samaria, and was sick: and he sent messengers, saying to them: Go, consult Beelzebub, the god of Accaron, whether I shall recover of this my illness.

3 And an angel of the Lord spoke to Elias, the Thesbite, saying: Arise, and go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them: Is there not a God in Israel, that ye go to consult Beelzebub, the god of Accaron?

4 Wherefore, thus saith the Lord: From the bed, on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die. And Elias went away.

5 And the messengers turned back to Ochozias. And he said to them: Why are you come back?

* A. M. 3108, A. C. 896.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Rebelled: lit. "prevaricated." H.—The kings of Israel kept some of the nations, which David had conquered, in subjection, while the kings of Juda ruled over the others. In consequence of the late disaster, these people began to throw off the yoke. T.—Joram made war upon Moab. C. iii. 5. God began to punish the house of Achab, by these means. C.—The Moabites refused to pay tribute, (M.) as the Israelites would not acknowledge the divine authority. H.

VER. 2. Lattices, by a skylight, (H.) or trap-door, designed to give light to the room below, into which the king fell. The roofs are generally flat in the East, and covered with earth mixed with straw, with the light at the top, to prevent the excessive heats.—Of. Heb. &c. "into." C.—If the lattices be understood to mean the rails, which were ordered to be placed round the roof, (Deut. xxii. 8.) Ochozias might fall into the street. M.—Josephus thinks he fell from the staircase. At any rate, he was much hurt, (H.) and thus was made to feel the indignation of God. T.—God. Sept. "Baal, the god-fly;" (C.) the Jupiter of the Greeks, or their chief god; and the prince of devils. Mat. xii.—Accaron. Hence Pliny (viii. 29.) styles the god Achor, (T.) and Myiodia, (B. xxxvi.) which is the name given to him by Josephus, ix. 2. H.—He was supposed to free the people of the country from being infested with flies; or the many victims offered up to him, drew those insects together. Vatable.—Grotius supposes that the Phœnicians styled their god, Beelsemem, (Balsamon) "God of heaven;" and that the Hebrews called him, Balzobub, "god of flies," out of contempt. But perhaps he is too favourable to the idolaters. D.—Selden is convinced that Ochozias gives the idol its real name. Scaliger rather thinks that Balzobem, "the lord of victims," was the original title. H.

VER. 4. Away: probably to his usual abode, at Carmel, where the king sent to seize him.

6 But they answered him: A man met us, and said to us: Go, and return to the king, that sent you, and you shall say to him: Thus saith the Lord: Is it because there was no God in Israel, that thou sendest to Beelzebub, the god of Accaron? Therefore thou shalt not come down from the bed, on which thou art gone up, but thou shalt surely die.

7 And he said to them: What manner of man was he who met you, and spoke these words?

8 But they said: A hairy man, with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said: It is Elias, the Thesbite.

9 And he sent to him a captain of fifty, and the fifty men that were under him. And he went up to him, and as he was sitting on the top of a hill, he said to him: Man of God, the king hath commanded that thou come down.

10 And Elias answering, said to the captain of fifty: If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven and consume thee, and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven and consumed him, and the fifty that were with him.

VER. 5. Messengers. They were perhaps citizens of Accaron, who had extolled the sagacity of their god, but were totally unacquainted with Elias. Yet as he shewed his knowledge of secret things, by telling them what they were going about, (Salien) and spoke with such assurance, (H.) they thought proper to return, lest they should incur a similar punishment. M.

VER. 8. Man. Heb. ish bahal sehar, "a man lord of hair," or all covered with it, having a long beard, like the ancient sages, (S. Jer. in Ezech. xxxv.) and clothed with a skin, (Bochart) as the first inhabitants of the earth, the heroes, prophets, and S. John Baptist, are described. Heb. xi. 37. Matt. iii. 4. So Statius (ii. and iv.) says:

Tiresia nictus, voces et vellera nota Induitur.

The monks imitated this poverty and simplicity of clothing; and it is still common among the Arabs, who wear a sheep's skin, with the shorn side inwards in hot weather. C.—Elias. He was known by his long hair and distinct garment, from ordinary men. W.—Hence none ought to blame priests and monks, for wearing clothes which may designate their profession. H.

VER. 9. Under him; his own guards. The captain was to request him to pray for the king's recovery; (C.) or rather, (H.) to punish him for what he had said to the messengers. C.—Of God. Procopius and others think that he spoke contemptuously, and was therefore punished. M.—Down. The prophets are not bound to obey kings, in the exercise of their ministry. Grotius.—Elias complies as soon as he had orders from God. C.

VER. 10. Let fire, &c. Elias was inspired to call down fire from heaven upon these captains, who came to apprehend him; not out of a desire to gratify any private passion, but to punish the insult offered to religion, to confirm his mission, and to shew how vain are the efforts of men against God and his servants, whom 11 And he again sent to him another captain of fifty men, and his fifty with him. And he said to him: Man of God: Thus saith the king: Make haste and come down.

12 Elias answering, said: If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee, and thy fifty. And fire came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

13 Again he sent a third captain of fifty men, and the fifty that were with him. And when he was come, he fell upon his knees before Elias, and besought him, and said: Man of God, despise not my life, and the lives of thy servants that are with me.

14 Behold fire came down from heaven, and consumed the two first captains of fifty men, and the fifties that were with them: but now I beseech thee to spare my life.

15 And the angel of the Lord spoke to Elias, saying: Go down with him, fear not. He arose therefore, and went down with him to the king,

16 And said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Because thou hast sent messengers to consult Beelzebub, the god of Accaron, as though there were not a God in Israel, of whom thou mightest inquire the word; therefore, from the bed on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die.

17 So he died, according to the word of the Lord, which Elias spoke; and Joram, his brother, reigned in his stead, in the second year of Joram, the son of Josaphat, king of Juda, because he had no son.

18 But the rest of the acts of Ochozias, which he

• A. M. 3103, A. C. 896.

he has a mind to protect. Ch.—The Roman laws authorize a person, in authority, to punish those who refuse to obey. Ulpian 1 D. Si quis jus dicenti non obtemperaverit, omnibus concessum est suam jurisdictionem defendere per alicuius iudicio. Elias acted as God's envoy, and the insult reverted upon him. S. Tho. 2. 2. q. 103, a. 2.—The Manichees have blamed the conduct of the prophet: but the miracle justifies him, as God would never countenance the private revenge of any one; and the Holy Ghost places this transaction on a level with that when Elias shut up the heavens. Eccli. xlviii. 3. S. Peter was moved with the like zeal. Acts v. 5. The sons of Zebedee gave way to some private indignation, when they wished our Saviour to call down fire from heaven upon a city of Samaria. Luke ix. 54. But he reprimanded them for it; as the citizens might not be so well acquainted with him, as these soldiers must have been with Elias; and he came to display the spirit of mildness, (C.) to attract all to his holy religion; while Elias had manifested the severity of the divine judgments, conformably to the law of terror, under which he lived. H.—In zeal of justice, Elias procured fire to burn these wicked men, as he had done for the holocaust. S. Aug. W.

VER. 11. Another, not knowing what was become of the first, or why he did not return; as Ochozias was eager to have the prophet in his power. M.—If he were acquainted with his fate, (H.) this second captain was guilty of greater insolence. But there are such generally to be found at courts; men who are ready to execute the king's orders, without considering whether they be contrary to God's law or not.

VER. 13. Again. This third captain is commonly supposed to be Abdias, (3 K. xviii. 3.) though without much reason. C.—John of Jerus. (c. 15) says he left the court, and became a disciple of Elias, and a prophet. M.—But he is very different from the prophet, whose writings are still extant. C.—The report of the two miracles had come to his ears, and filled him with fear. M.—Despise not. Heb. "let my life . . . be precious in thy sight." 1 K. xxvi. 21. Ps. cxv. 15.

VER. 17. The second year of Joram, &c. counted from the time that he was associated to the throne by his father Josaphat; (Ch.) so that it is said that he reigned also in the 18th year of Josaphat. C. iii. 1. See also C. viii. 16. To obviate these apparent contradictions, chronologists suppose that Joram reigned over Israel in the 18th of Josaphat, king of Juda, and in the second year after the latter had appointed his son Joram viceroy. He was associated with his father on the throne two years before his death, and in the 5th of Joram, king of Israel. Examples of this kind are frequent among the Hebrews, and particularly among the Persians, whose chronology is thus rendered very difficult. Why should we allow that the numbers are erroneous, when this explanation will suffice? C.—Grotius leaves the matter undecided. D.—Capel (Crit. p. 414.) maintains that the numbers have been ill transcribed; and so does Houbigant, who asserts that such a mode of writing would not be tolerable in a profane author, thus to mention different dates, without intimating how they are to be reconciled. If we should read, that Heraclius began to reign "in the 18th year did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

CHAP. II.

Elishus will not part from Elias. The water of the Jordan is divided by Elias's cloak. Elias is taken up in a fiery chariot, and his double spirit is given to Elishus. Elishus healeth the waters by casting in salt. Boys are torn by bears, for mocking Elishus.

AND it came to pass, when the Lord would take up Elias, into heaven, by a whirlwind, that Elias and Elishus were going from Galgal.

2 And Elias said to Elishus: Stay thou here, because the Lord hath sent me as far as Bethel. And Elishus said to him: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And when they were come down to Bethel,

3 The sons of the prophets, that were at Bethel, came forth to Elishus, and said to him: Dost thou know that, this day, the Lord will take away thy master from thee? And he answered: I also know it: hold your peace.

4 And Elias said to Elishus: Stay here, because the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. And he said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And when they were come to Jericho,

5 The sons of the prophets, that were at Jericho, came to Elishus, and said to him: Dost thou know that, this day, the Lord will take away thy master from thee? And he said: I also know it: hold your peace.

6 And Elias said to him: Stay here, because the Lord hath sent me as far as the Jordan. And he said:

• A. M. 3103.

of Chosroes," and a little after, that he ascended the throne "in the second year of the son of Chosroes," without ever specifying how Heraclius began his reign at two different periods, who would not suspect a mistake! Is it not more rational to throw the blame on the transcriber, than on the author! The modern chronologists seem to have invented the idea of viceroys and simultaneous kings, among the Hebrews, merely to get over difficulties; though the Scripture be entirely silent on this head. Houbigant would therefore read, "in the 22d year of Josaphat," as the mention of Joram seems here improper, (absurda) his father reigning 25 years. Ochozias began to reign when Josaphat had almost completed his 17th year. See 3 K. xxii. 52. H.—His brother is not specified in Heb. Chal. Arab. and in some copies of the Sept. but it is in most others, as well as in the Syriac, (C.) Josephus, &c. (H.) and this is the common opinion. The Roman edition here inserts (C.) after Elias spoke, (18) "And the, &c. . . and Joram," &c. nearly as C. iii. 1. 2. 3; only for father, it substitutes, "not like his brothers;" and adds, "the wrath of the Lord was enkindled against the house of Achab." No mention is made of the second year of Joram, &c. (H.) in any edition of the Sept. Capel.—In the mean time Josaphat, being returned from the unfortunate expedition with Achab, set his kingdom in order, purifying it from all the vestiges of idolatry, as much as he was able, and appointing proper judges. 2 Par. xix.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Heaven. By heaven here is meant, the air, the lowest of the heavenly regions, (Ch.) through which he was carried by the ministry of angels, who directed the storm, (H.) to the place designed for him.—It is generally supposed to be Paradise, (C.) whither Enoch had been translated. H.—They are still living, (C.) and must come again, to invite all to repent. After which they will die martyrs, in the persecution of Antichrist. H.—See S. Aug. de Gen. ad lit. ix. 6. et Apoc. xi. W.—Eccli. xlviii. 10. M.—They are a proof of a future resurrection. C.—To decide where the paradise which they inhabit, (H.) is situated, would be rash. S. Chrys. hom. 21. in Gen. &c. Some suppose it is still in some unknown region of the earth: others place it above the sky, (M.) or in the bosom of Abraham. C.—The Jews (ap. Munster) assert that Elias penetrated the sphere of fire, where his body was consumed. Vat.—The earthly paradise is very probably no longer existing, in its ancient luxuriant state. H.—It may now be covered with the waters of the Persian Gulf. Worthington.

VER. 3. The sons of the prophets. That is, the disciples of the prophets; who seem to have had their schools, like colleges or communities, in Bethel, Jericho, and other places, in the days of Elias and Elishus. Ch.—Many of these disciples might be also their children. Elias collected some fervent souls together even at Bethel, to preserve the true religion, as much as possible. He visited them before his departure. C.—Peace: let not Elias hear us.

VER. 5. From thee. Heb. "from thy head," thy superior, and raise him into the air, v. 3. C.

VER. 6. Thee. Elias had tried the constancy of his disciple three times, as (459)

As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on together.

7 And fifty men, of the sons of the prophets, followed them, and stood in sight, at a distance: but they two stood by the Jordan.

8 And Elias took his mantle, and folded it together, and struck the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, and they both passed over on dry ground.

9 And when they were gone over, Elias said to Eliseus: Ask what thou wilt have me to do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Eliseus said: I beseech thee, that in me may be thy double spirit.

10 And he answered: Thou hast asked a hard thing; nevertheless, if thou see me when I am taken from thee, thou shalt have what thou hast asked: but if thou see me not, thou shalt not have it.

11 And as they went on, walking and talking together, behold, a fiery chariot and fiery horses parted them both asunder: and Elias went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

12 And Eliseus saw him, and cried: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the driver thereof. And he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own garments, and rent them in two pieces.

13 And he took up the mantle of Elias, that fell from him: and going back, he stood on the bank of the Jordan;

14 And he struck the waters with the mantle of Elias,

* Eccli. xlviii. 13. 1 Mac. ii. 58.

Christ required of S. Peter a triple confession of love. Jo. xxi. 17. H.—Humility might also prompt the prophet to desire to be alone. Salien.

VER. 8. Mantle. Sept. μῆλον, "sheep skin," (M.) such as the prophets wore. The Syriac explains it of an ornament or bandage of the head; others, of a leathern mantle to keep off rain. Ad subitas nunquam scortea desit aquas, Martial xiv.

VER. 9. Double spirit. A double portion of thy spirit, as thy eldest son and heir, or thy spirit, which is double, in comparison of that which God usually imparteth to his prophets; (Ch.) or the power of working miracles, as well as of prophesying. W.—He wishes to excel his fellow disciples, rather than his master. T. Cajet. Amama.—Double often means great and perfect. Jer. xvii. 18. If Eliseus even begged that he might perform more and greater wonders than his master, (as Christ enabled his disciples to surpass himself, in this particular. Jo. xiv. 12. H.) he might do it without pride, purely for the glory of God. He certainly shone forth with peculiar splendour; and some have enumerated sixteen or twenty-four of his miracles, while they can only find eight (Lyran.) or twelve recorded of Elias. See A. Lapide, in Eccli. xlviii. 13. C.—We read a similar expression in Pindar, (Olym. vi.) where Neptune gave his son Janus (Ἰανῶν) διδοῦναι παντοίας "the double treasure of divination," p. 50. Ed. Step. H.

VER. 10. Hard thing. Heb. lit. "thou art hardened to ask" a thing so difficult, and which I have not the power to grant. But I will pray that thou mayest receive it; (C.) and I feel confident that thou wilt, if God shall grant thee the power so see me, at my departure. H.—This he did, v. 12. M.—Elias had perhaps imagined that his disciple would have desired some of his clothes, or some advice. C.—He left him his mantle, (v. 13. H.) and by prayer was enabled to communicate his spirit to him; as Moses and the apostles did to their assistants in the ministry. C.

VER. 11. Horses. Angels assumed these forms, (Grotius) or a cloud, resembling a fiery chariot and horses, was impelled by a strong wind, under their guidance. Tostat. M. Salien, A. C. 914.—As the name of Elias is very like Helios, "the sun," some have supposed that they have the same meaning; (Sedulius, pasc. 1.) but the Heb. term signifies, "He is my God." The pagans have taken occasion from this history to represent the sun drawn in a fiery chariot, by horses composed of the same element.

—Animosus ignibus illis,

Quos in pectore habent, quos ore & naribus efflant. Metam. xii. C.

—Heaven; (see v. 1.) where he lives free from all disturbance. T.—It is a constant belief, that he will come again before the last judgment; as his representative, the baptist, announced the first appearance of our Redeemer. S. Greg. hom. 7. in Ev. Of this the Jews were convinced. S. Justin, dial. See Malac. iv. 5.

VER. 12. Thereof. Thou alone wast equal to an army, in our defence. Chariots were then very common. C.—Chal. and Vatab. "Thou wast, by thy prayer, better to Israel than chariots and horses." So we should call a person, a pillar of the state, &c. T.—In giving the character of Elias, the Holy Ghost dwells in a particular manner on his burning zeal. C.—Elias stood up as a fire, and his word burnt like a torch. . . he brought down fire from heaven thrice, on the holocaust, (486) that had fallen from him, and they were not divided. And he said: Where is now the God of Elias? And he struck the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, and Eliseus passed over.

15 And the sons of the prophets, at Jericho, who were over-against him, seeing it, said: The spirit of Elias hath rested upon Eliseus. And coming to meet him, they worshipped him, falling to the ground,

16 And they said to him: Behold, there are with thy servants, fifty strong men, that can go, and seek thy master, lest, perhaps, the spirit of the Lord, hath taken him up and cast him upon some mountain, or into some valley. And he said: Do not send.

17 But they pressed him, till he consented, and said: Send. And they sent fifty men: and they sought three days, but found him not.

18 And they came back to him: for he abode at Jericho, and he said to them: Did I not say to you? Do not send.

19 And the men of the city, said to Eliseus: Behold, the situation of this city is very good, as thou, my lord, seest: but the waters are very bad, and the ground barren.

20 And he said: Bring me a new vessel, and put salt into it. And when they had brought it, 21 He went out to the spring of the waters, and cast the salt into it, and said: Thus saith the Lord: I have healed these waters, and there shall be no more in them death or barrenness.

and on the captains. H.—Who can glory like to thee? Eccli. xlviii. 1. 4. See SS. Amb. and Chrysa. on Elias. His resemblance with Christ is very striking. His name puts us in mind of Christ's divinity; who burnt with zeal for God's house, (Jo. ii. 17,) was persecuted, (C.) raised the dead to life, rose again and ascended triumphant into heaven, having imparted his blessing (H.) and his sacraments to his disciples. C.—No more, as he was taken from the company of men. H.—Pieces, to express his grief, at being deprived of so excellent a master. M.

VER. 13. Mantle, as an earnest of his affection. By the imposition of this mantle, he had been called to be a prophet. 3 K. xix. 19.

VER. 14. Not divided. God thus prevented him from giving way to vanity, (Abul. q. 28,) or thinking that he could do any thing of himself. H.—Elias, Heb. "where is he?" C.—The original and Sept. (Alex. and Vat.) do not specify that he struck the waters twice, or that they did not divide at first. H.—This is taken from other copies of the Sept. Amama.—The exclamation contains a most fervent prayer. Heb. "he smote the waters, and said: Where is the Lord God of Elias? and when he had stricken thee," &c. which removes the idea of presumption, which (H.) some discover in the words of Eliseus. T. Sanctius.—Nou, Heb. aph hu. Sept. ἀφ' οὗ, retaining the words which Theodotion renders "the hidden" god. H.—"Even he himself." Aquila. C.—When I stand so much in need of his assistance, (M.) having to perform his important functions, which cannot be done without his spirit, nor without the confirmation of miracles, before an unbelieving people. H.

VER. 15. They worshipped him; viz. with an inferior, yet religious veneration, not for any temporal, but spiritual excellency. Ch. W.—They had stopped on a hill, (M.) to see the event, v. 7. H.—Jericho itself is two hours' journey from the Jordan. Adric.—The sons of the prophets had seen what had happened at the translation of Elias, and perceiving that Eliseus was invested with his mantle, and with the power of working miracles, they did not hesitate to acknowledge him for their superior, during the absence of Elias, who they expected would return. C.

VER. 16. Valley. It seems such translations were not uncommon. 3 K. xviii. 12. C.

VER. 17. Send. He acquiesces, lest they might think that he was afraid of losing his superiority. M.

VER. 19. Barren, owing to the salt or bituminous waters. Some think that they were muddy and of a loathsome smell. The fountain is still to be seen very abundant and excellent, watering the plain on the west of the city. Its source is about two miles distant on the road to Jerusalem. Maundrell, p. 134. C.—Other parts of the environs were very fertile. M.

VER. 20. Put salt. He removes every suspicion of imposture: if the waters were already saline, the remedy would seem contrary to his design, but it would display the miracle in a stronger light; and if they were only fetid and muddy (C.) though (H.) salt might rectify a small quantity (Palladius tit. 9. Vales, &c.) it could never correct the bad qualities of such a fountain for a length of time, by the mere force of nature. H.—Josephus (Bel. iv. 8.) represents Eliseus acting like a magician, being desirous to please the pagan readers with various embellishments. C.

VER. 21. Barrenness. By the divine power they are become salubrious. M.

22 And the waters were healed unto this day, according to the word of Eliseus, which he spoke.

23 And he went up from thence to Bethel: and as he was going up by the way, little boys came out of the city and mocked him, saying: Go up, thou bald-head, go up, thou bald-head.

24 And looking back, he saw them, and cursed them in the name of the Lord: and there came forth two bears out of the forest, and tore of them, two and forty boys.

25 And from thence he went to Mount Carmel, and from thence he returned to Samaria.

CHAP. III.

The kings of Israel, Juda, and Edom, fight against the king of Moab. They want water, which Eliseus procureth without rain; and prophesieth victory. The king of Moab is overthrown: his city is besieged: he sacrificeth his first-born son: so the Israelites raise the siege.

AND Joram, the son of Achab, reigned over Israel, in Samaria, in the eighteenth year of ^aJosaphat, king of Juda. And he reigned twelve years.

2 And he did evil before the Lord, but not like his father and his mother: for he took away the statues of Baal, which his father had made.

3 Nevertheless, he stuck to the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, nor did he depart from them.

4 Now Mesa, king of Moab, nourished many sheep, and he paid to the king of Israel a hundred thousand lambs, and a hundred thousand rams, with their fleeces.

5 And when Achab was dead, he broke the league which he had made with the king of Israel.

6 And king Joram went out that day from Samaria, and mustered all Israel.

7 And he sent to Josaphat, king of Juda, saying: The king of Moab is revolted from me: come with me

^a A. M. 8108, A. C. 896.

VER. 23. Bald-head. It is not known whether Eliseus was really bald, or only wore his hair short, like the priests of the Lord, and the monks at present. It may also be a term of reproach, of which the emperors Julius Cæsar, Domitian, and Otho, were very sensible. Cæsar wore a crown of laurel, and Otho a sort of false hair, to hide this deformity. Sueton.

Quod summum forme decus est, perire capilli. Petronius. C.

VER. 24. Cursed them. This curse, which was followed by so visible a judgment of God, was not the effect of passion, or of a desire of revenging himself; but of zeal for religion, which was insulted by these boys, in the person of the prophet, and of a divine inspiration; God being determined to punish in this manner the inhabitants of Bethel, (the chief seat of the calf-worship) who had trained up their children in a prejudice against the true religion and its ministers. Ch.—The boys themselves were not so little as not to be aware of the insult they were offering to a minister of the God of Juda; and probably they acted thus out of hatred to him, at the instigation of their idolatrous parents. Sanc. C.—Lord. He called on him (M.) to revenge his own cause, (H.) "that the people might learn to take care of their souls, by the fear of death." S. Aug. D.

VER. 25. Carmel. To avoid the indignation of the populace, and to instruct his disciples.—Samaria. That he might be ready to give advice to the two kings, who were meditating an expedition against Moab. M.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Achab. Joram succeeded his brother. C. i. 17.

VER. 2. Baal. This happened after his victory over Moab, v. 13. C.—Salien thinks rather that Josaphat refused to assist him, except he would destroy what had been lately introduced by his parents, as the league with Achab had been blamed. See 2 Par. xix. 2. The golden calves were of an older standing, and could not be so easily taken from the people. M.—Joram was not so wicked as might have been expected. C.

VER. 4. Nourished. Heb. noked, a term which the Sept. leave untranslated, means lit. "marked" with some colour by the master.

Aut pecori signum, aut numeros impressit æervo. Georg. i.

Sheep, Sym. "large cattle."—Fleeces; it is commonly supposed every year. This mode of tribute was more usual than paying money. The Moabites were chiefly employed in feeding sheep and cattle; so that it is not wonderful that they should have such great numbers. Deiotarus is represented not only as "a noble Tetrarch, but also as a diligent husbandman and herdsman," pecuarius: (Cic.) which last is the idea which some attach to Mesa.

VER. 7. He enters cordially into this war, as he perceived that if Moab succeeded, Edom would follow the same plan. M. against him to battle. And he answered: I will come up: he that is mine, is thine: my people are thy people: and my horses, thy horses.

8 And he said: Which way shall we go up? But he answered: By the desert of Edom.

9 ^bSo the king of Israel, and the king of Juda, and the king of Edom, went, and they fetched a compass of seven days journey, and there was no water for the army, and for the beasts, that followed them.

10 And the king of Israel said: Alas, alas, alas, the Lord hath gathered us three kings together, to deliver us into the hands of Moab.

11 And Josaphat said: Is there not here a prophet of the Lord, that we may beseech the Lord by him? And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered: Here is Eliseus, the son of Saphat, who poured water on the hands of Elias.

12 And Josaphat said: The word of the Lord is with him. And the king of Israel, and Josaphat, king of Juda, and the king of Edom, went down to him.

13 And Eliseus said to the king of Israel: What have I to do with thee? go to the prophets of thy father, and thy mother. And the king of Israel said to him: Why hath the Lord gathered together these three kings, to deliver them into the hands of Moab?

14 And Eliseus said to him: As the Lord of hosts liveth, in whose sight I stand, if I did not reverence the face of Josaphat, king of Juda, I would not have hearkened to thee, nor looked on thee.

15 But now bring me hither a minstrel. And when the minstrel played, the hand of the Lord came upon him, and he said:

16 Thus saith the Lord: Make the channel of this torrent full of ditches.

^b A. M. 8109, A. C. 895.

VER. 8. Edom though more circuitous (C.) than to cross over the Jordan at Galgal, as the enemy might thus be taken unawares, (M.) and fresh recruits might be procured from the tributary king of Edom, v. 9. H. Yet the want of water made this road more dangerous.

VER. 11. Elias, a proverbial expression to denote that he waited upon him, though the prophet's rough manner of living would require but little attendance. So the Baptist speaks of untying our Saviour's shoes, Mat. iii. C.—Providence had sent Eliseus to attend the army (H.) contrary to his custom. C.

VER. 12. With him. I am content. H.—Others read with an interrogation, as if the reputation of Eliseus was not yet established. M.—Him: they go to his tent. No one ever supported the character of God's envoy, or shewed his authority over the most haughty, better than Eliseus. C.

VER. 13. Mother, whom thou supportest. This is not an order, but a sarcasm (H.) which the king deserved. C.—Christ said to Judas, what thou dost, do quickly, John xiii. 27. H.—With what liberty does the prophet speak to an impious king! shewing himself worthy to succeed Elias, and actuated by the like zeal for God.

VER. 14. Reverence, (erubescerem) "blush at," may imply a degree of censure at Josaphat's being again found in such bad company, v. 2. H.—Heb. "If I did not receive (C.) or regard the face." H.

VER. 15. Minstrel. The priests and Levites, who officiated in the temple, accompanied the army. Eliseus wants no profane music, (C.) but, by this request, shews his respect for the true religion, (H.) and by sounding forth the divine praises, in some of David's psalms, wishes to obtain of God the favour which was desired. Theodoret. M.—He had felt some emotion at the sight of Joram, and was sensible that God required a calm. C.—He dwells not in a violent wind, &c. 3 K. xix. 11. H.—The surprising effects of ancient music to calm the passions are well attested. 1 K. xvi. 17. By this means S. Francis was raised to the contemplation of heavenly things; and S. Augustine says of himself: "How I wept when I heard thy hymns and canticles, being greatly moved at the delightful harmony of thy church:" suavesonantis Ecclesie tue vocibus commotus acriter. Conf. ix. 6. de C. xiv. 24.—Upon him, so that he experienced that enthusiasm which shewed that he was actuated by the divine spirit, to speak with all the authority requisite. The pagans strove to imitate the true prophets, but the difference was very evident; no less than the spirit with which they were filled; the former were agitated in a furious manner; the latter were composed and majestic. C.

VER. 16. Ditches. It was then quite dry; the water which should come in the night, would both refresh the army, and bring on the ruin of the Moabites.

17 For thus saith the Lord: You shall not see wind, nor rain: and yet this channel shall be filled with waters, and you shall drink, you and your families, and your beasts.

18 And this is a small thing in the sight of the Lord: moreover, he will deliver, also, Moab into your hands.

19 And you shall destroy every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall cut down every fruitful tree, and shall stop up all the springs of waters, and every goodly field you shall cover with stones.

20 And it came to pass, in the morning, when the sacrifices used to be offered, that behold, water came by the way of Edom, and the country was filled with water.

21 And all the Moabites hearing that the kings were come up to fight against them, gathered together all that were girded with a belt upon them, and stood in the borders.

22 And they rose early in the morning, and the sun being now up, and shining upon the waters, the Moabites saw the waters over-against them red, like blood,

23 And they said: It is the blood of the sword: the kings have fought among themselves, and they have killed one another: go now, Moab, to the spoils.

24 And they went into the camp of Israel: but Israel, rising up, defeated Moab, who fled before them. And they being conquerors, went and smote Moab.

25 And they destroyed the cities: And they filled every goodly field, every man casting his stone: and they stopt up all the springs of waters: and cut down all the trees that bore fruit, so that brick walls only remained: and the city was beset by the slingers, and a great part thereof destroyed.

26 And when the king of Moab saw this, to wit, that the enemies had prevailed, he took with him seven hundred men that drew the sword, to break in upon the king of Edom: but they could not.

VER. 19. Tree. This was an exception from the general law; (Deut. xx. 19. C.) or it might only regard the land of Chanaan, which the Hebrews should occupy. M. W.—Stones, which had been gathered off into heaps. Isai. v. 1. Persius calls a field thus cleared, Exossatus ager; (C.) as if the bones were taken out. H.

VER. 20. Offered, at sun-rise, Ex. xxix. 38.—Water, produced miraculously, without any rain being seen; (v. 17. C.) though it might fall at a distance in Idumea. H.

VER. 21. Upon them. Heb. "and upward," both soldiers and those who were usually exempt from service.

VER. 22. Blood. The clouds have frequently a reddish colour at sun-rise, which would be reflected in the waters: the sand might also be red. As the Moabites knew that no water could be expected there at that season of the year, and as some examples had occurred of people turning their arms one against another in the night, (Judg. vii. 22. 1 K. xiv. 20.) they concluded that what they saw was blood. C.—God had also destined them for slaughter, (Abulens. q. 21.) and suffered their imagination and judgment to be deluded. H.

VER. 24. Moab. Heb. adds, "even in the country."

VER. 25. Brick walls. It was the proper name of the city of the Moabites. In Hebrew, Kir-Charaseth. Ch.—Isai. xv. and xvi. 7. It was also called Ar, or Arcopolis.—Remained. Heb. adds, "with the stones unmolested." They laid siege to it. H.—Slingers. Grotius would understand those who attended the machines designed to throw stones, &c. But the slingers kept off the enemy, while others undermined the walls. C.

VER. 26. Edom, hoping that he would favour their escape, or because that part seemed the weakest.

VER. 27. Wall, to Chamos, the idol of Moab; (M.) or to Moloc, to appease the wrath of the gods. Horrible blindness! The pagans believed, that the most precious thing ought to be sacrificed in very imminent dangers. Philo Biblius. ap Eus. præp. iv. 16.—The Phœnicians offered such victims to Saturn. Many devoted themselves to death for the safety of the Roman republic; and some were ready to do so, to preserve the lives of Caligula and Nero, before they had given proof of their evil dispositions. Sueton. xiv.—It is thought that Sennacherib intended to treat his two sons in this manner, if they had not prevented him. Abul. in 4 K. xix. 37.—Some imagine that Messa sacrificed his son to the God of Israel, in imitation of Abraham; (Joseph. Grot.) others, that he slew the 27 Then he took his eldest son, that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him for a burnt-offering upon the wall: and there was great indignation in Israel, and presently they departed from him, and returned into their own country.

CHAP. IV.

Miracles of Eliseus. He raiseth a dead child to life.

NOW a certain woman of the wives of the prophets, cried to Eliseus, saying: Thy servant, my husband, is dead, and thou knowest that thy servant was one that feared God, and behold the creditor is come to take away my two sons to serve him.

2 And Eliseus said to her: What wilt thou have me do for thee? Tell me, what hast thou in thy house? And she answered: I, thy handmaid, have nothing in my house but a little oil, to anoint me.

3 And he said to her: Go, borrow of all thy neighbours empty vessels, not a few.

4 And go in, and shut thy door, when thou art within, and thy sons: and pour out thereof into all those vessels: and when they are full, take them away.

5 So the woman went, and shut the door upon her, and upon her sons: they brought her the vessels, and she poured in.

6 And when the vessels were full, she said to her son: Bring me yet a vessel. And he answered: I have no more. And the oil stood.

7 And she came, and told the man of God. And he said: Go, sell the oil, and pay thy creditor: and thou and thy sons live of the rest.

8 And there was a day when Eliseus passed by Sunam: now there was a great woman there, who detained him to eat bread: and as he passed often that way, he turned into her house to eat bread.

9 And she said to her husband: I perceive that this is a holy man of God, who often passeth by us.

• A. M. 8109, A. C. 895.

son of the king of Edom, out of revenge. Kimchi, in Amos ii. 1.—The Heb. is ambiguous. Amama.—But interpreters generally believe, that the heir of Messa fell a victim (C.) to his father's mistaken zeal, or to his desire to make the enemy retire, when they saw him reduced to such a state of desperation. It had, at least, this effect. H.—Indignation, at such a cruel action. M.—Sept. "there was great repentance" and sorrow. The text may also imply, that God was displeased at Israel for pushing the king to such an extremity; or, they became an object of horror to the surrounding nations. C.—The first explanation seems the best; as the Israelites thought the king had been sufficiently punished, and therefore retired. They had no reason to suspect that he would have given way to such madness, nor were they to blame for it. H.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Prophets. Josephus (ix. 4.) intimates that this man was Abdias; (3 K. xviii. 13.) and the Rabbins pretend that Joram was the creditor. But these traditions are destitute of proof; and we know not that Abdias was a prophet. C.—Serve him, not as slaves, for the Hebrews were not thus to be sold, except they had committed some crime. Salien, A. C. 913. See Lev. xxv. 39.—But the condition of mercenaries was perhaps little different; (H.) and we find that people were sold for debt. Ex. xxi. 7. Isai. l. 1. The same practice seems to have continued till our Saviour's time. Matt. xviii. 25. Children were regarded as part of a person's property. The Romans, Athenians, and other nations, claimed the same right over them. Halicar. ii. p. 96. Plut. in Solon et Lucullus. The custom of selling children continued for a long time in our islands.

VER. 2. Anoint me, for delicacy or health. Matt. vi. 17. M.—To abstain from this unction, in the East, was a great mortification. 2 K. xiv. 2. Deut. xxviii. 40. Sanctius supposes, that the woman intended the oil to anoint her body for interment. Matt. xxvi. 12. Heb. anui, occurs no where else, and may signify a pot, or "skin of oil." The woman had nothing else. The original does not say what she intended to do with it. C.—She might use it for food: (3 K. xvii. 12.) but the Sept. agree with the Vulg. H.

VER. 6. Stood. The grace of God ceases to flow, when the soul is full of vanity. S. Bern.—Charity does not increase, when it bestows nothing. S. Aug. ser. 206. de Temp.

VER. 8. Sunam, the birth-place of the beautiful virgin Abisag, (3 K. i. 3.) at the foot of Thabor, (C.) and not above a mile from Carmel, v. 23. T.—Great woman, "renowned for piety" (Arab.) and riches, v. 13. T. M.—"Fearing sin."

10 Let us, therefore, make him a little chamber, and put a little bed in it for him, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick, that when he cometh to us he may abide there.

11 Now, there was a certain day, when he came, and turned into the chamber, and rested there.

12 And he said to Giezi, his servant: Call this Sunamitess. And when he had called her, and she stood before him, 13 He said to his servant: Say to her: Behold, thou hast diligently served us in all things; what wilt thou have me to do for thee? Hast thou any business, and wilt thou, that I speak to the king, or to the general of the army? And she answered: I dwell in the midst of my own people.

14 And he said: What will she then that I do for her? And Giezi said: Do not ask, for she hath no son, and her husband is old.

15 Then he bid him call her. And when she was called, and stood before the door, 16 He said to her: At this time, and this same hour, if life be in company, thou shalt have a son in thy womb. But she answered: Do not, I beseech thee, my lord, thou man of God, do not lie to thy handmaid.

17 And the woman conceived, and brought forth a son in the time, and at the same hour that Eliseus had said.

18 And the child grew. And on a certain day, when he went out to his father to the reapers, 19 He said to his father: My head acheth, my head acheth. But he said to his servant: Take him and carry him to his mother.

20 And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, she sat him on her knees, until noon, and then he died.

• A. M. 3110.

Chal. This was true greatness! H.—Eliseus often passed by her house, when he went to visit the colleges at Bethel, Jericho, &c. M.

VER. 10. Chamber. Heb. adds, "on the wall," (H.) or surrounded "with walls," at the top of the house, where strangers usually lodged. C.—After being entertained the first day with the family, they might retire, and live, as if they were at home; some presents being sent to them daily, at least among the Greeks of rank. Vitruv. vi. 10.—The apartment of Eliseus might be separate from the house, that he might be less distracted in his meditations. M. Vatable. —Candlestick, on which many lamps, or even wood, might burn. Exod. xxv. 27. C.

VER. 13. He said, or "he had said;" (Junius and Piscator) so that we may include this and the following verse within a parenthesis, as alluding to what had passed before; (C.) unless the woman, out of modesty, did not come into the chamber of the prophet, who addressed her by an interpreter, (M.) or servant. H.—Army. Eliseus had acquired great influence with Joram, in the war with Moab. C.—The ancient canons exhort bishops to present the petitions of the poor to the prince. Grotius.—People. I have nothing to fear, (H.) and am not in want. T.—I have no quarrel with any person. C.—I am of too mean a condition to have any thing to do at court. Abul.

VER. 14. No son. The desire of one was very natural, particularly to people in good circumstances (M.) and of the Hebrew nation. H.

VER. 16. Womb. Heb. "At this season, according to the time of life, (H. or of a woman with child, M.) thou shalt embrace a son" in thy arms. H. See Gen. xviii. 10. C.—If is added by S. Jerom, agreeably to an usual form of speaking. M.—The prophet assures the woman, that she will not only live, but also bear a son, and nurse him.—Lie, deceive, (v. 28. H.) or flatter me with vain hopes. C. She might think that the prophet was not actually inspired. M.—Through joy, she could hardly believe. See Luke xxiv. 41. H.

VER. 19. Carry. This interpretation suits with the occasion, and is conformable to the Sept. and Chal. M.—Lit. "conduct him," but he was sick and little. H.

VER. 21. Bed, esteeming it as a relic, (H.) or wishing to excite the man of God to pray for her child, and to conceal its death from her husband. M.

VER. 23. Moan, a day of devotion, (Num. x. 10. C.) or probably of obligation, like the sabbath, on which no long journey could be undertaken, (T. v. 8.) unless for the sake of piety, (Ex. xxvi. 8.) as Sunam is a place six or seven leagues, (C.) or eight hours' walk from Carmel. Adrichom. M.—Piety was not so far decayed in Israel but many fervent souls still went to hear the prophets.

21 And she went up, and laid him upon the bed of the man of God, and shut the door: and going out, 22 She called her husband, and said: Send with me, I beseech thee, one of thy servants, and an ass, that I may run to the man of God, and come again.

23 And he said to her: Why dost thou go to him? to-day is neither new moon nor sabbath. She answered: I will go.

24 And she saddled an ass, and commanded her servant: Drive, and make haste, make no stay in going: And do that which I bid thee.

25 So she went forward, and came to the man of God, to Mount Carmel: and when the man of God saw her coming towards, he said to Giezi, his servant: Behold that Sunamitess.

26 Go, therefore, to meet her, and say to her: Is all well with thee, and with thy husband, and with thy son? And she answered: Well.

27 And when she came to the man of God, to the mount, she caught hold on his feet: and Giezi came to remove her. And the man of God said: Let her alone, for her soul is in anguish, and the Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me.

28 And she said to him: Did I ask a son of my lord? did I not say to thee: Do not deceive me?

29 Then he said to Giezi: Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thy hand, and go. If any man meet thee, salute him not: and if any man salute thee, answer him not: and lay my staff upon the face of the child.

30 But the mother of the child said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. He arose, therefore, and followed her.

31 But Giezi was gone before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child, and there was no voice

C. It seems this woman had often made such journeys. M.—Go. Heb. "peace." Prot. "it shall be well:" let me depart. She is unwilling to reveal the reason of her journey; but her husband was so well convinced of her virtue, that he placed no obstacle in her way. Perhaps he might partly guess what was the matter, as he had sent the child home sick, and saw his wife so desirous to visit the prophet. H.

VER. 24. And do. Heb. "unless I bid thee." Some translate, "urge me not to get up, unless," &c. Chal. Arab. &c. They suppose that she went on foot, and that the ass was designed for Eliseus. Vatab.

VER. 26. Well. She declines mentioning what she wanted to the servant, in order that she might speak to the prophet in person. M.—She might also rationally hope that the child was well in another world. H.

VER. 27. Her. Being aware of the extreme circumspection and modesty of his master.—Told me. Hence it appears that the prophets were not inspired at all times, 2 K. vii. 3. "that they might be sensible that what they had was a gift of God." S. Greg. hom. in 11 Ezech.

VER. 28. A son. Better had it been for me not to have become a mother, than to be so soon deprived of my child. M.

VER. 29. Salute him not. He that is sent to raise to life the sinner spiritually dead, must not suffer himself to be called off, or diverted from his enterprise, by the salutations or ceremonies of the world. Ch.—So must the preachers of the gospel diligently fulfil their important office. Luke x. 4. S. Greg. hom. 17. Urbanity is not reprehended; but no human transaction ought to impede what is divine. S. Amb. ib. In ancient comedies, slaves are always represented in a hurry. The Jews will not salute any person when they are going to their synagogues, for fear of being distracted in their devotions. C.—Eliseus requires the utmost expedition, that the favour might be the greater, Qui cito dat, bis dat. M.—He would also prevent his servant from telling any one what he was about, that he might not be touched with vanity, and thus hinder the miracle, which some think was nevertheless the case. R. Salomon. Theod. q. 17. T.

VER. 31. The child is not risen. By the staff of Eliseus is represented the rod of Moses, or the old law, which was incapable of restoring life to mankind, then dead by sin. It was necessary that Christ himself should come in our flesh, to restore us to life again. In this, Eliseus, as a figure of Christ, behoved to go in person to restore the dead child to life. Ch.—S. Aug. (a. Faust. xii. 35.) shews that many like things recorded in the Old Testament are figures of the New. W.—Many of the fathers observe, that this miracle was intended to shew the necessity of the Incarnation to redeem lost man. The staff did not nor sense: and he returned to meet him, and told him, saying: The child is not risen.

32 Eliseus, therefore, went into the house, and behold the child lay dead on his bed:

33 And going in, he shut the door upon him, and upon the child, and prayed to the Lord.

34 And he went up, and lay upon the child: and put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands: and he bowed himself upon him, and the child's flesh grew warm.

35 Then he returned and walked in the house, once to and fro: and he went up, and lay upon him: and the child gaped seven times, and opened his eyes.

36 And he called Giezi, and said to him: Call this Sunamitess. And she being called, went in to him: and he said: Take up thy son.

37 She came and fell at his feet, and worshipped upon the ground: and took up her son, and went out.

38 And Eliseus returned to Galgal, and there was a famine in the land, and the sons of the prophets dwelt before him: And he said to one of his servants: Set on the great pot, and boil pottage for the sons of the prophets.

39 And one went out into the field to gather wild herbs: and he found something like a wild vine, and gathered of it wild gourds of the field, and filled his mantle, and coming back, he shred them into the pot of pottage; for he knew not what it was.

40 And they poured it out for their companions to eat: and when they had tasted of the pottage, they cried out, saying: Death is in the pot, O man of God. And they could not eat thereof.

41 But he said: Bring some meal. And when they had brought it, he cast it into the pot, and said: Pour out for the people, that they may eat. And there was now no bitterness in the pot.

42 And a certain man came from Baalsalisa, bringing to the man of God, bread of the first-fruits, twenty loaves of barley, and new corn in his scrip. And he said: Give to the people, that they may eat.

43 And his servant answered him: How much is this, that I should set it before a hundred men? He said again: Give to the people, that they may eat: for thus saith the Lord: They shall eat, and there shall be left.

44 So he set it before them: and they ate, and there was left, according to the word of the Lord.

CHAP. V.

Naaman, the Syrian, is cleansed of his leprosy. He professeth his belief in one God, promising to serve him. Giezi taketh gifts of Naaman, and is struck with leprosy.

NAAMAN, general of the army, of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honourable: for by him the Lord gave deliverance to Syria: and he was a valiant man, and rich, but a leper.

2 Now there had gone out robbers from Syria, and had led away captive out of the land of Israel, a little maid, and she waited upon Naaman's wife.

3 And she said to her mistress: I wish my master had been with the prophet that is in Samaria: he would certainly have healed him of the leprosy which he hath.

4 Then Naaman went in to his lord, and told him, saying: Thus and thus said the girl from the land of Israel.

5 And the king of Syria said to him: Go; and I will send a letter to the king of Israel. And he departed, and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment;

6 And brought the letter to the king of Israel, in these words: When thou shalt receive this letter, know that I have sent to thee Naaman, my servant, that thou mayst heal him of his leprosy.

7 And when the king of Israel had read the letter, he rent his garments, and said: Am I God, to be able to kill and give life, that this man hath sent to me to heal a man of his leprosy? mark, and see how he seeketh occasions against me.

therefore restore life. Some lay the blame on Giezi; others on the woman, who required the prophet to come in person; and others suppose that Eliseus followed herein his own spirit. But all this is destitute of proof. C.—He might alter his mind (T.) at the request of the woman, and to imitate Elias; (3 K. xvii. 21.) all by God's direction. H.—He had before trusted that God would perform the miracle by means of the staff, as he did formerly by the rod of Moses, or by the mantle of Elias. M.

VER. 34. Warm. Arab. adds, "by his breath," as when God breathed a soul into Adam. Theodor. q. 18.—Some Greek interpreters have, "he breathed upon him," &c.

VER. 35. Upon him. Sept. "he breathed," &c. C.—Other copies, (Alex. and Vat.) "he bent down upon the child seven times, and the child opened his eyes."—Gaped. Prot. "sneezed;" (H.) in which interpretation, Junius, Mont. &c. agree. Arab. "he turned his eyes about seven times." Others, "he trembled," (C.) or sighed; (M.) or Eliseus "clasped him in his arms," &c. The child died of a headache; (v. 19) and sneezing is accounted good for alleviating the pain. Sternutamenta capitis gravedinem emendunt. Pliny xxviii. 6. C.

VER. 37. Ground. To honour the saint, who had done her such a kindness. M.

VER. 38. Galgal, where he had been often before.—Dwelt. Heb. "sat," like disciples attending to the instructions of their master. Acts xxii. 3. C.—To one, &c. Heb. and Sept. "to his servant," Giezi. M.—Eliseus provided for the temporal as well as for the spiritual wants of his followers. H.—The famine had been sent by God, to punish the idolatry of the people. C. viii. 1. M.

VER. 39. Wild herbs. Heb. oroth. Sept. apud, may denote any thing that could be "gathered."—Gourds: colocynthis. They resembled cucumbers; but were so bitter, that they were styled, "the gall of the earth." Vallesius, (Phil. c. 36.) who observes, that a small quantity may cause death, (c. 37) and that the remedy used by the prophet was supernatural; though Lemnius (c. 7) asserts, that the mixture of barley-flour would take away the bitterness. T.—It has, in effect, that tendency; but the hand of God must still be acknowledged. C.

VER. 40. Death, poison &c. Matthiæ accounts this fruit poisonous.

VER. 42. Baalsalisa, 15 miles south of Diospolis, and to the north of Jerusalem. C.—His scrip. Heb. betsiklono. Prot. "in the husk thereof." Carniel, means a greenish ear of corn, (H.) which might be rubbed in the hand, and so eaten. C.

VER. 43. Men. The disciples of Christ found the like difficulty. Jo. vi. 9. M.—God multiplied the provisions for these 100 men, (C.) living in the community at Galgal. H.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. King, Benadad, who had defeated Achab, and was slain by Hazael; (C. viii. T.) or, according to Salien, Hazael was already king. M.—Josephus passes over this history. It is not known for what reason, (C.) unless he was staggered at the petition of Naaman, v. 18. 19. H.—Syria. The Rabbins say, by killing Achab. 3 K. xxii. 34. But their authority is very small; (H.) and he might signalize himself on many other occasions.—Leper. This malady did not exclude him from court. The Hebrews allowed such to appear in public, till the priests had declared them unclean; and other nations viewed the leprosy with less horror.

VER. 2. Robbers; soldiers. T. 2 K. iv. 2.—Such invaded the dominions of Joachin. C. xxiv. 2. Irruptions of this nature were then very common, (see Judg. xi. 3. Job i. 15.) and regarded as noble military exploits. When the Greeks first became acquainted with navigation, they exercised themselves in this manner; (Thucyd. 1.) and the Germans allowed their citizens to take from other people. Juventus exercenda ac desidia minuenda causa. Cæsar. Bel. Gal. vi. Those who had been plundered, were allowed to redeem their goods Strabo xi.—The Arabs still maintain their right to live upon their neighbours. C.—The Christian religion has introduced more gentle manners.—Maid. It seems, however, she was well informed of the miraculous powers and goodness of Eliseus. H.

VER. 5. Raiment; the tunic and the cloak, (C.) of a finer sort. T.

VER. 7. Leprosy. The cure was deemed very difficult; as it generally kept gaining ground, and destroyed the constitution. See Num. xii. 12. Isai. liii. 4. C.—Me. The letter was, in effect, written in a haughty style, (M.) and the king might naturally infer that war would be the consequence. H.

8 And when Eliseus, the man of God, had heard this, to wit, that the king of Israel had rent his garments, he sent to him, saying: Why hast thou rent thy garments? let him come to me, and let him know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9 So Naaman came with his horses and chariots, and stood at the door of the house of Eliseus:

10 And Eliseus sent a messenger to him, saying: Go, and wash seven times in the Jordan, and thy flesh shall recover health, and thou shalt be clean.

11 Naaman was angry, and went away, saying: I thought he would have come out to me, and standing, would have invoked the name of the Lord, his God, and touched with his hand the place of the leprosy, and healed me.

12 Are not the Abana, and the Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel, that I may wash in them, and be made clean? So as he turned, and was going away with indignation, 13 His servants came to him, and said to him: Father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, surely thou shouldst have done it: how much rather what he now hath said to thee: Wash, and thou shalt be clean?

14 *Then he went down, and washed in the Jordan

* Luke iv. 27.

VER. 8. Israel; able to perform much greater wonders, by God's assistance. M.

VER. 10. Messenger. Eliseus supports the dignity of God's envoy, and shews the general that his cure was to be attributed, not to the presence of the prophet, but to the will and goodness of God.

VER. 12. Pharpar. Benjamin (p. 58) informs us that the former river serves to water the city, and the second the surrounding gardens. Maundrell could discover no vestiges of these names in Syria, but he describes the Barrady, which supplies Damascus with abundance of water. Stephanus calls it Bardine; and others, the Chrysorroas. The Orontes, which is supposed to be one of these rivers, flows by Antioch into the Mediterranean sea. C.

VER. 13. Father; a title given to masters, kings, &c. The Roman senators were styled, "conscrip fathers;" and Homer calls kings "the fathers and shepherds of the people." See Gen. xiv. 8. C.—Masters may often derive benefit from the observations of their servants, as Naaman did repeatedly, v. 2. This may serve to correct their pride. H.—Clean. The patient ought not to prescribe rules to his physician. M.—How justly might these words be addressed to delicate penitents! H.

VER. 14. Clean. If bathing seven times in the Jordan had been an infallible remedy, there would soon have been no lepers in the land; and our Saviour plainly intimates that the cure was miraculous. Luke iv. 27. The leprosy of Naaman, though inveterate, was cured in an instant. To bathe in a rapid stream, is allowed to be very salutary for removing the diseases of the skin. C. Vales. 38.—The fathers discover in this miracle, a figure of the Gentiles called to the faith by the Synagogue, which is in servitude. Gal. iv. 26. Baptism cleanses us from all the seven capital sins, (Tert. c. Marc. 4.) so that no vestiges remain. S. Amb. &c. C.

VER. 15. A blessing. A present, (Ch.) accompanied with wishes of happiness, on both sides. We have seen that the prophets generally received such presents. But Eliseus acts with more reserve in regard of this stranger, as S. Paul did towards the new converts; though he received some sustenance from those, who would be less in danger of suspecting that he was actuated by selfish views in preaching the gospel. 2 Cor. x. 7. and xii. 14. Matt. x. 8. C.—They abstained from every appearance of evil, (H.) though they might lawfully have accepted such presents. Eliseus wished to convince Naaman that God's grace was not to be purchased, and to leave a lesson of moderation to future teachers. M.

VER. 17. Mules; (burdonum) the offspring of a horse and of an ass. M.—Earth, to make brick for an altar, or to inclose within a box of brass, as was done in the altar of holocausts in the desert; or, in fine, to sprinkle on some clean place, where an altar might be erected, in honour of the true God. He does not inquire what ceremonies were used in the land of Israel, (C.) as he was not enrolled by circumcision, among the Hebrews, as an observer of their law; but intended to serve God, like Job, and many other righteous Gentiles, who kept themselves clear of idolatry, and observed the ancient patriarchal religion with a clean heart. H.—As God had sanctified the land by the observance of his true religion, Naaman rightly judged that it was fitter for an altar than the earth of his own country. W.—The Jews had a particular veneration for it. Ps. ci. 15. They built a synagogue in Persia, with earth and stones taken from Jerusalem. Benjamin.—Christians sometimes carried away the same earth. S. Aug. de C. xlii. 8. Turon. i. 7.—The Donatists had a sovereign respect for it; (S. Aug. ep. 62.) and it is said that S. Helena brought a great quantity to the church of the Holy Cross of Jerusalem, at Rome. Mabillon, Itin. p. 187. C.—Lord. Out of seven times, according to the word of the man of God; and his flesh was restored, like the flesh of a little child: and he was made clean.

15 And returning to the man of God, with all his train, he came, and stood before him, and said: In truth, I know there is no other God, in all the earth, but only in Israel: I beseech thee, therefore, take a blessing of thy servant.

16 But he answered: As the Lord liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none. And when he pressed him, he still refused.

17 And Naaman said: As thou wilt: but I beseech thee, grant to me, thy servant, to take from hence two mules' burden of earth: for thy servant will not henceforth offer holocaust, or victim, to other gods, but to the Lord.

18 But there is only this, for which thou shalt entreat the Lord for thy servant; when my master goeth into the temple of Remmon, to worship there, and he leaneth on my hand: if I bow down in the temple of Remmon, when he boweth down in the same place, that the Lord pardon me, thy servant, for this thing.

19 And he said to him: Go in peace. So he departed from him, in the spring time of the earth.

20 But Giezi, the servant of the man of God, said: My master hath spared Naaman, this Syrian, in not re-

Palestine, the Gentiles were not prohibited to offer sacrifice to the true God any where; nor were they under any obligation of following the law of Moses. Abulens. T.

VER. 18. Remmon, denotes "a pomegranate," or something "elevated," and is probably an epithet of the sun, the chief idol of the Syrians, which was also styled Adad, "one," as both are united. Zach. xii. 11.—Rempham is probably the same divinity. Acts vii. 43. Sept. here read, Remman. Hesychius explains Ramas, "the highest god." Selden thinks the Eliou of the Phenicians is understood; Grotius, that Saturn, the highest of the planets, is meant. Serarius declares for Venus, to whom pomegranates were sacred; and P. Martyr for Juno, who held one of these apples in her hand. Pausan. in Corinth.—Remmon occurs no where else.—Hand. This was an honour of the chief favourite. C. vii. 2 C.—Thing. He does not ask leave to commit sin, which would be absurd; though Protestants are not ashamed to accuse the Catholic Church, as if her "indulgences" were pardons for sins to come; though they be in reality no pardon for sin at all, but only a remission of temporal punishment, after the sin has been remitted by penance. Why do they not manfully attack what we really profess to believe!—When he. Heb. "when I bow," &c. H.

VER. 19. Go in peace. What the prophet here allowed, was not an outward conformity to an idolatrous worship, but only a service which by his office he owed to his master; who, on all public occasions, leaned on him: so that his bowing down when his master bowed himself down, was not in effect adoring the idols; nor was it so understood by the standers by, (since he publicly professed himself a worshipper of the only true and living God) but it was no more than doing a civil office to the king, his master, whose leaning upon him obliged him to bow at the same time that he bowed. Ch.—Some assert that the prophet does not even authorize this civil assistance in the temple of idols, but simply tells Naaman to go in peace, and to think no more of his former religion; that he will beseech the Lord not to suffer him to be exposed to the danger. Jun. and Piscat. C.—Some formerly pleaded this example, to excuse their occasional conformity in going to the Protestant churches, as the law required. But the case was very different. Greater perfection is required in the new law. They had not to act in the capacity of Naaman; and their attendance was considered as a profession of a false religion. Their directors loudly condemned the practice. They ought rather to have imitated Eleazar, &c. who refused to eat swine's flesh. 2 Mac. vi. and vii. W.—Though the king intended to adore the idol, Naaman referred his worship to God alone. Bristow, Mot. 23. Theodoret, c. 19 and a Greek interp.—The Heb. term signifies, either to adore mentally, or to bend down; which latter is the sense applicable to Naaman. Cajet. Amama.—His "request must certainly refer to the time past, and not to that to come," as if he begged an indulgence in idolatry, or of countenancing his master's idol worship, by his presence." Button. Diet.—The Jews foolishly pretend (C.) that "the proselyte of dwelling," like Naaman, might return to the service of idols, in his own country, without its being imputed to him. Seld. Jur. ii. 11. Maimon.—The conduct of the Syrian convert, whether past or future, undoubtedly filled him with alarm. If he considered the danger of a merely civil attendance upon the king, in an idolatrous temple, we cannot condemn him of idle scrupulosity; (H.) since many have found a difficulty in admitting the lawfulness of such a practice, and have even blamed both Naaman and the prophet. Greg. de Valentia, &c. ep. A. Lapida. C.—But if the practice was irreprehensible, as most interpreters assert, the answer of Eliseus might give this assurance to Naaman and inform him that he need be under no farther apprehensions on that account ceiving of him that which he brought: as the Lord liveth, I will run after him, and take something of him.

21 And Giezi followed after Naaman: and when he saw him running after him, he leapt down from his chariot to meet him, and said: Is all well?

22 And he said: All is well: my master hath sent me to thee, saying: Just now there are come to me from Mount Ephraim, two young men of the sons of the prophets: give them a talent of silver, and two changes of garments.

23 And Naaman said: It is better that thou take two talents. And he forced him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, and two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants, and they carried them before him.

24 And when he was come, and now it was the evening, he took them from their hands, and laid them up in the house, and sent the men away, and they departed.

25 But he went in, and stood before his master. And Eliseus said: Whence comest thou, Giezi? He answered: Thy servant went no whither.

26 But he said: Was not my heart present, when the man turned back, from his chariot, to meet thee? So now thou hast received money, and received garments, to buy olive-yards and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and maid-servants.

27 But the leprosy of Naaman, shall also stick to thee, and to thy seed for ever. And he went out from him a leper, as white as snow.

CHAP. VI.

Eliseus maketh iron to swim upon the water: he leadeth the Syrians, that were sent to apprehend him, into Samaria, where their eyes being opened, they are courteously entertained. The Syrians besiege Samaria: the famine there causeth a woman to eat her own child. Upon which the king commandeth Eliseus to be put to death.

AND the sons of the prophets said to Eliseus: *Behold, the place where we dwell with thee is too straight for us.

* A. M. 3115.

Go in peace. These words do not expressly solve the difficulty; but the mode in which they were uttered might intimate, either that the general would be no longer under that embarrassment, (as we do not read that he ever attended the king of Syria into the temple afterwards) or that God had forgiven his former offences, and particularly the scandalous idolatry which now gave him so much pain. The original, v. 18, which is generally translated in the present or future, (H.) may be better rendered in the past tense, as the Chal. has it. "In this thing the Lord pardon thy servant. My master going into the temple of Remmon to worship there, and leaning upon my hand, and I worshipped in the temple of Remmon, when I did worship in the temple of Remmon, that the Lord pardon," &c. S. Jerom and the Sept. seem to have read more correctly, when he, &c. We may also render it in the present tense, "and I worship," or, "am wont to adore;" not that he meant to prevaricate any longer. The Syr. and Arab. read with an interrogation. "When I shall adore. . . (C. or bow down, H.) will the Lord pardon me?" But this rather increases the difficulty. C.—We may therefore conclude either that Naaman had no decision, or that he had leave to serve his master, (H.) in a civil capacity even in the temple; (M. T. Alex. 2 dis. 7. Sanctus, &c.) or, that he obtained pardon for his past transgressions. Bochart, C. &c.—Earth, as the expression is rendered Gen. xxxv. 16, though here it is lit. "at the chosen season;" electio, not verno. The sense is the same. Gibbath, untranslated by the Sept. may denote a certain space, or village; (H.) "a furrow," of 240 feet long, and half that breadth; (C.) "a mile;" (Chal. Pagnin) or a portion of time allotted by the law, about a quarter of an hour, during which a mile, or sabbath-day's journey, might be performed. T.—Prot. "a little way."

VER. 20. Liveth. How unnecessary was this oath! But the Simoniac has no regard for any thing but money. H.

VER. 23. Him. The weight must have been considerable, (6000 sicles, v. 26. Ex. xxxviii. 25. H.) otherwise Giezi would have preferred carrying them himself, that his master might not know. C.—He had pretended a reluctance to take more than one talent, not to swerve from his master's injunctions. M.

VER. 24. Evening. Sept. Syr. &c. seems to have read supot, instead of the present Heb. hophel, "eminence," (C.) Prot. "tower," (H.) at or near Samaria; when Giezi thought proper to take the burden himself to prevent detection.

2 Let us go as far as the Jordan, and take out of the wood every man a piece of timber, that we may build us there a place to dwell in. And he said: Go.

3 And one of them said: But come thou also with thy servants. He answered: I will come.

4 So he went with them. And when they were come to the Jordan, they cut down wood.

5 And it happened, as one was felling some timber, that the head of the ax fell into the water: and he cried out, and said: Alas, alas, alas, my lord, for this same was borrowed.

6 And the man of God said: Where did it fall? and he shewed him the place: Then he cut off a piece of wood, and cast it in thither: and the iron swam.

7 And he said: Take it up. And he put out his hand, and took it.

8 And the king of Syria warred against Israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying: In such and such a place, let us lay an ambush.

9 And the man of God sent to the king of Israel, saying: Beware that thou pass not to such a place: for the Syrians are there in ambush.

10 And the king of Israel, sent to the place which the man of God had told him, and prevented him, and looked well to himself there not once nor twice.

11 And the heart of the king of Syria, was troubled for this thing. And calling together his servants, he said: Why do you not tell me who it is that betrays me to the king of Israel?

12 And one of his servants said: No one, my lord, O king: but Eliseus, the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel all the words, that thou speakest in thy privy chamber.

13 And he said to them: Go, and see where he is: that I may send and take him. And they told him: saying: Behold he is in Dothan.

14 *Therefore, he sent thither horses, and chariots,

* A. M. 3116.

Eliseus would hardly dismiss the Syrians, when the night was so near at hand. C.—It might however be found more eligible to travel in the evening, (H.) as it was now the spring or summer season, (T.) or at least warm, v. 10. H.

VER. 26. Present is not expressed in Heb. but must be understood. Prot. "Went not mine heart with thee." II.—God has revealed the whole transaction to me. M.—Heart in Scripture, often denotes the spirit or soul. H.

VER. 27. For ever. Not perhaps to those who might be already born, unless they were accomplices in the crime. The leprosy is hereditary. Giezi was punished for simony, in selling the miracle, as well as for lying and disobedience. C.—He might also have given occasion to Naaman to judge ill of his master; as the false prophets were noted for such avarice. Mic. iii. 11. But Eliseus would probably take care to give him better information. T.—He did not require his servant to give up what he had unjustly received, as the general had made over the property to him; and he thought proper to leave it in the hands of Giezi, to indemnify him for past services, and that he might have wherewith to support himself, as he now dismissed him from his company. Salien, A. C. 903.—Snow, and therefore more incurable. T.—See Lev. xiii. C.—"All the covetous and misers, together with their riches, possess the leprosy of Giezi: thesaurum criminum congregarunt." S. Amb. Giezi prefigured Judas, the false apostle of Christ, and all those who buy or sell spiritual things. By their avarice, they procure infamy in this world, and damnation in the next. S. Aug. ser. 208, de Temp. W.

CHAP. VI. VER. 2. Timber. Heb. and Sept. "a beam." Salien supposes that these prophets resided at Galgal. M.

VER. 5. Borrowed. He was grieved because he could not repair the loss. W.

VER. 6. Swam. So; Demersam fluvio relevavit virga securim. Tert. c. Marc. The Fathers here remark a figure of the cross of Jesus Christ; the virtue of which, in baptism, reclaims the hardened sinner from the ways of vanity. Tert. c. Judæos xiii. C.—Those who would explain the reason of every miracle, may here inform the infidel why recourse was had to a supernatural interference, in a matter apparently of such a trifling nature. They ask why God should cause the eyes of various pictures in Italy to move on a late occasion; and because they cannot assign a satisfactory reason, they boldly assert that all was an imand the strength of an army: and they came by night, and beset the city.

15 And the servant of the man of God, rising early, went out, and saw an army round about the city, and horses and chariots: and he told him, saying: Alas, alas, my lord, what shall we do?

16 But he answered: Fear not: for there are more with us than with them.

17 And Eliseus prayed, and said: Lord, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw: and behold, the mountain was full of horses, and chariots of fire round about Eliseus.

18 And the enemies came down to him: but Eliseus prayed to the Lord, saying: Strike, I beseech thee, this people with blindness: and the Lord struck them with blindness, according to the word of Eliseus.

19 And Eliseus said to them: This is not the way, neither is this the city: follow me, and I will shew you the man whom you seek. So he led them into Samaria.

20 And when they were come into Samaria, Eliseus said: Lord, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw themselves to be in the midst of Samaria.

21 And the king of Israel said to Eliseus, when he saw them: My father, shall I kill them?

22 And he said: Thou shalt not kill them: for thou didst not take them with thy sword, or thy bow, that thou mayst kill them: but set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master.

23 And a great provision of meats was set before them, and they ate and drank; and he let them go: and they went away to their master: and the robbers of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

24 *And it came to pass, after these things, that Benadad, king of Syria, gathered together all his army, and went up and besieged Samaria.

25 And there was a great famine in Samaria: and so long did the siege continue, till the head of an ass was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of pigeons' dung, for five pieces of silver.

26 And as the king of Israel was passing by the wall, a certain woman cried out to him, saying: Save me, my lord, O king.

27 And he said: If the Lord doth not save thee: how can I save thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the wine-press? And the king said to her: What aileth thee? And she answered:

28 This woman said to me: Give thy son, that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow.

29 So we boiled my son, and eat him. And I said to her on the next day: Give thy son, that we may eat him. And she hath hid her son.

30 When the king heard this, he rent his garments, and passed by upon the wall. And all the people saw the hair-cloth which he wore within next to his flesh.

31 And the king said: May God do so and so to me, posture. But this mode of argumentation is very delusive, if not impious. "Who hath been his (God's) counsellor?" Rom. xi. 34. All that we have to do is to believe, when the proofs are of such a nature as to require our rational assent.

* A. M. 3117.

VER. 8. And such, which the king would mention. M.—The causes of this war are not known; but an ambitious prince always finds pretexts to cover his injustice. C.

VER. 10. Twice, but very frequently: so that the Syrian feared some treachery. H.

VER. 12. Chamber. Is it difficult therefore for the saints in heaven to hear our prayers! though they have not such long ears as Calvin ridicules. H.

VER. 13. Take him. Foolish attempt! as if the prophet could not foresee his own danger. Salien.—Dothan or Dothain, (Gen. xxxvii. 17.) twelve miles north of Samaria. (Eus. C.) Andrichomius says, in the tribe of Zabulon. M.

VER. 14. Of an, or, "of the army." To take one man was judged of such consequence; and Benadad feared lest the Israelites should rise up in his defence. H.

VER. 15. Servant, Giezi; as his leprosy is placed too soon. Salien. M.

VER. 17. Of fire. The angels assumed such a glorious and terrible appearance. One of them would have sufficed to destroy all the army of Syria; and thus the servant might be convinced how vain were all attempts against God's servants, Ps. cxliv. 19. Salien. A. C. 907. Jacob beheld such camps of angels, (Gen. xxxii. 1, 2.) and our Saviour speaks of the legions which he could have brought forward, Mat. xxvi. 53. C.

VER. 18. Blindness. The blindness here spoken of was of a particular kind, which hindered them from seeing the objects that were really before them; and represented other different objects to their imagination; so that they no longer perceived the city of Dothan, nor were able to know the person of Eliseus; but were easily led by him, whom they took to be another man, to Samaria. So that he truly told them; this is not the way, neither is this the city, &c. because he spoke with relation to the way, and to the city which was represented to them. Ch.—Stratagems in war are lawful. S. Chrys. &c. Grot. Jur. iii. 1. 17. The words of the prophet might be merely ironical.—Blindness, Sept. ἀσπασία, "not seeing" certain objects, while they could perceive others; as was the case of the men who sought Lot's door at Sodom; (Gen. xix. 11. C.) and the eyes of the disciples were held, that they might not know our Saviour. Eliseus had left his house, going towards Samaria to meet the soldiers; and when they asked him where the prophet dwelt, he answered truly, This, &c. For he was then near the royal city, and his abode was at Dothan. Salien. H.—The reprobate will thus acknowledge their error, when it is too late, at the last day.

VER. 22. For thou. Heb. "Dost thou kill, &c.?" If those who have surrendered themselves in battle be often spared, though they might be slain by the strict laws of war, how much less ought these men to be treated with such severity! C.—Sicut bellanti & resistenti violentia redditur: ita victo vel capto misericordia debetur. S. Aug. ep. 1. ad Bonif. Grot.—And water, all necessary provisions. W.—These men were suffered to live that they might relate the wonders of God. Theod. q. 20.

VER. 23. Meats. So the apostle orders us to treat our enemies, Rom. xii. 20. —The robbers, these soldiers, who were dismissed. H.—No more, (ultra) or, "no farther," (H.) during this war, or in small troops; but, a little later, Benadad came with all his forces to besiege Samaria. T.—He was enraged at Eliseus and Joram, as if they despised his power. Salien.

VER. 25. In Samaria. It had raged in all the country above three years, (Salien) and continued other four, C. viii. 1. The continuance of the siege added fresh horrors.—Pieces is not expressed in Heb.; a sicle is understood. H.—Lycran supposes that the whole ass was sold for about 88 crowns, (H.) or 130 livres; as we say commonly, "so much a head." But interpreters generally assert that the price of the head alone is given; which shews more forcibly the greatness of the famine. On other occasions the animal could not be eaten by the Jews. Artaxerxes was forced to kill his beasts of burden; and an ass's head was then sold for 60 drachms, or 25 livres. When Hannibal besieged Casilinum, a mouse (or rat) was sold for above 70, or for 200 denarii. Plin. viii. 57. V. Max. vii. 6, 8. —Cabe. Sufficient measure of corn for a man's daily sustenance. M.—The fourth part would be about a gill. H.—Dung. Bochart maintains that "chick-peas" are designated. The Arab. usen and kali, "pigeon or sparrows' dung," are real eatables. Those who suppose that the Samaritans bought the dung of pigeons to use as salt or for food, or to burn, or to manure the earth, &c. produce no satisfactory reasons; no more than the Rabbins, who pretend that the corn which they had picked up was taken from their crop. Tr. Megil. 3. and the Schol. History. Junius and Fuller would translate "belly," which is refuted by Bochart, Anim. T. ii. B. i. 7. Very disgusting things have often been used through excessive hunger, (Grot.) and some sort of birds' dung is said to fatten oxen and swine, Varro 38. Pliny xvii. 9.—But what nutriment can there be in that of pigeons, that people should go to buy it! C.—Houbigant understands a sort of peas to be meant. H.—The Hebrews called them kali when they were parched; and such food was very common. 2 K. xvii. 28. Bellon. ii. 53. and 99. C.

VER. 27. Save (salvat). Many ancient MSS. read salvet, conformably to the Heb. and Sept. as if the king cursed the woman: "Let not the Lord save thee," Joseph. ix. 4. Others place the stops differently: "He said, no: the Lord save thee." C.—He is the author of life. M.

VER. 29. Eat him. Strange cruelty! foretold Deut. xxviii. 53, and again verified at Jerusalem. Ezeq. v. 13.

VER. 30. Passed by, without punishing such a horrid crime, as he esteemed his own sins the occasion of it. M.—Flesh. Behold the advantage to be derived from afflictions! They make the most hardened enter into sentiments of humility and penance. C.—Abulensis thinks that God was pleased to cause the siege to be raised, to reward this act; as a similar one of Joram's father had merited a delay and mitigation of punishment, (H.) 3 K. xxi. 27. Salien.

VER. 31. Day. This was said in a fit of sudden passion, which may give us reason to conclude that the repentance was insincere, or of short duration. H.—The king supposed that Eliseus could remedy the evil: but God was not moved by his prayers to grant such a favour; till all were convinced that human aid was fruitless. C.—The prophet might have answered Joram in the words of and may he add more, if the head of Eliseus, the son of Saphat, shall stand on him this day.

32 But Eliseus sat in his house, and the ancients sat with him. So he sent a man before: and before that messenger came, he said to the ancients: Do you know that this son of a murderer hath sent to cut off my head? Look then when the messenger shall come, shut the door, and suffer him not to come in: for behold the sound of his master's feet is behind him.

33 While he was yet speaking to them, the messenger appeared, who was coming to him. And he said: Behold, so great an evil is from the Lord: what shall I look for more from the Lord?

CHAP. VII.

Eliseus prophesieth a great plenty, which presently ensueth upon the sudden flight of the Syrians; of which four lepers bring the news to the city. The incredulous nobleman is trod to death.

AND Eliseus said: Hear ye the word of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord: To-morrow, about this time, a bushel of fine flour shall be sold for a stater, and two bushels of barley for a stater, in the gate of Samaria.

2 Then one of the lords, upon whose hand the king leaned, answering the man of God, said: If the Lord should make flood-gates in heaven, can that possibly be, which thou sayest? And he said: Thou shalt see it with thy eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

3 Now there were four lepers, at the entering in of the gate: and they said one to another: What mean we, to stay here, till we die?

4 If we will enter into the city, we shall die with the famine: and if we will remain here, we must also die: come therefore, and let us run over to the camp of the Syrians. If they spare us, we shall live: but if they kill us, we shall but die.

5 So they arose in the evening, to go to the Syrian camp. And when they were come to the first part of the camp of the Syrians, they found no man there.

6 For the Lord had made them hear, in the camp of Syria, the noise of chariots, and of horses, and of a very great army: and they said one to another: Behold, the king of Israel hath hired against us the kings of

• A. M. 3119.

Elias, 3 K. xviii. 18. M.—Probably he had dissuaded the king from making peace. T.

VER. 32. Murderer. Ahab had slain Naboth, and Jezabel had destroyed the prophets. C.

VER. 33. And he, Joram, (M. &c.) after (H.) his messenger. E. Pisc.—What, &c. All is desperate; (C.) our miseries cannot increase. M.—I have nothing now to fear or to hope for. Salien.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. A stater. It is the same as a sicle or shekel. Ch.—As it is in Heb. and Sept.—Bushel, or “measure,” (H.) above 9 pints.—Gate, where the market place commonly was. C.

VER. 2. Lords. Heb. shalish, “an officer” of the first rank, Ex. xiv. 7. Sept. στρατάρχαι, which Josephus explains of one who “commanded a third part of the army.” C.—Flood-gates. If corn should fall with the same abundance as water does from the cataracts of the Nile; or, Heb. “if the Lord should make windows,” &c. to pour it down, (C.) could it possibly be so cheap? M.—Thereof. Thus his incredulity was punished, v. 17. Salien.—Reason must not pretend to reach the power of God, but ought to believe what he says. W.

VER. 3. Lepers. They were excluded from society, though the laws of religion were ill observed in Israel. The Rabbins say, these four were Giezi and his three sons. C.—But this is without foundation, (H.) as Giezi was not yet a leper. C. viii. 5.—Salien places that judgment two years later. H.

VER. 5. Evening. Heb. “twilight.”—First part, where the advanced guard should be, or the nearest tents.

VER. 6. Hethites. Sept. “Cheteteans.” Joseph. “the islands” of Cyprus, &c. He seems to have read Cethim in the text, as they peopled Cyprus. C.—See Jer. ii. 10. M.—These Hethites seem to have dwelt in the stony Arabia, (Judg. i. 26.)

the Hethites, and of the Egyptians; and they are come upon us.

7 Wherefore they arose, and fled away in the dark, and left their tents, and their horses and asses in the camp, and fled, desiring to save their lives.

8 So when these lepers were come to the beginning of the camp, they went into one tent, and eat and drank: and they took from thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went, and hid it: and they came again, and went into another tent, and carried from thence in like manner, and hid it.

9 Then they said one to another: We do not well: for this is a day of good tidings. If we hold our peace, and do not tell it till the morning, we shall be charged with a crime: come, let us go, and tell it in the king's court.

10 So they came to the gate of the city, and told them, saying: We went to the camp of the Syrians, and we found no man there, but horses, and asses tied, and the tents standing.

11 Then the guards of the gate went, and told it within in the king's palace.

12 And he arose in the night, and said to his servants: I tell you what the Syrians have done to us: They know that we suffer great famine, and therefore they are gone out of the camp, and lie hid in the fields, saying: When they come out of the city, we shall take them alive, and then we may get into the city.

13 And one of his servants answered: Let us take the five horses that are remaining in the city (because there are no more in the whole multitude of Israel, for the rest are consumed), and let us send and see.

14 They brought therefore two horses, and the king sent into the camp of the Syrians, saying: Go, and see.

15 And they went after them, as far as the Jordan: and behold, all the way was full of garments, and vessels, which the Syrians had cast away, in their fright, and the messengers returned, and told the king.

16 And the people going out, pillaged the camp of the Syrians: and a bushel of fine flour was sold for a stater, and two bushels of barley for a stater, according to the word of the Lord.

17 And the king appointed that lord on whose hand or in Syria. H.—Solomon had connexions with them, 3 K. x. 29. C.—Angels made the noise of a mighty army, and probably appeared, as they had done to Giezi. C. vi. 17. T.

VER. 9. Crime, and punished. Heb. “iniquity shall find us.” Citizens are bound to give notice of what may tend to the common good. C.—Court. Not in person, but by means of others. M.

VER. 10. Tied to the mangers, or rather by the hind legs, as it is still the custom in the East. Xenop. Anab. iii. Martyr legat. Babyl.

VER. 13. Consumed, for food. M.—Sept. “Let them take five of the horses left. Those which are left here, behold they are to all the remaining multitude of Israel, and let us send them.” They have read in a different manner from the present Heb. which has, “Let them take five of the horses there remaining; behold they are like all the multitude of Israel which is left; they are like all the multitude of Israel who are lost; let us send them.” Arab. “Let us send thither five horsemen who remain; if they escape, we shall look upon them as those Israelites who continue alive; if they perish, they will be numbered with the other Israelites who are dead.” Both horses and horsemen were dreadfully lean, and they could not expect a better fate than those already consumed by famine. C.—The truth of the report ought at least to be fully ascertained. By following the timid advice of the king no prospect of redress appeared. At last the king consented to send two horsemen.” H. Sept. v. 14. Jun. &c.

VER. 14. Horses. Heb. “chariot horses,” or two chariots with (each) two horses, as it was customary to go to war, and to travel on chariots. C.

VER. 17. Gate, to prevent confusion and accidents, (Josephus) or to guard against any return of the enemy. M.

he leaned, to stand at the gate: and the people trod upon him in the entrance of the gate; and he died, as the man of God had said, when the king came down to him.

18 And it came to pass, according to the word of the man of God, which he spoke to the king, when he said: Two bushels of barley shall be for a stater, and a bushel of fine flour for a stater, at this very time to-morrow, in the gate of Samaria.

19 When that lord answered the man of God, and said: Although the Lord should make flood-gates in heaven, could this come to pass which thou sayest? And he said to him: Thou shalt see it with thy eyes, and shalt not eat thereof.

20 And so it fell out to him, as it was foretold: and the people trod upon him in the gate, and he died.

CHAP. VIII.

After seven years famine foretold by Eliseus, the Sunamitess returning home, recovereth her lands and revenues. Eliseus foresheweth the death of Benadad, king of Syria, and the reign of Hazael. Joram's wicked reign in Juda. He dieth, and his son, Ochozias, succeedeth him.

AND Eliseus spoke to the woman, "whose son he had restored to life, saying: Arise, and go thou, and thy household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst find: for the Lord hath called a famine, and it shall come upon the land seven years.

2 And she arose, and did according to the word of the man of God: and going with her household, she sojourned in the land of the Philistines many days.

3 And when the seven years were ended, the woman returned out of the land of the Philistines, and she went forth to speak to the king for her house, and for her lands.

4 And the king talked with Giezi, the servant of the man of God, saying: Tell me all the great things that Eliseus hath done.

5 And when he was telling the king how he had raised one dead to life, the woman appeared, whose son he had restored to life, crying to the king for her house and her lands. And Giezi said: My lord, O king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom Eliseus raised to life.

6 And the king asked the woman: and she told

^a Supra iv. 37.—^b A. M. 8120.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Famine. God disposes of all things. C.—Famine, &c. are his executioners. D.—This dreadful visitation took place before the siege of Samaria, (Salien) and had even commenced when Eliseus raised the child to life; (C. iv. 38.) so that we might translate, "Eliseus had spoken," &c. C.

VER. 3. Lands, which others had seized. D.

VER. 4. Giezi was not yet infected; (Salien. M.) or if he was, (H.) the king spoke to him at a distance, overcoming his natural repugnance, in order to know some particulars of the life of Eliseus. C.—This he would more readily do, if Giezi had brought the glad tidings of plenty. T.—Providence ordered that he should be present at this time, that he might bear witness to the woman. C.

VER. 6. Restore. "Restituere est possessorem facere fructusque reddere." Caius. —Some think that the lands had been confiscated to the king, as being abandoned; or his authority was requisite, at least, to make the present occupiers give them up.

VER. 7. Damascus, the territory, (v. 8.) to announce the king's death, and to anoint Hazael, as God had ordered Elias, 3 K. xix. 15. C.—Sick, at the ill success of his late expedition. * Josephus. T.

VER. 9. Camels. It does not appear that Eliseus rejected these presents. M. —Thy son. The kings of Israel and Juda styled the prophet father, and this title was given by Christian antiquity to bishops and priests.

VER. 10. Tell him: Thou shalt recover. By these words the prophet signified that the king's disease was not mortal: and that he would recover, if no violence were used. Or he might only express himself in this manner, by way of giving Hazael to understand that he knew both what he would say and do; that he would indeed tell the king he should recover, but would be himself the instrument of his death. Ch.—The imperative is often used for the future tense. Glossa. iii. 3. Jo. ii. 19. The present Heb. reads, "Thou shalt not live: for," &c.

him. And the king appointed her an eunuch, saying: Restore her all that is hers, and all the revenues of the lands, from the day that she left the land to this present.

7 Eliseus also came to Damascus, and Benadad, king of Syria, was sick; and they told him, saying: The man of God is come hither.

8 And the king said to Hazael: Take with thee presents, and go to meet the man of God, and consult the Lord by him, saying: Can I recover of this my illness?

9 And Hazael went to meet him, taking with him presents, and all the good things of Damascus, the burdens of forty camels. And when he stood before him, he said: Thy son, Benadad, the king of Syria, hath sent me to thee, saying: Can I recover of this my illness?

10 And Eliseus said to him: Go tell him: Thou shalt recover: but the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surely die.

11 And he stood with him, and was troubled so far as to blush: and the man of God wept.

12 And Hazael said to him: Why doth my lord weep? And he said: Because I know the evil that thou wilt do to the children of Israel. * Their strong cities thou wilt burn with fire, and their young men thou wilt kill with the sword, and thou wilt dash their children, and rip up their pregnant women.

13 And Hazael said: But what am I, thy servant, a dog, that I should do this great thing? And Eliseus said: The Lord hath shewed me that thou shalt be king of Syria.

14 And when he was departed from Eliseus he came to his master, who said to him: What said Eliseus to thee? And he answered: He told me: Thou shalt recover.

15 And on the next day, he took a blanket, and poured water on it, and spread it upon his face: and he died, and Hazael reigned in his stead.

16 In the fifth year of Joram, son of Achab, king of Israel, and of Josaphat, king of Juda, reigned Joram, son of Josaphat, king of Juda.

^c Infra xii. 7.

which removes the difficulty. But the Chal. Sept. Syr. &c. agree with the Vulgate, (C.) as the Prot. version also does. "Thou mayst certainly recover, howbeit the Lord," &c. H.—Lo, "not," in the Heb. text, seems however preferable to the marginal reading lu, "to him." This mistake has been sometimes made elsewhere, and ought to be carefully examined. Kennicott 1 Par. xi. 20.

VER. 11. Blush. This may be referred either to Hazael, who was astonished at the words and looks of the prophet, (H.) or to Eliseus. M.—Sept. Complut. "and Hazael stood before his face, and he displayed the presents before him, till he blushed, and the," &c. Though this has the appearance of a gloss, it is perhaps most conformable to the Heb. and to an ancient Greek version. C.—Prot. "he settled his countenance steadfastly, until he was ashamed."

VER. 13. A dog. He speaks with indignation, as if he could not be so brutal; (T.)—or he could not yet think that he should be king. C.—He afterwards proved as cruel as the prophet had signified. C. x. 32. Amos i. 3. C.

VER. 15. Blanket. Heb. macher, a word which the Sept. retain. H.—It denotes a hairy coverlet, pillow, &c. Tiberius and Frederic II. met with the like fate. C.—Some think that Hazael was only guilty of imprudence; (M.) or that Benadad killed himself; as the Heb. might be rendered, if the sequel did not evince that his death was caused by Hazael's malice. C.—He might pretend that the wet cloth would give Benadad refreshment. H.—But it would bring on present death, with most exquisite torture. T.—The names of both these kings were in great veneration among the Syrians, who paid them divine honours. Joseph. ix. 4.—Perhaps they might not know that the latter had been guilty of such a base murder. H.

VER. 16. Fifth. Houbigant would read "third," p. 100. See C. i. 17. H.—Josaphat. That is, Josaphat being yet alive, who some time before his death made his son Joram king; as David had done before by his son Solomon. Ch.

17 *He was two and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

18 And he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, as the house of Achab had walked: for the daughter of Achab was his wife: and he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord.

19 ^bBut the Lord would not destroy Juda, for David his servant's sake, as he had promised him, to give him a light, and to his children always.

20 *In his days Edom revolted from being under Juda, and made themselves a king.

21 ^dAnd Joram came to Seira, and all the chariots with him: and he arose in the night, and defeated the Edomites that had surrounded him, and the captains of the chariots, but the people fled into their tents.

22 So Edom revolted from being under Juda, unto this day. Then Lobna also revolted at the same time.

23 But the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

24 And Joram slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, and Ochozias, his son, reigned in his stead.

25 *In the twelfth year of Joram, the son of Achab, king of Israel, reigned 'Ochozias, son of Joram, king of Juda.

26 Ochozias was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Athalia, the daughter of Amri, king of Israel.

27 And he walked in the ways of the house of Achab: and he did evil before the Lord, as did the house of Achab: for he was the son-in-law of the house of Achab.

28 *He went also with Joram, son of Achab, to fight against Hazael, king of Syria, in Ramoth Galaad, and the Syrians wounded Joram:

29 And he went back to be healed, in Jezrahel: because the Syrians had wounded him in Ramoth, when he fought against Hazael, king of Syria. And Ochozias, the son of Joram, king of Juda, went down to visit Joram, the son of Achab, in Jezrahel, because he was sick there.

CHAP. IX.

Jehu is anointed king of Israel, to destroy the house of Achab and Jezabel. He killeth Joram, king of Israel, and Ochozias, king of Juda. Jezabel is eaten by dogs.

AND ^bEliseus the prophet, called one of the sons of the prophets, and said to him: Gird up thy loins, and take this little bottle of oil in thy hand, and go to Ramoth Galaad.

2 ^dAnd when thou art come thither, thou shalt see Jehu, the son of Josaphat, the son of Namsi: and going in, thou shalt make him rise up from amongst his brethren, and carry him into an inner chamber.

3 Then taking the little bottle of oil, thou shalt pour it on his head, and shalt say: Thus saith the Lord: I have anointed thee king over Israel. And thou shalt open the door and flee, and shalt not stay there.

4 So the young man, the servant of the prophet, went away to Ramoth Galaad,

5 And went in thither: and behold, the captains of the army were sitting, and he said: I have a word to thee, O prince. And Jehu said: Unto whom of us all? And he said: To thee, O prince.

6 And he arose, and went into the chamber: and he poured the oil upon his head, and said: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel: I have anointed thee king over Israel, the people of the Lord.

7 And thou shalt cut off the house of Achab, thy master, and I will revenge the blood of my servants, the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the Lord, at the hand of Jezabel.

8 *And I will destroy all the house of Achab, and I will cut off from Achab, him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the meanest in Israel.

9 And I will make the house of Achab, like ¹the house of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, and like the house of ^mBaasa, the son of Ahias.

* 2 Par. xxi. 5.—^b 2 Kings vii. 16.—^c Gen. xxvii. 40. 2 Par. xxi. 8.

^d A. M. 8115, A. C. 889.—2 Par. xxii. 1.

—The words are omitted in some copies of the Sept. (D.) and are perhaps inserted from the end of the versa. H.—Prot. "Jehosaphat being then king," in his 22d year. H.—Joram had been appointed viceroy in the sixteenth year of his father's reign, and was now raised to sit on the throne with him. Thus the Scripture may be reconciled. C.

VER. 18. Achab, Athalia. She led her husband into all wickedness. T. 2 Par. xxi.

VER. 19. Light, or lamp, posterity and regal power, 3 K. xi. 36. H.

VER. 20. King. The one under Josaphat was dependant, C. iii. 9. 3 K. xxii. 48. Thus the prediction of Jacob was verified, (Gen. xxvii. 40. C.) and Joram punished. H.

VER. 21. Seira, or Idumea. Gen. xiv. 6.—Defeated. The Syriac and Arab. explain it in a contrary sense, as the Heb. may well signify, and the sequel seems to prove, as the Edomites became independent. Heb. "He rose, . . and attacked Edom that surrounded him, (with superior numbers) and the princes, . . and the people (of Israel) fled." But the text will also bear the sense of the Vulg. which is more conformable to 2 Par. xxi. 9, which does not say the people, &c. though these words may be understood of the Edomites. Joram could not derive such advantage from his victory, as to reduce the nation under his obedience. C.

VER. 22. Day, when Jeremias, the author, lived. Tostat.—Lobna, a frontier town bordering on Idumea. It was a strong place assigned to the priests; but strangers had probably again taken possession of it, and caused it now to revolt. The kings of Juda had retaken it when Sennacherib laid siege to the place. See C. xix. 8. Jos. x. 30. and xxi. 13.

VER. 24. Slept, after a lingering and painful illness of two years' continuance. Joram was not buried in the tomb of the other kings, nor were perfumes burnt over his corpse, (C.) as his memory was abhorred. 2 Par. xxi.

VER. 25. Twelfth, more correctly than "the eleventh." C. ix. 29. Houbigant.

VER. 26. Twenty. In 2 Paral. xxii. 2, we read forty, by mistake of the scribes, as Ochozias, (Joachaz, or Azarias, 2 Par. xxi. 17,) would thus be older than his father, who died at the age of forty. 2 Par. xxi. 20. All the oriental versions, and many copies of the Sept. read "twenty-two" in both passages; and those who would admit no mistake, are forced to have recourse to explanations which can give no satisfaction. De Dieu would include in the reign of Ochozias the six years of Athalia's usurpation, and the thirteen of Joas, during his minority. Others would date from the separation of the two kingdoms, &c. But would the Holy Ghost cause the same fact to be recorded in two places in such a different manner! The best chronologists acknowledge a mistake in the Heb. text of Paral. (Cajet. Salien; Petau, T. &c. C.) as the letters which denote these numbers are not unlike (Mariana:) c (20) might easily be exchanged for m (40.) H.—Daughter. That is, grand-daughter; for she was daughter of Achab, son of Amri, ver. 18. (Ch.) unless she was only adopted by Achab. W.

' A. M. 8119.—s A. M. 8120.—A. M. 8120.—3 Kings xix. 16.—* 3 Kings xxi. 21.

¹ 3 Kings xv. 29.—^m 3 Kings xvi. 8.

VER. 28. Galaad. The same city had proved fatal to Achab, 3 K. xxii. Joram took it, but received (C.) many wounds; so that he left Jehu to attack the citadel. The latter was anointed king, and acknowledged by the army. He immediately proceeded to Jezrahel, and put his master to death. H.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. One. The Rabbins say Jonas; who, at this rate, must have been very young, as he prophesied 50 years afterwards, under Jeroboam II. C.—Eliseus did not go himself, to avoid giving umbrage, and in obedience to God's order. M.

VER. 2. Brethren. The captains, v. 5.

VER. 3. Bottle. See 1 K. x. 1. Elias had received orders to anoint Jehu, 3 K. xix. 16. C.—There. The utmost expedition was necessary, that Joram might be taken by surprise, as well as Ochozias, and their devoted families. M.

VER. 7. Jezabel, who had persecuted the prophets unto death, 3 K. xviii. 4.

VER. 8. Israel. See Deut. xxxii. 36. and 3 K. xiv. 10. for an explanation of these expressions. C.

VER. 10. Field, between the inner and the outer wall. Her body shall be left exposed to be eaten by the dogs.

10 And the dogs shall eat Jezabel, in the field of Jezrahel, and there shall be no one to bury her. And he opened the door and fled.

11 Then Jehu went forth to the servants of his Lord: and they said to him: Are all things well? why came this madman to thee? And he said to them: You know the man, and what he said.

12 But they answered: It is false; but rather do thou tell us. And he said to them: Thus and thus did he speak to me: and he said: Thus saith the Lord: I have anointed thee king over Israel.

13 Then they made haste, and taking every man his garment, laid it under his feet, after the manner of a judgment-seat, and they sounded the trumpet, and said: Jehu is king.

14 So Jehu, the son of Josaphat, the son of Namsi, conspired against Joram. *Now Joram had besieged Ramoth Galaad, he, and all Israel, fighting with Hazael, king of Syria:

15 And was returned to be healed in Jezrahel of his wounds; for the Syrians had wounded him, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Jehu said: If it please you, let no man go forth or flee out of the city, lest he go, and tell in Jezrahel.

16 And he got up, and went into Jezrahel: for Joram was sick there, and Ochozias, king of Juda, was come down to visit Joram.

17 The watchman therefore, that stood upon the tower of Jezrahel, saw the troop of Jehu coming, and said: I see a troop. And Joram said: Take a chariot, and send to meet them, and let him that goeth say: Is all well?

18 So there went one in a chariot to meet him, and said: Thus saith the king: Are all things peaceable? And Jehu said: What hast thou to do with peace? go behind and follow me. And the watchman told, saying: The messenger came to them, but he returneth not.

19 And he sent a second chariot of horses: and he came to them, and said: Thus saith the king: Is there peace? And Jehu said: What hast thou to do with peace? pass, and follow me.

* Supra viii. 28.

VER. 11. Madman. The extravagant motions of the false prophets caused even the true ones to be treated with contempt. Warriors are but too apt to give way to sentiments of irreligion, (M.) and to despise men who lead a retired and penitential life. H.—How often were Ezechiel and Jeremias treated as fools, (Ezec. xxxiii. 30. Jer. xxix. 26. C.) as well as our divine Saviour! The pagans looked upon those who were inspired by Apollo in the same light. H.—Ut priman cessit furor & rabida ora quierunt, Virg. Aeneid vi. "What authority has this fury, which you call divine, that the insane should behold what escapes the observation of the wise, and that he who has lost common (human) sense should possess divine?" ea videlicet insanus, & is qui humanos sensus amisit, divinos assensit H. Cicero Divin. ii.

VER. 12. False. We know not who he was, or what he said; though, from his conduct, we judge that he was one of the prophets. Hence they so readily acquiesced in saluting Jehu king. H.

VER. 13. Garment, out of respect, as the multitude honoured Jesus Christ, Mat. xxi. 7. The pagans sometimes did the like when they carried their idols in procession. Plut. in Alcib. The king of Persia walked on carpets in the court of the guards, who were styled 'immortal'. Athen. 12.—Trumpet, according to custom, 3 K. i. 40. C.

VER. 14. Conspired, with the captains. M.—Besieged, as it is observed above. C. xxviii. 29. Heb. "had kept (H.) or observed," watching the motions of Hazael, lest he should return, or succour the citadel.

VER. 17. Watchman. Such were very common. (2 K. xviii. 24. 1 Mac. xii. 26.) and as the army was at Ramoth, the attention of the people would be drawn that way. C.—Troop. Sept. "the dust of the," &c. M.

VER. 18. Peace? As this expression sufficiently vindicated the designs of Jehu, he would not suffer the messenger to return before him. H.

20 And the watchman told, saying: He came even to them, but returneth not: and the driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Namsi; for he drives furiously.

21 And Joram said: Make ready the chariot. And they made ready his chariot: and Joram, king of Israel, and Ochozias, king of Juda, went out, each in his chariot, and they went out to meet Jehu, and met him in the field of Naboth, the Jezrahelite.

22 And when Joram saw Jehu, he said: Is there peace, Jehu? And he answered: What peace? so long as the fornications of Jezabel, thy mother, and her many sorceries, are in their vigour.

23 And Joram turned his hand, and fleeing, said to Ochozias: There is treachery, Ochozias.

24 But Jehu bent his bow with his hand, and shot Joram between the shoulders: and the arrow went out through his heart, and immediately he fell in his chariot.

25 And Jehu said to Badacer, his captain: Take him, and cast him into the field of Naboth, the Jezrahelite: for I remember, when I and thou, sitting in a chariot, followed Achab, this man's father, that the Lord laid this burden upon him, saying:

26 ^b If I do not requite thee in this field, saith the Lord, for the blood of Naboth, and for the blood of his children, which I saw yesterday, saith the Lord. So now take him, and cast him into the field, according to the word of the Lord.

27 But Ochozias, king of Juda, seeing this, fled by the way of the garden-house: and Jehu pursued him, and said: Strike him also in his chariot. And they struck him in the going up to Gaver, which is by Jeb-laam: and he fled into Mageddo, and died there.

28 And his servants laid him upon his chariot, and carried him to Jerusalem: and they buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers, in the city of David.

29 In the eleventh year of Joram, the son of Achab, Ochozias reigned over Juda;

30 And Jehu came into Jezrahel. But Jezabel, hearing of his coming in, painted her face with stibic stone, and adorned her head, and looked out of a window

* 3 Kings xxi. 22.

VER. 20. Furiously. The Chal. and Arab. say, "he marcheth slowly." But the whole conduct of Jehu was marked with eagerness and severity, like that of Cato of Utica, (Grotius) and the utmost expedition was requisite.

VER. 22. Jehu? The king supposed that he had met with some defeat, (C.) or that he wished to announce the good tidings in person. M. Salien, A. C. 902. —Vigour? How can Israel prosper? H.

VER. 23. Hand. Or ordered his charioteer to flee with all speed. M.

VER. 25. Sitting. Heb. "rode together after," as if they were two abreast. C.—Burden, or dreadful misfortune. M.

VER. 26. Children. We do not read these words before, or that the children of Naboth were slain; but it is very usual to supply in one place what has been omitted in another, and Achab was not required to make restitution, (C.) as there were no heirs probably left. M. W.

VER. 27. Houss. Sept. retain "Baithgan," the original term, as if it were the name of that road. M.—Ochozias wanted to reach the palace by that garden, which was the source of the miseries of Achab's family.—There. Being brought back from Samaria, 2 Par. xxii. 9. (C.) or lurking in that kingdom, (M.) and slain by Jehu, as being the grandson of Jezabel. Great troubles took place in Juda, in consequence of his death. C.

VER. 29. Eleventh, or rather the twelfth, (C. viii. 25. Houbigant) unless he had been associated with his father on the throne a year before his death. C. D.

VER. 30. Stone, or antimony, to make the eyes look black and large. If (C.) Jezabel thought that she would thus command respect or love, (Abulensis) she was extremely imprudent and rash, in her present condition. Pride might suggest that she ought not to appear unadorned. C. T.—The women of the Eastern countries delight much in painting, (Pliny xi. 37. and xxxiii. 6.) and some men have not been ashamed to follow their example. S. Cyp.—Sardanapalus had (471)

31 At Jehu coming in at the gate, and said: "Can there be peace for Zambri, that hath killed his master?"

32 And Jehu lifted up his face to the window, and said: Who is this? And two or three eunuchs bowed down to him.

33 And he said to them: Throw her down headlong; and they threw her down, and the wall was sprinkled with her blood, and the hoofs of the horses trod upon her.

34 And when he was come in to eat, and to drink, he said: Go, and see after that cursed woman, and bury her; because she is a king's daughter.

35 And when they went to bury her, they found nothing but the skull, and the feet, and the extremities of her hands.

36 And coming back they told him. And Jehu said: "It is the word of the Lord, which he spoke by his servant Elias, the Thesbite, saying: In the field of Jezrahel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezabel."

37 And the flesh of Jezabel shall be as dung upon the face of the earth in the field of Jezrahel; so that they who pass by shall say: Is this that same Jezabel?

CHAP. X.

Jehu destroyeth the house of Achab: abolisheth the worship of Baal, and killeth the worshippers: but sticks to the calves of Jeroboam. Israel is afflicted by the Syrians.

AND "Achab had seventy sons in Samaria: so Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria, to the chief men of the city, and to the ancients, and to them that brought up Achab's children, saying:

2 As soon as you receive these letters, ye that have your master's sons, and chariots, and horses, and fenced cities, and armour,

3 Choose the best, and him that shall please you most of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for the house of your master.

4 But they were exceedingly afraid, and said: Be-

* 3 Kings xvi. 10.—b 3 Kings xxi. 23.

his eyes and his eye-lids painted. Athen. xii. The Arabs, &c. think that this black colour protects their eyes against the sun-beams. Valla ii. Ep. 17. To express the affliction of Jezabel, Heb. has, "she placed her eyes in antimony," (fuc, or puc, whence the Latin fucus is visibly derived) as if she plunged them in it. C.

VER. 31. Master. Being convinced that she could not gain the affections of Jehu, (H.) and thinking that he would not lay hands on a woman, (M.) she insolently, or in despair, (H.) upbraids him as a new Zambri, who might expect a similar fate, 3 K. xvi. C.—The name of Zambri was used proverbially to denote an ungrateful rebel; as with us Judas is used for a traitor T.

VER. 32. This. "Who dares address me with such provoking language?" Heb. "Who with me, who?" will punish this wretch! The eunuchs, who had hitherto waited upon Jezabel, immediately shewed their readiness to take part with her enemy: so little dependance can be placed on servants in the hour of adversity, when they have long been witnesses of their masters' crimes.—Hoofs. Heb. "and the horses, and he trod her under foot." H.—Jehu shewed the example. M.

VER. 34. Bury. He had forgotten the prediction of Elias, v. 36. Salien.—Daughter of Ethbaal, wife of Achab, mother of Joram king of Israel, and mother-in-law of Joram king of Juda, and grandmother of his son Ochozias. C.—Her great connexions seemed to entitle her to the rights of sepulture. H.

VER. 35. Hands. All the rest had been presently devoured, or carried off by dogs. H.—Her precious jewels had been plundered by the soldiers. M.

VER. 36. Field, or space between the walls, 3 K. xxi. 23. C.

VER. 37. Jezabel? So fallen (M.) and degraded, though once possessed of so much power, and beauty! sic transit gloria mundi. Heb. and Sept. "that they shall not say, This is Jezabel!" H.—No monument shall recall her to the remembrance of men. C.—Her body cannot be recognized. This will be the fate of the greatest mortal beauties, a few days after their departure. S. Francis Borgia durst not take an oath that the corpse which he had to attend, was that of the late beautiful empress Isabella: so much was it already disfigured. This fight was the beginning of his conversion, and of that eminent sanctity to which he attained, by despising all that the world can give or take away. H.—The Spanish interpreters call Achab's widow, Isabella: and she seems to have been hold two kings could not stand before him, and how shall we be able to resist?

5 Therefore they that were over the king's house, and the rulers of the city, and the ancients, and the bringers up of the children, sent to Jehu, saying: We are thy servants: whatsoever thou shalt command us we will do; we will not make us any king: do thou all that pleaseth thee.

6 And he wrote letters the second time to them, saying: If you be mine, and will obey me, take the heads of the sons of your master, and come to me to Jezrahel by to-morrow at this time. Now the king's sons, being seventy men, were brought up with the chief men of the city.

7 And when the letters came to them, they took the king's sons, and slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent them to him to Jezrahel.

8 And a messenger came, and told him, saying: They have brought the heads of the king's sons. And he said: Lay ye them in two heaps by the entering in of the gate until the morning.

9 And when it was light, he went out, and standing, said to all the people: You are just: if I conspired against my master, and slew him; who hath slain all these?

10 "See therefore now that there hath not fallen to the ground any of the words of the Lord, which the Lord spoke concerning the house of Achab; and the Lord hath done that which he spoke in the hand of his servant Elias.

11 So Jehu slew all that were left of the house of Achab in Jezrahel, and all his chief men, and his friends, and his priests, till there were no remains left of him.

12 And he arose, and went to Samaria: and when he was come to the shepherds' cabin in the way,

13 He met with the brethren of Ochozias, king of the sister, or relation, of Dido, who founded Carthage about this time; (T.) Salien says in the 16th year of Jehu. A. C. 887. H.

* A. M. 3120, A. C. 884.—d 3 Kings xxi. 19.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Seventy sons, as he had many wives. Gedeon had 70. C.—Grand-children might also be included. D.—But this is not necessary. C.—City, Heb. "of Jezrahel," a word which has probably been substituted instead of "Israel," which is more conformable to the Sept. and Vulg. Those who adhere to the Heb. pretend that the princes had all fled from Jezrahel.—Children. This is the sense generally given to Nutritios Achab, which literally signifies, "nursing-fathers (preceptors, counsellors, &c.) of Achab," v. 5. The king's children were perhaps educated in the most noble families, (v. 6.) and in the best cities, 2 Par. xi. 23. Isaias (xlix. 23.) foretelling the happiness of the Israelites after the captivity, says, that kings and queens will nurse them.

VER. 3. Master. Jehu would lead them into a snare, and insultingly challenges them to battle, shewing how little he feared their power. C.—He speaks ironically. D.

VER. 8. Morning, that all the people might see them. C.—Jehu did not choose to admit the Samaritans into the city during the night. M.

VER. 9. Just executioners of the divine wrath. D.—You know what is right. M.—You are now in the same predicament with myself. H.—All the chief men had thus rendered themselves odious to the people, who could not choose them for leaders. He captiously infers, from his astonishing success, (C.) that his conduct is pleasing to God. M.—All the people seeing that so many had armed (T.) against the house of Achab, might conclude that what they did was just. H.

VER. 11. Chief men, probably including those perfidious wretches, who had so basely betrayed their trust, and slain the 70 sons of Achab, "the nobles of the kingdom, his kinsmen, and friends." Chal. Arab.—Friends. Some copies of the Sept. have connoisseurs, or magicians. Lev. xix. 31.—Priests, princes of the court (2 K. viii. 18.) and those who offered sacrifice to idols, (C.) being of Achab's descendants. M.—He afterwards inveigled all the priests of Baal, to their entire ruin, v. 19. H.

VER. 12. Cabin. Heb. Beth-heked, (H.) a term which the Sept. do not translate. It means, "house of tying," as the sheep were tied to be shorn. M.—Eusebius places it in the great plain, 15 miles from Legion. C.—It was not a Juda, and he said to them: Who are you? And they answered: We are the brethren of Ochozias, and are come down to salute the sons of the king, and the sons of the queen.

14 And he said: Take them alive. And they took them alive, and killed them at the pit by the cabin, two and forty men, and he left not any of them.

15 And when he was departed thence, he found Jonadab, the son of Rechab, coming to meet him, and he blessed him. And he said to him: Is thy heart right as my heart is with thy heart? And Jonadab said: It is. If it be, said he, give me thy hand. He gave him his hand. And he lifted him up to him into the chariot,

16 And said to him: Come with me, and see my zeal for the Lord. So he made him ride in his chariot, 17 And brought him into Samaria. And he slew all that were left of Achab, in Samaria, to a man, according to the word of the Lord which he spoke by Elias.

18 And Jehu gathered together all the people, and said to them: *Achab worshipped Baal a little, but I will worship him more.

19 Now therefore call to me all the prophets of Baal, and all his servants, and all his priests: let none be wanting, for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal: whosoever shall be wanting, shall not live. Now Jehu did this craftily, that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal.

20 And he said: Proclaim a festival for Baal. And he called,

21 And he sent into all the borders of Israel; and all the servants of Baal came: there was not one left that did not come. And they went into the temple of Baal: and the house of Baal was filled, from one end to the other.

22 And he said to them that were over the wardrobe: Bring forth garments for all the servants of Baal. And they brought them forth garments.

* 2 Kings xvi. 31.

despicable hut, (H.) but like the houses where Nabal and Absalom shored their sheep, 1 K. xxv. &c. T.

VER. 13. Brethren. The Arabs had destroyed all his brothers by the same mother; (2 Par. xxii. 1.) but these were near relations, and they durst not deny the fact. M.—In 2 Par. xxii. 8, they are styled princes of Juda, and sons of the brethren of Ochozias. Jehu must have used surprising diligence (C.) and secrecy (H.) to prevent the many important transactions and changes which had lately taken place from being known at Jerusalem, or even at Bethleked, v. 12. which was so little distant from Samaria. C.—Queen. The wife of Joram, or the children of Jezabel, (M.) with whom they were connected by affinity and friendship, to their great detriment. H.

VER. 14. Alive. That they might not attempt to defend themselves, (M.) as they might hope that Jehu would, at least, spare their lives. H.—Of them, as they were in some degree related to Achab, (M.) or might endeavour to obstruct his dominion. T.

VER. 15. Jonadab, a holy personage. Jer. xxxv. 6. The Rechabites were a sort of religious, descended from Jethro and the Cinites. C.—They dwelt in the country, and fed sheep, &c. Num. x. 29. T.—John of Jerus. (c. 25.) says that Jonadab was a disciple of Eliseus, and followed his institute in all things, excepting continency. M.—Blessed him, wishing him peace and prosperity. M.—It is not clear whether Jehu or Jonadab pronounced this blessing. H.—Heart. Art thou friendly to my cause?—Thy hand, in sign of concord, and to help him up into his chariot. C.—It was of great consequence to obtain the approbation of a man (H.) who must have been so revered by the people. M.—Jehu acted with the utmost policy. H.

VER. 18. I will worship him more. Jehu sinned in thus pretending to worship Baal, and causing sacrifices to be offered to him: because evil is not to be done, that good may come of it. Rom. iii. 8. Ch. W.—S. Jerom, &c. excuse him from mortal sin, as his intention was good. T.—If he had not thus dissembled, he could not have so effectually destroyed the adorers of Baal, who would have concealed themselves. But God rewarded his zeal, and not his falsehood. C.—He might speak ironically; though Theodoret, &c. admit a lie. M.

VER. 19. Servants. The number had greatly decreased under Joram. M.

23 And Jehu, and Jonadab, the son of Rechab, went to the temple of Baal, and said to the worshippers of Baal: Search, and see that there be not any with you of the servants of the Lord, but that there be the servants of Baal only.

24 And they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings: but Jehu had prepared him fourscore men without, and said to them: If any of the men escape whom I have brought into your hands, he that letteth him go, shall answer life for life.

25 And it came to pass, when the burnt-offering was ended, that Jehu commanded his soldiers and captains, saying: Go in, and kill them: let none escape. And the soldiers and captains slew them with the edge of the sword, and cast them out: and they went into the city of the temple of Baal,

26 And brought the statue out of Baal's temple, and burnt it,

27 And broke it in pieces. They destroyed also the temple of Baal, and made a jakes in its place unto this day.

28 So Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel:

29 But yet he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, nor did he forsake the golden calves that were in Bethel, and Dan.

30 And the Lord said to Jehu: because thou hast diligently executed that which was right and pleasing in my eyes, and hast done to the house of Achab according to all that was in my heart: thy children shall sit upon the throne of Israel to the fourth generation.

31 But Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord, the God of Israel, with all his heart: for he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who had made Israel to sin.

32 In those days the Lord began to be weary of Israel: and Hazael ravaged them in all the coasts of Israel, ¶ Infra xv. 12.

VER. 20. Proclaim. Lit. "sanctify (Heb.) a prohibition" to work, or to be absent, (C.) "and they proclaimed it."

VER. 21. Other. Lit. "from top to top." Heb. "from mouth to mouth," (H.) like a vessel brimfull. C.—Every corner was filled. All the priests and prophets made their appearance, through zeal to re-establish the honour of their idol, and for fear of death. M.

VER. 22. Wardrobe, of vestments used in the service of Baal. The worship chiefly consisted in such outward pomp. The priests were probably adorned like those at the pillars of Hercules, who were from the same country. Sil. Ital. iii. velantur corpora lino, &c.

VER. 24. Life. These 80 were stationed at the doors, while the rest slaughtered the unhappy idolaters, (M.) who were all by themselves, like the reprobate separated from the elect, at the last day. H.

VER. 25. Soldiers. Heb. "runners, (or foot-guards, 3 K. i. 5.) and chief officers." Ex. xiv. 7.—Out. Heb. "cast out" their carcasses, or "rushed out (themselves) into the city," which was styled "the temple of Baal;" or "penetrated into the fortress" and inmost recesses of that structure. Osiander.—We read of such a fortress. Judg. ix. 46. H.—In every city where there was a temple of Baal, the fabric and idols were demolished. Salien.

VER. 27. A jakes, or necessary. H.—See 1 Esd. vi. 11. Dan. ii. 5.

VER. 29. Dan. This wicked policy, which was designed to prevent his subjects from submitting again to the kings of Juda, proved his ruin.

VER. 30. Generation. So Joachaz, Joas, Jeroboam II. and Zacharias, succeeded to the throne. This small temporal reward he obtained for the little good which he had done; while, on the other hand, he was punished for his manifold transgressions. Osee (i. 4.) reproaches him even for the blood which he had spilt in Jezrahel; for, though Achab and Joram were guilty, was Jehu innocent? Can this murder of Ochozias be justified? C.—"What advantage was it to him that he received some little transitory reward of a temporal kingdom, for his obedience in exterminating the house of Achab; which he indeed exhibited to gratify his own lust of dominion?" S. Aug. c. mend. ii. c. 2. This holy doctor observes, that moral good works are thus rewarded. W.

VER. 32. Weary. Heb. "to retrace or destroy." Hazael took occasion, from 33 From the Jordan eastward, all the land of Galaad, and Gad, and Ruben, and Manasses, from Aroer, which is upon the torrent Arnon, and Galaad, and Basan.

34 But the rest of the acts of Jehu, and all that he did, and his strength, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

35 And Jehu slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria: and Joachaz, his son, reigned in his stead.

36 And the time that Jehu reigned over Israel, in Samaria, was eight and twenty years.

CHAP. XI.

Athalia's usurpation and tyranny. Joas is made king. Athalia is slain.

AND ^a Athalia, the mother of Ochozias, seeing that her son was dead, arose and slew all the royal seed.

2 But Josaba, the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ochozias, took Joas, the son of Ochozias, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, out of the bed-chamber with his nurse: and hid him from the face of Athalia; so that he was not slain.

3 And he was with her six years, hid in the house of the Lord. And Athalia reigned over the land.

4 ^b And in the seventh year Joiada sent, and taking the centurions and soldiers, brought them in to him into the temple of the Lord, and made a covenant with them: and taking an oath of them in the house of the Lord, shewed them the king's son:

5 And he commanded them, saying: This is the thing that you must do.

6 Let a third part of you go in on the sabbath, and the absence of Jehu (C.) from Galaad, and the disturbances on the west of the Jordan, to dismember the provinces on the east, and to commit the horrid ravages foretold by Eliseus. C. viii. 12. H.

^a A. M. 3120. 2 Par. xxii. 10.

VER. 38. Aroer. See Jos. xiii. 25. This was a most severe scourge, (M.) as all the eastern tribes were lost to Israel. H.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Seed. What cruelties are occasioned by ambition! W.—This is one of the most extraordinary proofs recorded in history. Agrippina was but a faint copy of the unnatural Athalia, (C.) who knew that she was destined for slaughter, if she should fall into the hands of Jehu. M.—Her impiety might also prompt her to destroy all the posterity of David, that she might introduce the worship of idols more easily. Theodore.

VER. 2. Sister. She had probably a different mother, as she consented to the death of Athalia. C.—But the crimes of the latter required such a punishment; and even a daughter would have done wrong to screen her. H.—Josabab, as she is called in 2 Par. xxii. 11, was married to Joiada the high priest, ibid.—Out of. Heb. and Paral. "hid him, even him and his nurse, in the bed-chamber" of the priest, in the temple; (Salien) different from that bed-chamber in which he had hitherto been nursed. Thus the passages may be reconciled. M. C.—Some maintain that Joas was not the son of Ochozias, in whom the line of Solomon ended, but a descendant of David by Nathan. But he is always styled the king's son, and the authority of the false Philo of Annius is of no weight. C.—Joiada is called Barachias, "blessed of the Lord," on account of his justice, (S. Jer.) in Mat. xxiii.

VER. 3. Lord. The case was so extraordinary, that the high priest dispensed with a woman lodging in those apartments.—Land, for six years, by usurpation. Women were commonly excluded, and she was not of the race of David, 4 K. viii. 26. C.

VER. 4. Year, of the age of Joas, v. 21. M.—Centurions. Five in number of the tribe of Levi, (M.) commanding each 100 men. Heb. adds "the rams," (C.) to denote "the captains (Prot.) and the runners," or guards. H.—Joiada was a man of great authority, virtue, and discretion; so that he was able to manage this delicate affair, and no one gave information to Athalia, as she was detested. The Levites and principal men of Juda were admonished, underhand, to be present on the day appointed. The quality of high priest, and the known piety and zeal for the public good, which were conspicuous in Joiada, as well as his being so nearly related to the lawful heir to the crown, made the people readily come forward. C.

VER. 6. Sabbath. On this day the Levites replaced each other; so that many might assemble without suspicion. They guarded the king's apartments in the temple.—The gate of Sur, or of the foundation, (2 Par. xxiii. 5.) and the western gate leading to the palace. C.—Sur, or "the gate of the lords," (Chal.) is generkeep the watch of the king's house. And let a third part be at the gate of Sur; and let a third part be at the gate behind the dwelling of the shield-bearers; and you shall keep the watch of the house of Messa.

7 But let two parts of you all that go forth on the sabbath, keep the watch of the house of the Lord about the king.

8 And you shall compass him round about, having weapons in your hands: and if any man shall enter the precinct of the temple, let him be slain: and you shall be with the king, coming in and going out.

9 And the centurions did according to all things that Joiada, the priest, had commanded them: and taking every one their men, that went in on the sabbath, with them that went out in the sabbath, came to Joiada, the priest.

10 And he gave them the spears, and the arms of king David, which were in the house of the Lord.

11 And they stood, having every one their weapons in their hands, from the right side of the temple, unto the left side of the altar, and of the temple, about the king.

12 And he brought forth the king's son, and put the diadem upon him, and the testimony: and they made him king, and anointed him: and clapping their hands, they said: God save the king.

13 And Athalia heard the noise of the people running: and going in to the people into the temple of the Lord,

14 She saw the king standing upon a tribunal, as the manner was, and the singers, and the trumpets near him, and all the people of the land rejoicing, and ally supposed to be on the opposite side. M.—But this is uncertain, as well as the situation of Messa, which is perhaps the Musach. C. xvi. 18. This was probably some building or covert adjoining the temple, (C.) either belonging to some private person, (M.) or designed to contain the ashes, &c. taken from the temple; (Villalp. ii. 32.) or a tribune for the king in the temple. H.—The Chaldee seems to have explained it as an adverb, solicite, "with diligence," (M.) as well as the Sept. (D.) which is consonant to Vatable; you shall guard the house "from desertion." Let no one quit his post. M.

^b 2 Par. xxiii. 1. A. M. 3126, A. C. 878.

VER. 7. Of you. Levites, who waited on the king's person alternately. C.—They were divided into three parts, being in actual service, v. 6. Those who went out of office were twice the number, and are here told what to do. Sa thinks that those who entered upon duty, and those who went out, formed two thirds of the Levites, v. 9. and 2 Par. xxiii. 8. M.

VER. 8. Temple, to cause confusion, Syr. &c. The court of the priests, (Ezee. xli. 9.) and that of Israel, (Josep. viii. 4.) were separated by walls, beyond which strangers were not allowed to pass. C.—Slain, being first cast out, v. 15. M.—Great respect is due to holy places, and hence comes the privilege of sanctuaries. W.

VER. 10. David. There was a sort of arsenal in the temple, containing arms consecrated to the Lord by David and his valiant men, in memory of their victories, 2 K. viii. 11. 1 Par. xviii. 11. The usual band of Levites had proper arms, but more were employed on this occasion. C.

VER. 11. Right, or south, leading to the palace, (M.) whence the greatest danger was feared. C.—Altar of holocausts, that it might not impede the sight of the king. M.

VER. 12. The testimony. The book of the law. Ch.—So Job (xxxi. 35, 36,) wished to have the sentence pronounced by God as a crown upon his head. The Orientals still lift to their heads the letters which they have received from people whom they wish to honour. Thevenot, 46.—Some think that the diadem was adorned with phylacteries, or scrolls, containing parts of the law, (Grot.) particularly what related to the king; (H.) or that Joas held in his hand a roll of vellum, containing those instructions, (Dent. xvii. 18. 2 Par. xxiii. 11) instead of a sceptre.—Anointed him, by the hands of Joiada; as this ceremony was requisite on account of the usurpation of Athalia. In peaceable times the unction was not given, (C.) according to the Jews, (II.) whose sentiment is elsewhere shewn to be unsatisfactory. C.

VER. 13. Going in. She must have been attended by a strong guard, to force the passage through the Levites at the door. H.

VER. 14. A tribunal. A tribune, or a place elevated above the rest. Ch.—Heb. "on a pillar." Solomon had stood upon one of brass, three cubits high and five broad. See C. xxiii. 8. and 2 Par. vi. 18.

sounding the trumpets: and she rent her garments, and cried: A conspiracy, a conspiracy.

15 But Joiada commanded the centurions that were over the army, and said to them: Have her forth without the precinct of the temple, and whosoever shall follow her, let him be slain with the sword. For the priest had said: Let her not be slain in the temple of the Lord.

16 And they laid hands on her: and thrust her out by the way by which the horses go in, by the palace, and she was slain there.

17 And Joiada made a covenant between the Lord, and the king, and the people, that they should be the people of the Lord; and between the king and the people.

18 And all the people of the land went into the temple of Baal, and broke down his altars, and his images they broke in pieces thoroughly: they slew also Mathan, the priest of Baal, before the altar. And the priest set guards in the house of the Lord.

19 And he took the centurions, and the bands of the Cerethi, and the Phelethi, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king from the house of the Lord: and they came by the way of the gate of the shield-bearers into the palace, and he sat on the throne of the kings.

20 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet: but Athalia was slain with the sword in the king's house.

21 Now Joas was seven years old when he began to reign.

CHAP. XII.

The temple is repaired. Hazael is bought off from attacking Jerusalem. Joas is slain.

IN the seventh year of Jehu, Joas began to reign: and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Sebia, of Bersabee.

2 And Joas did that which was right before the Lord all the days that Joiada, the priest, taught him.

* A. M. 3126.—^a A. M. 8147,

VER. 15. Precinct. Heb. cederoth, (untranslated by the Sept. and (H.) improperly supposed by Josephus to be the torrent Cedron) means, "the ranks" of the guards, (C.) or, "ranges" of the sacred buildings, which her impure blood must not defile. H.—Follow her, as an accomplice. M.

VER. 16. Thrust. Heb. "and she went by the way by which the horses enter the king's house. When she was come within the horse-gate of the palace, they killed her there." 2 Par. xxiii. 15. Such was the ignominious end of this true daughter of Jezebel! H.

VER. 17. People. Joiada, as mediator (C.) between God, the king, and the people, engaged the two latter to be faithful to their common Lord, and to each other. They promised mutually to observe the laws, and, on that condition, the high priest gave them an assurance that God would protect them. H.—The covenant entered into by their fathers (Ex. xix. 5.) was renewed. C.

VER. 18. Altar. Many of the sacred ornaments belonging to the temple had been transported to the house of Baal, probably on Mount Olivet, where Solomon had formerly erected such buildings. 3 K. xi. 5. 2 Par. xxiv. 7. The reform of the state justly, therefore, began with the destruction of this profane and sacrilegious place.—Lord, according to the former regulations, which had been lately ill observed, to prevent any thing unclean from coming in. 2 Par. xiii. 19. C.—Sept. "the priest placed overseers (ἐπιστάτας) in the house of the Lord. H.

VER. 19. Phelethi. In the Heb. of the books of Kings we read nothing of these bands after the reign of David. The same expressions occur here as v. 4. "the centurions, the rams, (or captains) and the runners," (C.) or guards. Prot. H.

VER. 19. Gate, on the west. Athalia had probably entered by the south.—Kings. It was made of ivory, &c. 3 K. x. 18. C.

CHAP. XII. VER. 2. Taught him. Joiada lived, at least, till the 23d year of the reign of Joas, (v. 6.) and the king seems to have persevered some time longer in virtue.

VER. 3. Places, to the true God, but contrary to his law. The king was de-

3 But yet he took not away the high places: for the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

4 And Joas said to the priests: "All the money of the sanctified things, which is brought into the temple of the Lord by those that pass, which is offered for the price of a soul, and which of their own accord, and of their own free heart, they bring into the temple of the Lord:

5 Let the priests take it according to their order, and repair the house, wheresoever they shall see any thing that wanteth repairing.

6 Now till the three and twentieth year of king Joas, the priests did not make the repairs of the temple.

7 And king Joas called Joiada, the high priest, and the priests, saying to them: Why do you not repair the temple? Take you, therefore, money no more according to your order, but restore it for the repairing of the temple.

8 And the priests were forbidden to take any more money of the people, and to make the repairs of the house.

9 And Joiada, the high priest, took a chest, and bored a hole in the top, and set it by the altar at the right hand of them that came into the house of the Lord; and the priests that kept the doors, put therein all the money that was brought to the temple of the Lord.

10 And when they saw that there was very much money in the chest, the king's scribe, and the high priest, came up, and poured it out, and counted the money that was found in the house of the Lord:

11 And they gave it out by number and measure into the hands of them that were over the builders of the house of the Lord: and they laid it out to the carpenters, and the masons, that wrought in the house of the Lord,

12 And made the repairs: and to them that cut stones, and to buy timber, and stones to be hewed,

A. C. 857.—^a A. M. 8148.

terred from overturning these altars, through human policy; which did not meet with the divine approbation. C. See 3 K. xxii. 24. Deut. xii. 8.

VER. 4. Sanctified. That is, dedicated to God's service. Ch.—Lit. "of the holy" sanctorum. H.—For the use of the sanctuary.—Pass, as strangers, (3 K. viii. 41.) desiring sacrifice to be offered, (Grotius) or who pass in the roll of those who have attained their 20th year, and are obliged to pay half a sicle. Ex. xx. 13, 14. This was the first fund which had been turned to a different purpose by the priests, (C.) under the wicked kings. H.—Soul. That is, the ordinary oblation, which every soul was to offer by the law. Exod. xxx. Ch.—Or, this was a second fund arising from the redemption of vows. Lev. xxvii. 2.—Lord. Voluntary contributions, like that of the widow, (Luke xxi. 2.) were also recommended; and Joas sent Levites throughout the land, every year, to collect what they could, for the reparation of the temple. 2 Par. xxiv. 5.

VER. 5. Order. Heb. "acquaintance." Let them receive the contributions on the spot where they reside; or, let those who are on duty in the temple take them. C.—Thing. Heb. "breach," badek, a term which the Sept. retain. H.

VER. 6. Temple. It is not known when the king gave his orders; but they were executed with negligence, as they seemed to interfere (C.) with the emoluments assigned by the law to the Levites. 2 Par. xxiv. 5. H.—The latter Jews were obliged to pay half a sicle towards the repairs of the temple. T.

VER. 8. Forbidden. Heb. Sept. &c. "And the priests consented to take no." &c. They were also obliged to restore what they had already received. C.

VER. 9. By the altar, yet without the enclosure, that any person might freely put in what he thought proper. 2 Par. xxiv. 8. Priests were still appointed to watch, that no fraud was committed: and they counted the money which the law ordained to be paid. Josephus (Bel. vi. 5.) speaks of many coffers; one might be near the altar, and another out of the door. M.

VER. 10. Priest, or his deputy. Paral. C.—Out. Prot. "put it up in bags" (H.) or tied and afterwards weighed it.

VER. 11. And they. The king and the high priest conjointly. Paral.

that the repairs of the house of the Lord might be completely finished, and wheresoever there was need of expences to uphold the house.

13 But there were not made of the same money for the temple of the Lord, bowls, or flesh-hooks, or censers, or trumpets, or any vessel of gold and silver, of the money that was brought into the temple of the Lord:

14 For it was given to them that did the work, that the temple of the Lord might be repaired.

15 And they reckoned not with the men that received the money to distribute it to the workmen, but they bestowed it faithfully.

16 But the money for trespass, and the money for sins, they brought not into the temple of the Lord, because it was for the priests.

17 *Then Hazael, king of Syria, went up, and fought against Geth, and took it, and set his face to go up to Jerusalem.

18 Wherefore Joas, king of Juda, took all the sanctified things, which Josaphat, and Joram, and Ochozias, his fathers, the kings of Juda, had dedicated to holy uses, and which he himself had offered: and all the silver that could be found in the treasures of the temple of the Lord, and in the king's palace: and sent it to Hazael, king of Syria, and he went off from Jerusalem.

19 And the rest of the acts of Joas, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

20 And his servants arose, and conspired among themselves, and slew Joas, in the house of Mello, in the descent of Sella.

21 For Josachar, the son of Semaath, and Jozabad, the son of Somer, his servants, struck him, and he died: and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David; and Amasias, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XIII.

The reign of Joachaz, and of Joas, kings of Israel. The last acts and death of Eliseus, the prophet: a dead man is raised to life by the touch of his bones.

IN the three and twentieth year ^b of Joas, son of Ochozias, king of Juda, Joachaz, the son of Jehu, reigned over Israel, in Samaria, seventeen years.

* A. M. 3165, A. C. 839. 2 Par. xxiv. 23.—^b A. M. 3148, A. C. 856.

VER. 13. Bowls. Chal. "silver chalices." The precise import of the Heb. term is not well known. M.—Lord. After the repairs were finished, the remaining money, which was very considerable, was however employed for these purposes, 2 Par. xxiv. 14. C. M.

VER. 15. Faithfully, and corresponded with the trust reposed in them. H.

VER. 16. Sins. These terms seem to be synonymous, though they may be distinguished. Lev. iv. 2. and v. 15. If any one forgot to pay tithes, he was bound to make full reparation to the priests; (Tostat.) and the money which was given to them by strangers, to offer sacrifice, was not taken from them. C.

VER. 17. Then. After the death of Joiada, the king gave way to the greatest excesses of idolatry, and even murdered the son of his great benefactor. Hereupon the justice of God fell heavy upon him; Geth was taken, Jerusalem only saved by giving up all the sacred treasures, &c.: yea, the very next year, Hazael returned, routed the forces of Juda, and wounded the king, who on his return to the palace was murdered by conspirators, (C.) to revenge the death of Zacharias. 2 Par. xxiv. 25. Joseph. ix. 8.

VER. 18. Joram, &c. These are accused of plundering the temple, 2 Par. xxiv. 1. But they might make some presents, through ostentation. How many rob the poor, while they erect magnificent altars to the God of the poor! C.

VER. 20. Sella. A flight of steps leading to the temple. H.—The palace was at the bottom of it, and had been built by Solomon. Here Joas was slain in his bed. Paral.

VER. 21. Josachar, or Zabad, the son of Semmath, an Ammonitess, and Jozabad, the son of Senarith, a Moabitess. Par. Both their mothers were of foreign extraction. C.—People have frequently two names.—Somer is the father of Jozabad. M.—David. Achaz was treated in like manner. The fear of this infamy might tend to keep the kings in awe. After death, the kings of Egypt

2 And he did evil before the Lord, and followed the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin; and he departed not from them.

3 And the wrath of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of Hazael, the king of Syria, and into the hand of Benadad, the son of Hazael, all days.

4 But Joachaz besought the face of the Lord, and the Lord heard him: for he saw the distress of Israel, because the king of Syria had oppressed them:

5 And the Lord gave Israel a saviour, and they were delivered out of the hand of the king of Syria: and the children of Israel dwelt in their pavilions as yesterday and the day before.

6 But yet they departed not from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, who made Israel to sin, but walked in them: and there still remained a grove also in Samaria.

7 And Joachaz had no more left of the people than fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen: for the king of Syria^a had slain them, and had brought them low as dust by threshing in the barn-floor.

8 But the rest of the acts of Joachaz, and all that he did, and his valour, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

9 And *Joachaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria: and Joas, his son, reigned in his stead.

10 In the seven and thirtieth year of ^aJoas, king of Juda, Joas, the son of Joachaz, reigned over Israel, in Samaria, sixteen years.

11 And he did that which is evil in the sight of the Lord: he departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin; but he walked in them.

12 But the rest of the acts of Joas, and all that he did, and his valour wherewith he fought against Amasias, king of Juda, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

13 And Joas slept with his fathers; and Jeroboam sat upon his throne. But Joas was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel.

c A. M. 3165, A. C. 839.—^a A. M. 3163, A. C. 841.

might be accused, and deprived of sepulture, if their crimes deserved it: as many of them were. Diod. i. p. 46. C.—Thus Joas was covered with eternal infamy, after he had begun so well. Finis coronat opus. H.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Years. Two with his son Joas, (Usher) or three. Capell. D. See v. 10.

VER. 3. Days, while Joachaz lived, v. 22. M.—Yet Benadad only molested his son. C.—Hazael proved a dreadful scourge in the hand of God, to punish his people, C. viii. 12. H.

VER. 5. Saviour, in the person of Joas, (v. 23. Tostat.) after the death of Joachaz, whose repentance preserved him, at least, in this world. H.

VER. 6. A grove, dedicated to the worship of idols. Ch.—Heb. "and the Aschera (grove of Astarte) was standing even in Samaria." That impure worship had gained ground again, after Jehu was dead.

VER. 7. Floor. Amos (i. 3.) informs us, that Hazael had crushed the inhabitants of Galaad to death with iron chariots.

VER. 8. Valour, or personal courage, (C.) though he gained no complete victory. The most valiant are not always successful. T.—Fortiter ille facit qui miser esse potest. Mart. H.—Joachaz did not quite sink under his troubles. T.

VER. 10. Seven. To complete the number seventeen, (v. 1.) it ought to be "nine" ending. Houbigant, p. 109. See C. xiv. 23.—Years. If Jeroboam reigned in the 15th year of Amasias, and his father in the 37th of Joas, and not in the 39th almost complete, this king would have held dominion eighteen years. Ibid.

VER. 12. Juda, who was the aggressor. See 2 Par. xxv. 23.

VER. 13. Throne, for ten years, along with his father. From this period the reign of Azarias must be dated. C. xv. 1. Usher. C.

14 Now Eliseus was sick of the illness whereof he died: and Joas, king *of Israel, went down to him, and wept before him, and said: O my father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the guider thereof.

15 And Eliseus said to him: Bring a bow and arrows. And when he had brought him a bow and arrows,

16 He said to the king of Israel: Put thy hand upon the bow. And when he had put his hand, Eliseus put his hands over the king's hands,

17 And said: Open the window to the east. And when he had opened it, Eliseus said: Shoot an arrow. And he shot. And Eliseus said: The arrow of the Lord's deliverance, and the arrow of the deliverance from Syria: and thou shalt strike the Syrians in Aphec, till thou consume them.

18 And he said: Take the arrows. And when he had taken them, he said to him: Strike with an arrow upon the ground. And he struck three times, and stood still.

19 And the man of God was angry with him, and said: If thou hadst smitten five or six, or seven times, thou hadst smitten Syria even to utter destruction: but now three times shalt thou smite it.

20 And Eliseus died, and they buried him. And the rovers from Moab came into the land the same year.

21 *And some that were burying a man, saw the rovers, and cast the body into the sepulchre of Eliseus. And when it had touched the bones of Eliseus, the man came to life, and stood upon his feet.

22 Now Hazael, king of Syria, afflicted Israel all the days of Joachaz.

23 And the Lord had mercy on them, and returned to them, because of his covenant, which he had made with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob: and he would not destroy them, nor utterly cast them away, unto this present time.

24 And Hazael, king of Syria, died; and Benadad, his son, reigned in his stead.

25 Now Joas, *the son of Joachaz, took the cities out of the hand of Benadad, the son of Hazael, which he had taken out of the hand of Joachaz, his father, by war; three times did Joas beat him, and he restored the cities to Israel.

CHAP. XIV.

Amasias reigneth in Juda: he overcometh the Edomites, but is overcome by Joas, king of Israel. Jeroboam, the second, reigneth in Israel.

IN the second year^d of Joas, son of Joachaz, king of Israel, reigned Amasias, son of Joas, king of Juda.

2 *He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign; and nine and twenty years he reigned in Jerusalem; the name of his mother was Joadan, of Jerusalem.

3 And he did that which was right before the Lord, but yet not like David, his father. He did according to all things that Joas, his father, did,

4 But this only, that he took not away the high places; for yet the people sacrificed, and burnt incense in the high places:

5 And when he had possession of the kingdom, he put his servants to death that had slain the king, his father.

6 But the children of the murderers he did not put to death, according to that which is written in the Book of the law of Moses, wherein the Lord commanded, saying: 'The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: but every man shall die for his own sin.'

7 He slew of Edom, *in the valley of the Salt-pits,

* A. M. 3165.—^b Eccle. xlviii. 14.— A. M. 3168.—^d A. M. 3165.

VER. 14. The illness. Heb. Sept. and Chal. "of his sickness whereof he also died;" insinuating that he had been before afflicted with this infirmity.—To him, probably in the same city of Samaria.—Wept. See how he loved him! He was concerned for the welfare of his kingdom. M.—Thereof. Eliseus had addressed Elias in the same terms. C. ii. 12. C.

VER. 17. East, looking towards Galaad, (H.) which the Syrians occupied. M.—These actions were all significative and prophetic. The throwing of a dart was formerly the mode of declaring war. Virg. Æneid ix. Justin (ii.) says, "Alexander first threw a javelin, as against a hostile country." Thus also the ancients took possession. Varro. V. Max. iii. &c. The people of Andros and Chalcis, sent each a deputy to seize Acanthos, when it had been abandoned by its inhabitants. The man from Andros, perceiving the other before him, threw his dart at the gate, and it was decided that he had thus lawfully obtained possession. Plutarch, q. Græc. Selden, Mare. Claus. iv.—The action of Joas may be considered in both lights.—Them. We do not read the particulars of this battle: but it must have been very bloody. One of the three victories (v. 25) of Joas was probably obtained at Aphec, (C.) a place memorable for the victory of Achab, over the same Syrians. 3 K. xx. 26. M.

VER. 18. Still. This shewed a degree of remissness. H.—It was natural for the king to conclude, that the more he struck the earth, the greater would be his success; (C.) and the prophet had, perhaps, insinuated as much. M.

VER. 19. Angry. Sept. "grieved." H.—Or seven is omitted in Heb. and Sept. This text proves that God knows what would take place conditionally. T.—If, &c. By this it appears, that God had revealed to the prophet that the king should overcome the Syrians, as many times as he should then strike on the ground; but, as he had not, at the same time, revealed to him how often the king would strike, the prophet was concerned to see that he struck but thrice. Ch.—Joas was assured that he should consume the Syrians. But this was to be understood, provided he performed his part, (M. T.) and that destruction was not said to be entire. H.

VER. 20. Buried him, near Samaria. M.—He had been chosen by Elias sixty-eight years before, and had lived eleven with him. His perfect character is given, Eccle. xlviii. 13. His double spirit represents the plenitude of grace in Jesus Christ; as his raising of the child to life, in such a wonderful manner, denotes his incarnation. The waters of Jericho made sweet, and the healing of Naaman, set before us the virtue of baptism: as the widow's oil shews the great graces which are bestowed by Christ upon his Church. The children devoured, and the Syrians struck blind, remind us of the perversity and blindness of infidels, who will not acknowledge the truth. Matt. xiii. 14. We must now see how the bones of Eliseus propheied: 1. By raising the dead to life, as a confirmation of all his former predictions; 2. as a proof of a future resurrection, of the virtue of relics, and of the influence of the saints in heaven, whose souls were formerly united to their bodies, and were filled with the Holy Spirit; (S. Cyr. of Jer. cat. xviii. Illum.) 3. in as much as this miracle was a figure of Christ's resurrection, who raised himself to life, and those who believe in him: (C.) while Eliseus, in the like state of death, had only raised another. H. S. Max. hom. i. de pasc.—Same. Sept. Heb. and Syr. "at the coming in of the year;" (H.) or, "the next year." Pagnin.

VER. 21. Eliseus. His tomb was not in the city, but in a spacious cave, the entrance to which was secured with a stone, according to custom. This was removed in the hurry, and the corpse thrown into the same recess, which had been prepared for the remains of the prophet. Josephus (ix. 8.) relates the history in a different manner, and pretends that robbers having slain a person, threw his corpse accidentally into the tomb of Eliseus. The Rabbins tell us his name was Sellum, and that he died again immediately, because he was a wicked man, which would render the miracle, in a manner, useless. C.—By it God honoured his servant, and convinced the Israelites that what he had so lately foretold, respecting the Syrians, would undoubtedly take place. M.

VER. 23. Time. Long before the captivity of Babylon, the Israelites had been led captives, to return no more in a body. Some stragglers mixed with the Jews, and inhabited the country under that appellation. It would seem that this was written before the overturning of the kingdom of Israel. H.

VER. 25. Israel, on the east side of the Jordan; (C. x. 33. C.) at least (H.) those which had been taken from his father. Jeroboam retook what had been lost by Jehu. M.—Hence both these kings are styled saviours, v. 5. C. xiv. 27. Salien.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Second, from his being associated in the empire. It was the first of his reigning alone.

VER. 3. David. Yet not with a perfect heart. 2 Par. xxv. 2.—Father. He imitated his early piety, as well as his miserable end. C.

VER. 4. But, &c. All that Amasias did, at first, was right, (v. 3.) but this only See 3 K. xxii. 24. H.—Joas had also left such high places. C. xii. 3.

VER. 6. Sin. This is the rule for human tribunals, to which God is not restrained. Salien. Ezec. xviii. 20. M.—The action of Amasias is commended as something unusual (C.) among princes, who are but too apt to exceed the bounds of moderation (H.) to revenge their murdered parents. C.

VER. 7. Edom who had rebelled under Joram. C. viii. 20. The particulars of this war are given, 2 Par. xxv. 5. Josephus (ix. 9.) says, Amasias designed (477) ten thousand men, and took the rock by war, and called the name thereof Jectehel, unto this day.

8 Then Amasias sent messengers to Joas, son of Joachaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying: Come, let us see one another.

9 And Joas, king of Israel, sent again to Amasias, king of Juda, saying: A thistle of Libanus sent to a cedar-tree, which is in Libanus, saying: Give thy daughter to my son to wife. And the beasts of the forest, that are in Libanus, passed, and trod down the thistle.

10 Thou hast beaten and prevailed over Edom, and thy heart hath lifted thee up; be content with this glory, and sit at home; why provokest thou evil, that thou shouldst fall, and Juda with thee?

11 But Amasias did not rest satisfied. So Joas, king of Israel, went up; and he and Amasias, king of Juda, saw one another in Bethsames, a town in Juda.

12 And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled every man to their dwellings.

13 But Joas, king of Israel, took Amasias, king of Juda, the son of Joas, the son of Ochozias, in Bethsames, and brought him into Jerusalem; and he broke down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits.

14 And he took all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

15 But the rest of the acts of Joas, which he did, and his valour, wherewith he fought against Amasias, king of Juda, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

16 And Joas slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel: and Jeroboam, his son, reigned in his stead.

17 And Amasias, the son of Joas, king of Juda, lived after the death of Joas, son of Joachaz, king of Israel, fifteen years.

* A. M. 8194, A. C. 610.—b 2 Par. xxvi. 1.—c A. M. 8179, also to attack Amalec and Gebal in the same country.—Pits. Called the woody vale, Gen. xiv. 8. (M.) south-west of the Dead Sea, (Adric.) or rather to the south of Palmyra, towards Bosra, 8 K. ix. 18.—Rock. Petra, the capital of the country, formerly called Rekem Arke, or Hagor. Most of the houses are hewn out of the rock. Heb. Sela signifies "a rock;" and many think that this was some other place, whence the Idumeans were hurled down, after the victory. Amasias gave it the name of Jectehel, "obedience of God," in memory of his having obtained this success, in consequence of his having obeyed the prophet, and sent away 100,000, for whom he had paid 100 talents to the king of Israel.

VER. 8. Let us see one another. This was a challenge to fight. Ch. W.—The interviews of ambitious kings are often baneful. H.—Abner said in the same sense, "Let the young men rise and play," 2 K. ii. 14; and Virg. Aeneid xii. Inter se coissae viros & cernere ferro. Amasias had many reasons to be displeased with the king of Israel. He might justly redemand part of the money, (C.) as he had not employed the soldiers. H.—They had also committed depredations in Juda. Paral. Jehu had slain Ochozias, and many of his relations. C.—Josephus also observes that he now required Israel to return to his obedience, and acknowledge the power of the lawful descendants of David. Sanctius.

VER. 9. Thistle. Heb. choach, something prickly; (H.) "a thorn." Syr. and Arab. "a plum-tree." Nothing could be more cutting (C.) than this answer of Joas, to shew the king of Juda how much he despised his power. H.—The ancients were much pleased with such ingenious similes. See Judg. ix. 7.

VER. 10. Home, to boast of thy victory, (H.) but do not offer to molest others. C.—God permitted that Amasias should pay no attention to this advice, nor to the prophet who reproached him for adoring the idols which he had brought from Edom, 2 Par. xxv. 14.

VER. 11. Saw, or fought, v. 8. C. xxiii. 29. Bethsames was in the tribe of Dan, (C.) but belonging to the king of Juda.

VER. 13. Cubits. Josephus says 300, and that he led Amasias in triumph through the ruins, (Ant. ix. 10.) on the west side, (C.) or on the north. Vilalp. M.

VER. 14. Hostages, as he left Amasias, on condition he should pay tribute, (M.) and took "the children of the nobles" (Chal.) to secure his fidelity. H.

18 And the rest of the acts of Amasias, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

19 Now they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem: and he fled to Lachis. *And they sent after him to Lachis, and killed him there.

20 And they brought him away upon horses, and he was buried in Jerusalem with his fathers, in the city of David.

21 *And all the people of Juda took Azarias, who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father, Amasias.

22 He built Elath, and restored it to Juda, after that the king slept with his fathers.

23 In the fifteenth year of Amasias, *son of Joas, king of Juda, reigned Jeroboam, the son of Joas, king of Israel, in Samaria, one and forty years:

24 And he did that which is evil before the Lord. He departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin.

25 He restored the borders of *Israel from the entrance of Emath, unto the sea of the wilderness, according to the word of the Lord, the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant, *Jonas, the son of Amathi, the prophet, who was of Geth, which is in Opher.

26 For the Lord saw the affliction of Israel, that it was exceedingly bitter, and that they were consumed even to them that were shut up in prison, and the lowest persons, and that there was no one to help Israel.

27 And the Lord did not say that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven; but he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam, the son of Joas.

28 But the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did, and his valour, wherewith he fought, and how he restored Damascus and Emath to Juda, in Israel, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

A. C. 825.—d Num. xiii. 22.—e Jonas i. 1.

VER. 15. Valour. Hence it appears that Juda made a stout resistance, though Josephus would insinuate the contrary.

VER. 19. Lachis, in the tribe of Dan. Some say that the king resided there twelve years, in a kind of exile. Malvenda.—But the conspiracy only took place in the last year of his reign. Usher, A. 3194.—Some powerful men rose up against him, and the people were displeased with his conduct. M.—But the majority did not approve of his death, so that they granted him the funeral honours, and appointed his son to succeed. C.

VER. 21. Azarias. Heb. Hazarya. Sometimes printed more correctly Asiau, at others Azrien, (H.) by the blundering of transcribers, who have confounded the name of the king Ozihu (Azien or Ozias) with that of the priest Ozrichu. (Azrien.) Carpozovius maintains that Azarias and Usias are two names of the same person. Crit. p. 789. But if he should find Carpozovius, Carpozovius, and Carpozoviu, in the same book, would he not think them the same name erroneously printed? Kennicott, (Dis. i. p. 478.) who observes that the Syr. and Arab. versions have here, as in the sequel, Uzias, and S. Mat. (i. 8.) calls the king Ozias, conformably to 2 Paral. xxvi. 1. &c. The MSS. also vary. Kennicott.

VER. 22. Built, or rebuilt Elath; which gives its name to the eastern branch of the Red Sea. David had possessed all Idumea. Amasias had reconquered a great part, and his son pushed his conquests still further.

VER. 25. Wilderness, or the Dead Sea, to which place the dominion of Israel originally extended, under Jeroboam I. C.—Opher, in the tribe of Zabulon. (Ch. —Prot. "which was of Gath-hepher." H.—We have not all the works of the prophets, nor did they write all their predictions. C.—Here we learn at what time Jonas lived. M.

VER. 26. In prison is not expressed in the original, (C.) which has, "not any shut up, nor last." Neither those who had strong castles, nor the poorest people, were exempt from suffering. H.—None durst appear. 3 K. xiv. 10. M.

VER. 27. Israel, like Amalec. 1 K. xv. 3. M.

VER. 28. To Juda, or "of Juda;" Jude; (H.) as those strong cities had been conquered by David. The Syr. and Arab. omit this word entirely, and suppose, with many others, that Jeroboam kept possession of these cities. C. T.—In Israel, or "to Israel," over which he reigned. H.

29 And Jeroboam slept with his fathers, the kings of Israel; and Zacharias, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XV.

The reign of Azarias, and Joatham, in Juda: and of Zacharias, Sellum, Manahem, Phaccia, and Phacee, in Israel.

IN the seven and twentieth year^a of Jeroboam, king of Israel, reigned Azarias, son of Amasias, king of Juda.

2 He was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Jechelia, of Jerusalem.

3 And he did that which was pleasing before the Lord, according to all that his father, Amasias, had done.

4 But the high places he did not destroy, for the people sacrificed, and burnt incense in the high places.

5^b And the Lord struck the king, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and he dwelt in a free house apart: but Joatham, the king's son, governed the palace, and judged the people of the land.

6 And the rest of the acts of Azarias, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

7 And Azarias^c slept with his fathers: and they buried him with his ancestors in the city of David, and Joatham, his son, reigned in his stead.

8^d In the eight and thirtieth year of Azarias, king of Juda, reigned Zacharias, son of Jeroboam, over Israel, in Samaria, six months:

9 And he did that which is evil before the Lord, as his fathers had done: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin.

10 And Sellum, the son of Jabes, conspired against him: and struck him publicly, and killed him, and reigned in his place.

11 Now the rest of the acts of Zacharias, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

12^e This was the word of the Lord, which he spoke

^a A. M. 3194, A. C. 810.—^b 2 Par. xxvi. 21.—^c A. M. 3246, A. C. 758.

VER. 29. Slept, dying a natural death; though the idolatrous priests of Bethel falsely asserted, that Amos had foretold he should fall by the sword. Amos vii. 11.

CHAP. XV. VER. 1. Twentieth. Houbigant endeavours to shew it should be, "the 14th;" Capellus says, the 17th; (H.) and others have suspected that the number is incorrectly printed. Grot. &c.—But this expedient ought only to be adopted when no other can give satisfaction; and this difficulty may be obviated by saying, that Jeroboam's reign with his father continued six years, and that after he had held the sceptre nineteen alone, Azarias commenced; (C. Usher) or, that there was an interregnum of eleven years, which is not probable. Capel. —Azarias; otherwise called Ozias; (Ch.) and this was his real name. Grot. See C. xiv. 21. H.

VER. 3. Lord. Many laudable actions are specified, 2 Par. xxvi. 4. But at last, forgetting the instructions of the prophet Zacharias, he opened his heart to pride, the bane of great souls, and would arrogate to himself the rights of the priesthood, which brought on his leprosy. C.

VER. 4. But. In this he was not different from his father. C. xiv. 4.

VER. 5. A leper. In punishment of his usurping the priestly functions. 2 Par. xxvi. 19. Ch. W.—The priests boldly remonstrated with him, but to no effect; till the king perceived himself stricken with the leprosy. Josephus (ix. 10.) says, a dreadful earthquake was felt at the same time, which is supposed to be that mentioned Amos i. 1. and Zac. xiv. 5; (S. Jerom. &c.) though Usher produces some chronological difficulties against this opinion: but they are founded on error C.—Free. Par. apart; at a distance from all. H.—The like rules were observed in cities, as in the camp. Lev. xiii. 46. M.—Ozias was in a manner dead to all civil transactions; and Isaias (vi. 1.) probably refers to this event. Syr. and Arab. "he remained hidden." Josephus (ibid.) says, "leading a private life." Thus aiming at too much, he lost all! H.

VER. 7. David: or, Ozias slept. . . and they buried him in the field of the royal sepulchre, because he was a leper, and Joatham, &c. 2 Par. xxvi. 23. H.—Such an aversion had people for lepers, that they would not even bury them with others. C.—Yet he was treated with some honour. W.

to Jehu, saying: Thy children, to the fourth generation, shall sit upon the throne of Israel. And so it came to pass.

13 Sellum, the son of Jabes, began to reign in the 'nine and thirtieth year of Azarias, king of Juda: and reigned one month in Samaria.

14 And Manahem, the son of Gadi, went up from Thersa, and he came into Samaria, and struck Sellum, the son of Jabes, in Samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.

15 And the rest of the acts of Sellum, and his conspiracy which he made, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

16 Then Manahem destroyed Thapsa and all that were in it, and the borders thereof from Thersa, because they would not open to him: and he slew all the women thereof that were with child, and ripped them up.

17 In the nine and thirtieth year of Azarias, king of Juda, reigned Manahem, son of Gadi, over Israel, ten years, in Samaria.

18 And he did that which was evil before the Lord: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, all his days.

19 And Phul, king of the Assyrians, came into the land, and Manahem gave Phul a thousand talents of silver, to aid him and to establish him in the kingdom.

20 And Manahem laid a tax upon Israel, on all that were mighty and rich, to give the king of the Assyrians, each man fifty sicles of silver: so the king of the Assyrians turned back, and did not stay in the land.

21 And the rest of the acts of Manahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

22 And Manahem slept with his fathers: and Phaccia, his son, reigned in his stead.

23 In the fiftieth year of^f Azarias, king of Juda, reigned Phaccia, the son of Manahem, over Israel, in Samaria, two years.

^d A. M. 3232, A. C. 772.—^e Supra x. 30.—^f A. M. 3223.—^g A. M. 3243, A. C. 761.

VER. 8. Thirtieth. Usher would place an interregnum of eleven years and a half, after the death of Jeroboam, to make the first year of Zacharias correspond with the 38th of Azarias, during which, he supposes, the troubles mentioned Amos vii. and viii. happened. But this interregnum has no foundation, v. 5. C.—Capellus says it would have lasted above 22 years. H. and Houbigant would read, 28th; the latter adds ten years to the reign of Zacharias. The transcriber might easily omit the years, as they end in the same manner as months. Arab. has, "six years;" whence we may infer, that the copies formerly varied. The exploits of Zacharias require a longer space than six months. Chron. sac. p. 107. 110.

VER. 10. Place, having before taken his measures with the conspirators; (v. 15) so that he had not to fear the resentment of the people. He cut off the last king of the family of Jehu; (H.) probably at Jezrahel. Osee i. 5. C.

VER. 14. Manahem, general of Zacharias, revenged his death, and then returning to Tharsa, treated it and the neighbouring city, Thapsa, with the utmost fury. So Josephus, ix. 11. But his conjectures are to be received with caution.

VER. 17. Ten years. Dating from the time that he was enabled to enjoy the throne in peace, after a struggle of eleven months. Usher, A. 3233.—Phul rendered him this service, having received presents, and one of the golden calves, (Osee x. 6. and xiii.) besides 1000 talents, v. 19.

VER. 18. Days. During which Jeroboam or Manahem swayed the sceptre. C.—The Sept. refer all his days to the following verse, (H.) which seems to intimate that the tribute was required annually, as may be gathered from the Vulg. veniebat. M.—But Phul probably received the talents only once, to indemnify him for his trouble. He was perhaps the father of Sardanapalus, who joined his name, Phul, to his own, Sardan; as Merodach assumed that of Baladan. Isai. xxxix. 1. Profane authors style the father of Sardanapalus, Anacindaraxes, &c. Phul was the first of the Assyrian monarchs who came into the land of Israel, where we shall find them too often in the sequel. He probably repented on the preaching of Jonas, and averted the scourge (C.) which fell upon the city during the reign of his son. H.

VER. 20. Rich. The lower classes were not perhaps entirely exempted.

24 And he did that which was evil before the Lord: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin.

25 And Phacee, the son of Romelia, his captain, conspired against him, and smote him in Samaria, in the tower of the king's house, near Argob, and near Arie, and with him fifty men of the sons of the Galaadites, and he slew him, and reigned in his stead.

26 And the rest of the acts of Phaceia, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

27 In the two and fiftieth year of Azarias, king of Juda, reigned Phacee, the son of Romelia, over Israel, in Samaria, twenty years.

28 And he did that which was evil before the Lord: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin.

29 In the days of Phacee, king of Israel, came Theglathphalasar, king of Assyria, and took Aion, and Abel, the house of Maacha, and Janoe, and Cedee, and Asor, and Galaad, and Galilee, and all the land of Nephthali: and carried them captives into Assyria.

30 Now Osee, son of Ela, conspired, and formed a plot against Phacee, the son of Romelia, and struck him, and slew him: and reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of Joatham, the son of Ozias.

31 But the rest of the acts of Phacee, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

32 In the second year of Phacee, the son of Romelia, king of Israel, reigned Joatham, son of Ozias, king of Juda.

33 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem:

* A. M. 3245, A. C. 759.—A. M. 3246, A. C. 758.—2 Par. xxvii. 1.

VER. 25. Near. Heb. "may be along with Argob, &c." who were in the conspiracy. Chal. Sept. &c. C.

VER. 26. Israel. This book is lost. H.—The Paral. takes no notice of these kings; but relates only the transactions of the kings of Juda after Joas gained the victory; which greatly abridged their power. C. xiv. 14.

VER. 27. Romelia. S. Jerom (ep. 142.) places the birth of Romulus in this year, which preceded the famous Olympiads. But Salien defers that event 14 years. A. C. 769. H.

VER. 29. Assyria, at the invitation of Achaz. C. xvi. 7.—Theglathphalasar is probably the same who is called Ninus the younger, or Thilgam, (Ælian. animal. xii. 21.) by profane writers. He re-established the kingdom of Nineve in part, after the city had been taken, under his father Sardanapalus, by Arbaces, founder of the empire of the Medes, and by Belesus, Narbonassar, or Baladan, who reigned at Babylon. Such was the state of the eastern empires at this time. C.—Aion, or Ahion, (8 K. xv. 20.) perhaps the Enan of Eze. xlviii. 1. H.—Maacha, whither Seba had retreated, 2 K. xx. 14. Heb. Abel-beth-maacha.—Galaad, comprising all the east of the Jordan. C.—Nephthali, to the north-west. H.—Thus the Galileans and Nephthali were transported into Assyria, to repeople it after the late ravages. The tribes in Galaad were fixed on the river Gozan, 1 Par. v. 26.

VER. 30. In the twentieth year of Joatham. That is, in the twentieth year from the beginning of Joatham's reign. The sacred writer chooses rather to follow here this date, than to speak of the years of Achaz, who had not yet been mentioned. Ch.—But Joatham reigned only 16 years, (v. 38) so that this was the fourth year of Achaz. H.—Usher says that Osee did not ascend the throne till nine years after the death of Phacee, as he is asserted to have commenced his reign in the twelfth year of Achaz. C. xvii. 1. But another difficulty arises from the mention of this 20th year, as Phacee would have reigned 22, instead of 20; (v. 27.) for Joatham only commenced in the second of Phacee. To reconcile these passages, we may conclude that Osee conspired against the king of Israel in the 18th year of Joatham, gained possession of part of the kingdom in the 20th of the same prince, and of the whole in the 12th of Achaz. C.—The pretended interregnum ought to be rejected, as the murderer of the late king would not delay to ascend the throne. Houbigant adds 10 years to the reign of Phacee, as well as to that of Zacharias: the dates assigned to the kings of Israel being otherwise so much deficient, p. 118.

VER. 34. Did he. Yet he did not imitate his presumption. God gave great success to his enterprises, 2 Paral. xxvii. 2.

the name of his mother was Jerusa, the daughter of Sadoc.

34 And he did that which was right before the Lord: according to all that his father Ozias had done, so did he.

35 But the high places he took not away: the people still sacrificed, and burnt incense in the high places: he built the highest gate of the house of the Lord.

36 But the rest of the acts of Joatham, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

37 In those days the Lord began to send into^d Juda, Rasin, king of Syria, and Phacee, the son of Romelia.

38 And Joatham slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, his father; and Achaz, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XVI.

The wicked reign of Achaz: the kings of Syria and Israel war against him: he hireth the king of the Assyrians to assist him: he causeth an altar to be made after the pattern of that of Damascus.

IN the seventeenth year of Phacee, the son of Romelia, reigned Achaz, the son of Joatham, king of Juda.

2 Achaz was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years^f in Jerusalem: he did not that which was pleasing in the sight of the Lord, his God, as David, his father.

3 But he walked in the way of the kings of Israel: moreover, he consecrated also his son, making him pass through the fire, according to the idols of the nations which the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel.

4 He sacrificed also, and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

^d Isaia vii. 1.—^e 2 Par. xxviii. 1.—^f A. M. 3262, A. C. 742.

VER. 35. Gate, repairing that on the east. Jeremias (xxvi. 10.) mentions the new gate. Joatham also made great additions to the walls of Jerusalem. Paral.

VER. 37. Began. Achaz was much more infested by these princes.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 2. When he, Joatham, "had begun," cepisset. H.—Thus Junius evades the following difficulty. D.—Sixteen, consequently he died when he was 36 years old. As Ezechias was 25 when he came to the throne, Achaz must have been a father at 11 (C.) or 12 years of age. Bochart, Dissert. xxiii.—S. Jerom asserts the same of Solomon, and observes, that "many things which seem incredible in Scripture, are nevertheless true." ep. ad Vital. He, with some others, has recourse to a miracle. Others suppose that Ezechias was an adopted son, or kinsman, or that the numbers are incorrect, &c. But we are assured by respectable authors, (H.) that people have children very soon in the hotter climates. Busbeque (Ep. 3.) says, in Colchis many are mothers at ten years of age; and to convince the incredulous, produce their infants "not much bigger than a large frog." Albert the Great says he knew one who had a child at 10, and Navarre (ap. Sanchez. Mat. vii. 2. 5. disp. 104.) was credibly informed that a similar fact was seen at Naples. Mandesle observes that this is common in India. He says one had lately a child at six years of age, which was there thought remarkable. S. Jerom mentions a boy who became a father at 10, and Sanchez relates that the same happened in Spain. A boy under 12 had a child by a girl of 10, in Provence. Scaliger Elenc. The Roman laws fix upon the age of 14 for males, and 12 for females^g lawfully marrying; (H.) though many examples of people having children before that age are produced by Tiraqueau, 6. conn. 36. Yet physicians require 13 in males, and 14 years complete in females, before they be capable of this effect. Genebrard. S. Aug. (de Civ. xv. 11. and xvi. c. ult. and in ps. civ.) maintains that a person of 10 years of age is unfit for generation. C.—Malitia supplet aetatem. Achaz was a monster of wickedness. H.—In the first year of his reign, and in the fifth Olympiad, the Ephori were appointed at Sparta under Theopompus, nephew of Lyncurgus, Salien. A. C. 759.

VER. 3. Fire, to purify him (or them, Paral. filios, all were treated thus. H.) according to the superstitions of the pagans: omnia purgat edax ignis. Ovid Fast. Theod. q. 16. M.—Others believe that the child was burnt to death in honour of Molech, and in imitation of the Chanaanites. Ps. cv. 37. Deut. xviii. 10. The Carthaginians were required by Gelon, king of Syracuse, to lay aside this most barbarous custom. Phil. apoph. Yet, "infants were publicly immolated to Saturn, in Africa, till the proconsulate of Tiberius, who ordered the priests to be exposed on those same trees which shaded their crimes, as on votive crosses. This the soldiers, my countrymen, who executed the proconsul's orders, est

5 *Then Rasin, king of Syria, and Phacee, son of Romelia, king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem to fight: and they besieged Achaz, but were not able to overcome him.

6 At that time Rasin, king of Syria, restored Aila to Syria, and drove the men of Juda out of Aila: ^band the Edomites came into Aila, and dwelt there unto this day.

7 *And Achaz sent messengers to Theglathphalasar, king of the Assyrians, saying: I am thy servant, and thy son: come up, and save me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and out of the hand of the king of Israel, who are risen up together against me.

8 And when he had gathered together the silver and gold that could be found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures, he sent it for a present to the king of the Assyrians.

9 And he agreed to his desire: for the king of the Assyrians went up against Damascus, and laid it waste: and he carried away the inhabitants thereof to Cyrene; but Rasin he slew.

10 And king Achaz went to Damascus to meet Theglathphalasar, king of the Assyrians, and when he had seen the altar of Damascus, king Achaz sent to Urias, the priest, a pattern of it, and its likeness, according to all the work thereof.

11 And Urias, the priest, built an altar according to all that king Achaz had commanded from Damascus: so did Urias, the priest, until king Achaz came from Damascus.

* Isaiah vii. 1.—^b A. M. 8263.

testify; and still the sacred crime is perpetrated in secret." Tert. Apol. viii.—How tenacious are people of old errors! H.

VER. 5. Then. In punishment of such enormous crimes, God first delivered Achaz into the hands of Rasin, 2 Par. xxviii. S. Jer. in Isai. vii.) and afterwards Phacee destroyed 120,000 in one battle, and took 200,000 prisoners, whom the prophet Oded persuaded him to release. Ibid. v. 8. 11. Salien (A. C. 759.) observes that the two kings then joined their forces, and besieged Jerusalem the following year, but to no purpose. H.—Isaias was sent before the siege to encourage Achaz, and to promise the miraculous birth of the Messiah, as a sign that he should be delivered: and to convince him of it the more, he foretold that the two kings should be destroyed before his own son should be able to say father. Isai. vii. 8, &c. Yet as Achaz did not still amend his life, God sent the same kings the following year (M. 8263) to lay waste the country. C.

VER. 6. Juda. Lit. Jews, Judeos, (H.) which is the first time we find this appellation. D.—Aila, or Elath, which had been taken by Ozias. C. xiv. 22. M.—It seems never to have belonged to Syria, as it was too far from Damascus. Instead of Aram, we should therefore probably read Edom, which words in Heb. are extremely similar, and have been often mistaken, (Judg. xi. 17. C.) particularly as we find that the Edomites took possession of the city. This latter word is indeed Syrians in Heb. &c. H.—Josephus and others maintain that the Syrians seized and kept the place. But they were most likely only invited by the Idumeans to come to their assistance. C.

VER. 7. Son, vaesal, or under thy protection. C.—Save me. Achaz sinned by thus placing his confidence in man, after the prophet had given him such assurance from the Lord. M.—He has soon reason to repent of having brought this proud ally into his dominions, as he proved a great scourge; (2 Par. xxviii. 20.) no less than the Saxons did to the ancient Britons.

VER. 9. Cyrene, not in Egypt, where he had no power, but near the river Cyrus, (C.) in higher Media. Josephus.—Heb. "and took it and carried the inhabitants captives to Kir," (H.) whence the Syrians had come originally. Amos ix. 7. Arbaces, who had dismembered Media from the Assyrian empire, was now dead, and the king of Nineve had retaken several cities, occupying Rages, &c. (Tob. i. 16. &c.) before Deioce mounted the throne, and extended the empire of the Medes. Usher.—The people of Sepharvaim lived also on the borders of Media. C. xviii. 11.

VER. 10. To meet, and congratulate the king on his victory, and perhaps to divert him from proceeding any farther. C.—But it was too late, v. 7. H.—The same year Phacee hastened to defend his dominions, but was slain by Osee. Salien, A. C. 757.

VER. 11. Priest, or pontiff, as no other would have dared to make this innovation. Salien.—He was guilty of a great weakness; as the altar of Solomon had been so solemnly consecrated by God's presence. All changes in religion are dangerous. The Machabees behaved with far greater respect, with regard to the altar which had been profaned. 1 Mac. iv. 45. C.—Isaias (viii. 2.) calls this priest a faithful, or competent, witness, (H.) on account of his dignity, not

12 And when the king was come from Damascus, he saw the altar and worshipped it: and went up and offered holocausts, and his own sacrifice;

13 And he offered libations, and poured the blood of the peace-offerings, which he had offered, upon the altar.

14 But the altar of brass that was before the Lord, he removed from the face of the temple, and from the place of the altar, and from the place of the temple of the Lord: and he set it at the side of the altar towards the north.

15 And king Achaz commanded Urias, the priest, saying: Upon the great altar offer the morning holocaust, and the evening sacrifice, and the king's holocaust, and his sacrifice, and the holocaust of the whole people of the land, and their sacrifices, and their libations: and all the blood of the holocaust, and all the blood of the victim, thou shalt pour out upon it: but the altar of brass shall be ready at my pleasure.

16 So Urias, the priest, did according to all that king Achaz had commanded him.

17 And king Achaz took away the graven bases, and the laver that was upon them: and he took down the sea from the brazen oxen that held it up, and put it upon a pavement of stone.

18 The musach also for the sabbath, which he had built in the temple, and the king's entry from without, he turned into the temple of the Lord, because of the king of the Assyrians.

19 Now the rest of the acts of Achaz which he did, approving his conduct. Salien.—But he had not erected this altar when the prophet spoke thus of him. D.

* A. M. 8264.

VER. 12. And worshipped. Heb. simply, "and the king approached to the altar, and offered on it (13) his holocaust and his meat (or flour) offering, and poured his drink-offering, and the blood of his peace-offerings, upon the altar." H.—He dedicated it with all sorts of sacrifices, forbidding any other to be used in the temple. But shortly after he shut up the temple entirely. 2 Par. xxviii. 24. and xxix. 3. He offered sacrifice to idols upon this altar, (Abul.) while the priests made use of the same altar to sacrifice to the true God, (v. 15. M.) unlawfully.

VER. 14. And from. Heb. "from between the new altar and the house of," &c. H.—Achaz had placed his altar before that of Solomon: but he afterwards removed the latter from the right-hand of the sanctuary, to a corner of the court, on the north side. C.—In the midst of his distress, he despised God; sacrificed to the gods of the Syrians, as more powerful and victorious than the Lord; pillaged the temple, which he shut up during the remainder of his reign, (H.) and erected altars for himself in all the corners of Jerusalem. 2 Par. xxviii. 24.

VER. 15. Morning, as prescribed in the law. Ex. xxix. 38.—King's ordained for sin: (Lev. iv. 22.) or instituted by Solomon, who left a fund. H. 2 Par. viii. 12. M.—The law says nothing about the king's daily holocaust and sacrifice of flour. H.—But it probably was offered after the morning and evening sacrifices. This Achaz calls his own, (v. 12. C.) as he had not yet laid aside the practice.—Pleasure, Heb. "to inquire about." H.—I shall do what I think proper with it. M.

VER. 17. Stone, all out of avarice, (H.) and contempt of the Lord, who chastized him. M.—He took away the plates of brass, &c. from the doors, (C.) which Ezechias was forced to replace, (H.) and afterwards to take down for the Assyrian. C. xviii. 16. C.

VER. 18. Musach. The covert, or pavilion, or tribune for the king. Ch.—Achaz would not have his ally to be in the court, but placed his throne in the temple. D.—Sept. "and the foundation of the chair he built in the house of the Lord." H.—Heb. "and the (musac) covert, or tribune of the sabbath, which they had built in the temple, and the king's entry without, he turned (H.) round (M.) from the temple, for the king of Assur." He despoiled these rich ornaments, to gratify the Assyrian. H.—Solomon had built a most magnificent tribune. 2 Par. vi. 18. See C. xi. 6. The musach of Juda, was the pulpit; from which the law was read. Isai. xxii. 8. The king's tribune was near the eastern gate, which was only opened on the sabbath. Ezech. xli. 1. Some believe that the musach was a large curtain, suspended over the court, to keep off the sun's beams. Eupolemus speaks of some very magnificent ones, (Euseb. præp. ix. 34.) as does also Josephus; such as those which covered the Roman theatres. Others think it was a tent for the priests to take a little rest, or for the door-keepers, or a chest designed to receive the contributions for the repairs of the temple, or for the king to distribute his alms, or a covered throne for him to sit down on. C. are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

20 And Achaz slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, *and Ezechias, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XVII.

The reign of Osee. The Israelites, for their sins, are carried into captivity: other inhabitants are sent to Samaria, who make a mixture of religions.

IN the twelfth year of ^bAchaz, king of Juda, Osee, the son of Ela, reigned in Samaria, over Israel, nine years.

2 And he did evil before the Lord: but not as the kings of Israel that had been before him.

3 *Against him came up Salmanasar, king of the Assyrians; and Osee became his servant, and paid him tribute.

4 And when the king of the Assyrians found that Osee, endeavouring to rebel, had sent messengers to Sua, the king of Egypt, that he might not pay tribute to the king of the Assyrians, as he had done every year, he besieged him, bound him, and cast him into prison.

5 And he went through all the land: and going up to Samaria, he besieged it three years.

6 ^dAnd in the ninth year of Osee, the king of the Assyrians took Samaria, and carried Israel away to Assyria: and he placed them in Hala, and Habor, by the river of Gozan, in the cities of the Medes.

7 For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord, their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and they worshipped strange gods.

8 And they walked according to the way of the nations which the Lord had destroyed in the sight of the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel: because they had done in like manner.

9 And the children of Israel offended the Lord, their God, with things that were not right: and built them high places in all their cities, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

10 And they made them statues and groves on every high hill, and under every shady tree:

11 And they burnt incense there upon altars, after the manner of the nations which the Lord had removed from their face: and they did wicked things, provoking the Lord.

12 And they worshipped abominations, concerning which the Lord had commanded them that they should not do this thing.

13 And the Lord testified to them in Israel, and in Juda, by the hand of all the prophets and seers, saying: *Return from your wicked ways, and keep my precepts, and ceremonies, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers: and as I have sent to you in the hand of my servants the prophets.

14 And they hearkened not, but hardened their necks like to the neck of their fathers, who would not obey the Lord, their God.

15 And they rejected his ordinances, and the covenant that he made with their fathers, and the testimonies which he testified against them: and they followed vanities, and acted vainly: and they followed the nations that were round about them, concerning which the Lord had commanded them that they should not do as they did.

16 And they forsook all the precepts of the Lord, their God: and made to themselves two molten calves, and groves, and adored all the host of heaven: and they served Baal,

17 And consecrated their sons, and their daughters, through fire: and they gave themselves to divinations, and soothsayings: and they delivered themselves up to do evil before the Lord, to provoke him.

18 And the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from his sight, and there remained only the tribe of Juda.

19 But neither did Juda itself keep the commandments of the Lord, their God: but they walked in the errors of Israel, which they had wrought.

* 2 Par. xxviii. 27.—^b A. M. 3274, A. C. 730.—^c Infra xviii. 9. Tobias i. 3.

^d A. M. 3283. Infra xviii. 10.—Jerem. xxv. 5.

VER. 19. Book. Heb. "in the chronicles;" or, "in the book of the annals." H.

VER. 20. With them; but not in the same sepulchre, on account of his impiety. 2 Par. xxviii. 27. C.—In the 5th year of his reign, the Idumeans harassed the country, and in the 6th, the Philistines took several towns; (Salien) so that he fell a prey to enemies on all sides, and was memorable for nothing but impiety and disasters. H.—Rome was built, and Numa born, on the 21st of April, in the 9th year of Achaz, and the first of the 7th Olympiad. Salien, A. C. 751.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Twelfth. Houbigant would substitute 14th, to make the dates agree, p. 113. See C. xv. 30. H.—Till this time, Osee had been tributary to the Assyrian monarch. Grotius.—Heb. may be, "in the 12th year . . . Osee . . . had reigned . . . nine years;" which is true. C.—He reigned as long afterwards, v. 6. H.

VER. 2. Him. The Jews say, that he did not hinder his subjects from going to Jerusalem to adore. One of the golden calves had been sent away by Manahem. Osee x. 5. C.—Yet under this less wicked king the nation is destroyed, as their crimes were come to the height; and Osee had not sufficient virtue to suspend the stroke of divine justice any longer. H.

VER. 3. Salmanasar, who is called Salman, or Salomo; (Osee x. 14.) and Ene-massar, in the Greek of Toby. The Tyrians relate that he took many of their towns, but that Tyre sustained a siege of five years. Joseph. ix. 14.

VER. 4. Sua; probably Sabachon, king of Ethiopia, who made himself master of Egypt, and burnt king Bocchoris alive. Herodotus (ii. 137.) calls him Abacus. Jacquetot thinks that Sethon is meant, and that he was invaded by Sennacherib on account of this league with Osee. C.—Prison, after he had taken the city, (H.) which held out three years. This great city was then reduced to a heap of ruins, and so continued till after the captivity of the Jews, (1 Esd. iv. 17.) when it began to be peopled again. The inhabitants revolted against Alexander the Great, who placed Macedonians in their city, and gave the territory to the Jews. It was afterwards seized by the kings of Egypt and of Syria. But Hyrcan retook it, and levelled it with the ground. Gabinus built another town here, which bore his name till Herod greatly enlarged it, and called it Sebaste. C.—The prophets describe the distress of Samaria. Osee x. 4. and xiv. 1. Mic. i. 6. Jer. xxxi. 5.

VER. 6. Medes. See C. xvi. 9. The great maxim and policy of these nations, was to transport the conquered nations to a distant country, in order to prevent any revolts. C.

VER. 9. Offended. Heb. "They concealed (or spoke secretly, H.) words, which were not right before the Lord;" (C.) being guilty of hypocrisy or of blasphemy. H.—Watchmen: the meanest huts. T.—All was contaminated. C.—Towers were erected to guard the flocks from thieves. 2 Par. xxvi. 10. M.

VER. 10. Groves. Heb. Asherim, Astarte or Venus, to whom "the groves" were consecrated. C. xxi. 7. and xxiii. 4. C.

VER. 11. Removed by the sword, (M.) or by flight. H.

VER. 12. Abominations. Heb. gilulim, "idols of dung."—Thing. Lit. "word."

VER. 13. Seers. See 1 K. ix. 9. M.—God never ceased to admonish the rebels. H.—Jer. xxv. 5. M.

VER. 15. Testimonies. The ceremonial law was in memory of some great transactions, as the sabbath was of the creation; and the whole law was given with great solemnity, in presence of witnesses. C.

VER. 16. Heaven: sun and moon; and the stars, which were like the soldiers of the two former. This expression is very common in Scripture.

VER. 17. To. See C. xvi. 3.—Delivered. Heb. "sold." 3 K. xxi. 20. 1 Mac. i. 16. C.—To provoke. This was the consequence of their wickedness. W.

VER. 18. Sight, as objects of horror, cast away from the temple, and from the promised land.—Tribes, or kingdom. See 3 K. xii. 20. Israel began to be rejected by God, when the schism took place. H.—It was entirely lost, when Salmanasar took the people into captivity. Some few were left; and these formed a part of the kingdom of Josiah, on their returning to the service of the true God, (2 Par. xxxiv. 6.) while others fled into Egypt. Osee viii. 13. and ix. 3. C.

20 And the Lord cast off all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, till he cast them away from his face:

21 *Even from that time, when Israel was rent from the house of David, and made Jeroboam, son of Nabat, their king: for Jeroboam separated Israel from the Lord, and made them commit a great sin.

22 And the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam, which he had done: and they departed not from them,

23 *Till the Lord removed Israel from his face, as he had spoken in the hand of all his servants, the prophets: and Israel was carried away out of their land to Assyria, unto this day.

24 And the king of the Assyrians brought people from Babylon, and from Cutha, and from Avah, and from Emath, and from Sepharvaim: and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel: and they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof.

25 And when they began to dwell there, they feared not the Lord: and the Lord sent lions among them, which killed them.

26 And it was told the king of the Assyrians, and it was said: The nations which thou hast removed, and made to dwell in the cities of Samaria, know not the ordinances of the God of the land: and the Lord hath sent lions among them: and behold they kill them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land.

27 And the king of the Assyrians commanded, saying: Carry thither one of the priests whom you brought from thence captive, and let him go, and dwell with them: and let him teach them the ordinances of the God of the land.

28 So one of the priests, who had been carried away captive from Samaria, came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should worship the Lord.

29 And every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the temples of the high places, which the Samaritans had made, every nation in their cities where they dwelt.

30 For the men of Babylon made Sochothbenoth: and the Cuthites made Nergel: and the men of Emath made Asima.

31 And the Hevites made Nebahaz, and Tharthac. And they that were of Sepharvaim burnt their children in fire, to Adramelech and Anamelech, the gods of Sepharvaim.

32 And nevertheless they worshipped the Lord. And they made to themselves, of the lowest of the people, priests of the high places, and they placed them in the temples of the high places.

33 And when they worshipped the Lord, they served also their own gods, according to the custom of the nations out of which they were brought to Samaria:

34 Unto this day they follow the old manner: they fear not the Lord, neither do they keep his ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment, which the Lord commanded the children of Jacob, whom he surnamed Israel:*

35 With whom he made a covenant, and charged them, saying: You shall not fear strange gods, nor shall you adore them, nor worship them, nor sacrifice to them.

* 3 Kings xii. 19.—b Jer. xxv. 9.

* Gen. xxxii. 28.

VER. 23. Day. If Esdras was the author of this book, as it is very probable, this observation would tend to show how much more favourably the Jews were treated than the kingdom of Israel, which was still, for the most part, in captivity. C.

VER. 24. King. Assaraddon, who led away the remnants of Israel, and fulfilled the prediction, Isai. vii. 8. D.—Babylon, or the territory. These people had been lately conquered from the Babylonian empire, from Syria, &c.—Cutha: the greatest part were from this city; so that the Samaritans were afterwards called Cutheans.—Emath, on the Orontes.—Sepharvaim; or the Saspire, near Media. C.—We find several other places mentioned, 1 Esd. iv. 9. H.

VER. 25. Lions. The Sam. Chronicle says the fruits, though beautiful to the eye, were of a poisonous quality; and Josephus, as usual, (ix. 14.) alters the text, saying that the people were afflicted with pestilence, and the oracle being consulted, told them to worship the High God; on which account, they desired the king to send them a priest. C.—These nations had not been accustomed to fear the Lord in their own country: but God was more offended when they exercised their idolatrous worship in that land, which he had chosen in a particular manner for himself. M.—He suffers wickedness and infidelity to prevail to a certain point; but when his patience is exhausted, (C.) all nature fights for him against the wicked. H.

VER. 26. King; Assar-adon. 1 Esd. iv. 2. They did not send as soon as they came into the country.—Land. They reason according to their false notions, as if a plurality of gods were not incompatible: and all would go on well, if each were served according to his will. On the same principle, they united the worship of the true God with that of idols, (C.) as had been done before by the Israelites. M.—Yet God having shewn that he could have forced them to comply, (Tostat.) was pleased to remove the scourge; as if he preferred that imperfect worship rather than to suffer pure idolatry to reign. Genebrard.

VER. 27. Let him. Heb. Chal. Sept. "them go." Probably more went; but one was of superior dignity. He might have been priest of the golden calves, as none of the priests of Jerusalem had yet been taken. Hence he taught the Cutheans to join the worship of God with that of idols. Some think that no part of the Scripture was used among them, till the building of the temple by Sanballat, on Mount Garizim: (Le Quien, Antiquité, v. 13.) but this is extremely improbable. How should he pretend to teach the law without the books of Moses? H.—The Samaritans have retained the Pentateuch in the Phœnician character, while the Jews have insensibly adopted the Chaldee, during their captivity. On some occasions, these people have boasted of their descent from the patriarchs. Jo. iv. 12. and 20. But in times of danger, they have confessed their true origin. Joseph. ix. fin. and xii. 5.

VER. 28. Bethel. Garizim was not then honoured with the temple, as the Samaritans would pretend. Chron. They wished to join in building that at Jerusalem, under Esdras. C.—Lord. Collins would make us believe, that the Samaritans continued "for a long time" without the Pentateuch, and all "heathens for many ages." But the first supposition "is to me incredible," says Kennicott; and Hottinger himself allows, that the priests did bring back a copy of the law "exactly corresponding with the autograph of Moses." Exert. p. 8. And as for the Samaritans being heathens, Prideaux, whom this infidel writer quotes, (H.) says, "consistently with his Bible, that they continued in that gross idolatry of worshipping other gods in conjunction with the True; which last words are very unfairly omitted." Kennicott, Diss. ii. p. 115.—This was the true origin and state of this mixture of nations, who were sent to cultivate the lands of Samaria. H.

VER. 29. Dwelt. This impure service did not deserve a mitigation of the late chastisement. But God often punishes in this world (H.) to manifest his glory, (Jo. ix. 8.) and spares to display his power (C.) and goodness. H.—He had sufficiently convinced these nations of his dominion over all.

VER. 30. Socoth-benoth, "the tents of young women," who prostituted themselves once in their lives at Babylon, in honour of Mylitta. Herod. ii. 199.—Nergel, "light." C.—The Pyreia (H.) of the Persians are famous in history. Strabo xv. Selden, Synt. ii. 8.—Asima, like an ape, goat, &c. C.

VER. 31. Hevites, who came from Ava.—Nebahaz. "Nebo the seeing, or living and possessing." Nebo was a famous idol of Babylon.—Tharthac; perhaps Sar, (prince) Sak, or Sesar, (Jer. xxv. 26. and li. 41.) the sun, &c.—Adramelech, "the magnificent king" and Anamelech, "the king of clemency," may denote the sun and moon; as these were the divinities commonly adored in the East, under various names. The same victims were offered to these as to Moloch and Saturn, whence we may infer, that they were the same idols. S. Jerom translates the work of Eusebius on the Heb. (C.) and places without any disapprobation of his opinion, that Socoth-benoth, &c. were the names of towns, which the people built in Samaria. H.

VER. 32. Worshipped, or appeared to worship: for true religion admits of no false god. W.—Lowest. This expression sometimes means the most noble. H.—But the priests were chosen from the midst of the people, without examination. They employed the priest, whom the king had sent for the worship of the true God, whilst others were appointed to serve the idols. C.

VER. 34. His ceremonies. Heb. "they fear not the Lord, neither do they after their statutes." Prot. H.—This involves a sort of contradiction, unless we explain it of the Israelites; though they had not been mentioned before. There is a confusion in the original text; and v. 41 seems to require that we should understand it in this manner, as the Cutheans could hardly be blamed for neglecting a thing of which they had before no knowledge. The Israelites are justly blamed for obstinately continuing in their prevarication, even in the midst of their captivity. The Syr. and Arab. translate, "The Israelites have been 36 But the Lord, your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, with great power, and a stretched-out arm, him shall you fear, and him shall you adore, and to him shall you sacrifice.

37 And the ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment, which he wrote for you, you shall observe to do them always: and you shall not fear strange gods.

38 And the covenant that he made with you, you shall not forget: neither shall ye worship strange gods,

39 But fear the Lord, your God, and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.

40 But they did not hearken to this, but did according to their old custom.

41 So these nations feared the Lord, but nevertheless served also their idols: their children also, and grand-children, as their fathers did, so do they unto this day.

CHAP. XVIII.

The reign of Ezechias: he abolisheth idolatry, and prospereth. Sennacherib cometh up against him: Rabshaces soliciteth the people to revolt; and blasphemeth the Lord.

IN ^athe third year of Osee, the son of Ela, king of Israel, reigned ^bEzechias, the son of Achaz, king of Juda.

2 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Abi, the daughter of Zacharias.

3 And he did that which was good before the Lord, according to all that David, his father, had done.

4 He destroyed the ^chigh places, and broke the statues in pieces, and cut down the groves, and broke the brazen serpent, ^dwhich Moses had made: for till that time the children of Israel burnt incense to it: and he called its name Nohestan.

5 He trusted in the Lord, the God of Israel: so that forced to leave their country, because they have abandoned the Lord; and they have not obeyed his laws, his precepts, and his ordinances, which he gave to," &c. Many adopt this explanation. Jun. Vatab. &c. C.—Sept. make these people unite the true and the false worship, as v. 41. "They did according to their judgment. These fear, and do according to their justifications (δικαιοσύνας) and decision; and according to the law," &c. H.

^a 2 Par. xxviii. 27. and xxix. 1.—^b A. M. 3277, A. C. 727.—^c A. M. 3278.—^d Num. xxi. 9.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 1. Third, far advanced, as he was associated by his father in the last year of his reign, (C.) or three years before its termination. D.

VER. 3. Good; opening the temple, celebrating the Passover with extraordinary magnificence, &c. He had invited people from all Israel, and at their return they broke many statues. Ezechias provided for the subsistence of the Levitical tribe, by ordering the laws to be put in execution in their favour. 2 Par. xxix. and xxx.

VER. 4. Groves. The people were now more obedient, being terrified at the chastisement of Israel, (C.) though Samaria was not taken till the sixth year of this good king; who carried his reform farther than most of his predecessors, (H.) in destroying the high places which had been unlawfully (C.) retained, as consecrated to the true God. See v. 22. H.—Yet Josias had still some to remove. M.—Nohestan; that is, their brass, or a little brass. So he called it in contempt, because they had made a god of it. Ch.—Before, this image had been treated with due respect. "When any relic or image becomes an occasion of abuse in the Catholic Church, it is thus taken away, or the error is otherwise corrected. See S. Aug. de C. x. 8. Ser. 14. de Verb. Ap. &c. W.—Some of the ancients assert, that Ezechias suppressed many books of Solomon, on account of similar abuses. But this seems not to be well attested. We know that he made a collection of some of his sentences. Prov. xxv. 1.

VER. 5. Like him. Ezechias was remarkable for many excellent qualities. Yet we must not push these comparisons too far, contrary to the intention of the sacred writers. The same eulogium is given to Josias, (C. xxiii. 25.) and David seems to be preferred. C. xix. 34. These three are particularly commended. Eccli. xlix. 5. C.—Their virtues were certainly different in some respects. T.

VER. 7. Wise. Heb. "with success." Syr. &c. "he was victorious wherever he went."—Rebelle. The Assyrian assumed an undue authority in consequence after him there was none like him among all the kings of Juda, nor any of them that were before him:

6 And he stuck to the Lord, and departed not from his steps, but kept his commandments, which the Lord commanded Moses.

7 Wherefore the Lord also was with him, and in all things, to which he went forth, he behaved himself wisely. And he rebelled against the king of the Assyrians, and served him not.

8 He smote the Philistines as far as Gaza, and all their borders, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

9 ^aIn the fourth year of king Ezechias, which was the seventh year of Osee, the son of Ela, king of Israel, Salmanasar, king of the Assyrians, came up to Samaria, and besieged it,

10 And took it. For after three years, in the sixth year of Ezechias, that is, in the ninth year of Osee, king of Israel, Samaria was taken: ^b

11 And the king of the Assyrians carried away Israel into Assyria, and placed them in Hala, and in Habor, by the rivers of Gozan, in the cities of the Medes:

12 Because they hearkened not to the voice of the Lord, their God, but transgressed his covenant: all that Moses, the servant of the Lord, commanded, they would not hear, nor do.

13 ^cIn the fourteenth year of king Ezechias, Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, came up against the fenced cities of Juda, and took them.

14 Then Ezechias, king of Juda, sent messengers to the king of the Assyrians, to Lachis, saying: I have offended, depart from me: and all that thou shalt put upon me, I will bear. And the king of the Assyrians put a tax upon Ezechias, king of Juda, of three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold.

15 And Ezechias gave him all the silver that was of the words of Achaz, (C. xvi. 7.) and arrogated to himself the authority of doing what he pleased with the people, v. 32. Ezechias having formed various alliances, judged it necessary to make some resistance. Yet the prophet Isaias (xxx. 1.) complains of his applying to the Egyptians. C.

^a Supra xvii. 6. Tob. i. 2.—^b A. M. 3288.—^c 2 Par. xxxii. 1. Eccli. xlviii. 20. Is. xxxvi. 1.

VER. 8. City. Thus he punished them for their late invasion. 2 Par. xxviii. 18.

VER. 9. Samaria. The same history is given, C. xvii. 3. C.

VER. 11. By the rivers. Gozan was the name of the river, as above; (H.) so that Salien suspects it should be fluvii, "of the river." M.

VER. 13. Sennacherib's expeditions in Egypt and Asia are mentioned by Herodotus (ii. 141.) and Berosus, (Joseph. x. 1.) but they do not say that he passed farther than Pelusium, (C.) the frontier on the Egyptian side of Palestine. H.—These expeditions might have been performed in less than eight months, during the 14th year of Ezechias, who fell sick, perhaps soon after the ruin of Sennacherib's army. C. xx. 1. Isaias (x. 28.) represents the Assyrian proceeding from Gabaa towards Egypt, and thence he ascended to attack the cities of Juda, (v. 25.) Manressa, (Mic. i. 15.) &c. While he was before Lachis, Ezechias, dreading the horrors of war, purchased a peace: but the tyrant soon after sent to require him to surrender at discretion; and in the mean time he went to besiege Lebna, where his envoys found him, having received no answer from the king of Juda. The haughty Assyrian being obliged to go to meet the king of Chus, sent insolent letters to Ezechias; but the latter was assured that all his menaces were to be despised, and on the same night that Sennacherib left Lebna, the angel destroyed 185,000 of his men. It is thought that the siege of Lachis did not take place till three years after Sennacherib had come into Palestine, and after he had spent that time in attacking Egypt, C. xix. 24. Joseph. x. 2 and 3.—He attempted afterwards to take the southern cities of Juda, in order to cut off all communication with Egypt; as Nabuchodonosor, Holofernes, and Eupator probably intended to do. Jer. xxiv. 7. Judith vi. and vii. 1 Mac. vi. 31. C.—Offended, and been imprudent. M.—Gold, so that the value of each was equal D.—Josephus reads, "or thirty," as if that quantity of gold would suffice. H.—The talent contains 3000 sicles. M.—The heart of Ezechias fainted at the approach of so great an army, though he had before made the greatest preparations C. xx. 2. 2 Par. xxxii. 5. Eccli. xlviii. 19 T found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures.

16 At that time Ezechias broke the doors of the temple of the Lord, and the plates of gold which he had fastened on them, and gave them to the king of the Assyrians.

17 And the king of the Assyrians sent Tharthan, and Rabsaris, and Rabsaces, from Lachis, to king Ezechias, with a strong army, to Jerusalem: and they went up and came to Jerusalem, and they stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the way of the fuller's field.

18 And they called for the king: and there went out to them Eliacim, the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and Joahe, the son of Asaph, the recorder.

19 And Rabsaces said to them: Speak to Ezechias: Thus saith the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this confidence, wherein thou trustest?

20 Perhaps thou hast taken counsel, to prepare thyself for battle. On whom dost thou trust, that thou darest to rebel?

21 Dost thou trust in Egypt, a staff of a broken reed, upon which if a man lean, it will break and go into his hand, and pierce it? so is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all that trust in him.

22 But if you say to me: We trust in the Lord, our God: is it not he, whose high places and altars Ezechias hath taken away: and hath commanded Juda and Jerusalem: You shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem?

23 Now, therefore, come over to my master, the king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, and see whether you be able to have riders for them.

24 And how can you stand against one lord of the least of my master's servants? Dost thou trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen?

VER. 16. On them. All must go to meet the exigencies of the state. Grot. Jur. ii. 5.—The doors of temples and palaces were frequently adorned with the most precious metals, as Homer describes the palace of Alcinoüs; (Ody. H.) and Tavernier (vii. 12.) speaks of some mosques in Persia, the doors of which are covered with plates of silver. See Joseph. Bel. vi. 6.

VER. 17. Tharthan, or Thathania, (1 Esd. v. 3.) and in the Greek of Isa. xx. 1. means "the president of tributes," or presents. The two other names denote "the chief eunuch," and "the chief butler," and are not proper names. These officers were sent at the head of a strong army to Jerusalem.—Field, by the torrent Cedron, to the east. There they defied the king, or perhaps endeavoured to persuade him to come out, that they might seize his person. C. They came in a military capacity, rather than as ambassadors.

VER. 18. House. Josephus says, "procurator of the palace or kingdom." H.—The house often refers to the temple, when placed without any explanation. Isa. xxii. 15. C.—Eliacim was prefect of the prætorium, (Salien) or grand master of the palace. He was richly dressed, and possessed a great authority over the people.—Scribe. See Judg. viii. 14. This Sobna, according to S. Jerom, is different from the one who was over the house in the days of Manasses, before Eliacim was restored to his office, (C.) unless he also was a different person. T.—The Jews say Sobna was deprived of his dignity, on account of his having betrayed the lower city to Sennacherib. See Isa. xxii. 21.—Recorder, or chancellor, &c. 2 K. viii. 18. C.

VER. 20. Counsel. Heb. "Thou sayest (but they are but vain words) I have counsel and strength for the war." Prot. H.—You have vainly boasted. C.—Isai. xxvi. 5. C.

VER. 21. Pierce it. He alludes to the reeds which grow on the Nile. See Delrio, adag. 210. Egypt had been already greatly harassed in the expedition of Sennacherib, so that no succour could be expected thence. C.

VER. 22. Jerusalem. Many were perhaps displeased at this injunction, and Rabsaces endeavoured to excite them to revolt, and insinuates (C.) that the king had made God his enemy, (H.) and must expect punishment from him. Theod. in Isai. xxxvi. 5. He perhaps was ignorant that these altars were contrary to his law. M.—Yet the Jews say that Rabsaces was son of Isaias, (ap. S. Jer. bib.) or a Samaritan.

VER. 23. Over. Josephus insinuates that it is a challenge to fight, and that Rabsaces was so confident of victory, that he made this contemptuous proposal, 25 Is it without the will of the Lord that I am come up to this place to destroy it? The Lord said to me: Go up to this land, and destroy it.

26 Then Eliacim, the son of Helcias, and Sobna, and Joahe, said to Rabsaces: We pray thee, speak to us, thy servants, in Syriac: for we understand that tongue: and speak not to us in the Jews' language, in the hearing of the people that are upon the wall.

27 And Rabsaces answered them, saying: Hath my master sent me to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words, and not rather to the men that sit upon the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink their urine with you?

28 Then Rabsaces stood, and cried out with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said: Hear the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians.

29 Thus saith the king: Let not Ezechias deceive you: for he shall not be able to deliver you out of my hand.

30 Neither let him make you trust in the Lord, saying: The Lord will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians.

31 Do not hearken to Ezechias. For thus saith the king of the Assyrians: Do with me that which is for your advantage, and come out to me: and every man of you shall eat of his own vineyard, and of his own fig-tree: and you shall drink water of your own cisterns, 32 Till I come, and take you away, to a land, like to your own land, a fruitful land, and plentiful in wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olives, and oil and honey, and you shall live, and not die. Hearken not to Ezechias, who deceiveth you, saying: The Lord will deliver us.

33 Have any of the gods of the nations delivered their land from the hand of the king of Assyria?

(H.) knowing that the subjects of Ezechias were not good horsemen, (C.) or that they were comparatively (H.) so few in number. M.—Heb. "agree, or give pledges to my master."

VER. 25. Destroy. Prosperity renders a man insolent, and the passions blind him. Rabsaces interprets success to be a sure proof of the divine approbation, and thus attempts to justify all the excesses of his master. C.—God only used Sennacherib as a rod to chastise his people. M.—The most wicked often represent themselves as the executioners of God's will, and attribute their ambition to his decrees. H.—God did not order the Assyrians to destroy the land: he rather threatened to destroy them. Isai. xxxvii. 2 Par. 32. W.

VER. 26. Syriac, or Chaldee language, which was spoken at the Assyrian court, 1 Esd. iv. 7. Dan. ii. 4. Rabsaces was acquainted with both the languages; as the Jews say he was an apostate, which they infer from this passage, and from the legates tearing their clothes when they heard him blaspheme; as they pretend this was only done when blasphemy came from the mouth of an Israelite. Grotius.—But these reasons are very weak. C.—The like was practised when any thing terrifying was heard, v. 37. H.—The reasons why the legates desire Rabsaces not to speak in a language which the common soldiers understood, was to prevent them from shewing their indignation by shooting at him, or out of fear, lest they should be induced to cause some sedition. M.

VER. 27. With you. Insolent bravado! whence some have inferred the probability of pigeons' dung being really eaten. (C. vi. 25.) C.—Rabsaces threatens them with all the horrors of famine, so that they shall eat such things, if they refuse to give up the city. M.

VER. 29. My. Heb. and Vat. Sept. "his (Sennacherib's) hand." But the other reading of the Syriac, &c. is more natural. These words do not occur Isai. xxxvi. 14.

VER. 31. Advantage. Heb. "make a blessing," or present. C.—Chal. and Syr. "pence."

VER. 32. Till. Sennacherib will remove you to another country, but it will be as good as this. He requires you to surrender at discretion. C.—Deliver us. This will not be in his power, no more than it was in that of the other tutelary gods. M.—Infidels and heretics are very foolish thus to compare their delusions with God, and his holy religion. W.

VER. 34. Enath, Enesa.—Arphad, or Arad, an island and city on the coast, (C.) near Tyre.—Of Ana, &c. "of," is not expressed in the Vulg. (H.)

34 "Where is the god of Emath, and of Arphad? where is the god of Sepharvaim, of Ana, and of Ava? have they delivered Samaria out of my hand?"

35 Who are they among all the gods of the nations that have delivered their country out of my hand, that the Lord may deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?

36 But the people held their peace, and answered him not a word: for they had received commandment from the king that they should not answer him.

37 And Eliacim, the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and Joahe, the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Ezechias, with their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabsaces.

CHAP. XIX.

Ezechias is assured of God's help by Isais, the prophet. The king of the Assyrians still threateneth and blasphemeth. Ezechias prayeth, and God promiseth to protect Jerusalem. An angel destroyeth the army of the Assyrians; their king returneth to Ninive, and is slain by his own sons.

AND "when king Ezechias heard these words, he rent his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the Lord.

2 "And he sent Eliacim, who was over the house, and Sobna, the scribe, and the ancients of the priests, covered with sackcloths, to Isaias, the prophet, the son of Amos.

3 And they said to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy: the children are come to the birth, and the woman in travail hath not strength.

4 It may be the Lord, thy God, will hear all the words of Rabsaces, whom the king of the Assyrians, his master, hath sent to reproach the living God, and to reprove with words, which the Lord, thy God, hath heard: and do thou offer prayer for the remnants that are found.

5 So the servants of king Ezechias came to Isaias.

6 And Isaias said to them: Thus shall you say to your master: Thus saith the Lord: Be not afraid for the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of the Assyrians have blasphemed me.

^a Infra xix. 18. Isaias x. 9. and xxxvii. 13.—^b Supra xvii. 24.

and it may be explained as if Ana and Ava were idols of Sepharvaim. M.—But they are commonly supposed to be cities. H.—Ana is probably a city (D.) built on both sides of the Euphrates, four days' journey from Bagdat. Isaias does not specify these cities in the parallel passage, but they are found in the letter addressed to Ezechias, Isai. xxxvii. 13.—Samaria, or the inhabitants who had come from distant parts, and had perhaps revolted. We do not however find that Sennacherib had conquered them, nor does he pretend that all these conquests were made by himself. C.—He gives part of the honour to his ancestors. C. xix. 12. 2 Par. xxxii. 18. But he asserts that all the gods of the respective countries of Samaria, &c. had yielded to his superior force. H.—Strange infatuation in a man who looked upon the idols as gods! They are in effect nothing. 1 Cor. viii. 4. But as their votaries were of a different persuasion, ought they not to have acted and spoken consistently? Yet Suetonius (Caius, c. 5.) informs us, that "on the day when Germanicus died, the temples were stoned, the altars of the gods overturned, the domestic lares thrown out by some into the open air;" all to express their grief and indignation at the gods, for not preserving his life. H.

VER. 36. The people. The three legates, (C.) Isai. xxxvi. 21. And they held their peace. H.

VER. 37. Rent, as was customary on such dismal occasions. Joakim is reprehended for not showing this mark of consternation, when he heard the dreadful predictions of Jeremiah, xxxvi. 24. C.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 3. Blasphemy. The enemy insults over us (C.) and over God H.—Birth. Heb. "the mouth of the womb." Vatab. This comparison shews the utmost distress to which the people of Jerusalem were reduced. Any great anguish is denoted by a woman in travail. Deut. ii. 25. Ps. xlvii. 7. Homer (Iliad A) thus describes the uneasiness of Agamemnon. C.—Ezechias found himself unable to contend with the Assyrian, though he wished to do it. M.—Without courage, all hope of escaping is lost. D.

VER. 4. It may. Lit. "if perhaps the Lord hear." H.—Found. After such (486)

7 Behold I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a message, and shall return into his own country, and I will make him fall by the sword in his own country.

8 And Rabsaces returned, and found the king of the Assyrians besieging Lobna: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachis.

9 And when he heard say of Tharaca, king of Ethiopia: Behold, he is come out to fight with thee: and was going against him, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying:

10 Thus shall you say to Ezechias, king of Juda. Let not thy God deceive thee, in whom thou trustest: and do not say: Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hands of the king of the Assyrians.

11 Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of the Assyrians have done to all countries, how they have laid them waste: and canst thou alone be delivered?

12 Have the gods of the nations delivered any of them, whom my fathers have destroyed, to wit, Gozan, and Haran, and Reseph, and the children of Eden, that were in Thelassar?

13 Where is the king of Emath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, and of Ana, and of Ava?

14 And when Ezechias had received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and had read it, he went up to the house of the Lord, and spread it before the Lord,

15 And he prayed in his sight, saying: O Lord God of Israel, who sittest upon the cherubims, thou alone art the God of all the kings of the earth: thou madest heaven and earth:

16 Incline thy ear, and hear: open, O Lord, thy eyes, and see: and hear all the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent to upbraid unto us the living God.

17 Of a truth, O Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have destroyed nations, and the lands of them all.

18 And they have cast their gods into the fire: for devastation has been made in the country, particularly by carrying away the ten tribes, (C.) Ezechias recommends the kingdom to the prayers of the prophet; as we are exhorted to have recourse to the intercession of the saints. H.

^a Isaias xxxvii. 1.—^d A. M. 3294, A. C. 710.

VER. 7. Upon him, so that he shall be eager enough to return, (C.) he is filled with consternation at the approach of Tharaca, (M.) and at the destruction of his men by an angel, v. 35. H.—Lachis and Lobna were both in the mountains of Juda, to the south of Jerusalem. Jos. x. 31. C.

VER. 9. When he, Sennacherib, though it would seem to refer to Rabsaces. H.—Tharaca, called Thearchon by Strabo, (i. and xv. p. 653.) extended his conquests as far as the pillars of Hercules. Megasthenes.—The Egyptians seem to have called him Sethon, and assert that the god (Vulcan) appeared to him on the approach of Sennacherib, assuring him of his protection. He encamped near Pelusium, where the enemy's army on its arrival was infested with rats, which destroyed their armour, and made them an easy prey. Herodot. ii. 141. It is probable that Taphnes, near Pelusium, was the capital city of Tharaca. Isai. xviii. and xxx. 4. He does not appear to have joined battle with Sennacherib, whose army was destroyed on its march (ib. x. 24.) the very night that the prophet promised Ezechias a deliverance.

VER. 12. Gozan, in Less Armenia; Haran and Reseph in Palmerene Syria. Thelassar, or Syria. They were nations not very remote. See C. xviii. 34. C.

VER. 14. Before the Lord, to move him to revenge his own cause, (H.) and to shew that he looked upon the Lord as a father, with the utmost confidence (M.) and resignation. He spreads the blasphemous letter (H.) before the ark, which was the special place for prayer. W.

VER. 15. Earth. He attempts to make some reparation for the blasphemies which had been uttered (C.) and written. H.

VER. 16. Unto us is not in Heb. or Sept. D.—God, as if he were not able to deliver us. M.

VER. 21. Virgin. The few who adhere to the Lord despise all idols and their votaries. W.—Of Sion and of Jerusalem may denote those places. Towns and they were not gods, but the work of men's hands, of wood and stone, and they destroyed them.

19 Now therefore, O Lord, our God, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the Lord, the only God.

20 And Isaias, the son of Amos, sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: I have heard the prayer thou hast made to me concerning Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians.

21 This is the word that the Lord hath spoken of him: The virgin, the daughter of Sion, hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn: the daughter of Jerusalem hath wagged her head behind thy back.

22 Whom hast thou reproached, and whom hast thou blasphemed? against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? against the holy one of Israel.

23 By the hand of thy servants thou hast reproached the Lord, and hast said: With the multitude of my chariots I have gone up to the height of the mountains, to the top of Libanus, and have cut down its tall cedars, and its choice fir-trees. And I have entered into the furthest parts thereof, and the forest of its Carmel.

24 I have cut down, and I have drunk strange waters, and have dried up with the soles of my feet all the shut-up waters.

25 Hast thou not heard what I have done from the beginning? from the days of old I have formed it, and now I have brought it to effect: that fenced cities of fighting men should be turned to heaps of ruins:

26 And the inhabitants of them were weak of hand, they trembled and were confounded, they became like the grass of the field, and the green herb on the tops of houses, which withered before it came to maturity.

27 Thy dwelling, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy way I knew before, and thy rage against me.

28 Thou hast been mad against me, and thy pride hath come up to my ears: therefore I will put a ring in thy nose, and a bit between thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest.

29 And to thee, O Ezechias, this shall be a sign: *Eat this year what thou shalt find: and in the second year, such things as spring of themselves: but in the third year sow and reap: plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.

30 And whatsoever shall be left of the house of Juda, shall take root downward, and bear fruit upward.

31 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and that which shall be saved out of Mount Sion: the zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.

32 Wherefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians: He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow into it, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a trench about it.

33 By the way that he came he shall return: and into this city he shall not come, saith the Lord.

34 And I will protect this city, and will save it for my own sake, and for David, my servant's sake.

35 *And it came to pass that night, that an angel of the Lord came, and slew in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand. And when he arose early in the morning, he saw all the bodies of the dead.

36 And Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, departing, went away, and he returned and abode in Ninive.

37 *And as he was worshipping in the temple of Nesroch, his god, Adramelech and Sarasar, his sons, slew him with the sword, and they fled into the land of the Armenians, and Asarhaddon, his son, reigned in his stead.

* Isaias xxxvii. 30.—Tob. i. 21. Eccli. xlviii. 24.

Isai. xxxvii. 36. 1 Mac. vii. 41. 2 Mac. viiii. 19.—Tob. i. 24.

provinces are often represented as women: the daughter of Babylon, the daughter of the sea, mean Babylon and a maritime town. Perhaps this comparison is used through tenderness and affection for a place. C.—Even the most timid female would shortly despise the fallen tyrant. H.—Wagged, out of contempt, or in a threatening manner. Pa. xxi. 8. Mat. xxvii. 39. M.

VER. 22. Of Israel. This title is often found in Isaias; xlv. 11. and xlvii. 4. &c.

VER. 23. Carmel. A pleasant fruitful hill in the forest. These expressions are figurative, signifying, under the names of mountains and forests, the kings and provinces whom the Assyrians had triumphed over. Ch.—He must have passed by Libanus, and might boast of this exploit. Other proud words to the same purpose are mentioned Isai. x. 9. and xxxiii. 9. He had made himself master of Mount Carmel, as well as of Libanus. C.

VER. 24. Strange waters, which did not run in my original dominions, (H.) or which were found by opening springs before unknown.—Shut-up, with mounds of earth, or in the banks of rivers. The army of Xerxes is said to have drunk whole rivers dry. We might also translate, "I have dried up the waters, which served as ramparts for cities." Thus Cyrus diverted the streams of the Gnidus, and of the Euphrates. Heb. also, perhaps most literally, "I will dry up the rivulets of Egypt." See Isai. xix. 6. and xxxvii. 25. C.—Prot. "all the rivers of besieged places." H.

VER. 25. I have formed it, &c. All thy exploits, in which thou takest pride, are no more than what I have decreed; and are not to be ascribed to thy wisdom or strength, but to my will and ordinance: who have given to thee to take and destroy so many fenced cities, and to carry terror wherever thou comest.—Ruins. Literally, "ruin of hills." Ch.—Prot. "Now have I brought it to pass, that thou shouldest be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps." H.

VER. 26. Of hand. Heb. "short" (C.) or contracted in hand, or power. This does not add to the glory of Sennacherib: and if the enemy had been less valiant, his victory was still to be attributed to God. H.—The Assyrian found but little resistance. C. xviii. 13.

VER. 27. In. All thy actions. M.—I knew, or disposed of, for wise purposes. Nothing shows more forcibly the dominion of God, even over the most impious. They cannot frustrate the divine decrees.

VER. 28. Ring, or hook, like that with which fishes are taken. C.—Bit. Prot. bridle, (H.) or a sort of muzzle. M.—I will treat thee like a furious beast.—Camest, without having effected what thou hadst designed. H.

VER. 29. O Ezechias is not in Heb. or Sept.; but they shew the sense. H.—Second, which was a sabbatical year. Usher. T.—We elsewhere find signs given as a proof of past events, and that they were from God, who enabled his prophet to foretell both. Ex. iii. 12. Isai. viii. 4. Thus three things are proved. 1. That the prophet is truly animated with the divine spirit. 2. That God is the author of the miracle. 3. As also of the sign which follows it, particularly if the sign be likewise miraculous. It was of the utmost importance that the people should be convinced that all proceeded from the hand of Providence, in the overthrow of Sennacherib. C.—Such things. Isaias (xxxvii. 30.) specifies apples, as they also supplied the people with food. M.

VER. 30. Upward, like a fruitful tree. H.

VER. 31. Sion. These shall repeople the land. In a higher sense, the Christian Church was propagated by the few Jews who believed. C.—Zeal, or ardent love. M.—Of hosts, is added in the Prot. version, as being deficient in the Heb. H.—It is found in several MSS. Kennicott.

VER. 32. About it, as was then the custom in besieging cities. Josephus and others suppose that Sennacherib's army was destroyed before Jerusalem. But it seems more probable it fell on the road to Egypt, v. 7. The camp, which is still shewn, might be that of Rabshakeh. C. xviii. 17. C.

VER. 33. Return. Sennacherib's life was spared for a time, that he might be covered with ignominy the longer, and suffer a more disgraceful death. H.

VER. 34. Own sake, who have chosen this city for my sanctuary. M.—David. Here again we behold the influence of the saints with God. H.

VER. 35. Night following the prediction of Isaias, (C.) or that memorable night which would be so terrible to the Assyrians after three years, v. 29. Thus we read, in that day, &c. Isai. xxvii. M.—The exterminating angel, (Ex. xi. 4. C.) an evil spirit, (Pa. lxxvii. 49.) or the guardian of the synagogue. Abulensis. —When he, Sennacherib. Heb. &c. "when they," his few attendants who were spared to announce this judgment; (Isai. xxxvii. 36. C.) or when the inhabitants of Jerusalem arose. H. It seems the carnage was effected without much noise, (C.) by fire (Rabbins) or by pestilence. Josephus. M.

VER. 37. Nesroch. Josephus calls both the idol and the temple Araske. Sennacherib persecuted the Israelites for 45 (Greek 55) days. Tob. i. 21.—Sons, as the Jews suppose they were destined for victims by their father, and got beforehand with him. S. Jer. in Isai. x. C.—Armenia. So the Prot. translate Ararat, (H.) where Noe's ark rested. This nation has been esteemed very (487)

CHAP. XX.

Ezechias being sick, is told by Isaias that he shall die: but, praying to God, he obtaineth longer life, and in confirmation thereof receiveth a sign by the sun's returning back. He sheweth all his treasures to the ambassadors of the king of Babylon. Isaias reproving him for it, foretelleth the Babylonish captivity.

IN *those days Ezechias was sick unto death: and Isaias, the son of Amos, the prophet, came and said to him: Thus saith the Lord God: Give charge concerning thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 And he turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the Lord, saying:

3 I beseech thee, O Lord, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is pleasing before thee. And Ezechias wept with much weeping.

4 And before Isaias was gone out of the middle of the court, the word of the Lord came to him, saying:

5 Go back, and tell Ezechias, the captain of my people: Thus saith the Lord, the God of David, thy father: I have heard thy prayer, and I have seen thy tears: and behold I have healed thee: on the third day thou shalt go up to the temple of the Lord.

6 And I will add to thy days fifteen years: and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of warlike, and has always asserted its liberty.—Asarhaddon. His two elder brothers were excluded, on account of their parricide. Joseph.—This prince is called Sargon in Isai. xx. 1. and Achirdon in Toby i. 24.

* 2 Par. xxxii. 24. Isai. xxxviii. 1. A. M. 3291,

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Days, before the destruction of Sennacherib's army; (v. 6. M.) though some suppose that Ezechias was afflicted with sickness, because he had not shewn sufficient gratitude for his deliverance. 2 Par. xxxii. 24. Euseb. and S. Jerom in Isai. xxxix. C.—But it might be sent only to purify him the more, &c. M.—He fell ill the same year that the Assyrian invaded his dominions, v. 6, and C. xviii. 13. The nature of his disorder is not fully known. It was probably an abscess, (C.) brought on by a fever; or an ulcer, for which the things which promote suppuration, are always proper. Thus God teaches us to make use of natural remedies, yet so as to place our whole confidence in him. II.—Others think it was a pleurisy, (John xxi. Thesaur. 26.) or a quinsy, (Barthol.) or the pestilence, &c. C.—Unto death, of an illness, which would naturally have proved mortal; as that of Benadad was the reverse. C. viii. 10.—Not live, very shortly; though he does not express the time. We should always bear in mind this awful warning. H.—The prediction was conditional, like that of Jonas; (iii. 4. C.) otherwise it would have been sinful to strive to render it ineffectual. E.

VER. 2. Wall, towards the temple; (Chal. &c.) or that he might be less distracted, and indulge his grief without restraint.

VER. 3. Before thee. The saints of the old law frequently mention their good works, (Ps. vii. 9. &c. 2 Esd. xiii. 14.) which is less common in those of the new. When God rewards our good works, he only crowns his own gifts. C.—Ezechias had sincerely desired to please God, though he might have given way to some imperfections, v. 1. H.—Weeping; because he thought that the Messias would not be one of his posterity, as he had yet no children. C. xxi. 1. S. Jerom.—The saints of the Old Testament could only be received into Abraham's bosom. We may be with Christ immediately after death; so that it is far less terrible. Phil. i. 23. H.

VER. 4. Court. Heb. her, "city;" but in the margin, (C.) elsor. Sept. δουλή, "hall," or court, is retained, and followed by the Chal. C.—Prot. "the middle court." H.

VER. 5. Day, dating from the time when Isaias spoke. Tostat.—This shewed that the cure was miraculous, and not effected by natural remedies only. T.

VER. 6. Assyrians. It is commonly supposed that this alludes to Sennacherib. But it might refer to his son, who was sending an army. Isai. xx. 1. We ought not to alter the scriptural order of the transactions, without cogent reasons.

VER. 7. Figs; dried. They are very serviceable in various disorders of the throat, to mollify, &c. Pliny xxiii. 8. Aldrov. ii.—S. Jerom (in Isai. xxxviii.) acknowledges that they might help to remove the disorder. Grotius is of a contrary opinion; (C.) and this would enhance the miracle. See Vales. xxxix. M.—At any rate, the discovery of this remedy to the prophet, and its sudden efficacy, were miraculous. C.

VER. 8. Sign. He is not incredulous, but gives the prophet an occasion of declaring by what authority he spoke thus. H.

VER. 10. Lines, according to the usual course of the sun. An instantaneous motion of this kind would, in reality, be as difficult, as the retrogradation. But it might not strike the people so much. H.—Some take the lines to designate nouns. But the sun is never up twenty hours in that country; and it must have been at such a height, as that it might appear visibly to recede, or to go forward, ten lines. We may therefore suppose, that they consisted only of half hours, (T.) or less. C.—If the retrograde motion were instantaneous, as Cajetan believes, the day would only be five hours longer than usual; (M.) but if otherwise, it would be ten; as the sun would occupy five hours in going back, and as many the Assyrians, and I will protect this city for my own sake, and for David, my servant's sake.

7 And Isaias said: Bring me a lump of figs. And when they had brought it, and laid it upon his boil, he was healed.

8 And Ezechias had said to Isaias: What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I will go up to the temple of the Lord the third day?

9 And Isaias said to him: This shall be the sign from the Lord, that the Lord will do the word which he hath spoken: Wilt thou that the shadow go forward ten lines, or that it go back so many degrees?

10 And Ezechias said: It is an easy matter for the shadow to go forward ten lines: and I do not desire that this be done, but let it return back ten degrees.

11 And Isaias, the prophet, called upon the Lord, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwards by the lines, by which it had already gone down on the dial of Achaz.

12 ^b At that time Berodach Baladan, the son of Baladan, king of the Babylonians, sent letters and presents to Ezechias: for he had heard that Ezechias had been sick.

13 And Ezechias rejoiced at their coming, and he

A. C. 713.—^b Isaias xxxix. 1.

to regain its former station. T.—Usher supposes that the night was as much shortened, that so astronomical observations may still be verified without any confusion. But that would introduce a fresh miracle. Some assert that only the shadow went back, without any derangement in the heavenly bodies. Spinosa laughs at the ignorance of those people, who mistook the effects of a parabola for a miracle. This author may boast of his superior knowledge. But how came the sages of Babylon (v. 12.) to be unacquainted with such a natural cause? How came it so opportunely (C.) at the time appointed by the prophet? What improbable explanations are not those forced to admit, who deny to the Almighty the power of changing his own works? H.—The silence of profane historians respecting this miracle, is of little consequence. Herodotus (ii. 142.) seems to hint at it, as well as at that under Josue; (x.) being informed "by the Egyptians, that during 10340 years, the sun had risen four times in an extraordinary manner. It had risen twice where it ought naturally to set, and had set as often where it should rise." He might have said more simply, that the sun had twice gone back. See Solin. 45. C.—S. Dion. Areop. ep. 7. ad Polycarp.—This last author thinks that this day was twenty hours longer than usual, supposing that the lines designate so many hours, and that the sun kept going back for ten hours. W.

VER. 11. Dial. Heb. also, "steps." S. Jerom confesses that he followed Sym. in Isai. xxxviii. 7. Whether this dial resembled one of ours, (Grotius) or was made in the form of steps, (S. Cyr. hom. 3. in Isaias, &c.) or rather of a half globe, (C.) after the Babylonian fashion, (Vitruv. ix. 9.) is not clear. Some have asserted that hours were not known to the Hebrews, before the captivity. Usher. A. 3291.—But Toby, (xii. 22.) who wrote at Nineve, under the reign of Manasses, clearly speaks of them. The Egyptians pretend that they invented water hour-glasses. But the invention of dials is attributed to the Chaldees, from whom Anaximander introduced them among the Greeks, under the reign of Cyrus. He died A. 5457.—Achaz had much to do with Theglathphalasar; (C. xvii. 8.) and probably obtained this curiosity from the same country. In more ancient times, people measured time by the length of their shadow, and were invited to a feast at such a foot, in the same manner as we should invite for such an hour. Palladius, Rustic. xii. C.—Till the year of Rome 595, when Naisica dedicated the first water hour-glass, the Romans knew not how the time passed on cloudy days. Pliny vii. 60. Vitruvius ix. 9.—Grotius supposes that the dial of Achaz was a concave semicircular gnomon, in which a globe was placed, the shadow of which fell on twenty-eight lines. D.

VER. 12. Berodach, or Merodac Baladan. Isai. xxxix. 1. C.—The latter was his father; the famous Nabonassar. D.—Letters, or books. Isai.—Sick. They came to congratulate him on his recovery, and also (M.) to inquire of the wonder that had happened upon the earth. God left him that he might be tempted, and all things might be made known that were in his heart. 2 Par. xxxii. 31. H.—If this embassy took place after the fall of Sennacherib, the king of Babylon might thank Ezechias for having stopped the career of that ambitious monarch, from whom the former had every thing to fear. C.

VER. 13. Rejoiced, at being honoured by so great a prince, (M.) who afterwards defeated Asarhaddon. T.—Heb. "hearkened unto them." But the sense of the Vulg. is preferable, and the construction of the original seems to require it, as it is also understood by the Sept. and Syriac, and by Isaias, xxxix. 2.—Spices. Heb. "precious things," (Mont.) "treasures," (Chal. Syr.) "cabinet" of jewels, &c. Vatable.—Vessels, or armour, and all his fine furniture. S. Jerom says, that Ezechias also displayed before them the treasures of the temple, which chiefly drew upon him God's displeasure. C.—He might be guilty only of a venial sin of vanity and of ingratitude: (M.) and God took occasion, from this offence, to admonish the king of the impending ruin. D shewed them the house of his aromatical spices, and the gold, and the silver, and divers precious odours, and ointments, and the house of his vessels, and all that he had in his treasures. There was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominions, that Ezechias shewed them not.

14 And Isaias, the prophet, came to king Ezechias, and said to him: What said these men? or from whence came they to thee? And Ezechias said to him: From a far country, they came to me out of Babylon.

15 And he said: What did they see in thy house? Ezechias said: They saw all the things that are in my house: There is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them.

16 And Isaias said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord.

17 Behold the days shall come, that all that is in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the Lord.

18 And of thy sons also that shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

19 Ezechias said to Isaias: The word of the Lord, which thou hast spoken, is good: let peace and truth be in my days.

20 And the rest of the acts of Ezechias, and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought waters into the city, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

21 And *Ezechias slept with his fathers, and Manasses, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXI.

The wickedness of Manasses: God's threats by his prophets. His wicked son, Anon, succeedeth him, and is slain by his servants.

MANASSES^b was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and fifty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Haphsiba.

^a A. M. 3306, A. C. 698.—^b 2 Par. xxxiii. 1. A. M. 3306.—^c 2 Par. xxxiii. 8.

VER. 17. Babylon, under the last kings of Juda. It cannot be explained of Sennacherib. C. xviii. 15.

VER. 18. Eunuchs; servants. Dan. i. 3. We only read of Manasses, who was taken to Babylon. C.—But he might have many brothers, who might be reduced to a menial condition; (Salien) as the text seems to refer to the immediate sons of Ezechias. H.—It may, however, be explained of his descendants. M. C. xxiv. 12.

VER. 19. Let. Heb. "and he added, let," &c. C.—Prot. "he said, is it not good, if peace and truth (or a solid and desirable peace) be in my days?" He is not indifferent about his family, as the Jews would insinuate (Eus. and S. Jer. in Isai. xxxix. 7. 8.) from the prophet's adding, Be comforted . . . my people; (C. xi. 1. H.) but he submits with resignation to God's decrees (S. Ambrose) and begs that God would be pleased to suffer him to die in peace, as the sentence did not seem to affect his person. H.—Josephus insinuates that he was exceedingly grieved at the distress which hung over his posterity, (Ant. x. 3.) and we are assured that Ezechias and the people entered into sentiments of humility and penance, which for a time averted the wrath of God. 2 Par. xxxii. 26.

VER. 20. City. Probably before it was besieged by Sennacherib. 2 Par. xxxvii. 4. Juda, and in the works of Isaias. Ibid. xxxii. 32. Isaias xxxvii. and xxxviii. and xxxix. The prophet gives us the canticle of this pious king, who shone with so great splendour, and did so much for the good of his people. C. xviii. 4. 5. Eccli. xlviii. 19. C.—He generously opposed the reign of vice, and though threatened with the most imminent dangers, came off with victory. Thus Jesus Christ declared war against idolatry and all vice, and established his Church in the midst of persecution. H.—Ezechias was conducted to the gates of death, and brought back; Christ rose victorious from the grave, as the holy king seems to have foreseen. Isai. xxxviii. 19. C.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 1. Twelve. Being born three years after his father's recovery—Fifty. Including the years of captivity.

VER. 2. Idols. Heb. "abominations," (C.) as their worship was attended with the greatest infamy and dissolution, and was in itself the source of God's chastisements. H.

2 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the idols of the nations, which the Lord destroyed from before the face of the children of Israel.

3 *And he turned, and built up the high places, which Ezechias, his father, had destroyed: and he set up altars to Baal, and made groves, as Achab, the king of Israel, had done: and he adored all the host of heaven, and served them.

4 And he built altars in the house of the Lord, of which the Lord said: "In Jerusalem I will put my name.

5 And he built altars for all the host of heaven, in the two courts of the temple of the Lord.

6 And he made his son pass through fire: and he used divinations, and observed omens, and appointed pythons, and multiplied soothsayers, to do evil before the Lord, and to provoke him.

7 He set also an idol of the grove, which he had made, in the temple of the Lord: "concerning which the Lord said to David, and to Solomon his son: In this temple, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name for ever.

8 And I will no more make the feet of Israel to be moved out of the land, which I gave to their fathers: only if they will observe to do all that I have commanded them, according to the law which my servant Moses commanded them.

9 But they hearkened not: but were seduced by Manasses, to do evil more than the nations which the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel.

10 And the Lord spoke in the hand of his servants, the prophets, saying:

11 'Because Manasses, king of Juda, hath done these most wicked abominations, beyond all that the Amorrites did before him, and hath made Juda also to sin with his filthy doings:

12 Therefore thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Behold, I will bring on evils upon Jerusalem and Juda:

^d 2 Kings vii. 10.—^e 2 Kings vii. 26. 8 Kings viii. 16. and ix. 5.—^f Jer. xv. 4.

VER. 3. Groves. Heb. Ashera, "the grove," or the idol of Astarte, (C.) as both were worshipped. H.—Achab, whom he imitated also in spilling the blood of the saints. M.

VER. 4. Altars, in honour of the sun, moon, and stars, (H.) in the courts of the priests and of the people. 2 Par. xxxiii. 4.

VER. 6. Fire, for purification, or as a holocaust to Moloch. See C. xvi. 3.—Divination, or, "he observed times," Arab. Mont.—Omens. Prot. "used enchantments," (H.) by means of brass or of serpents, &c. C.—Sept. agrees with the Vulg. "he took notice of birds." H.—Pythons. That is, diviners by spirits (Ch.) particularly by Apollo. He authorized and encouraged such ventriloquists, &c. Lev. xix. 31.—Soothsayers, who inspected the entrails of victims, to foretell future things. C.—Prot. "He dealt with familiar spirits and wizards." H.

VER. 7. Of the grove. Heb. "a graven thing of Ashera," the grove, or Astarte, (H.) v. 3. This was an engraving in sculpture of a sacred grove. Sa. C. xxiii. 6. T.—My name. I alone will be adored, and there allow an altar to be erected. H.

VER. 9. More, because they had received more favours and instructions from above. W.

VER. 10. Prophets; Joel, Osee, Amos, Nahum, Jonas, Abdias, Micheas, and particularly by Isaias, who was related to the king. T.—Tradition informs us that Manasses was so irritated, that he ordered Isaias to be slain with a wooden saw, (S. Aug. de C. D. xviii. 24.) for greater torment; (C.) and his companions were daily executed, Joseph. x. 3.—Isaias (xxii. 13.) seems to pronounce his sin irremissible, (C.) or that he should not, at least, escape the punishment of it, as long as he lived. But we are assured that the eyes of Manasses were at last opened by adversity, and that he performed many laudable things after his return from captivity; (2 Par. xxxiii.) so that the latter part of his reign resembled that of his father; though the beginning had been like that of the impious Achab. His coming to the throne so soon, before his pious father could have time to impress upon his mind the truths of salvation, had nearly proved his ruin. The sins of my youth, and my ignorances, remember not, O Lord, Ps. xxiv. 7. H.

that whosoever shall hear of them, both his ears shall tingle.

13 And I will stretch over Jerusalem the line of Samaria, and the weight of the house of Achab: and I will efface Jerusalem, as writings upon tables are wont to be effaced, and I will erase and turn it, and draw the pencil often over the face thereof.

14 And I will leave the remnants of my inheritance, and will deliver them into the hands of their enemies: and they shall become a prey, and a spoil to all their enemies.

15 Because they have done evil before me, and have continued to provoke me, from the day that their fathers came out of Egypt, even unto this day.

16 Moreover, ^aManasses shed also very much innocent blood, till he filled Jerusalem up to the mouth: besides his sins, wherewith he made Juda to sin, to do evil before the Lord.

17 Now the rest of the acts of Manasses, and all that he did, and his sin, which he sinned, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

18 And Manasses slept ^bwith his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Oza: and Amon, his son, reigned in his stead.

19 Two and twenty years old was Amon when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Messalemeth, the daughter of Harus, of Jetebe.

20 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, as Manasses, his father, had done.

21 And he walked in all the way in which his father had walked: and he served the abominations which his father had served, and he adored them;

22 And forsook the Lord, the God of his fathers, and walked not in the way of the Lord.

23 And his servants plotted against him, and slew the king in his own house.

24 But the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon: and made Josias, his son, their king in his stead.

25 But the rest of the acts of Amon, which he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

26 And they buried him in his sepulchre, in the garden of Oza: and his son, Josias, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXII.

Josias repaireth the temple. The book of the law is found; upon which they consult the Lord, and are told that great evils shall fall upon them, but not in the time of Josias.

JOSIAS ^awas eight years old when he began to reign; he reigned one and thirty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Idida, the daughter of Hadaia, of Besecath.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of David, his father: he turned not aside to the right hand, or to the left.

3 And in the eighteenth year of ^aking Josias, the king sent Saphan, the son of Aslia, the son of Messulam, the scribe of the temple of the Lord, saying to him:

4 Go to Helcias, the high priest, that the money may be put together which is brought into the temple of the Lord, which the door-keepers of the temple have gathered of the people.

5 And let it be given to the workmen by the overseers of the house of the Lord: and let them distribute it to those that work in the temple of the Lord, to repair the temple:

6 That is, to carpenters and masons, and to such as mend breaches: and that timber may be bought, and stones out of the quarries, to repair the temple of the Lord.

7 But let there be no reckoning made with them of the money which they receive, but let them have it in their power, and in their trust.

8 And Helcias, the high priest, said to Saphan, the scribe: ^aI have found the book of the law in the house

^a Infra xxiv. 4.—^b A. M. 8361, A. C. 643.— 2 Par. xxxiv. 1.

VER. 11. Doings. Heb. "idols," v. 2. See C. xvii. 12. H.

VER. 12. Tingle, through astonishment, as if he had been stunned with too loud a sound. 1 K. iii. 11. C.

VER. 13. The line, or rope, to pull down the walls, Lament. ii. 8. (C.) 2 K. xvii. 13. Jerusalem, which has imitated Samaria in sinning, shall experience the same fate; the same weight of punishment shall fall upon the royal family, as upon the house of Achab. H.—The prophets frequently entitle their menaces a weight, or burden. Isai. xiii. 1. M.—Sept. have, "the balance of the house, &c." as if God had weighed all the good and evil, and would now reward the people accordingly, (H.) with judgment. D.—Table, or board, covered with wax. The ancients were accustomed to write in this manner with a style which was sharp at one end and blunt at the other. Altera pars revocat quicquid pars altera fecit. Enig. Symponii. When the wax was rendered smooth, no vestige of the former writing could appear, and God threatens to destroy Jerusalem, in like manner. Heb. is variously translated. C.—Sept. "I will wipe out Jerusalem as an alabaster vase is wiped, and turned downwards." Prot. "as a man wipeth a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down." H.—Often. 1. Under Manasses; 2. under Josias and Jouchaz; 3. under the last kings of Juda. 2 Par. xviii. &c. T.

VER. 14. Leaves. Sept. "with horror," ἀνδρομαί (H.) "I will cast off." So Chal. Syr. &c.—Remnants. Juda, &c. who shall be treated like the ten tribes. C.—All shared in the punishment, though some preserved the true religion. Pa. xxxvii. 35. W.

VER. 16. Month. Chal. "extremity." All was full of blood, and impure idols, v. 11.—Besides, (absque) "without" mentioning his other scandalous sins of idolatry.

VER. 17. Sinned. It is rather wonderful that his repentance is not here noticed; but we find it mentioned 2 Par. xxxiii. 12. H.—He was probably taken prisoner by Thartan, general of Sargou, or Asarhaddon, who had reunited the two kingdoms of Assyria and Babylon. Isai. xx. 1. In prison Manasses composed a penitential prayer, which is not absolutely rejected by the Church, but left in the rank of Apocryphal writings; (C.) the authority of which is not clearly ascertained. H.—The Greek church admits this prayer into her Euchologium, (C.) or Office-book. H.—Being liberated, probably by Saosduchin, Manasses did all things well, only he left the high places, where the people had been accustomed to sacrifice to the Lord. Hozai wrote his history. 2 Par. xxxiii. 19.

A. M. 8362, A. C. 641.—^a A. M. 8380, A. C. 624.— 2 Par. xxxiv. 15.

VER. 18. Oza, a private man, to whom it had belonged; (M.) or the place where the Levite had been punished for touching the ark; (1 K. vi. 8.) or, in fine, the garden to which king Ozias had retired after he became a leper. C.—It is said, that Manasses chose this place for his tomb out of humility. Grotius.

VER. 20. Done, in his youth, flattering himself that he should also repent, when he had gratified his passions, (Glyceas) but God presently chastised this presumption, after suffering him to reign only two years. T.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 1. Eight years. After he had reigned other eight, being still but a boy, he began more seriously to seek the Lord, and purified his dominions, and the neighbouring country, from all the vestiges of idolatry. 2 Par. xxxiii. 3. He was one of the three most excellent kings of Juda, (H.) and might be said to be the last; as those who followed were displaced at pleasure by Egypt, &c. D.

VER. 3. Scribe of. Heb. "to the temple." Chal. Syr. &c. It is not certain that there was such an officer as scribe of the temple; but the king's secretary was ordered by Josas to take an account of the money contributed, C. xii. 10. C.—Josias followed the same plan. T.

VER. 4. Together, so as to be reduced into a mass, and refined by fire. Pag. n.—Sept. "seal up the money." Prot. "that he may sum the silver which," &c. H.—Let him make all be paid up that is due, (Piscat.) and cease to demand any more.—Door-keepers. Their office was of some consequence. 1 Par. ix. 26. 29. C.

VER. 5. Overseers, or undertakers. Grotius.—People of the greatest respectability were selected, so that no reckoning with them was requisite, v. 7. H.—They were thus encouraged to do the work with greater perfection. C.

VER. 8. The book of the law, (that is, Deuteronomy. Ch.—A Chrys. hom. 9 of the Lord: and Helcias gave the book to Saphan, and he read it.

9 And Saphan, the scribe, came to the king, and brought him word again concerning that which he had commanded, and said: Thy servants have gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord: and they have given it to be distributed to the workmen, by the overseers of the works of the temple of the Lord.

10 And Saphan, the scribe, told the king, saying: Helcias, the priest, hath delivered to me a book. And when Saphan had read it before the king, 11 And the king had heard the words of the law of the Lord, he rent his garments.

12 And he commanded Helcias, the priest, and Ahicam, the son of Saphan, and Achobor, the son of Micha, and Saphan, the scribe, and Asaia, the king's servant, saying:

13 Go and consult the Lord for me, and for the people, and for all Juda, concerning the words of this book which is found: for the great wrath of the Lord is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened to the words of this book, to do all that is written for us.

14 So Helcias, the priest, and Ahicam, and Achobor, and Saphan, and Asaia, went to Holda, the prophetess, the wife of Sellum, the son of Thecua, the son of Araas, keeper of the wardrobe, who dwelt in Jerusalem, in the Second: and they spoke to her.

15 And she said to them: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you to me:

16 Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will bring evils upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, all the words of the law which the king of Juda hath read:

17 Because they have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, provoking me by all the works of their hands: therefore my indignation shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched.

18 But to the king of Juda, who sent you to consult the Lord, thus shall you say: Thus saith the Lord, the in Mat.) or the Pentateuch. Joseph.—Achaz, Manasses, and Amon, had burnt (it. Solomon) as many copies as they could, (H.) but some zealous priests had concealed this copy, in a box, in the wall of the temple, (Lyran) or in the treasury adjoining it. The very hand writing of Moses, containing the record of the covenant, (or the 28, 29, 30, and 31st chapters of Deuteronomy) which was placed in (C.) or beside the ark, was now happily discovered. H.—It seems it had been misplaced, as the ark itself had been removed, 2 Par. xxiv. 14. and xxxv. 8. This venerable monument, and the dreadful menaces which it denounced, made the deepest impression upon all, as we should read the autographs of S. Matthew, &c. with far greater respect and emotion than we do the printed copies. It is not at all probable that all the books of Scripture had been destroyed, as there were always some religious souls in both kingdoms; and if some kings had already made the impious attempt, (H.) of which, however, they are never accused in Scripture, they would not have been able to carry their malicious designs into effect. Josias had, before his 18th year, made many excellent regulations, conformably to the law, which was well understood, and carefully preserved by the priests and prophets. C. 2 Par. xvii. 9.—Read it. Scribes were generally chosen from among the Levites. C.

* 2 Par. xxxiv. 28. 29. A. M. 3380, A. C. 624.

VER. 11. Garments, through zeal for God's honour, and fear of his indignation. M.

VER. 14. Holda. She is known only by this honourable embassy. It is rather wonderful that Jeremias was not consulted, as he had begun to prophesy five years before. But he probably resided at Anathoth. Sophonias appeared, perhaps, only towards the end of the reign of Josias. C.—The Second, a street, or part of the city so called; in Hebrew, Masseh. Ch.—The Sept. retain this word, (M.) or rather, "in Masena;" Heb. mishne. H.—Manasses inclosed Jerusalem with a second wall, (2 Par. xxxiii. 14. C.) unless this was done by his father, ib. xxxii. 5. T.—Here Holda is said to have kept a school. C.—Chal. "the house of doctrine," a place next in importance to the temple. Vatab.—S. Jerom speaks

God of Israel: For as much as thou hast heard the words of the book,

19 And thy heart hath been moved to fear, and thou hast humbled thyself before the Lord, hearing the words against this place, and the inhabitants thereof, to wit, that they should become a wonder and a curse: and thou hast rent thy garments, and wept before me; I also have heard thee; saith the Lord.

20 Therefore I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy sepulchre in peace; that thy eyes may not see all the evils which I will bring upon this place.

CHAP. XXIII.

Josias readeth the law before all the people: They promise to observe it. He abolisheth all idolatry; celebrateth the Phase: is slain in battle by the king of Egypt. The short reign of Joachaz, in whose place Joakim is made king.

AND* they brought the king word again what she had said. And he sent: and all the ancients of Juda and Jerusalem were assembled to him.

2 And the king went up to the temple of the Lord, and all the men of Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, both little and great: and in the hearing of them all he read all the words of the book of the covenant, which was found in the house of the Lord.

3 And the king stood upon the step: and he made a covenant with the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his ceremonies, with all their heart, and with all their soul, and to perform the words of this covenant, which were written in that book: and the people agreed to the covenant.

4 And the king commanded Helcias, the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the doorkeepers, to cast out of the temple of the Lord all the vessels that had been made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven: and he burnt them without Jerusalem, in the valley of Cedron, and he carried the ashes of them to Bethel.

5 And he destroyed the soothsayers, whom the kings of this Second, as of a gate, or part of Jerusalem, between the inner and the outer wall. C. Pelag. 2 Irad. in 2 Par. and in Sophon. i. 10. M.

† Eccl. xlix. 3.

VER. 20. Peace, before these horrors overtake the city. Josias was interred with all the usual honours, have fallen in battle. C. xxxiii. 29. C.—Instead of peace, the Alex. Sept. reads, "in Jerusalem," to which city Josias was brought from Mageddo, where he had perhaps rashly attacked the king of Egypt, with whom he had not been engaged in war. H.—This last good king was given to Juda, that the people might not pretend that they were forced to embrace idolatry by the royal power. S. Jer. D.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 2. Prophets. Chal. "scribes." But there were many prophets at this time, who were ordered to come and renew the covenant with God.—He read, in person, acting as a mediator, in imitation of Moses, Josue, Samuel, Joiada, and Ezechias. C.

VER. 3. The step. His tribune or tribunal, a more eminent place, from whence he might be seen and heard by the people. Ch.—This brazen tribune is described C. xi. 14. 2 Par. vi. 12.—To the covenant, but with much less exactitude than the king. C.

VER. 4. Order, who presided over the 24 classes of inferior priests. M.—Jonathas understands it of those who supplied the place of the high priest when he could not attend. Grotius.—Baal, the sun: (C.) in Heb. "for."—The grove, Astarte, or the moon. H.—Cedron, to the east and south of Jerusalem, where Topheth and the sepulchres of the poor, and all unclean things, were placed. Here the pagans burnt their children in honour of Moloch. See 3 K. xv. 13. 2 Par. xxix. 16. and xxx. 14.—Bethel, out of contempt for the golden calf, (H.) and to remove those impurities to a greater distance. C.

VER. 5. Soothsayers. Prot. "the idolatrous priests." Grotius thinks that camilli, or "ministers of the gods," (Serv. and Varro. vi.) may be derived from the Heb. hacemarim, "the black-vested," or cryers. The Rabbins give this title in derision to the religious of the Christian Church. There were some meianophori, of Juda had appointed to sacrifice in the high places in the cities of Juda, and round about Jerusalem: them also that burnt incense to Baal, and to the sun, and to the moon, and to the twelve signs, and to all the host of heaven.

6 And he caused the grove to be carried out from the house of the Lord, without Jerusalem, to the valley of Cedron, and he burnt it there, and reduced it to dust, and cast the dust upon the graves of the common people.

7 He destroyed also the pavilions of the effeminate, which were in the house of the Lord, for which the women wove as it were little dwellings for the grove.

8 And he gathered together all the priests out of the cities of Juda: and he defiled the high places, where the priests offered sacrifice, from Gabaa to Bersabee: and he broke down the altars of the gates that were in the entering in of the gate of Josue, governor of the city, which was on the left hand of the gate of the city.

9 However, the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the Lord, in Jerusalem: but only eat of the unleavened bread among their brethren.

10 And he defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Ennom: that no man should consecrate there his son, or his daughter, through fire, to Moloch.

11 And he took away the horses which the kings of Juda had given to the sun, at the entering in of the temple of the Lord, near the chamber of Nathanmelech, the eunuch, who was in Pharurim: and he burnt the chariots of the sun with fire.

12 And the altars that were upon the top of the upper chamber of Achaz, which the kings of Juda had made, and the altars which Manasses had made in the two courts of the temple of the Lord, the king broke down: and he ran from thence, and cast the ashes of them into the torrent Cedron.

13 The high places also that were at Jerusalem, on the right side of the mount of offence, which Solomon, king of Israel, had built to Astaroth, the idol of the Sidonians, and to Chamos, the scandal of Moab, and to Melchom, the abomination of the children of Ammon, the king defiled.

14 And he broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves: and he filled their places with the bones of dead men.

15 Moreover, the altar also that was at Bethel, and the high place, which Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, had made: both the altar, and the high place, he broke down and burnt, and reduced to powder, and burnt the grove.

16 And as Josias turned himself, he saw there the sepulchres that were in the mount: and he sent and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burnt them upon the altar, and defiled it according to the word of

* 3 Kings xi. 7.

b 3 Kings xiii. 32.

or people "in black," who honoured Isis, or the moon, by this dress; as if to condole with her on the absence of the sun. Plutarch Apuleius describes a shining black veil, which was carried in the procession of her statue.—Baal. Heb. "to Baal the son;" (C.) or rather, "to Baal, to the son." H.—People are divided whether they were one and the same idol. The Heb. mazzatoh, (C.) Sept. Mazourth (H.) is not better understood. S. Jerom translates signs of the zodiac; others have, influences, planeta, Lucifer, Venus, &c. Jot (xxxviii. 32.) designates some stars by the name of Mozruth, and Mozrim. C.

VER. 6. Grove. The idol of Astarte, or the representation of a grove in sculpture. H.—People, who were not rich enough to have a sepulchre. Jeremias (xix. 11.) threatens the people of Jerusalem with such a burial. C.—The common people here means the idolaters. 2 Par. xxiv. 4. H.

VER. 7. Effeminate. Heb. "consecrated" (C.) or "initiated" (Mont.) in the obscene mysteries of idols. See Deut. xxiii. 18. and 3 K. xv. 12. and 2 Mac. vi. 4. These men prostituted themselves (M.) even in that sacred place. C.—Prot. "he brake down the houses of the Sodomites, that were by the house of the Lord, where the women wove hangings for the grove." These hangings, tents, or dwellings, (H.) were destined for the idol; (Syr. &c.) or they were intended to hide the abominations which were committed. They are called "tents of the daughters," C. xvii. 30. C.—For. Lit. "of the grove;" luci. But the other translation is convenient for the Sept. Vatable, &c. H.

VER. 8. Bersabee; to which the Israelites went in pilgrimage, Amos v. 5. This place was situated at the southern extremity of the dominions of Juda, as Gabaa was at the northern. The priests being unable to offer sacrifice in the temple, and desirous to gain a livelihood, had been so weak as to conform to the illegal practices of the country; though they seem to have intended to worship God. Deut. xii. 11.—Altars. These might also be consecrated to the true God, but they were forbidden. There were others, placed in similar situations, in honour of Trivia, or the moon. Isai. lvii. 8. and lxx. 11. C.—City, to a person entering. Chal. Josue was the chief lay-judge, or magistrate. M.

VER. 9. Brethren. Thus people are degraded in the Christian Church, that they may suffer some confusion (C.) in this world, and repent. H.—The priests, who had offered sacrifice unlawfully, were only permitted to perform the minor offices; but provision was made for their support, that they might not be tempted to relapse. Lev. xxi. 17. 22. Ezech. xliv. 10. C.—They were reduced to the rank of Levites. M.

VER. 10. Defiled, or declared it unlawful. M.—Topheth may signify "a drum;" which the Jews say the idolaters beat, to prevent their children's cries from being heard, when they were burning in the arms of Moloch. S. Jerom interprets it "latitude," as the vale was very wide, and beautifully adorned with gardens and springs. It formed a part of the vale of Josaphat and of Cedron; (C.) or the same valley went by these different names, as well as (H.) by that of Geh-hinnon, "the vale of Ennom," whence Gehenna is formed, and applied to hell. Matt. v. 22. Mark ix. 44. &c. C.—Yet some think that the term denotes a place of torment on earth, which those deserve who say, thou fool. H.

VER. 11. Nathan-melech. Sept. "to the treasury (room. Pagnin) of Nathan, the king's eunuch," or chamberlain. H.—Pharurim, "the suburbs." Vatable. M. Chal.—It perhaps denotes the guard-house. See 1 Par. xxvi. 18.—Chariots. The aforesaid horses were designed to draw them in honour of the sun. Some (492) nations used to ride in this manner with all expedition, at its rising; and the Rabbins pretend that the king, or some other by his order, had been accustomed to ride from the eastern gate of the temple to the house of the governor, Nathanmelech. The horse was consecrated to the sun, on account of its agility.

Placet equo Persis radiis Hyperiona cinctum,

Ne detur celeri victima tarda Deo.—Ovid, Fast. i.

The Persians sacrifice the horse to the sun, that a slow victim may not be offered to the swift deity. The sun gives vigour to the whole material system, as the instrumental cause in the hand of God; and horses perceive the influence, more particularly in the warmer climates, and exult in their strength. Job. xxxix. 21. H.—Perhaps these horses had been destined for sacrifice by the infidel kings of Juda, as well as the chariots. C.—The Rhodians threw some into the sea every year. Festus.—Others think that what Josias took away, was only engraven or, that the horses had been set at liberty for superstitious observations, as was customary among the pagans. Tacit. Mor. Gerin. Sueton. in Julio.

VER. 12. Upper chamber, to be nearer the host of heaven, which they adored. H.—We are assured that the Arabs also adored the sun, and offered incense to it on the tops of their houses. The prophets often upbraid the people with this practice. Jer. xix. 13. Soph. i. 5. C.—It is wonderful that Ezechias had not before removed these remnants of his father's infidelity; and still more that Manasses, after his repentance, had not destroyed what he had unlawfully erected in the courts of the priests and of the people. But Amon might have restored them.—Run. This shews the zeal of the king. Heb. and Sept. "and thence he broke or tore them."

VER. 13. Offence: Olivet. H.—In the original, the terms are very much alike; and the Jews take a pleasure in deforming names, for which they have a horror. Solomon had erected temples here to various idols, (3 K. xi. 7.) which had probably been demolished by Ezechias, but had been rebuilt under Amon, &c. and subsisted during the minority of Josias; (C.) or they had been neglected by the pious kings of Juda, as no longer dangerous. But Josias, in the fervour of his zeal, thought proper to remove every thing that had been the occasion of offence: Heb. "of corruption."—Idol, and scandal, and abomination, are the same in Heb.

VER. 14. Statues is more proper than the Prot. "images," which would rather be torn.—Dead is not expressed in the Heb. or Sept. but must be understood. H.—The pagans had the same idea of their impurity: incestual funere classem. Virgil, Aeneid vi.

VER. 15. Bethel had perhaps fallen into the hands of Juda, after the Israelites had been led away. C.—Josias exercised the like authority throughout all Samaria, (v. 19) as the country properly belonged to the house of David, and was God's peculiar inheritance. H.—We may, therefore, conclude that He authorized Josias to act in this manner; and the new inhabitants had no interest in maintaining the superstition of those who had lived there before them. The priest sent by Asarhaddon, had taken up his residence at Bethel; whence it is inferred that the town, at that time, was in the hands of the Samaritans, (C.) as it might be still, though Josias might exercise dominion in it as lord paramount. H.

VER. 16. Spoke. Sept. subjoin some words, which seem to be lost in the original: ["when Jeroboam was standing, on the festival day, upon the altar And turning, he lifted up his eyes towards the tomb of the man of God,] the Lord, which the man of God spoke, who had foretold these things.

17 *And he said: What is that monument which I see? And the men of that city answered: It is the sepulchre of the man of God, who came from Juda, and foretold these things which thou hast done upon the altar of Bethel.

18 And he said: Let him alone, let no man move his bones. So his bones were left untouched with the bones of the prophet, that came out of Samaria.

19 Moreover all the temples of the high places which were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord, Josias took away: and he did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Bethel.

20 And he slew all the priests of the high places, that were there, upon the altars; and he burnt men's bones upon them: and returned to Jerusalem.

21 *And he commanded all the people, saying: Keep the Phase to the Lord your God, according as it is written in the book of this covenant.

22 Now there was no such a Phase kept from the days of the judges, who judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, and of the kings of Juda, 23 As was this Phase, that was kept to the Lord in Jerusalem, in the eighteenth year of king Josias.

24 Moreover the diviners by spirits, and soothsayers, and the figures of idols, and the uncleannesses, and the abominations, that had been in the land of Juda and Jerusalem, Josias took away: that he might perform the words of the law, that were written in the book, which Helcias the priest had found in the temple of the Lord.

* 3 Kings xlii. 1.—b 2 Par. xxxv. 1. A. M. 3331.—c Infra xlii. 2.

who spoke these words." H.—"The copies, from which this version was made, read differently from the modern copies," and often better. Kennicott, diss. ii. p. 335.

VER. 17. Monument. Heb. tsiun, "an eminence" of "dry" earth, (Ezec. xxxix. 15,) heaped upon a corpse; whence the Latin tumulus. Servius. C.—It seems some inscription was still to be seen on the tomb. M.—Thou, &c. Sept. "which he proclaimed against the altar." H.

VER. 18. Samaria. It seems this word has been inserted instead of Juda, as it is certain the prophet came thence, v. 17. and 3 K. xlii. 32. C.—But thus both prophets would be identified. It would rather appear that the seducing prophet, who resided at Bethel, is here said to have come out of Samaria, though that place was not raised to the dignity of a royal city (H.) till 50 years afterwards. C.—There might be a town there long before; and, at any rate, he belonged to the kingdom of Jeroboam, or of Samaria. H.—His faith in the prophet's prediction was, perhaps, thus rewarded, (M.) as his bones were left unmolested, on account of their being buried in the same sepulchre with the man of God. H.

VER. 20. Slew. Most of the Israelites who had been left, (H.) embraced the true religion, after the captivity of their brethren, (C.) and adhered to the kings of Juda, (v. 15. H.) who had taken possession of the whole country (D.) after the fall of the Assyrian empire; (T.) unless the emperors of Chaldea had given it to them as to their vassals. See v. 29. C.

VER. 21. Covenant, in Deuteronomy, C. xxii. 8. M.

VER. 22. No such, in all respects. H.—The number of paschal lambs was certainly greater when all Israel was assembled; but the other victims presented by the king and his officers during the octave is here noticed, (2 Par. xxxv. 7. M.) as they are also styled the Phase; (H.) and this explains Jo. xviii. 28. T.—Neither ought we to push these expressions too far, as they only mean, that this solemnity was very great. See v. 25. C. xviii. 5. C.

VER. 24. Spirits. Lit. "the pythons." Dent. xviii. 11; Num. xxii. 5.—Idols. Heb. Teraphim; Prot. "images." Gen. xxi. 19.—Uncleannesses. Heb. &c. "idols."

VER. 25. Like him. Every person has some peculiarity, which distinguishes him from every other. H.—Thus we say of many saints: There was none found like unto him. Eccli. xlii. 20. T.

VER. 26. Had provoked him. The impiety of this king must have been extreme since his repentance did not avert the scourge. H.—Besides, many of the people were corrupt at heart, though they were afraid of shewing it, as we learn from the prophets Jeremias and Sophonias. God therefore withdrew the d Josias, who was their bulwark, that they might feel the effects of his just gnation. C.

25 There was no king before him like unto him, that returned to the Lord with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his strength, according to all the law of Moses: neither after him did there arise any like unto him.

26 But yet the Lord turned not away from the wrath of his great indignation, wherewith his anger was kindled against Juda: because of the provocations, wherewith Manasses had provoked him.

27 *And the Lord said: I will remove Juda also from before my face, as I have removed Israel: and I will cast off this city Jerusalem, which I chose, and the house, of which I said: My name shall be there.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josias, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

29 *In his days, Pharaon Nechao, king of Egypt, *went up against the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates: and king Josias went to meet him: and was slain at Mageddo, when he had seen him.

30 And his servants carried him dead from Mageddo: and they brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre. And the people of the land took Joachaz, the son of Josias: and they anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead.

31 *Joachaz was three and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremias, of Lobna.

32 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done.

33 And Pharaon Nechao bound him at Rebla, which is in the land of Emath, that he should not reign in

* 2 Par. xxxv. 20.—* A. M. 3394, A. C. 610.—† 2 Par. xxxvi. 2.

VER. 29. Nechao, six years (Usher, A. 3394.) after he had succeeded his father Psammetichus, with whose ambitious views he was animated to attempt the conquest of Asia. Marsham sec. 18. Pharaon pretends that God had sent him to attack the Assyrians. 2 Par. xxxv. 21. But Josias thought he was only imposing on him, or speaking through fear. The Jews assert that Jeremias also opposed the king's design. 3 Esd. i. 28. S. Jer. ad Ctesip. But this does not appear from the canonical Scripture. C.—Meet him, in order to hinder him from passing through his dominions without leave; as this might prove dangerous. H.—Seen him, and fought. M.—He received a mortal wound at Mageddo, but died at Jerusalem. 2 Par. xxxv. 23. Joseph. x. 8.—Mageddo lay to the south of Cision, where Barak had fought before. Judg. v. 19. Herodotus (ii. 159.) says, that Nechos gained a victory over the Syrians at Magdolum, and took Cadytis, which is probably Cades, a strong city of Galilee, though some take it to be Jerusalem, as it may be interpreted "the holy city." C.—Mageddo is called Magdala in the Greek, and Magedan in other copies, and in the Vulg. Mat. xv. 39.

VER. 30. Sepulchre. Par. xxxv. in the monument (or mausoleum) of his fathers. Such was the end of Josias: he fell gloriously in defence of his country, as he had spent his life in promoting religion. God therefore withdrew him from the sight of the miseries which were shortly to fall on his devoted people. C. xxii. 20. H.—He was a prince of a most excellent disposition, and receives the highest encomium, v. 25. and Eccli. xlii. 1. Jeremias composed his funeral canticle, which was sung on his anniversary for many years. 2 Par. xxxv. 24. The mourning for this pious king became proverbial, and resembled that which should be made for the Messiah. Zac. xii. 11. The life and death of Josias prefigured those of Jesus Christ; who should be long expected as the restorer of the true religion, the teacher of a more excellent law, and the most innocent victim for the sins of the people. The glorious Phase under Josias, was but a faint representation of the eucharistic sacrifice. C.

VER. 31. Old. Eliacim his brother was 25. H.—Perhaps Joachaz was esteemed more by the people, as fitter to defend them against the king of Egypt, who had proceeded on his journey to attack Charchamis on the Euphrates. C.—Having placed a garriſon in it, he was met by Joachaz, and gained a victory over him at Rebla, (H.) as Sanctius gathers from Ezec. xix. 4. Hence he treated the captive king with such severity, and sent him into Egypt to die in chains. Jer. xxii. 11. Joachaz is called Sallum (in Jer.) and Jechonias, 3 Esd. i. 34. C.—He was a lion only against his own subjects. T.

VER. 32. Rebla. Syr. and Arab. "Deblat," probably (C.) Apamea on the Orontes. Chal. on Num. xxxiv. 11.

VER. 34. Joakim. Num. he asserted his dominion over him, as Nabuchod (493)

Jerusalem: and he set a fine upon the land, of a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold.

34 And Pharaoh Nechao made Eliacim, the son of Josias, king in the room of Josias his father: and turned his name to Joakim. And he took Joachaz away and carried him into Egypt, and he died there.

35 And Joakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, after he had taxed the land for every man, to contribute according to the commandment of Pharaoh: and he exacted both the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every man according to his ability: to give to Pharaoh Nechao.

36 *Joakim was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Zebida, the daughter of Phadaja, of Ruma.

37 And he did evil before the Lord according to all that his fathers had done.

CHAP. XXIV.

The reigns of Joakim, Joachin, and Sedecias.

IN his days Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came up, and Joakim became his servant three years: then again he rebelled against him.

2 And the Lord sent against him the rovers of the Chaldees, and the rovers of Syria, and the rovers of Moab, and the rovers of the children of Ammon: and he sent them against Juda, to destroy it; according to the word of the Lord, which he had spoken by his servants, the prophets.

3 And this came by the word of the Lord against Juda, to remove them from before him for all the sins of Manasses which he did;

4 And for the innocent blood that he shed, filling

* 2 Par. xxxvi. 5.—^a A. M. 3395, A. C. 609.—^a A. M. 3358, A. C. 606.

onosor did afterwards over Matthaniah. C. xxiv. 17. Daniel i. 6. C.—Eliacim means nearly the same as Joakim, "the Lord's strength," or "appointment." M. V. 36. Old, of course Josias had him at 15. Some suspect we ought to read 15 here. D.

V. 27. Fathers, or ancestors, not his immediate father Josias, v. 32. H.—Joakim chose to imitate the wicked, and was not deterred by the chastisement of his brother. C.—His character was marked with avarice and cruelty. He slew the prophet Urias. Jer. xxii. 13. and xxvi. 23. H.—S. Matthew i. 11. calls him Jechonias. (M.) 1 Par. iii. 15.

CHAP. XXIV. V. 1. Days. At the end of the third year. Dan. i. 1. Jer. xxv. 1. Nabuchodonosor, in the first year of his reign, (Jer. ib.) being associated in the empire by his aged father Nabopolassar, came up to attack Carchemish, (Jer. xli. 1.) and the other dominions of Egypt, (v. 7.) and their ally or vassal Joakim. He took the city of Jerusalem, and carried off many of the sacred vessels and captives, (Dan. i. C.) conducting the king himself to prison, for a short time, when he set him at liberty, on condition that he should pay tribute. 2 Par. xxxvi. 6. T.—Joakim obeyed for 3 years.—Then again. Heb. "he turned and rebelled." This was the first time, as he had before been subject to Egypt, and was attacked on that account. He probably took advantage of the absence of Nabuchodonosor, who was gone with haste to secure all the dominions of his deceased father. In the 7th year of his reign, he sent rovers to punish Joakim. When the latter had reigned near 11 years, they reduced the kingdom, and treated the king's corpse with the utmost indignity. Jer. xxii. 19. T.

V. 2. The rovers. Latrunculos. Bands or parties of men, who pillaged and plundered wherever they came. Ch. See C. v. 2. and Judg. xi. 3.—Nabuchodonosor could not come in person.—Prophets. Holda, sup. C. xxii. 16. Isaias C. ix. 17. Jeremias xiv. xv. xvi. &c.

V. 5. Did. Paral. And his abominations which he wrought, and the things which were found in him. This S. Jerom (Trad.) explains of certain diabolical marks on his body, showing him to be devoted to the fiend Codonosar. Such are often found on magicians. M.—Thus the priests of Baal cut themselves. 8 K. xviii. 28. H.

V. 6. Joachin, who is styled Jechonias, Mat. i. and Conias Jer. xxii. 24. The prophet counts his reign as nothing, because it was so limited by the Chaldees, and continued only three months. Jer. xxxvi. 30.

V. 7. Egypt, at least from the eastern mouth of the Nile, at Damietta, to the Euphrates. Nechao had conquered all those countries; but now he was driven into his ancient territories. After some time he attempted to relieve Jerusalem with innocent blood: and therefore the Lord would not be appeased.

5 But the rest of the acts of Joakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the Book of the words or the days of the kings of Juda? And Joakim slept with his fathers:

6 And Joachin, his son, reigned in his stead.

7 And the king of Egypt came not again any more out of his own country: for the king of Babylon had taken all that had belonged to the king of Egypt, from the river of Egypt, unto the river Euphrates.

8 Joachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Nohesta, the daughter of Elnathan, of Jerusalem.

9 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that his father had done.

10 At that time the servants of Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came up against Jerusalem, and the city was surrounded with their forts.

11 And Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came to the city, with his servants, to assault it.

12 And Joachin, king of Juda, went out to the king of Babylon, he, and his mother, and his servants, and his nobles, and his eunuchs: and the king of Babylon received him in the eighth year of his reign.

13 And he brought out from thence all the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house: and he cut in pieces all the vessels of gold which Solomon, king of Israel, had made in the temple of the Lord, according to the word of the Lord.*

14 And he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the valiant men of the army, to the number of ten thousand, into captivity: and every arti-

* Supra xxiii. 27.—^a A. M. 3405, A. C. 590.—^a Dan. i. 1.—^a Isai. xxx. 6.

Sedecias, but was repulsed by Nabuchodonosor, who soon after took Jerusalem, Jer. xxxviii. 6. C.—Again, during the reign of Joachin. D.

V. 8. Eighteen. One Heb. MS. reads "thirteen," (H.) or 3 instead of 8. Kennicott.—The number seems also (H.) to be incorrect in Paral. where we find that Joachin was only eight years old, as the Syr. and Arab. Lave 18 in both places, and it could not well be said, that he did evil, &c. (v. 9.) at the age of 8, much less that he had wives so soon, v. 15. C.—Some attempt to reconcile both places, by saying that the eight years refer to the commencement of his father's reign; (Jun.) which is very unusual: (C.) or to the servitude of Babylon, when Jerusalem was taken under Joakim. Hardouin.—Sanctius conjectures that Joachin was associated with his father when he was 10 years old, and after 8 years became sole king. Kimchi, &c. D.

V. 9. Done. Ezechiel xix. 5. and Jeremias xxii. 24 speak of this king under the name of (H.) Jechonias. C.

V. 10. Came. Heb. "servants . . he came." But several MSS. are more accurate and grammatical, "they came." Kennicott. H.

V. 12. Went out. Josephus (Bel. vi. 8.) insinuates, to save the vessels of the temple.—Jeremias had persuaded him to desist from making resistance. T.—Nabuchodonosor did not comply with his promise, (M.) but took the king and all the artificers (v. 14) to Babylon, that the former might not attempt to revenge the injuries done to his father, nor the latter contribute to fortify the towns. The Philistines had deprived the Israelites of blacksmiths, with the same design. 1 K. vii. and xiii. Angelomus. T.—Eighth; commencing, or at the end of the seventh. Jer. lii. D.

V. 13. All, or a great part; for some were still left. 1 Esd. i.—Which: or like unto those which Solomon had made. The identical vessels had been perhaps (D.) plundered. M.—Nabuchodonosor took away the sacred vessels at three different times: 1. under Joakim. These he placed in the temple of his god: and they were afterwards profaned by Baltassar, and restored by Cyrus. Dan. i. 2. and v. 2. and 1 Esd. i. 7. 2. Many he now broke in pieces. 3. Under Sedecias he took probably what that prince had made. C. xxv. 18. Bar. i. 7.—Lord, by Isaias (xxxix. 6. Sup. C. xx. 17.) and Jeremias, xv. 13.

V. 14. All; the chief men. C. xxv. 18. Ezechiel and Mardocheus were in the number.—Engraver. The first term means a workman in wood, stone, &c. the latter seems to designate a mason, smith, or garrison-soldier; (C.) or one expert in making camps; (Sa.) an engineer. T.—S. Jerom explains it of one who engraves jewels in gold. M.—Hecateus and Demetrius (ap. Joa. and Clem. Alex.) mention this transportation. D.

ficer and smith: and none were left, but the poor sort of the people of the land.

15 *And he carried away Joachin into Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his eunuchs: and the judges of the land he carried into captivity, from Jerusalem, into Babylon.

16 And all the strong men, seven thousand, and the artificers, and the smiths, a thousand, all that were valiant men, and fit for war: and the king of Babylon led them captives into Babylon.

17 ^b And he appointed Matthaniah, his uncle, in his stead: and called his name Sedecias.

18 Sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremias, of Lobna.

19 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that Joakim had done.

20 For the Lord was angry against Jerusalem and against Juda, till he cast them out from his face: and Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon.

CHAP. XXV.

Jerusalem is besieged and taken by Nabuchodonosor: Sedecias is taken: the city and temple are destroyed. Godolias, who is left governor, is slain. Joachin is exalted by Evilmerodach.

AND *it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem: and they surrounded it: and raised works round about it.

2 And the city was shut up and besieged till the eleventh year of king Sedecias,

* 2 Par. xxxvi. 10. Esther ii. 6. and xi. 4. Eze. xvii. 12. Jer. xxiv. 1. and xxxix. 2.
^b Jer. xxxvii. 1. and lii. 1.

VER. 15. Judges. Heb. "the rams." Chal. "the grandees." These are not included in the 10,000, (v. 14) no more than (C.) the 8,000 who were taken from the country (v. 16. C.); or 3,000 were taken from Jerusalem, and 7,000 from other places. D.

VER. 17. Uncle, the third son of Josias, who was placed on the throne. H. —The eldest, (M.) called Johanan, seems to have died in his youth. C.—Sedecias means, "the justice of God," (T.) as Nabuchodonosor had adjured him, or made him swear by God; (2 Par. xxxvi. 16. H.) and thus insinuated, that if he proved faithless, he should feel the effects of God's justice, as it happened. T.

VER. 19. Done. He was not deterred by his punishment, nor by the admonition of Jeremias, xxxvii. 2. and 2 Par. xxxvi. 12. The prophet informs us, that the priests and people defiled the temple of God. See Eze. viii. &c. C.

VER. 20. Revolted. Lit. "departed; (H.) "broke his covenant;" (Sept.) acting contrary to his oath, (Par.) and to the dictates of prudence. God permitted this to take place, in the 8th year of Sedecias. C.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 1. Day, the 30th of Jan. A. 3414. Usher.—Some time after Nabuchodonosor left the siege, to attack the Egyptians; (Jer. xxxvii. 8.) and the people of Jerusalem, (H.) supposing that he would return no more, took back their slaves, whom Jeremias had prevailed on them to liberate, according to the law, during the sabbatical year. Jer. xxxiv. 8. Usher.—The prophet reproached them for it; and announced the destruction of the city so plainly, that he was thrown into prison. Jer. xxi. and xxxiv. and xxxviii.—It. The Babylonians had already taken all the towns of Juda, except Azeca and Lachis. Jer. xxxiv. 7. C.

VER. 3. Of the. Prot. supply, "fourth month," as it is in the parallel passage. Jer. lii. 6. And in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month. In C. xxxix. 2, we read, in the fourth month, the fifth day of the month, the city was broken up, or a breach was made in the outer wall. In the course of a few days, the princes of Babylon seized the middle gate; and the famine became so intolerable, that, on the 9th, it was judged expedient to abandon the city. H.—During this siege it is thought, (C.) that mothers eat their children, (Lam. iv. 10. Bar. ii. 3.) and children their parents. Eze. v. 10. M.

VER. 4. Walls, by a subterraneous passage, to the plains of Jericho; (Rabbin) or by the horse gate, which was the most private, and, it seems, had been walled up. Eze. xii. 12. M.

VER. 6. Rablatha, the Antioch of Syria, (S. Jer.) which was styled also Epiphania, (T.) or more probably Apamea, where Nabuchodonosor was, when Jerusalem was taken.—Upon him, by the advice of his council. Jer. xxxix. 3. 18 Syr. "they made him answer the charges brought against him," (C.) of ingratitude and rebellion, as he had been appointed by the king of Babylon, and had sworn to be faithful to him. M.—This repeated infidelity made Nabu-

3 The ninth day of the month: and a famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land.

4 And a breach was made into the city: and all the men of war fled in the night between the two walls by the king's garden (now the Chaldees besieged the city round about), and Sedecias fled by the way that leadeth to the plains of the wilderness.

5 And the army of the Chaldees pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho: and all the warriors that were with him were scattered, and left him:

6 So they took the king, and brought him to the king of Babylon, to Rablatha, and he gave judgment upon him.

7 And he slew the sons of Sedecias before his face, and he put out his eyes, and bound him with chains, and brought him to Babylon.

8 In the fifth month, the seventh day of the month, the same is the nineteenth year of the king of Babylon, came Nabuzardan, commander of the army, a servant of the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem.

9 ^a And he burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and the houses of Jerusalem, and every great house he burnt with fire.

10 And all the army of the Chaldees, which was with the commander of the troops, broke down the walls of Jerusalem round about.

11 And Nabuzardan, the commander of the army, carried away the rest of the people, that remained in the city, and the fugitives, that had gone over to the king of Babylon, and the remnant of the common people.

* A. M. 3414, A. C. 590. Jer. xxxix. 4. and lii. 4.—4 Ps. lxxiii. 7. A. M. 3416, A. C. 588.

chodonosor resolve to remove the people from their own country. C.—He sentenced the last of the kings of Juda to see his children slain, (H.) to have his eyes put out, and to remain in prison till his death. Jer. lii. 11. &c. C.—Heb. he "spoke judgments with him." Thus was accomplished the prediction of Jeremias, (xxxiv. 3.) "thine eyes shall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and he shall speak with thee." Watson.—The same prophet had said the same (C xxxii. 4.) before he was thrown into prison. The sight of an angry judge is no small punishment. H.

VER. 7. Eyes; after they had been exorcuted by the sight of his slaughtered children. He thus might be convinced, that there was no reason to despise the predictions of Jeremias and of Ezechiel, (xii. 13.) as contradictory, because the latter informed him that he should not see Babylon; though the other said that he should die there.—Babylon, where he was honourably buried, by order of Nabuchodonosor. Joseph. x. 11.—Seder (Olam xxviii.) records that his attendants sung, at his funeral, "Alas! king Sedecias is dead, having drunk the dregs of all ages;" as he suffered also for the crimes of his predecessors. Genebrard. T.—This is not indeed specified in Scripture: (H.) but it is highly probable that Nabuchodonosor would thus "revere royalty, even in its ruins," if Daniel and the other Jews in power, had not been careful to shew this mark of respect to their deceased monarch, conformably to the prediction of Jeremias; (xxxiv. 3.) who foretold that he should die, not by a violent death, the usual fate of captive kings, but in peace, or on his bed, though in a prison. Watson, let. 6.

VER. 8. Seventh. Jeremias (lii. 12.) mentions the tenth; on which day Nabuzardan probably arrived, or begun to put his orders in execution. Yet the Jews keep the ninth as an annual fast. Zac. vii. 8. and viii. 19. The temple was destroyed on Saturday, 27th August, A. 3416, (Usher) after it had stood 424 years, 3 months, and 8 days. C.—Army. Heb. "of those who slay;" which may be fitly understood "of soldiers," as well as "of cooks," (Sept.) "butchers." Pagnin, &c. M.

VER. 9. Great. This word is supplied from Jer. lii. 13. and Heb. "great man's house." Prot. But Jer. xxxix. 8, we read, they burnt the houses of the people, (H.) even the meanest, destroyed the walls, and took the people to Babylon, only leaving some countrymen to cultivate the land. Jeremias was set at liberty by Nabuzardan, (ib. xi.) and chose to continue with this remnant of the people, for their comfort and direction. H.—They applied to him to know whether they should retire into Egypt; and after ten days, he gave them God's injunction to the contrary: but they despised it. Jer. xlii. 7. and xliii. 1. The prophet, and his secretary, Baruch, followed them into Egypt. Thus was the country abandoned, and the monarchy at an end, after it had subsisted 468 years from the commencement of David's reign. C.—Yet some little power remained in the family of David, even at Babylon; (v. 27) and the Jewish affairs were re-

12 But of the poor of the land he left some dressers of vines and husbandmen.

13 "And the pillars of brass that were in the temple of the Lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass, which was in the house of the Lord, the Chaldees broke in pieces, and carried all the brass of them to Babylon.

14 They took away also the pots of brass, and the mazers, and the forks, and the cups, and the mortars, and all the vessels of brass, with which they ministered.

15 Moreover also the censers, and the bowls, such as were of gold in gold: and such as were of silver in silver, the general of the army took away.

16 That is, two pillars, one sea, and the bases which Solomon had made in the temple of the Lord: the brass of all these vessels was without weight.

17 "One pillar was eighteen cubits high: and the chapter of brass, which was upon it, was three cubits high: and the net-work, and the pomegranates that were upon the chapter of the pillar, were all of brass: and the second pillar had the like adorning.

18 And the general of the army took Saraïas, the chief priest, and Sophonias, the second priest, and three door-keepers:

19 And out of the city one eunuch, who was captain over the men of war: and five men of them who had stood before the king, whom he found in the city, and Sopher, the captain of the army, who exercised the young soldiers of the people of the land: and three-score men of the common people, who were found in the city:

20 These Nabuzardan, the general of the army, took away, and carried them to the king of Babylon, to Rablatha.

21 And the king of Babylon smote them, and slew them at Rablatha, in the land of Emath: so Juda was carried away out of their land.

22 "But over the people that remained in the land of Juda, which Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, had left, he gave the government to Godolias, the son of Ahicam, the son of Saphan.

23 And when all the captains of the soldiers had heard this, they and the men that were with them, to wit, that the king of Babylon had made Godolias governor; they came to Godolias to Maspha, Ismael, the son of Nathania, and Johanan, the son of Caree, and Saraia, the son of Thanehumeth, the Netophathite, and Jezonias, the son of Maachathi, they and their men.

24 And Godolias swore to them and to their men, saying: Be not afraid to serve the Chaldees: stay in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.

25 But it came to pass in the seventh month, "that Ismael, the son of Nathania, the son of Elisama, of the seed royal, came, and ten men with him, and smote Godolias; so that he died: and also the Jews and the Chaldees that were with him in Maspha.

26 And all the people, both little and great, and the captains of the soldiers, rising up, went to Egypt, fearing the Chaldees.

27 "And it came to pass in the 'seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Joachin, king of Juda, in the twelfth month, the seven and twentieth day of the month: Evilmerodach, king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, lifted up the head of Joachin, king of Juda, out of prison.

28 And he spoke kindly to him: and he set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon.

29 And he changed his garments which he had in prison, and he ate bread always before him, all the days of his life.

30 And he appointed him a continual allowance, which was also given him by the king, day by day, all the days of his life.

* Jer. xxvii. 19.—^b 2 Kings vii. 15. 2 Par. iii. 15. Jer. lii. 21.—^c A. M. 3416.

* A. M. 3417, A. C. 587.—^c Jerem. lii. 31.—^f A. M. 3442, A. C. 562.

established, after the captivity, though not in such splendour as formerly, nor always under princes of the same royal family. H.

VER. 14. Mazera. Heb. yahim, "shovels." Prot. Sept. retain the original word, which S. Jerom translates differently. See 3 K. vii. 50. (M.) and Exodus.

VER. 18. Saraïas, father of Esdras, and of Josedeck, who succeeded in the Pontificate, 1 Esd. vii. 1. and 1 Par. vi. 14. T.—Sophonias. He was perhaps chief of the fourth band of door-keepers, mentioned 1 Par. ix. 17. 24. and viceroy of the High-priest, to supply his place, in case of any accident. We find no mention of such a priest in the law, but Eleazar possessed a similar power, Num. iii. 32. C.—Keepers. These seem to have concealed themselves in the temple. M.—They were punished, as the counsellors of Sedecias, by being beheaded or crucified. Lam. v. 12. T.

VER. 19. Eunuch. Prot. "officer." H.—Five. Arab. and Jeremias lii. 25. read seven, as two were probably discovered afterwards, (C.) or had fled. D.—These were chief officers.—Sopher. Sept. "and the secretary of the general." Syr. "the secretary and chiefs of the armies." C.—Prot. "the principal scribe." H.—It is not clear whether the general have this title of sopher, "scribe," himself; or it rather designates his secretary, or scribe. Judg. viii. 14. C.—Many date the 70 years captivity from the last year of Joachin. D.

VER. 22. Godolias. The Rabbins say that he had gone over to the Chaldees: Jeremias (xxxviii. 2. 17.) had advised all to do so, and Godolias was of an easy complying disposition. Grotius.—But God did not suffer him to collect the remnants of his unhappy people, (C.) at least for any long time, as he was slain by Ismael, (Jer. xl. 12. and xli. l. H.) who probably envied his dignity. Joseph. Salien.

VER. 26. Chaldees. They went under the conduct of Johanan, in opposition to the declaration of Jeremias, xliii. 7. and xlv. 1. C.

VER. 27. Twentieth. Jeremias (lii. 31.) says the 25th, when Nabuchodonosor was buried and (D.) the decree was made, though it was not put in execution till two days later. C.—Evilmerodach, whose proper name was Baltassar, (Dan. v. 1. T.) or the latter was his son. The Jews say that he had been confined in prison, with Joachin, because he had not administered the kingdom well, during the seven years' illness of his father Nabuchodonosor. Berosus (ap. Jos. c. Ap. 1. and Euseb. præp. ix. 40. who cites also Megasthenes) informs us that he reigned with insolence during two years, when he was treacherously murdered by his father-in-law, Neriglissor.

VER. 28. Kings, who had been made captives. Adonibezec had 70. Judg. i. 7. Alexander kept Porus and Taxilus at his court, as Cyrus had done Croesus, whom he treated with great distinction. The prosperity of Joachin does not seem to have been of long continuance, as his benefactor did not reign above two (v. 27.) or three years. Dan. viii. 1.

VER. 30. His life, may be referred to Evilmerodach, unless Joachin was involved in his disgrace, and perished at the same time. Perhaps the king of Juda did not always eat at the table of Evilmerodach, but received his meat from it, as was customary. Syr. &c. C.—He received all that was necessary to support his household, daily. Grotius.—In Jer. lii. 34. until the day of his death, seems to be an useless "tautology," which is omitted here, and in "our oldest MS." says Kennicott; who observes that whoever will compare these passages, "will find many variations, and some corruptions." But most of them may be easily explained, v. 3. 8. 27. &c. H.

THE FIRST BOOK OF PARALIPOMENON.

THESE Books are called by the Greek Interpreters, PARALIPOMENON: (Παραλειπόμενον.) that is, of things left out, or omitted; because they are a kind of supplement of such things as were passed over in the Books of Kings. The Hebrews call them, Dibre Ilojamin; that is, The words of the days, or The Chronicles. Not that they are the books which are so often quoted in the Kings, under the title of, The Words of the days of the kings of Israel, and of the kings of Juda; for the Books of Paralipomenon were written after the Books of Kings; but because, in all probability, they have been abridged from those ancient words of the days, by Esdras, or some other sacred author. Ch.—The author of this compilation refers to the same works, 2 Par. xvi. 11. &c. These journals were principally composed by prophets, though there were other people appointed to write the most important occurrences. 2 K. viii. 16. 4 K. xviii. 18. The genealogies of families, particularly of the Levites, and the interests of piety and religion, are kept most in view. C.—The variations which appear between this work and the other parts of Scripture, are owing to the faults of transcribers; and, though they could not be satisfactorily explained, it would be rashness to condemn the author of inaccuracy, at this distance of time, when we know so little of those transactions. II.—Who calls in question the history of Alexander, though the different authors of it scarcely agree in one calculation of the number of troops, nations conquered, &c? Yet the work before us is of far higher authority, as it was dictated by the Holy Ghost. C.—“Without it, a person would in vain pretend to understand the Scriptures.” It is “an epitome of the Old Testament,” and “explains many difficulties of the gospels.” S. Jerome.—The author does not, however, seem to have designed to draw up an exact epitome, or to supply the deficiencies of other works. C.—The first nine chapters contain various genealogical histories. In the 10th, we have the election and death of Saul; and, in the remainder of the first book, the transactions of David (W.) till the year 2990, where the second book commences with the reign of Solomon, and brings us to the end of the captivity. A. M. 3468. C.

CHAP. I.

The genealogy of the patriarchs down to Abraham: The posterity of Abraham and of Esau.

ADAM, *Seth, Enos,
2 Cainan, Malaleel, Jared,
3 Henoc, Mathusale, Lamech,
4 Noe, Sem, Cham, and Japheth.
5 The sons of Japheth: Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, Thubal, Mosoch, Thiras.
6 And the sons of Gomer: Ascenz, and Riphath, and Thogorma.
7 And the sons of Javan: Elisa and Tharsis, Cethim and Dodanim.
8 The sons of Cham: Chus, and Mesraim, and Phut and Chanaan.
9 And the sons of Chus: Saba, and Hevila, Sabatha, and Regma, and Sabathaca. And the sons of Regma: Saba, and Dadan.
10 Now Chus begot *Nemrod: he began to be mighty upon earth.
11 But Mesraim begot Ludim, and Anamim, and Laabim, and Nephtuim,
12 Phetrusim also, and Casluim: from whom came the Philistines and Caphtorim.
13 And Chanaan begot Sidon, his first-born; and the Hethite,
14 And the Jebusite, and the Amorrhite, and the Gergesite,
15 And the Hevite, and the Aracite, and the Sinite;
16 And the Aradian, and the Samarite, and the Hamathite.

* Gen. ii. 7. and iv. 25. and v. 6. 9.—* Gen. x. 8.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Seth. Prot. Sheth, Enosh, Kenan: but in Genesis they agree with us, which shews that the translator of the two books is different, and that there is a want of uniformity in the plan adopted by king James I. H.—The posterity of Cain is neglected, as it all perished in the deluge. C.

VER. 4. Noe begot Sem, Cham, and Japheth. (H.) See Gen. x. The author passes lightly over some of the descendants of the two latter, as he had David's genealogy principally in view.

VER. 6. Riphath. Heb. begins with D. C.—But the Prot. correct it (H.) according to the book of Gen. and the Sept. The two letters are very much alike.

VER. 7. Dodanim. Heb. has R. conformably to the Samar. copy of Genesis, and the Sept. translate the Rhodians. Yet Dodanim seems more accurate, (C.) and is retained by the Prot. H.

VER. 10. Earth, first establishing the monarchy of Babylon, and building the castle. D.

VER. 12. Philistines, a colony from Crete.

17 The sons of Sem: *Elam, and Assur, and Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram, and Hus, and Hul, and Gether, and Mosoch.

18 And Arphaxad begot Sale, and Sale begot Heber.

19 And to Heber were born two sons: the name of the one was Phaleg, because in his days the earth was divided; and the name of his brother was Jectan.

20 And Jectan begot Elmodad, and Saleph, and Asarmoth, and Jare, 21 And Adoram, and Huzal, and Decla,

22 And Hebal, and Abimael, and Saba,

23 And Ophir, and Hevila, and Jobab. All these are the sons of Jectan.

24 Sem, Arphaxed, Sale,

25 Heber, Phaleg, Ragau,

26 Serug, Nachor, Thare,

27 Abram, *this is Abraham.

28 And the sons of Abraham, Isaac and Ismahel.

29 And these are the generations of them. The first-born of *Ismahel, Nabaioth; then Cedar, and Adbeel, and Mabsam,

30 And Masma, and Duma, Massa, Hadad, and Thema,

31 Jetur, Naphis, Cedma: these are the sons of Ismahel.

32 And the sons of Cetura, Abraham's concubine, whom she bore: Zamran, Jecsan, Madan, Madian, Jescboc, and Sue. And the sons of Jecsan, Saba, and Dadan. And the sons of Dadan: Assurim, and Latussim, and Laomim.

33 And the sons of *Madiam: Ephra, and Ephra, and

* Gen. x. 22. and xi. 10.—* Gen. xi. 26.—* Gen. xxv. 13.—* Gen. xxv. 4.

VER. 17. Hus and Hul were the immediate sons of Aram, as well as . . Mosoch, or Mes; (Gen. x. 23. C.) so that there seems to be here some transposition. D.

VER. 18. Sale. The Rom. Sept. omits v. 11 to 17, and v. 18 to 24, having only, (17) “The sons of Sem, Ailam and Assur; (24) and Arphaxad, Sala.” H.—But the other copies here insert Cainan, as the father of Sale. See Gen. x. 24. C.—It is a matter of great doubt whether he ought not to be inserted. Lu. iii. H.

VER. 24. Sem begot Arphaxad. M.

VER. 32. Concubine. She was his lawful wife, but of an inferior degree, and such were called concubines. Ch.—She has the title of wife, Gen. xxv. 1.—And the sons of Dadan, &c., seems to be copied from Genesis, as the addition is not found in many Lat. MSS. no more than in the Heb. or Sept. C.

VER. 36. And by. This serves to explain the difficulty; as Thamna would otherwise seem to be a daughter of Eliphaz, though we know she was his concubine. Gen. xxxvi. 12.—H.—The Heb., Rom. Sept., Syr., and Latin, suppose Henoch, and Abida, and Eldaa. All these are the sons of Cetura.

34 And Abraham begot Isaac: and his sons were Esau and Israel.

35 The sons of Esau: Eliphaz, Rahuel, Jehus, Ithelom, and Core.

36 The sons of Eliphaz: Theman, Omar, Sephi, Gathan, Cenez, and by Thamna, Amalec.

37 The sons of Rahuel: Nahath, Zara, Samma, Meza.

38 The sons of Seir: Lotan, Sobal, Sebeon, Ana, Dison, Eser, Disan.

39 The sons of Lotan: Hori, Homam. And the sister of Lotan was Thamna.

40 The sons of Sobal: Alian, and Manahath, and Ebal, Sephi, and Onam. The sons of Sebeon: Aia and Ana. The son of Ana: Dison.

41 The sons of Dison: Hamram, and Eseban, and Jethran, and Charan.

42 The sons of Eser: Balaan, and Zavan, and Jacan. The sons of Disan: Hus and Aran.

43 Now these are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there was a king over the children of Israel: Bale, the son of Beor: and the name of his city was Denaba.

44 And Bale died, and Jobab, the son of Zare, of Bosra, reigned in his stead.

45 And when Jobab also was dead, Husam, of the land of the Themanites, reigned in his stead.

46 And Husam also died, and Adad, the son of Badad, reigned in his stead; and he defeated the Madianites, in the land of Moab: and the name of his city was Avith.

47 And when Adad also was dead, Semla, of Masreca, reigned in his stead.

48 Semla also died, and Saul, of Rohoboth, which is near the river, reigned in his stead.

*Gen. xxv. 19.—† Gen. xxxvi. 10.—‡ Gen. xxix. 32. and xxx. 5. and xxxv. 22.

that Thamna was the brother of Amalec; but the Alex. Sept. has, "Now Thamna, the concubine of Eliphaz, bore Amalec." Arab. "And Thamna, who was the concubine of Eliphaz, the son of Esau, bore him Amalec," which seems to be the true reading. Kennicott.—Heb. "And Timna and Amalec," (Prot. H.) which confounds the sense. Mariana. D.

VER. 38. Seir, not Esau, but the Horrite. (Gen. xxxvi. 20. M.) which is added in order to explain the origin of Thamna, D.

VER. 40. Dison. We must add Oolibama. Gen. xxxvi. 25.

VER. 41. Hamram. In. Gen. Hamdan. Two letters have been mistaken since the Chaldee characters have been adopted. C.—On this occasion, we may briefly remark, 1. "The most learned fathers have admitted such mistakes in Scripture: yet these are not to be corrected by each one's private judgment, but we must all abide by the determination of the Church, which is plainly appointed for our guide in the infallible word of God. 2. To obviate the objections of infidels, respecting the apparent contradictions of Scripture, particularly in these books, we must observe that many people and places had different names; 3. And those who had the same were really distinct. 4. Frequently also grandchildren, and those who have been adopted, are mentioned as the immediate offspring. 5. Some mysterious numbers are specified, as fourteen in the genealogy of Christ, though the history allows more. 6. Odd numbers are sometimes neglected. 7. Often a part is put for the whole, or on the contrary; as Christ is said to have been dead three days, though he was only one whole day and part of two others: and in the reigns of different kings, in the same year, the different parts are assigned to each, as a whole year. 8. Sometimes two reigned together, as Joathan ruled while Ozias was still living, (4 K. xv.) and so both reigns are sometimes counted, and, at other times, their respective years. 9. The interregnums are either omitted in calculations, or added to the years of the next ruler. 10. Only the years that a person governed well are sometimes noticed, as Saul is said to have reigned two years, (1 K. xiii.) though his administration continued much longer. Some of these rules may be applied to most of the scriptural difficulties, as the spirit of God could not dictate any falsehood. At the same time we must be forced to acknowledge that the Scriptures are hard to be understood, 2 Pet. i. 20. (W.) and iii. 16; and this may serve to exercise the genius, and to humble the pride of man. H.

VER. 43. Israel. The same remark had been made in Gen. xxxvi. 31. It is wonderful that the author of this work gives us no further information, when so 49 And when Saul was dead, Balanan, the son of Achobor, reigned in his stead.

50 He also died, and Adad reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Phau, and his wife was called Meetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezaab.

51 And after the death of Adad, there began to be dukes in Edom, instead of kings: duke Thamna, duke Alva, duke Jetheth,

52 Duke Oolibama, duke Ela, duke Phinon,

53 Duke Cenez, duke Theman, duke Mabsar.

54 Duke Magdiel, duke Hiram. These are the dukes of Edom.

CHAP. II.

The twelve sons of Israel. The genealogy of Juda, down to David. Other genealogies of the tribe of Juda.

AND these are the sons of Israel: Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar, and Zabulon,

2 Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Nephthali, Gad, and Aser.

3 The sons of Juda: Her, Onan and Sela. These three were born to him of the Chanaanitess, the daughter of Sue. And Her, the first-born of Juda, was wicked in the sight of the Lord, and he slew him.

4 And Tamar, his daughter-in-law, bore him Phares and Zara. So all the sons of Juda, were five.

5 And the sons of Phares, were Hesron and Hamul.

6 And the sons also of Zara: Zamri, and Ethan, and Eman, and Chalchal, and Dara, five in all.

7 And the sons of Charmi: Achor, who troubled Israel, and sinned by the theft of the anathema.

8 The son of Ethan: Azarias.

9 And the sons of Hesron that were born to him: Jerameel, and Ram, and Calubi.

10 And Ram begot Aminadab; and Aminadab begot Nahasson, prince of the children of Juda.

11 And Nahasson begot Salma, the father of Booz.

*Gen. xxxviii. 3. and xli. 12.—† Infra iv. 1. Mat. i. 3.—‡ Jos. vii. 1.—§ Ruth iv. 19.

many revolutions had since occurred. C.—But he might content himself with repeating the words of Moses. H.—The eight kings here specified must have reigned each 50 years, which is not impossible. David conquered the country under Adad.

VER. 48. River. Euphrates is commonly so designated. See Gen. x. 11. C.—Pagnin translates, "from the river Rohoboth." D.

VER. 50. Mezaab. It is unusual for the Scripture to mark so particularly the genealogy of a woman. We might translate the Heb. "a native, or who was a native of Mezaab," which is probably the same with Dizahab, "abundance of gold." Deut. i. 1. Mezaab signifies, "waters of gold," (C.) or "whose is gold," whence some infer that the woman was very rich, (Lyran) or had discovered the art of drawing gold thread. Abul.—It is more probably a proper name. M.

VER. 51. Kings. Heb. "Adad also died, and the dukes of Edom were duke Thamna, &c. H.—This, and the following names, designate the place of their residence. M.—The same forms of government prevailed in Idumea, as among the Hebrews, who had judges or dukes, then kings, and, after the captivity, dukes, till the time of the Machabees. T.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Israel, "seeing, or valiant with God," was before called Jacob, or a "supplanter." Gen. xxxv. W.

VER. 2. Aser. They are not placed in the order of their birth. H.

VER. 3. Her. The crime for which he was punished is not specified in Scripture. C.—The Rabbins say that he was so enamoured of the beauty of his wife, that he treated her in the same manner as Ouan did afterwards. Cassian viii. 11.—It is supposed that he was slain by a devil, (C.) like the (T.) impure husbands of Sarai. Tob. vi. 14. H.

VER. 6. Zamri, or Zabdî. Jos. vii. 1.—Ethan. Similar names occur 3 K. iv. 30. But they seem to have been different persons.

VER. 7. Achar, alias Achan, (Josue vii. Ch.) which was his real name, as the former was given him (C.) in consequence of his having "troubled" Israel. D.—One letter may have been mistaken. W.—It may seem more probable that Achar, which appears invariably in the Vat. Sept. and Syriac, is the proper name. Kennicott.—Anathema, the thing devoted or accursed, viz., the spoils of Jericho. Ch.

VER. 10. Ram. He is commonly called Aram. But it is to be observed here, once for all, that it was a common thing among the Hebrews for the same person to have different names: and that it is not impossible among so many

- 12 And Booz begot Obed, and Obed begot Isai.
 13 And Isai begot Eliab, his first-born, the second Abinadab, the third Simmaa;
 14 The fourth, Nathanael, the fifth Raddai,
 15 The sixth, Asom, the seventh, David.
 16 And their sisters were Sarvia, and Abigail. The sons of Sarvia: Abisai, Joab, and Asael; three.
 17 And Abigail bore Amasa, whose father was Jether, the Ismahelite.
 18 And Caleb, the son of Hesron, took a wife named Azuba, of whom he had Jerioth: And her sons were Jaser, and Sobab, and Ardon.
 19 And when Azuba was dead, Caleb took to wife Ephrata; who bore him Hur.
 20 And Hur begot Uri, and Uri begot Bezeleel.
 21 And afterwards Hesron went in to the daughter of Machir, the father of Galaad, and took her to wife, when he was threescore years old: And she bore him Segub.
 22 And Segub begot Jair, and he had three and twenty cities in the land of Galaad.
 23 And he took Gessur, and Aram, the towns of Jair, and Canath, and the villages thereof, threescore cities. All these are the sons of Machir, father of Galaad.
 24 And when Hesron was dead, Caleb went in to Ephrata. Hesron also had to wife Abia, who bore him Ashur, the father of Thecua.
 25 And the sons of Jerameel, the first-born of Hesron, were Ram, his first-born, and Buna, and Aram, and Asom, and Achia.
 26 And Jerameel married another wife, named Atara, who was the mother of Onam.
 27 And the sons of Ram, the first-born of Jerameel, were Moos, Jamin, and Achar.
 28 And Onam had sons, Semei, and Jada. And the sons of Semei: Nadab and Abisur.

* 1 Kings xvi. 6. and viii. 9. and xvii. 12.

proper names, as here occur in the first nine chapters of this book, that the transcribers of the ancient Hebrew copies may have made some slips in the orthography. Ch.—Juda. Probably the first, appointed by Moses in the desert. Num. i. 7. and vii. 12.

VER. 11. Salma. Sept. have "Salmon," as it is written Ruth iv. 20. Mat. i. 4.

VER. 15. Seventh. Syriac and Arab. add, "Eliu. (C. xxvii. 18) and the eighth David." It appears, in effect, that Isai had eight sons, and that David was the youngest. 1 K. xvi. 10. and xvii. 12. The Rabbins suppose that one was only adopted, namely, Jonathan, the son of Samma, noted for his prudence and valour. 2 K. xiii. 3. and xxi. 21. C.—One might die in his youth, and be therefore omitted, (T) as he had done nothing memorable. D.—The Scripture does not always specify the full number. Abul.

VER. 16. Sarvia. The honour shewn to the sisters of David is unusual. The father of the three valiant children of Sarvia is nowhere specified.

VER. 17. Ismahelite, or more correctly, "Jethra, of Jezrahel;" (2 K. xvii. 25.) though the Heb. and Sept. in that place read "Israelite," which would be a trifling remark; and it is improbable that Isai would give his daughter to a descendant of Ismahel. C.—The person might, however, have resided among them. D.

VER. 18. Caleb, alias Calubi, v. 9. Ch. W.—He is different from Caleb, the son of Jephone.—Book, &c. Heb. "begot Azuba, Ischa, and Jerioth;" or rather with the Sept. "took to wife Gazuba and Jerioth." C.—Syr. and Arab. "Caleb had Jerioth by his wife Azuba." We know that the latter was his wife. (v. 19.) and this seems to be the true reading. As ath signifies "of or from," (Noldius) the Heb. only requires a small correction. As it stands at present, it means, "Caleb, begot Azuba; a woman, (or wife) and Jerioth." Prot. supply "begat children of Azuba, his wife, and of Jerioth." Kennicott.—Her sons. The original determines us to read her, instead of "his," as ejus would as naturally be understood. If Jerioth was not the wife, she seems to have been the daughter of Caleb; as Jaser, &c. were his sons. H.

VER. 20. Bezeleel, the famous artist, (Ex. xxxi. 2. C) or a different person. D.—The Rabbins, who confound Caleb with the son of Jephone, say that he espoused Ephrata, or Mary, the sister of Moses, when he was ten years old, that Ur and Uri had each a child at eight, and that Bezeleel began to work at the

- 29 And the name of Abisur's wife was Abihail, who bore him Ahobban, and Molid.
 30 And the sons of Nedab were Saled, and Apphaim. And Saled died without children.
 31 But the son of Apphaim was Jesi: and Jesi begot Sesan. And Sesan begot Oholai.
 32 And the sons of Jada, the brother of Semei, were Jether, and Jonathan. And Jether also died without children.
 33 But Jonathan begot Phaleth, and Ziza. These were the sons of Jerameel.
 34 And Sesan had no sons, but daughters: and a servant, an Egyptian, named Jeraa.
 35 And he gave him his daughter to wife: and she bore him Ethei.
 36 And Ethei begot Nathan, and Nathan begot Zabad.
 37 And Zabad begot Ophlal, and Ophlal begot Obed,
 38 Obed begot Jehu, Jehu begot Azarias,
 39 Azarias begot Helles, and Helles begot Elasa,
 40 Elasa begot Sisamoi, Sisamoi begot Sellum,
 41 Sellum begot Icamia, and Icamia begot Elisama.
 42 Now the sons of Caleb, the brother of Jerameel, were Mesa, his first-born, who was the father of Ziph: and the sons of Maresa, father of Hebron.
 43 And the sons of Hebron, Core, and Thaphua, and Recem, and Samma.
 44 And Samma begot Raham, the father of Jercaam, and Recem begot Sammai.
 45 The son of Sammai, Maon: and Maon, the father of Bethsur.
 46 And Ephra, the concubine of Caleb, bore Haran, and Mosa, and Gezez. And Haran begot Gezez.
 47 And the sons of Jahaddai, Regom, and Joathan, and Gesan, and Phalet, and Ephra, and Saaph.
 48 And Maacha, the concubine of Caleb, bore Saber, and Tharana.
 49 And Saaph, the father of Madmena, begot Sue, tabernacle before he was nine years old. Lyran.—But this is extravagant, and the Bezeleel here mentioned was of the family of Hesron. C.

VER. 21. Machir, grandson of Joseph, whose descendants occupied part of Galaad, (H.) of which he is styled the father, or prince. M.—The daughter of Machir was probably an heiress, and Segub dwelt with his mother's tribe. C.

VER. 23. Aram. Prot. add "with the towns of Jair from them," the former possessors; (H.) or Gessur assisted Aram (Syria) in attacking Israel, 4 K. x. 32. C.—All these villages. Prot. supply "belonged to the sons." Sept. "were of the sons." All these were dependencies of Machir, "prince" of Galaad; in which sense father is taken, v. 24. M.—Sons often denote nephews, &c. W.

VER. 24. Hesron. Perhaps it ought to be Azuba, v. 19. Heb. "and after Hesron was dead, in Caleb-ephra, then Abia, the wife of Hesron, bore him a (posthumous) son, Asher, the father of those who dwell at Thecua." He could not reside there himself no more than Caleb did at Bethlehem, which some, without proof, pretend was called Caleb-ephra. The Sept. agree with the Vulg. They may signify that Caleb went to the town of Ephrata. But the son of Hebron certainly never resided at Bethlehem. C.

VER. 25. And, is not in Heb. Achia, which may also signify "her sister." Sept. "brother." Others take (C) Achia to be the first wife of Jerameel. Jan.

VER. 31. Oholai, a daughter, (v. 34 T.) unless this son died before his father Vatab.

VER. 42. Caleb, or Calubi, v. 9. Ziph, Maresa, and Hebron are the names of towns, as well as of men. The descendants of Mesa inhabited Ziph, and those of Maresa dwelt at Hebron. The same remark will hold good in other places, where the names of places are put for those who occupied them. C.—And the sons. Heb. "and of the sons of Maresa." Vat.—But it may be as well explained in the sense of the Vulg. Sept. "Marisa, his first-born. He was the father of Ziph, and the sons of Marisa, of the father of Hebron."—Father. Lit. "of the father," pateris Hebron. H.

VER. 47. Jahaddai. His name occurs not before. Some suppose he was the son of Mosa: perhaps a verse may be lost, as the Syr. and Arab. pass over this and the two following verses.

VER. 49. Achia, different from Axa, the grand-daughter of Jephone. Judg. i. 12. H.—Both had daughters of the same name. D.

the father of Machbena, and the father of Gabaa. And the daughter of Caleb was Achsa.

50 These were the sons of Caleb, the son of Hur, the first-born of Ephrata; Sobal, the father of Cariathiarim, 51 Salma, the father of Bethlehem, Hariph, the father of Bethgader.

52 And Sobal, the father of Cariathiarim had sons: He that saw half of the places of rest.

53 And of the kindred of Cariathiarim, the Jethrites, and Aphuthites, and Semathites, and Maserites. Of them came the Sarites, and Esthaolites.

54 The sons of Salma, Bethlehem, and Netophathi, the Crowns of the house of Joab, and half of the place of rest of Sarai.

55 And the families of the scribes, that dwell in Jabes, singing and making melody, and abiding in tents. These are the Cinites, who came of Calor, (Chamath) father of the house of Rechab.

CHAP. III.

The genealogy of the house of David.

NOW these were the sons of David, that were born to him in Hebron: the first-born, Amnon, of Achinoam, the Jezrahelitess; the second, Daniel, of Abigail, the Carmelitess;

2 The third, Absalom, the son of Maacha, the daughter of Tolmai, king of Gessur; the fourth, Adonias, the son of Aggith;

3 The fifth, Sephatias, of Abital; the sixth, Jethrahem, of Egla, his wife.

*2 Kings iii. 2.

VER. 50. Caleb, grandson of Calubi. Vatab, &c.—Sabal, his descendant, was prince of those who established themselves at Cariathiarim. C.—The Alex. Sept. seems rather to assert that he was son of Hur, as well as those who follow. "The sons of Hur. Sobal. Salomon, father of Baithlammon, father of Bethlehem." But the editions vary. H.

VER. 52. He that saw, &c. The Latin interpreter seems to have given us here, instead of the proper names, the meaning of those names in the Hebrew. He has done in like manner, ver. 55, (Ch.) and in many other places. D—Heb. "had sons, haroe cha hamenuchoth, (H.) or Raia, Roeh, (C. iv. 2.) and Chazi of the canton of Menuchat, near Gabaa. C. viii. 6. and Judg. xx. 43. Sept. mention Manoch. Jos. xv. 60.—We may also translate "the father of Cariathiarim, and prince of half Manuchat, had sons who peopled different cities." It seems too harsh to call a man "half the place of rest," or "seeing from the moiety of rest," though the Heb. has this literal signification. The Sept. give proper names, (C.) "Eraa, Esei, Ammanith," (but v. 55, half of Manath) and the Prot. "Haroe and half of the Manahathites." H.—Sobal left to his descendants half the country which he had quietly occupied.

VER. 53. Kindred. Sept. "Oumasphas." H.—Esthaolites. All these places were in Juda, (C.) or perhaps (H.) the two last in Dan, (M.) or occupied by both tribes. Abul. q. 8.

VER. 54. Salma, or Salmon's descendants, peopled Bethlehem, &c.—Crowns. Valiant heroes who assisted Joab to gain crowns. W.—Heb. "Hateroth," the house (Sept. Alex. of the house of Jobab) of Joab; (H.) perhaps the famous general who had land near Absalom's on the frontiers of Ephraim, where Ataroth was situated.—And half. Heb. "half of the Manahathites." Prot. (H.) or "of Menuchat, towards Zarai." The author seems purposely to mention to whom the cities at first belonged, that the right owners might be reinstated in their possessions, at their return from Babylon. C.—This verse may specify six towns, Bethlehem and Netophat, (H.) Beth-Joab, Chatsi, Manachti, and Atsothi.

VER. 55. Scribes, learned in the law. M.—Singing, &c. The different professions of the Rechabites are here given, instead of proper names (C.) which the Vat. Sept. retains.—Thargathim and Samathim, Sochathim.—Heb. Tirhathim, "porters;" (Chal.) Shimhathim, "the obedient;" Sucathim, "the inhabitants of tents;" Calor, "the heat," as the Heb. Chamath (Prot. Hemath) signifies. The Cinites dwelt on the South of Juda, for which reason they are probably here mentioned, though some of them also inhabited Jabes Galaad, while the Rechabites dwelt in tents, (H.) and were perhaps employed as porters in the temple. C. Jer. xxxv. 5. 19.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Hebron, during the seven years that he reigned there over Juda. M.—Jezrahel, a city of Juda, less noted than the one in Issacher.—Daniel, or Cheliab, 2 K. iii. 3.

VER. 2. Aggith. The mother of Adonias is styled Haggith elsewhere in the Vulg. H.

VER. 3. His wife also. T.—This title refers to all the preceding. Sanctius.

VER. 5. Solomon is put last, though the eldest, because his genealogy is to be continued. Some think that the three others were the sons of Urias, adopted by 4 So six sons were born to him in Hebron, where he reigned seven years and six months. And in Jerusalem he reigned three and thirty years.

5 And these sons were born to him in Jerusalem: Simmaa, and Sabab, and Nathan, and Solomon, four of Bethsabee, the daughter of Ammiel,

6 Jebaar also, and Elisama,

7 And Eliphalet, and Noge, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

8 And Elisama, and Eliada, and Elipheleth, nine.

9 All these were sons of David, beside the sons of the concubines: and they had a sister, Tamar.

10 And Solomon's son was Roboam: whose son, Abia, begot Asa. And his son was Josaphat,

11 The father of Joram: and Joram begot Ochozias, of whom was born Joas:

12 And his son, Amasias, begot Azarias. And Joathan, the son of Azarias, 13 Begot Achaz, the father of Ezechias, of whom was born Manasses.

14 And Manasses begot Amon, the father of Josias.

15 And the sons of Josias were, the first-born, Johanan, the second, Joakim, the third, Sedecias, the fourth, Sellum.

16 Of Joakim was born Jechonias, and Sedecias.

17 The sons of Jechonias were Asir, Salathiel,

18 Melchiram, Phadaia, Senneser, and Jecemia, Sama and Nadabias.

19 Of Phadaia were born Zorobabel and Semei. Zo-

*2 Kings v. 14.—Matt. i. 11.

David, as Solomon styles himself an only son; (Prov. iv. 3.) but that only means singularly beloved, and an heir, (C.) as David had certainly another child by Bethsabee, who died in his infancy. T.—Bethsabee. Syr. and Arab. "Bor-sabee." Heb. "Bathshuah," all erroneously.—Ammiel, or Eliam, (2 K. xi. 3. as the same man had two names, (C.) or, in this instance, we must allow a transposition. H.

VER. 6. Elisama, or Elisua. C. xiv. 5. C.—Heb. substitutes Elishman and Eliphelet, and Nogah, the last name being an evident corruption of Nepheg, and the two former being taken in too soon, and still repeated, "in their proper places." The Vat. Sept. is likewise interpolated, (2 K. v. 14, &c.) by the insertion of eleven names from another version, and two names are twice repeated, so that we have 24 sons of David instead of 11. Kennicott.

VER. 7. Noge; called Noga, (C. xiv. 6.) and omitted entirely in the book of Kings. Eliphalet being twice mentioned in this book, has made some conclude, that David's first son of this name died in his youth; (C.) which may be said of Ehsama also. Sa.

VER. 8. Eliada, or Elioda, (2 K. v. 16.) styled Baaliada, (C. xiv. 7. C.) as both have the same meaning "God's, or the Lord's, knowledge." H.—Nine, excluding the children of Bethsabee. In 2 K. there are only seven, or, with the sons of Bethsabee, eleven. There must be a mistake in one place, unless the book of Kings only specifies those who were then alive. Vatab. C.

VER. 9. The concubines. The inferior wives. Ch.—Some of the preceding sons were born of such, v. 6, &c.—Tamar. She is the only one whose name is mentioned, but David had other daughters. 2 K. v. 13.

VER. 15.—Johanan, who is not mentioned in 4 K. xxiii. and xxiv. Some think that he died young, (Tostat) or in battle with his father, against Pharoa. Pradus.—Joakim, or Eliacim, possessed the throne after Joachaz, or Sellum, (C.) which name signifies "confusion," and was given to all the sons of Josias. S. Jer.—Then came Joachin and Sedecias, whose proper name was Matthanias. H.—Joakim is passed over by S. Mat. S. Jer. ib.

VER. 16. Jechonias, who is called also Joakim, (W.) and Cenias in Heb. Jer. xxii. 28. C.—Both the son and the grandson of Josias go under the name of Jechonias. Mat. i. 11. Barrad. i. 5. 16. M.—Sedecias. If this be the same with the king, was born must signify succeeded, as we know that Joakim was not the father of Sedecias. Grotius, &c.

VER. 17. Asir, means a "prisoner," so that we might translate, Heb. "and the sons of Jechonias, the prisoner, (at Babylon, 4 K. xxiv. 15.) were Salathiel." C.—Prot. "Assir, Salathiel his son." H.—Some think that the following were the adopted children, or successors of Jechonias; as S. Luke (iii. 27.) insinuates that Neri was the father of Salathiel, and Jeremias (xxii. 30.) seems to declare that Jechonias should have no children. But he means such as should sit on the throne, as he explains himself, and S. Matthew (L. 12.) expressly says, Jechonias begot Salathiel.

VER. 18. Melchiram, &c., born of Salathiel. C.—Sama. Sept. "Osamo and Nabadias." Prot. "Hosabama," &c. H.

VER. 19. Phadaia, called also Salathiel, (Mat. i. 12.) or these two brothers robabel begot Mosollam, Hananias, and Salomith, their sister :

20 Hasaban also, and Ohol, and Barachias, and Hasadias, and Josabhessed, five.

21 And the son of Hananias, was Phaltias, the father of Jeseias, whose son was Raphaia. And his son was Arnan, of whom was born Obdia, whose son was Sechenias.

22 The son of Sechenias, was Semeia : whose sons were Hattas, and Jegaal, and Baaria, and Naaria, and Sephat, six in number.

23 The sons of Naaria : Elioenai, and Ezechias, and Ezricam, three.

24 The sons of Elioenai : Oduia, and Eliasub, and Pheleia, and Accub, and Johanan, and Dalaia, and Anani, seven.

CHAP. IV.

Other genealogies of Juda and of Simeon, and their victories.

THE sons of Juda : Phares, Hesron, and Charmi, and Hur, and Sobal.

2 And Raia, the son of Sobal, begot Jahath, of whom were born Ahumai, and Laad. These are the families of Sarathi.

3 And this is the posterity of Etom : Jeshrahel, and Jesema, and Jedebos : and the name of their sister was Asalephuni.

4 And Phanuel, the father of Gedor, and Ezar, the father of Hosa : these are the sons of Hur, the first-born of Ephrata, the father of Bethlehem.

5 And Assur, the father of Thecua, had two wives, Halaa and Naara.

6 And Naara bore him Oozam, and Hepher, and Themani, and Ahasthari : these are the sons of Naara.

7 And the sons of Halaa : Sereth, Isaac, and Ethnan.

8 And Cos begot Anob, and Soboba, and the kindred of Abarebel, the son of Arum.

9 And Jabes was more honourable than any of his

^a Gen. xxxviii. 3, and xlv. 12. Supra ii. 4. Matt. i. 3.

had each a son named Zorobabel. The grandson of Salathiel was called Abiad, and that of Phadaia, Mosollam, (M.) unless these were the same person. Sa.—Phadaia, son of Salathiel, and father of Zorobabel, left his son to the care of his brother Salathiel, who was therefore accounted the father of Zorobabel too. C.

VER. 21. Son. Heb. "sons of Hananias, Phaltias, and Jeseias, the sons of Raphaia, the sons of Arnan. . . (22) the sons of Sechenias, Semeia, &c." But the Sept. and Syriac have read in a more intelligible manner, (C.) intimating that these people were lineally descended from each other, (H.) while the Heb. leaves us ignorant of the names of the sons of Rephaia, &c. C.

VER. 22. Six. Counting the father in the number. Ch.—Heb. shisha, or "six." Sixtus V. with several MSS. Gothic edit. &c. take it improperly for the name of a man. C.—Semeia and his five sons are attributed to Sechenias. W.—Others think that a name has been lost. Castal.

VER. 24. Oduia, the 12th from Zorobabel, which shows that this has been inserted since the time of Esdras, and that the author was very careful to preserve the genealogical tables, as it was not known from what family of the descendants of David the Me-sias should be born. C.—S. Matthew gives us a different genealogy. D. C.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Charmi, the great-grandson of Juda, by Zara and Zamri. Jos. vii. 1.—Junius takes him to be the same with Calubi, (C. ii.) father of Sobal. This seems to be transcribed from another ancient register of the family of Juda and designed to shew where the principal men had resided. C.—Only the chiefs are specified. D.

VER. 2. Sarathi, who peopled Saras.

VER. 3. Posterity. So all the ancient versions seem to have read boni, instead of the present Heb. abi, which literally means, "and these are the father of Etam." If words ever wanted sense, they do so here. Kennicott.—Etham is perhaps the name of a town. Milv.

VER. 7. Ethnan. Some would insert "and Cos," to connect this with the following.

VER. 8. Cos. Perhaps (C) the same with Cenez. v. 13. T.

VER. 9. Jabes. That is, sorrowful. Ch.—There seems to be something want-brethren, and his mother called his name Jabes, saying : Because I bore him with sorrow.

10 And Jabes called upon the God of Israel, saying : If blessing thou wilt bless me, and wilt enlarge my borders, and thy hand be with me, and thou save me from being oppressed by evil. And God granted him the things he prayed for.

11 And Caleb, the brother of Sua, begot Mahir, who was the father of Esthon.

12 And Esthon begot Bethrapha, and Phesse, and Tehinna, father of the city of Naas : These are the men of Recha.

13 And the sons of Cenez, were Othoniel, and Saraia. And the sons of Othoniel, Hathath, and Maonathi.

14 Maonathi begot Ophra, and Saraia begot Joab, the father of the valley of Artificers : for artificers were there.

15 And the sons of Caleb, the son of Jephone, were Hir, and Ela, and Naham. And the son of Ela, Cenez.

16 The sons also of Jalaleel, Ziph, and Zipha, Thiria, and Asrael.

17 And the sons of Ezra : Jether and Mered, and Ephher, and Jalon, and he begot Mariam, and Sammai, and Jesba, the father of Esthamo.

18 And his wife, Judaia, bore Jared, the father of Gedor, and Heber, the father of Socho, and Icuthiel, the father of Zanoë. And these are the sons of Bethia, the daughter of Pharao, whom Mered took to wife.

19. And the sons of his wife Odaia, the sister of Naham, the father of Ceila, were Garimi, and Esthamo, who was of Machathi.

20 The sons also of Simon : Amnon, and Rinna, the son of Hanan, and Thilon. And the sons of Jesi : Zoheth, and Benzoheth.

21 The sons of Sela, the son of Juda : Her, the father of Lecha, and Laada, the father of Maresa, and the families of the house of them that wrought fine linen in the house of Oath.

^b Gen. xxxviii. 5.

ing, as we are not informed who were the brethren of Jabes. C.—This name he received from his mother, while his father, Cos, called him Othoniel. E.

VER. 10. For. To reward his piety and vow. Othoniel obtained Cariath-sepher and Axa, the daughter of Caleb. Jos. xv. 17. C.—Jabes imitated holy Jacob, (Gen. xxviii.) and both desired temporal blessings for their advancement in virtue. W.

VER. 11. Caleb. Heb. "Celub," different both from Calubi and the son of Jephone. v. 15. C.—Crother, &c. Sept. "father of Ascha," which would seem to make him the same with the latter.

VER. 12. City. Heb. "Hir-Nachash." The latter term denotes "copper or a serpent." We know not where this city was situated, no more than Recha. C.

VER. 13. Othoniel, first judge. H.—He was brother, or rather cousin, of Caleb. See Jos. xv. 17.

VER. 14. Artificers. Heb. Charashim, which means various sorts of "workmen," (C.) or "father (prince M.) of Ge-Harasim, for," &c. C.—Under this lord the artificers dwelt who built the temple. W.

VER. 15. Caleb, so memorable (C.) for his fidelity. Num. xii. 30, and xxxii. 12. H.

VER. 18. Judaia, a second wife of his own nation. By the first, from Egypt, Mered had Miriam, &c. Some words seem to be lost, which render it doubtful to whom Judaia was married.

VER. 19. Odaia, perhaps the same with Judaia, (C.) as the Sept. read.—Who was. Heb. and Sept. "Machatha," (H.) a place to the north of Basan, far from the limits of Juda, whence we should, perhaps, read Menuchath, as C. ii. 52, 54.

VER. 21. Her. Hitherto we have seen the possessions of the descendants of Phares. Those of Her inhabited the country rendered famous by the exploit of Samson with the jaw bone. Judg. xv. 9. C.—The first-born of Sela was called Her, after his unfortunate uncle. Gen. xxxiii. 7. H.—That wrought. Sept. take it for a proper name, "Ebdath." Heb. Beth-habodath habuts, "the house of the byssus, or fine linen manufacturers in Beth-Ashbiah," (H.) which is, perhaps, the same with Beersabee, "the well of swearing." Gen. xxi. 31. C.—

22 And He, that made the sun to stand, and the men of Lying, and Secure, and Burning, who were princes in Moab, and who returned into Lahem. Now these are things of old.

23 These are the potters, and they dwelt in Plantations and Hedges, with the king for his works, and they abode there.

24 The sons of *Simeon: Namuel, and Jamin, Jarib, Zara, and Saul:

25 Sellum his son, Mapsam his son, Masma his son.

26 The sons of Masma: Hamuel his son, Zachur his son, Semei his son.

27 The sons of Semei were sixteen, and six daughters: but his brethren had not many sons, and the whole kindred could not reach to the sum of the children of Juda.

28 And they dwelt in Bersabee, and Molada, and Hasarsuhal,

29 And in Bala, and in Asom, and in Tholad,

30 And in Bathuel, and in Horma, and in Siceleg,

31 And in Bethmarchaboth, and in Hasarsusim, and in Bethberai, and in Saarim. These were their cities unto the reign of David.

32 Their towns also were Etam, and Aen, Remmon, and Thochen, and Asan, five cities.

33 And all their villages round about these cities as far as Baal. This was their habitation and distribution of their dwellings.

34 And Mosabab, and Jemlech, and Josa, the son of Amasias,

35 And Joel, and Jehu the son of Josabia, the son of Saraia, the son of Asiel,

36 And Elioenai, and Jacoba, and Isuhaia, and Isaia, and Adiel, and Ismiel, and Banaia;

* Gen. xli. 10.

Oath. The Latin word juramenti, might be retained here, as well as Calor. O. ii. 55. See 2 K. xxi. 19. Sept. read, "Esoba," as the proper name of a place. H.

VER. 22. He, that made, &c., viz. Joazim, the meaning of whose name in Hebrew, is, he that made the sun to stand. In like manner the following names, Lying (Cozba) Secure, (Joash) and Burning (Saraph) are substituted in place of the Hebrew names of the same signification. Ch.—The first etymology is not perfectly accurate, as Jokim means simply, "he made to stand;" Jachin, the pillar which Solomon erected, has the same import. H.—Some injudicious person seems to have placed the sun in the margin, whence it has crept into the text. T.—It might be occasioned by the fable of the Rabbins, who assert (H.) that Elimelech wrought the like miracle as Josue, to convince the people of Bethlehem of the necessity of being converted; but, finding them incorrigible, denounced a famine, which forced him to retire with his family into the country of Moab. S. Jer. Trad. &c.—Elimelech died in that country; but these four descendants of Sela retired, probably, along with him, and returned afterwards to Lehem, or Bethlehem, as it is customary to omit a part of a word. T.—This town was peopled by different branches of Juda's family, v. 4, and C. ii. 54. C.—Lahem, &c. Sept. seem to leave the original terms: "he made them return to Abedgerin Athoukiim."—Who returned, is also left as a proper name by the Prot (H.) &c. "And Jasubi Lehem." Vat. M.—It is not easy to decide, when the Hebrew words should be translated.—Old. Heb. "and ancient words;" (H.) records, shewing where these families resided, (C.) unless this be also the name (H.) of a place. Sept.

VER. 23. Potters. Heb. Yotserim, may also designate some family, as it seems improbable that the princes, in Moab, should be reduced to so mean a condition. But we have many examples of such a fall; (H.) and it is supposed, that these descendants of Sela were employed by the king of Babylon, at Nethaim and Gadera. C.—It-dyes. These are the proper names of the places where they dwelt. In Hebrew, Netahim and Gadera. Ch.—Sept. "Atalim and Gadera." H.—The correct Roman edition of the Vulg. prints these words, plantationibus et Sepibus, with large letters, to imply as much. M.—King; David. Sa. M.—Many of the tribe of Juda attended David, while he was forced to flee before Saul, and to hide himself in unfrequented places. Some of them might be these Yotserim, or they might follow the profession of potters. H.—"With the king they were powerful in his kingdom, and dwelt there." Sept. H.—The Vulg. often gives the meaning of proper names. D.

VER. 24. Namuel, or Jamuel. Gen. xli. 10.—Jarib; perhaps the same with Sohar, (M.) unless the latter be Zara or Zare. Num. xxv. 12. These genealogies seem different; but the same person (C.) might have many names. D.

37 Ziza also, the son of Sephei, the son of Allon, the son of Idaia, the son of Semri, the son of Samaia.

38 These were named princes in their kindreds, and in the houses of their families were multiplied exceedingly.

39 And they went forth to enter into Gador, as far as the east side of the valley, to seek pastures for their flocks.

40 And the found fat pastures, and very good, and a country spacious, and quiet, and fruitful, in which some of the race of Cham had dwelt before.

41 And these, whose names are written above, came in the days of Ezechias, king of Juda: and they beat down their tents, and slew the inhabitants that were found there, and utterly destroyed them unto this day: and they dwelt in their place, because they found there fat pastures.

42 Some also of the children of Simeon, five hundred men, went into Mount Seir, having for their captains, Phaltias, and Naaria, and Raphaia, and Oziel, the sons of Jesi:

43 And they slew the remnant of the Amelecites, who had been able to escape, and they dwelt there in their stead unto this day.

CHAP. V.

Genealogies of Ruben and Gad: their victories over the Agarites: their captivity.

NOW the sons of Ruben, the first-born of Israel, (for he was his first-born: but forasmuch as he defiled his father's bed, his first birth-right was given to the sons of Joseph, the son of Israel, and he was not accounted for the first-born.

2 But of the race of Juda, who was the strongest among his brethren, came the princes: but the first birth-right was accounted to Joseph.)

* Gen. xxxv. 22, and xlix. 4.

VER. 27. Juda, probably not even in the following cities, which they inhabited along with them. This tribe of Simeon was always the weakest, and kept close to Juda. See Num. xxvi. 14.

VER. 30. Bathuel appears to be the same as Bathulia. Judith vi. 7. C.

VER. 31. David, who had Siceleg given to him, 1 K. xxvii. 6. H.—After the schism, Juda straitened the tribe of Simeon; so that it was forced to seek for other habitations in Gador, under Ezechias, v. 39. &c. C.—It could no longer reside among those of the tribe of Juda (D.) and acknowledge another king. H.

VER. 33. Baal, or Ballath. Jos. xix. 1.—Distribution. Heb. and Sept. "and their genealogy. M.—Karaloytasos may as well have the former signification, "their class;" (H.) though the sequel seems to determine it in the latter sense. D.

VER. 34. Mosabab. This and the following princes joined their forces, to conquer fresh territories from Gador, (H.) or Gadara, near Joppe, (Strabo xvi) which had been long in the possession (H.) of the Egyptians, (v. 40. C.) or Philistines. Malvenda.

VER. 40. Cham. It is not certain that the Philistines, who came from the country of the Casluim, were descendants of Mezram. Gen. x. 14. But it is very clear that the Egyptians sprung from Cham. Ps. lxxvii. 51.

VER. 41. Inhabitants. Sept. "and the Mineans." Heb. mejenim, "the inhabitants of Minon," in Arabia. See Judg. x. 11. Syr. and Arab. "the fountains."

VER. 42. Jesi; perhaps Assia, by the transposition of one letter; (v. 36. C.) or these chiefs were remote descendants of Jesi, v. 20. H.—The expedition probably took place about the same time as the preceding, to avoid the attack of the Assyrians, or of Juda, by retiring farther into Arabia. C.

VER. 43. Escape the arms of Saul, or of David. D.—Day. It seems, therefore, that they escaped captivity, having abandoned their own country; or this was taken from a record, which had been made before that event, and is here inserted by Esdras; though, when he wrote, these Simeonites might have experienced the fate of their brethren, who were led captives in the 6th year of Ezechias. H.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. First-born. Gen. xlix. 4. W.—He gives this reason for not beginning with him. C.—And he. Prot. "and the genealogy is not to be reckoned after the birth-right." H.

VER. 2. Accounted to Joseph, viz. as to the double portion, which belonged to the first-born; but the princely dignity was given to Juda, and the priesthood to Levi. Ch.—Yet it is not certain that the latter dignity formed a part of the birth-right, (Gen. xxv. 31.) and the author takes no notice of it. C.—The double portion seems to have been all the privilege. Deut. xxi. 17. Sept. "the 3 The sons then of Ruben, the first-born of Israel, were Enoch, and Phallu, Esron, and Charmi.

4 The sons of Joel: Samai his son, Gog his son, Semei his son,

5 Micha his son, Reia his son, Baal his son,

6 Beera his son, whom Thelgathphalnasar, "king of the Assyrians, carried away captive, and he was prince in the tribe of Ruben.

7 And his brethren, and all his kindred, when they were numbered by their families, had for princes Jehiel, and Zacharias.

8 And Bala, the son of Azaz, the son of Samma, the son of Joel, dwelt in Aroer, as far as Nebo, and Beelmeon.

9 And eastward he had his habitation as far as the entrance of the desert, and the river Euphrates. For they possessed a great number of cattle in the land of Galaad.

10 And in the days of Saul they fought against the Agarites, and slew them, and dwelt in their tents in their stead, in all the country that looketh to the east of Galaad.

11 And the children of Gad dwelt over against them in the land of Basan, as far as Selcha:

12 Johel, the chief, and Saphan, the second: and Janai, and Saphat, in Basan.

13 And their brethren, according to the houses of their kindreds, were Michael, and Mosollam, and Sebe, and Jorai, and Jacan, and Zie, and Heber, seven.

14 These were the sons of Abihail, the son of Huri, the son of Jara, the son of Galaad, the son of Michael, the son of Jesesi, the son of Jeddo, the son of Buz.

15 And their brethren, the sons of Abdiel, the son of Guni, chief of the house, in their families.

16 And they dwelt in Galaad, and in Basan, and in the towns thereof, and in all the suburbs of Saron, unto the borders.

17 All these were numbered in the days of Joathan, king of Juda, and in the days of Jeroboam, king of Israel.

18 The sons of Ruben, and of Gad, and of the half tribe of Manasses, fighting men, bearing shields, and swords, and bending the bow, and trained up to battles, four and forty thousand, seven hundred and threescore, that went out to war.

19 They fought against the Agarites: but the Itureans, and Naphis, and Nodab, 20 Gave them help. And the Agarites were delivered into their hands, and all that were with them, because they called upon God in the battle: and he heard them, because they had put their faith in him.

21 And they took all that they possessed, of camels fifty thousand, and of sheep two hundred and fifty thousand, and of asses two thousand, and of men a hundred thousand souls.

22 And many fell down slain: for it was the battle of the Lord. And they dwelt in their stead till the captivity.

23 And the children of the half tribe of Manasses possessed the land, from the borders of Basan unto Baal, Harmon, and Sanir, and Mount Hermon; for their number was great.

24 And these were the heads of the house of their kindred, Ephraim, and Jesi, and Eliel, and Esriel, and Jeremia, and Odoia, and Jediel; most valiant and powerful men, and famous chiefs in their families.

25 But they forsook the God of their fathers, and went astray after the gods of the people of the land, whom God destroyed before them.

26 And the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of Phul, "king of the Assyrians, and the spirit of Thelgathphalnasar, king of Assur: and he carried away Ruben, and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasses, and brought them to Lahela, and to Habor, and to Ara, and to the river Gozan, unto this day.

CHAP. VI.

The genealogies of Levi, and of Aaron: the cities of the Levites.

THE "sons of Levi were Gerson, Caath, and Merari. 2 The sons of Caath: Amram, Isaar, Hebron, and Oziel.

* Gen. xlv. 9. Exod. vi. 14. Num. xxvi. 5.—b 4 Kings xv. 29.

blessing or gift was Joseph's." Heb. also does not specify princes, but "the leader," (H.) the Messias, (Syr. &c.) and kings, from David till the captivity. C. Gen. xlix. 4. W.

VER. 4. Joel. It does not appear whether he was the son of the last, or of Enoch.

VER. 6. Beera. This tribe continued to have princes of their own, after the division of the kingdom. Beera was in power when Thelgathphalnasar, or Thelgathphalasar, took five tribes into captivity. 4 K. xv. 29. Only twelve generations are mentioned to fill up about 750 years, from the leaving of Egypt. C.—But Enoch must have lived much sooner, as the Israelites continued in that country at least 215 years. The princes are probably not all specified, as on other occasions. H.

VER. 7. Families, when they were led captive into Assyria; (M.) or before, when the tribe was in a most flourishing condition.—Princes. Heb. and Sept. "prince."—Jehiel. Sept. "Joel." v. 4.

VER. 8. And. So Heb. &c. as if he was one of the princes. But the Vulg. seems to begin a new sentence, Porro, "now Bala." The possessions of this man must have been very extensive, from the Euphrates till (H.) Baal-meon, within nine miles of Hesebon, (Eus.) almost (C.) as far as the Jordan. T.—Bala, or his descendants, extended their conquests as far as the Euphrates, which had been promised to Israel; and, under Saul, conquered the Agarites, who sprung from Agar. Syr. &c., "the Arabs of Sacca," or the Scenites, "dwelling under tents," and inhabiting the Desert Arabia. The details of this war are probably given, v. 19. &c. C.

VER. 9. Cattle, for which reason they desired to have this country. Num. xxxii. 4. M.

VER. 11. Selcha, not far from the Jabok. Deut. iii. 10. C.

VER. 12. Chief, (in capital.) Sept. "first-born." H.—This list was made under Joathan, king of Juda, when Joel was at the head of the tribe of Gad. C.—Basan, the capital city, v. 16. S. M.

VER. 15. Aud, &c. Heb. also, "Achi, son of Abdiel."—Chief, like the proceding, each in their respective families. C.—They were relations (H.) of the same tribe. M.

VER. 16. Saron, in Basan; (Jos. xii. 18.) different from those vallies near Joppe, (C.) and between Thabor and Tiberias. Euseb.

VER. 17. Israel. Jeroboam II. had been dead two years before Joathan was born; unless some of the numbers be incorrect, which seems very probable. 4 K. xv. 5. Yet these registers might be made at different times, and one, perhaps, under Jeroboam I. as when any war seemed to threaten, the number of soldiers was to be known. C.—It does not appear why the king of Juda is mentioned, as the people were not under his dominion, unless (H.) he was contemporary with Jeroboam II. as some assert. M.—Yet the following expedition seems to have taken place while Israel was still faithful to God. (H.) By faith they overcame kingdoms. Heb. xi. W.

VER. 19. But, &c. Heb. "and Jetur, &c. (20) and they were helped by God against them." H.—Sept. "they prevailed over them, and the Agarites," &c. The ancient, or higher, Iturea, lay between Hermon and Manasses; but the lower, which Josephus includes under this name, took in the deserted possessions of that half tribe. C.—The former (H.) extended from Jordan by Libanus, to the mountains of Tyre. M.—And Naphis, sons of Ismael. Gen. xxv. 13. H.

VER. 22. Lord. Very dreadful, and in obedience to God's orders.—Captivity, v. 6. C.

VER. 23. Basan, which belonged to Gad. H.—In Josue (xvii. 5.) Basan and Galaad seem to be given to Manasses; but the former there denotes all the level country, from the Jabok to the Jordan, as Galaad is put for the mountains on the East. C.—Great. It would take thirty hours to travel from the torrent Jabok to Baal Hermon. Adric. M.

VER. 26. Assur. These princes were scourges in the hand of God, to punish the guilty. H.—The former forced Israel to pay tribute; the latter carried many into captivity, 4 K. xv. 19, 29. and xvi. 7. C.—Lahela, or Hala and Haber, cities watered by the river Gozan.—Ara; perhaps Rages. Tob. i. 16, &c. D.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Levi. The genealogy of the Levites is given with more (503)

3 The children of Amram : Aaron, Moses, and Maria. The sons of Aaron : Nadab and Abiu, Eleazar and Ithamar.

4 Eleazar begot Phinees, and Phinees begot Abisue;

5 And Abisue begot Bocci, and Bocci begot Ozi;

6 Ozi begot Zaraias, and Zaraias begot Merajoth;

7 And Merajoth begot Amarias, and Amarias begot Achitob;

8 And Achitob begot Sadoc, and Sadoc begot Achimaas;

9 Achimas begot Azarias, and Azarias begot Johanan;

10 Johanan begot Azarias. This is he that executed the priestly office in the house which Solomon built in Jerusalem.

11 And Azarias begot Amarias, and Amarias begot Achitob;

12 And Achitob begot Sadoc, and Sadoc begot Sellum;

13 Sellum begot Helcias, and Helcias begot Azarias;

14 Azarias begot Saraias, and Saraias begot Josedec.

15 Now Josedec went out, when the Lord carried away Juda, and Jerusalem by the hands of Nabuchodonosor.

16 So the sons of Levi were, Gerson, Caath, and Merari.

17 And these are the names of the sons of Gerson : Lobni and Semei.

18 The sons of Caath : Amram, and Isaar, and Hebron, and Oziel.

19 The sons of Merari : Moholi and Musi. And these are the kindred of Levi according to their families;

20 Of Gerson ; Lobni, his son, Jahath, his son, Zamma, his son,

21 Joah, his son, Addo, his son, Zara, his son, Jethrai, his son,

* Exod. vi. 16.

exactitude than any of the preceding. Caath formed two branches, 1. the priests, descended from Aaron; 2. all his other children, who were simply Levites. C.—Hence they are placed after the priests. M.

VER. 2. Isaar, or Amiadab, v. 22.

VER. 3. Abiu. These died without children. The genealogy of Eleazar is given, as his family enjoyed the pontificate a long time, while that of Ithamar is neglected, (C.) as only Heli and a few others were raised to that dignity. H.

VER. 4. Eleazar. The nine following generations to Sadoc may be immediate. D.

VER. 5. Abisue. He is mentioned nowhere else. Josephus (v. ult.) calls him Abiezar. C.—Many of these high priests were very obscure. M.—Ozi, after whom Heli is supposed to have reigned, so that Zaraias and the three following were excluded. (C.) while Heli, and four of the same family of Ithamar, were acknowledged as high priests. T.—Abiathar was then forced to give place to Sadoc, (3 K. ii. 26. H.) whose family was in power at the captivity, v. 15. T.—Nicephorus (ii. 4.) and Josephus (x. 11.) mention other high priests besides these. W.

VER. 9. Azarias. Perhaps the same who is called Amarias, (2 Par. xix. 11.) as Johanan is probably the illustrious Joiada, 4 K. xi. 4.

VER. 10. This may refer to either. C.—The Holy Ghost gives an encomium to Joiada, for re-establishing the divine worship, (Junius) or to Azarias, for withstanding the impious attempt of king Osias. E. T. &c. 2 Paral. xxvi. 17. M.

VER. 12. Sellum, or Mosollam. C. ix. 11. C.

VER. 15. Went out, into captivity, while his father was slain. 4 K. xxv. 18. More than 22 priests would be requisite to fill up near 900 years. See Salen.

VER. 16. Gerson. Heb. here reads Gerson, though it had Gerson before, v. 1.

VER. 18. The, &c. This verse is repeated from v. 2, as the author is now going to continue the genealogy of the Levites, in their natural order, (H.) to Samuel. D.

VER. 20. Jahath. See v. 42, 3.—Zamma springs from Semei, Jeth, Gerson, and has a son named Ethan, who has Adaia; as Zara begot Athanai, v. 41. Almost all these names are rather different.

VER. 22. Asir. While Core perished his children were preserved. Num. xvi. 30. and xxvi. 11. H.

22 The sons of Caath : Aminadab, his son, Core, his son, Asir, his son,

23 Elcana, his son, Abiasaph, his son, Asir, his son,

24 Thahath, his son, Uriel, his son, Ozias, his son, Saul, his son.

25 The sons of Elcana : Amasai, and Achimoth,

26 And Elcana. The sons of Elcana : Sophai, his son, Nahath, his son,

27 Eliab, his son, Jeroham, his son, Elcana, his son;

28 The sons of Samuel : the first-born, Vasseni, and Abia.

29 And the sons of Merari : Moholi, Lobni, his son, Semei, his son, Oza, his son, 30 Samaa, his son, Haggia, his son, Asaia, his son.

31 These are they whom David set over the singing men of the house of the Lord, after that the ark was placed :

32 And they ministered before the tabernacle of the testimony with singing, until Solomon built the house of the Lord in Jerusalem ; and they stood according to their order in the ministry.

33 And these are they that stood with their sons, of the sons of Caath, Heman, a singer, the son of Joel, the son of Samuel,

34 The son of Elcana, the son of Jeroham, the son of Eliel, the son of Thohu,

35 The son of Suph, the son of Elcana, the son of Mahath, the son of Amasai,

36 The son of Elcana, the son of Johel, the son of Azarias, the son of Sophonias,

37 The son of Thahath, the son of Asir, the son of Abiasaph, the son of Core,

38 The son of Isaar, the son of Caath, the son of Levi, the son of Israel.

39 And his brother Asaph, who stood on his right hand ; Asaph, the son of Barachias, the son of Samaa, b 2 Kings vi. 1 and 17 A. M. 2959, A. C. 1045.

VER. 23. Asir. This name seems superfluous, (v. 36. Ex. vi. 24. C.) perhaps taken from the preceding verse. H.—The two former were sons of Core, v. 25. 37. C.

VER. 26. Sophai, Nahath, and Eliab, are called Suph, (H.) Thohu, (v. 34. C.) and Eliel. H.—Sophai may be a surname of Elcana. Poole. D.

VER. 27. Elcana, his son. It seems necessary to supply Samuel, his son, (H.) as he descended from the 3d Elcana. D.

VER. 28. Vasseni. Some Latin copies subjoin "Joel," who was the first-born, (v. 33.) La Haye.—Vasseni means, "and the second;" which can hardly be considered as the name of the eldest son, though some have taken it as such, in like manner as they have explained stz. C. iii. 22. But then the v ought at least to be omitted, (C.) as it is in the Vat. and Alex. Sept. "Sani and Abia." H.—Other editions insert "Joel," with the Syr. and Arab. C.—This person had therefore either two names, or Joel has been omitted, and we should translate "Joel and the second Abia." M.—These brothers acted so ill as judges, that the people took occasion to demand a king. 1 K. viii. 3.

VER. 31. The singing. Heb. "the hands or places of the canticle," the two tribes on each side of the altar. Heman presided over the band in the middle, while Asaph directed those on the right, and Ethan those on the left, v. 33, 39, and 44. C.—Placed. Heb. "rested," as before David's time it had been carried about. He erected a tabernacle for it on Sion, and directed the Levites to attend in order, (C. xxv.) so that some should be present every day (M.) to honor God, both by instruments and vocal music, while the priests performed their sacred functions with the utmost decency.

VER. 33. Heman. Some families among the Levites were more distinguished than the rest, having authority to regulate the singers, and to give the tune. Hence many psalms are addressed to these masters of music. Yet from those titles we cannot surely infer that those psalms were composed by Asaph, &c. C.

VER. 34. Eliel. Many of the genealogies do not seem to agree in these first 10 chapters, as some more obscure names have been passed over, (M.) or the people had different names, or, through the fault of transcribers, some alteration has taken place, which could hardly be avoided, without a constant miracle. H.

VER. 39. Brother, or relation, though the family of Gerson. He also followed the same profession as Ethan did, v. 44.

40 The son of Michael, the son of Basaia, the son of Melchi,

41 The son of Athanai, the son of Zara, the son of Adaia,

42 The son of Ethan, the son of Zamma, the son of Semei,

43 The son of Jeth, the son of Gerson, the son of Levi.

44 And the sons of Merari, their brethren, stood on the left hand; Ethan, the son of Cusi, the son of Abdi, the son of Maloch,

45 The son of Hasabia, the son of Amasia, the son of Helcias, 46 The son of Amasai, the son of Boni, the son of Somer.

47 The son of Moholi, the son of Musi, the son of Merari, the son of Levi.

48 Their brethren also, the Levites, who were appointed for all the ministry of the tabernacle of the house of the Lord.

49 But Aaron and his sons offered burnt-offerings upon the altar of holocaust, and upon the altar of incense, and were for every work of the holy of holies; and to pray for Israel, according to all that Moses, the servant of God, had commanded.

50 And these are the sons of Aaron: Eleazar, his son, Phinees, his son, Abisue, his son,

51 Bocci, his son, Ozi, his son, Zarahia, his son,

52 Meraioth, his son, Amarias, his son, Achitob, his son,

53 Sadoc, his son, Achimaas, his son.

54 And these are their dwelling places by the towns and confines; to wit, of the sons of Aaron, of the families of the Caathites: for they fell to them by lot.

55 And they gave them Hebron, in the land of Juda, and the suburbs thereof round about:

56 But the fields of the city, and the villages, to Caleb, son of Jephone.

57 And to the sons of Aaron they gave of the cities for refuge, Hebron and Lobna, and the suburbs thereof;

58 And Jether, and Esthemo, with their suburbs, and Helon, and Dabir, with their suburbs:

59 Asan also, and Bethsemes, with their suburbs.

60 And out of the tribe of Benjamin: Gabee, and its suburbs, Almath, with its suburbs, Anathoth also with its suburbs: all their cities throughout their families were thirteen.

61 And to the sons of Caath, that remained of their kindred, they gave out of the half tribe of Manasses, ten cities in possession.

62 And to the sons of Gerson, by their families, out of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Aser, and out of the tribe of Nephthali, and out of the tribe of Manasses, in Basan, thirteen cities.

63 And to the sons of Merari, by their families, out of the tribe of Ruben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zabulon, they gave by lot twelve cities.

64 And the children of Israel gave to the Levites the cities, and their suburbs:

65 And they gave them by lot, out of the tribe of the sons of Juda, and out of the tribe of the sons of Simeon, and out of the tribe of the sons of Benjamin, these cities, which they called by their names,

66 And to them, that were of the kindred of the sons of Caath, and the cities in their borders were of the tribe of Ephraim.

67 And they gave of the cities of refuge, Sichem, with its suburbs, in Mount Ephraim, and Gazer, with its suburbs,

68 Jecmaan also, with its suburbs, and Bethoron, in like manner;

69 Helon also, with its suburbs, and Gethremmon, in like manner:

70 And out of the half tribe of Manasses, Aner, and its suburbs, Baalam, and its suburbs: to wit, to them that were left of the family of the sons of Caath.

71 And to the sons of Gerson, out of the kindred of the half tribe of Manasses, Gaulon, in Basan, and its suburbs, and Astharoth, with its suburbs.

72 Out of the tribe of Issachar, Cedes, and its suburbs, and Dabereth, with its suburbs, 73 Ramoth also, and its suburbs, and Anem, with its suburbs.

* Josue xxi. 21.

VER. 44. Ethan is also called Idithun (C. xxv. l. 8) in the Psalms. C.

VER. 48. Brethren. All the other Levites, who were not Cantors. M.

VER. 49. Offerings, which is here the meaning of incensum; as "incense" was not burned on this altar, but only victims. Ex. xxix. 13.

VER. 53. Sadoc. By God's ordonnance Heli had been appointed. But the dignity still subsisted in Aaron's family. W.—Achimaas, who was pontiff in the days of Solomon. This genealogy had been brought down to the Captivity, (v. 3, &c.) which shews that the author gives extracts from different records.

VER. 55. Suburbs, or 2000 cubits round the city. See Jos. xx. and xxi. C.

VER. 57. Of is not authorized by the Vulg. civitates, but is added, to signify that all these 13 cities were not thus privileged. H.—There were only six cities of refuge, of which Hebron was one. See Jos. xx. 7. C. M.—Prot. "And to the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of Juda, namely, Hebron, the city of refuge." But "such a licence to insert words at pleasure, cannot be allowed." Heb. lit. "they gave cities of Hebrew refuge, Hebron," &c. The "sense absolutely disallows the word Judah," which is omitted, (Jos. xxi. 13) as well as in some Heb. MSS. in the Bamberg and Complut. editions, and in those of Jablonski and Michaelis. —Hari, "cities," ought to be hir, "a city," as only one is meant. We should also add with the Arab. and Syriac, and the parallel passage in Josue, "and her suburbs," after Hebron. Kennicott.—"Juda" is not found in the Sept. &c.: and Buxtorf acted with little wisdom, when he thought he had sufficiently answered Capellus, by observing that the Masora declared the word to be authentic. Anticrit. It is a great misfortune that most of the printed Heb. editions have been given under such influence; and that the Masorets have defaced so many MSS. by their corrections. H.—Hence they probably burnt all the first edition of Naples, 1487, except part of a single copy, comprising the Gethubim given to Eton college by Dr. Pellet, which omits the word Juda. Kennicott. Dis. i. p. 520-2.

VER. 59. Asan, perhaps Jethnan, or Ain Jos. xv. 23, and xxi. 15. Syriac adds Rhira. C.—Bethsemes. Sept. Alex. subjoins, "Baither and its suburbs." H.—All these cities were in the tribes of Juda and of Simeon. M.

VER. 60. Almath. Jos. Almon.—Thirteen; but Geta and Gabaa are not here expressed. Jos. xxi. 16, 17. C.—Sept. Alex. inserts, "Labee," before, and "Auchos, with its suburbs," after Anathoth, thus making 14; but these additional cities were not sacerdotal. H.

VER. 61. Out of. We may supply, "the tribe of Dan, Ephraim, &c.," as only two cities belonged to Manasses. Jos. xxi. 25. C.—Double that number was taken from the two other tribes. M.

VER. 65. Them. The priests, v. 54. D.—Names. Some being styled of the priests, (C.) others of the Levites, (M.) whose dominion was thus asserted. C.

VER. 66. The cities, or rather "some cities," as all were not in the tribe of Ephraim. H.

VER. 67. Of the. Lit. "cities to flee to (or of refuge) Sichem," (H.) which might induce some to suppose that all these cities were of this description; but, in reality, only Sichem had that privilege. C.—Sept. is liable to the same ambiguity. See v. 57. (H.) Jos. xx. 7. and xxi. 21.

VER. 68. Jecmaan, or Cibsaam, (Jos.) as Helon is put for Aialon below. Ana of the tribe of Dan, Elweco and Gubathon is omitted. See Jos. xxi. 23.

VER. 70. Aner and Baalam, perhaps the same as Thanach and Gethremmon, which were given to the children of Caath of the inferior degree, (Jos. xxi. 26. C.) or, who were left out of the rank of priests, (M.) or before unprovided for, as the partition was made at different times.—Baalam. Heb. "Balaam." Sept. "Ib-iaam" is the Jebelaam. Jos. xvii. 11.

VER. 71. Astharoth, or Bosra. C.—Heb. Hashtaroth. Jos. xxi. 27. H.

VER. 72. Cedes. . . . Ramoth, and Anem, are Cesion, Jaramoth, and Engannim. Jos. xxi. 28, 29.

74 And out of the tribe of Aser, Masal, with its suburbs, and Abdon, in like manner, 75 Hucac also, and its suburbs, and Rohob, with its suburbs.

76 And out of the tribe of Nephthali, Cedes, in Galilee, and its suburbs, Hamon, with its suburbs, and Cariathaim, and its suburbs.

77 And to the sons of Merari that remained, out of the tribe of Zabulon, Remmono, and its suburbs, and Thabor, with its suburbs :

78 Beyond the Jordan also, over against Jericho, on the east side of the Jordan, out of the tribe of Ruben, Bosor, in the wilderness, with its suburbs, and Jassa, with its suburbs.

79 Cademoth also, and its suburbs, and Mephaath, with its suburbs.

80 Moreover also out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth, in Galaad, and its suburbs, and Manaim, with its suburbs, 81 Hesebon also, with its suburbs, and Jezer with its suburbs.

CHAP. VII.

Genealogies of Issachar, Benjamin, Nephthali, Manasses, Ephraim, and Aser.

NOW the sons of Issachar were, Thola, and Phua, Jasub, and Simeron, four.

2 The sons of Thola : Ozi, and Raphaia, and Jeriel, and Jamai, and Jebsem, and Samuel, chiefs of the houses of their kindreds. Of the posterity of Thola, were numbered in the days of David, two and twenty thousand six hundred most valiant men.

3 The sons of Ozi : Izrahia, of whom were born Michael, and Obadia, and Joel, and Jesia, five, all great men.

4 And there were with them by their families and peoples, six and thirty thousand most valiant men ready for war : for they had many wives and children.

5 Their brethren also throughout all the house of Issachar, were numbered fourscore and seven thousand most valiant men for war.

6 The sons of Benjamin were, Bela, and Bechor, and Jadihel, three.

* Gen. xlii. 13.—^bGen. xlii. 13.

VER. 75. Hucac . . . Hamon, and Cariathaim, are Helcath, Hammoth-Dor, and Carthian.

VER. 77. Remmono and Thabor, or Jecliam and Cartha. H.—Damna and Naalol are here omitted. Jos. xxi. 35. There was formerly a town on Thabor, perhaps called Ceset Thabor. Jos. xix. 12. Judg. iv. 6. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Jasub, or Job. See Gen. xlii. 13. Num. xxvi. 23. C.—Simeron, elsewhere Samron and Semran; (M.) which shows, either that the names have been differently pronounced, or that the transcribers have erred. H.

VER. 2. Chiefs. They were at the head of distinct families. M.—David. We know that David took an account of his fighting men. 2 K. xxiv. But it is not certain that this register was made at that time; as we read that Benjamin was not numbered. C. xxi. 6. These lists were probably made when some expedition was intended by David. The author was not, perhaps, able to recover the accounts of Nephthali, Manasses, and Ephraim, no more than the genealogies of Dan (v. 12) and Zabulon, which do not appear in this book. C.

VER. 3. Sons, for "the son." D.—Izrahia. He alone deserved to be mentioned. See v. 6, where only three sons of Benjamin appear, though there were more. C. viii. 2. T.—Five, comprising Israhia, "all chiefs," (H.) men of note, (D.) or one name may be lost. C.

VER. 4. Children, who had numerous offspring; (H.) so that, in the days of David, these descendants of Thola amounted to so many. M.

VER. 5. War. In all, this tribe could muster 145,600 men, at that time. C. VER. 6. Benjamin; a man, perhaps, of the tribe of Issachar. See v. 10. Or the patriarch had originally ten sons, (Gen. xlii. 21.) or grandsons, five of whom only had children, and perhaps two of their families perished entirely in the war with the other tribes; (Judg. xx. 46.) so that, under David, only three branches were acknowledged. C.—Jadihel, or Asbel in Genesis.

VER. 7. Urai, a grandson, called Hir, v. 12. C.—Five chiefs, but inferior to the seven original families, (Num. xxvi. 38. M.) unless the fortune of war had made great changes, or some of the lists be imperfect. C.

7 The sons of Bela : Esbon, and Ozi, and Ozial, and Jerimoth, and Urai, five chiefs of their families, and most valiant warriors, and their number was twenty-two thousand and thirty-four.

8 And the sons of Bechor were, Zamira, and Joas, and Eliezer, and Elioenai, and Amri, and Jerimoth, and Abia, and Anathoth, and Almath : all these were the sons of Bechor.

9 And they were numbered by the families, heads of their kindreds, most valiant men for war, twenty thousand and two hundred.

10 And the sons of Jadihel : Balan. And the sons of Balan : Jehus, and Benjamin, and Aod, and Chanana, and Zethan, and Tharsis, and Ahisahar.

11 All these were the sons of Jadihel, heads of their kindreds, most valiant men, seventeen thousand and two hundred, fit to go out to war.

12 Sepham also, and Hapham, the sons of Hir : and Hasim, the sons of Aher.

13 And the sons of Nephthali were Jasiel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Sellum, sons of Bala.

14 And the son of Manasses, Ezriel : and his concubine, the Syrian, bore Macher, the father of Galaad.

15 And Machir took wives for his sons Happphim, and Sophan, and he had a sister, named Maacha : the name of the second was Salphaad, and Salphaad had daughters.

16 And Maacha, the wife of Machir, bore a son, and she called his name Phares ; and the name of his brother was Sares : and his sons were, Ulam and Recen.

17 And the sons of Ulam, Badan. These are the sons of Galaad, the son of Machir, the son of Manasses.

18 And his sister, named Queen, bore Goodlyman, and Abiezer, and Mohola.

19 And the sons of Semida were, Ahin, and Sechem, and Leci, and Aniam.

20 And the sons of Ephraim were Suthala, Bared, his son, Thabath, his son, Elada, his son, Thabath, his son, and his son Zabab,

21 And his son, Suthala, and his son, Ezer, and

* Gen. xlii. 21.

VER. 12. And Hupham ; called Mophim and Ophim, (Gen. xlii.) and Suphim and Hupham, Num. xxvi. 39.—Aher, in Heb. means "another" son, called Hazim : or more probably Aher ought to be Dan, the father of Husim, (Gen. xlii. 23) as Dan and Nephthali had both the same mother, Bala, v. 13. C.

VER. 13. Son. Heb. "sons . . . Ezriel, whom she bare." This seems imperfect. The Hebrews seldom name the mother. C.—Sept. intimate that the Syrian wife was mother of both. H.—Gulaad, whose posterity enjoyed the country of the same name, (Num. xxii. 29, and xxxii. 41) only Macher is mentioned as the son of Manasses.

VER. 15. And Saphan. S. Jerom seems to have taken them for women. If they were the sons of Hir, (v. 12) Machir probably adopted them. Heb. "Machir took a wife for Happphim," &c. But does one woman marry two men? Syr. and Arab. "Machir took to wife one of the sisters of Huphim and Suphim, (the great and powerful) named Maacha." C.—Prot. "the sister of Huphim . . . whose sister's name was Maachab." H.—Heb. may have this sense, with a small alteration. C.—Le Clerc thinks that the name of the woman has been lost, and the text altered.—Second. This also seems defective, as no first had been mentioned. C.—Two intervened between Machir and Salphaad, namely, Galaad and Hepher, (Num. xxvi. 29 and xxvii. 1. M.) so that Salphaad was his great-grandson. H.

VER. 17. Badan, perhaps the same with Jair; (Judg. x. 3, 1 K. xii. 11. C.) or rather in this last place, the Syr. &c., read more correctly Barac, and Samsou instead of Samuel, who was then speaking. See Heb. xi. 32. There was no such deliverer as Badan, but the word has been corrupted from Barac. Sept. Kennicoit.

VER. 18. Queen. Heb. "Moleceth bore Ishehod." S. Jerom and the Latin Church translate these names. W.—Prot. "Hammoleceth bore Ishehod." H.—The proper names might have been as well retained, (C) as in the Sept. H.—Some suppose that the mother of Josue, or Dehora, may be designated. Rabbins. —Abiezer, (19) Leci, are the Jeser and Chiehek. Num. xxvi. 30.

Elad : and the men of Geth, born in the land, slew them, because they came down to invade their possessions.

22 And Ephraim, their father, mourned many days, and his brethren came to comfort him.

23 And he went in to his wife : and she conceived, and bore a son, and he called his name Beria ; because he was born when it went evil with his house :

24 And his daughter was Sara, who built Bethoron, the nether and the upper, and Ozensara.

25 And Rapha was his son, and Roseph, and Thale, of whom was born Thaana.

26 Who begot Laadan : and his son was Ammiud, who begot Elisama, 27 Of whom was born Nun, who had Josue for his son.

28 And their possessions and habitations were Bethel, with her daughters, and eastward Noran, and westward Gazer and her daughters, Sichem also, with her daughters, as far as Asa, with her daughters.

29 And by the borders of the sons of Manasses, Bethsan, and her daughters, Thanach, and her daughters, Mageddo, and her daughters, Dor, and her daughters : in these dwelt the children of Joseph, the son of Israel.

30 The children of Aser were, Jemna, and Jesua, and Jessui, and Baria, and Sara, their sister.

31 And the sons of Baria : Heber, and Melchiel : he is the father of Barsaith.

32 And Heber begot Jephlat, and Somer, and Hotham, and Suaa, their sister.

33 The sons of Jephlat : Phosech, and Chamaal, and Asoth : these are the sons of Jephlat.

34 And the sons of Somer : Ahi, and Roaga, and Haba, and Aram.

35 And the sons of Helem, his brother : Supha, and Jemna, and Selles, and Amal.

36 The sons of Supha : Sue, Harnapher, and Sual, and Beri, and Jamma,

^a Gen. xvi. 24.

VER. 20. Bared, Thahath probably called Becher and Theken, in Num. Three alone are there mentioned, though the other thirteen, whose names are given, seem to have been all the immediate sons of Ephraim, (C.) since he mourns for them, (v. 22. M.) and has other children afterwards. H.—The dreadful slaughter made of them is perhaps the reason why only three are mentioned in Numbers, and none in Genesis.

VER. 21. Son, Ezer. Heb. "and Ezer and Elad." His son, after each, seems to be twice omitted, as these were in the same degree as the rest. Sept. agree with the Vulg. H.—Because they, the sons of Ephraim, (C. &c.) or the men of Geth. Syr. and Arab. D. M. T.—The text is ambiguous, but the former supposition seems more rational, (H.) and more generally received. C.

VER. 23. Beria. This name signifies, in evil, or in affliction. Ch.—Briä, "in howling." M.

VER. 24. Laughter, or great grand-daughter, repaired these three cities. C.—The last, probably, was called after her. H.—But its situation is unknown. C.

VER. 25. Thale. Heb. "And Thale, his son, and Thaana, his son." These seem to have been the sons of Ephraim. The following were their descendants. H.—At least Elisama was prince in the wilderness, (C.) under Moses; (Num. i. 10. H.) and Josue, the sixth from Ephraim, was 54 years old, when the Israelites left Egypt. C.

VER. 29 Daughters. Sept. "villages."—Joseph, by Ephraim and Manasses, west of the Jordan. H.

VER. 34. Aram. Add, "and Helem," (C.) unless Helem was the first-born (v. 35) of Ahi, which signifies "brother." Perhaps Helem was brother of Somer, called Hotham, v. 32.

VER. 37. Jethran. Sept. "Jether," as v. seq. H.

VER. 38. Jephone. The father of Caleb was of the tribe of Judah. C.

VER. 40. Of captains; a Hebrew idiom, to denote the most excellent. H.—Heb. "chief of the princes." All mentioned from v. 3, were at the head of their tribe, in succession, and led their brethren to battle. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Benjamin. Some farther particulars of his genealogy

37 Bosor, and Hod, and Samma, and Salusa, and Jethran, and Bera.

38 The sons of Jether : Jephone, and Phaspha, and Ara.

39 And the sons of Olla : Aree, and Haniel, and Resia.

40 All these were sons of Aser, heads of their families, choice and most valiant captains of captains : and the number of them that were of the age that was fit for war, was six and twenty thousand.

CHAP. VIII.

The posterity of Benjamin is further declared down to Saul. His issue.

NOW Benjamin begot Bale, his first-born, Asbel, the second, Ahara, the third,

2 Nohaa, the fourth, and Rapha, the fifth.

3 And the sons of Bale were : Addar, and Gera, and Abiud,

4 And Abisue, and Naaman, and Ahoe,

5 And Gera, and Sephuphan, and Huram.

6 These are the sons of Ahod, heads of families that dwelt in Gabaa, who were removed into Manahath.

7 And Naaman, and Achia, and Gera, he removed them, and begot Oza, and Ahiud.

8 And Saharim begot in the land of Moab, after he sent away Husim and Bara, his wives.

9 And he begot of Hodas, his wife, Jobab, and Sebia, and Mosa, and Molchom,

10 And Jehus, and Sechia, and Marma. These were his sons, heads of their families.

11 And Mehusim begot Abitob, and Elphaal.

12 And the sons of Elphaal : were Heber, and Misam, and Samad : who built Ono, and Lod, and its daughters.

13 And Baria, and Sama, were heads of their kindreds that dwelt in Aialon : these drove away the inhabitants of Geth.

14 And Ahio, and Sesac, and Jerimoth,

15 And Zabadia, and Arod, and Heder,

16 And Michael, and Jespha, and Joha, the sons of Baria, are given, for the honor of Saul; (C.) and many of those, who returned from captivity, are mentioned. 1 Esd. x. 11. Sanctius.—Bale, &c. are called Bela, M. C. vii. 6.) Jadiel, and Ahiram, or Echi, Num. xxvi. 36. Gen. xlii.

^b Gen. xlii. 21. Supra vii. 6.

VER. 2. Nohaa is probably styled Bechor; and Rapha, Ros, in Genesis.

VER. 3. Addar, Ared or Ilered. C.

VER. 6. Ahod, the judge. Judg. iii. 15.—Manahath; the Menuchath, in the tribe of Juda (C. ii. 54.) after the captivity. C.—Abuleensis thinks Manahath was in Moab, v. 8. M.

VER. 7. And. Lit. "but," autem. H.—The sentence is clearer without this particle. M.—Naaman was the first-born of Ahod; and Gera prevailed on his brethren to leave Gabaa, (T.) and was probably the father of Oza. C.

VER. 8. Saharim. His father is not specified: but he was a Benjamite. M.—Some force the Heb. text to say that Ahod had three sons, whom he sent to form a colony at Manahath, and afterwards he had three others by his two wives, and at last, by Rodes, he had Jobab, &c. C.—Begot. Prot. "children in the country of Moab, after he had sent them away: Husim and Baara were his wives." But the Sept. intimate that "Saharim begot . . . after he had sent away Osim, and his wife Baara, and he begot of Ada," &c. H.—He had perhaps retired into Moab, at the same time as Elimelech. Ruth i. T.—Those who were sent away were men, (eos) according to the Heb. unless (H.) the word should be eas. D.

VER. 11. Mehusim. Heb. and Sept. "of Husim (v. 8) he begot."

VER. 12. Ono was three miles from Lod, or Diospolis, (Lightfoot) built after the return from Babylon, (1 Esd. ii. 23. C.) in the territory of Benjamin. M.

VER. 13. And Sama. They are supposed to have been sons of Elphaal. C.—Aialon belonged to Dan. Jos. xix. 42. But it was near Benjamin, (M.) and was probably occupied by people chiefly of that tribe. H.—Geth. We know not at what period.

VER. 16. Baria, son of Elphaal. Whether the following were his brothers does not appear certain, as it seems more natural to have placed all his father's children together, v. 12. and 18.

- 17 And Zabadia, and Mosollam, and Hezeci, and Heber,
 18 And Jesamari, and Jezlia, and Jobab, sons of Elphaal,
 19 And Jacim, and Zechri, and Zabdi,
 20 And Elioenai, and Selethai, and Elial,
 21 And Adaia, and Baraia, and Samareth, the sons of Semei.
 22 And Jespham, and Heber, and Eliel,
 23 And Abdon, and Zechri, and Hanan,
 24 And Hanania, and Elam, and Anathothia,
 25 And Jephdaia, and Phanuel, the sons of Sesac.
 26 And Samsari, and Sohoria, and Otholia,
 27 And Jersia, and Alia, and Zechri, the sons of Jeroham.
 28 These were the chief fathers, and heads of their families, who dwelt in Jerusalem.
 29 And at Gabaon dwelt Abigabaon, and the name of his wife was Maacha :
 30 And his first-born son, Abdon, and Sur, and Cis, and Baal, and Nadab, 31 And Gedor, and Ahio, and Zacher, and Macelloth.
 32 And Macelloth begot Samaa : and they dwelt over against their brethren in Jerusalem, with their brethren.
 33 And Ner begot Cis, and Cis begot Saul. And Saul begot Jonathan, and Melchisua, and Abinadab, and Esbaal.
 34 And the son of Jonathan was Meribbaal : and Meribbaal begot Micha.
 35 And the sons of Micha, were Phithon, and Melech, and Tharaa, and Ahaz.
 36 And Ahaz begot Joada : and Joada begot Almath, and Azmoth, and Zamri : and Zamri begot Mosa, 37 And Mosa begot Banaa, whose son was Rapha, of whom was born Elasa, who begot Asel.
 38 And Asel had six sons, whose names were Ezri-

* Infra ix. 35.

- VER. 21. Semei; perhaps Sama, v. 13. C.—Sept. read, Samai. H.
 VER. 25. Sesac, probably mentioned v. 14. C.—Sept. have "Sosek," in both places.
 VER. 28. Families. Heb. "These were heads of the fathers by their generations, chief men." Prot. H.—Jerusalem, probably after the captivity. We find none of these names from v. 14, in the days of Josue; and it was not easy for people to establish themselves at Jerusalem, till David had expelled the Jebusites. C.—Yet we find that the tribes of Juda and of Benjamin had seized the lower city long before. Jos. xviii. 28. H.
 VER. 29. Dwelt. Lit. "they dwelt." But Heb. and Sept. "in Gabaon, dwelt the father of Gabaon." (II.) who was called Jehiel, (C. ix. 35.) or Aniel. 1 K. ix. 1. C.—The following verses are repeated in the next chapter, (H.) and seem to have been originally the same; though now many variations occur, which shew that "every Hebrew letter" has not been preserved. Kennicott.
 VER. 30. Baal. Add, "and Ner," (v. 33. C. ix. 36.) as the Sept. have it here also.
 VER. 31. Zacher, or Zacharias. C. ix. Heb. omits the following name, as well as (H.) the end of the preceding one. Kon.—The Alex. Sept. has the same faults. But the Vatican retains Macelloth. H.
 VER. 32. Over against, in the vicinity, while some remained at Gabaon. See Gen. xvi. 12. C.—The family of Cis resided at Gabaon. 1 K. x. 26. M.
 VER. 33. Ner, son of Abiel, or of Jehiel, prince of Gabaon, v. 29. II.—From Aphiasprung Bechorah, Seror, Abiel, (1 K. ix.) who is also called Ner and Jehiel. He had Ner, the father of Abner, and Cis, father of Saul. M.—Abinadab, or Jossui. 1 K. xiv. 49. C.—Esbaal, alias Isooseth. Ch.—The Hebrews avoid pronouncing the name of the idol, and substitute boseth, "confusion." C.—Hence it is clear that many had two names. D.
 VER. 34. Meribbaal, alias Mejhiboseth. 2 K. iv. 4. Ch. 2 K. ix. M.
 VER. 36. Joada, or Java. C. ix. 42. C.—"Strange mistakes these!" Kennicott.
 VER. 40. Archers, particularly the natives of Gabaon. Judg. xx. 16. Jonathan is praised for his skill. 2 K. i. 22. M.—Benjamin. We might hence conclude that here ended the genealogy of that family. Yet we find it partly repeated in the following chapter, v. 35. II.

cam, Bochrus, Ismahel, Saria, Obdia, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Asel.

39 And the sons of Esec, his brother, were Ulam, the first-born, and Jehus, the second, and Eliphalet, the third.

40 And the sons of Ulam were most valiant men, and archers of great strength : and they had many sons and grandsons, even to a hundred and fifty. All these were children of Benjamin.

CHAP. IX.

The Israelites, Priests, and Levites, who first dwell in Jerusalem after the captivity. A repetition of the genealogy of Saul.

AND all Israel was numbered : and the sum of them was written in the Book of the kings of Israel and Juda : and they were carried away to Babylon for their transgression.

2 Now the first that dwelt in their possessions, and in their cities, were the Israelites, and the priests, and the Levites, and the Nathineans.

3 And in Jerusalem dwelt of the children of Juda, and of the children of Benjamin, and of the children of Ephraim, and of Manasses.

4 Othei, the son of Ammiud, the son of Amri, the son of Omrai, the son of Bonni, of the sons of Phares, the son of Juda ;

5 And of Siloni : Asaia, the first-born, and his sons :

6 And of the sons of Zara : Jehuel, and their brethren, six hundred and ninety.

7 And of the sons of Benjamin : Salo, the son of Mosollam, the son of Oduia, the son of Asana.

8 And Jobania, the son of Jeroham : and Ela, the son of Ozi, the son of Mochori : and Mosollam, the son of Saphatias, the son of Rahuel, the son of Jebania :

9 And their brethren by their families, nine hundred and fifty-six. All these were heads of their families by the houses of their fathers.

10 And of the priests : Jedaia, Joiarib, and Jachin :

11 And Azarias, the son of Helcias, the son of Mo-

* 1 Kings xiv. 51. Infra ix. 39.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Israel. These registers were preserved by those who fled from the arms of Salmanassar, into the kingdom of Juda. Such records were preserved with the utmost care, and were collected by the author; who could give an account of what happened during and after the captivity, as he was an irreproachable eye-witness; not to mention the divine inspiration, which places his testimony out of the reach of criticism. C.—And Juda; perhaps by some historian. M.—Babylon, while Israel was removed elsewhere, by the Assyrians. H.—The genealogies of Israel being hitherto recited, now those who came back from captivity appear. W.

VER. 2. First. He only treats of those who returned first, (T.) under Esdras. H.—Nehemias brought back others, and more returned afterwards. Many also retook possession of their lands, which they had enjoyed before the captivity. 1 Esd. iii. 12.—Nathineans. These were the posterity of the Gabaonites, whose office was to bring wood, water, &c. for the service of the temple. Ch. Jos. ix. 27.—David and Solomon consigned others of the Chanaanites, whose lives they spared, to perform the same office. They were like public slaves. The number of those who returned was so small, that days were appointed for all the people to help to carry wood for the temple. At Jerusalem the Nathineans, "or people given," resided on the east side of the city; (2 Esd. ii. 26.) and other towns were assigned them. 1 Esd. ii. 70. C.—The people continued to be divided into four classes, as they had been before the captivity. Malvenda.

VER. 3. Manasses. People from these tribes particularly (H.) as well as from others, had fled to the kingdom of Juda, when the Assyrians took their brethren prisoners; and these returned to Jerusalem. M.—Cyrus gave a general leave for all Israel to return. The country was too spacious for them; and it was found necessary to force the tenth part of the people, by lot, to repair to Jerusalem, as it wanted inhabitants. 2 Esd. xi. 1.

VER. 4. Othei; perhaps Hathaia, son of Husias. The Heb. names are differently pronounced. C.

VER. 5. Siloni may mean a native of Silo, or a descendant of Sela. See Num. xxvi. 20. and 2 Esd. xi. 5. C.

VER. 7. Oduia, or Johed, or Juda. 2 Esd. xi. and vii. 9. Junius.

VER. 11. Azarias, or Saraia, ib. 11.—Mosollam, or Sellum. C. vi. 12. C.—High is not expressed in the Pentateuch; and this Azarias was only (H.) one of the sollam, the son of Sadoe, the son of Maraioth, the son of Architob, high priest of the house of God.

12 And Adaias, the son of Jeroham, the son of Phassur, the son of Melchias : and Maasai, the son of Adiel, the son of Jezra, the son of Mosollam, the son of Mosollamith, the son of Emmer.

13 And their brethren, heads in their families, a thousand seven hundred and threescore ; very strong and able men for the work of the ministry in the house of God.

14 And of the Levites : Semeia, the son of Hassub, the son of Ezricam, the son of Hasebia, of the sons of Merari.

15 And Baebacar, the carpenter, and Galal, and Mathania, the son of Micha, the son of Zachri, the son of Asaph :

16 And Obdia, the son of Semeia, the son of Galal, the son of Idithun : and Barachia, the son of Asa, the son of Elcana, who dwelt in the suburbs of Netophati.

17 And the porters were, Sellum, and Accub, and Telmon, and Ahinam : and their brother, Sellum, was the prince.

18 Until that time, in the king's gate eastward, the sons of Levi waited by their turns.

19 But Sellum, the son of Core, the son of Abiasaph, the son of Core, with his brethren, and his father's house, the Corites, were over the works of the service, keepers of the gates of the tabernacle : and their families in turns were keepers of the entrance of the camp of the Lord.

20 And Phinees, the son of Eleazar, was their prince before the Lord ;

21 And Zacharias, the son of Mossollamia, was porter of the gate of the tabernacle of the testimony.

22 All these that were chosen to be porters at the gates, were two hundred and twelve : and they were registered in their proper towns : whom David, and Samuel, the seer, appointed in their trust ;

23 As well them as their sons, to keep the gates of the house of the Lord, and the tabernacle, by their turns.

24 In four quarters were the porters : that is to say, towards the east, and west, and north, and south.

25 And their brethren dwelt in villages, and came up on their sabbath-days from time to time.

26 To these four Levites were committed the whole number of the porters, and they were over the chambers, and treasures of the house of the Lord ;

27 And they abode in their watches round about the temple of the Lord : that when it was time, they might open the gates in the morning.

28 And some of their stock had the charge of the vessels for the ministry : for the vessels were both brought in and carried out by number.

29 Some of them also had the instruments of the sanctuary committed unto them, and the charge of the fine flour, and wine, and oil, and frankincense, and spices.

30 And the sons of the priests made the ointments of the spices.

31 And Mathathias, a Levite, the first-born of Sellum, the Corite, was overseer of such things as were fried in the frying-pan.

32 And some of the sons of Caath, their brethren, were over the loaves of proposition, to prepare always new for every sabbath.

33 These are the chief of the singing men, of the families of the Levites, who dwelt in the chambers, by the temple, that they might serve continually, day and night, in their ministry.

principal families ; (M. D.) perhaps the second in dignity ; (4 K. xxv. 18.) while Jesus was the successor of Aaron, 1 Esd. iii. 8. C.—Heb. and Sept. "the ruler," (H.) or "captain of the guard of the house." C.—They were styled pontiffs, or princes of the priests. T.

VER. 12. Phassur, Pheshur, (H) or Phetur. From him sprung Zacharias, Amsi, Phelelia, Jehoram ; so that the last was only the great-grandson of Phassur, 2 Esd. xi. 12.—Maasai. In Esd. (v. 13) Amassai, the son of Azreel, the son of Ahazi.

VER. 14. Levites, established at Jerusalem.

VER. 15. Carpenter. Heb. Cheresu, is taken by some to be a surname. Sept. "And Area." It is asserted that the priests and Levites could follow no mechanical profession, (Abul.) and that Baebacar only presided over the carpenters, who wrought in the temple. M. T.—But why might not people of this order employ themselves in such arts and labours, which were never deemed degrading among the Hebrews, nor incompatible with the sacred ministry, during the leisure hours ? C.—S. Paul did not disdain to make tents. H.

VER. 16. Suburbs, or "courts," atriis. H.—Heb. "villages." M.—Netophati was a town of Juda. The ancient regulations could not be observed exactly. C.—The priests received the Levites into their cities. D.

VER. 17. Sellum had the superintendency over all the porters. H.—He was also at the head of one of the four bands which guarded the doors, east, west, north, and south, of the temple, with various apartments, v. 26. C.—Brother. Heb. "brethren," or bands. H.

VER. 18. Time. Heb. "and hitherto." This custom has been observed at the king's gate, who entered his tribune by the eastern gate of the temple. 4 K. xvi. 18. So far the ancient records reach. Some would infer from this passage, that a guard was still kept at the king's gate, even though there was none sitting upon the throne after the captivity. C.—Prot. ("who hitherto waited in the king's gate eastward.") They were porters in the companies of the children of Levi." H.—These different bands attended by turns. M.—But the captains were on duty every day, v. 25, and 26, and 34.

VER. 19. Service, to keep watch. C.—Families. Heb. "fathers over the host, (H.) or camp of the Lord ; keepers of the entry." The Corites, though not perhaps alone, performed what their fathers had done before the tabernacle, in the desert, and in the temple of Solomon ; which were considered as the camp of the great king.

VER. 20. Before. Heb. "the Lord with him," an usual form of blessing, (C.) or of wishing well (H.) to the deceased. C.—This Phinees lived after the captivity, (M.) and possessed the same power as Eleazar and Joiada. C. xii. 27.

Num. iii. 32. It is not necessary to refute the fables of the Rabbins, who pretend that the famous Phinees was an angel, who appeared at different times, and particularly at the return from Babylon. C.—Heb. may refer to the ancient Phinees ; "And Phinees. . was ruler over them formerly, and the Lord was with him." D.

VER. 21. Gate, leading to the holy place, which corresponded with the tabernacle.

VER. 22. Towns, where they resided, when they were not on duty. M.—Seer, or prophet. H.—We read not of his making any such regulation. But he probably made it after the misconduct of the sons of Heli, and when the ark was brought back. C.—He might also give private instructions to David for the same purpose (H.) as Gad and Nathan did. 2 Par. xxix. 25. The same plans were still adopted, though the number of Levites was smaller. C.—Trust, while they were at the head of affairs, and acting by God's authority. Lit. "in their faith ;" (H.) enlightened from above, and regulating matters according to the dispositions, which they discovered in the sacred ministers : or rather Heb. "in their established employment," which was to subsist in future ages. C.

VER. 24. Quarters : lit. "by the four winds."

VER. 25. Up on. Heb. "after seven days. . with them," to take their place for a week.

VER. 26. To these. Heb. "for these Levites, (Sellum, &c. v. 17) four chief porters were in their set office," for life, or as long as they were able to serve, and did not change every week like the rest.—Lord : the apartments of the priests, and the storehouses (H.) where all precious ornaments, wine, &c. were kept. C.

VER. 30. Priests. They alone were allowed to make the composition, which no mortal was permitted to use (C.) for his own pleasure. H. Ex. xxx. 34.

VER. 31. Pan, to be offered on the altar of holocausts, (Lev. ii. 4 and vii. 12.) or to be eaten by the priests. Ezec. xvi. 20. Mathathias was to take care that all this was done with decency, (C.) and to look after the utensils.

VER. 32. Proposition. Heb. "of arrangement ;" (Ex. xxxv. 13.) "of faces." These loaves were made by the Levites, but arranged upon the golden table every week (C.) before the ark. See C. xxiii. 92.

VER. 33. These ; probably Sellum, &c. (v. 17) though it is not certain that the chief porters presided also over the singers. C. xv. and xvi. Heb. "And these are the singers, chief of the families (C. or fathers) of the Levites, in the chambers (of the temple) free" from all other avocations, (H.) that they may watch over the porters and musicians. Sept. is clearer : (C.) "And these are the masters of music over the bands of Levites, observing their daily courses, because they are day and night over them in the works." H.—The sons of Caath (509)

34 The heads of the Levites, princes in their families, abode in Jerusalem.

35 And in Gabaon dwelt Jehiel, the father of Gabaon, and the name of his wife was Maacha.

36 His first-born son, Abdon, and Suri, and Cis, and Baal, and Ner, and Nadab, 37 Gedor also, and Ahio, and Zacharias, and Macelloth.

38 And Macelloth begot Samaan : these dwelt over against their brethren in Jerusalem, with their brethren.

39 Now Ner begot Cis, and Cis begot Saul, and Saul begot Jonathan, and Melchisua, and Abinadab, and Esbaal.

40 And the son of Jonathan was Meribbaal : and Meribbaal begot Micha.

41 And the sons of Micha were Phithon, and Melech, and Tharaa, and Ahaz.

42 And Ahaz begot Jara, and Jara begot Alamath, and Azmoth, and Zamri. And Zamri begot Mosa :

43 And Mosa begot Banaa : whose son Raphaia begot Elasa : of whom was born Asel.

44 And Asel had six sons, whose names are, Ezriam, Bochrus, Ismahel, Saria, Obdia, Hanan : these are the sons of Asel.

CHAP. X.

Saul is slain for his sins : he is buried by the men of Jabes.

NOW the Philistines fought against Israel, and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down wounded in Mount Gelboe.

2 And the Philistines drew near, pursuing after Saul and his sons, and they killed Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchisua, the sons of Saul.

3 And the battle grew hard against Saul, and the archers reached him, and wounded him with arrows.

4 And Saul said to his armour-bearer : Draw thy sword, and kill me : lest these uncircumcised come, and mock me. But his armour-bearer would not ; for he was struck with fear : so Saul took his sword, and fell upon it.

5 And when his armour-bearer saw it, to wit, that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword, and died.

*Supra viii. 29.—^aSupra viii. 33.—¹1 Kings xxxi. 1.—^aA. M. 2949, A. C. 1055.

seem to be chiefly specified, (v. 32) though other families sung. C. vi. 39—Chambers, at a distance from their wives, to trim the lamps in the evening, and to see that none were extinguished, (M.) as also to teach music, &c. The Synagogues were used afterwards. D.

VER. 34. Jerusalem, having no substitute; (C. 26. H.) or the chiefs of each family resided there. M.

VER. 35. And in. These verses are repeated from the last chapter, in order to bring us to the death of Saul, (M.) and the reign of David. C.—“Tis difficult to account for the repetition, provided they were repeated originally; but if they have been repeated through the blunder of a transcriber, the existence of the same words” before them may be the reason. Kennicott—The father of Gabaon. This is the explanation of Abigabaon. C. viii. 20. H.—Wife. So the former chapter, and all the ancient versions, with some Heb. MSS. read, instead of the printed Heb. “sister,” (Ken.) which seems to be corrupted; (C.) and the Prot. venture to correct it. H.

VER. 41. Tharaa. Heb. “Tachrea.” Ken. a, is substituted for a. H.—And Ahaz, is omitted in Heb. (Ken.) and Sept.

VER. 42. Jara. Heb. Yahra instead of Jewide, or Johada, (C.) viii. 36, twice. Sept. Jada here, and Joiada above. H.

VER. 43. Raphaia, called Rapha before. C.

VER. 44. These. All is omitted, though it is found C. viii. 38, and in MS. f. Kennicott.—These remarks, which may appear to some minute, shew that all Hebrew MSS. are not absolutely alike, as some once pretended; and that the Hebrew Bible is not printed from the best copies. H.—“The sacred volume in Hebrew has, therefore, been published with such carelessness, as no other printed copy with which I am acquainted.” Hounigant, prol. p. 2—Yet this is the copy which alone Protestants hold up as the standard of perfection, and the Rule of Faith! H.

6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and all his house fell together.

7 And when the men of Israel, that dwelt in the plains, saw this, they fled : and Saul and his sons being dead, they forsook their cities, and were scattered up and down : and the Philistines came, and dwelt in them.

8 And the next day, the Philistines taking away the spoils of them that were slain, found Saul and his sons lying on Mount Gelboe.

9 And when they had stripped him, and cut off his head, and taken away his armour, they sent it into their land, to be carried about, and shewed in the temples of the idols, and to the people.

10 And his armour they dedicated in the temple of their god, and his head they fastened up in the temple of Dagon.

11 And when the men of Jabes Galaad had heard this, to wit, all that the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 All the valiant men of them arose, and took the bodies of Saul and of his sons, and brought them to Jabes, and buried their bones under the oak that was in Jabes, and they fasted seven days.

13 So Saul died for his iniquities, because he transgressed the commandment of the Lord, which he had commanded, and kept it not ; and moreover consulted also a witch,

14 And trusted not in the Lord : therefore he slew him, and transferred his kingdom to David, the son of Isai.

CHAP. XI.

David is made king. He taketh the castle of Zion. A catalogue of his valiant men.

THEN all Israel gathered themselves to David in Hebron, saying : We are thy bone, and thy flesh.

2 Yesterday also, and the day before, when Saul was king, thou wast he that led out and brought in Israel : for the Lord thy God said to thee : Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be ruler over them.

3 So all the ancients of Israel came to the king, to Hebron, and David made a covenant with them before the Lord : and they anointed him king over Israel, ac-

*Exod. xvii. 14. 1 Kings xv. 3.—¹1 Kings xxviii. 8.—²2 Kings v. 1. A. M. 2957.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Now. Sept. “and.” H.—This has no connexion with what goes before. C.—This history is given more at large, 1 K. xxxi. and 2 K. i. M.

VER. 3. Reached: lit. “found.” H.—Heb. or “attacked him, and he feared the archers. He was not, at least, mortally wounded, when he took the desperate resolution to destroy himself, through fear and consternation. O. Yet the original will admit the sense of the Vulg. and Saul might have received some wounds. Sept. “Archers found him with bows, and in labours, and he laboured on account of (or to avoid) the bows.” H.

VER. 4. Fear and reverence for his master, (C.) as well as concern for his own safety. H.

VER. 6. Fell. Heb. “died.” C.—But, though the house of Saul was fallen from its former glory, on this fatal day, when so many of his courtiers perished; yet he left Ishobeth to bewail his fate, (H.) and some others who were not of age to go to battle. C.

VER. 9. To be. Heb. “to carry tidings to their idols, (sorrows) and to the people.” They exposed the spoils in the temples, and gave thanks to their idols for the victory.

VER. 10. Head, while his body was hung on the walls of Bethsan. 1 K. xxxi. 10. C.—The temple of Dagon was contiguous to the wall. D.

VER. 12. Oak, well known at Jabes. Elsewhere the word is translated, the grove. C.

VER. 13. For. Sept. “in his iniquities.” H.—See 1 K. xlii. 9. and xv. 23. Saul offered sacrifice unlawfully, and spared some of the Amalecites. W.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. David. This name is written without d, in the books composed before the captivity, (A. C. 588) but d is inserted in the latter works, which is an argument against the antiquity of Canticles, where the d is found. Yet the MSS. vary so, that great stress is not laid on this (Kennicott) proof, and 21 And illustrious among the second three, and their captain: but yet he attained not to the first three.

22 Banaïas, the son of Joiada, a most valiant man, of Cabseel, who had done many acts; he slew the two ariels of Moab; and he went down, and killed a lion in the midst of a pit, in the time of snow.

23 And he slew an Egyptian, whose stature was of five cubits, and who had a spear like a weaver's beam: and he went down to him with a staff, and plucked away the spear, that he held in his hand, and slew him with his own spear.

24 These things did Banaïas, the son of Joiada, who was renowned among the three valiant ones,

25 And the first among the thirty, but yet to the first three he attained not: and David made him of his council.

26 Moreover the most valiant men of the army, were Asahel, brother of Joab; and Elchanan, the son of his uncle, of Bethlehem;

27 Sammoth, an Arorite; Helles, a Phalonite;

28 Ira, the son of Acces, a Thecuite; Abiezer, an Anathothite;

29 Sobbochai, a Husathite; Ilai, an Ahohite;

30 Maharai, a Netophathite; Heled, the son of Baana, a Netophathite;

31 Ethai, the son of Ribai, of Gabaath, of the sons of Benjamin; Banaia, a Pharathonite;

32 Hurai, of the torrent Gaas; Abiel, an Arbathite; Azmoth, a Bauramite; Eliaba, a Salabonite;

33 The sons of Assem, a Gezonite; Jonathan, the son of Sage, an Ararite;

34 Ahiam, the son of Sachar, an Ararite;

35 Eliphai, the son of Ur;

36 Hephher, a Mecherathite; Ahia, a Phelonite;

37 Hesro, a Carmelite; Naarai, the son of Azbai;

38 Joel, the brother of Nathan; Mibahar, the son of Agarai;

39 Selec, an Ammonite; Naharai, a Berothite, the armour-bearer of Joab, the son of Sarvia;

40 Ira, a Jethrite; Gareb, a Jethrite; is not expressed in the original. We have here the exact order of these mighty men sufficiently marked out. Abisai is the first captain (H.) of the second ternary. T.

VER. 22. Two ariels. That is, two lions, or lion-like men; for ariel, in Hebrew, signifies "a lion (Ch.) of God," the strongest compound word for "a man of valour. The courage of a lion is so singular, that a man of extraordinary heroism is frequently called a lion, by way of emphasis; and the word God is frequently applied in Scripture to things particularly great." Kennicott.—V is wanting at the beginning and end of the name of Banaïas, (here Benaia, instead of Ubenaihu and Banaas, 2 K.) The last letter (v. 24) serves to distinguish this third captain in waiting on the king, from the eleventh, v. 31. C. xxvii. 5, and 14. H.—Heb. "And Benaïhu, the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man of Kabzeel, mighty in exploits; he slew two men of Moab, who were stouter than lions. He also went down and slew a lion in a pit, in a snowy day." Ken.—We have observed, that "And" is not found in the printed Heb. nor is it in the Prot. "Benaïah . . . slew two lion-like men, of Moab." Lit. "ariels;" (Sept.) that is, "lions of God," or two of Moab equal to (H.) the strongest lions. W.—Yet it is not certain whether these were not real lions, as well as the following. H.—S. Jerom translates, two lions of Moab, 2 K. xxiii. 20. C.—Lion: ari is written arith, 2 K. H.

VER. 23. Cubits. 2 K. "a man of great aspect."—Ones. Heb. "and he had a name among three mighty men." Ken.—Sheloshah, "three," has the u omitted, (2 K.) as is frequently on other occasions. H.

VER. 25. Among, or rather "above," as he was the second captain of this series, and not one of the body of Thirty. Ken.—Council. Lit. "placed him at his ear," (H.) fecit eum auricularium a secreto; (2 K.) though the word is the same. C.—It seems, however, to have been read differently. H.—Sept. "he placed him over his family. (C. παρὰ) or native place." H.—Syr. "guard of his spear and chief of his heroes." Arab. "over all his riches." Some would translate, "captain of his guards." Grot.—Banaïas was a man of consummate prudence, as well as a great warrior. C.—David "gives Banaïas the command of his life-guard." Joseph vii. 12.—Heb. "Behold! he was more honourable than the Thirty; but he attained not unto the first three, and David set him over his guard," the Corethites, &c. C. xviii. 17. Ken.—This author adopts the correction of Grotius, as the Prot. do; though he acknowledges there is no impropriety in the present reading, "over his hearing or obedience." He also adds "first," by way of explanation, as v. 21. H.

VER. 26. Moreover. Nothing particular is here recorded of Asahel, and therefore he is barely mentioned with the rest. But the Book of Kings had been more particular in determining their rank, and had said, "Asahel, brother of Joab, was over the Thirty," being the last of the second ternary. The preposition h (Ken.) frequently means "over." Nold, &c.—Arab. "head of Thirty, whose names are these." Ken.—Elchanan; probably the son of Jair. 2 K. xxi. 18. C.

VER. 27. Arorite, or Hurodite, (2 K.) to distinguish him from Shammah. Eliza, who follows in 2 K. is here universally omitted, as he is supposed to have died soon, and to have been replaced by Zabab. (v. 41.) who completes the number of 30. Ken.—Phalonite; not Paltite, as 2 K. where t has been formed of the two letters ua. So Sept. have read Adni, "my lord," perhaps correctly, (Ken.) instead of Adan, "any man's," (1 K. xvii. 32.) as the two letters might easily be mistaken for one. Ken.—Helles was the captain for the seventh month, as the following was for the sixth, and Abiezer for the ninth. C. xxvii. 10. H.

VER. 28. Sobbochai, rather than Moborai, (2 K.) where s and m have been mistaken for m and n, which are very similar in Heb. The Sept. (Aldi) has there also Sabouchai. He was the eighth captain. C. 27.—Ilai, or Selmon. 2 K. Sept. have the same variation in some copies, but others lead us to suppose that Ilai was the true name. Neither occur any where else in Scripture.

VER. 30. Maharai, the tenth captain. (C. 27.) Heled was the twelfth.

VER. 31. Ethai. Not the famous prince of Geth, (2 K. xv. 19. Ken.) though the name is written alike, (2 K. xxiii. 29) as t being omitted. H.—This captain contributed to make David king (v. 10.)—Banaia, 2 K. xxiii. a v is added, which makes the name like that of the second general; (v. 22) but it ought to form part of the a, which is wanting in the following word.

VER. 32. Hurai, rather than Hedai, (2 K. Ken.) though there is some doubt which is to be preferred. H.—Syr. and Arab. have Hiddai; but the Sept. declare for Hurai here, and the Aldine copy has Ouri also. 2 K. Ken.—Torrent. Heb. "of the torrents or vales of Gaas" C.—Abiel. 2 K. Abialbon, which seems to be the right word, as a transcriber may omit letters more easily than he can insert them. Bun at the end seems to have been written separate, and to have been translated "the son of," by Syr. and Arab. The particles al and al, have also been frequently mistaken on account of their nearly similar pronunciation. —Bauramite. Heb. habacharumi, 2 K. habarchumi, where two letters are transposed, and v omitted, as usual, in the latter book. H.—The former reading appears to be more correct, as the hero probably came from Baurum, (berim, 2 K. iii. 16) and the Syr. and Arab. seem to have read properly.—Salabonite. Sept. Salabonites (2 K.) Salaboni. Ken.—The translator of the latter book gives the Heb. termination throughout, instead of the Greek; (H.) "whence the learned have drawn an unanswerable argument against that version's being the work of the same author." Ken.—They might as well prove that S. Jerom did not translate both these books. H.

VER. 33. Gezonite. We know not the meaning of this epithet. C.—In 2 K. we read of the sons of Jassen, Jonathan, and Semma; (K.) but both seem to be incorrect; instead of Sept. "the son," or supposing m to be lost, at the beginning, "of the sons of Assem, Gouni," as Sept. read, instead of Gezonite, which would leave this hero without any name. See C. v. 15. E is prefixed to this name, as it is to that of Manasses. Jos. i. 12.—Sage, should be Shamha, (Ken.) or Jonathan, the son of Samaa, the brother of David. He slew the monstrous giant, (C. xx. 7.) as Sabachai did another. Jonathan is mentioned also along with Asahel (2 K. xxi.) so that he deserves a place here among David's heroes.

VER. 34. Sachar, mentioned C. xxvi. 4.

VER. 35. Eliphai should be Eliphele, the son of Asbai, the son of Machai, (H.) or of the country of Maacha, 4 K. xxv. 23. Ken.—Eliphai and Hephher cannot constitute two heroes, as that would derange the number 37. 2 K. xxiii. 39. The copies of the Sept. vary much. H.

VER. 36. Ahia, or rather "Elam, the son of Achitophel, the Gilonite," 2 K. The name of the hero is lost here; and the latter part of his father's name (p) has also been mistaken for g, which it resembles.

VER. 37. Hesro ends with u in the Heb. Yet some read more properly with z, "Hetzrai," as all the ancient versions have it, except the Vulg. (Ken.) some copies of which read Asra. Blanchini, Vind. 1740.—Carmelite. Sept. Kaqmli. The Δ might easily be mistaken for Λ , as the Greek bibles (Ken.) for some ages after Origen were written in capital letters, without accents. M. Antlucon, Prof. to Hexap. p. 44.—Azbai seems preferable to Arbi, as the proper name seems also more correct than Phurai. 2 K. H.—The Vat. Sept. confounds both words in one "Ouraverchi." We may apply to many of the proper names that severe censure which S. Jerom has passed upon the transcribers of the book of Chronicles. Ita in Graecis & Latinis cod: hic nomen liber vitiosus est, ut non in Hebraea quam Barbara quodam & Sarmatica nomina conjecta arbitrandum, sit, &c. ep. ad Domn. If this epistle be not genuine, the same doctor complains at least of the incorrect state of the Sept. Prof. in Paral.

VER. 38. Joel seems better than Ignai, (2 K. H.) as we know there were some of this name lived under David, (C. xxvi. 22, and xxvii. 20.) and all the versions agree here, but vary much 2 K. It is, therefore, more natural for us to adhere to that copy which has the greatest authority from the ancient versions. Ken.—Brother, relation, adopted child, (D.) or son, (2 K.) which seems more correct, as this is an usual expression. C.—This reason may rather lead us to conclude that the mistake being more natural, has been made by the transcriber of that book; particularly as we no where else read of Joel being the son of Nathan, but rather of Pedaiah, &c.—Mibahar, or rather "Nathan of Tzoba."—The son, ought to be the proper name, "Bonni, (of Gadi. 2 K.) or the Gadite." Ken.

VER. 41. Zabab. This name, with the following, is not found 2 K. where Eliea occurs, though not mentioned here. C.—We have observed that Zabab took his place, and completed the number 37, v. 27.

VER. 42. With him. H. b. "above him," (Sept. Jun. Mont.) which must be applied to the rest of these 15 less valiant men. Ken.—trot, agree with the

- 41 Urias, a Hethite; Zabad, the son of Oholi;
- 42 Adina, the son of Siza, a Rubenite, the prince of the Rubenites, and thirty with him;
- 43 Hanan, the son of Maacha; and Josaphat, a Mathanite;
- 44 Ozia, an Astarotheite; Samma, and Jehiel, the sons of Hotham, an Arorite;
- 45 Jedihel, the son of Samri; and Joha, his brother, a Thosaite.
- 46 Eliel, a Mahumite; and Jeribai, and Josai, the sons of Elnaim; and Jethma, a Moabite; Eliel, and Obed, and Jasiel, of Masobia.

CHAP. XII.

Who followed David when he fled from Saul. And who came to Hebron to make him king.

NOW these are they that came to David to Siceleg, while he yet fled from Saul, the son of Cis, and they were most valiant and excellent warriors,

2 Bending the bow, and using either hand in hurling stones with slings, and shooting arrows: of the brethren of Saul and Benjamin.

3 The chief was Ahiezer, and Joas, the sons of Samaa, of Gabaath, and Jaziel, and Phallet, the sons of Azmoth, and Beracha, and Jehu, an Anathothite,

4 And Samaias, of Gabaon, the stoutest among the thirty and over the thirty; Jeremias, and Jeheziel, and Johanan, and Jezabad, of Gaderoth;

5 And Eluzai, and Jerimuth, and Baalia, and Samaria, and Saphatia, the Haruphite;

6 Elcana, and Jesia, and Azareel, and Joezer, and Jesbaam, of Carehim;

7 And Joela, and Zabadia, the sons of Jeroham, of Gedor.

8 From Gaddi also there went over to David, when he lay hid in the wilderness, most valiant men, and excellent warriors, holding shield and spear; whose faces were like the faces of a lion, and they were swift like the roebucks on the mountains.

^a 1 Kings xxvii. 2. A. M. 2948, A. C. 1056.

Vulg. (H.) and Delany looks upon these 30 as a fourth order of commanders in chief. But 30 with him would make 31, and why are only 15 mentioned? We have a regular gradation of officers, descending from Joab, the captain general. Ken.—These heroes are supplementary to those in the Book of Kings, and were stationed (C.) on the east of the Jordan, (D.) in their native country; (C.) which is true, at least (H.) with respect to several of them. Maacha, Ashtaroth, and Aroer were in these parts, (Jos. xiii. 9. 13. Ken.) as well as Mathana. Num. xxi. 18. C.

VER. 44. Jehiel. The Masorets read so in the margin; but in the text they substitute u for i, improperly. See Sept. and C. v. 7. 8.

VER. 45. Samri. Prot. "Shimri," or, margin, "the Shimrite," as they deem the expressions to be equivalent. But Shimri was rather the father of Jedihel or Jediael, and Joha.

VER. 46. Mahumite. Prot. "Mahavite." Kennicott would translate these last verses according to his corrections. 42. . "Zabad, the son of Ahlai; (43) Adina, the son of Shiza, the Reubenite, and head of the Reubenites: But the thirty were his superiors. 44 Hanan, the son of Maachah; and Josaphat, the Milnaites. 45 Urzia, the Ashtarothite; Shema and Jehiel, the sons of Hotham, the Aroerite. 46 Jediel, the son of Shimri; and Joha, his brother, the Tizite. 47 Jeliel and Mahavite, and Jeribai and Joshaviah, the sons of Elnaam; and Ithmah, the Moabite; (48) Eliel, and Obed and Jashiel, the Metzobaites." It will be easily perceived that this author frequently recedes from the Prot. version, as well as from the printed Heb. both of which are frequently erroneous. Perhaps the critical examination of these proper names, may appear to some unimportant. But the question respecting the perfect integrity of the Hebrew text deserves to be seriously considered; and every part of sacred history requires our attention. If the Prot. rule of faith be incorrect, what security can they have? We are not exposed to the same inconvenience, even though the Vulgate be susceptible of further improvement. H.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. Siceleg, which had been given to David for a retreat. Hither many brave men came to join him.—Fled. Heb. "was shut up through fear." C.—Sept. "was under anxiety." H.

VER. 2. Hand, like Aod. Judg. iii. 15. M.—Brothers, of the same tribe. The

- 9 Ezer the chief, Obdias the second, Eliab the third,
- 10 Masmana the fourth, Jeremias the fifth,
- 11 Ethi the sixth, Eliel the seventh,
- 12 Johanan the eighth, Elzebad the ninth,
- 13 Jerenias the tenth, Machbani the eleventh.

14 These were of the sons of Gad, captains of the army: the least of them was captain over a hundred soldiers, and the greatest over a thousand.

15 These are they who passed over the Jordan in the first month, when it is used to flow over its banks: and they put to flight all that dwelt in the vallies, both toward the east and toward the west.

16 And there came also of the men of Benjamin, and of Juda, to the hold in which David abode.

17 And David went out to meet them, and said: If you are come peaceably to me to help me, let my heart be joined to you: but if you plot against me for my enemies, whereas I have no iniquity in my hands, let the God of our fathers see, and judge.

18 But the spirit came upon Amasai, the chief among thirty, and he said: We are thine, O David, and for thee, O son of Isai: peace, peace be to thee, and peace to thy helpers. For thy God helpeth thee. So David received them, and made them captains of the band.

19 And there were some of Manasses, that went over to David, when he came with the Philistines against Saul to fight: but he did not fight with them: because the lords of the Philistines taking counsel, sent him back, saying: With the danger of our heads he will return to his master, Saul.

20 So when he went back to Siceleg, there fled to him of Manasses, Ednas, and Jozabad, and Jedihel, and Michael, and Ednas, and Jozabad, and Eliu, and Salathi, captains of thousands in Manasses.

21 These helped David against the rovers: for they were all most valiant men, and were made commanders in the army.

^b 1 Kings xxix. 4.—^c A. M. 2949.

opinion which they entertained of David, must have been very great, to make them expose themselves to such dangers. In adversity, true friendship and virtue shine the most. C.—The hand of providence is here conspicuous. T.

VER. 4. Thirty. Heb. sheloshim, denotes "the officers" of the army. C.—Prot. style this hero "Ismaiah."

VER. 6. Jesbaam. Probably the second after Joab. C. xi. 11. H.—Of Carehim. Heb. "the Korhites." Ken.—So also the Sept. There were Levites, descendants of Core. M.

VER. 8. Gaddi, a city of the tribe of Gad, (2 K. 23.) from which many went to join David, when he was in the country of Moab, (M.) as others of the Gadites did, v. 14.—Mountains. A fierce countenance and swiftness were much commended in soldiers. "The eyes are always first conquered." Primi in omnibus praeliis oculi vincuntur, says Tacitus, Mor. Germ. C. See Prov. xxx. 30. 2 K. ii. 18. M.

VER. 14. Thousand, after David had ascended the throne. C.—At Siceleg he had only 600. M.—Some suppose that each of these officers was worth 100 men, &c. Vatab.

VER. 15. Month, Nisan. T.—Banks. This circumstance enhances their courage. Maundrel (Alep. p. 136) went to see the Jordan, 13th March, 1697, but the river was nine feet from the banks. Its rapidity has perhaps made its bed so much deeper, that it does not overflow so frequently at present. C.

VER. 16. Hold, in Moab, (1 K. xxii. 4. D. M.) or to Siceleg. The people of Benjamin come with those of Juda, to avoid suspicion. C.

VER. 17. Hands. At that time he had done no injury to any man. H.

VER. 18. Spirit of God (C. or good will. D.) prompted Amasai, the chief of "the officers." C.—Band, or "of a company." H.

VER. 19. Fight. They joined him after he had left the Philistines. C.—But he. Heb. "they helped them not." Neither David nor his partizans were involved in this danger, which might have caused their fidelity to be suspected. 1 K. xxix. H.

VER. 20. Thousands: heads of the principal cities. Mic. v. 2. D.

VER. 21. Rovers of Amalec, 1 K. xxx. 1.

VER. 22. Of God; very great. (C.) particularly when Isboseth was slain.

22 Moreover, day by day there came some to David to help him, till they became a great number, like the army of God.

23 And this is the number of the chiefs of the army who came to David, when he was in Hebron, *to transfer to him the kingdom of Saul, according to the word of the Lord.

24 The sons of Juda, bearing shield and spear, six thousand eight hundred, well appointed to war.

25 Of the sons of Simeon, valiant men for war, seven thousand one hundred.

26 Of the sons of Levi, four thousand six hundred.

27 And Joiada, prince of the race of Aaron, and with him three thousand seven hundred.

28 Sadoc also, a young man of excellent disposition, and the house of his father, twenty-two principal men.

29 And of the sons of Benjamin, the brethren of Saul, three thousand: for hitherto a great part of them followed the house of Saul.

30 And of the sons of Ephraim, twenty thousand eight hundred, men of great valour, renowned in their kindreds.

31 And of the half tribe of Manasses, eighteen thousand, every one by their names came to make David king.

32 Also of the sons of Issachar, men of understanding, that knew all times to order what Israel should do, two hundred principal men: and all the rest of the tribe followed their counsel.

33 And of Zabulon, such as went forth to battle, and stood in array well appointed with armour for war, there came fifty thousand to his aid, with no double heart.

34 And of Nephthali, a thousand leaders; and with them seven and thirty thousand, furnished with shield and spear.

35 Of Dan also, twenty-eight thousand six hundred prepared for battle.

36 And of Aser, forty thousand, going forth to fight, and challenging in battle.

37 And on the other side of the Jordan, of the sons of Ruben, and of Gad, and of the half of the tribe of Manasses, a hundred and twenty thousand, furnished with arms for war.

38 All these men of war, well appointed to fight, came with a perfect heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel: and all the rest also of Israel, were of one heart, to make David king.

* 2 Kings v. A. M. 2956.

2 K. v. 1. H.—The angels are to us innumerable. Job xxv. An army in concord is compared to them. W.

VER. 27. Joiada had the post of Eleazar over the Levites, (Num. iii. 32.) and was at the head of the warriors of his tribe, while Abiathar was high priest. C.

VER. 28. Of excellent. Heb. "of great valour." Saul had appointed him in the place of Achimelec, and David permitted him to retain his dignity.

VER. 29. Followed. Heb. "kept guard at the palace." These guards submitted to David, like the rest, after the death of Ishobeth. C.

VER. 31. Manasses, west of the Jordan. See v. 37. H.

VER. 32. Should, in agricultural pursuits, in which those of Issachar excelled. Gen. xlix. 14. Countrymen have often more skill about the weather, than the greatest astronomers, Virg. Georg. i. M. T.—Others think that these men could calculate when the festivals would occur, (S. Jer. Trad.) or they were well versed in politics, &c. See Est. i. 13.

VER. 40. Nephthali. All, both far and near, contributed to regale the deputies. C.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Consulted. David wished to give religion due splendour and authority, in his dominions; and he prudently contrives to obtain the general consent. H.—"Where there is no liberty, there is no religion;" and 39 And they were there with David three days, eating and drinking: for their brethren had prepared for them.

40 Moreover they that were near them, even as far as Issachar, and Zabulon, and Nephthali, brought loaves on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen, to eat: and meal, figs, raisins, wine, oil, and oxen, and sheep, in abundance; for there was joy in Israel.

CHAP. XIII.

The ark is brought from Cariathiarim. Oza, for touching it, is struck dead.

AND David consulted with the captains of thousands, and of hundreds, and with all the commanders,

2 And he said to all the assembly of Israel: If it please you, and if the words which I speak come from the Lord our God, let us send to the rest of our brethren, into all the countries of Israel, and to the priests, and the Levites, that dwell in the suburbs of the cities, to gather themselves to us:

3 And let us bring again the ark of our God to us: for we sought it not in the days of Saul.

4 And all the multitude answered that it should be so: for the word pleased all the people.

5 So David assembled all Israel, from Sihor of Egypt, even to the entering into Emath, ^bto bring the ark of God from Cariathiarim.

6 And David went up with all the men of Israel to the hill of Cariathiarim, which is in Juda, to bring thence the ark of the Lord God sitting upon the Cherubims, where his name is called upon.

7 And they carried the ark of God upon a new cart, out of the house of Abinadab, and Oza and his brother drove the cart.

8 And David and all Israel played before God with all their might, with hymns, and with harps, and with psalteries, and timbrels, and cymbals, and trumpets.

9 And when they came to the floor of Chidon, Oza put forth his hand, to hold up the ark; for the ox being wanton, had made it lean a little on one side.

10 And the Lord was angry with Oza, and struck him, because he had touched the ark: and he died there before the Lord.

11 And David was troubled, because the Lord had divided Oza: and he called that place the breach of Oza to this day.

12 And he feared God at that time, saying: How can I bring in the ark of God to me?

13 And therefore he brought it not home to himself,

^b 2 Kings vi. 2.

no change in religious matters should be attempted, without the consent of the Church. C.

VER. 2. To us. In the first assembly, David's motion was adopted, and a more general meeting, particularly of the priests, was convoked. H.

VER. 3. Sought. Prot. "inquired not at it." Yet it is certain that many resorted to the ark, at that time. But it was not treated with such honour as David now wished. H.

VER. 5. Emath, from "the troubled river" Nile, (Jos. xiii. 3. C.) or Rhinocorura, (T. M.) to the northern extremities of the promised land, (H.) near Emesa.

VER. 6. Hill. Heb. "to Baalah," which was another name, as well as "Baalim," for Cariathiarim. 1 K. vii. 2. C.

VER. 7. Brother. Heb. "Acho," which has the same meaning. T.—Sept. Syr. &c. "his brethren." C.

VER. 9. Chidon. Alias Nachon. Ch. 2 K. vi.—He had perhaps two names. D.—Syr. and Arab. "of Ramim." C.—The ox. Prot. "the oxen stumbled."

VER. 11. Divided. Slain. See C. xiv. 11. 1 K. xv. 32. and 2 K. vi. 7. H.—The soul of brutes perishes; that of man is only divided from the body by death.

VER. 15. Obededom. A Levite was judged more proper to guard the ark. C. xv. 12.—Gethite. Because he had dwelt in Geth. W.

that is, into the city of David, but carried it aside into the house of Obededom, the Gethite.

14 And the ark of God remained in the house of Obededom three months: and the Lord blessed his house, and all that he had.

CHAP. XIV.

David's house, and children; his victories over the Philistines.

AND *Hiram, king of Tyre, sent messengers to David; and cedar-trees, and masons, and carpenters, to build him a house.

2 And David perceived that the Lord had confirmed him king over Israel, and that his kingdom was exalted over his people, Israel.

3 ^b And David took other wives in Jerusalem: and he begot sons and daughters.

4 Now these are the names of them that were born to him in Jerusalem: Samua, and Sobad, Nathan, and Solomon,

5 Jebahar, and Elisua, and Eliphalet,

6 And Noga, and Napheg, and Japhia,

7 Elisama, and Baaliada, and Eliphalet.

8 ^c And the Philistines hearing that David was anointed king over all Israel, went all up to seek him: and David heard of it, and went out against them.

9 And the Philistines came and spread themselves in the vale of Raphaim.

10 And David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go up against the Philistines, and wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And the Lord said to him: Go up, and I will deliver them into thy hand.

11 And when they were come to Baalpharasin, David defeated them there, and he said: God hath divided my enemies by my hand, as waters are divided: and therefore the name of that place was called Baalpharasin.

12 And they left there their gods, and David commanded that they should be burnt.

13 Another time also the Philistines made an irruption, and spread themselves abroad in the valley.

14 And David consulted God again, and God said to him: Go not up after them, turn away from them, and come upon them over-against the pear-trees.

15 And when thou shalt hear the sound of one going in the tops of the pear-trees, then shalt thou go out to battle. For God is gone out before thee, to strike the army of the Philistines.

16 And David did as God had commanded him, and

* 2 Kings v. 11.—^b 2 Kings v. 18.—^c 2 Kings v. 17. A. M. 2957, A. C. 1047.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Hiram. This embassy, and the war with the Philistines, took place before the ark was removed. C.

VER. 2. Perceived, by divine revelation, or by his constant success, (M.) as well as by the presents of "the king of Tyre, and the unanimity" of all the people. D.—Over his. Heb. and Sept. on account of his people. Kings are more for their subjects than for themselves. C.

VER. 5. Eliphalet and Noga are not mentioned. 2 K. v. 15. C. See C. iii. 9. H.

VER. 7. Baaliada, probably the same with Eliada. C.

VER. 8. Seek him, with a design to oppress him, before his throne was established. H.

VER. 11. Baalpharasin, "the god or master of divisions." C.—The place was so called afterwards. D.

VER. 12. Burnt, conformably to Deut. vii. 25. These idols were commonly made of wood, and covered with plates of gold, &c. The Philistines took them along with them to battle, as the Hebrews carried the ark on many occasions. The Greeks, at the siege of Troy, had their gods on board their vessels; (Iliad x.) and the Romans had theirs on their ensigns, in their wars.

VER. 14. Pear, or mulberry trees, (2 K. v. 23. C.) on the side where the idols were. T. defeated the army of the Philistines, slaying them from Gabaon to Gazera.

17 And the name of David became famous in all countries, and the Lord made all nations fear him.

CHAP. XV.

The ark is brought into the city of David, with great solemnity. Michol derideth David's devotion.

HE made also houses for himself in the city of David: and built a place for the ark of God, and pitched a tabernacle for it.

2 Then David said: No one ought to carry the ark of God, but the Levites; whom the Lord hath chosen to carry it, and to minister unto himself for ever.

3 And he gathered all Israel together into Jerusalem, that the ark of God might be brought into its place, which he had prepared for it.

4 And the sons of Aaron also, and the Levites.

5 Of the children of Caath, Uriel was the chief: and his brethren a hundred and twenty.

6 Of the sons of Merari, Asaia, the chief: and his brethren two hundred and twenty.

7 Of the sons of Gersom, Joel, the chief: and his brethren a hundred and thirty.

8 Of the sons of Elisaphan, Semeias, the chief: and his brethren two hundred.

9 Of the sons of Hebron, Eliel, the chief: and his brethren eighty.

10 Of the sons of Oziel, Aminadab, the chief: and his brethren a hundred and twelve.

11 And David called Sadoc, and Abiathar, the priests, and the Levites, Uriel, Asaia, Joel, Semeia, Eliel, and Aminadab.

12 And he said to them: You that are the heads of the Levitical families, be sanctified with your brethren, and bring the ark of the Lord, the God of Israel, to the place which is prepared for it.

13 ^d Lest as the Lord at first struck us, because you were not present, the same should now also come to pass, by our doing some thing against the law.

14 So the priests and the Levites were sanctified, to carry the ark of the Lord, the God of Israel.

15 ^e And the sons of Levi took the ark of God, as Moses had commanded, according to the word of the Lord, upon their shoulders, with the staves.

16 And David spoke to the chiefs of the Levites, to appoint some of their brethren to be singers with musical instruments; to wit, on psalteries, and harps, ^d Supra xiii. 10.—^e Num. iv. 15.

VER. 15. Tops, or on the height. God sent an invisible army to David's assistance.

VER. 16. Gazera, on the borders of the Philistines, near Azotus. C.

VER. 17. All countries and nations, in the vicinity. H.

CHAP. XV. VER. 1. Houses or magnificent palaces, which afterwards caused him to be ashamed, seeing the ark was lodged under skins. 2 K. vii. 10.—For it, entirely new. The old tabernacle was left at Gabaon. C. D.

VER. 2. Levites, of the family of Caath, v. 18. Num. iv. 5. He was rendered more cautious by the death of Oza. C.—For ever, as long as this law subsists. H.

VER. 5. Brethren. Relations. D.

VER. 8. Elisaphan, a Caathite, (Ex. vi. 18. 22.) as well as Hebron and Oziel. C.—Perhaps Caath was also called by the first name. D.

VER. 12. Sanctified. Free from every legal uncleanness, continent, and washed. C.

VER. 13. Struck us. He partakes in the misfortune of Oza. H.—The law, through ignorance. You must attend and give proper directions. M.—Heb. "because we did not seek him with judgment," (D.) or, "after the due order." Prc.

VER. 17. Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were masters of the first band of musicians, in the reign of David. They played on cymbals of brass, v. 19.

and cymbals, that the joyful noise might resound on high.

17 And they appointed Levites, Heman, the son of Joel, and of his brethren Asaph, the son of Barachias: and of the sons of Merari, their brethren, Ethan, the son of Casaia.

18 And with them their brethren: in the second rank, Zacharias, and Ben, and Jaziel, and Semiramoth, and Jahiel, and Ani, and Eliab, and Banaïas, and Maasias, and Mathathias, and Eliphahu, and Macenias, and Obededom, and Jehiel, the porters.

19 Now the singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, sounded with cymbals of brass.

20 And Zacharias, and Oziel, and Semiramoth, and Jehiel, and Ani, and Eliab, and Maasias, and Banaïas, sung mysteries upon psalteries.

21 And Mathathias, and Eliphahu, and Macenias, and Obededom, and Jehiel, and Ozaziu, sung a song of victory for the octave upon harps.

22 And Chonenias, chief of the Levites, presided over the prophecy, to give out the tunes: for he was very skilful.

23 And Barachias, and Elcana, were door-keepers of the ark.

24 And Sebenias, and Josaphat, and Nathanael, and Amasai, and Zacharias, and Banaïas, and Eliezer, the priests, sounded with trumpets, before the ark of God: and Obededom and Jehias, were porters of the ark.

25 *So David, and all the ancients of Israel, and the captains over thousands, went to bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord, out of the house of Obededom, with joy.

26 And when God had helped the Levites who carried the ark of the covenant of the Lord, they offered in sacrifice seven oxen, and seven rams.

27 And David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, and all the Levites that carried the ark, and the singing men, and Chonenias, the ruler of the prophecy among the singers: and David also had on him an ephod of linen.

28 And all Israel brought the ark of the covenant of the Lord, with joyful shouting, and sounding with the sound of the cornet, and with trumpets, and cymbals, and psalteries, and harps.

29 And when the ark of the covenant of the Lord was come to the city of David, Michol, the daughter of Saul, looking out at a window, saw king David dancing and playing, and she despised him in her heart.

CHAP. XVI.

The ark is placed in the tabernacle. Sacrifice is offered. David blesseth the people, disposeth the offices of Levites, and maketh a psalm of praise to God.

SO ^bthey brought the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tent, which David had pitched for it: and they offered holocausts, and peace-offerings before God.

2 And when David had made an end of offering holocausts, and peace-offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord.

3 And he divided to all and every one, both men and women, a loaf of bread, and a piece of roasted beef, and flour fried with oil.

4 And he appointed Levites to minister before the ark of the Lord, and to remember his works, and to glorify and praise the Lord God of Israel.

5 Asaph, the chief, and next after him Zacharias: Moreover Jahiel, and Semiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mathathias, and Eliab, and Banaïas, and Obededom: and Jehiel, over the instruments of psaltery, and harps: and Asaph to sound with cymbals:

6 But Banaïas, and Jaziel, the priests, to sound the trumpet continually before the ark of the covenant of the Lord.

7 In that day David made Asaph, the chief, to give praise to the Lord with his brethren.

8 *Praise ye the Lord, and call upon his name: make known his doings among the nations.

* 2 Kings vi. 12.—^b 2 Kings vi. 17. A. M. 2959, A. C. 1045.

* Psal. civ. 1. Issi. xii. 4.

VER. 18. Ben. His name is omitted, v. 20, and in the Sept. The Syriac, &c. have "the son of Jaziel:" but we find the 9th Psalm addressed "to Ben, chief of the band of young women," who sung and played on nables, v. 20. C.—And Jaziel, called Oziel, v. 20, as the Sept. have here. H.

VER. 20. Zacharias, &c. presided over the second band, with nables, and Mathathias over the third, which had instruments of eight strings. The priests sounded the trumpets, (v. 24.) while Chonenias directed all the music, in this solemn procession. C.—Psalteries. Lit. "nables." H.—The Vulg. sometimes renders it psalterion, at other times lyra, (M.) or symphonia. S. Jer. ad Dard. T.—Some have supposed that the word denotes bagpipes; but it was a stringed instrument made of wood. C.—Heb. "with nebalim over halamoth," concerted things, or virgins, (Ps. lxvii. 26.) who sung the mysterious works of God. H.

VER. 21. Ozaziu does not occur before. Sept. have Ozias both here and v. 18, after Jehiel. H.—Of victory, such as was customary on the like occasions.—For the octave. Heb. hasheminith, according to the Jews, means an instrument of eight strings; so when ten is mentioned, the Sept. frequently supply "strings." Ps. xxxii. 2. M.—Heb. "they had guitars, and presided over the eighth band to intone. All the bands formed four choirs, distinguished by their instruments, the cymbal, nable, cinnor, (or guitar) and trumpets. C.

VER. 22. The prophecy. Singing praises to God is here called prophecy: the more, because these singers were often inspired men. Ch.—Heb. Massa signifies a song, (H.) elevation, (C.) burden. Syr. So the Vulg. has onus Moab, &c. the burden or dreadful prediction against Moab. C.—Prophecy often denotes no more than a melodious canticle. 1 K. x. 10. H.—Chonenias directed all this music. Sept. simply style him "prince of the Levites, prince of the musicians," (C.) or ἀρχὴν τῶν ᾠδῶν (who gave out the songs) "because he was intelligent." H.

VER. 24. Jehias is called Jehiel, v. 18. and 21. He, Obededom, Barachias, and Elcana, (v. 23.) were probably the four chief porters who attended the ark in arms; and others were, afterwards, stationed at the temple. C. ix. 17. The two former took part also in the music, v. 21. C.—Perhaps two preceded and two went behind the ark, to keep off the crowd. M.

VER. 26. Rams, in thanksgiving, that they had not been treated like Oza. O.—The Jews pretend that the ark was no burden to the Levites. T.—Love makes all our duties easy. H.

VER. 27. Linen. Heb. "a cloak of byssus," or of the finest white linen. D.—Byssus has often occurred before in the Vulg. but we find the Heb. butis, here for the first time. It probably denotes the brilliant yellow silk taken from the fish pinna, of which S. Basil speaks. Hexa. vii. Justinian was clothed with it, on account of its rarity and brightness. Procop. de fabrica. Yet as it would hardly assume any colour but black, it was not so much sought after as the silk of Persia. Not only David, but all the Levites, were thus richly adorned; as the latter were at the dedication of the temple. 2 Par. ii. 14. There was a manufactory of this byssus established by David. O. iv. 21. That of Egypt was white, and is called schesch, or "cotton." Ex. xvi. 4. C.—Ephod. Sept. "a stole of byssus," or a long silken robe, (H.) which has been already expressed; (T.) or rather, the ephod was only a girdle, which was not peculiar to the sacred ministers. 1 K. ii. 18. C.—Samuel, though a child, wore one. W.

VER. 29. Heart, and reproached him for appearing without his regal ornaments, (H. 2 K. vi. 20.) as if he had been naked. No reproach could have been more unfounded, as we see David had on a robe of byssus, with the ephod. C.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 2. Lord, wishing them all felicity, and making them presents, like the master of a family, v. 43, and 2 K. vi. 18. C.—Any superior may bless. W.

VER. 3. Oil. The precise signification of the Heb. Ashisha, is not known. C.—Prot. "a flagon of wine." H.—It denotes any thing "exhilarating." T. D.

VER. 4. Appointed, as a prophet, (H.) or by dispensation. The high priest has supreme spiritual power. Dent. xvii. 18. &c. W.

VER. 5. Zacharias, at the head of the second band. These played on the nable and cinnor, as the women did not sing in the tabernacle. Jahiel should be Oziel, (C. xv. 18. &c. C.) unless he be the same person. C. xv. 18. H.—Instruments. Lit. "organs." H.—Heb. "the instruments of nables." Vat. M.

VER. 6. Jaziel. We read Eliezer, &c. C. xv. 24.—Continually. At the appointed times.

VER. 7. Made. Heb. "gave first, to thank the Lord, into the hand of Asaph

9 Sing to him, yea, sing praises to him: and relate all his wondrous works.

10 Praise ye his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice, that seek the Lord.

11 Seek ye the Lord, and his power: seek ye his face evermore.

12 Remember his wonderful works, which he hath done: his signs, and the judgments of his mouth.

13 O ye seed of Israel, his servants; ye children of Jacob, his chosen.

14 He is the Lord our God: his judgments are in all the earth.

15 Remember for ever his covenant: the word, which he commanded to a thousand generations.

16 The covenant which he made with Abraham: and his oath to Isaac.

17 And he appointed the same to Jacob for a precept: and to Israel for an everlasting covenant:

18 Saying: To thee will I give the land of Chanaan: the lot of your inheritance.

19 When they were but a small number: very few, and sojourners in it.

20 And they passed from nation to nation: and from one kingdom to another people.

21 He suffered no man to do them wrong: and re-proved kings for their sake.

22 *Touch not my anointed: and do no evil to my prophets.

23 ^bSing ye to the Lord, all the earth: shew forth from day to day his salvation.

24 Declare his glory among the Gentiles: his wonders among all people.

25 For the Lord is great and exceedingly to be praised: and is to be feared above all gods.

26 For all the gods of the nations are idols: but the Lord made the heavens.

27 Praise and magnificence are before him: strength and joy in his place.

28 Bring ye to the Lord, O ye families of the nations: bring ye to the Lord glory and empire.

29 Give to the Lord glory to his name, bring up sacrifice, and come ye in his sight: and adore the Lord in holy beauty.

30 Let all the earth be moved at his presence: for he hath founded the world immoveable.

31 Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth be glad: and let them say among the nations: The Lord hath reigned.

* Psal. civ. 15.—^b Psal. xcv. 1.

and his brethren this psalm," (H.) in order the 104th; and from v. 23 we find the 95th in the Psalter, with some improvements. T.

VER. 11. Power. The ark was frequently the instrument of God's power; and his people are exhorted to present themselves to pray before it. C.—God seemed to dwell there, and often displayed his wonders. D.

VER. 13. Israel. In Pa. civ. Abraham.

VER. 22. Prophets. The ancient patriarchs ruled their families as kings, and directed them by word and example, like the most holy prophets. C.—Both are frequently styled anointed. H.

VER. 27. Place. In Pa. xcv. 6. holiness and majesty in his sanctuary. Heb. "strength and beauty in," &c. God is served in his tabernacle with piety.

VER. 29. Sacrifice, of flour and wine.—Beauty. Heb. "in the beauty of his sanctuary." Pa. Come into his courts: adore ye the Lord in his holy court.

VER. 30. Presence. Here the psalm adds, say ye among, as v. 31.

VER. 35. And say, &c. is not in the psalm; and it seems not to agree with the flourishing state of David's kingdom: yet he might speak with the spirit of prophecy, or wish that all his subjects might live in happiness and concord under him. C.—Others think that Esdras inserted these verses to be sung in the second 32 Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof: let the fields rejoice, and all things that are in them.

33 Then shall the trees of the wood give praise before the Lord: because he is come to judge the earth.

34 Give ye glory to the Lord, for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever.

35 And say ye: Save us, O God our saviour: and gather us together, and deliver us from the nations, that we may give glory to thy holy name, and may rejoice in singing thy praise.

36 Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel from eternity to eternity: and let all the people say: Amen, and sing a hymn to God.

37 So he left there before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, Asaph and his brethren, to minister in the presence of the ark continually, day by day, and in their courses.

38 And Obededom, with his brethren, sixty-eight: and Obededom, the son of Idithun, and Hosa, he appointed to be porters.

39 And Sadoc, the priest, and his brethren, priests, before the tabernacle of the Lord in the high place, which was in Gabaon;

40 That they should offer holocausts to the Lord upon the altar of holocaust, continually, morning and evening, according to all that is written in the law of the Lord, which he commanded Israel.

41 And after him Heman, and Idithun, and the rest that were chosen, every one by his name to give praise to the Lord: because his mercy endureth for ever.

42 And Heman and Idithun sounded the trumpet, and played on the cymbals, and all kinds of musical instruments, to sing praises to God: and the sons of Idithun he made porters.

43 And all the people returned to their houses: and David to bless also his own house.

CHAP. XVII.

David's purpose to build a temple is rewarded by most ample promises: David's thanksgiving.

NOW *when David was dwelling in his house, he said to Nathan, the prophet: Behold, I dwell in a house of cedar: and the ark of the covenant of the Lord is under skins.

2 And Nathan said to David: Do all that is in thy heart: for God is with thee.

3 Now that night the word of God came to Nathan, saying:

* 2 Kings vi. 17. A. M. 2960, A. C. 1044.

temple, (Lyran. E.) when many still remained in captivity. Yet they may refer to the time of Christ. D.

VER. 36. And sing. Heb. "and Alleluia," or, "all . . . said, (or shall say) truth and praise be to the Lord."

VER. 39. Sadoc was to minister at Gabaon, with Heman, Idithun, &c. while Abiathar, Asaph, &c. officiated at Jerusalem. C.—This regulation continued till towards the end of David's reign, (H.) when fresh orders were given. C. xxiii. &c. We find Abiathar and Sadoc were both at Jerusalem, when David was obliged to flee. 2 K. xv. 24. and 3 K. i. 7. The altar at Gabaon continued some time longer. 3 K. iii. 8.

VER. 43. Bless, or feast, (D.) with his family, on part of the sacred victims. H.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Cedar. Such were esteemed the most magnificent, v. 6. See 2 K. vii.

VER. 9. A place permanent and secure, while I have had no fixed abode. C.—No more, for a long time: and unless they provoke me by their crimes, as they did afterwards, and were exposed to more severe chastisements. Constant rest is not always expedient. T.

4 Go, and speak to David, my servant: Thus saith the Lord: Thou shalt not build me a house to dwell in.

5 For I have not remained in a house from the time that I brought up Israel to this day: but I have been always changing places in a tabernacle, and in a tent

6 Abiding with all Israel. Did I ever speak to any one, of all the judges of Israel, whom I charged to feed my people, saying: Why have you not built me a house of cedar?

7 Now, therefore, thus shalt thou say to my servant, David: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I took thee from the pastures, from following the flock, that thou shouldst be ruler of my people Israel;

8 And I have been with thee whithersoever thou hast gone: and I have slain all thy enemies before thee, and have made thee a name, like that of one of the great ones that are renowned in the earth.

9 And I have given a place to my people Israel: they shall be planted, and shall dwell therein, and shall be moved no more; neither shall the children of iniquity waste them, as at the beginning,

10 Since the days that I gave judges to my people Israel, and I have humbled all thy enemies. And I declare to thee, that the Lord will build thee a house.

11 And when thou shalt have ended thy days to go to thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons: and I will establish his kingdom.

12 He shall build me a house, and I will establish his throne for ever.

13 I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son: and I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee.

14 But I will settle him in my house, and in my kingdom for ever: and his throne shall be most firm for ever.

15 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak to David.

16 And king David came, and sat before the Lord, and said: "Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that thou shouldst give such things to me?"

17 But even this hath seemed little in thy sight, and therefore thou hast also spoken concerning the house of thy servant, for the time to come: and thou hast made me remarkable above all men, O Lord God.

18 What can David add more, seeing thou hast thus glorified thy servant, and known him?

19 O Lord, for thy servant's sake, according to thy own heart, thou hast shewed all this magnificence, and wouldst have all these great things to be known.

VER. 11. Secd. even till Christ shall be born of the Blessed Virgin, of the family of David. W.

VER. 12. Ever often means only a long duration. The dominion of Christ shall have no end. C.—The Church founded by this true David, (H.) falls heir to these promises. D.

VER. 13. Thea. The posterity of Saul lost the throne. H.—If Solomon was reprobated, his children were permitted to reign. It is also presumed that he did penance; though this is not certain.

VER. 17. Men. Who was ever more favoured by God than David? Heb. "Thou hast regarded me according to the estate of a man of high degree." Prot. H.

VER. 18. Known him. Treating him with love and tenderness, as a friend. How can David sufficiently testify his gratitude?

VER. 21. Himself. Heb. adda, "and to make thee a name."

VER. 27. Begun. Heb. "be pleased, (H.) or thou hast had the goodness to bless." Syr. "I pray thee bless."

20 O Lord, there is none like unto thee: and there is no other God beside thee, of all whom we have heard of with our ears.

21 For what other nation is there upon earth like unto thy people Israel, whom God went to deliver, and make a people for himself, and by his greatness and terrors cast out nations before their face, whom he had delivered out of Egypt?

22 And thou hast made thy people Israel to be thy own people for ever; and thou, O Lord, art become their God.

23 Now therefore, O Lord, let the word which thou hast spoken to thy servant, and concerning his house, be established for ever, and do as thou hast said.

24 And let thy name remain and be magnified for ever: and let it be said: The Lord of hosts is God of Israel, and the house of David, his servant, remaineth before him.

25 For thou, O Lord, my God, hast revealed to the ear of thy servant, that thou wilt build him a house: and therefore thy servant hath found confidence to pray before thee.

26 And now, O Lord, thou art God: and thou hast promised to thy servant such great benefits.

27 And thou hast begun to bless the house of thy servant, that it may be always before thee: for seeing thou blessest it, O Lord, it shall be blessed for ever.

CHAP. XVIII.

David's victories. His chief officers.

AND "it came to pass after this, that David defeated the Philistines, and humbled them, and took away Geth, and her daughters, out of the hands of the Philistines:

2 And he defeated Moab, and the Moabites were made David's servants, and brought him gifts.

3 At that time David defeated also Adarezer, king of Soba, of the land of Hemath, when he went to extend his dominions as far as the river Euphrates.

4 And David took from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen, and he houghed all the chariot-horses, only a hundred chariots, which he reserved for himself.

5 And the Syrians of Damascus came also to help Adarezer king of Soba: and David slew of them likewise two and twenty thousand men.

6 And he put a garrison in Damascus, that Syria also should serve him, and bring gifts. And the Lord assisted him in all things to which he went.

7 And David took the golden quivers, which the

* 2 Kings viii. 1. A. M. 2860, A. C. 1044.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 1. Daughters. Villages (See 2 K. viii. 1. M.) and pendant towns. W.

VER. 2. Gifts. Heb. mincha, a word used to denote the offerings of bread, &c. Lev. ii. Here it signifies the tribute (C.) imposed on the conquered. H.

VER. 3. Adarezer, or Adadezer, 2 K.—When he, the king of Soba, went to extend. Heb. "to strengthen his hand on the," &c.—Hand often denotes power, extent, possession.

VER. 4. Footmen. Heb. may well signify, "1000 chariot-horses and 7000 men who mounted the chariots and the horses." We only find 1700 horsemen. 2 K. viii. 4. But soon after it is added, David houghed all the chariot-horses. C.—They were thus rendered useless. The king was forbidden to keep many horses. D.

VER. 5. Damascus. Heb. "Aram of Darnesek." Elsewhere the r is omitted.

VER. 6. A garrison. Lit. "soldiers." This word has been lost by the neglect of some Heb. transcriber. C.—Prot. supply it. H.

VER. 7. Quivers. Heb. "the shields," &c. The term is variously translated, 2 K.

servants of Adarezer had, and he brought them to Jerusalem.

8 Likewise out of Thebath and Chun, cities of Adarezer, he brought very much brass, of which Solomon made the brazen sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of brass.

9 Now when Thou, king of Hemath, heard that David had defeated all the army of Adarezer, king of Soba,

10 He sent Adoram, his son, to king David, to desire peace of him, and to congratulate him that he had defeated and overthrown Adarezer: for Thou was an enemy to Adarezer.

11 And all the vessels of gold, and silver, and brass, king David consecrated to the Lord; with the silver and gold which he had taken from all the nations, as well from Edom, and from Moab, and from the sons of Ammon, as from the Philistines, and from Amalec.

12 And Abisai, the son of Sarvia, slew of the Edomites, in the vale of the Saltpits, eighteen thousand:

13 And he put a garrison in Edom, that Edom should serve David: and the Lord preserved David in all things to which he went.

14 So David reigned over all Israel, and executed judgment and justice among all his people.

15 And Joab, the son of Sarvia, was over the army: and Josaphat, the son of Ahilud, recorder:

16 And Sadoc, the son of Achitob, and Achimelech, the son of Abiathar, were the priests; and Susa, scribe.

17 And Banaias, the son of Joiada, was over the bands of the Cerethi and the Phelethi: and the sons of David were chief about the king.

CHAP. XIX.

The Ammonites abuse David's ambassadors: both they and their confederates are overthrown.

NOW* it came to pass that Naas, the king of the children of Ammon, died, and his son reigned in his stead.

2 And David said: I will shew kindness to Hanon, the son of Naas: for his father did a favour to me. And David sent messengers to comfort him upon the death of his father. But when they were come into the land of the children of Ammon, to comfort Hanon;

3 The princes of the children of Ammon, said to Hanon: Thou thinkest, perhaps, that David, to do honour to thy father, hath sent comforters to thee: and

* A. M. 2967, A. C. 1037. 2 Kings x. 1.

VER. 8. Chun, called probably Betath, and Berothai. 2 K.

VER. 10. Adoram, or Joram, ib.—Desire. Heb. "to ask if all went well with him, and to bless him."

VER. 11. Edom, or rather Syria, (Aram) which might easily be exchanged for Edom. 2 K. viii. David could not satisfy his devotion by building a temple; but he made preparations. Solomon left part of the treasures unconsumed, 1 Par. xxvi. 26. C.—These effects, being destined for sacred uses, are said to be consecrated to the Lord. W.

VER. 12. Edomites. David seems to have been present, and the victory is sometimes attributed to him. Joab afterwards slew 18,000. 3 K. xi. 15. title of Ps. ix. S. Jer. Trad. C.—Pits. This place was fatal to that nation: there Amalec destroyed 20,000. 2 Par. xxv. 12. T.

VER. 16. Abiathar and Achimelech had both names indifferently. Heb. reads Abimelech, which is a manifest mistake. The name of Abiathar perhaps ought to be in the place of Achimelech; as we know that he was the son of the latter, and the high priest under David. Some would translate, "and Abiathar, son of Achimelech."—Susa, or Saraias, secretary.

VER. 17. About. Lit. "at the hand of the king," to execute his orders, and thou dost not take notice, that his servants are come to thee to consider, and search, and spy out thy land.

4 Wherefore Hanon shaved the heads and beards of the servants of David, and cut away their garments from the buttocks to the feet, and sent them away.

5 And when they were gone, they sent word to David, who sent to meet them, (for they had suffered a great affront) and ordered them to stay at Jericho till their beards grew, and then to return.

6 And when the children of Ammon saw that they had done an injury to David, Hanon, and the rest of the people, sent a thousand talents of silver, to hire them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria, Maacha, and out of Soba.

7 And they hired two and thirty thousand chariots, and the king of Maacha, with his people. And they came and camped over-against Medaba. And the children of Ammon gathered themselves together out of their cities, and came to battle.

8 And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and all the army of valiant men:

9 And the children of Ammon came out, and put their army in array before the gate of the city: and the kings that came to their aid, stood apart in the field.

10 Wherefore Joab, understanding that the battle was set against him before and behind, chose out the bravest men of all Israel, and marched against the Syrians.

11 And the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abisai, his brother, and they went against the children of Ammon.

12 And he said: If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, I will help thee.

13 Be of good courage, and let us behave ourselves manfully for our people, and for the cities of our God: and the Lord will do that which is good in his sight.

14 So Joab, and the people that were with him, went against the Syrians to the battle: and he put them to flight.

15 And the children of Ammon, seeing that the Syrians were fled, they likewise fled from Abisai, his brother, and went into the city: and Joab also returned into Jerusalem.

16 But the Syrians, seeing that they had fallen before Israel, sent messengers, and brought to them the Syrians that were beyond the river: and Sophach, general of the army of Adarezer, was their leader.

17 And it was told David; and he gathered together to assist him. Sept. "vicesgerenta." Syr. "princes." They are styled priests. 2 K. viii. 18.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 3. Land, or city, 2 K. x. 3. C.—What evils proceed from evil counsellors!

VER. 4. From. Heb. "in the midst, above the thighs:" exposing them to derision. H.

VER. 6. Done. Heb. "made themselves stinking." Sept. "that the people of David was covered with confusion." The insult fell on all Israel.—Mesopotamia is not mentioned 2 K. as the troops perhaps did not arrive soon enough for the first battle, v. 16.

VER. 7. Chariots. This number seems excessive, and it may have been put for infantry; the number of which, specified 2 K. was 33,000. But the troops of Mesopotamia are not there mentioned, and this supplies what was left defective. C.—The chariots may signify those who fought upon them. M. v. 18 Isai. xxi. 7. T.—Sometimes the whole number is specified; at others only a part.

VER. 16. River, in Mesopotamia. Joab did not allow them time to arrive.—Sophach, or Sobac. Adarezer sent also to collect these forces. 2 K.

all Israel, and passed the Jordan, and came upon them, and put his army in array against them, and they fought with him.

18 But the Syrians fled before Israel: and David slew of the Syrians seven thousand chariots, and forty thousand footmen, and Sophach, the general of the army.

19 *And when the servants of Adarezer saw themselves overcome by Israel, they went over to David, and served him: and Syria would not help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAP. XX.

Rabba is taken. Other victories over the Philistines.

AND ^bit came to pass, after the course of a year, at the time that kings go out to battle, Joab gathered together an army, and the strength of the troops, and wasted the land of the children of Ammon: and went and besieged Rabba. But David staid at Jerusalem, when Joab smote Rabba, and destroyed it.

2 And David took the crown of Melchom from his head, and found in it a talent weight of gold, and most precious stones; and he made himself a diadem of it: he took also the spoils of the city, which were very great.

3 And the people that were therein he brought out: and made harrows, and sleds, and chariots of iron, to go over them, so that they were cut and bruised to pieces. In this manner David dealt with all the cities of the children of Ammon: and he returned with all his people to Jerusalem.

4 *After this there arose a war at Gazer, against the Philistines: in which Sabachai, the Husathite, slew Saphai, of the race of Raphaim, and humbled them.

5 Another battle also was fought against the Philistines, in which Adeodatus, the son of Saltus, a Bethlehemite, slew the brother of Goliath, the Gethite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

6 There was another battle also in Geth, in which there was a man of great stature, whose fingers and toes were four and twenty, six on each hand and foot: who also was born of the stock of Rapha.

7 He reviled Israel: but Jonathan, the son of Samaa, the brother of David, slew him. These were the sons of Rapha, in Geth, who fell by the hand of David and his servants.

CHAP. XXI.

David's sin, in numbering the people, is punished by a pestilence: which ceaseth upon his offering sacrifice in the threshing-floor of Ornan.

AND ^asatan rose up against Israel: and moved David to number Israel.

2 And David said to Joab, and to the rulers of the people: Go, and number Israel from Bersabee even unto Dan, and bring me the number of them, that I may know it.

3 And Joab answered: The Lord make his people a hundred times more than they are: but, my lord the king, are they not all thy servants? why doth my lord seek this thing, which may be imputed as a sin to Israel?

4 But the king's word rather prevailed: and Joab departed, and went through all Israel: and returned to Jerusalem.

5 And he gave David the number of them, whom he had surveyed: and all the number of Israel, was found to be eleven hundred thousand men that drew the sword: and of Juda, four hundred and seventy thousand fighting men.

6 But Levi and Benjamin he did not number: for Joab unwillingly executed the king's orders.

7 And God was displeased with this thing that was commanded: and he struck Israel.

8 And David said to God: I have sinned exceedingly in doing this: I beseech thee, take away the iniquity of thy servant, for I have done foolishly.

9 And the Lord spoke to Gad, the seer of David, saying:

10 Go, and speak to David, and tell him: Thus saith the Lord: I give thee the choice of three things: choose one which thou wilt, and I will do it to thee.

11 And when Gad was come to David, he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Choose which thou wilt:

12 Either three years' famine: or three months to flee from thy enemies, and not to be able to escape their sword: or three days to have the sword of the Lord, and pestilence in the land, and the angel of the Lord destroying in all the coasts of Israel: now, therefore, see what I shall answer him who sent me.

* A. M. 2968, A. C. 1086.—^b 2 Kings x. 7. and xi. 1. A. M. 2969, A. C. 1085.

VER. 18. Chariots. Lit. "chariot." 2 K. has only 700, and 40,000 horsemen. C.—Ten men might be in each chariot. D.

VER. 19. Went. Heb. "made peace with David." The many petty kings who had hitherto been tributary to Adarezer, submitted now to the conqueror. C.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Year. Heb. "at the return of the year," in spring. C. VER. 2. Melchom. Sept. add the explanation, "their king." It may also be referred to the idol of Ammon. H.—The massy crown was suspended over David's head. T. D.

VER. 3. Harrows. Heb. "cut them with saws, and with harrows; (H.) or, rollers of iron, and with saws." But some other term was probably used, as we find saws before. C.—Prot. have "axes." This exemplary punishment was in consequence of the violation of the law of nations. Abulensis pronounced it lawful. Tirin accuses David of a grievous sin of cruelty; observing that he was at this time involved in the sin of adultery: and people easily fall from one abyss into another. Cruelty and lust often go together. Yet it seems best to suspend our judgment. H.—David might only treat the most guilty in this manner. D.

VER. 4. Gazer, which seems preferable to Gob. 2 K. xxi. 18.

VER. 5. Adeodatus. Heb. "Elchanan, the son of Jair, of Lehem;" or, "slew Lechemi, brother of Goliath;" or equal to him in strength. C.—Brother is here supplied, as it is wanting. 2 K. D.

VER. 7. Rapha, head of the giants of Palestine. C.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 1. Satan. This shews that the Lord only (H.) permitted David's sin, (2 K. xxiv. W.) and in this sense only he is said to have insti-

* 2 Kings xxi. 18. A. M. 2986, A. C. 1018.—^a A. M. 2987. 2 Kings xxiv. 1. Inf. a. xxvii. 24.

gated him; (D.) though we read this was done by the fury of the Lord, or by an evil spirit. H.

VER. 3. Israel, who will be severely punished. C.—Sin is often used in this sense. Vatable.

VER. 5. The number, &c. The difference of the numbers here and 2 K. xxiv. 9. is to be accounted for, by supposing the greater number to be that which was really found, and the lesser to be that which Joab gave in; (Ch.) or the transcribers of this place have been inaccurate. C.

VER. 6. Number. These might therefore escape the pestilence. D.—For Heb. "because the king's word was abominable to Joab." We read that Benjamin was numbered unto David. C. vii. 5. 11. But that might be on another occasion; or the register continued in the archives, and was not brought to the king. See C. xxvii. 24. C.

VER. 8. Iniquity. David was guilty, though he retained both faith and hope. W.

VER. 9. Seer, or prophet, whom David kept at court and consulted. He was endued himself with the prophetic spirit.

VER. 10. Three; a word omitted in Heb. but supplied by the Prot. H.—"I will bring three things upon thee." Sept.

VER. 12. Three years' famine; which joined with the three foregoing years of famine, mentioned 2 K. xxi. and the seventh year of the land's resting, would make up the seven years proposed by the prophet. 2 K. xxiv. 13. Ch.—Perhaps it would be as well to acknowledge a mistake, (2 K. H.) on account of the similitude of the Hebrew words signifying three and seven: (T.) unless the 13 And David said to Gad: I am on every side in a great strait: but it is better for me to fall into the hands of the Lord, for his mercies are many, than into the hands of men.

14 So the Lord sent a pestilence upon Israel. And there fell of Israel seventy thousand men.

15 And he sent an angel to Jerusalem, to strike it: and as he was striking it, the Lord beheld, and took pity for the greatness of the evil: and said to the angel that destroyed: It is enough; now stop thy hand. And the angel of the Lord stood by the threshing-floor of Ornan, the Jebusite.

16 And David, lifting up his eyes, saw the angel of the Lord standing between heaven and earth, with a drawn sword in his hand, turned against Jerusalem: and both he, and the ancients, clothed in hair-cloth, fell down flat on the ground.

17 And David said to God: Am not I he that commanded the people to be numbered? It is I that have sinned: it is I that have done the evil: but as for this flock, what hath it deserved? O Lord, my God, let thy hand be turned, I beseech thee, upon me, and upon my father's house: and let not thy people be destroyed.

18 And the angel of the Lord commanded Gad to tell David, to go up, and build an altar to the Lord God, in the threshing-floor of Ornan, the Jebusite.

19 And David went up, according to the word of Gad, which he spoke to him in the name of the Lord.

20 Now when Ornan looked up, and saw the angel, he and his four sons hid themselves: for at that time he was threshing wheat in the floor.

21 And as David was coming to Ornan, Ornan saw him, and went out of the threshing-floor to meet him, and bowed down to him, with his face to the ground.

22 And David said to him: Give me this place of thy threshing-floor, that I may build therein an altar to the Lord: but thou shalt take of me as much money as it is worth, that the plague may cease from the people.

23 And Ornan said to David: Take it, and let my lord the king do all that pleaseth him: and moreover, prophet reduced the time from seven to three years; as in Ezechiel (iv. 15.) God visitates the severity of his first threat. Sanctius.

• 2 Par. iii. 1.—^b Exod. xxxvi. 2.

VER. 13. Men. Susanna spoke on a different supposition, (Dan. xiii. 23. Eccl. ii. 22.) of eternal punishment, in consequence of sin. David prefers to be punished by the hand of a tender father, rather than by that of an enemy; (T. E.) and he does not wish to screen himself from suffering in this world, but offers himself to share in the chastisement of his subjects. H.

VER. 15. Took. Heb. "repented of evil," taking pity of unhappy victims.—Ornan, or Aruna. Ch.—He had been king of the Jebusites before David took Jerusalem. Mariana. T.

VER. 18. Altar. Hence it appears that holy men erected altars to God's command. D.

VER. 20. Now. Heb. "and Ornan turned back."—Angel. Sept. (Vat.) "the king and his four sons with him, along with Achabin." Other editions have, "and his four sons hidden with him." Arab. "and the king, being come near to Aran, he saw David and his," &c. Syr. reads in like manner; but says nothing of the children either of David or of Ornan. We do not read that Ornan saw the angel, 2 K. but this circumstance may be here supplied. It is evident the Sept. have read melec, "king," instead of malac, "angel." C.—Eupolemus says the angel Dianathan shewed David where to build the temple. Eus. Prap. ix. 30.

VER. 22. Worth. Heb. "give it me for the full price," or "worth." Sept. "the money was weighed."

VER. 25. Six hundred sicles, &c. This was the price of the whole place on which the temple was afterwards built: but the price of the oxen was fifty sicles of silver. 2 K. xxiv. 24. Ch.—Or the fifty sicles were given for the threshing-floor alone. C. D.

the oxen also I give for a holocaust, and the drays for wood, and the wheat for the sacrifice: I will give it all willingly.

24 And king David said to him: It shall not be so: but I will give thee money as much as it is worth: for I must not take it from thee, and so offer to the Lord holocausts free-cost.

25 So David gave to Ornan for the place, six hundred sicles of gold of just weight.

26 And he built there an altar to the Lord: and he offered holocausts, and peace-offerings, and he called upon the Lord, and he heard him, by sending fire from heaven upon the altar of the holocaust.

27 And the Lord commanded the angel: and he put up his sword again into the sheath.

28 And David seeing that the Lord had heard him, in the threshing-floor of Ornan, the Jebusite, forthwith offered victims there.

29 But the tabernacle of the Lord, which Moses made in the desert, and the altar of holocausts, was at that time in the high place of Gabaon.

30 And David could not go to the altar, there to pray to God: for he was seized with an exceedingly great fear, seeing the sword of the angel of the Lord.

CHAP. XXII.

David having prepared all necessities, chargeth Solomon to build the temple, and the princes to assist him.

THEN David said: "This is the house of God, and this is the altar for the holocaust of Israel.

2 And he commanded to gather together all the proselytes of the land of Israel, and out of them he appointed stone-cutters, to hew stones and polish them, to build the house of God.

3 And David prepared in abundance iron for the nails of the gates, and for the closures and joinings: and of brass an immense weight.

4 And the cedar-trees were without number, which the Sidonians, and the Tyrians, brought to David.

5 And David said: Solomon, my son, is very young and tender, and the house which I would have to be built to the Lord, must be such as to be renowned in all countries: therefore I will prepare him necessities.

• 2 Par. iii. 1.—^d A. M. 2988, A. C. 1016.

VER. 26. Fire, to testify his approbation. (W. T.) See Gen. iv. 4. 2 Par. vii. 1. C.—This altar represented the cross, on which the Victim of our reconciliation was offered. D.

VER. 30. God. He performed what God had commanded. But he would have offered other voluntary victims at Gabaon, if he had been able. C.—The distance shewed the propriety of building the temple at Jerusalem, (D.) which was nearly in the centre of the country. H.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 1. The house. Or the place where the temple shall be built. M.—The miraculous fire convinced David that God had made choice of this spot.

VER. 2. Proselytes. This is the first time that the word occurs in the Vulg. See Ex. xii. 45. It means "strangers," (C.) who were not allowed to live in the country, unless they would observe the natural law, and renounce idolatry. Rabbin.—These had embraced the Jewish religion. M.—They were the remnants of the people of Chanaan, (3 K. ix. 20,) and were treated as public slaves, which could not have been done, with justice or policy, with regard to those who might barely wish to reside in the country. These strangers prefigure the Gentiles, chosen to build the Christian Church.

VER. 3. Prepared. Syr. and Arab. "appointed blacksmiths from among the proselytes, to forge tools for cutting and dressing stone, &c." But most follow the Vulg. C.—Closures is explained by the following word, which alone occurs in Heb. &c.—Immense. Heb. and Sept. "abundance, it was not weighed." H.

VER. 4. Number. Still we find that Solomon ordered more, as the structure was more magnificent than even David had imagined.

VER. 5. Tender, (delicatus) weak and unexperienced. C.—Yet he might be 21 when he was crowned. T.—David began his preparations long before.—Lord

And, therefore, before his death he prepared all the charges.

6 And he called for Solomon, his son: and commanded him to build a house to the Lord, the God of Israel.

7 And David said to Solomon: My son, it was my desire to have built a house to the name of the Lord, my God.*

8 But the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Thou hast shed much blood, and fought many battles, so thou canst not build a house to my name, after shedding so much blood before me:

9 But a son, that shall be born to thee, shall be a most quiet man: for I will make him rest from all his enemies round about: and therefore, he shall be called Peaceable: and I will give peace and quietness to Israel all his days.

10 ^b He shall build a house to my name, and he shall be a son to me, and I will be a father to him: and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel for ever.

11 Now then, my son, the Lord be with thee, and do thou prosper, and build the house to the Lord, thy God, as he hath spoken of thee.

12 The Lord also give thee wisdom and understanding, that thou mayst be able to rule Israel, and to keep the law of the Lord, thy God.

13 For then thou shalt be able to prosper, if thou keep the commandments, and judgments, which the Lord commanded Moses to teach Israel: take courage, and act manfully; fear not, nor be dismayed.

14 Behold, I, in my poverty have prepared the charges of the house of the Lord; of gold a hundred

* 2 Kings vii. 1.—^b 2 Kings vii. 13. 3 Kings v. 5.

Heb. "must be (H.) for grandeur, excellence, fame, and beauty, through all countries" a sort of prodigy.—All. Heb. "abundantly."

VER. 8. Blood, of Urias, (S. Jer. and the Rab.) or rather, as David had already entertained the desire of building a temple before that event, (E.) the blood which David had shed in just wars, must be understood; as even that causes a person to be regarded as unclean. The soldiers were obliged to be purified before they could enter the camp. Num. xxi. 19. In the Christian Church, those are deemed irregular who have contributed to the death of the guilty, even as judges or witnesses. The Pagans entertained the like sentiments. C.—Æneas dares not touch the sacred vessels and household gods, when he was stained with blood, shed in his country's defence.

Tu, genitor, cape sacra manu, patriosque penates

Me bello è tanto digressum et cede recenti

Attrectare nefas.—Æneid ii.

—So. Heb. "much blood in my sight." H.—This expression enhances (D.) the greatness of the bloodshed; as when a person is said to be wicked, &c. before the Lord, it means in an extraordinary degree. The wars of David are frequently assigned as the impediment to David's building the temple, C. xvii. 4. and xxviii. 3. Joseph. &c. C.—They would not suffer him to have sufficient leisure, v. 18. (H.) 3 K. v. 3. Salien. M.

VER. 9. Peaceable. Heb. "Solomon," which has this meaning. C.—Herein Solomon was a figure of Christ, who is styled the Prince of peace. Isai. ix. W.

VER. 10. Name. See 2 K. vii. 13. M.—A son. The crimes into which Solomon fell, hinder us from explaining this literally of him. S. Paul refers the expression to Jesus Christ. Heb. i. 5. C.—S. Aug. (de C. xviii. 8 and 9.) observes that the promises were not perfectly fulfilled in Solomon.

VER. 12. Understanding, (sensum.) Skill to resolve difficult questions. M.—That. Heb. "and appoint thee to rule." H.

VER. 14. Poverty. Prot. "trouble." H.—David confesses that the immense sums which he had collected, were nothing in comparison with the greatness of God. He left more than was sufficient for Solomon to perfect the work, with still greater magnificence than he had planned out, v. 5. C. xxviii. 2. and xxi. 2. &c. C.—Million. Josephus (vii. 14.) reduces these sums to one tenth part, "of gold 10,000 talents, of silver 100,000;" so that it is "extremely probable that a cipher" was added to these numbers, in some very ancient Heb. copy. Brerewood computes that the sum mentioned here and C. xxix. 4. would amount to 841,125,000*l.* and maintains that the whole temple pavement, and all the vessels, might have been made of solid gold, without consuming it all. De pond. in Walton's Polyglot.—"If we take the preceding talents according to bishop Cumberland's computation, the sum total will be somewhat less: but, were we to reduce it to less than one half, would not the sum of four hundred millions of money be thousand talents, and of silver a million of talents; but of brass, and of iron, there is no weight, for the abundance surpasseth all account: timber also, and stones, I have prepared for all the charges.

15 Thou hast also workmen in abundance, hewers of stones, and masons, and carpenters, and of all trades the most skilful in their work,

16 In gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in iron, whereof there is no number. Arise then, and be doing, and the Lord will be with thee.

17 David also charged all the princes of Israel, to help Solomon, his son, 18 Saying: You see, that the Lord, your God, is with you, and hath given you rest round about, and hath delivered all your enemies into your hands, and the land is subdued before the Lord, and before his people.

19 Give, therefore, your hearts and your souls, to seek the Lord, your God: and arise, and build a sanctuary to the Lord God, that the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the vessels consecrated to the Lord, may be brought into the house, which is built to the name of the Lord.

CHAP. XXIII.

David appointeth Solomon king. The distribution of the Levites, and their offices.

AND ^c David, being old and full of days, made Solomon, his son, king over Israel.

2 And he gathered together all the princes of Israel, and the priests and Levites.

3 And the Levites were numbered, from the age of thirty years, and upwards: and there were found of them thirty-eight thousand men.

4 Of these twenty-four thousand were chosen, and immense and incredible?" Kennicott.—A learned Jew has written this marginal note in his Bible, 1661: "It is supposed, these talents are not to be reckoned like the Mosaic, for they would amount to 720 millions. But as the Scripture makes no difference, we have no other computation to go by." See Ken. diss. ii. If they were the same, the sum would exceed belief. Some have thought that they were only half. Mariana supposes the talents were only of the weight of sicles, or four drachms; so that David left one million for the fabric. D.—But the relation given by historians of the riches of Sardanapalus, Cyrus, Alexander, Atabalipa, and some kings, who were not more likely to amass such treasures than David, make the account less improbable. Josephus (vii. 12.) asserts, that "no prince ever left so great riches." He had extended his dominions on all sides, and imposed tribute on the conquered. He was very frugal, and had possession of the mines of Phunon, (Num. xxi. 10. and xxxiii. 43.) and of Phœnicia. Deut. xxxiii. 25. Though the talent seems to have varied in other nations, it always consisted of 3000 sicles among the Hebrews, at least till the captivity. Ex. xxxviii. 25. 28. We find from 2 Par. xxv. 6. 4 K. xv. 19. &c. that it formed a very considerable sum. Yet Villalpand calculates that all the gold and silver left by David, would be requisite for the ornaments and vessels of the temple. If, however, we grant that it would have sufficed to build a massive temple of gold, how much must be deducted to pay the workmen? &c. C. Diss. on the riches left by David, t. ii.—For all. Heb. Chal. Sept. "And to these add." T.—He encouraged the princes to contribute; (C. xxxix.) and here he exhorts his son to shew his liberality, if any thing should be found deficient. H.

2 Kings vii. 14. Heb. i. 5.—^c A. M. 2988.

VER. 18. Saving is not expressed in Heb. "Is not the Lord," &c.—And hath. Heb. "for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into my hand," or power. H.—Almost all the neighbouring nations were subjected to David. C.—The Lord, who assisted his people, and filled the enemy with terror. M.

VER. 19. Is on the point of being built. David was convinced that the work would not be much longer retarded, so that he speaks of it as present. H.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 1. Full, satisfied, in the last year of his reign, and the 70th of his age. D.—Our non ut plenus vitæ conviva recedit? Lucet. iii.—Israel. This example was much followed by succeeding kings. C.—Yet this is controverted. Houbigant. H.

VER. 2. Princes, heads of families, or officers of the army. C. xxv. 1. M.

VER. 3. Numbered at the same time, when David caused his son to be crowned, and made these fresh regulations, v. 27, and C. xxvi. 31.—Upwards, according to the plan given by Moses. David afterwards ordered people of twenty years of age, to begin to serve in the tabernacle, as it was now fixed, and consequently the labours were diminished. This tended to augment the splendour of the religious worship, and to edify the people, who could not attend so constantly, in person.

VER. 4. Overseers. Heb. sholrim. Sept. "scribes." Others suppose "listors distributed unto the ministry of the house of the Lord: and six thousand were the overseers and judges.

5 Moreover, four thousand were porters: and as many singers, singing to the Lord with the instruments which David had made to sing with.

6 * And David distributed them into courses, by the families of the sons of Levi; to wit, of Gerson, and of Caath, and of Merari.

7 The sons of Gerson were, Leedan, and Semei.

8 The sons of Leedan: the chief, Jahiel, and Zethan, and Joel, three.

9 The sons of Semei: Salomith, and Hosiel, and Aran, three: these were the heads of the families of Leedan.

10 And the sons of Semei were, Leheth, and Ziza, and Jaus, and Baria: these were the sons of Semei, four.

11 And Leheth was the first, Ziza the second: but Jaus and Baria had not many children, and therefore they were counted in one family, and in one house.

12 The sons of Caath were, Amram, and Isaar, Hebron, and Oziel, four.

13 ^b The sons of Amram: Aaron, and Moses. * And Aaron was separated to minister in the holy of holies, he and his sons, for ever, and to burn incense before the Lord, according to his ceremonies, and to bless his name for ever.

14 The sons also of Moses, the man of God, were numbered in the tribe of Levi.

15 The sons ^d of Moses were, Gersom, and Eliezer:

16 The sons of Gersom: Subuel, the first.

17 And the sons of Eliezer were, Rohobia, the first: and Eliezer had no more sons. But the sons of Rohobia were multiplied exceedingly.

18 The sons of Isaar: Salomith, the first.

19 The sons of Hebron: Jeriau, the first, Amarias, the second, Jahaziel, the third, Jecmaam, the fourth.

20 The sons of Oziel: Micha, the first, Jesia, the second.

21 The sons of Merari: Moholi, and Musi. The sons of Moholi: Eleazar, and Cis.

* Supra vi. 1.—^b Supra vi. 8.—^c Heb. v. 4.

and executioners," who attended the judges. Grotius.—These were functions from which the priests were exempted; (C.) so that the Levites alone are meant. M.

—Judges. They had to decide the causes of the people. 2 Par. xxix. D.

VER. 5. David. Lit. "he." Sept. "they." Prot. "which I made (said David) to praise therewith." H.

VER. 6. Into 24 courses, like the priests, that each class might serve twice a year for a whole week. C. xxiv. 31. T.—God had already made choice of the posterity of Levi; and David, with the princes, Sadoc, &c. disposed of them by lots, (C. xxiv. 6.) to serve in the tabernacle, and in the future temple. W.

VER. 7. Leedan, or Lebni. Num. iii. 18. M.

VER. 8. Chief, head of the rest; (H.) or all these three were chiefs, (Jun.) no less than the sons of Semei, v. 9.

VER. 9. Semei; perhaps (C.) sons of Joel. D.—The brother of Leedan had four sons, v. 10. M.

VER. 10. Ziza. Heb. has "Zina," but reads "Ziza," v. 11. C.

VER. 11. Children. All together were not more than the children of each of the preceding, so that they only formed one class. T.—It would have been too burdensome for them to have performed the same service with those who were far more numerous: (H.) therefore the sons of Semei were joined with the family of Leedan; (C.) or rather Jaus and Baria went together, as one family.—Counted. H. b. "in one class, according to their father's house." H.

VER. 13. Minister. Heb. "to sanctify the holy of holies."—His. Heb. "in his name," with solemnity. Num. vi. 23. The Levites might bless the name of the Lord.

VER. 14. Levi, but not among the priests, (C.) though their father was an extraordinary priest, appointed by God to anoint Aaron. Ps. xlviii. D.

VER. 15. Eliezer. His being uncircumcised, had almost proved fatal to his father. Ex. iv. 24. M.—First. He might have other brothers, (C.) though the title may be given to an only son, v. 17. Mat. 1. 25. Subuel was perhaps (H.) chief of a family, (C.) and was appointed over the treasury. C. xxvi. 24. M.

VER. 24. Old. See v. 3, and Num. iv. 3.—And upwards; as long as they 22 And Eleazar died, and had no sons, but daughters: and the sons of Cis, their brethren, took them.

23 The sons of Musi: Moholi, and Eder, and Jerimoth, three.

24 These are the sons of Levi, in their kindreds and families, princes by their courses, and the number of every head that did the works of the ministry of the house of the Lord, from twenty years old and upwards.

25 For David said: The Lord, the God of Israel, hath given rest to his people, and an habitation in Jerusalem, for ever.

26 And it shall not be the office of the Levites to carry any more the tabernacle, and all the vessels for the service thereof.

27 So according to the last precepts of David, the sons of Levi are to be numbered, from twenty years old and upwards.

28 And they are to be under the hand of the sons of Aaron, for the service of the house of the Lord, in the porches, and in the chambers, and in the place of purification, and in the sanctuary, and in all the works of the ministry of the temple of the Lord.

29 And the priests have the charge of the loaves of proposition, and of the sacrifice of fine flour, and of the unleavened cakes, and of the frying-pan, and of the roasting, and of every weight and measure.

30 And the Levites are to stand in the morning, to give thanks, and to sing praises to the Lord: and in like manner in the evening.

31 As well in the oblation of the holocausts of the Lord, as in the sabbaths and in the new moons, and the rest of the solemnities, according to the number and ceremonies prescribed for every thing, continually, before the Lord.

32 And let them keep the observances of the tabernacle of the covenant, and the ceremonies of the sanctuary, and the charge of the sons of Aaron, their brethren, that they may minister in the house of the Lord.

^d Exod. ii. 22. and xviii. 3. and 4.

were able to serve. They were excused from carrying the tabernacle, &c. at fifty years of age. Num. viii. 25. Abulens. M.—To those who were turned of thirty, the higher offices were entrusted; while the Levites began at twenty, to exercise themselves in things of less consequence, under the direction of their elder brethren. T.—The kings might declare, by the advice of the Sanhedrim, what laws were of a temporary nature. Grot. D.

VER. 25. Ever. They will not have to carry the sacred vessels about, as formerly. H.—In order that they may not be idle, we must therefore provide them some other employment, v. 28, &c. T.

VER. 28. Place. Heb. "purifying all that is holy;" (H.) keeping clean all that is used about the sacred ministry. C.

VER. 29. And the priests, &c. This is not found in Heb. or Sept. The Levites might prepare these things; though the priests alone were to offer them in sacrifice. T. C. ix. 32. Lev. xxiv. 8.—Others think that (C.) the priests received flour from the people, and baked it. M.—But S. Jerom follows the tradition of the Jews, intimating that the priests sowed the corn, and did every thing about the loaves of proposition. In Mal. i. 6.—Flour. Lev. ii. 1.—Oakes. Ex. xxix. 2.—Roasting the first-fruits. Lev. ii. 14. M.—Measure. A standard was kept in the temple, (Ex. xxx. 13. C.) to prevent any fraud. The Ediles at Rome performed the same office. T.—There were not two measures in the country, as that would have caused confusion. D.

VER. 30. And the Levites. This also is omitted in Heb. "and to stand," &c. as all the preceding offices pertained to the Levites, (H.) and priests were bound equally with them to praise the Lord.

VER. 31. Lord. Music accompanied this service twice a day, as it did the sacrifices which were offered for the prince, or for the nation. Num. x. 10. C.—Rest. Heb. "the set festivals, by number, according to the order prescribed unto them continually," &c. H.

VER. 32. Brethren. Let them follow the directions of the high priests, who are of the same tribe. M.

CHAP. XXIV.

The divisions of the priests into four and twenty courses, to serve in the temple : the chiefs of the Levites.

NOW these were the divisions of the sons of Aaron. The sons of Aaron: Nadab, and Abiu, and Eleazar, and Ithamar.

2 *But Nadab and Abiu died before their father, and had no children: so Eleazar and Ithamar did the office of the priesthood.

3 And David distributed them, that is, Sadoc, of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech, of the sons of Ithamar, according to their courses and ministry.

4 And there were found many more of the sons of Eleazar among the principal men, than of the sons of Ithamar. And he divided them so, that there were of the sons of Eleazar, sixteen chief men, by their families: and of the sons of Ithamar, eight, by their families and houses.

5 And he divided both the families, one with the other, by lot: for there were princes of the sanctuary, and princes of God, both of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar.

6 And Semeias, the son of Nathanael, the scribe, a Levite, wrote them down before the king and the princes, and Sadoc, the priest, and Ahimelech, the son of Abiathar, and the princes also, of the priestly and Levitical families: one house, which was over the rest, of Eleazar: and another house, which had the rest under it, of Ithamar.

7 Now the first lot came forth to Joiarib, the second to Jedei,

8 The third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim,

9 The fifth to Melchia, the sixth to Maiman,

10 The seventh to Accos, the eighth to Abia,

11 The ninth to Jesua, the tenth to Sechenia,

12 The eleventh to Eliasib, the twelfth to Jacim,

13 The thirteenth to Hoppha, the fourteenth to Isbaab,

14 The fifteenth to Belga, the sixteenth to Emmer,

15 The seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Aphses,

* Lev. x. 2. Num. iii. 4.

CHAP. XXIV. VER. 2. Before. Heb. "in the presence of." See Lev. x. 2. —Priesthood, under Aaron. Eleazar succeeded him, and the posterity of Ithamar obtained the dignity under Heli.

VER. 3. Ahimelech is styled also Achimelech and Abiathar, v. 6. 21. and C. xviii. 16. C.—Courses, twenty-four, which were to serve by lot, that no one might complain, as they were equally princes, v. 5. Hence S. Dionisius styles Zachary "prince of the priests." But the pontiff was over all. T.

VER. 4. Houses. The descendants of Eleazar were far more numerous.

VER. 5. Of God, great. Elohim also signifies "judges," and we might translate, "princes of the judges." Grot. D.—These men occupied the first dignities of the priesthood, and of the judicature, or they were princes in all sacred affairs. C.—They were to offer sacrifice, and to enjoy spiritual jurisdiction, in the house of God. W.—As their claims were therefore equal, the decision was left to lots. M.—It would have been otherwise difficult for all to be satisfied. See Jos. vii. 14. C.

VER. 6. Ithamar. All was done with the utmost order, and the priests took care to observe the regulation, till the end of the republic. Joseph. vii. 2. and con. Ap. i. and ii. Lu. i. 5.—The family of Eleazar had many prerogatives over the rest, as it was longer in possession of the high priesthood, and more numerous; but that of Ithamar, gave pontiffs to the nation at the time of this regulation. The Heb. is very obscure, and is deemed incorrect. Cap. Grot. C.—Prot. "one principal household being taken for Eleazar, and one taken for Ithamar."—The insertion of "one," which is in the Sept. removes the difficulty. H.—The two families were enregistered alternately, (M.) till the eight families of Ithamar were done. H.

VER. 10. Abia, the progenitor of S. John Baptist. Lu. i. 5. Yet whether his father was "chief of the priests" of his course, as S. Dion. asserts, or whether he sprung from Eleazar, or from Ithamar, is uncertain. T.

VER. 19. Aaron, and his successors. The former might have given some directions, which tradition had preserved. C.

VER. 20. Subael, grandson of Moses. C. xxiii. 16.

VER. 21. Rohobia was in the same degree, by Eliezer. M.

16 The nineteenth to Pheteia, the twentieth to Hezechiel,

17 The one and twentieth to Jachin, the two and twentieth to Gamul,

18 The three and twentieth to Dalaiau, the four and twentieth to Maaziau.

19 These are their courses, according to their ministries, to come into the house of the Lord, and according to their manner, under the hand of Aaron, their father: as the Lord, the God of Israel, had commanded.

20 Now, of the rest of the sons of Levi, there was of the sons of Amram, Subael: and of the sons of Subael, Jehedeia.

21 Also of the sons of Rohobia, the chief, Jesias.

22 And the son of Isaar, Salemoth; and the son of Salemoth, Jahath:

23 And his son, Jeriau, the first, Amarias, the second, Jahaziel, the third, Jecmaan, the fourth.

24 The son of Oziel, Micha: the son of Micha, Samir.

25 The brother of Micha, Jesia: and the son of Jesia, Zacharias.

26 The sons of Merari: Moholi and Musi: the son of Oziau: Benno.

27 The son also of Merari: Oziau, and Soam, and Zacchur, and Hebri.

28 And the son of Moholi: Eleazar, who had no sons.

29 And the son of Cis, Jeramael.

30 The sons of Musi: Moholi, Eder, and Jerimoth. These are the sons of Levi, according to the houses of their families.

31 And they also cast lots over-against their brethren, the sons of Aaron, before David, the king, and Sadoc, and Ahimelech, and the princes of the priestly and Levitical families, both the elder and the younger. The lot divided all equally.

CHAP. XXV.

The number and divisions of the musicians.

MOREOVER David, and the chief officers of the army, separated for the ministry the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Idithun: to prophesy with harps,

VER. 23. And his. Prot. "the sons of Hebron, Jeriah, the first." The words underlined, shew what omissions are in the text, (H.) which is probably corrupted, as well as the Sept. Jeria and Amarias were sons of Hebron. C. xxiii. 19. and xxvi. 31. Jahath may, therefore, be the same with Hebron. C.

VER. 26. The son. Heb. "the son of Jehasia, or of Oziau. . ." But the name of this son is lost. It is wonderful that the posterity of Gersom are passed over. C.—Prot. "the sons of Jaaziah; Beno.—27. The sons of Merari, by Jaaziah; Beno, and Shoam." H.—Sept. vary, and the original text is supposed to be changed by some transcriber, (Capel. &c.) as we read only of Moholi and Musi, v. 26, and C. xxiii. 21.

VER. 31. Over-against, in imitation of the priests, (C.) being likewise divided into twenty-four classes. T.—Both, &c. Heb. "the principal fathers over-against their younger brethren." All the rest is omitted. Lots decided the place and functions both of father and children. H.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 1. Army; the chief magistrates of the state and of the church. T. C. xxiv. 6. 31.—The priests, &c. were all divided into twenty-four classes, each having twelve masters to preside, v. 7. C.—Idithun, or Ethan. C. vi. 44. and xv. 19. W. 3 K. iv. 31.—The twenty-four sons of these three, who were chief musicians under David and Solomon, presided over the bands: eleven other inferior masters helped to instruct the rest, v. 9.—Prophecy, or play on instruments.—Harps. "Kinnor" means also the "guitar." C.—Vulg. has, lyras. C. xv. 16.—Psalteries. Heb. "nebalim." M.—The Jews pretend that the singers were inspired commonly, when they sounded forth God's praises in the temple, as Elieus was, 4 K. iii. 15. Lyran. E.—But they may be said to prophesy, because they sung the compositions of the prophets. W.—According. Heb. "and the number of the workmen, (or experienced musicians) according to their service, was." H.—The chiefs of the twenty-four bands were carefully selected.

VER. 2. King, who sat in a separate tribune. Asaph presided in the royal city, at court, and in the tabernacle, while some of the singers were fixed at Gabaon. C. xvi. 7. 37. and 41. C.—Heb. may signify, "at the king's command." Pagnin.—He sometimes condescended to direct the singers, v. 6. H.

and with psalteries, and with cymbals, according to their number, serving in their appointed office.

2 Of the sons of Asaph: Zachur, and Joseph, and Nathania, and Asarela, sons of Asaph: under the hand of Asaph, prophesying near the king.

3 And of Idithun: the sons of Idithun, Godolias, Sori, Jeseias, and Hasabias, and Mathathias, six, under the hand of their father, Idithun, who prophesied with a harp to give thanks, and to praise the Lord.

4 Of Heman also: the sons of Heman, Bocciau, Mathanian, Oziel, Subuel, and Jerimoth, Hananias, Hanani, Eliatha, Geddelthi, and Romemthiezer, and Jesbacassa, Mollothi, Othir, Mahazioth:

5 All these were the sons of Heman, the seer of the king, in the words of God, to lift up the horn: and God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these, under their father's hand, were distributed to sing in the temple of the Lord, with cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, for the service of the house of the Lord, near the king: to wit, Asaph, and Idithun, and Heman.

7 And the number of them, with their brethren, that taught the song of the Lord, all the teachers, were two hundred and eighty-eight.

8 And they cast lots by their courses, the elder equally with the younger, the learned and the unlearned together.

9 And the first lot came forth to Joseph, who was of Asaph. The second to Godolias, to him and his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

10 The third to Zachur, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

11 The fourth to Isari, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

12 The fifth to Nathania, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

13 The sixth to Bocciau, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

14 The seventh to Isreela, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

15 The eighth to Jesaia, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

16 The ninth to Mathanias, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

17 The tenth to Semeias, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

VER. 3. Of Idithun; or, altering the punctuation, (D.) "Now the sons of Idithun were Idithun, the first-born, Godolias (H.) Sori, or Isari, v. 11. Thus, the number six, will be complete; otherwise we must acknowledge that Idithun, the father, is counted with his children; or that a name is lost, perhaps that of Semeias, (v. 17. C.) as Sept. Alex. has Semei before Hasabias. H.—Harp, (kinnor). This was the distinctive instrument of this band, as the horn was of Heman's. C.

VER. 5. Seer; a title usually given to the real prophets, who foresee future things. M.—Gad has this title. 2 Par. xxiv. 11. But Heman's office was to proclaim the words of God, with the sound of the horn. This musician had formerly been fixed at Gabaon. C. xvi. 41. C.—To lift up the horn, or to sing those psalms, which regarded the kingdom of David, and of Christ, as others were composed for the instruction of the people. T.—Daughters. These are specified, only because they joined with their brethren, in singing in the temple. Abul. q. 14. M.—At least, we find that there were bands of young women, in the solemn procession. H. C. xv. 20. Ps. lxxvii. 26. C.

VER. 6. Near. Heb. "under the hand of the king," who presided over a band of musicians, as well as Asaph; (C.) or he directed all, particularly giving his instructions to Asaph, &c.—To wit is not in Heb. "by the order of the king to Asaph." H.

VER. 7. Eight, comprising the twenty-four princes, and the eleven secondary masters of each of the bands, or twelve times twenty-four, v. 1.

18 The eleventh to Azareel, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

19 The twelfth to Hasabi, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

20 The thirteenth to Subael, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

21 The fourteenth to Mathathias, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

22 The fifteenth to Jerimoth, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

23 The sixteenth to Hananias, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

24 The seventeenth to Jesbacassa, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

25 The eighteenth to Hanani, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

26 The nineteenth to Mellothi, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

27 The twentieth to Eliatha, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

28 The one and twentieth to Othir, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

29 The two and twentieth to Geddelthi, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

30 The three and twentieth to Mahazioth, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

31 The four and twentieth to Romemthiezer, to his sons, and his brethren, twelve.

CHAP. XXVI.

The divisions of the porters. Offices of other Levites.

AND the divisions of the porters: of the Coreites, Meselemia, the son of Core, of the sons of Asaph.

2 The sons of Meselemia: Zacharias, the first-born, Jadihel, the second, Zabadias, the third, Jathanael, the fourth.

3 Elam, the fifth, Johanan, the sixth, Elioenai, the seventh.

4 And the sons of Obededom, Semeias, the first-born, Jozabad, the second, Joaha, the third, Sachar, the fourth, Nathanael, the fifth.

5 Ammiel, the sixth, Issachar, the seventh, Phollathi, the eighth: for the Lord had blessed him.

6 And to Semei, his son, were born sons, heads of their families: for they were men of great valour.

7 The sons then of Semeias were, Othni, and Ra-

VER. 8. Unlearned. Heb. and Sept. "the scholars." H.—After the singers had been distributed into twenty-four classes, pretty equal in number, lots decided which of them should serve first, (M.) as had been done with the priests. C. xxiv. 31. See C. xxvi. 13.

VER. 9. Asaph. Add, "to him, and (H.) to his sons, and his brethren, twelve," who taught the rest. Unless these twelve be admitted, (T.) as in the sequel, (H.) the number 288 will not be found, v. 7. T.—Sept. is very confused: "And the first (entire) lot of his sons and brethren came out to Asaph, of Joseph, Godolias: the second Enia, his brethren, and his sons, twelve." Heb. "the first lot came forth for Asaph to Joseph; the second to," &c. Prot. In all the subsequent verses they read, "he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve." Why Asaph should be mentioned any more than Idithun or Heman, does not appear. Their children are placed indiscriminately by lot. H.

VER. 14. Isreela; probably Oziel, v. 4. C.

CHAP. XXVI. VER. 1. Porters, who guarded the temple, being stationed at the four gates. They were selected from the families of Core and Merari, (v. 19.) and were under (C.) five captains, two being placed at the gate leading from the palace, v. 16. H.—How many were appointed to follow the directions of these officers, we do not find. But 4,000 porters are mentioned, C. xxii. 5. Some guarded the treasury, &c. After the captivity, the same plan was adopted. O. ix. C.—Son, or descendant of Core, by Asaph, (H.) or Abiasaph, (C. vi. 37.) different from the musician. C.

phael, and Obed, Elizabad, and his brethren, most valiant men: and Eliu, and Samachias

8 All these of the sons of Obededom: they, and their sons, and their brethren, most able men for service, sixty-two of Obededom.

9 And the sons of Meselemia, and their brethren, strong men, were eighteen.

10 And of Hosa, that is, of the sons of Merari: Semri, the chief, (for he had not a first-born, and therefore his father made him chief,)

11 Helcias, the second, Tabelias, the third, Zacharias, the fourth: all these the sons, and the brethren, of Hosa, were thirteen.

12 Among these were the divisions of the porters, so that the chiefs of the wards, as well as their brethren, always ministered in the house of the Lord.

13 And they cast lots equally, both little and great, by their families, for every one of the gates.

14 And the lot of the east fell to Selemias. But to his son, Zacharias, a very wise and learned man, the north gate fell by lot.

15 And to Obededom, and his sons, that towards the south: in which part of the house was the council of the ancients.

16 To Sephim, and Hosa, towards the west, by the gate which leadeth to the way of the ascent: ward against ward.

17 Now towards the east were six Levites: and towards the north four a day: and towards the south, likewise, four a day: and where the council was, two and two.

18 In the cells also of the porters, toward the west, four in the way: and two at every cell.

VER. 5. Him. Obededom, by giving him a more numerous posterity, than any here mentioned, v. 8. See 2 K. vi. 11. C. T.

VER. 6. Semri, who is called Semeias, v. 4. and 7. The last syllable is not lost in Heb. or Sept. H.—Vakour. Their post was of a military nature, and required strength. Josephus says, some of the gates could hardly be shut by twenty men.

VER. 10. He had not a first-born. That is, his first-born was either dead or not fit to be chief, and therefore he made Semri the chief, (W. Ch.) who was the second son (T.) of Hosa. Heb. "for, or though he was not the first-born, yet his father made him chief." Sept. add, "of the second division," but without reason, as they interpret, "keeping the command," instead of Semri, the chief, which leaves us without a proper name. H.

VER. 12. Lord. The companies succeeded each other every sabbath, but the chiefs were not changed. C.—The office of these men was most noble. From them were selected treasurers, overseers, prefects, &c. v. 16-22. T.—The lot decided only between the heads of families. D.

VER. 14. Selemias: the first syllable is frequently neglected in Heb. C. iv. 24. T.—Zacharias was the first-born of Meselemia, v. 2. H.—A very. Heb. "a wise counsellor." C.

VER. 15. And. Prot. "To Obededom southward, and to his sons, the house of Asuphim." H.—This term may denote the "revenue," where the offerings, destined for the support of the priests, were collected. Ex. xxxiv. 22. We find the same word used for the offerings received at the door of the temple. 2 Esd. xii. 15. It may also mean the house "of the assemblies," (C.) where the 72 judges of the Sanhedrim met. Villalp. T.

VER. 16. Which. Heb. Shalecheth, (C.) or asoloth, (H.) "which leads or casts out" the filth from the temple. Villalp. Isai. vi. 13. M.—But there were conduits for that purpose; and the meaning of the Vulg. is more accurate. C.—The palace lay below the tabernacle and the temple, (T.) on the west. Joseph. xv. 14. C.—Ward. The centinels were opposite to each other, (M.) or at equal distances. All were replaced at the same time. C.—Two captains were stationed on this road, for greater respect to the king, (H.) and because the concourse and dangers were increased, v. 18. T.

VER. 17. Six. This gate was the most frequented, (C.) and the king entered by it.—Council. Heb. asupim, as v. 15, "for the offerings two and two," (H.) distinct from the porters.

VER. 18. Cell. Heb. is not clearer: "at the chamber" (C. 'at the house of the instruments' for sacrifice. (M.) at Parbar. Prot.) of the west, at the ascent, we call each chamber." C.—Prot. "at the causeway, and two at Parbar." This term is not in Heb. It resembles Parvar, or Pharurim, (4 K. xxiii. 11.) which is said to signify "suburbs," in Chal. But it cannot have this meaning here: and these terms are probably borrowed from the Greek, πορτα, a military "post;" so that we might translate "There were at the western post, four guards for the 19 These are the divisions of the porters, of the sons of Core, and of Merari.

20 Now Achias was over the treasures of the house of God, and the holy vessels.

21 The sons of Ledan, the sons of Gersonni: of Ledan were heads of the families, of Ledan, and Gersonni, Jehieli.

22 The sons of Jehieli: Zathan, and Joel, his brethren, over the treasures of the house of the Lord.

23 With the Amramites, and Isaarites, and Hebronites, and Ozielites.

24 And Subael, the son of Gersom, the son of Moses, was chief over the treasures.

25 His brethren also, Eliezer, whose son, Rahabias, and his son, Isaia, and his son, Joram, and his son, Zechri, and his son, Selemith.

26 Which Selemith, and his brethren, were over the treasures of the holy things, which king David, and the heads of families, and the captains over thousands, and over hundreds, and the captains of the host, had dedicated,

27 Out of the wars, and the spoils won in battles, which they had consecrated to the building and furniture of the temple of the Lord.

28 And all these things that Samuel, the seer, and Saul, the son of Cis, and Abner, the son of Ner, and Joab, the son of Sarvia, had sanctified: and whosoever had sanctified those things, they were under the hand of Selemith, and his brethren.

29 But Chonenias, and his sons, were over the Isaarites, for the business abroad over Israel, to teach them and judge them.

30 And of the Hebronites, Hasabias, and his brethren, ascent, two at each post:" one perhaps was near the temple, (C.) the other at the palace gates. 4 K. xi. 6. Sept. is more diffuse, but throws no light upon this passage. H.

VER. 20. Now. Heb. and Sept. add, "the Levites:" the latter translate Achias, "their brethren." H.—Vessels. Or vessels of the holy places, or of things holy. Vasa sanctorum. Ch.—Sept. "of the consecrated treasures." C. xxviii. 12. H.

VER. 21. Ledan is called Leedan, (C. xxiii. 8.) son of Gerson. His first-born was Jehiel. This person is here styled Jehieli, and was chief of the Gersonites; at least of the eldest branch.

VER. 22. Brethren. Heb. and Sept. "brother." In effect, we find that Joel was the son of Leedan. C. xxiii.—Zathan, whose name ends in m both in Heb. and Sept. may perhaps be his grandson. We often find sons in Heb. when only one is specified. Jehieli might adopt his two brothers; so that none of his own children are mentioned. H.—We may also translate: "(21) These are the sons of Ledan, the Gersonite. Out of Ledan, the Gersonite, came chiefs of families; Jehiel, (22) the sons of Jehiel, Zathan and Joel, his (Jehiel's) brethren, were over," &c. It appears that Jehiel was treasurer. C. xxix. 8.

VER. 23. Ozielites. These are all the sons of Canth. C. vi. 18.

VER. 24. Moses. Many are passed over; (C.) or Subael acted by his children. M.

VER. 26. Selemith was to guard the treasure, taken in war. C.—Dedicated. Lit. "sanctified," by designating for holy uses. W.

VER. 27. Wara. Heb. "out of the spoils won in battles, which they had set apart as sacred, to support the house," &c. Sept. "that the building of the house of the Lord might not be retarded." H.—Yet these spoils remained untouched by Solomon, who imitated this piety, as others did. 3 K. xiv. 28. The Romans adored Jupiter Prædator, as he was styled, because part of the plunder was allotted to him. Serv. in Æn. iii.

*Irruinus ferro et Divos ipsamque vocamus
In prædam partemque Jovem.*

People vied with each other in the munificence of their presents. Cæsar, Bel. Gall. vi. C.

VER. 28. Samuel, while he was at the head of affairs. M.—Joab. Though these three were not very religious, they concurred in promoting the splendour of the public worship, as that would at least procure them applause. H.

VER. 29. Them. Heb. "for officers (shoterim, "scribes," (H.) whose power was very great. C.) and judges." The former are often placed first, as more honourable, so that they were not mere heralds or executioners. The administration of justice was chiefly in the hands of the Levitical tribe. C. xxiii. 4. The sons of Hebron resided on the east, while those of Issa and Oziel probably acted as judges on the western side of the Jordan, v. 30. C.—They were not confined to the temple, but taught the people the law of Moses in the cities abroad. M.

ren, most able men, a thousand seven hundred had the charge over Israel beyond the Jordan, westward, in all the works of the Lord, and for the service of the king.

31 And the chief of the Hebronites was Jeria, according to their families and kindreds. In the fortieth year of the reign of David, they were numbered, and they were found most valiant men in Jazer Galaad, 32 And his brethren of stronger age, two thousand seven hundred, chiefs of families. And king David made them rulers over the Rubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasses, for all the service of God, and the king.

CHAP. XXVII.

The twelve captains for every month: the twelve princes of the tribes. David's several officers.

NOW the children of Israel, according to their number, the heads of families, captains of thousands and of hundreds, and of officers, that served the king according to their companies, who came in and went out every month in the year, under every chief, were four and twenty thousand.

2 Over the first company, the first month, Jesboam, the son of Zabdiel, was chief, and under him were four and twenty thousand.

3 Of the sons of Phares, the chief of all the captains in the host, in the first month.

4 The company of the second month was under Dudia, an Ahohite, and after him was another named Macelloth, who commanded a part of the army of four and twenty thousand.

5 And the captain of the third company, for the third month, was Banaias, the son of Joiada, the priest: and in his division were four and twenty thousand.

6 This is that Banaias, the most valiant among the thirty, and above the thirty. And Amizabad, his son, commanded his company.

7 The fourth, for the fourth month, was Asahel, the brother of Joab, and Zabadias, his son, after him: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

8 The fifth captain, for the fifth month, was Samaoth, a Jezerite: and his company were four and twenty thousand.

VER. 30. Beyond. Heb. meheber means, "at the passage, or on either side." Prot. "on this side Jordan, westward." This would seem to designate the countries nearer Jerusalem. H.—But westward may also be understood with reference to Ruben, &c. so as to mean the parts along the river.—King. To decide both ecclesiastical and civil causes. C.—They also inspected the preparations for the temple, and gathered the king's tribute. Grotius.

VER. 31. Jazer, a city of Gad, in Galaad. Adrie. M.
CHAP. XXVII. VER. 1. Now. This list is entirely of a political nature. It seems to have been made before David had obtained the throne of Israel, (v. 7.) though perhaps the monthly division did not comprise 24,000, before that time. This regulation was very excellent, and enabled the king to have an army of 360,000 men, at a short notice. It was not attended with any material inconvenience to the people, as none were on service above a month.—Heads. Commanders in chief.—Captains. Twenty-four in number, with 240 centurions under them.—Officers. Heb. shoterim. Sept. "scribes," whose employment is not well ascertained. They perhaps acted as commissaries, or kept an account of the king's troops, and reviewed them. C.—Sept. "and scribes serving the people, and the king's orders respecting the divisions, both coming in and going out, monthly, throughout the year. One division comprised 24,000 men.

VER. 2. Jesboam. Heb. "Jashobham," as C. xi. 11. He was the first after Joab, (H.) and a descendant of Pharez, like David, and waiting upon the king in the month of Nisan, which almost agrees with our March (M.) and April. H.—Zabdiel, the Haehmonite, may therefore denote his country; (Kennicott) or Zabdiel might be his ancestor, though the same man has frequently different names. We find several companions of this general in the sequel.

VER. 4. Dudia, or Dodi, the father of Eleazar. C. xi. 12. C.—After him, his substitute. T.—Heb. "and Macelloth, chief also of his course, consisting likewise of 24,000." H.

VER. 5. Priest. This we read no where else, so that some understand, "a 9 The sixth, for the sixth month, was Hira, the son of Acces a Thecuite: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

10 The seventh, for the seventh month, was Helles, a Phallonite, of the sons of Ephraim: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

11 The eighth, for the eighth month, was Sobochai, a Husathite, of the race of Zarahi: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

12 The ninth, for the ninth month, was Abiezer, an Anathothite, of the sons of Jemini, and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

13 The tenth, for the tenth month, was Marai, who was a Netophathite, of the race of Zarai: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

14 The eleventh, for the eleventh month, was Banaias, a Pharathonite, of the sons of Ephraim: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

15 The twelfth, for the twelfth month, was Holdai, a Netophathite, of the race of Gothoniel: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

16 Now the chiefs over the tribes of Israel were these: over the Rubenites, Eliezer, the son of Zechri, was ruler: over the Simeonites, Saphatias, the son of Maacha:

17 Over the Levites, Hasabias, the son of Camuel: over the Aaronites, Sadoc:

18 Over Juda, Eliu, the brother of David: over Issachar, Amri, the son of Michael:

19 Over the Zabulonites, Jesmaias, the son of Adias: over the Nephthalites, Jerimoth, the son of Ozriel:

20 Over the sons of Ephraim: Osee, the son of Ozai: over the half tribe of Manasses, Joel, the son of Phadaia:

21 And over the half tribe of Manasses in Galaad, Jaddo, the son of Zacharias: and over Benjamin, Jasiel, the son of Abner.

22 And over Dan, Ezrihel, the son of Jeroham: these were the princes of the children of Israel.

23 But David would not number them from twenty years old and under: because the Lord had said that he would multiply Israel like the stars of heaven.

chief officer at court," 2 K. viii. 18. C.—But he might be (H.) of the tribe of Levi. M.—His exploits are mentioned. C. xi. 21.

VER. 6. Company, in his absence, (H.) as lieutenant. Salien.

VER. 7. After him. He acted under his father, and succeeded (M.) to Asahel's post, after Abner had slain him. 2 K. ii. 23. and xxiii. 24. C.

VER. 8. Samaoth. Perhaps Samma, or Sammoth of Arodi, or Arari; places with which we are not acquainted, unless they denote some of his progenitors. Jazer is well known. C.—C. xxvi. 34.

VER. 9. Hira. Mentioned as one of David's brave men. C. xi. 28.

VER. 10. Phallonite, or of Phalti. 2 K. xxiii. 26.

VER. 11. Zarahi, or of Zara, the son of Thamar. C. xi. 29. Sobochai slew the giant Saph, 2 K. xxi. 17.

VER. 12. Jemini, or Benjamin. C.—The first syllable is neglected. M.

VER. 13. Marai, or Marahai, sprung from Zara. C.

VER. 14. Ephraim. Pharathon was in this tribe. M.

VER. 15. Holdai, called Heled, the son of Baana. C. xi. 30. and 2 K. xxiii. 29.—Gothoniel. So the Sept. write Othoniel, (H.) so famous in the book of Judges, i. 18. and iii. 9.

VER. 16. Chiefs, by their birth-right. The former were chosen for merit. T.—The tribes of Aser and of Gad are omitted, either because the list was not in the hands of the author, or it was overlooked by transcribers. C.—Rubenites, with whom Em. Sa joins the Gadites. M.

VER. 18. Eliu. Probably the same with Eliab, the eldest son of Isai, (1 K. xvi. 7. C.) or the youngest but David, (C. ii. 15.) whose name is preserved by the Syriac, &c.

VER. 23. Heaven. It would have seemed, therefore, as if David distrusted the divine promise, (H.) and attempted what was impossible (Grot.) or useless. C.—He had before offended, and hence would now only number those who were wanted. W.

24 *Joab, the son of Sarvia, began to number, but he finished not: because upon this there fell wrath upon Israel: and therefore the number of them that were numbered, was not registered in the chronicles of king David.

25 And over the king's treasures was Azmoth, the son of Adiel: and over those stores, which were in the cities, and in the villages, and in the castles, was Jonathan, the son of Ozias.

26 And over the tillage, and the husbandmen, who tilled the ground, was Ezri, the son of Chelub:

27 And over the dressers of the vineyards, was Se-meias, a Romathite: and over the wine-cellars, Zabdias, an Aphonite.

28 And over the olive-yards, and the fig-groves, which were in the plains, was Balanam, a Gederite: and over the oil-cellars, Joas:

29 And over the herds that fed in Saron, was Setrai, a Saronite: and over the oxen in the valleys, Saphat, the son of Adli:

30 And over the camels, Ubil, an Ismahelite: and over the asses, Jadius, a Meronathite:

31 And over the sheep, Jaziz, an Agarene. All these were the rulers of the substance of king David.

32 And Jonathan, David's uncle, a counsellor, a wise and learned man: he and Jahiel, the son of Hachamoni, were with the king's sons.

33 And Achitophel was the king's counsellor, and Chusai, the Arachite, the king's friend.

34 And after Achitophel was Joiada, the son of Banaias, and Abiathar. And the general of the king's army was Joab.

CHAP. XXVIII.

David's speech, in a solemn assembly: his exhortation to Solomon. He giveth him a pattern of the temple.

AND *David assembled all the chief men of Israel, the princes of the tribes, and the captains of the companies, who waited on the king: and the captains

* Supra xxi. 2. A. M. 2987, A. C. 1017.—† A. M. 2989, A. C. 1015.

VER. 24. Number, those above 20; but he acted with reluctance, (T.) and the wrath of heaven prevented the entire completion of the king's order. C. xxi. 6. and 2 K. xxiv. 9.—David. It would hence appear that the list was perfected, but not delivered to the king. The commissioners retained some of the lists; and, perhaps, from these, Esdras has inserted what relates to Benjamin, (C. vii. 6.) as the account was not given in C. xxi. 6. C.—This list may, however, have been made at another time; as we are informed that Benjamin and Levi were not numbered. H.—The Book of Kings, where we find it, is therefore a different work. D.

VER. 25. Treasures of gold, &c. as those of provisions had other officers. C.—Were in. Heb. and Sept. add, "the fields, in the cities," &c. H.—This must be understood of corn; wine is mentioned afterwards. Nothing could give us a higher opinion of David's wisdom than these details.

VER. 26. Ground, for the king. This was done at the expence of the nation, and by the people, no less than the vintage. 2 K. viii. 12. The companions of Daniel were thus appointed to superintend the workmen of Nabuchodonosor. Dan. ii. 49. Xenophon (Cyrop. viii.) styles such, εργων επιτορας, "men set over the works." H.

VER. 27. Cellars. Heb. "over the increase of the vineyards, for the wine cellars." Prot. Wine was formerly kept in cisterns, in the vineyards, till it was taken into large earthen vessels, and placed in cellars.

VER. 29. Saron, a fertile region at the foot of the mountains of Galaad; also a vale near the Mediterranean, (C.) in Ephraim, extending as far as Joppe. Adria. M.

VER. 30. Ismahelite. People of that nation deal much in camels. C.—Ubil had embraced the Jewish religion, or perhaps he was originally an Israelite, but had acquired the title of Ismahelite by some exploit, or by residing long in the country. M.

VER. 32. Man. Heb. "a writer." He was a good politician and lawyer. Grot.—Sons, as tutors. D. C.—Jahiel was perhaps brother of Jesbaam. C. xi. 11. M.

VER. 33. Friend. Chusai rendered the most signal service to the king, 2 K. xvi. 23. and xvii. 1. C. over thousands, and over hundreds, and them who had the charge over the substance and possessions of the king, and his sons, with the officers of the court, and the men of power, and all the bravest of the army at Jerusalem.

2 And the king rising up, and standing, said: Hear me, my brethren, and my people: I had a thought to have built a house, in which the ark of the Lord, and the footstool of our God, might rest: and I prepared all things for the building.

3 And God said to me: *Thou shalt not build a house to my name: because thou art a man of war, and hast shed blood.

4 But the Lord God of Israel chose me of all the house of my father, to be king over Israel, for ever: for of Juda, he chose the princes: and of the house of Juda, my father's house: and among the sons of my father, it pleased him to choose me king over all Israel.

5 *And among my sons (for the Lord hath given me many sons) he hath chosen Solomon, my son, to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord, over Israel.

6 And he said to me: Solomon, thy son, shall build my house, and my courts: for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be a father to him.

7 And I will establish his kingdom for ever, if he continue to keep my commandments, and my judgments, as at this day.

8 Now then, before all the assembly of Israel, in the hearing of our God, keep ye, and seek all the commandments of the Lord, our God: that you may possess the good land, and may leave it to your children after you, for ever.

9 And thou, my son, Solomon, know the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart, and a willing mind: *for the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the thoughts of minds. If thou seek him, thou shalt find him: but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever.

* 2 Kings vii. 13.—† Supra ix. 7.—‡ Psal. vii. 20.

VER. 34. After, inferior, (Salien) as Achitophel's advice was esteemed like an oracle, (C.) or Joiada, a chief priest, and Abiathar, the pontiff, succeeded to his place, after he had hung himself. T. D.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. 1. Israel. These are more particularly described as princes of the tribes, (H.) twelve captains, &c. C. xxvii. 1.—And his. Heb. "and of his sons." C.—We may also understand this of the preceptors of the royal family. C. xxvii. 32.—Officers. Lit. "eunuchs." H.—Bravest; particularly those specified C. xi.

VER. 2. Rising up from his bed, on which he lay, on account of his great age and weakness, while he addressed himself to his son; (3 K. i. 47. C.) or he rose from his throne, to honour this grand assembly. Heb. "stood upon his feet." H.—Thought. Heb. "I, with my heart, thought to," &c. C.—And, or which is the footstool. H.—The ark is often so called, because God was considered as sitting upon the wings of the cherubim, over it. Pa. xlviii. 1. &c.—Building. No doubt what David left would have been sufficient. Yet Solomon thought that he could make something still more magnificent.

VER. 3. Blood. See C. xxii. 8. C.

VER. 4. Ever; for a long time, and to leave the throne to my posterity for many ages, and to the Messias for ever. This expression is not always to be taken in its rigour. C.—Prince. Heb. "prince, or the ruler." H.—This tribe had long possessed the greatest power, (C.) and the promise of the sceptre. Gen. xlix. W.—The phrase often denotes a long time, but it is best understood of Christ. D.

VER. 5. My son, by the mouth of Nathan. 2 K. vii. 13. M.—Solomon was a figure of Christ, and his dignity was predicted. C. xvii. 11. 3 K. i. 13. C.

VER. 7. If. The promises of the Old Testament were frequently conditional, and we always find the condition marked in some place; but those made to the Church by Christ, have no such limitation. H.—Day. Solomon was once faithful, and afterwards fell; it is uncertain whether ever to rise again. Hence it appears that the true children of God may become wicked. W.

VER. 8. Seek. Wilful (H.) or supine ignorance will excuse no man. M.

VER. 9. Know, with affection (H.) and faith; and him alone must thou serve. D.—Forsake him, and die impenitent. H.

10 Now, therefore, seeing the Lord hath chosen thee to build the house of the sanctuary, take courage, and do it.

11 And David gave to Solomon, his son, a description of the porch, and of the temple, and of the treasures, and of the upper floor, and of the inner chambers, and of the house, for the mercy-seat,

12 As also of all the courts, which he had in his thought, and of the chambers round about, for the treasures of the house of the Lord, and for the treasures of the consecrated things,

13 And of the divisions of the priests, and of the Levites, for all the works of the house of the Lord, and for all the vessels of the service of the temple of the Lord.

14 Gold by weight for every vessel for the ministry. And silver by weight according to the diversity of the vessels and uses.

15 He gave also gold for the golden candlesticks, and their lamps, according to the dimensions of every candlestick, and the lamps thereof. In like manner also, he gave silver by weight for the silver candlesticks, and for their lamps, according to the diversity of the dimensions of them.

16 He gave also gold for the tables of proposition, according to the diversity of the tables: in like manner also silver for other tables of silver.

17 For flesh-hooks also, and bowls, and censers of fine gold, and for little lions of gold, according to the measure he gave by weight, for every lion. In like manner also, for lions of silver he set aside a different weight of silver.

18 And for the altar of incense, he gave the purest gold: and to make the likeness of the chariot of the Cherubim, spreading their wings, and covering the ark of the covenant of the Lord.

19 All these things, said he, came to me written by the hand of the Lord: that I might understand all the works of the pattern.

20 And David said to Solomon, his son: Act like a man, and take courage, and do: fear not, and be not dismayed: for the Lord, my God, will be with thee, and will not leave thee, nor forsake thee, till thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the Lord.

21 Behold the courses of the priests and the Levites, for every ministry of the house of the Lord, stand by thee, and are ready, and both the princes and the people know how to execute all thy commandments.

CHAP. XXIX.

David, by word and example, encourageth the princes to contribute liberally to the building of the temple. His thanksgiving, prayer, and sacrifices: his death.

AND king David said to all the assembly: Solomon, my son, whom alone God hath chosen, is as yet young and tender: and the work is great, for a house is prepared not for man, but for God.

2 And I, with all my ability, have prepared the expences for the house of my God. Gold for vessels of gold, and silver for vessels of silver, brass for things of brass, iron for things of iron, wood for things of wood; and onyx-stones, and stones like alabaster, and of divers colours, and all manner of precious stones, and marble of Paros in great abundance:

3 Now over and above the things which I have offered into the house of my God, I give of my own

* A. M. 2989, A. C. 1015.

VER. 11. Description, impressed by God on David's imagination; (Cajet.) or rather planned out by the hand of God, (v. 19. Salien) as the law was written. H.—The Jews pretend that this plan was delivered to Moses, and handed down by Josue, &c. to David. E.—But why might not David receive it immediately from heaven? C.—Treasures. Lit. "cellars." H.—The original term, Ganzac, is not Heb. We find Ganas (Est. iii. 9.) to signify a treasure, being derived from the Persian, Gaza. David gave, therefore, a description of the rooms to keep the treasures of the temple, or of the cellars for wine and oil. C.—Sept. "a pattern of the temple and of the houses thereof, and of the Zakeho, and of the upper rooms, and of the inner storehouses," &c. H.—Inner, or most retired closets, (3 K. xx. 30. C.) where the Levites slept. M.—Seat, where the ark was kept, and God was rendered propitious. H.

VER. 13. Divisions, into twenty-four classes, (M.) which was done by God's order. H.—For all, that every thing might be done with regularity. M.

VER. 14. Weight, or sufficient for each, v. 15. H.—Some think he only left a memorial of what quantity of gold and silver would be requisite. It does not appear that Solomon used silver for the vessels, as he chose to execute his father's injunctions with still greater magnificence.

VER. 15. Silver. David probably intended that five candlesticks should be made of this metal: but Solomon made all the ten of gold. 3 K. vii. 49. There was one in the tabernacle. Ex. xxv. 31. C.—But the temple was more spacious, and a greater number was not prohibited. M.—According. Heb. "for the use of every candlestick."

VER. 16. Silver. Yet all the ten were composed of the purest gold, (2 Par. iv. 12.) as silver was too common, ib. ix. 20. Moses had only two tables. C.—Diversity. Heb. "for each table." Vat.

VER. 17. Lions. S. Jerom seems to have read cephir, instead of the present cephor, which is rendered "a cup, or bowl." 1 Esd. i. 10. C.—Sept. Alex. "and of the flesh-hooks, libation vessels and bowls; and the weight of the golden and silver vessels (kephphour; a word which they do not translate) of each weight." H.—The change of i for u was very easy; and perhaps the basins were ornamented with representations of lions. D. M.—We do not find cephor used before, to denote any of the vessels of the tabernacle: but Esdras uses it, (C. viii. 27.) whence it is inferred that it is of Chal. extraction.

VER. 18. Purest. Heb. "refined."—Lord. He was represented as riding in a chariot, drawn by Cherubim, (C.) or sitting on their wings. H.—Two, particularly, filled up the space between the walls in the most holy place, and covered the ark, and also the Cherubim made by Moses, 3 K. vii. 23.

VER. 19. These things, said he, is not in Heb. Sept. "All in the handwriting of the Lord, did David give to Solomon, according to the knowledge given to him from above, respecting the workmanship of the pattern." H.—David saw the pattern in a kind of ecstasy; (Salien. E.) or some prophet delivered it unto him, (C.) marked out by the hand of an angel, (T.) like the tabernacle given to Moses. D.

VER. 20. Lord. Sept. add, "and I beheld, or behold, the pattern of the temple, and of the house and the Zakeho thereof, and the upper rooms and inner storehouses, and the house of the propitiation, and the pattern of the house of the Lord: (21) and behold," v. 11. H.

VER. 21. Thee. Heb. and Sept. "for all workmanship, every willing skilful man for any service, also all the princes, and the people entirely at thy commands." H.—The willing artificers are distinguished from those who were forced to work, though the former also received pay. C.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. 1. Tender, not so much in years, for he was 22, but in comparison with David, and with reference to so great a work. M.

VER. 2. Onyx, or "emeralds." C.—Sept. "soom," from the Heb. shoham.—Alabaster. Heb. puc. H.—The dark paint used for the eyes, has the same name. 4 K. ix. 30. Jer. iv. 30. Yet the stibium or stimmi, or alabaster, mentioned by Pliny (xxxiii. 6.) was of a silver colour, but not transparent. The stone here specified was probably alabaster, as it was used for the pavement. There is a very fine species at Damascus, and in Arabia, which was much sought after to decorate buildings. C.—Chal. has "emeralds." Sept. "stones of perfection, rich and various, and every precious stone, and much Parion." H.—But Isai. liv. 11, they translate the same term, "carbuncle." C.—The stone might resemble the agate, which is beautifully shaded with clouds and other fanciful figures. T.—Paros: this is taken from the Sept. Heb. has simply, "and stones of saiss." H.—Whether it denote the isle of Chio, or that of Chitis, in the Red Sea, the former famous for marble, and the latter for the topaz; or it may refer to Saia, a city of Egypt, which had most beautiful porphyry. Pliny xxxvi. 7. and xxxvii. 8.—But Paros, one of the Cyclades, was most renowned for its white marble. ib. xxxvi. 5.—Josephus (Bel. vi. 6.) informs us, that the temple was built of large white marble stones; so that it appeared, at a distance, to be covered with snow. C.

VER. 3. Own. What he had already vowed, he esteemed no longer his. W.—Temple. Heb. "houses," including the various apartments belonging to the temple. The sum which David had formerly set apart out of the spoils of war &c. amounted to 825,000,000*l*. What he now adds, is 16,125,000*l*. sterling, according to Brerewood, who deems the sums exorbitant; and others have suspected that there is a mistake in the former numbers. We have seen with what foundation. C. xxii. 14. David was so convinced, that the sum which he had been able to collect was too small, that he exhorted the princes to contribute, with all their power, and set them this noble example, which they endeavoured to imitate. H.—He had collected some of the gold of Ophir, which was esteemed the best. C. See 3 K. ix. 28. M.—We have before remarked, that Solomon went beyond the expectations of his father, and used no silver.

proper goods, gold and silver for the temple of my God, beside what things I have prepared for the holy house,

4 Three thousand talents of gold of the gold of Ophir: and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the temple.

5 And gold for wheresoever there is need of gold; and silver for wheresoever there is need of silver, for the works to be made by the hands of the artificers: now if any man is willing to offer, let him fill his hand to-day, and offer what he pleaseth to the Lord.

6 Then the heads of the families, and the princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands, and of hundreds, and the overseers of the king's possessions, promised.

7 And they gave for the works of the house of the Lord, of gold, five thousand talents, and ten thousand solids; of silver, ten thousand talents; and of brass, eighteen thousand talents; and of iron, a hundred thousand talents.

8 And all they that had stones, gave them to the treasures of the house of the Lord, by the hand of Jahiel, the Gersonite.

9 And the people rejoiced, when they promised their offerings willingly: because they offered them to the Lord with all their heart: and David, the king, rejoiced also with a great joy.

10 And he blessed the Lord before all the multitude, and he said: Blessed art thou, O Lord, the God of Israel, our father, from eternity to eternity.

11 Thine, O Lord, is magnificence, and power, and glory, and victory: and to thee is praise: for all that is in heaven, and in earth is thine: thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art above all princes.

12 Thine are riches, and thine is glory: thou hast dominion over all, in thy hand is power and might; in thy hand greatness, and the empire of all things.

13 Now, therefore, our God, we give thanks to thee, and we praise thy glorious name.

14 Who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to promise thee all these things? all things are thine: and we have given thee what we received of thy hand.

15 For we are sojourners before thee, and strangers, as were all our fathers. *Our days upon earth are as a shadow, and there is no stay.

16 O Lord, our God, all this store that we have prepared to build thee a house for thy holy name, is from thy hand, and all things are thine.

17 I know, my God, that thou provest hearts, and lovest simplicity; wherefore I also, in the simplicity of my heart, have joyfully offered all these things: and I have seen, with great joy, thy people which are here present, offer thee their offerings.

18 O Lord, God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, keep for ever this will of their heart, and let this mind remain always for the worship of thee.

19 And give to Solomon, my son, a perfect heart, that he may keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy ceremonies, and do all things: and build the house, for which I have provided the charges.

20 And David commanded all the assembly: Bless ye the Lord, our God. And all the assembly blessed the Lord, the God of their fathers: and they bowed themselves, and worshipped God, and then the king.

21 And they sacrificed victims to the Lord: and they offered holocausts the next day, a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, a thousand lambs, with their libations, and with every thing prescribed, most abundantly for all Israel.

22 And they eat and drank before the Lord that day with great joy. *And they anointed the second time Solomon, the son of David. And they anointed him to the Lord to be prince, and Sadoc to be high priest.

23 And Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king, instead of David, his father, and he pleased all: and all Israel obeyed him.

24 And all the princes, and men of power, and all

* Wisd. ii. 5.—* 3 Kings i. 34.

VER. 5. Fill his hand, is an expression applied to priests, by which David intimates, that any one may now offer a species of sacrifice to the Lord. Judg. vii. 5. Ex. xxxii. 29. C. M.—He wishes them to act with generosity. H.

VER. 6. Possessions, mentioned C. xxvii. 25.

VER. 7. Solids. Sept. "pieces of gold;" χρυσίδες. Heb. adarcnim, which Prot. render "drachms," (H.) after the Syr. &c. Others think that the Darics, used in Persia, are meant, though they did not exist in David's time. Eodras might reduce the money to correspond with the coin with which his countrymen were then acquainted. 2 Esd. vii. 70. Pelletier.—The Daric was equivalent to a golden sicle, which was only half the weight of one of silver, though this is not certain. C.—A solid was only the sixth part of an ounce, whereas the sicle weighed half an ounce, or four drachms.—Talents were always of the same weight, 125 Roman pounds. M.

VER. 8. Gersonite; who, with his brethren, was treasurer. C. xxvi. 22.

VER. 9. Willingly. Their disposition was perfect: for God loves a cheerful giver. 2 Cor. ix. 7. C.

VER. 10. From. Sept. "from age to age;" (Pagnin, &c.) that is, throughout eternity: (M.) "for ever and ever." Prot. Eternity has no parts. H.

VER. 11. Magnificence. Thee we ought to magnify. David uses many words to express the sentiments of his grateful soul. M.

VER. 12. Thine. Heb. and Sept. "of thee." H.—Greatness. Heb. "to magnify and strengthen all." M.—Our riches are thy gifts; and to thee we return a part, with gladness.

VER. 14. Promise. Heb. "to offer so willingly in this manner!" H.—He is astonished at the rich display of gifts: but acknowledges that all was originally sent by God. In the same sentiments, we say in the mass, "We offer unto thee of thy own presents and gifts;" or, as the Greeks express it, τὰ ἐκὰς τοῦ σου. C.

VER. 15. Strangers. We have nothing but what we have received from thee; and for how short a time! C.—No stay. Heb. "none abiding, (H. or) no hope" of being able to escape death. (C.) when we must leave all. How happy, there- (589) fore, are those who send their treasures before them! H.—All are pilgrims, with respect to heaven. Heb. xiii. W.

VER. 17. Simplicity. Heb. "uprightness." Sept. "justice;" (H.) a pure intention, which our Saviour styles a single eye. Mat. vi. 22. T.

VER. 18. This. Heb. "keep this for ever, in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and direct their heart unto thee. Preserve these good dispositions, which thou hast given them." C.

VER. 20. Then is not in Heb. or Sept. H.—The same term is used, to express the outward adoration which they shewed to God, and the civil respect which was due to the king: pari gestu, says Grotius, animo diverso. C.—How then will Protestants prove that we are guilty of idolatry, when we bow down before the cross, &c. unless they pretend to know the secrets of hearts! Prot. they "bowed down their heads, (Sept. knees) and worshipped the Lord and the king." H.—The exterior act was the same, but the intention determined the application. See Ex. xx. W.

VER. 21. And with. Heb. and Sept. "and their sacrifices of wine and victims, (or peace-offerings, to be eaten by the people. C.) in abundance for all Israel." H.

VER. 22. The Lord, at Jerusalem, (M.) where the ark was then kept. H.—Second time: the first had been done with too much precipitation, in consequence of the attempt of Adonias; (3 K. i. 39. T.) or this took place after the death of David, that his successor might be invested with full power, (Grot.) and be acknowledged by all. H.—Priest. This at least only took place after the death of David, when Abiathar fell into disgrace. 3 K. ii. 35. Both prince and priest must act by God's authority; and those who resist them, resist God himself. Rom. xiii. 1. C.—They are ministers of the Lord. H.

VER. 24. Gave. Heb. "placed their hands under Solomon." Sept. "were subject to him." C.—The latter words in the Vulg. explain the meaning of the ceremony. M.—It seems to have been similar to that used when Abraham required an oath of his servant. Gen. xxiv. 2. Vassals place their hands within those of their Lord, under whom they hold lands; (C.) and the descendants of the Germans testify their submission, by putting their hands between a person's the sons of king David gave their hand, and were subject to Solomon, the king.

25 And the Lord magnified Solomon over all Israel: and gave him the glory of a reign, such as no king of Israel had before him.

26 So David, the son of Isai, reigned over all Israel.

27 *And the days that he reigned over Israel, were forty years: in Hebron he reigned seven years, and in Jerusalem three and thirty years.

* 3 Kings ii. 11.

knees. Grotius.—The nobles took the oath of fidelity to Solomon, by some such method. C.

VER. 29. Gad, the seer "of David," as he is sometimes styled. These three were well acquainted with David, (C.) and wrote the two first books of Kings; (H.) or at least those books are compiled from their memorials, (C.) if their works be lost, (M.) which is uncertain. W 28 ^b And he died in a good old age, full of days, and riches and glory. And Solomon, his son, reigned in his stead.

29 Now the acts of king David, first and last, are written in the book of Samuel, the seer, and in the book of Nathan, the prophet, and in the book of Gad, the seer;

30 And of all his reign, and his valour, and of the times that passed under him, either in Israel, or in all the kingdoms of the countries.

^b A. M. 2990, A. C. 1014.

VER. 30. Under him in various tribulations, towards the end of his reign. Vatable, &c.—Those prophets recorded not only what regarded David, (H.) but also what happened of consequence, in other nations, with which he had any connections.—Of the Syr. and Arab. "of his land, or among the kings of his race." C.—David reduced under his dominion not only the nations which dwell in Chanaan, but all those which had been promised to Israel. H.

THE SECOND BOOK OF PARALIPOMENON.

As the former Book shews how David was chosen to rule over God's peculiar people, so this explains briefly the reign of Solomon, in the nine first chapters; and in the rest, that of nineteen of his successors, who governed two tribes till the captivity, while Israel was divided. W.

CHAP. I.

Solomon offereth sacrifices at Gabaon. His choice of wisdom, which God giveth him.

AND ^a Solomon, the son of David, was strengthened in his kingdom, and the Lord, his God, was with him, and magnified him to a high degree.

2 And Solomon gave orders to all Israel, to the captains of thousands, and of hundreds, and to the rulers, and to the judges of all Israel, and the heads of the families:

3 And he went with all the multitude to the high place of Gabaon, where was the tabernacle of the covenant of the Lord, which Moses, the servant of God, made in the wilderness.

4 ^b For David had brought the ark of God from Cariathiarim to the place which he had prepared for it, and where he had pitched a tabernacle for it; that is, in Jerusalem.

5 And the altar of brass, ^c which Beseleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, had made, was there before the tabernacle of the Lord: and Solomon and all the assembly sought it.

6 And Solomon went up thither to the brazen altar, before the tabernacle of the covenant of the Lord, and offered upon it a thousand victims.

7 And behold that night God appeared to him, saying: Ask what thou wilt, that I should give thee.

8 And Solomon said to God: Thou hast shewn great

^a A. M. 2990, A. C. 1014. ^b 3 Kings iii. 1.—^c 2 Kings vi. 17. 1 Par. xvi. 1.

CHAP. I. VER. 5. Sought it: went (M.) to offer sacrifice, (T.) in the second year of his reign, A. C. 1013.

VER. 6. Victims. Heb. "holocausts," either with his own hands, or by the ministry of the priests. See 1 K. xiii. 12. C.

VER. 7. Night, after the victims had been offered. On this occasion, Solomon made this prayer, and was heard. 3 K. iii. 5. C.

VER. 10. People, as a king ought to do. M.

VER. 13. Before. Heb. and Sept. "from before the tabernacle," which was kindness to my father, David: and hast made me king in his stead.

9 Now, therefore, O Lord God, let thy word be fulfilled, which thou hast promised to David, my father: for thou hast made me king over thy great people, which is as innumerable as the dust of the earth.

10 ^d Give me wisdom and knowledge, that I may come in and go out before thy people: for who can worthily judge this thy people, which is so great?

11 And God said to Solomon: Because this choice hath pleased thy heart, and thou hast not asked riches, and wealth, and glory, nor the lives of them that hate thee, nor many days of life: but hast asked wisdom and knowledge, to be able to judge my people, over which I have made thee king.

12 Wisdom and knowledge are granted to thee: and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and glory, so that none of the kings before thee, nor after thee, shall be like thee.

13 Then Solomon came from the high place of Gabaon to Jerusalem, before the tabernacle of the covenant, and reigned over Israel.

14 ^e And he gathered to himself chariots and horsemen, and he had a thousand four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen: and he placed them in the cities of the chariots, and with the king, in Jerusalem.

15 And the king made silver and gold to be in Jeru-

^e Exod. xxxviii. 8.—^d Wisd. ix. 10.—^c 3 Kings x. 26.

at Gabaon. There was another at Jerusalem where (H.) Solomon rendered homage to the Lord. C.

VER. 14. Chariots, See 3 K. iv. 26. No king of Israel kept such a multitude of horses. C.

VER. 15. Sycamores are trees of small value, and not good for building. T.

VER. 16. Oza may signify either some city, (Mariana) or an "emporium," where things are sold, as kuch means "a collection." T. 3 K. x. 28. Neglecting the points of the Masorets, we may well understand Oza, a city of Egypt, (531) salem as stones, and cedar-trees as sycamores, which grow in the plains in great multitude.

16 And there were horses brought him from Egypt, and from Coa, by the king's merchants, who went, and bought at a price, 17 A chariot of four horses for six hundred pieces of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty: in like manner market was made in all the kingdoms of the Hethites, and of the kings of Syria.

CHAP. II.

Solomon's embassy to Hiram, who sends him a skilful workman and timber.

AND Solomon determined to build a house to the name of the Lord, and a palace for himself.

2 And he numbered out seventy thousand men to bear burdens, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountains, and three thousand six hundred to oversee them.

3 "He sent also to Hiram, king of Tyre, saying: As thou didst with David, my father, and didst send him cedars, to build him a house, in which he dwelt:

4 So do with me, that I may build a house to the name of the Lord, my God, to dedicate it to burn incense before him, and to perfume with aromatical spices, and for the continual setting forth of bread, and for the holocausts, morning and evening, and on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and the solemnities of the Lord, our God, for ever, which are commanded for Israel.

5 For the house which I desire to build, is great: for our God is great above all gods.

6 Who then can be able to build him a worthy house? if heaven, and the heavens of heavens cannot contain him: who am I, that I should be able to build him a house? but to this end only, that incense may be burnt before him.

7 Send me, therefore, a skilful man, that knoweth how to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, and in iron, in purple, in scarlet, and in blue, and that hath skill in engraving, with the artificers, which I have with me in Judea and Jerusalem, whom David, my father, provided.

8 Send me also cedars, and fir-trees, and pine-trees, from Libanus: for I know that thy servants are skilful in cutting timber in Libanus, and my servants shall be with thy servants, an island of the Mediterranean. The Masorets read Mikve, instead of Micoa. D.

* 3 Kings v. 2.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Himself, worthy of his great empire. He deemed that which David had built too mean, though that pious king had been ashamed to dwell in such a magnificent palace, while the ark of God was under skins. 2 K. vii. 2. C.

VER. 2. Numbered, of the proselytes, v. 17. T.—Hew. The stones were made ready for use, as well as the wood, before it was brought to the temple. 3 K. vi. 7.—Six. Only three are mentioned 3 K. v. 16. C.—But three hundred overseers of higher order are here included. T.

VER. 3. Before him. For this purpose do I design to build. M.—Temples are more for our use than for God's, as none can be worthy of him. C.

VER. 4. Purple. Heb. argevan, (H.) a Chal. word, of the same import as arguman, in Exodus.—Scarlet and blue were also species of purple. The finest sort was found between Tyre and Carmel. See Vitruv. vii. 13.

VER. 5. Pine. Heb. algun, which rather denotes a species of fir, than the juniper-tree; though the domestic kind was tall, and used in edifices. C.—Arceuthina, "juniper," is taken from the Sept. D.

VER. 9. Exceedingly. Heb. "wonderfully great." H.

VER. 10. Wheat. Heb. adds, "beaten."—Barley and wine are not specified 3 K. v. 11. C.—Measures, like the Roman amphora, contained 960 oza. A. Lapide.—Heb. has "batim," in both places; but 3 K. we find, "twenty cores of oil." The satum, "measure," was only one-third of the bath or epha. C.

9 To provide me timber in abundance. For the house which I desire to build, is to be exceedingly great, and glorious.

10 And I will give thy servants, the workmen that are to cut down the trees, for their food twenty thousand cores of wheat, and as many cores of barley, and twenty thousand measures of wine, and twenty thousand measures of oil.

11 And Hiram, king of Tyre, sent a letter to Solomon, saying: Because the Lord hath loved his people, therefore he hath made thee king over them.

12 And he added, saying: Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who made heaven and earth, who hath given to king David a wise and knowing son, endued with understanding and prudence, to build a house to the Lord, and a palace for himself.

13 I therefore have sent thee my father, Hiram, a wise and most skilful man, 14 The son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, whose father was a Tyrian, who knoweth how to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, and in iron, and in marble, and in timber, in purple also, and violet, and silk, and scarlet: and who knoweth to grave all sort of graving, and to devise ingeniously all that there may be need of in the work with thy artificers, and with the artificers of my lord, David, thy father.

15 The wheat, therefore, and the barley, and the oil, and the wine, which thou, my lord, hast promised, send to thy servants.

16 And we will cut down as many trees out of Libanus, as thou shalt want, and will convey them in floats by sea to Joppe: and it will be thy part to bring them thence to Jerusalem.

17 And Solomon numbered all the proselytes in the land of Israel, after the numbering which David, his father, had made; and they were found a hundred fifty-three thousand and six hundred.

18 And he set seventy thousand of them to carry burdens on their shoulders, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountains: and three thousand and six hundred to be overseers of the work of the people.

CHAP. III.

The plan and ornaments of the temple: the cherubims, the veil, and the pillars.

AND ^bSolomon began to build the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, in Mount Moria, which had

^b 3 Kings vi. 1.

VER. 13. Father. Heb. Abi, is considered by some as the surname of Hiram. Pagnin, &c.—But he might have that title in consideration of his great skill, as Solomon gives it him. C. iv. 16. We use master in the same sense. Sept. have, "servant," (παῖς) except the Roman edition, which agrees with the Heb. and reads, adrapa. C.—Prot. "of Hiram, my father's;" (H.) supply servant, or architect. T.

VER. 14. Dan, the city, as the widow was of the tribe of Nephthali. D.—Whose. Heb. "and his father," (H.) or "this Abi." C. See 3 K. vii. 14.—Silk. Heb. "byssus," which is the silk extracted from a fish, and not the fine linen of Egypt, or cotton which has sometimes this appellation. 1 Par. xv. 27.—My lord, a term of civility.

VER. 16. Floats. So the Sept. well express the Heb. raphsodoth, which seems to be borrowed from the Greek παράδοις, which denotes a collection of verses, (C.) and was applied to Homer's poems, before they were collected. Ælian xiii. 14. Joppe was a port much used, (C.) though dangerous. Joseph. Bel. iii. 15.

VER. 17. Had made, at the commencement of Solomon's reign, when David put such immense treasures into his hands. The second list was taken when the temple was begun. The proselytes were the remnants of the nations of the natives of Chanaan. The Jews foolishly pretend, (C.) that no strangers were allowed to embrace the law of Moses, under David and Solomon, for fear lest they might be influenced by self-interest rather than by the love of religion. Selden, Syn. iii. 2. 6.

VER. 18. Six. We read three, 3 K. v. 16.: people who were strangers, as the Israelites were not forced to work. C. viii. 9. C.

been shewn to David, his father, in the place which David had prepared in the "threshing-floor of Ornan, the Jebusite.

2 And he began to build in the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.*

3 Now these are the foundations, which Solomon laid, to build the house of God, the length by the first measure sixty cubits, the breadth twenty cubits.

4 And the porch in the front, which was extended in length according to the measure of the breadth of the house, twenty cubits: and the height was a hundred and twenty cubits: and he overlaid it within with pure gold.

5 And the greater house he ceiled with deal boards, and overlaid them with plates of fine gold throughout: and he graved in them palm-trees, and like little chains interlaced with one another.

6 He paved also the floor of the temple with most precious marble, of great beauty.

7 And the gold of the plates with which he overlaid the house, and the beams thereof, and the posts, and the walls, and the doors, was of the finest: and he graved cherubims on the walls.

8 He made also the house of the holy of holies: the length of it, according to the breadth of the temple, twenty cubits, and the breadth of it in like manner twenty cubits; and he overlaid it with plates of gold, amounting to about six hundred talents.

9 He made also nails of gold, and the weight of every nail was fifty sicles: the upper chambers also he overlaid with gold.

10 He made also in the house of the holy of holies two cherubims of image-work: and he overlaid them with gold.

11 The wings of the cherubims were extended twenty cubits, so that one wing was five cubits long, and reached to the wall of the house: and the other was also five cubits long, and reached to the wing of the other cherub.

* 2 Kings xxiv. 25. 1 Par. xxi. 26.—A. M. 2992.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Moria, which signifies vision; (C.) the place pointed out to Abraham, (Gen. xxii. 2. S. Aug. de C. xvi. 32.) and to David. 1 Par. xxi. 15. and xxii. 1.

VER. 2. Second. Heb. adds, (D.) "in the second day of the second month." Prot. &c. H.

VER. 3. By the first, or ancient measure, used before the captivity. The Babylonian cubit was a hand smaller, as Ezechiel (xl. 3.) intimates. C.—Solomon used the same cubit as Moses, but doubled the proportions. M.

VER. 4. A hundred. The Arab. and some copies of the Sept. read only twenty. Capellus and Toinard would substitute, ten cubits. A small change in the Heb. might occasion these variations. C.—In 3 K. vi. 2. we find the height was thirty cubits: but that might be only to the first floor. Many think that the temple was 120 cubits high: but Salien (A. 3024) explains it of the four-square tower, (M.) in the front. C.

VER. 5. House, between the most holy place and the porch, (T.) or it may comprise all but the porch. Heb. "he covered (or boarded) all this great house." C.—Deal boards interspersed with those of cedar. 3 K. vi. 9. T.—Fine, (obrizi.) Heb. "of Parvaim, which is probably the same as Sepharvaim, Ophir, &c. not far from Media and Colchis. C.

VER. 8. Amounting to about, is not in Heb. H.

VER. 9. Sicles. This weight seems enormous for each nail. Mariana supposes every nail weighed one sicle. But who will believe that only fifty were used? Heb. "And the weight of the nails was fifty," &c. The Syr. and Arab. omit this verse entirely.—Chambers, or rather "the ceiling."

VER. 10. Work. Heb. "of the work of young men" or resembling them. Munster.—Sept. "the work of wood." Vulg. lit. "of sculpture work," (H.) as the Clere renders the original. Some moderns translate, "of a work like men in motion." Mariana, Buxtorf.—The cherubims were in an erect posture.

VER. 11. Cubits, comprising the breadth of their body. Each occupied ten cubits.

VER. 13. Toward. Heb. "inward;" looking at each other, (Ex. xxv. 20.) or towards the altar of holocausts.

12 In like manner the wing of the other cherub was five cubits long, and reached to the wall: and his other wing was five cubits long, and touched the wing of the other cherub.

13 So the wings of the two cherubims were spread forth, and were extended twenty cubits: and they stood upright on their feet, and their faces were turned toward the house without.

14 *He made also a veil of violet, purple, scarlet, and silk: and wrought in it cherubims.

15 *He made also before the doors of the temple two pillars, which were five and thirty cubits high: and their chapiters were five cubits.

16 He made also as it were little chains in the oracle, and he put them on the heads of the pillars: and an hundred pomegranates, which he put between the little chains.

17 These pillars he put at the entrance of the temple, one on the right hand, and the other on the left: that which was on the right hand, he called Jachin: and that on the left hand, Booz.

CHAP. IV.

The altar of brass: the molten sea upon the twelve oxen: the ten loaves: the candlestick, and other vessels and ornaments of the temple.

HE made also an altar of brass, twenty cubits long, and twenty cubits broad, and ten cubits high.

2 *Also a molten sea, of ten cubits from brim to brim, round in compass: it was five cubits high, and a line of thirty cubits compassed it round about.

3 And under it there was the likeness of oxen, and certain engravings on the outside of ten cubits, compassed the belly of the sea, as it were with two rows.

4 And the oxen were cast, and the sea itself was set upon the twelve oxen, three of which looked towards the north, and other three towards the west, and other three towards the south, and the other three that remained towards the east, and the sea stood upon them: and the hinder parts of the oxen were inward under the sea.

* Matt. xxvii. 51.—Jer. lii. 20.—3 Kings vii. 23.

VER. 14. A veil. Abulensis places it between the court and the holy: but Jansenius would have it before the holy of holies. It seems rather that there was a veil in both places, (Barad. t. ii. b. iii. 23. M.) as Josephus (viii. 2. and xii. 10.) clearly intimates; and S. Paul speaks of the second veil. Heb. ix. 8. It is not certain which of them was torn at the death of Jesus Christ. Matt. xxvii. 51. Cherubims; extraordinary figures. C.

VER. 15. Five. 3 K. vii. 15. we read, each was eighteen cubits. It is probable that each was 17½ and the other half was for the crown, (C.) or cornice. H.

VER. 16. In, or "as in." Sa. M.—Prot. supply as. H.—Hundred, for one row, or 200 for both. 3 K. D.

VER. 17. Booz. "Stability and strength" are derived from God alone. Thus Solomon designed to insinuate that God established the harmony of the universe. H.—An orrery, or globe, was therefore placed on each of these pillars. Parkhurst, in con.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Altar of holocausts, much larger than that of Moses. The one which was built after the captivity, was a square of fifteen cubits. This of Solomon was only ten in height. A sloping ascent was made up to it, according to Josephus; (Bel. vi. 5. or v. 14.) or the steps were closed in, if we believe others. See Ex. xxvii. 1. and xx. 26. It is thought (C.) that the inside of the altar was filled with earth, (M.) or with rough stones: (Ex. xx. 24. D.) but that is not certain, with regard to the brazen altar. See 1 Mac. iv. 44. 47. C.

VER. 2. Sea, or great brazen vessel, and some other things that were not in the tabernacle of Moses, whose plan was followed, but with greater magnificence. W.

VER. 3. Oxen. In 3 K. vii. 24. we read Heb. "knopa," (H.) or "apples." Of ten. Heb. "ten in a cubit." Hence there must have been 600 heads of oxen, as the sea was thirty cubits in circumference, and there were two rows. C.—Others suppose that there were only five in each row, or only one in each cubit. See Vat. and 3 K. The Sept. and Syr. omit this verse. C.—Yet it is found in the best editions of the Sept. H.

VER. 4. Cast. Heb. adds, "when it (the sea) was cast." H.—They were done (533)

5 Now the thickness of it was a handbreadth, and the brim of it was like the brim of a cup, or of a crisped lily: and it held three thousand measures.

6 He made also ten lavers, and he set five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in them all such things, as they were to offer for holocaust: but the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7 And he made ten golden candlesticks, according to the form which they were commanded to be made by: and he set them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on the left.

8 Moreover also ten tables: and he set them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. Also a hundred bowls of gold.

9 He made also the court of the priests, and a great hall, and doors in the hall, which he covered with brass.

10 And he set the sea on the right side, over-against the east, towards the south.

11 And Hiram made cauldrons, and flesh-hooks, and bowls, and finished all the king's work in the house of God;

12 That is to say, the two pillars, and the pommels, and the chapters, and the net-work to cover the chapters over the pommels.

13 And four hundred pomegranates, and two wreaths of net-work, so that two rows of pomegranates were joined to each wreath, to cover the pommels and the chapters of the pillars.

14 He made also bases and lavers, which he set upon the bases:

15 One sea, and twelve oxen under the sea;

16 And the cauldrons, and flesh-hooks, and bowls. All the vessels did Hiram, his father, make for Solomon, in the house of the Lord, of the finest brass.

17 In the country near the Jordan, did the king cast them in a clay ground, between Sohot and Saredatha.

18 And the multitude of vessels was innumerable, so that the weight of the brass was not known.

19 And Solomon made all the vessels for the house of God, and the golden altar, and the tables, upon which were the loaves of proposition.

20 The candlesticks also of most pure gold, with their lamps, to give light before the oracle, according to the manner.

21 And certain flowers, and lamps, and golden tongs: all were made of the finest gold.

* 8 Kings vii. 51.

at the same time, (T.) and were perhaps intended to let out the water. The twelve oxen, which supported the sea, were not cast along with it. D.

VER. 5. Three. 3 K. two, may specify the usual quantity that was contained, though the vessel would absolutely hold a thousand measures, or baths, more. H.

VER. 6. Holocaust, as well as all the necessary utensils.—Priests. They did not bathe in the sea, but drew water into other vessels. The Chal. supposes that the work of Bezeleel was for the high priest alone. C.

VER. 9. Hall, (basilicam.) Sept. use the same term (בֵּית) as just before is rendered court; and the Prot. make no distinction, though the Heb. terms be different. Sept. render chatsar, "the court" of the people. There, we know, that Solomon had his tribune. C. vi. 18. Ezechiel (xliii. 14.) distinguishes two; the great, lower or outward, (C. chatsar) or court, and that of the priests, (H.) which he styles the less, &c. The principal door lay to the east.

VER. 10. Right, though to the left of those who entered the temple.

VER. 12. Pommels, (epistylia.) Heb. "cordons," or rows of pomegranates, (3 K. vii. 18.) each consisting of one hundred; so that as the two pillars were adorned with a double row, both together would have four hundred. C.—The precise number is fixed at ninety-six for each row. Jer. lii. 23. T.

VER. 16. His father. Heb. Abih, which is considered by some as a surname, (M.) or the title may be given to Hiram, on account of his skill. C.—He is so (534)

22 The vessels also for the perfumes, and the censers, and the bowls, and the mortars, of pure gold. And he graved the doors of the inner temple, that is, for the holy of holies: and the doors of the temple without were of gold. And thus all the work was finished, which Solomon made, in the house of the Lord.

CHAP. V.

The ark is brought with great solemnity into the temple: the temple is filled with the glory of God.

THEN *Solomon brought in all the things that David, his father, had vowed, the silver, and the gold, and all the vessels he put among the treasures of the house of God.

2 And after this he gathered together the ancients of Israel, and all the princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of Israel, to Jerusalem, to bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, which is Sion.

3 And all the men of Israel came to the king in the solemn day of the seventh month.

4 And when all the ancients of Israel were come, the Levites took up the ark,

5 And brought it in, together with all the furniture of the tabernacle. And the priests with the Levites carried the vessels of the sanctuary, which were in the tabernacle.

6 And king Solomon, and all the assembly of Israel, and all that were gathered together before the ark, sacrificed rams, and oxen without number: so great was the multitude of the victims.

7 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord into its place, that is, to the oracle of the temple, into the holy of holies under the wings of the cherubims:

8 So that the cherubims spread their wings over the place, in which the ark was set, and covered the ark itself and its staves.

9 Now the ends of the staves wherewith the ark was carried, because they were something longer, were seen before the oracle: but if a man were a little outward, he could not see them. So the ark has been there unto this day.

10 And there was nothing else in the ark but the two tables which Moses put there at Horeb when the Lord gave the law to the children of Israel, at their coming out of Egypt.

* 8 Kings viii. 1. A. M. 3001, A. C. 1008.

called by the king of Tyre, (C. ii. 18.) for having instructed him in the true faith. W.

VER. 17. Saredatha, or Sarthan, (3 K. vii. 46.) not far from Bethsar. 3 K. iv. 12. C.

VER. 21. Flowers. They represented lilies or other flowers (T.) full-blown, where the lamps were burning. All the branches were of pure gold. C.

VER. 22. Mortars, to hold the fine flour. M.—And thus. Here the fifth chapter commences, in Heb. and Sept.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. God, under the care of Solemith. See 1 Par. xxv. 26. C.

VER. 2. Ark. Another was not made, as that was most sacred and excellent. W.

VER. 3. Day, the eighth. 3 K. viii. 2.

VER. 4. Levites, with the priests alternately; (ibid.) or the latter were all Levites, (C.) though higher in dignity, in the same manner as our bishops are priests.

VER. 5. With the. "And" is omitted in Heb. but supplied by Prot. &c. from 3 K. H.

VER. 9. Oracle, pushing out the veil, (H.) in the tabernacle of Mos. 4, but not in the temple, which was of larger dimensions. C.—But if. Heb. 'but they were not seen without. And there it is till this day.'

VER. 10. Ark. See 3 K. viii. 9. H.—The other things which had been

11 Now when the priests were come out of the sanctuary, (for all the priests that could be found there, were sanctified: and as yet at that time the courses and order of the ministers were not divided among them,)

12 Both the Levites and the singing men, that is, both they that were under Asaph, and they that were under Heman, and they that were under Idithun, with their sons, and their brethren, clothed with fine linen, sounded with cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, standing on the east side of the altar, and with them a hundred and twenty priests, sounding with trumpets.

13 So when they all sounded together, both with trumpets, and voice, and cymbals, and organs, and with divers kind of musical instruments, and lifted up their voice on high: the sound was heard afar off, so that when they began to praise the Lord, and to say: Give glory to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever: the house of God was filled with a cloud.

14 Nor could the priests stand and minister by reason of the cloud. For the glory of the Lord had filled the house of God.

CHAP. VI.

Solomon's blessing and prayer.

THEN ^aSolomon said: The Lord promised that he would dwell in a cloud.

2 But I have built a house to his name, that he might dwell there for ever.

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed all the multitude of Israel, (for all the multitude stood attentive) and he said:

4 Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who hath accomplished in deed that which he spoke to David, my father, saying:

5 From the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel, for a house to be built in it to my name: neither chose I any other man, to be the ruler of my people, Israel.

6 But I chose Jerusalem, that my name might be there: and I chose David, to set him over my people, Israel.

7 And whereas David, my father, had a mind to build a house to the name of the Lord, the God of Israel,

8 The Lord said to him: Forasmuch as it was thy will to build a house to my name, thou hast done well indeed in having such a will:

9 But thou shalt not build the house, but thy son, who shall come out of thy loins, he shall build a house to my name.

^a A. M. 3001. 3 Kings viii. 12.

placed in, or at least on the side of the ark, were now removed to the treasury rooms. T.

VER. 11. Sanctified; free from all legal impediments to offer sacrifice. H.—Divided. Heb. "observed." T.—Prot. "and they did not then wait by course," which was the case also with the singers, &c. on this solemn occasion; as the number regulated by David for each week, would not have been sufficient. H.—The regulation had not yet been reduced to practice. M. C.—As yet (D.) at that time, is omitted (H.) by the Sept. (D.) and Heb.

VER. 12. Linen, or "robes of silk." Prot. "white linen." H.

VER. 14. Cloud. See 3 K. viii. 10. M.—It is called the glory of the Lord, because its appearance was luminous and awful, being a symbol of the divine presence. H.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Cloud: lit. "darkness." H.—The promise had been made to Moses. Ex. xvi. 10. and xl. 32. C.—God thus manifested his presence. W

10 The Lord, therefore, hath accomplished his word which he spoke: and I am risen up in the place of David, my father, and sit upon the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised: and have built a house to the name of the Lord God of Israel.

11 And I have put in it the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with the children of Israel.

12 And he stood before the altar of the Lord, in presence of all the multitude of Israel, and stretched forth his hands.

13 For Solomon had made a brazen scaffold, and had set it in the midst of the temple, which was five cubits long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high: and he stood upon it: then kneeling down in the presence of all the multitude of Israel, and lifting up his hands towards heaven,

14 ^bHe said: O Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee in heaven nor in earth: who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants, that walk before thee with all their hearts:

15 Who hast performed to thy servant David, my father, all that thou hast promised him: and hast accomplished in fact, what thou hast spoken with the mouth, as also the present time proveth.

16 Now then, O Lord God of Israel, fulfil to thy servant, David, my father, whatsoever thou hast promised him, saying: There shall not fail thee a man in my sight, to sit upon the throne of Israel: yet so that thy children take heed to their ways, and walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me.

17 And now, Lord God of Israel, let thy word be established which thou hast spoken to thy servant, David.

18 Is it credible then that God should dwell with men on the earth? If heaven and the heavens of heavens do not contain thee, how much less this house, which I have built?

19 But to this end only it is made, that thou mayst regard the prayer of thy servant, and his supplication, O Lord, my God: and mayst hear the prayers which thy servant poureth out before thee.

20 That thou mayst open thy eyes upon this house day and night, upon the place wherein thou hast promised that thy name should be called upon,

21 And that thou wouldst hear the prayer which thy servant prayeth in it: hearken then to the prayers of thy servant, and of thy people, Israel. Whosoever shall pray in this place, hear thou from thy dwelling-place, that is, from heaven, and shew mercy.

22 If any man sin against his neighbour, and come

^b 2 Mac. ii. 8.

VER. 12. Hands. Such external gestures promote attention in prayer; and hence were much used by holy people, at all times. W.

VER. 13. Scaffold, (basim.) The Heb. (kiyor) is used for "a shell, (concha. T.) or bowl," as the throne was probably of the same form, and was placed on a square pedestal, at the higher end of the court of the people, (C.) which is here styled the temple, (basilicæ) or "hall." C. iv. 9. Sept. ἁγία. Heb. chatsar, which denotes that great court where (H.) the body of the people stood bare-headed, before the Lord, (Grot. &c. C. xx. 5.) in the open air. D.—We are assured that the king himself never sat in his tribune. C.—Others reserve that privilege to him alone. H.—While he addressed the people, he turned towards them.

VER. 19. End. Temples are erected for the convenience of men. C.—Solomon hopes that God will reward his good intentions.

VER. 22. Altar; thus solemnly consenting to be punished by God, if he swear to swear against him, and bind himself with a curse before the altar in this house:

23 Then hear thou from heaven, and do justice to thy servants, so as to requite the wicked by making his wickedness fall upon his own head, and to revenge the just, rewarding him according to his justice.

24 If thy people, Israel, be overcome by their enemies, (for they will sin against thee) and being converted shall do penance, and call upon thy name, and pray to thee in this place,

25 Then hear thou from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people, Israel, and bring them back into the land, which thou gavest them, and their fathers.

26 If the heavens be shut up, and there fall no rain by reason of the sins of the people, and they shall pray to thee in this place, and confess to thy name, and be converted from their sins, when thou dost afflict them,

27 Then hear thou from heaven, O Lord, and forgive the sins of thy servants and of thy people, Israel, and teach them the good way, in which they may walk: and give rain to thy land which thou hast given to thy people to possess.

28 *If a famine arise in the land, or a pestilence, or blasting, or mildew, or locusts, or caterpillars; or if their enemies waste the country, and besiege the cities; whatsoever scourge or infirmity shall be upon them:

29 Then if any of thy people, Israel, knowing his own scourge and infirmity, shall pray, and shall spread forth his hands in this house,

30 Hear thou from heaven, from thy high dwelling-place, and forgive, and render to every one according to his ways, which thou knowest him to have in his heart: (for thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men:)

31 That they may fear thee, and walk in thy ways all the days that they live upon the face of the land which thou hast given to our fathers.

32 If the stranger also, who is not of thy people, Israel, come from a far country, for the sake of thy great name, and thy strong hand, and thy stretched out arm, and adore in this place:

33 Hear thou from heaven, thy firm dwelling-place, and do all that which that stranger shall call upon thee for: that all the people of the earth may know thy name, and may fear thee, as thy people, Israel, and may know that thy name is invoked upon this house, which I have built.

* Infra xx. 9.—3 Kings viii. 46. Eccl. vii. 21. 1 John i. 8.

falsely. H.—This practice was not prescribed by the law, but took place when witnesses could not be procured, or when it was necessary to rely on the word of the accused.

VER. 28. Blasting, or mildew, (arugo & aurugo.) The first has the colour of brass, the other of gold. Both have nearly the same import. M.—One of the terms is rendered, corrupt air; (3 K. viii. 37. C.) as this is one of the great causes why both plants and animals do not thrive. Sept. "corruption of the air and king's evil, or yellow jaundice:" Ictipos. H.

VER. 29. Any. Heb. adds, "man, or thy people." Sept. "and (that is) to thy." See v. 32. H.—Both strangers and Israelites may there sue for mercy, and obtain it. C.—From this chapter, as well as from many other passages, it is evident that places consecrated to God, are more acceptable to him than other places; (W.) and here the prayers of the faithful are sooner heard, as they testify their unity. D.

VER. 31. Fear thee, being filled with awe at the sight of thy judgments. C.

VER. 33. House, that they may know that this is not only called, but is, in effect, the temple of the Lord, were he will display his power and goodness. H.

VER. 38. Name. Hence arose the custom of turning towards Jerusalem and the temple, when the Jews poured forth their supplications, in any country. 3 K. viii. 44.

34 If thy people go out to war against their enemies, by the way that thou shalt send them, and adore thee towards the way of this city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name;

35 Then hear thou from heaven their prayers, and their supplications, and revenge them.

36 And if they sin against thee, * (for there is no man that sinneth not) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them up to their enemies, and they lead them away captive to a land either afar off or near at hand,

37 And if they be converted in their heart in the land to which they were led captive, and do penance, and pray to thee in the land of their captivity, saying: We have sinned, we have done wickedly, we have dealt unjustly:

38 And return to thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their captivity, to which they were led away, and adore thee towards the way of their own land, which thou gavest their fathers, and of the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name:

39 Then hear thou from heaven, that is, from thy firm dwelling-place, their prayers, and do judgment, and forgive thy people, although they have sinned:

40 For thou art my God: let thy eyes, I beseech thee, be open, and let thy ears be attentive to the prayer that is made in this place.

41 *Now, therefore, arise, O Lord God, into thy resting-place, thou and the ark of thy strength: Let thy priests, O Lord God, put on salvation, and thy saints rejoice in good things.

42 O Lord God, turn not away the face of thy anointed: remember the mercies of David, thy servant

CHAP. VII.

Fire from heaven consumeth the sacrifices. The solemnity of the dedication of the temple. God signifieth his having heard Solomon's prayer: yet so if he continue to serve him.

AND *when Solomon had made an end of his prayer, a fire came down from heaven, and consumed the holocausts and the victims: and the majesty of the Lord filled the house.

2 *Neither could the priests enter into the temple of the Lord, because the majesty of the Lord had filled the temple of the Lord.

3 Moreover, all the children of Israel saw the fire coming down, and the glory of the Lord upon the house: and falling down with their faces to the ground,

* Psalm cxxxii. 8.—A. M. 3001.—2 Mac. ii. 8.

VER. 41. Now, therefore. This is taken from Ps. cxxxii. 8. 9. 10. (M.) almost word for word. We do not find that Solomon spoke this, 3 K. C.—Place: lit. "rest." H.—Come, O Lord, and dwell here.—Strength, by which thy wonders shine forth, and thy enemies are disunayed. The ark is styled the strength of Israel, Ps. lxxvii. 61. and lxii. 3.; and in the parallel passage we read, Thou and the ark of thy sanctification, or sanctuary, which is its highest ornament, and which thou hast sanctified, or required to be treated with respect.—Salvation, or justice, (Ps. cxxxii.) which is the surest method of obtaining happiness.

VER. 42. Anointed. Cover not with shame the king, whom thou hast appointed, (H.) nor reject my prayer. T.—Mercies, which thou hast shewn, or rather (C.) the acts of virtue which thy servant displayed. Syr. &c. For thy servant David's sake, turn not away the face of thy anointed. Ps. cxxxii. In consideration of his merits, grant my request. C.—Even Solomon, though at this time the object of God's complacency, disdains not to screen himself under the merits of the departed saints. H.

CHAP. VII. VER. 2. Majesty: the cloud. For some time the priests were obliged to keep at a distance. They afterwards offered up many victims. C.

VER. 3. Glory. The same word was before rendered majesty. H.

VER. 4. Victims, by the hands of the priests: or they slew them themselves, and presented the blood and fat to be placed on the altar by the priests.

upon the stone pavement, they adored and praised the Lord: because he is good, because his mercy endureth for ever.

4 And the king and all the people sacrificed victims before the Lord.

5 *And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen, and one hundred and twenty thousand rams: and the king and all the people dedicated the house of God.

6 And the priests stood in their offices: and the Levites with the instruments of music of the Lord, which king David made to praise the Lord: because his mercy endureth for ever, singing the hymns of David by their ministry: and the priests sounded with trumpets before them, and all Israel stood.

7 Solomon also sanctified the middle of the court before the temple of the Lord: for he offered there the holocausts, and the fat of the peace-offerings: because the brazen altar, which he had made, could not hold the holocausts, and the sacrifices and the fat:

8 And Solomon kept the solemnity at that time seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from the entrance of Emath to the torrent of Egypt.

9 And he made on the eighth day a solemn assembly, because he had kept the dedication of the altar seven days, and had celebrated the solemnity seven days.

10 So on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent away the people to their dwellings, joyful and glad for the good that the Lord had done to David, and to Solomon, and to all Israel, his people.

11 ^bAnd Solomon finished the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all that he had designed in his heart to do, in the house of the Lord, and in his own house, and he prospered.

12 And the Lord appeared to him by night, and said: I have heard thy prayer, and I have chosen this place to myself for a house of sacrifice.

13 If I shut up heaven, and there fall no rain, or if I give orders, and command the locust to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people:

14 And my people, upon whom my name is called, being converted, shall make supplication to me, and seek out my face, and do penance for their most wicked ways: then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land.

15 My eyes also shall be open, and my ears attentive to the prayer of him that shall pray in this place.

16 For I have chosen, and have sanctified this place,

* 3 Kings viii. 63.—^b 3 Kings ix. 1.

VER. 5. Rams, including sheep and goats.—People, each in their proper sphere. The priests had the chief part, as the ministers of religion. The solemnity continued for a week, and many altars were erected in the court. C.

VER. 6. Which music, or Psalms, (carminum) David had composed. H.—Because. This was the chorus of the 135th Psalm, which was sung on this occasion by some, while others played on their musical instruments. C.—Lit. "singing by their hands." Prot. "when David praised by their ministry." H.—As the temple was chosen by God for the place of prayer, so special forms of blessing, &c. are more agreeable to him. W.

VER. 9. Solemnity of tabernacles, (M.) which ensued after the dedication was ended.

VER. 10. Day. He had given them leave to depart, the day before. 3 K. vii. 63.

VER. 14. Face, to appease me, that I may look down upon them in mercy. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. After. Sept. "in which."

that my name may be there for ever, and my eyes and my heart may remain there perpetually.

17 And as for thee, if thou walk before me, as David, thy father, walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and keep my justices and my judgments:

18 I will raise up the throne of thy kingdom, as I promised to David, thy father, saying: There shall not fail thee a man of thy stock to be ruler in Israel.

19 But if you turn away, and forsake my justices, and my commandments, which I have set before you, and shall go and serve strange gods, and adore them,

20 I will pluck you up by the root out of my land which I have given you: and this house, which I have sanctified to my name, I will cast away from before my face, and will make it a bye-word, and an example among all nations.

21 And this house shall be for a proverb to all that pass by, and they shall be astonished, and say: Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house?

22 And they shall answer: Because they forsook the Lord, the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on strange gods, and adored them, and worshipped them: therefore all these evils are come upon them.

CHAP. VIII.

Solomon's buildings and other acts.

AND *at the end of twenty years after Solomon had built the house of the Lord, and his own house:

2 He built the cities which Hiram had given to Solomon, and caused the children of Israel to dwell there.

3 He went also into Emath Suba, and possessed it.

4 And he built Palmira, in the desert, and he built other strong cities in Emath.

5 And he built Bethhoron the upper, and Bethhoron the nether, walled cities, with gates, and bars, and locks.

6 Balaath also, and all the strong cities that were Solomon's, and all the cities of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen. All that Solomon had a mind, and designed, he built in Jerusalem, and in Libanus, and in all the land of his dominion.

7 All the people that were left of the Hethites, and the Amorrites, and the Pherezites, and the Hevites, and the Jebusites, that were not of the stock of Israel:

8 Of their children, and of the posterity, whom the children of Israel had not slain, Solomon made to be the tributaries, unto this day.

9 But of the children of Israel he set none to serve

* A. M. 3012, A. C. 992. 3 Kings ix. 10.

VER. 2. Given back, (T.) as he refused to accept of the present. Some think that (C.) Hiram gave these cities in exchange for the others. Salien. M.

VER. 3. Emath, or Emesa, on the Orontes. This city had belonged to Thon, who cultivated the friendship of David. 2 K. viii. 9. But after the death of these princes, it had given some offence to Solomon, who took it, as well as Palmira, or Thadmor, though not perhaps in person.

VER. 4. Strong. Heb. "the cities of tents." Ex. i. 11. C.—Prot. "store-cities," (H.) for corn, &c.

VER. 8. Tributaries. Heb. also, "to work," at cutting stones, &c. 1 Par. xxii. 2. Some of their descendants returned from captivity. Ib. ix. 2.

VER. 10. Fifty. These were different from the 550 overseers. 3 K. ix. 23.

VER. 11. Into it. It was deemed improper for a pagan woman to reside in the same place. C.—She had perhaps pretended, at first, to be converted, but had lately given some signs of relapse. Salien.—Solomon was as yet far from communicating with infidels. W.

in the king's works: for they were men of war, and chief captains, and rulers of his chariots and horsemen.

10 And all the chief captains of king Solomon's army were two hundred and fifty, who taught the people.

11 And he removed the daughter of Pharaoh from the city of David, to the house which he had built for her. For the king said: My wife shall not dwell in the house of David, king of Israel: for it is sanctified: because the ark of the Lord came into it.

12 Then Solomon offered holocausts to the Lord upon the altar of the Lord, which he had built before the porch, 13 That every day an offering might be made on it, according to the ordinance of Moses, in the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the festival days three times a year, that is to say, in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles.

14 And he appointed, according to the order of David, his father, the offices of the priests in their ministries: and the Levites, in their order, to give praise, and minister before the priests, according to the duty of every day: and the porters, in their divisions, by gate and gate: for so David, the man of God, had commanded.

15 And the priests and Levites departed not from the king's commandments, as to any thing that he had commanded, and as to the keeping of the treasures.

16 Solomon had all charges prepared, from the day that he founded the house of the Lord, until the day wherein he finished it.

17 Then Solomon went to Asiongaber, and to Ailath, on the coast of the Red Sea, which is in the land of Edom.

18 And Hiram sent him ships by the hands of his servants, and skilful mariners; and they went with Solomon's servants to Ophir, and they took thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought it to king Solomon.

CHAP. IX.

The queen of Saba admireth the wisdom of Solomon. His riches and glory. His death.

AND ^bwhen the queen of Saba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to try him with hard questions, at Jerusalem, with great riches and camels, which carried spices, and abundance of gold and precious

* 8 Kings iii. 1.—† 3 Kings x. 1.

VER. 14. And gate, at their respective posts. See I Par. xxvi. H.
VER. 15. Treasures. The regulations of David were exactly observed. C.
VER. 17. Asiongaber, which was called Bernice, (Joseph. viii. 2.) and now Suez. T.

VER. 18. Ships; not perhaps from Tyre, but from the Red Sea. C.—Others think that he sent them by a canal, which opened a communication between the Mediterranean and Suez, (Huet) the distance of about ninety miles. Pliny ii. 68.—But this canal seems to have been made after the age of Solomon. Hence others imagine that the ships were taken in pieces, or conveyed by land, as has been sometimes done. Mahomet II. transported ships across the isthmus of Corinth. Alexander the Great conveyed on chariots the ships which had been used to cross the Indus, as far as the Hydaspes. Arrian. vii. C.—Skilful mariners. They were the most expert, and the inventors of navigation. Prima ratem ventis tradere docta Tyrrus. Tibul. See Wisd. xiv. 6.—Ophir, the kingdom of Pegu, in the East Indies, (T.) or some other distant land. H.—Fifty. Thirty are omitted, 3 K. ix. 28, as they were expended in the voyage. C.—Yet the Heb. letters for twenty and fifty are extremely similar. D.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Saba. See 3 K. x. 1. This queen resided in Arabia or Abyssinia. H.—Questions. They were not of a trifling nature, as she is commended by Christ. D.

VER. † House; the royal palace, or rather the temple, which was much more magnificent than any thing in the East.

stones. And when she was come to Solomon, she proposed to him all that was in her heart.

2 And Solomon explained to her all that she proposed: and there was not any thing that he did not make clear unto her.

3 And when she had seen these things, to wit, the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built,

4 And the meats of his table, and the dwelling-places of his servants, and the attendance of his officers, and their apparel, his cup-bearers also, and their garments, and the victims which he offered in the house of the Lord, there was no more spirit in her, she was so astonished.

5 And she said to the king: The word is true which I heard in my country, of thy virtues and wisdom.

6 I did not believe them that told it, until I came, and my eyes had seen it, and I had proved that scarce one half of thy wisdom had been told me: thou hast exceeded the fame with thy virtues.

7 Happy are thy men, and happy are thy servants, who stand always before thee, and hear thy wisdom.

8 Blessed be the Lord, thy God, who hath been pleased to set thee on his throne, king of the Lord, thy God. Because God loveth Israel, and will preserve them for ever: therefore hath he made thee king over them, to do judgment and justice.

9 And she gave to the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and spices in great abundance, and most precious stones: there were no such spices as these which the queen of Saba gave to king Solomon.

10 And the servants also of Hiram, with the servants of Solomon, brought gold from Ophir, and thyine-trees, and most precious stones:

11 And the king made of the thyine-trees stairs in the house of the Lord, and in the king's house, and harps and psalteries for the singing men: never were there seen such trees in the land of Juda.

12 And king Solomon gave to the queen of Saba all that she desired, and that she asked, and many more things than she brought to him: so she returned, and went to her own country, with her servants.

13 And the weight of the gold that was brought to Solomon every year, was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold:

14 Beside the sum which the deputies of divers na-

Matt. xii. 42. Luke xi. 81.

VER. 5. Virtues. Heb. "words," or of what regards thee (C.) and thy exploits. T.

VER. 6. Fame. Heb. and Sept. "the fame which I had heard." H.

VER. 8. King of the Lord. Hence the style, "By the grace of God, king of England," &c. has been adopted. Those deserve the name, who rule according to God's will. W.—The kings of the Jews were more properly lieutenants of God, as the government was a theocracy. C. xiii. 8. &c.

VER. 10. Thyine-trees, very odoriferous. C.—Heb. almugim: 3 K. almugim, as the letters are frequently transposed in Heb. D.—Huet thinks these were citron-trees, which did not produce fruit, but were used to make costly tables, and were a species of cedars.

VER. 11. Stairs. Heb. "hands," (D.) or banisters, from the palace to the temple. Junius.

VER. 12. And many. Heb. "besides that which she had brought unto the king." Prot. It is however certain that Solomon made use of many of her presents, and therefore he returned her others in greater profusion, or, as it is expressed, 3 K. besides what he offered her of himself of his royal bounty. H.

VER. 13. Gold, each worth 5475*l*. (Arbuthnot) so that this part of the revenue alone would amount to 3,648,350*l*. sterling, annually. II.

VER. 14. Beside. Heb. "besides that which chapmen and merchants brought." Prot. The deputies appear to be the tax-gatherers. 3 K. x. 15. H.

tions, and the merchants, were accustomed to bring, and all the kings of Arabia, and the lords of the lands, who brought gold and silver to Solomon.

15 And king Solomon made two hundred golden spears, of the sum of six hundred pieces of gold, which went to every spear:

16 And three hundred golden shields, of three hundred pieces of gold, which went to the covering of every shield: and the king put them in the armoury, which was compassed with a wood.

17 The king also made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold.

18 And six steps to go up to the throne, and a footstool of gold, and two arms, one on either side, and two lions standing by the arms:

19 Moreover, twelve other little lions standing upon the steps on both sides: there was not such a throne in any kingdom.

20 And all the vessels of the king's table were of gold, and the vessels of the house of the forest of Libanus, were of the purest gold. For no account was made of silver in those days.

21 For the king's ships went to Tharsis, with the servants of Hiram, once in three years: and they brought thence gold and silver, and ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

22 And Solomon was magnified above all the kings of the earth for riches and glory.

23 And all the kings of the earth desired to see the face of Solomon, that they might hear the wisdom which God had given in his heart.

24 And every year they brought him presents, vessels of silver and of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, and horses, and mules.

25 And Solomon had forty thousand horses in the stables, and twelve thousand chariots, and horsemen, and he placed them in the cities of the chariots, and where the king was in Jerusalem.

26 And he exercised authority over all the kings from the river Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, and to the borders of Egypt.

27 And he made silver as plentiful in Jerusalem as stones: and cedars as common as the sycamores, which grow in the plains.

28 And horses were brought to him out of Egypt, and out of all countries.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, first and last, are written in the words of Nathan, the prophet, and in the books of Ahias, the Silonite, and in the vision of Addo, the seer, against Jeroboam, the son of Nabat.

30 And Solomon reigned in Jerusalem, over all Israel, forty years.

* A. M. 3029, A. C. 975.—3 Kings xii. 1. A. M. 3029.

VER. 16. Pieces. In 3 K. we read, three pounds.—Wood; or, "in the palace of the forest of Libanus," (3 K. x. 17. C.) as it is expressed in the Sept. T.

VER. 18. Arms. Prot. "stays." H.—Heb. in 3 K. seems clearer and more correct. C.

VER. 20. Days. We sometimes find the figure, hyperbole, used in Scripture for things unusual. C. i. 16. W.

VER. 21. Tharsis. Any distant place was so called. T.

VER. 25. Thousand. In 3 K. we read, 1400 chariots; and here Heb. has, "4000 stables, (C.) or stalls for horses and chariots;" (Prot.) and the Sept. "4000 mares for the chariots, and 12,000 horsemen." H.—There might be ten horses in each stable. D.

31 And he slept *with his fathers: and they buried him in the city of David: and Roboam, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. X.

Roboam answereth his people roughly: upon which ten tribes revolt.

AND ^bRoboam went to Sichem: for thither all Israel were assembled, to make him king.

2 And when Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, who was in Egypt, (for he was fled thither from Solomon) heard it, forthwith he returned.

3 And they sent for him, and he came with all Israel, and they spoke to Roboam, saying:

4 Thy father oppressed us with a most grievous yoke; do thou govern us with a lighter hand than thy father, who laid upon us a heavy servitude, and ease something of the burden, that we may serve thee.

5 And he said to them: Come to me again after three days. And when the people were gone,

6 He took counsel with the ancients, who had stood before his father, Solomon, while he yet lived, saying: What counsel give ye to me, that I may answer the people?

7 And they said to him: If thou please this people, and sooth them with kind words, they will be thy servants for ever.

8 But he forsook the counsel of the ancients, and began to treat with the young men, that had been brought up with him, and were in his train.

9 And he said to them: What seemeth good to you? or what shall I answer this people, who have said to me: Ease the yoke which thy father laid upon us?

10 But they answered as young men, and brought up with him in pleasures, and said: Thus shalt thou speak to the people that said to thee: Thy father made our yoke heavy; do thou ease it: thus shalt thou answer them: My little finger is thicker than the loins of my father.

11 My father laid upon you a heavy yoke, and I will add more weight to it: my father beat you with scourges, but I will beat you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam, and all the people, came to Roboam the third day, as he commanded them.

13 And the king answered roughly, leaving the counsel of the ancients.

14 And he spoke according to the advice of the young men: My father laid upon you a heavy yoke, which I will make heavier: my father beat you with scourges, but I will beat you with scorpions.

15 And he condescended not to the people's requests: for it was the will of God, that his word might be fulfilled, *which he had spoken by the hand of Ahias, the Silonite, to Jeroboam, the son of Nabat.

* 3 Kings xi. 29.

VER. 29. Seer. The works of these three are not extant. M.—The fall of Solomon is recorded, 3 K. xi. W.

CHAP. X. VER. 7. Please. 3 K. xii. "serve." By a little condescension, thou mayst establish thy throne. C.—The people did not complain, till they saw the riches of the nation wasted on wicked women (T.) and idola. D.

VER. 11. Scorpions; thorns, or scourges armed with hooks. Colum. iii. 10.—Roboam had not sense to despise the foolish advice of the young men. T.

VER. 15. Will of God: not that the king should act foolishly, or the people rebel, but to effect what he had promised. H.—Syriac has well expressed the sense: "because this rebellion happened by the divine permission, that they might behold the truth of the prediction of Ahias;" (C.) and that the fault of Solomon might be punished. D.

16 And all the people, upon the king's speaking roughly, said thus unto him: We have no part in David, nor inheritance in the son of Isai. Return to thy dwellings, O Israel, and do thou, O David, feed thy own house. And Israel went away to their dwellings.

17 But Roboam reigned over the children of Israel, that dwelt in the cities of Juda.

18 And king Roboam sent Aduram, who was over the tributes, and the children of Israel stoned him, and he died: and king Roboam made haste to get up into his chariot, and fled into Jerusalem.

19 And Israel revolted from the house of David, unto this day.

CHAP. XI.

Roboam's reign. His kingdom is strengthened.

AND Roboam came to Jerusalem, and called together all the house of Juda, and of Benjamin, a hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men and warriors, to fight against Israel, and to bring back his kingdom to him.

2 And the word of the Lord came to Semeias, the man of God, saying:

3 Speak to Roboam, the son of Solomon, the king of Juda, and to all Israel, in Juda and Benjamin:

4 Thus saith the Lord: You shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren: let every man return to his own house, for by my will this thing has been done. And when they heard the word of the Lord, they returned, and did not go against Jeroboam.

5 And Roboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and built walled cities in Juda.

6 And he built Bethlehem, and Etam, and Thecue,

7 And Bethsur, and Socho, and Odollam,

8 And Geth, and Maresa, and Ziph,

9 And Aduram, and Lachis, and Azecha,

10 Saraa also, and Aialon, and Hebron, which are in Juda and Benjamin, well fenced cities.

11 And when he had enclosed them with walls, he put in them governors and storehouses of provisions, that is, of oil and of wine.

12 Moreover, in every city he made an armoury of shields and spears, and he fortified them with great diligence, and he reigned over Juda and Benjamin.

^a A. M. 8080, A. C. 974. 8 Kings xii. 21.

VER. 16. People. Heb. "and when all Israel saw that the king would not hearken unto them, the people answered the king, saying: What portion have we in David?" Prot.—Duellings. Many ancient Latin MSS. here insert 3 K. xii. 20. Lyrar. &c. C.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Chosen. Sept. "young" (H.) as the Heb. term also signifies. T.—Hia. Heb. "the kingdom again to Roboam."

VER. 4. Will, to punish the disorders of Solomon, &c. See 3 K. xii. 24. Gen. xiv. 8. God knows how to draw good out of evil, without approving the misconduct of men. H.

VER. 5. Juda. This was now become a frontier country, and both kings were forced to erect fortifications. 3 K. xii. 25.

VER. 6. Etam, famous for fine waters and gardens, (Joseph. viii. 2.) about ten miles from Jerusalem, on the road to Hebron. It was fortified against the incursions of Simeon and Dan. C.

VER. 11. Governors, of a military character. Heb. "captains, (T.) and store of provisions, (wheat) and of oil," &c. such as would be requisite in a siege.

VER. 14. Off. This was done at different times; so that almost all the Levites took refuge in the dominions of Juda. Yet some prevaricated. Ezechiel (xlv. 12.) only exempts the family of Sadoc. C.—The rest set before us a noble example to endure temporal loss, rather than to neglect the practice of religion, or to conform to a false one. W.

VER. 15. Devils. Heb. "goats." C.—Sept. express this by two names, "for the idols, and for the fools." H.—The Mendesians of Egypt, solemnly worshipped the goat; and Pan was represented nearly in the same form. Yet it is probable that the Hebrews style the idols by this name out of derision. 3 K. xi. 2. C.

13 And the priests and Levites, that were in all Israel, came to him out of all their seats, 14 Leaving their suburbs and their possessions, and passing over to Juda and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons had cast them off, from executing the priestly office to the Lord.

15 And he made to himself priests for the high places, and for the devils, and for the calves which he had made.

16 Moreover, out of all the tribes of Israel, whosoever gave their heart to seek the Lord, the God of Israel, came into Jerusalem to sacrifice their victims before the Lord, the God of their fathers.

17 And they strengthened the kingdom of Juda, and established Roboam, the son of Solomon, for three years: for they walked in the ways of David and of Solomon, only three years.

18 And Roboam took to wife Mahalath, the daughter of Jerimoth, the son of David: and Abihail, the daughter of Eliab, the son of Isai.

19 And they bore him sons, Jehus, and Somorias, and Zoom.

20 And after her he married Maacha, the daughter of Absalom, who bore him Abia, and Ethai, and Ziza, and Salomith.

21 And Roboam loved Maacha, the daughter of Absalom, above all his wives and concubines: for he had married eighteen wives, and threescore concubines: and he begot eight and twenty sons, and threescore daughters.

22 But he put at the head of them Abia, the son of Maacha, to be the chief ruler over all his brethren: for he meant to make him king,

23 Because he was wiser and mightier than all his sons, and in all the countries of Juda, and of Benjamin, and in all the walled cities: and he gave them provisions in abundance, and he sought many wives.

CHAP. XII.

Roboam, for his sins, is delivered up into the hands of the king of Egypt: who carrieth away all the treasures of the temple.

AND when the kingdom of Roboam was strengthened and fortified, he forsook the law of the Lord, and all Israel with him.

^b A. M. 8082.

VER. 17. They, the pious refugees. T. C. xv. 9.—Solomon, while virtuous.—Only is not expressed in Heb. or Sept. but it is sufficiently implied.

VER. 18. Daughter. Heb. ban, "the son." But bath, "daughter," (H.) occurs properly in some MSS. as in the ancient versions. Leusden has here this very odd note: "perhaps by ban, (with a pathah) here both sexes may be understood." Fortis per ban hic intelligitur uterque sexus. Kennicott.—Prot. substitute, "daughter." H.

VER. 20. Daughter, or grand-daughter, by Thamar. 3 K. xv. 2. C.

VER. 22. Head. Sept. "prince." H.—Grotius maintains that Abia was the eldest. But all others are of a contrary opinion, and believe that Roboam derogated from the law, (Deut. xxi. 16. C.) as David had done, unless it was left to the option of the king to appoint whom he pleased for his successor. H.—Meant. Prot. supply, "he thought" which is found in the Sept.

VER. 23. Because. Sept. "And he was magnified above . . . and he gave them (cities, avrais) abundance," &c. This may be all understood of Abia. But Heb. rather speaks of his father: "And he acted wisely, and dispersed all his other children, throughout the countries of Juda;" (H.) keeping them at a distance, to prevent any commotion, (C.) but making ample provision and procuring wives for them, perhaps at no small cost, as few might wish to be thus prisoners at large. T.—It was probably then the custom to educate the royal children in the noblest families. See 4 K. x. 1. C.—This would also tend to increase their father's influence, and to make them better acquainted with the country, that they might be able to communicate all necessary intelligence. H.—Pagnin and Vatable insinuate, that Roboam "caused to be educated and dispersed some of all his children, throughout all the lands of Juda." M.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. Israel. in his dominions. The kingdom of Jeroboam

2 And in the fifth year *of the reign of Roboam, Sesac, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem (because they had sinned against the Lord)

3 With twelve hundred chariots, and threescore thousand horsemen: and the people were without number that came with him out of Egypt; to wit, Lybians, and Troglodites, and Ethiopians.

4 And he took the strongest cities in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

5 And Semeias, the prophet, came to Roboam, and to the princes of Juda, that were gathered together in Jerusalem, fleeing from Sesac, and he said to them: Thus saith the Lord: You have left me, and I have left you in the hand of Sesac.

6 And the princes of Israel, and the king, being in a consternation, said: The Lord is just.

7 And when the Lord saw that they were humbled, the word of the Lord came to Semeias, saying: Because they are humbled, I will not destroy them, and I will give them a little help, and my wrath shall not fall upon Jerusalem by the hand of Sesac.

8 But yet they shall serve him, that they may know the difference between my service, and the service of a kingdom of the earth.

9 So Sesac, king of Egypt, departed from Jerusalem, taking away the treasures of the house of the Lord, and of the king's house, and he took all with him, and the golden shields that Solomon had made,

10 Instead of which the king made brazen ones, and delivered them to the captains of the shield-bearers, who guarded the entrance of the palace.

11 And when the king entered into the house of the Lord, the shield-bearers came and took them, and brought them back again to their armoury.

12 But yet, because they were humbled, the wrath of the Lord turned away from them, and they were had long before apostatized, though there were still many true servants of God, who would not bend the knee before Baal, v. 12. H.

* A. M. 3038, A. C. 971. 8 Kings xiv. 25.—b 8 Kings xiv. 21.

VER. 3. Troglodites, who dwell in caverns, near the Red Sea. Pliny (v. 8. and vi. 29.) speaks of the city Suca, which in Heb. means a tent, as here we read succiyim, (H.) "dwelling in tents;" which some explain of the Arabs, who are called Scenites, on the same account. T.—People of this description, without any fixed abode, inhabited the Stony as well as the Desert Arabia. C. xiv. 14.

VER. 7. A little help. I will not suffer them to be quite destroyed. Heb. also signifies, "shortly." C.—Fall, (stillabit) like drops of water, even to the last. H.—How soon is God appeased! T.—Even when he punishes, he does not let the whole flood of his indignation fall upon the guilty. M.

VER. 10. Bearers. Heb. "runners," as the guards attended the king on foot.

VER. 12. For even. Prot. "and also in Judah things went well;" (H.) or, 'he spoke good words even to Juda.' C.—Sept. "for even in Juda there were good words, and in all pleasing." Words are often put for works. H.—The Lord regarded the fidelity of some, and the humility of the princes. C.—This advantage was derived from tribulation, that the king entered into himself, at least for a time: (H.) but he was not constant, v. 14. After the scourge was withdrawn, he presently relapsed. He had betrayed great cowardice, as even his son confessed; and had probably been treated with great indignity, (T.) as it was the custom with Sesac, or Sesostris, to chain the conquered princes to his triumphal car, and to leave obscene representations of women in the country. Joseph. viii. 4. Herod. ii.—Sesostris proceeded to the conquest of Asia. T.

VER. 14. Lord, with sincerity, being actuated only by a servile fear. He died impenitent. C.

VER. 15. And diligently. Heb. "in their genealogical accounts." H. See C. xiii. 22.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 2. Michaia, alias Maacha. Her father had also two names; viz. Abasalom or Abessalom, and Uriel. Ch.—Many had two names. T.—Of Gabaa, may refer to the women.

VER. 3. War. The author of the new edition of S. Jerom mentions two MSS. and there are several printed editions, which reduce these numbers to one half. Castalic adopts this correction, asserting that the Greek and Josephus are on his side, which is not true. C.—We must however observe, that there is some doubt with respect to Josephus, (H.) as some of the oldest Latin editions acknowledge the smaller numbers; and Vignoles (i. 29.) conjectures, that the not utterly destroyed: for even in Juda there were found good works.

13 *King Roboam, therefore, was strengthened in Jerusalem, and reigned: he was one and forty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the Lord chose out of all the tribes of Israel, to establish his name there: and the name of his mother was Naama, an Ammonitess.

14 But he did evil, and did not prepare his heart to seek the Lord.

15 Now the acts of Roboam, first and last, are written in the books of Semeias, the prophet, and of Addo. the seer, and diligently recorded: and there was war between Roboam and Jeroboam, all their days.

16 And Roboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David. And Abia, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XIII.

Abia's reign: his victory over Jeroboam.

IN *the eighteenth year of king Jerobam, Abia reigned over Juda.

2 Three years he reigned in Jerusalem, and his mother's name was Michaia, the daughter of Uriel, of Gabaa: and there was war between Abia and Jeroboam.

3 *And when Abia had begun battle, and had with him four hundred thousand most valiant and chosen men: Jeroboam put his army in array against him, eight hundred thousand men, who were also chosen, and most valiant for war.

4 And Abia stood upon Mount Semeron, which was in Ephraim, and said: Hear me, O Jeroboam, and all Israel:

5 Do you not know that the Lord God of Israel gave to David the kingdom over Israel for ever, to him and to his sons, by a covenant of salt?

6 And Jeroboam, the son of Nabat, the servant of

* A. M. 3046, A. C. 958. 8 Kings xv. 2.—d 8 Kings xv. 7. A. M. 3047.

Greek copies did the same formerly, since Aborbanel "accuses Josephus of having made Jeroboam's loss no more than 50,000, contrary to the Hebrew text," v. 17. This learned author is of opinion, that the Jews sometimes expressed their numbers by figures, (Kennic.) analogous to those which the later Arabs borrowed from the Indians; though, in more ancient times, the letters of the alphabet had been used. Both customs seem to have prevailed; (Erpenius) and this may account for many variations, as the omission of a single cypher, resembling our period (.), might easily occasion much confusion. Kennicott (Dias. i. and ii.) seems to suspect, that the ancient versions have been made to agree with the corrupted Heb. no less than Josephus; and that many of the large numbers, recorded in Scripture, (which might countenance what we here read) are incorrect. See C. xvii. 18. 19. and xiv. 8. comp. with xvi. 1. and xxv. 6. comp. with 4 K. xiii. 7. It is certain (H.) many Latin MSS. confirm the edition of Sixtus V. which has the smaller numbers; and this is the case with most of the older MSS. and editions. How S. Jerom expressed it, we cannot easily determine. The editor of his works has been guided chiefly by the Memmian canon. See 2 K. xv. 7. Lyran quotes S. Jerom, as reading 50,000; (v. 7) and it is so expressed in the Paris editions of 1534 and (H.) 1546, of the Heb. questions on Paral. But Erasmus doubts whether this be the genuine work of S. Jerom, (Ken.) or in the state in which he left it. If we consult the more ancient MSS. and editions, prior to that of Clement VIII. we shall allow that they are more favourable to the smaller numbers, on this occasion; and are more likely to exhibit the pure version of the holy doctor, (H.) as the later editions have had "the Heb. foundations" also in view. Kennicott.—If however we adhere to the received numbers, (H.) we must remember that kings, at that time, led forth to battle all their subjects who were able to bear arms. Under Moses there were 600,000. David found 1,100,000 in Israel, and 470,000 in Juda, exclusive of Levi and Benjamin; (C. xxi. 5.) or, at least, as it is expressed 2 K. xxiv. 9. in all, 1,300,000. Asa was at the head of 580,000. C. xiv. 8. &c.

VER. 4. Semeron, on which Samaria was afterwards built. Heb. reads, "Mount Tsemaraim." There was a city of this name in Benjamin. C.—But this was a mount. Heb. "in Mount Ephraim." H.

VER. 5. A covenant of salt. That is, a firm and perpetual covenant. See Num. xviii. 19. Ch. W.—It seemed this covenant was to be inviolable; and it had its effect, notwithstanding the crimes of many of the kings. The Arabs still regard the partaking of bread and salt as the most sacred covenant. C.—"The (541)

Solomon, the son of David, rose up: *and rebelled against his lord.

7 And there were gathered to him vain men, and children of Belial: and they prevailed against Roboam, the son of Solomon: for Roboam was unexperienced, and of a fearful heart, and could not resist them.

8 And now you say that you are able to withstand the kingdom of the Lord, which he possesseth by the sons of David, and you have a great multitude of people, and golden calves, which Jeroboam hath made you for gods.

9 *And you have cast out the priests of the Lord, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites: and you have made you priests, like all the nations of the earth: whosoever cometh and consecrateth his hand with a bullock of the herd, and with seven rams, is made a priest of those who are no gods.

10 But the Lord is our God, whom we forsake not; and the priests, who minister to the Lord, are the sons of Aaron, and the Levites are in their order.

11 And they offer holocausts to the Lord every day, morning and evening, and incense, made according to the ordinance of the law, and the loaves are set forth on a most clean table, and there is with us the golden candlestick, and the lamps thereof, to be lighted always in the evening: for we keep the precepts of the Lord, our God, whom you have forsaken.

12 Therefore, God is the leader in our army, and his priests, who sound with trumpets, and resound against you: O children of Israel, fight not against the Lord, the God of your fathers, for it is not good for you.

13 While he spoke these things, Jeroboam caused an ambushment to come about behind him. And while he stood facing the enemies, he encompassed Juda, who perceived it not, with his army.

14 And when Juda looked back, they saw the battle coming upon them, both before and behind, and they cried to the Lord: and the priests began to sound with the trumpets.

* 3 Kings xi. 26.—3 Kings xii. 31.

ancients prayed when they placed salt before their guests, that, as salt partook of two natures, so they might be cemented together in concord." Tzetzetz on Lycoph. H.—Abia speaks with much prudence, and with an air of piety, though his heart was corrupt. 3 K. xv. 8. That of his adversary was still more so; and God granted victory to the former, to reward even the appearance of virtue in the king, and the sincere piety of some of his followers.

VER. 7. Vain. The same term is used as in Matt. v. 22. C.—Rekim, "stupid men." H.—Sept. "pestiferous." Syr. "impious."—Heart. Prot. "young and tender-hearted." H.—But Roboam was not very young; (3 K. xiv. 21.) and we may adhere to the Vulg. C.—Sept. "he was a youth, and timid." H.—Abia speaks of his father with little respect, and seems to have forgotten that he had laid down his arms in obedience to God's order. C.

VER. 8. And golden. These idols will enervate and render your great numbers useless. H.—We have a just cause and religion on our side. C.

VER. 9. Rams. These were sacrificed by the false priests, who acted in a very different manner from those of the Lord. Lev. viii. and ix. C.

VER. 11. Table. It is hence inferred, that Sesac had only left one: (Lyran. l'orniel.) but this does not follow. C. Salien.

VER. 14. Trumpets, to invoke God's aid. Num. x. 9. M.

VER. 15. Terrified. Sept. "struck;" God caused the victory to declare in favour of those who were only half the number. H.

VER. 17. Five. Some Latin editions have 50,000, (C.) which number is found in some MSS. of Epiphanius. Hudson's Josephus.—Hentenius has the same, and only remarks five MSS. which had the greater number. See v. 8. H.—We do not read of such a slaughter in any one battle. But Israel made no resistance, and God assisted the four hundred thousand. M.—Valiant. Prot. "chosen." See C. xiv. 18. H.—So many were either slain or wounded. D.—Prot. intimate all were "slain." H.

VER. 19. Bethel, the head of the calf worship; though Abulensis thinks it was another city, otherwise it would not have been spared. The calf continued (542)

15 And all the men of Juda shouted: and behold when they shouted, God terrified Jeroboam, and all Israel, that stood against Abia and Juda.

16 And the children of Israel fled before Juda, and the Lord delivered them into their hand.

17 And Abia, and his people, slew them with a great slaughter, and there fell wounded of Israel five hundred thousand valiant men.

18 And the children of Israel were brought down, at that time, and the children of Juda were exceedingly strengthened, because they had trusted in the Lord, the God of their fathers.

19 And Abia pursued after Jeroboam, and took cities from him; Bethel, and her daughters, and Jesana, with her daughters, Ephron also, and her daughters.

20 And Jeroboam was not able to resist any more, in the days of Abia: and the Lord struck him, and he died.

21 But Abia, being strengthened in his kingdom, took fourteen wives: and begot two and twenty sons, and sixteen daughters.

22 And the rest of the acts of Abia, and of his ways and works, are written diligently in the book of Addo, the prophet.

CHAP. XIV.

The reign of Asa: his victory over the Ethiopians.

AND *Abia slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Asa, his son, reigned in his stead; in his days, the land was quiet ten years.

2 And Asa did that which was good and pleasing in the sight of his God, and he destroyed the altars of foreign worship, and the high places;

3 And broke the statues, and cut down the groves.

4 And he commanded Juda to seek the Lord, the God of their fathers, and to do the law, and all the commandments.

5 And he took away out of all the cities of Juda the altars, and temples, and reigned in peace.

6 He built also strong cities in Juda, for he was quiet,

* A. M. 3049, A. C. 955. 3 Kings xv. 8.

there till the reign of Jehu. 4 K. x. 28. M.—Jesana; perhaps Senna, (Num. xxxiv. 4. C.) seven miles north of Jericho. Eus.—The versions read differently. —Ephron. The Masorets have Ephraim. C.—Prot. "Ephraim, with the towns thereof." H.—Josue (xv. 9.) places Mount Ephron between Juda and Ephraim; and we find a town of the name, (1 Mac. v. 46.) but on the other side of the Jordan.

VER. 20. Him. Some think Abia, as Jeroboam survived him two years: but others, (C.) with greater probability, (D.) suppose that the latter is here specified, and that he fell a victim to the divine wrath, as the prophet Abias had foretold. C.—Salien, A. 3081.

VER. 22. Works. Prot. "sayings are written in the story of the prophet Iddo." H.—Modross properly means "researches," and was the title of the genealogical work of this prophet, from which this account is probably taken. C. xii. 15. C.—The entire work is not extant. M.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Years, dating from the fifth; as in the fifteenth year of his reign, Asa offered many victims, which had been taken from the enemy C. xv. 10. C.

VER. 2. God, with respect to the external worship of the true God, (H. though he had some faults. 3 K. xv. 14.—Places, while he tolerated those which were intended for the service of the Lord, (C.) though illegally; and he even left the buildings erected by Solomon standing, (4 K. xxiii. 13. T.) thinking they might be no longer dangerous. Salien.—Several other pious kings did the like, for which they deserved some reprehension; as they could not be ignorant, that this was considered as wrong by the more enlightened. Eccli. xlix. 5. T.—It was the king's duty to destroy the exterior practices of idolatry, while the priests and prophets were to instruct. W.

VER. 5. Altars. Heb. "high places, and the Chamasim," or temples of the sun. Lev. xxvi. 30. C.—Prot. "images." H.—Asa was encouraged to perfect the work which he had begun, by the exhortation of Azarias. C. xv. 8. C.

VER. 6. Time, as yet. T.—Admirable lesson for all to prepare for war in time of quiet! H. and there had no wars risen in his time, the Lord giving peace.

7 And he said to Juda: Let us build these cities, and compass them with walls, and fortify them with towers, and gates, and bars, while all is quiet from wars, because we have sought the Lord, the God of our fathers, and he hath given us peace round about. So they built, and there was no hindrance in building.

8 And Asa had in his army of men that bore shields and spears; of Juda, three hundred thousand; and of Benjamin, that bore shields and drew bows, two hundred and eighty thousand, all these were most valiant men.

9 And Zara, the Ethiopian, came out against them, with his army of ten hundred thousand men, and with three hundred chariots: and he came as far as Maresa.

10 And Asa went out to meet him, and set his army in array for battle in the vale of Sephata, which is near Maresa:

11 And he called upon the Lord God, and said: Lord, there is no difference with thee, whether thou help with few or with many: help us, O Lord, our God: for with confidence in thee, and in thy name, we are come against this multitude. O Lord, thou art our God, let not man prevail against thee.

12 And the Lord terrified the Ethiopians before Asa and Juda: and the Ethiopians fled.

13 And Asa, and the people that were with him, pursued them to Gerara: and the Ethiopians fell even to utter destruction; for the Lord slew them, and his army fought against them, and they were destroyed. And they took abundance of spoils,

• A. M. 3063, A. C. 941.

VER. 9. Ethiopian. Some think Zara was a successor of Sesac; and the Rabbin say, that he "restored the spoils which the latter had taken." Seder. xvi. —He at least, made the Jews some compensation for that loss. Perhaps he had been present in the expedition of Sesac, and was now animated with the same ambition. T.—It would be difficult for a foreign king to traverse Egypt with so large an army, (C.) unless he had conquered or intimidated the king of the country. H.—Hence some believe that the Ethiopia here in question, was a part of Arabia. C. Torniel.—But it is more probable that it lay south of Egypt, as the troops of Zara are joined with the Lybians. C. xvi. 8. Salien, A. 3094. T.—A king of Arabia would hardly have had so many subjects. C.—Three. Some would read thirteen, as Anani takes notice of the great number of chariots. C. xvi. 8. Jun. Malvenda. C.—But surely the number here specified is sufficient. The minds of men are very different. In the former chapter we find them complaining of the too great numbers! H.

VER. 10. Meet him, fearing lest he should lay waste his dominions, as Sesac had done. M.—Sephata, or Sephala, a great valley to the west of Maresa, (C.) which is a city of Juda. M.—Sept. have, "in the vale north of Maresa." H.

VER. 11. Help. Heb. "to help; whether with many, or with those who have no power." The same sentiment was expressed by Jonathas. 1 K. xiv. 6. Those who have God with them are secure of victory. C.—If God be with us, who is against us?

VER. 12. Terrified. Heb. and Sept. "struck," as he had done Jeroboam. C. xiii. 15. H.

VER. 13. Gerara was on the southern borders, twenty-three miles from Maresa. Eus. C.—The Ethiopians were pursued perhaps for many days. T.—Destruction. Prot. "that they could not recover themselves." Heb. "there was no quarter given;" or, "so that none were left alive." C.—If this were the case, the number of the slain far exceeded that of Jeroboam's army. C. xiii. H.

VER. 14. Gerara. The adjacent territory is now uncultivated. Joa. xiii. 3. —Great. Heb. "a fear of the Lord;" (v. 12) an extraordinary (C.) panic. H.—The Philistines had assisted the enemy, and therefore their cities were invaded; (M.) or these belonged to Zara. C.

VER. 15. Destroyed. Heb. "smote also the tents of cattle." Sept. "they cut in pieces the tents of cattle, the Amazons;" or, according to the Vat. copy, (H.) "the Alimazonians," as they seem to have read aeli manim, which may be well rendered, "the tents of the Mineans," a people of Arabia. C. xx. 1. and xxvi. 7. and Judg. x. 11. C.—If these nations came to punish Asa, for banishing their foreign worship, (v. 12) as the Sieur de Folard thinks the sacred penman insinuates, (v. 5) we need not wonder that they met with such ill success, and that not one of them was spared, as God avenged his own cause, v. 12. 13. H.—We read of no cavalry here, though it is mentioned, C. xvi. 8. It seems not to have been considerable, as the people of Asia, the Greeks and Romans, trusted more to 14 And they took all the cities round about Gerara: for a great fear was come upon all men: and they pillaged the cities, and carried off much booty.

15 And they destroyed the sheep-cotes, and took an infinite multitude of cattle, and of camels: and returned to Jerusalem.

CHAP. XV.

The prophecy of Azarias. Asa's covenant with God. He deposeth his mother.

AND the spirit of God came upon Azarias, the son of Oded,

2 And he went out to meet Asa, and said to him: Hear ye me, Asa, and all Juda and Benjamin: The Lord is with you, because you have been with him. If you seek him, you shall find: but if you forsake him, he will forsake you.

3 And many days shall pass in Israel, without the true God, and without a priest a teacher, and without the law.

4 And when in their distress, they shall return to the Lord, the God of Israel, and shall seek him, they shall find him.

5 At that time, there shall be no peace to him that goeth out and cometh in, but terrors on every side, among all the inhabitants of the earth.

6 For nation shall fight against nation, and city against city; for the Lord will trouble them with all distress.

7 Do you, therefore, take courage, and let not your hands be weakened: for there shall be a reward for your work.

8 And when Asa had heard the words, and the prophecy of Azarias, the son of Oded, the prophet, he took their infantry; and, in effect, no species of warfare is more costly to a state, nor less useful, than a multitude of horses, which were introduced in barbarous times. De Folard.

• 1 Kings xiv. 6.—A. M. 3063.

CHAP. XV. VER. 1. Azarias is called Oded in Heb. v. 8. C.—But he was his son. H.—There was a high priest of the name of Azarias, about the same time. M.

VER. 2. With him. He will continue thus to protect you, if you prove faithful. The Pelagians hence inferred, that man was to prepare his own heart for the reception of grace. But the text only speaks of external aid; and though it were understood of internal grace, (C.) we may merit an increase of grace, by a faithful co-operation (W.) with that with which God has presented us. E. C.

VER. 3. Shall pass, is not found in Heb. &c. and many supply, "had been." D.—The Jews, and some interpreters, would explain all this of what had passed already; (C.) and this is the idea of the Prot. "Now, for a long season, Israel hath been without," &c. H.—But the conclusion convinces us that this is a prediction; (v. 7) take courage. You shall not be involved in these miseries. Some explain the whole of the kingdom of Israel, which, from its commencement till after its final ruin, persevered in its rebellion against the true God. Sanctius.—Others think the kingdom of Juda was also concerned, and its state of captivity at Babylon foretold. Lyran.—But its full completion includes the latter ages, particularly after the murder of the Messiah, (T.) and seems of the same nature as the prophecy of Osee, (iii. 4.) as our Saviour himself insinuates. Mat. xxiv. 6. 9. 13. C.

VER. 4. And when. Sept. "and he shall convert them to the Lord, . . and shall be found by them." H.—This will be verified in the last days. Rom. xi. 26. M.

VER. 5. Cometh in, in public or private transactions. See Lev. xxvi. 36.

VER. 6. Nation, both in the times of Baasa, who fought against Asa, and afterwards. For the same prophecy may be literally explained of more things than one. M.—Distress. Our Saviour says, Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, &c. But he that shall persevere to the end, he shall be saved.

VER. 8. Azarias, the son, is omitted in Heb. and the Vat. Sept. which reads Adad, (H.) but it is supplied in the other editions, and in the Syriac, (C.) as v. 1. H.—Taken: we do not read on what occasion. C. xvii. 2. His father had seized upon Bethel, &c. C. xiii. 19. C.—Yet Asa waged war himself with the king of Israel.—Dedicated. Sept. "renewed," as the altar had been neglected, or injured by the continual fire; (M.) or this was the extraordinary (H.) altar, which Solomon had used at the dedication of the temple. The multitude of Asa's victims required more than one, v. 11. It is not probable that God's worship had been neglected till the 15th year of this pious king, (v. 9) since even his wicked father was punctual in this respect. C. xiii. 11. Before, at the higher end of the priests' court, to the east of the altar of holocausts. C.

courage, and took away the idols out of all the land of Juda, and out of Benjamin, and out of the cities of Mount Ephraim, which he had taken, and he dedicated the altar of the Lord, which was before the porch of the Lord.

9 And he gathered together all Juda and Benjamin, and the strangers with them, of Ephraim, and Manasses, and Simeon: for many were come over to him out of Israel, seeing that the Lord, his God, was with him.

10 And when they were come to Jerusalem, in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa,

11 They sacrificed to the Lord in that day of the spoils, and of the prey, that they had brought, seven hundred oxen, and seven thousand rams.

12 And he went in to confirm as usual the covenant, that they should seek the Lord, the God of their fathers, with all their heart, and with all their soul.

13 And if any one, said he, seek not the Lord, the God of Israel, let him die, whether little or great, man or woman.

14 And they swore to the Lord, with a loud voice, with joyful shouting, and with sound of trumpet, and sound of cornets,

15 All that were in Juda with a curse: for with all their heart they swore, and with all their will they sought him, and they found him, and the Lord gave them rest round about.

16 Moreover, Maacha, the mother of king Asa, he deposed from the royal authority, because she had made in a grove an idol of Priapus: and he entirely destroyed it, and breaking it into pieces, burnt it at the torrent Cedron.

17 But high places were left in Israel: nevertheless, the heart of Asa was perfect all his days.

18 And the things which his father had vowed, and he himself had vowed, he brought into the house of the Lord, gold and silver, and vessels, of divers uses.

19 And there was no war unto the five and thirtieth year of the kingdom of Asa.

* A. M. 3064, A. C. 940.

VER. 9. Simeon. This tribe was intimately connected with that of Juda, though many had revolted. Some afterwards returned, as they did from other parts, actuated either by motives of interest or of religion. C. xxxiv. 6. 3 K. xi. 13. C.

VER. 10. Month, Sivan, or May, when the feast of Pentecost occurs. M.

VER. 11. Spoils, which they had sold, and now testified their gratitude. T.—Rama. Prot. "sheep."

VER. 12. He went. Heb. and Sept. "They proceeded, according to the covenant, to seek." H.—They swore upon the altar, or passed between the divided victims. Gen. xv. 9. 17. C.—This solemn act was usual, and more necessary in times of trouble. M.

VER. 13. Said he, is not in Heb. &c. H.—Die, according to Deut. xvii. 7.

VER. 15. Curse. Heb. "oath." M.—Sept. "all Juda rejoiced on account of the oath." H.

VER. 16. Mother, or grandmother. C.—There were perhaps two of the name, and Abia had married one as well as Roboam. M.—Deposed, &c. Heb. "from being queen." Sept. "he removed Maacha, . . that she should not minister to Astarte; and he cut the idol in pieces, and burnt it." &c. H.—Syr. "because she had celebrated a feast to idols." But it seems she had set up a statue, which Asa burnt. See 3 K. xv. 18. C.—Priapus is added by the Vulg. to explain Heb. "the idol of, or in, the grove," (H.) Asera or Astarte. C.

VER. 17. Israel, to the honour only of the true God. C. xiv. 2. and 3 K. xv. 14. H.—Perfect, with respect to the external worship, (T.) or hitherto, (H.) though he offended afterwards. C. xvi. 7. 12. T.—Other altars, besides that at Jerusalem, might be dispensed with, (W.) by God's authority. H.

VER. 18. Vowed, in the wars against Jeroboam and Zera. See 1 Par. xvi. 27.

VER. 19. Year. Usher dates from the separation of the two kingdoms; and this year corresponds with the 15th of Asa, v. 10. See 3 K. xv. 16. C. Torniell, A. 3094.

CHAP. XVI.

Asa is reproved for seeking help from the Syrians: his last acts and death.

AND in the six and thirtieth year of his kingdom, Baasa, the king of Israel, came up against Juda, and built a wall about Rama, that no one might safely go out or come in, of the kingdom of Asa.

2 Then Asa brought out silver and gold, out of the treasures of the house of the Lord, and of the king's treasures, and sent to Benadad, king of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, saying:

3 There is a league between me and thee, as there was between my father and thy father, wherefore I have sent thee silver and gold, that thou mayst break thy league with Baasa, king of Israel, and make him depart from me.

4 And when Benadad heard this, he sent the captains of his armies against the cities of Israel: and they took Ahion, and Dan, and Abelmaim, and all the walled cities of Nephthali.

5 And when Baasa heard of it, he left off the building of Rama, and interrupted his work.

6 Then king Asa took all Juda, and they carried away from Rama, the stones, and the timber that Baasa had prepared for the building: and he built with them Gabaa and Maspha.

7 At that time Hanani, the prophet, came to Asa, king of Juda, and said to him: Because thou hast had confidence in the king of Syria, and not in the Lord, thy God, therefore hath the army of the king of Syria escaped out of thy hand.

8 Were not the Ethiopians, and the Lybians, much more numerous in chariots, and horsemen, and an exceedingly great multitude: yet because thou trustedst in the Lord, he delivered them into thy hand?

9 For the eyes of the Lord behold all the earth, and give strength to those who with a perfect heart trust in him. Wherefore, thou hast done foolishly; and for this cause, from this time wars shall arise against thee.

10 And Asa was angry with the seer, and commanded him to be put in prison: for he was greatly enraged

† Supra xiv. 9.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 1. Six and thirtieth year of his kingdom. That is, of the kingdom of Juda, taking the date of it from the beginning of the reign of Roboam. Ch.—It was the 16th of Asa. We read that Baasa died in the 26th year of Asa. 3 K. xvi. 8. How then could he fight with him in the 36th? T.—Rama was on an eminence, and commanded the pass below. Baasa wished to cut off all communication with the kingdom of Juda, as he knew many of his subjects had emigrated for the sake of the true religion. C. xv. 9. C.—He had taken the city from the tribe of Benjamin. T.

VER. 3. There is. Heb. is indeterminate: "a league," &c. Sept. "Make a league . . behold I have sent thee gold and silver. Come and drive away from me Baasa, king" &c.—That. Prot. "go, break thy league." H.—Asa induces the king of Damascus to act perfidiously. C.—Otherwise it is not unlawful to make use of the arms of infidels, unless where God has forbidden it. Grot. Jur. ii. 15. 9. Masius in Jos. ix. 15.—David had recourse to Achis, and the Machabees to the Romans. C.—Some kings are blamed for making leagues with the princes of Israel, because they had been warned to the contrary; and Asa was severely reprehended, as he had already received such assurances of the divine protection, (C. xiv. 12. and xv. 7.) that nothing but pusillanimity could have induced him (H.) to give away the sacred treasures, in order to obtain the aid of the Syrian king, v. 7.

VER. 4. Nephthali. This seems preferable to the Heb. reading, 3 K. xv. 20. C.—Prot. "all the store-cities." Sept. "all the environs." H.—Arab. "all the arsenals of the cities of Nephthali."

VER. 7. Syria. It seems more natural to read Israel. C.—But we must remember that Benadad was an ally of Israel; and if he had not been bribed, he would have come to the assistance of Baasa, (H.) and thus both might have fallen a prey to Asa, as the much greater forces of Zera had done. T.

VER. 9. Behold. Prot. "run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect towards him." Sept. "to shew power in every heart full, or perfect, in his regard." H.—Asa fell on because of this thing: and he put to death many of the people at that time.

11 But the works of Asa, the first and last, are written in the Book of the kings of Juda and Israel.

12 And Asa fell sick in the nine and thirtieth year of his reign, of a most violent pain in his feet, and yet in his illness he did not seek the Lord, but rather trusted in the skill of physicians.

13 And he slept with his fathers: and he died in the one and fortieth year of his reign.

14 And they buried him in his own sepulchre, which he had made for himself in the city of David: and they laid him on his bed, full of spices and odoriferous ointments, which were made by the art of the perfumers, and they burnt them over him with very great pomp.

CHAP. XVII.

Josaphat's reign: his care for the instruction of his people: his numerous forces.

AND Josaphat, his son, reigned in his stead, and grew strong against Israel.

2 And he placed numbers of soldiers in all the fortified cities of Juda. And he put garrisons in the land of Juda, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa, his father, had taken.

3 And the Lord was with Josaphat, because he walked in the first ways of David, his father: and trusted not in Baalim,

4 But in the God of his father, and walked in his commandments, and not according to the sins of Israel.

5 And the Lord established the kingdom in his hand, and all Juda brought presents to Josaphat: and he acquired immense riches, and much glory.

6 And when his heart had taken courage for the

* A. M. 3087, A. C. 917.—† A. M. 3090.

this occasion through human frailty, but rose again by repentance.—Theo. as they were till the death of Baasa. 3 K. xv. 32.

VER. 10. Prison. Lit. "in bonds" (nerwan) made of leather thongs or nerves, (H.) or of iron, to confine either the neck or the feet. Isidor. orig. 5. ult.—Heb. "the house of disturbance." Sept. &c. "prison." Some explain it (C.) of the stocks to enclose the neck. Vatable.—Time, either because they expressed the same sentiments as the prophet, (C.) or because they disapproved of his imprisonment. T.—Sept. "Asa made havoc among the people," &c. H.

VER. 12. Most, &c. Heb. "till his disease got upwards," (C.) to the head (T.) and heart, (H.) when the gout generally proves fatal. A. Lapide.—Sept. "till he was very ill:" (H.) a just punishment for his having confined the prophet in fetters; but of a temporal nature, as he sinned through passion, and died penitent, his heart being perfect (C. xv. 17.) all or the most part of his days, particularly in the last. W.—Rather. Heb. and Sept. simply, "physicians." H.—Yet it was not the having recourse to them, with some degree of confidence, that is here reprehended, but the placing too much trust in men, (C.) and too little in God, the sovereign arbiter of life and death. H.

VER. 14. Sepulchre. Heb. "sepulchres," as there were many separate apartments in the same cavern. C.—Asa had prepared one cell, as David and Solomon had done. M. T.—Odoriferous (meretricia). Such as harlots delight in, (Prov. vii. 16.) to entice the sensual. D.—Heb. zenim, may be derived from zana, fornicari. It denotes a mixture of perfumes. M.—But here the Vulg. read zenim. D.—Heb. and Sept. "they laid him on a bed, and filled it with aromatic spices, and with various sorts of perfumers' ointments, and they made him a very great funeral, or (H.) burning." Prot.—It is not clear whether the body was placed on a bed of state, and these perfumes were used to remove every disagreeable smell, or the body itself was rather consumed along with them, a practice which seems to have become more common since the days of Asa. Jer. xxxiv. 5. 1 K. xxxi. 12. Amos vi. 10. Joram was deprived of this honour. C. xxi. 19. C.—Sanctius adduces many examples, to prove that the spices were burnt only near the body; (T.) and the Hebrews generally preferred to inter the corpse. Corpora condere quam cremare est more Aegyptio. Tacit. Hist. v.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Israel. In consequence of the civil broils, which ensued after the death of Baasa. The two kingdoms had been nearly equal.

VER. 2. Numbers, who were kept on foot; probably as in the days of David.

VER. 3. First. Before his fall: some copies add, "and last," (La Haye) as the Gothic MS. used by Mariana does, agreeably to the Scripture style. D.—David begun and ended well. H.

VER. 6. Presents, as was customary. (1 K. x. 27,) or tribute. C.

ways of the Lord, he took away also the high places, and the groves, out of Juda.

7 And in the third year of his reign, he sent of his princes Benhail, and Abdias, and Zacharias, and Nathanael, and Micheas, to teach in the cities of Juda:

8 And with them the Levites, Semeias, and Nathanas, and Zabadias, and Asael, and Semiramoth, and Jonathan, and Adonias, and Tobias, and Thobadonias, Levites, and with them Elisama, and Joram, priests.

9 And they taught the people in Juda, having with them the book of the law of the Lord: and they went about all the cities of Juda, and instructed the people.

10 And the fear of the Lord came upon all the kingdoms of the lands that were round about Juda, and they durst not make war against Josaphat.

11 The Philistines also brought presents to Josaphat, and tribute in silver; and the Arabians brought him cattle, seven thousand seven hundred rams, and as many he-goats.

12 And Josaphat grew, and became exceedingly great: and he built in Juda houses like towers, and walled cities.

13 And he prepared many works in the cities of Juda: and he had warriors, and valiant men, in Jerusalem.

14 Of whom this is the number by the houses, and families, of every one: in Juda captains of the army; Ednas, the chief, and with him three hundred thousand most valiant men.

15 After him Johanan, the captain, and with him two hundred and eighty thousand.

16 And after him was Amasias, the son of Zechri, consecrated to the Lord, and with him were two hundred thousand valiant men.

* A. M. 3060, A. C. 914.—† A. M. 3092, A. C. 912.

VER. 6. When. Heb. "And his heart was elevated in the ways of the Lord." He was endued with courage to undertake the great work of banishing all abuses out of his dominions, seeing that the people were well affected, and the Lord urged him forward. H.—He trusted not so much to his great army or riches, as to a good conscience, (T.) which made him fear no difficulties; (1 Jo. iii. 21.) doubting not but God would grant him success, as he endeavoured to keep his laws. C.—Groves of idols, (M.) though he tolerated the high places, which had been consecrated to God. C. xx. 33. and 3 K. xxii. 43. H.—Good works, rewarded by God, encourage people to proceed in virtue. W.

VER. 7. Princes. Political, (T.) to see that all paid attention to the proper teachers; (Mal. ii. 7. C.) and thus to partake in that good work. M.—The princes might also give instruction by word (C.) and example. H.

VER. 9. Book. The Pentateuch, or its abridgment, the book of Deuteronomy, (M.) which they read and explained. C.—People. It was not sufficient to destroy idolatry, (M.) unless the people were taught how to serve the true God. H.

VER. 10. War. They had witnessed the fruitless attempt of Zara. C. xiv. 15. H.

VER. 11. Philistines. Though they had been reduced by David, they had sometimes proved remiss in the payment of tribute.—Arabians, who lived near the Ethiopians, and the Dead Sea. C. xxi. 19. They had been subdued by Solomon, (3 K. x. 16,) and were rich in cattle. Ezec. xxvii. 21. The name is not so comprehensive as we generally make it. C.

VER. 12. Houses. Prot. "castles." Heb. biraniyoth. Birah is properly a Chal. word, and is added after susan, to imply that it was a royal castle, (C.) or palace. H. 2 Esd. i. 1.—Sept. often use baris in the same sense. C.—It became a provincial word in Palestine, for a place shut up on all sides and built like a tower. S. Jer. ad Princep.—David calls the temple a palace (habbimah) for God. 1 Par. xxix. 1. C.—Josaphat employed his immense riches in beautifying the country, and erecting storehouses, v. 5.—Walled. Prot. "cities of store." H. See C. xv. 4.

VER. 14. Ednas was the chief of the five generals, who had under their command 1,160,000, (C.) besides the garrison soldiers, v. 19. H.—So great power and riches had not been seen in Juda since the days of Solomon. C.—They were not all on duty at the same time, but were able to bear arms (M.) when called out.

VER. 16. Consecrated. Heb. "a volunteer of the Lord," (H.) serving at his own expence, (T.) or with remarkable zeal. C.—Perhaps he was of the tribe of Levi, (M.) or had taken the vows of the Nazarites, &c.

17 After him was Eliada, valiant in battle, and with him two hundred thousand armed with bow and shield.

18 After him also was Jozabad, and with him a hundred and eighty thousand ready for war.

19 All these were at the hand of the king, beside others, whom he had put in the walled cities, in all Juda.

CHAP. XVIII.

Josaphat accompanies Achab in his expedition against Ramoth; where Achab is slain, as Micheas had foretold.

NOW Josaphat was rich and very glorious, and was joined by affinity to Achab.

2 And he went down to him after some years, "to Samaria: and Achab, at his coming, killed sheep and oxen in abundance, for him and the people that came with him: and he persuaded him to go up to Ramoth-Galaad.

3 And Achab, king of Israel, said to Josaphat, king of Juda: Come with me to Ramoth-Galaad. And he answered him: Thou art as I am, and my people as thy people, and we will be with thee in the war.

4 And Josaphat said to the king of Israel: Enquire, I beseech thee, at present the word of the Lord.

5 So the king of Israel gathered together of the prophets four hundred men, and he said to them: Shall we go to Ramoth-Galaad to fight, or shall we forbear? But they said: Go up, and God will deliver it into the king's hand.

6 And Josaphat said: Is there not here a prophet of the Lord, that we may enquire also of him?

7 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: There is one man, of whom we may ask the will of the Lord: but I hate him, for he never prophesieth good to me, but always evil: and it is Micheas, the son of Jemla. And Josaphat said: Speak not thus, O king.

8 And the king of Israel called one of the eunuchs, and said to him: Call quickly Micheas, the son of Jemla.

9 Now the king of Israel, and Josaphat, king of Juda, both sat on their thrones, clothed in royal robes, and they sat in the open court by the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets prophesied before them.

10 And Sedecias, the son of Chanaana, made him horns of iron, and said: Thus saith the Lord: With these shalt thou push Syria, till thou destroy it.

11 And all the prophets prophesied in like manner, and said: Go up to Ramoth-Galaad, and thou shalt prosper, and the Lord will deliver them into the king's hand.

12 And the messenger that went to call Micheas,

• A. M. 8107, A. C. 897.

VER. 17. After. Heb. and Sept. "And of Benjamin, Eliada, a valiant man of the army." H.—It seems all were not chosen from Juda. M.

VER. 19. King, at different times. Sept. "waiting upon" him, (H.) like the companies which David had appointed, (C.) but far more numerous. H.—The dominions of Juda were now pretty extensive, and well cultivated. The population must have amounted to nearly six millions, for whose support recourse must have been had to commerce. Rome had once almost four million inhabitants, and Cairo is said to contain seven millions, while China has two hundred millions. C.—We must reflect that many from the other tribes had taken refuge in the kingdom of Juda. T.—It would be too bold to suppose, with Kennicott, that so many numbers have been corrupted. H. C. xiii. 3.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 1. Affinity, taking Achab's daughter for his son's wife. T. C. xxi. 6. 3 K. xxii.

VER. 3. War. Josaphat was too complaisant. He was rebuked by the son of Hanani, as Asa had been by his father; (C. xvi. 7.) and, not long after, Eliezer (546) said to him: Behold the words of all the prophets with one mouth declare good to the king: I beseech thee, therefore, let not thy word disagree with them, and speak thou also good success.

13 And Micheas answered him: As the Lord liveth, whatsoever my God shall say to me, that will I speak.

14 So he came to the king: and the king said to him: Micheas, shall we go to Ramoth-Galaad to fight, or forbear? And he answered him: Go up, for all shall succeed prosperously, and the enemies shall be delivered into your hands.

15 And the king said: I adjure thee again and again to say nothing but the truth to me, in the name of the Lord.

16 Then he said: I saw all Israel scattered in the mountains, like sheep without a shepherd: and the Lord said: These have no masters: let every man return to his own house in peace.

17 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: Did I not tell thee that this man would not prophesy me any good, but evil?

18 Then he said: Hear ye therefore the word of the Lord: I saw the Lord sitting on his throne, and all the army of heaven standing by him on the right hand and on the left.

19 And the Lord said: Who shall deceive Achab, king of Israel, that he may go up and fall in Ramoth-Galaad? And when one spoke in this manner, and another otherwise:

20 There came forth a spirit, and stood before the Lord, and said: I will deceive him. And the Lord said to him: By what means wilt thou deceive him?

21 And he answered: I will go out, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the Lord said: Thou shalt deceive, and shalt prevail: go out, and do so.

22 Now, therefore, behold the Lord hath put a spirit of lying in the mouth of all thy prophets, and the Lord hath spoken evil against thee.

23 And Sedecias, the son of Chanaana, came, and struck Micheas on the cheek, and said: Which way went the spirit of the Lord from me, to speak to thee?

24 And Micheas said: Thou thyself shalt see in that day, when thou shalt go in from chamber to chamber, to hide thyself.

25 And the king of Israel commanded, saying: Take Micheas, and carry him to Amon, the governor of the city, and to Joas, the son of Amelech.

26 And say: Thus saith the king: Put this man in prison, and give him bread, and water in a small quantity, till I return in peace.

reproached him for joining in alliance with Ochozias. C. xx. C.—He acted without an ill intention, and was more easily pardoned. W.

VER. 14. Hands. He ironically (C.) alludes to the declarations of the false prophets. H.

VER. 18. Ye. In 3 K. he addresses his discourse chiefly to Achab. C.

VER. 20. Said. See 3 K. xxii. The Rabbin pretend that the spirit of Naboth came forth. But it was satan, or an evil spirit. T.

VER. 21. So. The Lord permits evil, but he does not approve of it. C.—Homer makes Jupiter send a deluding dream to Agamemnon. Iliad B.—The delusive predictions of impostors, are one great source of calamities. D.

VER. 25. Amelech. Sept. and Syr. "to Joas, the commander, son of the father H.—He had perhaps the government of affairs at Samaria, during his king's absence. T.

VER. 27. People. Mark what I say. The event will quickly prove whether I am a prophet or an impostor. H.

27 And Micheas said: If thou return in peace, the Lord hath not spoken by me. And he said: Hear, all ye people.

28 So the king of Israel, and Josaphat, king of Juda, went up to Ramoth-Galaad.

29 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: I will change my dress, and so I will go to the battle, but put thou on thy own garments. And the king of Israel having changed his dress, went to the battle.

30 Now the king of Syria had commanded the captains of his cavalry, saying: Fight ye not with small, or great, but with the king of Israel only.

31 So when the captains of the cavalry saw Josaphat, they said: This is the king of Israel. And they surrounded him, to attack him: but he cried to the Lord, and he helped him, and turned them away from him.

32 For when the captains of the cavalry saw, that he was not the king of Israel, they left him.

33 And it happened that one of the people shot an arrow at a venture, and struck the king of Israel between the neck and the shoulders, and he said to his chariot-man: Turn thy hand, and carry me out of the battle, for I am wounded.

34 And the fight was ended that day: but the king of Israel stood in his chariot against the Syrians until the evening, and died at the sunset.

CHAP. XIX.

Josaphat's charge to the judges and to the Levites.

AND* Josaphat, king of Juda, returned to his house in peace to Jerusalem.

2 And Jehu, the son of Hanani, the seer, met him, and said to him: Thou helpst the ungodly, and thou art joined in friendship with them that hate the Lord, and therefore thou didst deserve indeed the wrath of the Lord:

3 But good works are found in thee, because thou hast taken away the groves out of the land of Juda, and hast prepared thy heart to seek the Lord, the God of thy fathers.

4 And Josaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: and he went out again to the people from Bersabee to Mount Ephraim, and brought them back to the Lord, the God of their fathers.

* A. M. 8107.—^b Deut. x. 17. Wisd. vi. 8. Eccl. xxxv. 15. Acts x. 24. Rom. ii. 11.

VER. 29. Dress. Prot. "disguised himself, and they went." See 3 K. xxii. 30.

VER. 31. Turned. Heb. "moved them from him." They felt that he was under God's protection; and discovered that he was not the king of Israel. H.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 2. Thou. Sept. "O king Josaphat, if thou helpst the sinner; or, wilt thou befriend one hated by the Lord?" Prot. "shouldst thou . . . love them that hate the Lord?" H.—The Donatists hence inferred, that it was not lawful to converse with sinners. But S. Aug. (c. ep. Par. ii. 18.) replied, that Josaphat was blamed for aiding Achab in the contempt of the true prophet, and for going to battle conformably to the predictions of impostors. Both kings offended, but in a different degree. W.—We must also keep at as great a distance as possible from the notorious enemies of God, as their conversation is dangerous. T.—Evil communications corrupt the best of manners. See Ps. cxxxviii. &c.

VER. 3. Works. Sept. "words." Prot. "things." H.—The merit of Josaphat screened him from punishment. T.—Prepared. Sept. "directed." M.—Syr. "disposed." Faith teaches that we can do no good of ourselves, but that we have free will to choose either good or evil.

VER. 4. Ephraim. This was the northern boundary, as Dan or Emath had been under David and Solomon. C.

VER. 6. And whatsoever. Heb. "who is with you in the judgment." The Lord will confirm your just decisions, and punish your injustice. H.—God stood in the synagogue of gods, or judges. Ps. lxxxi. 1. Judges ought not so much to regard man as God, when they pass sentence. C.—How then will the Anabaptists deny that a man may sit in judgment? T.

VER. 7. Gifts. The contrary is the source of so much corruption. H.—It would be proper to inscribe this sentence on the walls of all courts of judicature,

5 And he set judges of the land in all the fenced cities of Juda, in every place.

6 And charging the judges, he said: Take heed what you do: for you exercise not the judgment of man, but of the Lord: and whatsoever you judge, it shall redound to you.

7 Let the fear of the Lord be with you, and do all things with diligence: for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor desire of gifts.

8 In Jerusalem also Josaphat appointed Levites, and priests, and chiefs of the families of Israel, to judge the judgment and the cause of the Lord for the inhabitants thereof.

9 And he charged them, saying: Thus shall you do in the fear of the Lord faithfully, and with a perfect heart.

10 Every cause that shall come to you of your brethren, that dwell in their cities, between kindred and kindred, wheresoever there is question concerning the law, the commandment, the ceremonies, the justifications: shew it them, that they may not sin against the Lord, and that wrath may not come upon you and your brethren: and so doing, you shall not sin.

11 And Amarias, the priest, your high-priest, shall be chief in the things which regard God: and Zabadias, the son of Ismahel, who is ruler in the house of Juda, shall be over those matters which belong to the king's office: and you have before you the Levites for masters; take courage and do diligently, and the Lord will be with you in good things.

CHAP. XX.

The Ammonites, Moabites, and Syrians combine against Josaphat; he seeketh God's help by public prayer and fasting. A prophet foretelleth that God will fight for his people: the enemies destroy one another. Josaphat, with his men, gather the spoils. He reigneth in peace; but his navy perisheth, for his society with wicked Ochozias.

AFTER* this the children of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and with them of the Ammonites, were gathered together to fight against Josaphat.

2 And there came messengers, and told Josaphat, saying: There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea, and out of Syria, and behold they are in Asasonthamar, which is Engaddi.

Gal. ii. 6. Eph. vi. 9. Colos. iii. 25. 1 Pet. i. 17.—^a A. M. 8108, A. C. 896.

or rather on the hearts of all in office. T.—None but the true religion can produce such maxima. C.

VER. 8. And the. Heb. "of the Lord, and for disputes among the people among themselves, (H.) and they returned, (v. 4) or dwelt at Jerusalem." C.—Sept. "to judge the inhabitants of," &c. Josephus (ix. 1.) says, "he returned." Syr. "And being returned . . . he exhorted."

VER. 10. Cities. He addresses the judges of the capital, to whom appeals might be made. C. M.—Kindred, with respect to inheritances and matrimonial cases. Heb. "blood," or murder, whether casual or wilful.

VER. 11. Amarias, (1 Par. vi. 11.) or rather Azarias, the father of Johanan. ib. v. 9.—Office, in civil matters. C.—Here is a plain distinction between the spiritual and temporal authority, instituted by God. Deut. xvii. Num. xxvii. W. T.—Masters. Heb. shoterim, to execute the sentence; (D.) or "officers."—You. Prot. "with the good." H.

CHAP. XX. VER. 1. Of the Ammonites; people sprung from them. Those who explain the Psalm lxxxii. of this war, find many nations mentioned. Some of these, not daring to appear openly, assumed the name of Ammonites. Perhaps we should read (C.) Mannim. H.—Sept. "the Mineans," who dwelt in Arabia Felix, upon the Red Sea, (Pliny vi. 28.) or rather the Maonians, in the environs of Gaza. C.—Some MSS. and Latin editions have "Idumeans," which is conformable to v. 10, 28, and S. Jerom Trad. Lyran, &c. M.

VER. 2. Sea of Sodom, (H.) or the Red Sea. D.—Syria, which comprised the country of Ammon. M.—Perhaps Edom might rather have been in the text, as we find no Syrians in this war, but many of the Idumeans. C.—Adom and Aram, (Syria, H.) have often been confounded. 4 K. xvi. 6. C.—Asasonthamar, 'the palm-tree cottage,' (Bechart) between Jericho and the Dead Sea.

3 And Josaphat being seized with fear, betook himself wholly to pray to the Lord, and he proclaimed a fast for all Juda.

4 And Juda gathered themselves together to pray to the Lord: and all came out of their cities to make supplication to him.

5 And Josaphat stood in the midst of the assembly of Juda, and Jerusalem, in the house of the Lord before the new court.

6 And said: O Lord God of our fathers, thou art God, in heaven, and rulest over all the kingdoms of nations; in thy hand is strength and power, and no one can resist thee.

7 Didst not thou, our God, kill all the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham, thy friend, for ever?

8 And they dwelt in it, and built in it a sanctuary to thy name, saying:

9 If evils fall upon us, the sword of judgment, or pestilence, or famine, we will stand in thy presence before this house, in which thy name is called upon: and we will cry to thee, in our afflictions, and thou wilt hear, and save us.

10 "Now, therefore, behold the children of Ammon, and of Moab, and Mount Seir, through whose lands thou didst not allow Israel to pass, when they came out of Egypt, but they turned aside from them, and slew them not:

11 They do the contrary, and endeavour to cast us out of the possession which thou hast delivered to us.

12 O our God, wilt not thou then judge them? as for us we have not strength enough to be able to resist this multitude, which cometh violently upon us. But as we know not what to do, we can only turn our eyes to thee.

13 And all Juda stood before the Lord, with their little ones, and their wives, and their children.

14 And Jahaziel, the son of Zacharias, the son of Banaias, the son of Jehiel, the son of Mathanias, a Levite, of the sons of Asaph, was there, upon whom the Spirit of the Lord came in the midst of the multitude.

15 And he said: Attend ye, all Juda, and you that dwelt in Jerusalem, and thou king Josaphat. Thus saith the Lord to you: Fear ye not, and be not dismayed at this multitude: for the battle is not yours, but God's.

16 To-morrow you shall go down against them: for they will come up by the ascent named Sis, and you shall find them at the head of the torrent, which is over-against the wilderness of Jeruel.

17 It shall not be you that shall fight, but only stand with confidence, and you shall see the help of the Lord over you, O Juda, and Jerusalem: fear ye not, nor be you dismayed: to-morrow you shall go out against them, and the Lord will be with you.

18 Then Josaphat and Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell flat on the ground before the Lord, and adored him.

19 And the Levites of the sons of Caath, and of the sons of Core, praised the Lord, the God of Israel, with a loud voice on high.

20 And they rose early in the morning, and went out through the desert of Thecua: and as they were marching, Josaphat standing in the midst of them, said: Hear me, ye men of Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: believe in the Lord your God, and you shall be secure: believe his prophets, and all things shall succeed well.

21 And he gave counsel to the people, and appointed the singing men of the Lord, to praise him by their companies, and to go before the army, and with one voice to say: "Give glory to the Lord, for his mercy endureth for ever.

22 And when they began to sing praises, the Lord turned their ambushments upon themselves, that is to say, of the children of Ammon, and of Moab, and of Mount Seir, who were come out to fight against Juda, and they were slain.

23 For the children of Ammon, and of Moab, rose up against the inhabitants of Mount Seir, to kill and destroy them: and when they had made an end of them, they turned also against one another, and destroyed one another.

24 And when Juda came to the watch-tower, that looketh toward the desert, they saw afar off all the

* Deut. ii. 1.

† Psal. cxxxv. 1.

VER. 3. Juda. The whole kingdom was concerned. Sometimes a fast was proclaimed for one city. 3 K. xxi. 9. Jonas iii. 7. C.—They were accustomed to pray, not only to subdue the flesh, but also for other necessities. W.

VER. 4. Prot. "to ask help of." H.—Cities. Here we have an example of a pilgrimage to a holy place, as God is more willing to hear the virtuous in one place than in another. C. vi. 7. &c. W.

VER. 5. New court of the priests. Why it is so called, does not appear. C.—Some understand the court for the women; (Salien) others, that for Gentiles. Le Clerc.—Probably some of the courts had been found too spacious after the schism, and had been neglected; but now, as many had returned to serve the Lord in the dominions of Josaphat, he had made some repairs. T.

VER. 7. All, or the greatest part. Heb. "drive out the inhabitants." H.

VER. 9. Sword of. Prot. "as the sword, judgment, or," &c. Sept. "the sword, judgment, death, famine." All these are sent in punishment of sin. H.—The sword of the enemy is a judgment of God. M.

VER. 12. Judge and punish them, as they fight against thee! C.—Enough. Yet we read that Josaphat had above a million soldiers; and he knew that his father had discomfited a greater army of Zara with half the forces. He thus puts us in mind that no power can stand against God's will; and he endeavours, by humility, to obtain the protection of heaven. The invading army must, however, have been very numerous, to extort these expressions from a potent king, and to have thrown his whole people into such consternation. It could hardly be less than that of Zara; and thus, in the space of a century, above two millions and a half of idolaters perished by the hand of God, without Juda losing a single man, v. 29. C. xiii. 17. H.

VER. 13. Children. Even the little infants were deprived of the breasts, on such emergencies, that their cries might be more affecting. H. Joel ii. 16. Judit. iv. 8.—The pagans of Ninive even made the cattle also fast. Jonas iii. 7. C. S. Amb. ser. 40. T.

VER. 14. Spirit of prophecy. M.—Jahaziel is known only by this event. C.

VER. 16. Sis. Some translate "flowry ascent." C.—Prot. "the cliff of Ziz." H.—If it had been Zin, we might understand the desert of stony Arabia, where Ptolemy places the town of Ziza. C.—But we may recollect that the army was already advanced as far as Engaddi; (v. 2.) so that it seems to have lain nearer to Jerusalem. H.—Jeruel, "the fear of God," which name was given to the place, in consequence of the panic with which God struck the enemy. S. Jerom. M.

VER. 19. High. Rejoicing at the promised deliverance. C.

VER. 20. Thecua, two miles east of Bethlehem, on the road to Jeruel. Adria. M.—Believe. Faith is the foundation of all good works; (Heb. xi.) but not alone sufficient, as here the people fasted and prayed, and would have fought, if God had not dispensed with them. See Jos. xxiii. W.—We may also translate Heb. "trust."

VER. 21. Ever. This was usually sung in times of joy. C. v. 13. The army seemed thus to be returning victorious. C.

VER. 22. Ambushments, placed by the Moabites, (M.) and Ammonites, (H.) against Juda. Some detachments of Mount Seir, perhaps, coming suddenly on them, were taken for foes, and slaughtered. H.

VER. 24. Tower. Maspha, in the tribe of Benjamin, (C.) or some other (H.) eminence. M. country, for a great space, full of dead bodies, and that no one was left that could escape death.

25 Then Josaphat came, and all the people with him, to take away the spoils of the dead, and they found among the dead bodies, stuff of various kinds, and garments, and most precious vessels: and they took them for themselves, insomuch that they could not carry all, nor in three days take away the spoils, the booty was so great.

26 And on the fourth day they were assembled in the valley of Blessing: for there they blessed the Lord, and therefore they called that place the valley of Blessing until this day.

27 And every man of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, returned, and Josaphat, at their head, into Jerusalem, with great joy; because the Lord had made them rejoice over their enemies.

28 And they came into Jerusalem with psalteries, and harps, and trumpets, into the house of the Lord.

29 And the fear of the Lord fell upon all the kingdoms of the lands, when they heard that the Lord had fought against the enemies of Israel.

30 And the kingdom of Josaphat was quiet, and God gave him peace round about.

31 And Josaphat reigned over Juda, and he was five and thirty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned five and twenty years in Jerusalem: and the name of his mother was Azuba, the daughter of Selahi.

32 And he walked in the way of his father, Asa, and departed not from it, doing the things that were pleasing before the Lord.

33 But yet he took not away the high places, and the people had not yet turned their heart to the Lord, the God of their fathers.

34 But the rest of the acts of Josaphat, first and last, are written in the words of Jehu, the son of Hanani, which he digested into the Books of the kings of Israel.

35 After these things Josaphat, king of Juda, made friendship with Ochozias, king of Israel, whose works were very wicked.

36 And he was partner with him in making ships, to go to Tharsis: and they made the ships in Asiongaber.

* 8 Kings xxii. 41.—^b A. M. 3108.—^c A. M. 3115, A. C. 889.

VER. 25. Insomuch. Heb. and Sept. "Three days passed, while they gathered the spoils, because it was great," (H.) "without weight," or estimation. C.

VER. 26. Blessing. SS. Jerom and Epiphanius place Caphar-barucha, "the field of blessing," near Hebron, on the east. Hither Abraham attended the Lord, when he was going to destroy Sodom. Epist. Paulæ.

VER. 29. Lands, in the vicinity. M.—Israel, as he had lately treated Zara. C. xiv. 13. H.

VER. 33. Places, erected in honour of God, but displeasing to him. C. xvii. 6. H.—The good king perhaps attempted to take these also away, but was obliged to desist by the rebellious people. M.—Hence we find that they are here blamed. H.—They would not conform exactly to the law, (Lev. xvii. 3. T.) and the king was not able to bring all to perfection. W.—"It is better to pass over . . . vices, than to shew which we cannot subdue." Tacit. An. iii.

VER. 34. Which. Sept. "who wrote a book of the kings of Israel." H.—Jett rebuked Josaphat, C. xix. C.—His book is not extant. M.

VER. 35. Things: the victory over Ammon, &c. H.—Wicked. See C. xvi. 3.

VER. 36. Tharsis; probably Cilicia, (C.) or some part of the ocean.—Asiongaber was on the Red Sea; and ships would not have been built there, to trade on the Mediterranean. C. ix. 21. T.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 2. Azarias. The only difference between this and the former name, is, that the younger brothers (H.) has u at the end, (C.) Azrieu. Prot. and Sept. make no difference, which we should nevertheless expect. H.—

37 And Eliezer, the son of Dodau, of Maresa, prophesied to Josaphat, saying: Because thou hast made a league with Ochozias, the Lord hath destroyed thy works, and the ships are broken, and they could not go to Tharsis.

CHAP. XXI.

Joram's wicked reign: his punishment and death.

AND Josaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David: and Joram, his son, reigned in his stead.

2 And he had brethren, the sons of Josaphat, Azarias, and Jahiel, and Zacharias, and Azaria, and Michael, and Saphatias; all these were the sons of Josaphat, king of Juda.

3 And their father gave them great gifts of silver, and of gold, and pensions, with strong cities in Juda: but the kingdom he gave to Joram, because he was the eldest.

4 So Joram rose up over the kingdom of his father: and when he had established himself, he slew all his brethren with the sword, and some of the princes of Israel.

5 Joram was two and thirty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

6 And he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, as the house of Achab had done: for his wife was a daughter of Achab, and he did evil in the sight of the Lord.

7 But the Lord would not destroy the house of David: because of the covenant which he had made with him: and because he had promised to give a lamp to him, and to his sons for ever.

8 In those days Edom revolted, from being subject to Juda, and made themselves a king.

9 And Joram went over with his princes, and all his cavalry with him, and rose in the night, and defeated the Edomites who had surrounded him, and all the captains of his cavalry.

10 However, Edom revolted from being under the dominion of Juda unto this day: at that time Lobna also revolted from being under his hand. For he had forsaken the Lord, the God of his fathers:

11 Moreover he built also high places in the cities of Juda, and he made the inhabitants of Jerusalem to commit fornication, and Juda to transgress.

* 8 Kings xxii. 15.—^d 4 Kings viii. 16.—^e Gen. xxvii. 40.

Juda. Heb. "Israel." Sept. Syr. &c. agree with the Vulg. editions, though most of the ancient Latin MSS. have Israel. Josaphat ruled over the principal tribes. Yet it seems probable, from the versions, that the Heb. formerly read Juda.

VER. 3. Pensions. Heb. "precious things." Sept. "arms."

VER. 4. Sword. This cruel policy (H.) has been very common in the East. C.—Israel. They had perhaps opposed his impious plans, animated by his brethren. God presently chastised him with the rebellion of Idumea; and though Joram gained a victory over Seir, (4 K. viii. 21.) he was not able to reduce the nation, being called off by other wars, v. 16. His own subjects at Lobna, a Levitical city in Juda, also abandoned him. Dreadful evils were denounced in a letter from the prophet Elias, who had been translated to paradise nine years before, and at last the honours of sepulture were denied to the wicked king. T.

VER. 6. Achab. It is supposed by Jezabel. She might be grand-daughter of Amri. C. xxii. 2. The infamous Athalia is blamed for most of the evils which her husband committed.

VER. 7. Lamp; heir and successor. C. Pa. cxxxi. 17.

VER. 10. Day, when the author lived. See 4 K. viii. 20.

VER. 11. Fornication; idolatry. M.—Heb. "and compelled Juda." Sept. "seduced." Syr. "dissipated Juda." C.—He used every art of seduction and violence to introduce idolatry, to the ruin of his kingdom. H.

VER. 12. Elias. Le Clerc would read Eliseus. Grotius supposes that ad (544)

12 And there was a letter brought him from Elias, the prophet, in which it was written: Thus saith the Lord, the God of David, thy father: Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Josaphat, thy father, nor in the ways of Asa, king of Juda,

13 But hast walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and hast made Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to commit fornication, imitating the fornication of the house of Achab; moreover, also, thou hast killed thy brethren, the house of thy father, better men than thyself;

14 Behold the Lord will strike thee with a great plague, with all thy people, and thy children, and thy wives, and all thy substance:

15 And thou shalt be sick of a very grievous disease of thy bowels, till thy vital parts come out by little and little every day.

16 And the Lord stirred up against Joram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians, who border on the Ethiopians.

17 And they came up into the land of Juda, and wasted it, and they carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, his sons also, and his wives: so that there was no son left him but Joachaz, who was the youngest.

18 And besides all this, the Lord struck him with an incurable disease in his bowels.

19 And as day came after day, and time rolled on, two whole years passed: then, after being wasted with a long consumption, so as to void his very bowels, his disease ended with his life. *And he died of a most wretched illness, and the people did not make a funeral for him according to the manner of burning, as they had done for his ancestors.

20 He was two and thirty years old when he began his reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And passed in a dream. Others think that Elias had written the letter before his removal from the conversation of men, some years before, foreseeing the impiety of Joram, and leaving the letter with Eliseus, to be delivered unto him. M. Jun.—But the most common opinion is, that the prophet wrote it in paradise, (C.) and sent it to the king by an angel, &c. Seder. xvii. Bellarm. T.—Elias had been taken away in the 18th year of Josaphat, who reigned 25; so he shewed this special care of Joram and his kingdom, so many years after his assumption. W.—Thus the merits in heaven interest themselves in our defence. 2 Mac. xv. 11. H.—Prophet. Heb. "And there came to him a writing of," &c. C.

* A. M. 8119, A. C. 885.

VER. 14. Thou is not expressed in Heb. but it is in the Sept. and the king was not only afflicted with illness, but with the losses of his people and family. H.

VER. 15. By little. Heb. "by reason of the sickness, (H.) day by day," or in two years time, v. 19. C.—He was probably ill so long. H.—Agrippa and Antiochus were treated in the same manner, (C.) with a diarrhoea, (M.) or dysentery, (C.) the vitals being corrupted. Valesius 40.

VER. 16. Philistines; who, it seems, had been obedient since the days of David.—Ethiopians, who lay west of the Arabians, from the Red Sea to the lower Egypt and the Nile, (C.) bordering on Madian. There was another Ethiopia to the south of Egypt. M.

VER. 17. Joachaz, alias Ochozias, (Ch.) or Azarias in Heb. C. xxii. 1. and 6. C.—The variation of names seems to originate in the mistakes of transcribers, very frequently. If we found in some profane author, that Philip had only one son, Ander-alex, left, and that this son, Alex-ander, succeeded him, we should readily allow that the first syllables had been erroneously placed last, (Kennia.) as on this occasion alex-ieu stands for ieu-alex. Sept. has here Oxofias; as the other versions have also Ochozias, (C. xxii. 6.) instead of Azriem, (H.) a name given to Ozias, king of Juda, when it belonged to the priests, as it here belongs to one of the captains. C. xxiii. 1. Sometimes we find Aezia. 4 K. ix. 16. Strange inconsistency! Kennicott. See 4 K. xiv. 21.

VER. 19. And. Prot. "And it came to pass that, in process of time, after the end of two years, his bowels fell out, by reason of his sickness; so he died of sore diseases: And his people made no burning for him," &c. (H.) not that the body was usually consumed, but no aromatic spices were burned near it, (Sanctius. T.) as in the funeral of Asa. C. xvi. 14. C.—The point is controverted. M.

VER. 20. Rightly. Sept. "unpraised." Heb. "without any satisfaction;" or, he departed unregretted, oppressed with illness, and odious to all.—Kings.

he walked not rightly, and they buried him in the city of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kings

CHAP. XXII.

The reign and death of Ochozias. The tyranny of Athalia.

AND the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ochozias, his youngest son, king in his place: for the rovers of the Arabians, who had broke in upon the camp, had killed all that were his elder brothers. So Ochozias, the son of Joram, king of Juda, reigned.

2 Ochozias was forty-two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem, and the name of his mother was Athalia, the daughter of Amri.

3 He also walked in the ways of the house of Achab: for his mother pushed him on to do wickedly.

4 So he did evil in the sight of the Lord, as the house of Achab did: for they were his counsellors after the death of his father, to his destruction.

5 And he walked after their counsels. And he went with Joram, the son of Achab, king of Israel, to fight against Hazael, king of Syria, at Ramoth-Galaad: and the Syrians wounded Joram.

6 And he returned to be healed in Jezrahel: for he received many wounds in the foresaid battle. *And Ochozias, the son of Joram, king of Juda, went down to visit Joram, the son of Achab, in Jezrahel, where he lay sick.

7 For it was the will of God against Ochozias, that he should come to Joram: and when he was come, should go out also against Jehu, the son of Namsi, whom the Lord had anointed to destroy the house of Achab.

8 So when Jehu was rooting out the house of Achab, he found the princes of Juda, and the sons of the brethren of Ochozias, who served him, and he slew them.

9 And he sought for Ochozias himself, and took him

* A. M. 8119. 4 Kings viii. 24.—A. M. 8020, A. C. 884.

Joas, Achaz, Achab, and Manasse, were disgraced in like manner, after their death. The Hebrews then shewed their resentment, without fear. The like custom prevailed in Egypt, and kept many within bounds. No person could receive the usual honours of burial, if his accusers could maintain their charge against his character before a court of above forty people, assembled for the purpose. Calumny was severely punished. But the kings themselves were to stand their trial, while their corpse was placed in the porch of the monument, and the priests spoke their funeral oration. The people testified their approbation or discontent, "and many of the kings have been deprived of a glorious and legal burial, on account of the opposition of the multitude." Diod. i. and ii. C.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 1. Arabians and Philistines. C. xxi. 17. H.

VER. 2. Forty-two, &c. Divers Greek Bibles read twenty-two, agreeably to 4 K. viii. 18. (Ch.) with the Syr. and Arab. The Rom. (C.) and Alex. Sept. have "twenty." H.—Ochozias was the youngest son, and his father died at forty years of age. C. xxi. 20. C.—Others would date from the birth of Amri, (Broughton) or of Athalia. But it is most probable that we should read 22, as 4 K. C.—The contradiction has so much perplexed the commentators, that Walton (prol. 36) puts it among the quedam dwopa; and De Dieu says, "I would rather plainly confess that this difficulty is to us inexplicable." The error here, "is plainly owing to a mistake of one of the Heb. numeral letters," e, being put instead of m, which was formerly more similar than it is now. "In Origen's Hexapla, one of the Greek copies (probably that found in Caracalla's time) reads here ch, by rendering the number 22, hewai kai dw, all which proofs make the mistake indubitable, and strongly recommend this method of correcting it." Kennicott.—Marianna, T. &c. had already suggested this plan, (H.) which is very plausible. D.—Ochozias might reign twenty years with his father, and only one alone. 4 K. viii. 26. W.

VER. 3. Pushed. Heb. and Sept. "was his counsellor to," &c.

VER. 6. Ochozias. So all the versions read. Heb. "Azarias," is probably incorrect, unless this man had three names. C.

VER. 7. For. Prot. "and the destruction of Achaziah was of God, by coming to Joram." God had decreed to punish him by the hand of Jehu. 4 K. ix.

VER. 8. Out. Heb. "exercising judgment with."—Brethren, who had been themselves slain by the rovers. Ochozias employed his nephews at court, and they expected that he would make some stay at Jezrahel.

VER. 9. Hid in the kingdom of Samaria, (Malvenda) at Mageddo, where he lying hid in Samaria: and when he was brought to him, he killed him, and they buried him: because he was the son of Josaphat, who had sought the Lord with all his heart. And there was no more hope that any one should reign of the race of Ochozias.

10 For Athalia, his mother, seeing that her son was dead, rose up, and killed all the royal family of the house of Joram.

11 But Josabeth, the king's daughter, took Joas, the son of Ochozias, and stole him from among the king's sons, that were slain. And she hid him with his nurse in a bed-chamber: now Josabeth that hid him, was daughter of king Joram, wife of Joiada, the high priest, and sister of Ochozias, and therefore Athalia did not kill him.

12 And he was with them hid in the house of God six years, during which Athalia reigned over the land.

CHAP. XXIII.

Joiada, the high priest, causeth Joas to be made king, Athalia to be slain, and idolatry to be destroyed.

AND ^bin the seventh year, Joiada being encouraged, took the captains of hundreds, to wit, Azarias, the son of Jeroham, and Ismahel, the son of Johanan, and Azarias, the son of Obed, and Maasias, the son of Adaia, and Elisaphat, the son of Zechri: and made a covenant with them.

2 And they went about Juda, and gathered together the Levites out of all the cities of Juda, and the chiefs of the families of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem.

3 And all the multitude made a covenant with the king, in the house of God: and Joiada said to them: Behold the king's son shall reign, as the Lord hath said of the sons of David.

4 And this is the thing that you shall do:

5 A third part of you that come to the sabbath, of the priests, and of the Levites, and of the porters, shall be at the gates: and a third part at the king's house: and a third at the gate that is called the Foundation: but let all the rest of the people be in the courts of the house of the Lord.

6 And let no one come into the house of the Lord, but the priests, and they that minister of the Levites: let them only come in, because they are sanctified: and let all the rest of the people keep the watches of the Lord.

7 And let the Levites be round about the king, every was wounded; though he was perhaps put to death at Jezrahel. 4 K. ix. 27.—Buried him, at Jerusalem.—Reign. Heb. "the house of Ochozias had no one to bear the weight of the kingdom." The children of the deceased were too young, particularly as most of the princes were slain. C.—Human hope failed, but God's providence kept David's issue on the throne, till Christ appeared. W.

^a 4 Kings xi. 1.

VER. 10. All, except Joas, (v. 11, and 4 K. xi. 1. C.) ninety-five years after Solomon's death. Mariana. D.

VER. 11. High is not expressed in Heb. or Sept. but he is supposed to have been the pontiff. H.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 1. Seventh. Vat. Sept. by mistake, has "the eighth."—Encouraged, or "strengthened." Sept. &c. H.—Captains, whether Levites, or ancient officers of the crown, who were dissatisfied with the usurper. 4 K. xi.

VER. 2. Israel, of which Juda formed a part. M.—At the time when the author lived, Israel was destroyed, so that there was no danger of a mistake.—Jerusalem, on a sabbath-day, and most likely on one of the three great festivals: (C.) Salien (A. 8157) thinks at the Passover, to avoid suspicion. M.

VER. 4. Do. Though God's promise was absolute, human means were to be used. W.

VER. 5. To the sabbath. That is, to perform in your weeks the functions of your office, or the weekly watches. Ch.—Porters. Sept. "even to the entrance man with his arms: (and if any other come into the temple, let him be slain) and let them be with the king, both coming in and going out.

8 So the Levites, and all Juda, did according to all that Joiada, the high priest, had commanded: and they took every one his men that were under him, and that came in by the course of the sabbath, with those who had fulfilled the sabbath, and were to go out. For Joiada, the high priest, permitted not the companies to depart, which were accustomed to succeed one another every week.

9 And Joiada, the priest, gave to the captains the spears, and the shields, and targets of king David, which he had dedicated in the house of the Lord.

10 And he set all the people with swords in their hands, from the right side of the temple to the left side of the temple, before the altar, and the temple, round about the king.

11 And they brought out the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and the testimony, and gave him the law to hold in his hand, and they made him king: and Joiada, the high priest, and his sons, anointed him: and they prayed for him, and said: God save the king.

12 Now when Athalia heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she came in to the people into the temple of the Lord.

13 And when she saw the king standing upon the step in the entrance, and the princes, and the companies about him, and all the people of the land rejoicing, and sounding with trumpets, and playing on instruments of divers kinds, and the voice of those that praised, she rent her garments, and said: Treason, treason.

14 And Joiada, the high priest, going out to the captains, and the chiefs of the army, said to them: Take her forth without the precinct of the temple, and when she is without, let her be killed with the sword. For the priest commanded that she should not be killed in the house of the Lord.

15 And they laid hold on her by the neck: and when she was come within the horse-gate of the palace, they killed her there.

16 And Joiada made a covenant between himself and all the people, and the king, that they should be the people of the Lord.

17 And all the people went into the house of Baal,

^b A. M. 8126, A. C. 879. 4 Kings xi. 1.

gates."—House, where Athalia resided, or in the apartments of Joas in the temple. —Foundation. Sept. "middle." Syr. "of the cooks, or guards." H.—It led from the palace up the steps, v. 21. M.—Perhaps it was also called Sur, 4 K.—But let. This seems to be transposed out of its place from v. 6.

VER. 7. Slain. Athalia ventured to enter; but she was alone, and not much feared. C.

VER. 8. High. Heb. "the priest dismissed not the courses." H.—In case of right and necessity, we see here what the high priest could do, though otherwise he would not interfere. W.

VER. 10. Altar of holocausts, in the court of the priests, while the people stood in their own court. T.

VER. 11. Crown. Lit. "diadem."—Testimony. This is explained in the following sentence, (H.) which is not in Heb. nor in many Latin MSS. The Jews understand the phylacteries. Deut. xvii. 18.

VER. 13. Step. Heb. hamudo, "his pillar," to which he ascended by steps. D.—Entrance into the court of the priests; but the tribune stood in that of the people, where Joas was in his royal attire.

VER. 16. Himself, as God's vicegerent. C.—A double covenant was made between God and the people, and between the king and his subjects. D.

VER. 17. Idols. Prot. "images." H.—Those are wilfully blind who will not distinguish these from the images of Christ and his saints. W.

and destroyed it: and they broke down his altars and his idols: and they slew Mathan, the priest of Baal, before the altars.

18 And Joiada appointed overseers in the house of the Lord, under the hands of the priests, and the Levites, whom David had distributed in the house of the Lord: to offer holocausts to the Lord, as it is written in the law of Moses, with joy and singing, according to the disposition of David.

19 He appointed also porters in the gates of the house of the Lord, that none who was unclean in any thing should enter in.

20 And he took the captains of hundreds, and the most valiant men, and the chiefs of the people, and all the people of the land, and they brought down the king from the house of the Lord, and brought him through the upper gate into the king's house, and set him on the royal throne.

21 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet: but Athalia was slain with the sword.

CHAP. XXIV.

Joas reigneth well all the days of Joiada: afterwards falleth into idolatry, and causeth Zacharias to be slain. He is slain himself by his servants.

JOAS^a was seven years old when he began to reign: and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Sebia, of Bersabee.

2 And he did that which was good before the Lord all the days of Joiada, the priest.

3 And Joiada took for him two wives, by whom he had sons and daughters.

4 After this Joas had a mind to repair the house of the Lord.

5 ^b And he assembled the priests, and the Levites, and said to them: Go out to the cities of Juda, and gather of all Israel money to repair the temple of your God, from year to year, and do this with speed: but the Levites were negligent.

6 And the king called Joiada, the chief, and said to him: Why hast thou not taken care to oblige the Levites to bring in out of Juda and Jerusalem, the money that was appointed by Moses, the servant of the Lord, for all the multitude of Israel to bring into the tabernacle of the testimony?

7 For that wicked woman, Athalia, and her children, have destroyed the house of God, and adorned the temple of Baal with all the things that had been dedicated in the temple of the Lord.

8 And the king commanded, and they made a chest:

^a 4 Kings xi. 21. and xii. 1.

VER. 18. David, which had been long neglected. 1 Par. xxiv. M.

VER. 20. Upper gate of the guards, at the back or western end of the temple. C. v. 5.

CHAP. XXIV. VER. 3. Him. Joas, as Prot. (H.) and most interpreters understand it, with the Syr. &c. Joiada was too old to think of marrying again, as the Rabbins would explain the Heb. conformably to the Sept. and Arab. "himself." C.—Joas did not probably marry two at once. Salien, A. 3766.—Amasias was born of Joadan. C. xxv. 1. M.—The high priest considered Joas as his son, being married to his aunt. H.

VER. 5. Money. The half sicle, (Ex. xxx. 13. 4 K. xii. 4. C.) which at first was required for the tabernacle, and afterwards for the repairs of the temple. W.

VER. 6. Chief "priest," (v. 11,) where he is called the first. Heb. "the head priest."

VER. 7. Children. All but Ochozias had been slain by the Arabs. The plural is often put for the singular. S. Jerom (Trad.) explains it of the priests of the idols, whom Athalia cherished as her own offspring.

VER. 10. That, &c. Heb. "it was done," according to the law. Pagnin.

and set it by the gate of the house of the Lord, on the outside.

9 And they made a proclamation in Juda and Jerusalem, that every man should bring to the Lord, "the money which Moses, the servant of God, appointed for all Israel, in the desert.

10 And all the princes and all the people rejoiced: and going in, they contributed, and cast so much into the chest of the Lord, that it was filled.

11 And when it was time to bring the chest before the king by the hands of the Levites (for they saw there was much money), the king's scribe, and he whom the high priest had appointed, went in: and they poured out the money that was in the chest: and they carried back the chest to its place: and thus they did from day to day, and there was gathered an immense sum of money.

12 And the king and Joiada gave it to those who were over the works of the house of the Lord: but they hired with it stone-cutters, and artificers of every kind of work, to repair the house of the Lord: and such as wrought in iron and brass, to uphold what began to be falling.

13 And the workmen were diligent, and the breach of the walls was closed up by their hands, and they set up the house of the Lord in its former state, and made it stand firm.

14 And when they had finished all the works, they brought the rest of the money before the king and Joiada: and with it were made vessels for the temple for the ministry, and for holocausts and bowls, and other vessels of gold and silver: and holocausts were offered in the house of the Lord continually all the days of Joiada.

15 But Joiada grew old and was full of days, and died when he was a hundred and thirty years old.

16 And they buried him in the city of David, among the kings, because he had done good to Israel, and to his house.

17 And after the death of Joiada, the princes of Juda went in, and worshipped the king: and he was soothed by their services, and hearkened to them.

18 And they forsook the temple of the Lord, the God of their fathers, and served groves and idols; and wrath came upon Juda and Jerusalem for this sin.

19 And he sent prophets to them to bring them back to the Lord, and they would not give ear when they testified against them.

^b A. M. 3147, A. C. 857.—Exod. xxx. 12.

VER. 11. From day. Lit. "every day," (H.) when the chest was replenished. M.

VER. 14. And for. Heb. "and to offer," such as (H.) "mortars." Prov. xxvii. 22. Eali is thus translated. C.—Prot. "and spoons and vessels."

VER. 15. Israel, particularly to those of the kingdom of Juda. H.—His, David's house, (M.) as he had restored the crown to his offspring.

VER. 17. Worshipped. Heb. "bowed down to the king, and he hearkened to them." H.—The Jews say that the princes flattered him with the title of god, as he had been educated in the temple. E.—But this is improbable. C.—They petitioned for leave to re-establish the worship of Baal, (M.) and paid greater honours to the king than were becoming. D.

VER. 18. Idols. Heb. "sorrows." Sept. "the Astartes and idols." C.

VER. 19. Them. Calling heaven and earth to witness (C.) the unity of God. H.—These prophets might have been performing their sacred commission ever since the reign of Josaphat; during which time Eliseus, Michas, Jehu, and others, lived. C. xx. 14. xviii. 27. C.

VER. 20. Priest, refers to Zacharias. Sept. "Azarias." H.—It is not certain

20 The Spirit of God then came upon Zacharias, the son of Joiada, the priest, "and he stood in the sight of the people, and said to them: Thus saith the Lord God: Why transgress you the commandment of the Lord which will not be for your good, and have forsaken the Lord, to make him forsake you?"

21 And they gathered themselves together against him, and stoned him at the king's commandment in the court of the house of the Lord.

22 And king Joas did not remember the kindness that Joiada, his father, had done to him, "but killed his son. And when he died, he said: The Lord see, and require it.

23 "And when a year "was come about, the army of Syria came up against him: and they came to Juda and Jerusalem, and killed all the princes of the people, and they sent all the spoils to the king to Damascus.

24 And whereas there came a very small number of the Syrians, the Lord delivered into their hands an infinite multitude, because they had forsaken the Lord, the God of their fathers: and on Joas they executed shameful judgments.

25 And departing, they left him in great diseases: and his servants rose up against him, for revenge of the blood of the son of Joiada, the priest, and they slew him in his bed, and he died: and they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings.

26 Now the men that conspired against him were, Zabad, the son of Semmaath, an Ammonitess, and Jozabad, the son of Semarith, a Moabitess.

27 And concerning his sons, and the sum of money, which was gathered under him, and the repairing of the house of God, they are written more diligently in the book of kings: and Amasias, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXV.

Amasias's reign: he beginneth well, but endeth ill: he is overthrown by Joas, and slain by his own people.

AMASIAS * was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned nine and twenty

* A. M. 3164, A. C. 840.—^b Matt. xxiii. 35.—^c 4 Kings xii. 17.—^d A. M. 3165.

whether this was the person of whom Jesus Christ speaks, (Mat. xxiii. 35. C.) as S. Jerom believes; (ib.) or our Saviour alludes to one of the minor prophets, (T) or to the father of the baptist. Baronius. H.—Sight. Heb. "above," perhaps on the steps between the two courts. C.—To make. Heb. "therefore hath he forsaken you."

VER. 22. Require it. I commit my cause into his hands. M.—The vengeance of the Lord was not slack. H.

Raro antecedentem scelestum Deservit pede pana claudo.—Horace.

VER. 23. Damascus. Hazael had before invaded Jerusalem. 4 K. xii. 17. The Syrian army, which routed Juda, was comparatively small. C.—The idolatrous princes now received the due punishment of their crimes, v. 17.

VER. 24. Shameful, is not expressed in Heb. But the putting a king to the torture, (v. 25.) and upbraiding him with his ingratitude and perfidy, was a great indignity. H.—He had probably entered into engagements with Hazael, when he prevailed on him to depart, the year before. C.—Nabuchodonosor treated Sedecias in like manner. 4 K. xxv. 6. The author of the Heb. Trad. among the works of S. Jerom, (H.) asserts that the children of Joas were slain before his eyes, while the Syrians reproached him for the unjust murder of Zacharias. C.

VER. 25. Servants. By whom the man is slain, who had murdered his spiritual father. W.—Son. Heb. "sons." See v. 7. Some think that the brothers of Zacharias were slain, that they might not attempt to revenge his death.—Kings. These sepulchres are amazingly beautiful and spacious. The doors are six feet high, and formed, like the rest, of solid stone, cut in the most elegant manner. Doubidan 26. C.

VER. 26. Moabitess. Sept. read, "the Ammonite . . and Moabite." See 4 K. xii. 21. H.

VER. 27. And. Sept. "And all his sons: for five came upon him," with the rest of the conspirators. H.—They have read differently. C.—Sum. Heb.

years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Joazan, of Jerusalem.

2 And he did what was good in the sight of the Lord: but yet not with a perfect heart.

3 And when he saw himself strengthened in his kingdom, he put to death the servants that had slain the king, his father.

4 But he slew not their children, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses, where the Lord commanded, saying: 'The fathers shall not be slain for the children, nor the children for their fathers; but every man shall die for his own sin.

5 Amasias, therefore, gathered Juda together, and appointed them by families, and captains of thousands, and of hundreds in all Juda, and Benjamin: and he numbered them from twenty years old and upwards, and found three hundred thousand young men that could go out to battle, and could hold the spear and the shield.

6 He hired also of Israel a hundred thousand valiant men, for a hundred talents of silver.

7 But a man of God came to him, and said: O king, let not the army of Israel go out with thee, for the Lord is not with Israel, and all the children of Ephraim:

8 And if thou think that battles consist in the strength of the army, God will make thee to be overcome by the enemies: for it belongeth to God both to help, and to put to flight.

9 And Amasias said to the man of God: What will then become of the hundred talents which I have given to the soldiers of Israel? and the man of God answered him: The Lord is rich enough to be able to give thee much more than this.

10 Amasias then separated the army, that came to him out of Ephraim, to go home again: but they being much enraged against Juda, returned to their own country.

11 And Amasias, taking courage, led forth his people, and went to the vale of salt pits, and slew of the children of Seir, ten thousand.

12 And other ten thousand men the sons of Juda

* A. M. 3165, A. C. 839. 4 Kings xiv. 2.—^d Deut. xxiv. 16. 4 Kings xiv. 6. Ezec. xviii. 20.

"the greatness of the burden on him," (H.) imposed by the Syrians, (v. 24) or denounced by the prophets. Mossa is often taken for a prophetic menace. C.—Mora. Heb. "in the researches." Prot. "story of the book." Addo entitled his book Modross. C. xxii. 22. H.—Only some extracts from these works have come down to us. Esdras had them before him. The abridgments have occasioned their loss, as has been the case with many other excellent works. This was the more easy, as writing was not then so common. C.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 2. Heart, and with perseverance.

VER. 5. Families. The officers were well acquainted with their soldiers; (C.) and all were more interested for each other's welfare, (D.) than they are in the present system. C.—Young. Prot. "choice men, able to go." H.

VER. 6. Thousand. Yet "they were so greatly reduced, but a few years before, that there were left . . only fifty horsemen," &c. 4 K. xiii. 7. Kennicott.—That might be true, at one time, when the people fled from the king's banners through fear. But they were still in the country, and God gave Israel a saviour ib. v. 5. See C. xiii. 3. and xvii. 19. H.—Silver. This sum was very small, for so great a multitude. Salien suspects talents of gold are meant, though the soldiers were paid in silver. But the sum was only the hire for a short time; (M.) and was not distributed among the soldiers, who were to live on plunder, but went into the king's coffers, (C.) or belonged to the officers alone. Mariana. D.—The talent of silver was worth 342l. 3s. 9d. Arbuthnot.

VER. 8. And. Heb. "But if thou wilt go, do; be strong; (he speaks ironically) God," &c. Sept. "if thou thinkest that thou art strong with these, the Lord," &c. Amasias ought to have known that no dependance was to be placed on Israel, while they despised God. C. xv. 2.

VER. 9. What will. Syr. &c. "What then is my crime in having given thee," &c.—To the. Heb. or "for the army." H.

VER. 12. Rock, afterwards called Jecteel. Some take it to be Petra. 4 K. xiv. 7.

took, and brought to the steep of a certain rock, and cast them down headlong from the top, and they all were broken to pieces.

13 But that army which Amasias had sent back, that they should not go with him to battle, spread themselves among the cities of Juda, from Samaria, to Bethhoron, and having killed three thousand, took away much spoil.

14 And Amasias, after he had slain the Edomites, set up the gods of the children of Seir, which he had brought thence, to be his gods, and adored them, and burnt incense to them.

15 Wherefore the Lord being angry against Amasias, sent a prophet to him, to say to him: Why hast thou adored gods that have not delivered their own people out of thy hand?

16 And when he spoke these things, he answered him: Art thou the king's counsellor? be quiet, lest I kill thee. And the prophet departing, said: I know that God is minded to kill thee, because thou hast done this evil, and moreover hast not hearkened to my counsel.

17 Then Amasias, king of Juda, taking very bad counsel, sent to Joas, the son of Joachaz, the son of Jehu, king of Israel: saying: Come, let us see one another.

18 But he sent back the messengers, saying: The thistle that is in Libanus sent to the cedar in Libanus, saying: Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and behold the beasts that were in the wood of Libanus, passed by, and trod down the thistle.

19 Thou hast said: I have overthrown Edom, and therefore thy heart is lifted up with pride: stay at home; why dost thou provoke evil against thee, that both thou shouldst fall and Juda with thee.

20 Amasias would not hearken to him, because it was the Lord's will that he should be delivered into the hands of enemies, because of the gods of Edom.

21 So Joas, king of Israel, went up, and they presented themselves to be seen by one another: and Amasias, king of Juda, was in Bethsames of Juda:

22 And Juda fell before Israel, and they fled to their dwellings.

23 And Joas, king of Israel, took Amasias, king of Juda, the son of Joas, the son of Joachaz, in Bethsames,

^a A. M. 8194, A. C. 810.

VER. 13. Samaria, the capital, where they had made their complaints to king Joas; and receiving no redress, began to plunder, as far as Bethhoron the lower, which Solomon had repaired, and his successors had retained, though it belonged to the territory of Ephraim. C. xiii. 5. Jos. xviii. 13. C.

VER. 16. Art thou. Heb. adds, "appointed." H.—The very character of prophet, authorized him to give counsel even to kings. Amasias had perhaps obeyed this prophet, (v. 7) but now his heart was puffed up with victory.—Kill thee, sixteen years hence.

VER. 17. Another, and fight. He supposed Joas had connived at his subjects' invasion, (v. 13. H. See 4 K. xiv. 8. C.) and he now required all Israel to submit to him. Josephus. T.

VER. 18. Thistle. This fable insinuated how much Joas despised the insolence of his antagonist (H.) and Amasias had soon reason to repent. T.

VER. 20. It. Prot. "it came of God, that he might deliver them into the hand of their enemies, because they sought after the gods of Edom." H.—The king was permitted to give ear to evil counsellors. C.—"Jupiter deprives those of understanding, whom he means to destroy." Homer.—The heart is hardened on account of former sin. W.

VER. 24. Obededom, whose descendants guarded these treasures. 1 Par. xxvi. 15. C.—Hostages. Prot. "the hostages also, and returned to Samaria." H.—We think that the kings of Juda had before detained these men. E.—Others suppose that Joas had taken many nobles, whom he exchanged for their sons. But this is all conjecture. C.

and brought him to Jerusalem: and broke down the walls thereof from the gate of Ephraim, to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits.

24 And he took all the gold, and silver, and all the vessels, that he found in the house of God, and with Obededom, and in the treasures of the king's house: moreover also the sons of the hostages, he brought back to Samaria.

25 And Amasias, the son of Joas, king of Juda, lived, after the death of Joas, the son of Joachaz, king of Israel, fifteen years.

26 Now the rest of the acts of Amasias, the first and last are written in the book of the kings of Juda and Israel.

27 And after he revolted from the Lord, they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem. *And he fled into Lachis, and they sent, and killed him there.

28 And they brought him back upon horses, and buried him with his fathers in the city of David.

CHAP. XXVI.

Ozias reigneth prosperously, till he invadeth the priest's office, upon which he is struck with a leprosy.

AND *all the people of Juda took his son, Ozias, who was sixteen years old, and made him king in the room of Amasias, his father.

2 He built Ailath, and restored it to the dominion of Juda, after that the king slept with his fathers.

3 Ozias was sixteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Jechelia, of Jerusalem.

4 And he did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, according to all that Amasias, his father, had done.

5 And he sought the Lord in the days of Zacharias, that understood and saw God: and as long as he sought the Lord, he directed him in all things.

6 Moreover, he went forth, and fought against the Philistines, and broke down the wall of Geth, and the wall of Jabnia, and the wall of Azotus: and he built towns in Azotus, and among the Philistines.

7 And God helped him against the Philistines, and against the Arabians, that dwelt in Gurbaal, and against the Ammonites.

8 And the Ammonites gave gifts to Ozias: and his name was spread abroad, even to the entrance of Egypt, for his frequent victories.

^b A. M. 8194. 4 Kings xiv. 21.

VER. 28. David. Heb. "of Juda," contrary to the Sept. Syr. &c. C.

CHAP. XXVI. VER. 1. Ozias, called Azarias (4 K. xiv. 21. C.) improperly. H. VER. 2. Juda, till the reign of Achaz. 4 K. xvi. 6. It had revolted under Joram. C.

VER. 4. Done. And was successful, as long as he attended to the high priest. Num. xxvii. 21. W.

VER. 5. God, or who had the gift of intelligence and prophecy from God. Heb. "who was intelligent in the visions of God." Others have read birath, with the Sept. "in the fear;" or Chal. &c. "instructing in the fear of the Lord." The Jews childishly understand Zacharias to mean the king himself, in the early part of his reign. Others suppose the priest, who was slain by Joas, is designated. Lyrar.—But this was rather his son (T. Cajet. C.) and successor, as well as a prophet, who had therefore a more perfect knowledge of God; though none can comprehend his being. H.

VER. 6. In. Prot. "about Ashdod." Sept. "he built (or repaired) the cities of Azotus," to keep under the Philistines, who had revolted under Joram. C. xxi. 16.

VER. 7. Gurbaal. Gerara, (S. Jer. Trad.) or Gebel. Ps. lxxxii. 8. Sept. "the rock," or Petra, in Arabia, where Stephanus places the Gabalene.—Ammonites. Heb. mechunim. Sept. "Mineans," (C. xx. 1. H.) upon the Red Sea, (Steph.) or Mediterranean, (Pliny vi. 28.) or in Arabia Felix. Strabo. M.

VER. 8. Gifts. Tribute. C. xxvii. 5. C.—Victories. Prot. "he strengthened himself exceedingly." H.

9 And Ozias built towers in Jerusalem over the gate of the corner, and over the gate of the valley, and the rest, in the same side of the wall, and fortified them.

10 And he built towers in the wilderness, and dug many cisterns, for he had much cattle, both in the plains and in the waste of the desert: he had also vineyards and dressers of vines in the mountains, and in Carmel: for he was a man that loved husbandry.

11 And the army of his fighting men, that went out to war, was under the hand of Jehiel, the scribe, and Maasias, the doctor, and under the hand of Hananias, who was one of the king's captains.

12 And the whole number of the chiefs, by the families of valiant men, were two thousand six hundred.

13 And the whole army under them, three hundred and seven thousand five hundred: who were fit for war, and fought for the king against the enemy.

14 And Ozias prepared for them, that is, for the whole army, shields, and spears, and helmets, and coats of mail, and bows, and slings to cast stones.

15 And he made in Jerusalem engines of diverse kinds, which he placed in the towers, and in the corners of the walls, to shoot arrows, and great stones: and his name went forth far abroad, for the Lord helped him, and had strengthened him.

16 But when he was made strong, his heart was lifted up to his destruction, and he neglected the Lord, his God: and going into the temple of the Lord, he had a mind to burn incense upon the altar of incense.

17 And immediately Azarias, the priest, going in after him, and with him fourscore priests of the Lord, most valiant men,

18 Withstood the king, and said: It doth not belong to thee, Ozias, to burn incense to the Lord, but to the priests, that is, to the sons of Aaron, *who are consecrated for this ministry: go out of the sanctuary, do not despise: for this thing shall not be accounted to thy glory by the Lord God.

19 And Ozias was angry; and holding in his hand the censer to burn incense, threatened the priests. And presently there arose a leprosy in his forehead before the priests, in the house of the Lord, at the altar of incense.

* Exod. xxx. 7. et seq.—4 Kings xv. 5.

VER. 9. Corner. Repairing what Joas had demolished. 4 K. xiv. 13. T.
VER. 10. Wilderness. for the protection of shepherds. 4 K. xvii. 9.—Plains. Heb. "valleys, and in the plains husbandmen, and vinedressers in the mountains, and in Carmel; for he loved the earth, or husbandry," like David. 1 Par. xvii. 25. &c.—Carmel, means, "the vine of God;" as both the mount in Juda, where Nabal resided, and that on the Mediterranean Sea, were famous for wine. Ozias probably cultivated the former mountain. C.

VER. 11. Doctor. Heb. shoter. Sept. "judge." Prot. "ruler." H.—The term is commonly understood of one who executes the sentence of the judge. But this employment does not suit a general, (C.) though such a one might well command. It may denote any "officer." H.

VER. 15. Engines. They are here mentioned for the first time. C.—For the. Heb. "for he was wonderfully helped till he was established." H.—He invented many things for the defence of his kingdom. C.

VER. 17. Azarias. The prophet, who had hitherto kept the king (H.) within bounds, was now no more, v. 5. T.

VER. 18. To thee. For usurping spiritual authority, the king was opposed by the high priest; and God confirmed the sentence of the latter, by striking Ozias with the leprosy; on which account, he was not only cast out of the temple, but also lost his kingdom, being obliged to live apart; (Lev. xiii. 46,) and after death, he could not be buried with his ancestors. W.

VER. 19. Forehead. So that it could not be concealed. According to the rigour of the law, such an offender was to be slain. Num. iii. 10. and xviii. 7.

20 And Azarias, the high priest, and all the rest of the priests, looked upon him, and saw the leprosy in his forehead, and they made haste to thrust him out. Yea, himself also being frightened, hastened to go out, because he had quickly felt the stroke of the Lord.

21 *And Ozias, the king, was a leper unto the day of his death; and he dwelt in a house apart, being full of the leprosy, for which he had been cast out of the house of the Lord. And Joatham, his son, governed the king's house, and judged the people of the land.

22 But the rest of the acts of Ozias, first and last, were written by Isaias, the son of Amos, the prophet.

23 And Ozias slept with his fathers; and they buried him in the field of the royal sepulchres, because he was a leper: and Joatham, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXVII.

Joatham's good reign.

JOATHAM *was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Jerusa, the daughter of Sadoc.

2 And he did that which was right before the Lord, according to all that Ozias, his father, had done, only that he entered not into the temple of the Lord, and the people still transgressed.

3 He built the high gate of the house of the Lord, and on the wall of Ophel he built much.

4 Moreover, he built cities in the mountains of Juda, and castles and towers in the forests.

5 He fought against the king of the children of Ammon, and overcame them, and the children of Ammon gave him at that time a hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand measures of wheat, and as many measures of barley: so much did the children of Ammon give him in the second and third year.

6 And Joatham was strengthened, because he had directed his ways before the Lord, his God.

7 Now the rest of the acts of Joatham, and all his wars, and all his works, are written in the Book of the kings of Israel and Juda.

8 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem.

9 And Joatham slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and Achaz, his son, reigned in his stead.

* A. M. 3246, A. C. 758. 4 Kings xv. 83.

The leprosy was considered as equivalent, and is styled destruction, (v. 16,) and death. Isai. vi. 1. M. See 4 K. xv. 6.

VER. 23. Prophet. Yet we find little concerning him in the prophecy of Isaias; so that the work has been lost, except what Esdras hath preserved. C.

VER. 23. Leprosy. So much was the disease abhorred, (C.) as well as the king's late conduct. H.

CHAP. XXVII. VER. 2. Lord. Like Ozias, to offer incense. He was content with the royal dignity, without arrogating to himself that of the priests. C.—Transgressed. Heb. "acted corruptly," on the heights. 4 K. xv. 35. H.

VER. 3. Gate, on the east, repairing (T.) and beautifying it so, (H.) that Jeremias (xxvi. 10,) calls it New. T.—Ophel, on the walls of the city, (C.) towards the eastern porch of the temple. Joseph. S. Jer. in Isa. xxxii. 14.—Here the Nathineans dwelt. 2 Esd. iii. 26. C.—Kimchi, &c. translate, "a citadel." T.

VER. 5. Measures, (coros.) Heb. corim, also, (H.) means an "ass;" as this burden was sufficient for one, being equivalent to 30 Roman bushels. A. Lapide, M.—Give him. Sept. adds, "These things did the king of Ammon bring to him every year, in the first year, and in the second, and third." H.—After paying tribute three years, the Ammonites revolted, and were subdued by Joatham, as they had been by his father. C. xxvi. 7.

VER. 7. Wars, with Rasin and Phacee. 4 K. xv. 37.—Juda. What concerned both kingdoms was carefully preserved; and Esdras informs us from what records he composed this work. C.

CHAP. XXVIII.

The wicked and unhappy reign of Achaz.

ACHAZ* was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem: he did not that which was right in the sight of the Lord, as David, his father, had done.

2 But walked in the ways of the kings of Israel; moreover, also, he cast statues for Baalim.

3 It was he that burnt incense in the valley of Benennom, and consecrated his sons in the fire, according to the manner of the nations, which the Lord slew at the coming of the children of Israel.

4 He sacrificed also, and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 ^bAnd the Lord, his God, delivered him into the hands of the king of Syria, who defeated him, and took a great booty out of his kingdom, and carried it to Damascus: he was also delivered into the hands of the king of Israel, who overthrew him with a great slaughter.

6 For Phacee, the son of Romelia, slew of Juda a hundred and twenty thousand in one day, all valiant men: because they had forsaken the Lord, the God of their fathers.

7 At the same time, Zechri, a powerful man of Ephraim, slew Maasias, the king's son, and Ezricam, the governor of his house, and Elcana, who was next to the king.

8 And the children of Israel carried away of their brethren, two hundred thousand women, boys, and girls, and an immense booty: and they brought it to Samaria.

9 At that time there was a prophet of the Lord there, whose name was Oded: and he went out to meet the army that came to Samaria, and said to them: Behold the Lord, the God of your fathers, being angry with Juda, hath delivered them into your hands, and you have butchered them cruelly, so that your cruelty hath reached up to heaven.

10 Moreover, you have a mind to keep under the children of Juda and Jerusalem for your bond-men and bond-women, which ought not to be done: for you have sinned in this against the Lord, your God.

* A. M. 3262, A. C. 742. 4 Kings xvi. 2.—A. M. 3263.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. 3. Benennom, "the son of Ennom." 4 K. xvi.—Consecrated. Heb. "burnt." H.

VER. 4. Tree. Remarkable for its size and beauty; as the heathens supposed that some deity lay there concealed. Mariana. T.

VER. 5. Booty. Heb. "number of captives." H.—The two kings had besieged Jerusalem without success: (4 K.) but now their forces were divided. M.—The motives of this war were unjust. Mic. ii. 8.

VER. 7. At the same time, is not in Heb. (C.) or Sept. H.—Zechri, one of the generals of Phacee, slew the king's son, &c. after the engagement.—Next. Joseph and Aman enjoyed the like dignity. Gen. xli. 42. Est. xiii. 3. The high priests had also seculs. 4 K. xxv. 18. Sept. "vicar of the king." C.

VER. 9. Heaven, and cries for vengeance against you. Though God designed to punish his people, your cruelty will not be excused. H.—The effect of this remonstrance, shews that all the kingdom of Israel was not devoid (C.) of feeling and religion. H.—They set a noble example for Christian princes to follow after a victory. D.

VER. 10. God, who forbids this. Lev. xxv. 43. Mic. ii. 8. 9. Heb. "are there not with you, yea, with you, sins against?" &c. If Juda have deserved punishment, reflect if you also be not guilty, v. 13. Sept. "Behold, am I not here with you to bear witness to the Lord?"

VER. 13. Our, is expressed in Heb. and Sept. These people justly confess that they stand in need of pardon, without adding fresh crimes. H.—The cruel treatment of the people of Juda, and the design to make them slaves, were grievous sins. C.

VER. 15. Above. Heb. "by name." They deserved to be immortalized. H. — Anointed. This was very common, (M.) and refreshing. Celsus i. 3.

11 But hear ye my counsel, and release the captives that you have brought of your brethren, because a great indignation of the Lord hangeth over you.

12 Then some of the chief men of the sons of Ephraim, Azarias, the son of Johanan, Barachias, the son of Mosollamoth, Ezechias, the son of Sellum, and Amasa, the son of Adali, stood up against them that came from the war.

13 And they said unto them: You shall not bring in the captives hither, lest we sin against the Lord. Why will you add to our sins, and heap up upon our former offences? for the sin is great, and the fierce anger of the Lord hangeth over Israel.

14 So the soldiers left the spoils, and all that they had taken, before the princes and all the multitude.

15 And the men, whom we mentioned above, rose up and took the captives, and with the spoils, clothed all them that were naked: and when they had clothed and shod them, and refreshed them with meat and drink, and anointed them because of their labour, and had taken care of them: they set such of them as could not walk, and were feeble, upon beasts, and brought them to Jericho, the city of palm-trees, to their brethren, and they returned to Samaria.

16 At that time king Achaz sent to the king of the Assyrians, asking help.

17 ^aAnd the Edomites came and slew many of Juda, and took a great booty.

18 The Philistines also spread themselves among the cities of the plains, and to the south of Juda: and they took Bethsames, and Aialon, and Gaderoth, and Socho, and Thamnan, and Gamzo, with their villages, and they dwelt in them.

19 For the Lord had humbled Juda, because of Achaz, the king of Juda, for he had stript it of all help, and had contemned the Lord.

20 And he brought against him Thelgathphalnasar, ^aking of the Assyrians, who also afflicted him, and plundered him without any resistance.

21 And Achaz stripped the house of the Lord, and the house of the kings, and of the princes, and gave gifts to the king of the Assyrians; and yet it availed him nothing.

* A. M. 3264, A. C. 740.—^d 4 Kings xvi. 10.

VER. 16. King. Heb. "kings." But Sept. have the singular. 4 K. xvi. 7.

VER. 17. And. Sept. "Because the Edomites had come, . . and taken many prisoners." Prot. "for again," &c. H.

VER. 18. Gamzo. Syr. "Garam," perhaps Gaza, (C.) or a city south of Juda. M.

VER. 19. Of Juda. Heb. "Israel." But the Sept. have "Juda." H.—The names are often used promiscuously. C.—For he. Sept. "because he or it had apostatised from the Lord."—Stript. Prot. "he made Judah naked, and transgressed sore," &c. Thus were the idolatrous Israelites exposed to shame and misery, after they had adored the golden calf. Ex. xxxii. 25. H.—In the Baecchanian riots, the pagans threw off their garments, to shew that they trusted entirely in their false gods. T.—Achaz had plunged his country in distress, (C.) both of soul and body, (H.) by his scandalous deportment. C.—Of all help, is added by way of explanation; (T.) as God would no longer rescue his rebellious people from the hands of the enemy. H.

VER. 20. And. Heb. and Sept. "And . . the king . . came against him, and smote him." Heb. continues, "but strengthened him not" in the end; though he had been invited, (v. 16. H.) and had actually made a diversion in favour of Achaz. But not being satisfied, he afterwards returned, and made cruel havoc in the country, imposing tribute upon the king, v. 21. 4 K. xvi. 7. and xviii. 7. It is therefore unnecessary to correct the Heb. with Grotius, to make it agree with 4 K. xvi. 7. Thus—he "came to his aid, and relieved him from his distress," (v. 21.) and granted him assistance."

VER. 21. Gifts. Tribute. C.—Heb. "and gave it to, &c.: but he did not help him." H.

VER. 22. Moreover. Sept. "but to distress him."—Wicked policy availed

22 Moreover, also, in the time of his distress, he increased contempt against the Lord; king Achaz himself, by himself,

23 Sacrificed victims to the gods of Damascus that struck him, and he said: The gods of the kings of Syria help them, and I will appease them with victims, and they will help me: whereas, on the contrary, they were the ruin of him, and of all Israel.

24 Then Achaz having taken away all the vessels of the house of God, and broken them, shut up the doors of the temple of God, and made himself altars in all the corners of Jerusalem.

25 And in all the cities of Juda he built altars to burn frankincense, and he provoked the Lord, the God of his fathers, to wrath.

26 But the rest of his acts, and all his works, first and last, are written in the Book of the kings of Juda and of Israel.

27 And Achaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of Jerusalem: for they received him not into the sepulchres of the kings of Israel. And Ezechias, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXIX.

Ezechias purifieth the temple, and restoreth religion.

NOW Ezechias began to reign, when he was five and twenty years old, and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem: the name of his mother was Abia, the daughter of Zacharias.

2 And he did that which was pleasing in the sight of the Lord, according to all that David, his father, had done.

3 In the first year and month of his reign he opened the doors of the house of the Lord, and repaired them.

4 And he brought the priests and the Levites, and assembled them in the east street.

5 And he said to them: Hear me, ye Levites, and be sanctified, purify the house of the Lord, the God of your fathers, and take away all filth out of the sanctuary.

6 Our fathers have sinned, and done evil in the sight of the Lord God, forsaking him: they have turned away their faces from the tabernacle of the Lord, and turned their backs.

7 They have shut up the doors that were in the porch, and put out the lamps, and have not burnt in-nothing, but entails much evil. W.—King. Heb. "that king Achaz." The sacred writer thus stigmatizes the impious king, who grew worse the more he was scourged. H.—This was the monster, which could not be tamed. Amama.—Eva. "ille," is five times used as a reproach, and often to signify applause. Kimchi.—By himself, is an addition. Amama.—It gives us to understand (H.) that Achaz acted thus of his own accord. C.—Sept. "And king Achaz said, (28) I will studiously seek the gods of Damascus, who have buffeted me," &c. H.—This resolution he took while the arms of Rasin were formidable to him: but he put it in execution after the king of Assyria had delivered him, when he went to Damascus to return him thanks. 4 K. xvi. 10. This stupid blindness and impiety irritated God so much, that he abandoned Juda to the arms of the king, who had been called in as a protector. How could he expect aid from gods who had suffered their own country and people of Damascus to fall a prey to the invader! C.

• A. M. 3278, A. C. 728. 4 Kings xviii. 1.

VER. 24. God: first through fear of the Assyrian, (4 K.) but afterwards he permitted it to continue in the same state of irreligion. C.—So easily do people fall into this abyss, who begin to neglect instruction! H.—Ezechias took care to open the temple again. C. xxix. 3. C.—None of the former kings had dared (H.) to prohibit the worship of the true God. T.

VER. 27. Israel is put as comprising Juda. H. C. xx. 34. and xxiv. 16. &c. C.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. 1. Abia. The last syllable is neglected, 4 K. xviii. 2. H.—Some assert that she was a descendant of the high priest, who had been stoned. S Jer. Trad. C. xxiv. 20. T cense, nor offered holocausts in the sanctuary of the God of Israel.

8 Therefore, the wrath of the Lord hath been stirred up against Juda and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them to trouble, and to destruction, and to be hissed at, as you see with your eyes.

9 Behold, our fathers are fallen by the sword, our sons, and our daughters, and wives, are led away captives for this wickedness.

10 Now, therefore, I have a mind, that we make a covenant with the Lord, the God of Israel, and he will turn away the wrath of his indignation from us.

11 My sons, be not negligent: the Lord hath chosen you to stand before him, and to minister to him, and to worship him, and to burn incense to him.

12 Then the Levites arose: Mahath, the son of Amasai, and Joel, the son of Azarias, of the sons of Caath: and of the sons of Merari, Cis, the son of Abdi, and Azarias, the son of Jalaleel. And of the sons of Gerson, Joah, the son of Zemra, and Eden, the son of Joah.

13 And of the sons of Elisaphan, Samri, and Jahiel. Also, of the sons of Asaph, Zacharias, and Mathanias.

14 And of the sons of Heman, Jahiel, and Semei: and of the sons of Idithun, Semeias, and Oziel.

15 And they gathered together their brethren, and sanctified themselves, and went in according to the commandment of the king, and the precept of the Lord, to purify the house of God.

16 And the priests went into the temple of the Lord to sanctify it, and brought out all the uncleanness, that they found within, to the entrance of the house of the Lord, and the Levites took it away, and carried it out abroad, to the torrent Cedron.

17 And they began to cleanse on the first day of the first month, and, on the eighth day of the same month, they came into the porch of the temple of the Lord, and they purified the temple in eight days, and on the sixteenth day of the same month, they finished what they had begun.

18 And they went in to king Ezechias, and said to him: We have sanctified all the house of the Lord, and the altar of holocaust, and the vessels thereof, and the table of proposition, with all its vessels.

19 And all the furniture of the temple, which king

VER. 3. Reign, in the assembly, which met to recognize his authority. Lyran.—Them, adorning them with plates of gold. 4 K. xviii. 16.

VER. 4. Street, or court, before the eastern gate. C.

VER. 5. Sanctuary, or temple, v. 7. The Jews suppose that idols had been placed in the very sanctuary: (Lyran) but why then were the doors shut? C.

VER. 7. Sanctuary, or court of the priests, where the victims were slain. The blood of some was taken into the most holy place, on the day of expiation. C. VER. 8. Trouble. Heb. zuân, (H.) is rendered vexation. Isai. xxviii. 19. Sept. "ecstasy." The Jews were frequently driven from their homes. M.—They were at a loss what to do, confounded and despised. H.

VER. 9. Wives. C. xxviii. 8. C.—So had the wives and family of king Joram been treated. C. xxi. H.

VER. 10. Covenant, swearing to observe the law given by Moses. M.

VER. 11. Negligent. Heb. adds, "now," when every thing tends to open your eyes. H.

VER. 16. Cedron, as Josias did with the idolatrous altars. 4 K. xxiii. 12. The priests brought what was unclean from the inner temple into the porch. H.—This labour lasted eight days, as the cleansing of the porches had done. C. D.

VER. 17. Month, Nisan, corresponding with our March, (M.) when Ezechias began his reign. Salien, A. 3309.

VER. 19. Defiled. Heb. "cast out (C.) in his."—Forth. Heb. and Sept. "We have prepared and purified, behold they are," &c. H.

VER. 21. Seven. Only one was prescribed for sins of ignorance. Lev. iv. 18. 22. S. Jer. Trad.—But the late transgressions were of a different nature; an Achaz, in his reign, had defiled, after his transgression; and behold they are all set forth before the altar of the Lord.

20 And king Ezechias, rising early, assembled all the rulers of the city, and went up into the house of the Lord:

21 And they offered together seven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven lambs, and seven he-goats, for sin, for the kingdom, for the sanctuary, for Juda: and he spoke to the priests, the sons of Aaron, to offer them upon the altar of the Lord.

22 Therefore they killed the bullocks, and the priests took the blood, and poured it upon the altar, they killed also the rams, and their blood they poured also upon the altar, and they killed the lambs, and poured the blood upon the altar.

23 And they brought the he-goats, for sin, before the king, and the whole multitude, and they laid their hands upon them:

24 And the priests immolated them, and sprinkled their blood before the altar, for an expiation of all Israel: for the king had commanded that the holocaust and the sin-offering should be made for all Israel.

25 And he set the Levites, in the house of the Lord, with cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, according to the regulation of David, the king, and of Gad, the seer, and of Nathan, the prophet: for it was the commandment of the Lord, by the hand of his prophets.

26 And the Levites stood with the instruments of David, and the priests with trumpets.

27 And Ezechias commanded that they should offer holocausts upon the altar: and when the holocausts were offered, they began to sing praises to the Lord, and to sound with trumpets, and divers instruments, which David, the king of Israel, had prepared.

28 And all the multitude adored, and the singers, and the trumpeters, were in their office, till the holocaust was finished.

29 And when the oblation was ended, the king, and all that were with him, bowed down, and adored.

30 And Ezechias, and the princes, commanded the Levites to praise the Lord with the words of David, and Asaph, the seer: and they praised him with great joy, and bowing the knee, adored.

31 And Ezechias added, and said: You have filled your hands to the Lord, come and offer victims, and praises in the house of the Lord. And all the multitude offered victims, and praises, and holocausts, with a devout mind.

32 And the number of the holocausts which the multitude offered, was seventy bullocks, a hundred rams, and two hundred lambs.

33 And they consecrated to the Lord six hundred oxen, and three thousand sheep.

34 But the priests were few, and were not enough to slay the holocausts: wherefore the Levites, their brethren, helped them till the work was ended, and priests were sanctified, for the Levites are sanctified with an easier rite than the priests.

35 So there were many holocausts, and the fat of peace-offerings, and the libations of holocausts: and the service of the house of the Lord was completed, 36 And Ezechias, and all the people rejoiced because the ministry of the Lord was accomplished. For the resolution of doing this thing was taken suddenly.

CHAP. XXX.

Ezechias inviteth all Israel to celebrate the Pasch: the solemnity is kept fourteen days.

AND Ezechias sent to all Israel and Juda: and he wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasses, that they should come to the house of the Lord, in Jerusalem, and keep the Phase to the Lord, the God of Israel.

2 For the king taking counsel, and the princes, and all the assembly of Jerusalem, decreed to keep the Phase the second month.

3 For they could not keep it in its time: because there were not priests enough sanctified; and the people was not as yet gathered together to Jerusalem.

4 And the thing pleased the king, and all the people.

5 And they decreed to send messengers to all Israel, from Bersabee even to Dan, that they should come,

• A. M. 3278.

the king consults his zeal, rather than what he was absolutely obliged to do.—Juda, to expiate the sins of the royal family, of priests, and people.

VER. 28. They laid. The king and princes of the people confessed their sins. LEV. IV. 15.

VER. 25. Prophet. Moses had not required music, except on some occasions. NUM. X. 10. But David acted by God's authority. The institution was designed to promote piety, and a love for religious meetings. Such sacred ceremonies are not to be considered as human inventions, for it was, &c. They command our utmost respect. C.

VER. 27. Prepared, or ordained. M.—Heb. "with the instruments, by David."

VER. 30. Princes of the priests. H.—Words; psalms. T.—Asaph, so famous for music. He had composed some psalms, (C.) and twelve bear his name. T.—But he might only have set them to music, (H.) or his band sung them. D.—Knee. Prot. "head." Sept. "they prostrated themselves."

VER. 31. Added. Heb. and Sept. "answered," a term used in Scripture, though no question had been proposed. H.—Filled. You are, in some sense, priests. Prot. "you have consecrated yourselves." The people brought victims but the priests poured the blood round the altar, v. 34. H.

VER. 33. Sheep, for peace-offerings. Jun. C.—They destined these victims for the use of the temple, (T.) that none might be wanting afterwards. C.

VER. 34. Holocausts, as the law required. LEV. I. 6. See C. XXXV. 11. The skin might be taken off other victims, by laics.—Priests. Syr. "The Levites were more timid, or reserved than the priests, to purify themselves." C.—Both are indirectly accused of negligence. C. XXX. 15. The Heb. seems to give the preference to the latter, "for the Levites were more upright of heart, (Sept.) willing to purify themselves than the priests." But the Alex. Sept. may well agree with the Vulg. The ceremonies attending the purification of both, may be seen EX. XXIX. 1. Num. VIII. 6. H.—The priests had not sufficient time to collect themselves with the purity required, on such a short warning; and the paucity induced the king to put off the Passover till the next month. C. XXX. 3. 15.

VER. 36. Because. Heb. and Sept. "that the Lord had disposed the people, for the thing was done suddenly," (H.) to place no obstacle to this sudden change from one extreme to the other, at a time when the king was scarcely established on the throne. C.—Thus the people of England rejoiced, when the Catholic religion was re-established by the means of queen Mary and cardinal Pole. Philips. 9.—But the minds of the people are very fickle. Regis ad exemplum totius componitur orbis. Still the joy may show, that all love for truth is "not extinct," as the Cardinal argued from the people's conduct. Poli. ep. H.

CHAP. XXX. VER. 1. Manasses. The pious king thought he might give a general invitation, without umbrage. King Osee was not so impious as his predecessors. 4 K. XVII. 2. Afflictions had made his people more docile. The Jews say (C.) that the golden calves had been taken away by the Assyrians, and that the king removed the guards, which had been placed to hinder his subjects from repairing to Jerusalem. M. Salien, A. 3305.—Ezechias writes privately to the house of Joseph, as the people were prouder on account of the royal dignity. S. Jer. Trad.

VER. 2. Month. The Rabbins pretend that the king intercalated the second Adar, contrary to the rule and advice of the wise, and that he ought to have allowed those who were pure to celebrate the feast in due time. Selden, Syn. II. 1.—But the Caraites deny this pretended leap-year; and we see that Ezechias acted according to the advice of the princes, and that the Scripture praises his conduct. C.—Those who had a lawful impediment, were authorized to put off the feast till the second month. Num. IX. 10. The nation was under this predicament, as they had not priests at hand, (T.) nor were they assembled. D.

VER. 5. Many. None had kept the Phase this year. H.—But those of Israel had not done it for a long time. Grotius.—Heb. "for they had not long and keep the Phase to the Lord, the God of Israel, in Jerusalem: for many had not kept it as it is prescribed by the law.

6 And the posts went with letters by commandment of the king, and his princes, to all Israel and Juda, proclaiming according to the king's orders: Ye children of Israel, turn again to the Lord, the God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Israel: and he will return to the remnant of you that have escaped the hand of the king of the Assyrians.

7 Be not like your fathers, and brethren, who departed from the Lord, the God of their fathers, and he hath given them up to destruction, as you see.

8 Harden not your necks, as your fathers did: yield yourselves to the Lord, and come to his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever: serve the Lord, the God of your fathers, and the wrath of his indignation shall be turned away from you.

9 For if you turn again to the Lord: your brethren, and children, shall find mercy before their masters, that have led them away captive, and they shall return into this land: for the Lord, your God, is merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if you return to him.

10 So the posts went speedily from city to city, through the land of Ephraim, and of Manasses, even to Zabulon, whilst they laughed at them, and mocked them.

11 Nevertheless, some men of Aser, and of Manasses, and of Zabulon, yielding to the counsel, came to Jerusalem.

12 But the hand of God was in Juda, to give them one heart to do the word of the Lord, according to the commandment of the king, and of the princes.

13 And much people were assembled to Jerusalem, to celebrate the solemnity of the unleavened bread in the second month.

before done according to the Scripture. Sept. "the multitude had not done," &c. C.—Yet, even in the worst times, Tobias, (i. 6.) and other zealous souls, contrived to comply with their duty. H.

VER. 6. Posts. Lit. "runners or couriers." H.—King. Heb. "kings." Phil and Thelgathphalnasar. The latter had taken away some tribes. 4 K. xv. 20. 29. C.

VER. 7. Destruction. Sept. "solitude." Prot. "desolation."

VER. 8. Yield. Lit. "give your hands," (H.) in sign of submission (C.) and fidelity. Sept. "give glory."

VER. 9. Brethren. God sometimes spares one for the sake of another. H.

VER. 10. Zabulon. Aser and Nephthali lay more to the north. But they were also invited, as well as the few who might remain on the other side the Jordan. 1 Par. v. 26. At least, we find that some of Aser came, v. 11. Thus those, who had been invited last, came first, while Ephraim continued more stubborn; (v. 18) and the greatest part derided the messengers, as we still see too frequently verified in the days of the gospel. H.

VER. 11. Yielding. Sept. "were converted." Prot. "humbled themselves, and came." H.

VER. 12. Hand; grace (M.) and power, to ensure such unanimity.

VER. 14. Burnt, both vessels and altars. C.—To idols, corresponds with the Sept. "the false ones," and is added by way of explanation, unless it be lost in Heb. The illegal (H.) altars had been set up by Achaz. C. xxviii. 24. M.

VER. 15. At length. Sept. "were converted." Heb. "ashamed, and sanctified themselves." H.—The ceremonies of purification for priests were longer, (C. xxix. 34.) and the sacred ministers were ashamed to be outdone by the people. M.

VER. 16. Levites, who received the paschal lambs from the unsanctified. M.—The law does not require the ministry of the tribe of Levi for this purpose, as each one might kill the paschal victim at home. But the people were not sufficiently purified on this occasion. Lyrar.—At other times, laics killed the victims, if they were clean. Ex. xii. 6. After the tabernacle was set up, the priests poured out the blood on the altar; and, in latter ages, they slew the victim according to Grotius. But the texts of Josephus (x. 5. and Bel. vi. 45. Lat. vii. 17. H.) are inconclusive; and Philo repeatedly asserts that, on one day, the law authorizes all the people to sacrifice: and, though he lived at Alexandria, 14 And they arose, and destroyed the altars that were in Jerusalem, and took away all things in which incense was burnt to idols, and cast them into the torrent Cedron.

15 And they immolated the Phase on the fourteenth day of the second month. And the priests and the Levites being at length sanctified, offered holocausts in the house of the Lord.

16 And they stood in their order, according to the disposition, and law of Moses, the man of God: but the priests received the blood which was to be poured out, from the hands of the Levites.

17 Because a great number was not sanctified: and, therefore, the Levites immolated the Phase for them that came not in time to be sanctified to the Lord.

18 For a great part of the people from Ephraim, and Manasses, and Issachar, and Zabulon, that had not been sanctified, eat the Phase, otherwise than it is written: and Ezechias prayed for them, saying: The Lord, who is good, will shew mercy,

19 To all them, who with their whole heart seek the Lord, the God of their fathers: and will not impute it to them, that they are not sanctified.

20 And the Lord heard him, and was merciful to the people.

21 And the children of Israel, that were found at Jerusalem, kept the feast of unleavened bread seven days, with great joy, praising the Lord every day: The Levites also, and the priests, with instruments, that agreed to their office.

22 And Ezechias spoke to the heart of all the Levites, that had good understanding, concerning the Lord: and they eat during the seven days of the solemnity, immolating victims of peace-offerings, and praising the Lord, the God of their fathers.

23 And it pleased the whole multitude to keep other seven days: which they did with great joy.

his testimony respecting a fact of public notoriety, is not to be rejected. Only the unclean applied to the Levites on this occasion, and the latter had no more right to sacrifice than the rest. C.

VER. 17. For. Prot. "for every one that was not clean, to sanctify them unto the Lord." Sept. "not able to be purified to the Lord." H.—The priests alone continued to pour the blood on the altar, till the destruction of the temple. C.

VER. 18. Ephraim and . . Issachar had not been mentioned before, v. 18. H.—Some indulgence was shewn to the tribes of Israel, which had been so long rebellious, for fear lest they should return no more; and because they had shewn a good will in procuring the Levites to slay the victims for them, as that was rightly judged a more sacred action than to partake of the feast. The law forbade, nevertheless, the unclean to approach to any thing sacred. Lev. xv. 31 and xxii. 4. Num. ix. 6. C.—But a dispensation was granted, (M.) as the Passover could not be celebrated in any but the first or the second month. The people had come with such eagerness, that they had not time to acquire the purity required. C.—They were however truly penitent, and God dispensed with them. W.

VER. 20. Merciful; lit. "appeased." Heb. and Sept. "healed." S. Jerom (Trad.) says, "It was asserted that no unclean person could taste the Phase, but death presently ensued; and they understood that the Lord was appeased, because those who eat did not die." H.—Heb. girpa may, however, denote that God "pardoned," or did not impute the uncleanness to the people. Schindler, and C. xxxvi. 16. and Isai. vi. 10.

VER. 21. Days. It seems all the observances had been omitted in the first month. The Jews teach, that those who have complied with those prescriptions, which require no particular purity, are not bound to keep the festival for seven days, nor to abstain from leavened bread the second month.—That agreed. Heb. and Sept. "of strength," sonorous, (M.) which they played on with all their force, or which sounded forth the divine power. C.

VER. 22. Heart; encouraged them to bear the fatigue for other seven days.—Lord; being of good dispositions, (C.) and able musicians. Sa. M.—Praising. Prot. "making confession to." But the sense is the same. H.—During the seven days, unleavened bread and peace-offerings were used, v. 24. C.

VER. 23. Joy, though not prescribed by the law. M.—This we should call a work of supererogation, (W.) which gives Prot. so much offence. H.

24 For Ezechias, the king of Juda, had given to the multitude a thousand bullocks, and seven thousand sheep: and the princes had given the people a thousand bullocks, and ten thousand sheep: and a great number of priests was sanctified.

25 And all the multitude of Juda, with the priests and Levites, and all the assembly, that came out of Israel: and the proselytes of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Juda, were full of joy.

26 And there was a great solemnity in Jerusalem, such as had not been in that city since the time of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel.

27 And the priests and the Levites rose up, and blessed the people: and their voice was heard: and their prayer came to the holy dwelling-place of heaven.

CHAP. XXXI.

Idolatry is abolished; and provisions made for the ministers.

AND "when these things had been duly celebrated, all Israel, that were found in the cities of Juda, went out, and they broke the idols, and cut down the groves, demolished the high places, and destroyed the altars, not only out of all Juda and Benjamin, but out of Ephraim also, and Manasses, till they had utterly destroyed them: then all the children of Israel returned to their possessions and cities.

2 And Ezechias appointed companies of the priests, and the Levites, by their courses, every man in his own office; to wit, both of the priests, and of the Levites, for holocausts, and for peace-offerings, to minister, and to praise, and to sing in the gates of the camp of the Lord.

3 And the king's part was, that of his proper substance the holocaust should be offered always, morning and evening, and on the sabbaths, and the new moons, and the other solemnities, as it is written in the law of Moses.

4 He commanded also the people that dwelt in Jerusalem, to give to the priests, and the Levites, their portion, that they might attend to the law of the Lord.

5 Which when it was noised abroad in the ears of the people, the children of Israel offered in abundance the first fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey: and

* A. M. 3278.

VER. 25. Proselytes, who had embraced the Jewish law: the rest were not allowed to partake of the paschal victims. Ex. xii. 43.

VER. 26. Israel: as many of the tribes came to join with their brethren of Juda.

VER. 27. Levites. These only applauded the solemn blessings, which were given by the priests. Num. vi. 24. C.—God is said to reside in heaven, because he there displays his glory to the blessed. D.

CHAP. XXXI. VER. 1. Manasses, whether king Osee consented, or the people of Juda followed the dictates of their zeal, neglecting the regular order of things, which forbids the subjects of one kingdom to interfere thus with those of another. Grotius. S. Aug. q. in Deut. vii. and 12.—If Ezechias gave orders, we may suppose that he was assured of his neighbour's consent. Josias (C. xxiv. 6.) followed his example after most part of Israel was led away captive, and the country obeyed the king of Assyria. C.

VER. 2. Praise: lit. "confess." H.—There is a confession of God's perfections, as well as of sin. W.—Gates, within their respective courts. C.—The Turks style the palace of their emperor, "the sublime porte." H.—Camp, or temple. Sept. "in the gates, in the courts of the house of the Lord." M.—Grave has not in the gates. H.—We know that they did not sing there, but in the courts (C.) or halls. H.

VER. 3. Substance. Since David had placed the ark in the palace of Sion, it seems the kings had furnished the solemn victims for morning and evening, on all the festivals. Solomon also engaged to do it every day; and his magnificence herein astonished the queen of Saba. C. viii. 13. and ix. 4. and 3 K. ix. 25. Ezechiel (xlv.) assigns revenues to the prince for this purpose; but, as the people were often without any, they paid each the third part of a sicla, to furnish the victims. 2 Esd. x. 32. C.—The king did not wish to exempt himself from brought the tithes of all things which the ground bringeth forth.

6 Moreover, the children of Israel and Juda, that dwelt in the cities of Juda, brought in the tithes of oxen, and sheep, and the tithes of holy things, which they had vowed to the Lord, their God: and carrying them all, made many heaps.

7 In the third month, they began to lay the foundations of the heaps; and in the seventh month, they finished them.

8 And when Ezechias, and his princes, came in, they saw the heaps, and blessed the Lord, and the people of Israel.

9 And Ezechias asked the priests, and the Levites, why the heaps lay so.

10 Azarias, the chief priest of the race of Sadoc, answered him, saying: Since the first-fruits began to be offered in the house of the Lord, we have eaten, and have been filled, and abundance is left, because the Lord hath blessed his people: and of that which is left, is this great store which thou seest.

11 Then Ezechias commanded to prepare storehouses in the house of the Lord. And when they had done so,

12 They brought in faithfully both the first-fruits, and the tithes, and all they had vowed. And the overseer of them was Chonenias, the Levite, and Semei, his brother, was the second,

13 And after him, Jehiel, and Azarias, and Nahath, and Asael, and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliel, and Jesmachias, and Mahath, and Banaias, overseers under the hand of Chonenias, and Semei, his brother, by the commandment of Ezechias, the king, and Azarias, the high priest of the house of God, to whom all things appertained.

14 But Core, the son of Jemna, the Levite, the porter of the east-gate, was overseer of the things which were freely offered to the Lord, and of the first-fruits, and the things dedicated for the holies of holies.

15 And under his charge were Eden, and Benjamin, Jesue, and Semeias, and Amarias, and Sechenias, in the cities of the priests, to distribute faithfully portions to their brethren, both little and great:

contributing, while he required that the people should support the priests. The troublesome times had greatly impaired the revenues of the temple, &c. T.

VER. 4. Portion. Lit. "parts," (H.) first-fruits and tithes. M.—Lord, without being taken off by worldly cares. It would be well if Christian princes would make an adequate provision for the ministers of religion: (v. 16. T.) as the law of nature dictates, that those who serve the public should be supported by it. D.

VER. 5. Honey for the priests, not for sacrifice. Lev. ii. 11. It may include dates, or palm wine. See Pliny xiii. 4. C.—Forth; only wheat, barley, the fruits of vine, olive, pomegranate, fig, and palm-trees. R. Solomon. Lev. xxvii. 30. C.

VER. 6. Things, out of which the Levites had to give tithes to the priests. Lyran. Num. xviii. 26. M.—Vowed. Heb. "consecrated to . . God, and laid them in heaps." H.

VER. 7. Them, bringing from Pentecost till the harvest was ended.

VER. 10. Sadoc, being his grandson, (1 Par. vi. 12. C.) or the father of Sellum. Jun.—People, with abundance; so that more would belong to the priests. C.

VER. 11. Storehouses. Sept. καταθήκη. Solomon had prepared such. T.—But they had gone to ruin, and others might be requisite. C.—The old granaries were to be repaired. M.—People brought their first-fruits to the temple but the Levites gathered the tithes, and gave a share to the priests, and to those who were on duty. 2 Esd. x. 36.

VER. 12. Second; his vicar or coadjutor. C. C. xxvi. 11. and xxviii. 7. M.

VER. 13. High: lit. "pontiff." H.—Heb. "captain." He is styled first priest, v. 10. C.—To whom, &c. is neither in Heb. nor in the Sept. M. C. D.

VER. 14. And of. Prot. "To distribute the oblations of the Lord, and the most holy things." (H.) to the priests.

16 Besides the males, from three years old and upward, to all that went into the temple of the Lord, and whatsoever there was need of in the ministry, and their offices according to their courses day by day,

17 To the priests, by their families, and to the Levites, from the twentieth year and upward, by their classes and companies,

18 And to all the multitude, both to their wives, and to their children of both sexes, victuals were given faithfully out of the things that had been sanctified.

19 Also of the sons of Aaron who were in the fields, and in the suburbs of each city, there were men appointed, to distribute portions to all the males, among the priests and the Levites.

20 So Ezechias did all things which we have said in all Juda: and wrought that which was good, and right, and truth, before the Lord, his God,

21 In all the services of the ministry of the house of the Lord, according to the law and the ceremonies, desiring to seek his God with all his heart; and he did it, and prospered.

CHAP. XXXII.

Sennacherib invadeth Juda: his army is destroyed by an angel. Ezechias recovereth from his sickness: his other acts.

AFTER these things, and this truth, Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, came and entered into Juda, and besieged the fenced cities, desiring to take them.

2 And when Ezechias saw that Sennacherib was come, and that the whole force of the war was turning against Jerusalem,

3 He took counsel with the princes, and the most valiant men, to stop up the heads of the springs, that were without the city: and as they were all of this mind,

4 He gathered together a very great multitude, and they stopped up all the springs, and the brook, that ran through the midst of the land, saying: Lest the kings of the Assyrians should come, and find abundance of water.

5 He built up, also, with great diligence, all the wall that had been broken down, and built towers upon it, and another wall without: and he repaired Mello, in the city of David, and made all sorts of arms and shields:

6 And he appointed captains of the soldiers of the

• A. M. 3291, A. C. 718. 4 Kings xviii. 18. Eccli. xlviii. 20. Isai. xxxvi. 1.

VER. 16. Besides, (exceptis. C.) not to mention. H. See Lev. xxiii. 38. Girls are included, v. 18. It is supposed (C.) that children were at the breast till they were three years old, and therefore no portion is assigned them before. Mariana.

VER. 17. Upward. Ezechias followed the regulation of David, rather than that of Moses, who deferred the service till the 25th or 30th year. Num. iv. 3. and viii. 24. 1 Par. xxiii. 24.

VER. 18. To all. Prot. "the genealogy of all their little ones, their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, through all the congregation: for in their set office they sanctified themselves in holiness." H.—All complied with their respective duties; the people, the distributors, and the priests. C.

VER. 19. Aaron. Heb. and Sept. add, "the priests." (M.) which is sufficiently understood.—And in. Heb. "of" H.

VER. 20. God. This is the highest praise that can be given to a prince; and, in effect, we read there was none like him. 4 K. xviii. 5. C.—Sept. omit and truth. Ezechias loved it, and sincerely desired to serve the Lord. H.

CHAP. XXXII. VER. 1. Truth, and sincere piety of the king, God was pleased to put him to trial; (T. M. D.) or, "after these things were established." Jun.—Sennacherib attacked Juda when Ezechias had been fifteen years on the throne, and till that time had paid the stipulated tribute. 4 K. xviii. 13. C.—He now probably refused to pay it any longer. Salien, A. 3319. M.

VER. 2. Jerusalem as many cities had fallen. The king entered into an agreement with the Assyrian, who soon broke it.

VER. 3. Cist. The torrent Cedron afforded the only good supply of water.

army: and he called them all together in the street of the gate of the city, and spoke to their heart, saying:

7 Behave like men, and take courage: be not afraid, nor dismayed for the king of the Assyrians, nor for all the multitude that is with him: for there are many more with us than with him.

8 For with him is an arm of flesh: with us the Lord, our God, who is our helper, and fighteth for us. And the people were encouraged with these words of Ezechias, king of Juda.

9 After this, Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, sent his servants to Jerusalem (for he, with all his army, was besieging Lachis,) to Ezechias, king of Juda, and to all the people that were in the city, saying:

10 Thus saith Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians: In whom do you trust, that you sit still besieged in Jerusalem?

11 Doth not Ezechias deceive you, to give you up to die, by hunger and thirst, affirming, that the Lord, your God, shall deliver you from the hand of the king of the Assyrians?

12 Is it not this same Ezechias, that hath destroyed his high places, and his altars, and commanded Juda and Jerusalem, saying: You shall worship before one altar, and upon it you shall burn incense?

13 Know you not what I and my fathers have done to all the people of the lands? have the gods of any nations and lands been able to deliver their country out of my hand?

14 Who is there among all the gods of the nations, which my fathers have destroyed, that could deliver his people out of my hand, that your God should be able to deliver you out of this hand?

15 Therefore let not Ezechias deceive you, nor delude you with a vain persuasion, and do not believe him. For if no god of all the nations and kingdoms, could deliver his people out of my hand, and out of the hand of my fathers, consequently neither shall your God be able to deliver you out of my hand.

16 And many other things did his servants speak against the Lord God, and against Ezechias, his servant.

17 He wrote also letters full of blasphemy against the Lord, the God of Israel, and he spoke against him: As the gods of other nations could not deliver their people out of my hand, so neither can the God of Ezechias deliver his people out of this hand.

It was often dry, and was only three steps across, when full of melted snow or rain. The waters of Siloe and Gihon were collected in it. Yet it was no very difficult enterprise for the king to turn the stream, and introduce the waters through the rock into a large reservoir, in the city, by the canal, which is mentioned 2 Esd. ii. 14. Eccli. xlviii. 19. The besieged were more frequently deprived of water. Judith vii. 6. Babylon was taken by Semiramis, Cyrus, and Alexander, after they had turned aside the waters of the Euphrates; and Cesar obliged the town of Cahors to surrender, by intercepting the springs. Frontin. iii. 7. C.

VER. 4. Land, Cedron, on the east; (C. M.) or it may be the Gihon, which supplies Siloe, v. 30. T.

VER. 5. Without, of less strength.—Mello, the palace, which was strongly situated, and Ezechias added fresh fortifications. 2 K. v. 9.—Arms. Heb. "darts."

VER. 6. Gate, where there was a room for assemblies. 2 K. xviii. 24. C.—Heart, in the most affectionate and pathetic manner. H.

VER. 7. More: God and his angels, from whom he expected relief, and was not disappointed. 4 K. vi. 18. and xix. 35. C.

VER. 9. Lachis, whence he sent Rabasaces. Other blasphemous letters were dispatched from Lobna, (v. 17) when Sennacherib was forced to go to meet Tharaca. 4 K. xix. 9.

VER. 12. His altars. Rabasaces was ignorant of the law and upbraids the king for a commendable action. C.—Thus our adversaries foolishly blame us for keeping holy days and abstinence. H.

VER. 17. He (Sennacherib) wrote, when he was going towards Egypt. Bo

18 Moreover, he cried out with a loud voice, in the Jews' tongue, to the people that sat on the walls of Jerusalem, that he might frighten them, and take the city.

19 And he spoke against the God of Jerusalem, as against the gods of the people of the earth, the works of the hands of men.

20 And Ezechias, the king, and Isaias, the prophet, the son of Amos, prayed against this blasphemy, and cried out to heaven.

21 *And the Lord sent an angel, who cut off all the stout men, and the warriors, and the captains of the army of the king of the Assyrians: and he returned with disgrace into his own country. And when he was come into the house of his god, his sons that came out of his bowels, slew him with the sword.

22 And the Lord saved Ezechias, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, out of the hand of Sennacherib, king of the Assyrians, and out of the hand of all, and gave them rest on every side.

23 Many, also, brought victims, and sacrifices to the Lord, to Jerusalem, and presents to Ezechias, king of Juda: and he was magnified thenceforth in the sight of all nations.

24 ^bIn those days Ezechias was sick, even to death, and he prayed to the Lord: and he heard him, and gave him a sign.

25 But he did not render again according to the benefits which he had received, for his heart was lifted up: and wrath was enkindled against him, and against Juda, and Jerusalem.

26 And he humbled himself afterwards, because his heart had been lifted up, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and, therefore, the wrath of the Lord came not upon them in the days of Ezechias.

27 And Ezechias was rich, and very glorious, and he gathered himself great treasures of silver, and of gold, and of precious stones, of spices, and of arms of all kinds, and of vessels of great price.

28 Storehouses also, of corn, of wine, and of oil, and stalls for all beasts, and folds for cattle.

29 And he built himself cities: for he had flocks of sheep, and herds without number; for the Lord had given him very much substance.

30 This same Ezechias was he that stopped the upper source of the waters of Gihon, and turned them away underneath toward the west of the city of David: in all his works he did prosperously what he would.

* Tobias i. 21.—^b 4 Kings xx. 1. Isai. xxxviii. 1. A. M. 3291, A. C. 718.—^c A. M. 3306, master and servant employed the same fallacious argument; as if the true God and idols were all upon a level, and as if past success were a sure proof of future victories, v. 19. H.

VER. 21. Army. Heb. "camp."—Disgrace. The Jews pretend that he was deprived of his beard and hair, (S. Jer. Trad.) misapplying the text of Isai. vii. 20. C.—Sword, to prevent their being offered as victims, to appease the idol and the people. R. Solomon. Lyran.—This happened some months after the king's return to Ninive, when he had cruelly oppressed the captive Jews and Tobias, i. 24. T.

VER. 23. Many; probably strangers. 3 K. viii. 41.

VER. 24. Sign. See 4 K. xx.

VER. 25. Up, by riches, and the splendid embassy from Babylon. C.—Prosperity is more dangerous than adversity. W.—Few are able to bear good fortune with moderation. H.

VER. 27. Arms. Heb. "shields." Sept. "arsenals."

VER. 30. Underneath the walls of the city, making them run westward. C. xxxiii. 14.

VER. 31. Wonder, at the defeat of Sennacherib, (Grot. D.) or rather the retrogradation of the sun, as the Chaldees studied astronomy with diligence. M. T. C.—Left him, in punishment of his vanity. H.—Heart. How feeble is man when destitute of the divine assistance! M.—God permitted, therefore,

31 But yet in the embassy of the princes of Babylon, that were sent to him, to enquire of the wonder that had happened upon the earth, God left him that he might be tempted, and all things might be made known that were in his heart.

32 Now the rest of the acts of Ezechias, and of his mercies, are written in the Book of the kings of Juda and Israel.

33 And Ezechias slept with his fathers, *and they buried him above the sepulchres of the sons of David: and all Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, celebrated his funeral: and Manasses, his son, reigned in his stead.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Manasses, for his manifold wickedness, is led captive to Babylon: he repenteth, and is restored to his kingdom, and destroyeth idolatry: his successor, Amos, is slain by his servants.

MANASSES ^awas twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem.

2 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all the abominations of the nations, which the Lord cast out before the children of Israel:

3 And he turned, and built again the high places which Ezechias, his father, had destroyed: and he built altars to Baalim, and made groves, and he adored all the host of heaven, and worshipped them.

4 He built, also, altars in the house of the Lord, whereof the Lord had said: *In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever.

5 And he built ^bthem for all the host of heaven, in the two courts of the house of the Lord.

6 And he made his sons to pass through the fire, in the valley of Benennom: he observed dreams, followed divinations, gave himself up to magic arts, had with him magicians, and enchanters: and he wrought many evils before the Lord, to provoke him to anger.

7 ^cHe set also a graven, and a molten statue in the house of God, of which God had said to David, and to Solomon, his son: In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever.

8 And I will not make the foot of Israel to be removed out of the land which I have delivered to their fathers: yet so if they will take heed to do what I have commanded them, and all the law, and the ceremonies, and judgments, by the hand of Moses.

A. C. 698.—^a A. M. 3306. 4 Kings xxi. 1.—^b 2 Kings vii. 7.—^c 3 Kings viii. 17.

the king to be tempted, (C.) that he might know himself, and that others might have a true idea of him. D.

VER. 33. Above, for distinction's sake: (C.) meriti prerogativa. S. Jer. Trad. M.—The cell was either higher than the rest, or a sort of pyramid was erected over the tomb of Ezechias. C.

CHAP. XXXIII. VER. 3. The host of heaven. The sun, moon, and stars, (Ch.) in imitation of the Phœnicians and ancient Chanaanites.

VER. 5. Courts of the Gentiles and of Israel, (M.) though afterwards he also placed idols even in the court of the priests, v. 7. Salien, A. 3340.—But we find no express mention of the court of the Gentiles, till after the captivity; (C.) so that the two courts mean those of the priests and of Israel. Villalpand, Sa. &c.

VER. 6. Valley. Heb. Ge-ben-hunom, "the vale of the son of Ennom," (H.) a Jebusite, who had formerly possessed that part of the valley of Cedron. M.—Syr. writes Gena, whence comes γένη a place at the foot of Moria, and the sink of the city. A constant fire was kept up to burn dead bodies. Kimchi. D.

VER. 7. Graven. Prot. "a carved image (the idol which he had made) in, &c. It seems to have been sacred to the grove, (H.) or a representation of Asartate, 4 K. xxi. 7. The ark was taken away, (C. xxv. 8.) to make place for this impure deity, which had four (S. Basil) or five faces, (Euseb Salien) that people might adore it on all sides.

9 So Manasses seduced Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to do evil beyond all the nations, which the Lord had destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

10 And the Lord spoke to him, and to his people, and they would not hearken.

11 Therefore, he brought upon them the captains of the army of the king of the Assyrians: and they took Manasses, and carried him, bound with chains and fetters, to Babylon.

12 And after that he was in distress, he prayed to the Lord, his God: and did penance exceedingly before the God of his fathers.

13 And he entreated him, and besought him earnestly: and he heard his prayer, and brought him again to Jerusalem, into his kingdom; and Manasses knew that the Lord was God.

14 After this he built a wall without the city of David, on the west side of Gihon, in the valley, from the entering in of the fish-gate round about to Ophel, and raised it up to a great height: and he appointed captains of the army in all the fenced cities of Juda:

15 And he took away the strange gods, and the idol, out of the house of the Lord: the altars also, which he had made in the mount of the house of the Lord, and in Jerusalem, and he cast them all out of the city.

16 And he repaired the altar of the Lord, and sacrificed upon it victims, and peace-offerings, and praise: and he commanded Juda to serve the Lord, the God of Israel

17 Nevertheless, the people still sacrificed in the high places to the Lord, their God.

18 But the rest of the acts of Manasses, and his prayer to his God: and the words of the seers, that spoke to him in the name of the Lord, the God of Israel, are contained in the words of the kings of Israel.

19 His prayer also, and his being heard, and all his

* A. M. 3361, A. C. 643.

VER. 9. Seduced. Using the arts of seduction, as well as open force. Heb. "Manasses made Juda . . . err," 4 K. xxi. 16. There is a fund of malice in the human heart, which easily prevails on people to yield, on such occasions, if the grace of God do not support them. Yet, as they are not still without a sense of duty and religion, many will readily comply with the invitations of a pious king, when he earnestly endeavours to reform his people. But these conversions too frequently prove false and unstable. C. xxix. 36. H.

VER. 10. Spoke, by his prophets. 4 K.

VER. 11. Captains: probably Tharthan. A. 3328. About five years before, Asarhaddon had made himself master of Babylon, to which place the captive king was brought, in the 22d year of his reign. 4 K. xx. 10. &c. Isai. xxii.—And carried. Heb. "among the thorns, and bound him with fetters (Prot.) of brass;" (Jnn. &c.) or, "they took Manasses with a hook," insidiously. He might have retired to some desert place, as the Israelites did, to avoid the fury of the Philistines. 1 K. xiii. 6. C.—Chains. Vatable says, "two." M.

VER. 12. Distress. "When he had been conducted to Babylon, and cast into a brazen vessel full of holes, over a fire, he called upon all the names of the idols, which he was accustomed to adore; and, as he was not heard, nor set free by them, he recollected what he had often heard repeated by his father: When thou shalt call upon me in tribulation, and shalt be converted, I will hear thee graciously; as it is written in Deut. (see C. iv. 29. H.) and his prayer was thus heard by the Lord, and he was delivered and brought back to his kingdom, like Habacuc." S. Jer. Trad.—The author of the imperfect work on S. Matthew, (among the works of S. Chrys. hom. 1. H.) says, that Manasses was barely allowed as much barley bread, and water mixed with vinegar, as would keep him alive. Whereupon, remembering the Lord, he had recourse to his clemency, and a miraculous flame surrounded him, and dissolving his chains, set him at liberty. Snares-luchin, the successor of Azarhaddon, probably restored him to his throne, some years after his captivity, or perhaps that very year, so that his repentance continued thirty-three years. C.—Prayed, a proof of the efficacy of sincere repentance. W.

VER. 14. Without, including what is styled the second city; (4 K. xxii. 14.) or he perfected the works begun by his father, or repaired the wall which the Assyrians had thrown down, though we read not of their taking the city. C.—Fish-gate. To Ophel, from the north-eastern corner, to the place opposite to the sins, and contempt, and places wherein he built high places, and set up groves, and statues, before he did penance, are written in the words of Hozai.

20 And Manasses slept *with his fathers, and they buried him in his house: and his son, Amon, reigned in his stead.

21 Amon was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem.

22 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, as Manasses, his father, had done: and he sacrificed to all the idols which Manasses, his father, had made, and served them.

23 And he did not humble himself before the Lord, as Manasses, his father, had humbled himself, but committed far greater sins.

24 And his servants conspired against him, and slew him in his own house.

25 But the rest of the multitude of the people slew them that had killed Amon, and made Josias, his son, king in his stead.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Josias destroyeth idolatry, repaireth the temple, and reneweth the covenant between God and the people.

JOSIAS^b was eight years old when he began to reign, and reigned one and thirty years in Jerusalem.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the ways of David, his father: he declined not either to the right hand, or to the left.

3 And in the eighth year of his reign, when he was yet a boy, he began to seek the God of his father, David: and in the twelfth year after he began to reign, he cleansed Juda and Jerusalem from the high places, and the groves, and the idols, and the graven things.

4 And they broke down before him the altars of Baalim, and demolished the idols that had been set upon them: and he cut down the groves and the graven things, and broke them in pieces: and strewed eastern gate of the temple. C. xxvii. 8. M.—The fish-gate led towards Joppe, whence the city was supplied with fish. S. Jer. Trad.—It was also called David's gate, because it stood near his city. By it, the Chaldees afterwards rushed in. Soph. i. 10. T.

^b 4 Kings xxii. 1. A. M. 3363, A. C. 641.

VER. 16. And praise. Prot. "thanks-offerings." Sept. "a victim of salvation and praise." H.—The sacrifice might be accompanied with canticles.—Ps. xxi. 6, &c. C.

VER. 17. God. Heb. adds, "only," and not to idols. H.—This worship was not superstitious, but it was illegal; and it is a misfortune, that Manasses had not as much influence to guide the people in virtue, as he had formerly, to induce them to follow his example in idolatry. C.—He could not prevail upon them to destroy the high places. M.

VER. 18. Prayer, which is not extant in Heb. but in Greek and Latin. As yet it is neither received for canonical, nor rejected by the Church. W.—Israel. That kingdom had been overturned in the sixth year of Ezechias. There was now no need of distinguishing the kings of Juda from those of Israel. The former seemed to have claimed authority over the whole country. 4 K. xxiii. 19. H.

VER. 19. Contempt. Heb. "prevarication." Sept. "apostacy." M.—Chozai means "seers." Sept. Prot. H.—But it more probably signifies some particular prophet, (C.) Isaias, (S. Jer. Trad.) "Hanan," (Syr.) or "Saphan." Arab. version. C.—This work, less than the book of the kings of Israel, is now lost. M.

VER. 20. House, in his own gardens, and not with the other kings. Grot. C.

VER. 22. Made, though he had afterwards destroyed them. Amon endeavoured to restore their worship, (C.) adoring the same idols, and making other statues in their honour. D.

VER. 23. Sins, inasmuch as he died in his guilt. Prot. "but Amon trespassed more and more," (H.) following the former bad example of Manasses, Jer. xv. D.

VER. 25. Them. Heb. "all that had conspired against king Amon." H.

CHAP. XXXIV. VER. 3. Boy; 16 years old. D.—The kings of Juda were in their minority, till they had completed their 13th year. Grotius.—Cleansed Heb. and Sept. "in the twelfth year he began to purify," &c. H.—The work was not brought to perfection till six years afterwards, v. 8. C. T.

VER. 4. Idols. Heb. chammanim, (H.) "statues of the sun." The term often denotes those open enclosures, where sacred fire was kept in honour of the sun. C.—Sept. "the heights above them." Syr. "he destroyed the elars, idols, tigors, (563) the fragments upon the graves of them that had sacrificed to them.

5 And he burnt the bones of the priests on the altars of the idols, and he cleansed Juda and Jerusalem.

6 And in the cities of Manasses, and of Ephraim, and of Simeon, even to Nephthali, he demolished all.

7 And when he had destroyed the altars, and the groves, and had broken the idols in pieces, and had demolished all profane temples throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

8 Now, in the eighteenth year *of his reign, when he had cleansed the land, and the temple of the Lord, he sent Saphan, the son of Eselias, and Maasias, the governor of the city, and Joha, the son of Joachaz, the recorder, to repair the house of the Lord, his God.

9 And they came to Helcias, the high priest: and received of him the money which had been brought into the house of the Lord, and which the Levites and porters had gathered together from Manasses, and Ephraim, and all the remnant of Israel, and from all Juda, and Benjamin, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

10 Which they delivered into the hands of them that were over the workmen in the house of the Lord, to repair the temple, and mend all that was weak.

11 But they gave it to the artificers, and to the masons, to buy stones out of the quarries, and timber for the couplings of the building, and to rafter the houses, which the kings of Juda had destroyed.

12 And they did all faithfully. Now the overseers of the workmen were Jahath and Abdias, of the sons of Merari, Zacharias and Mosollam, of the sons of Caath, who hastened the work: all Levites, skilful to play on instruments.

13 But over them that carried burdens for divers uses, were scribes, and masters of the number of the Levites, and porters.

14 Now when they carried out the money that had been brought into the temple of the Lord, Helcias, the priest, found the book of the law of the Lord, by the hand of Moses.

15 And he said to Saphan, the scribe: I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord: and he delivered it to him.

16 But he carried the book to the king, and told him, saying: Lo, all that thou hast committed to thy servant, is accomplished.

17 They have gathered together the silver that was found in the house of the Lord: and it is given to the overseers of the artificers, and of the workmen, for divers works.

18 Moreover, Helcias, the priest, gave me this book. And he read it before the king.

19 And when he had heard the words of the law, he rent his garments:

20 And he commanded Helcias, and Ahicam, the son of Saphan, and Abdon, the son of Micha, and Saphan, the scribe, and Asaa, the king's servant, saying:

21 Go, and pray to the Lord for me, and for the remnant of Israel, and Juda, concerning all the words of this book, which is found: for the great wrath of the Lord hath fallen upon us, because our fathers have not kept the words of the Lord, to do all things that are written in this book.

22 And Helcias, and they that were sent with him by the king, went to Oлда, the prophetess, the wife of Selum, the son of Thecuath, the son of Hasra, keeper of the wardrobe: who dwelt in Jerusalem, in the second part: and they spoke to her the words above-mentioned.

23 And she answered them: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you to me:

24 Thus saith the Lord: Behold I will bring evils upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, and all the curses that are written in this book, which they read before the king of Juda.

25 Because they have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, to provoke me to wrath with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall fall upon this place, and shall not be quenched.

26 But as to the king of Juda that sent you to beseech the Lord, thus shall you say to him: Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel: Because thou hast heard the words of this book,

27 And thy heart was softened, and thou hast humbled thyself in the sight of God for the things that are spoken against this place, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and reverencing my face, hast rent thy garments, and wept before me: I also have heard thee, saith the Lord.

28 For now I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be brought to thy tomb in peace: and thy eyes shall not see all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and the inhabitants thereof. ^bThey, therefore, reported to the king all that she had said.

29 And he called together all the ancients of Juda and Jerusalem,

30 And went up to the house of the Lord, and all

* A. M. 3350, A. C. 624.

^b 4 Kings xxiii. 1.

and temples, (5) the bracelets, little bells, and all the trees which had been consecrated to idols." Arab. "the altars, idols, and leopards."

VER. 5. Priests, whom he slew upon the altars, 4 K. xxiii.

VER. 6. He. Heb. "with their swords, (C. Prot. mattocks) round about;" (H.) or, "and in their deserts," the inhabitants being removed. Sept. "in their places around." Syr and Arab. "in their public places." All the interpreters have read differently from what we find in Heb. at present. Some may wonder that Josias should act thus, out of his own dominions. But the few Israelites who were left, had placed themselves under his protection; and as he made no ravages, and the Cuthites did not adopt the former superstitious practices of the country, they were not concerned to see the altars destroyed; nor were the kings of Assyria informed of, or interested to stop, these proceedings. C.—Josias followed the directions of the priests and prophets; (M.) and many believe that the Assyrian monarch had given these territories to him, to hold, as his vassal; (T.) or God restored them to the lawful king, (v. 9) having promised all those countries to the family of David, for the express purpose of keeping up his own worship among his chosen people, and for exterminating idolatry. H.

VER. 8. Eselias, or Assia. This man is alone mentioned, 4 K. xxii. 3. C.

VER. 11. Houses, or apartments of the temple, which were gone to decay. H.

VER. 12. Of music is expressed in Heb. and Sept. H.—These Levites were chosen, because they were not so constantly employed in the temple, (C) and they were not hired barely to inspect the works, and hence the expense was diminished.

VER. 13. Masters: lit. "master porters." Prot. "officers and porters;" all Levites. H.—Jahath, &c. directed them that carried burdens, (C.) as the Heb. intimates; and in general, all the officers were chosen from the same tribe. H.

VER. 17. Together: lit. "melted down," as the Heb. and Sept. signify. Coin was not yet used. C.—But the pieces of money, of whatever description, were collected. H.

VER. 22. Hasra. Oлда's husband's grandfather is styled Araas, 4 K. xxi. H.—Second part of the city, near the temple, or near the second gate, or between the two walls. D.

VER. 28. Peace. The country enjoyed peace, as Pharaoh was gone; (M.) and Josias did not witness the evils here denounced. T.—This was a blessing. W.

the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the priests, and the Levites, and all the people, from the least to the greatest. And the king read in their hearing in the house of the Lord, all the words of the book.

31 And standing up in his tribunal, he made a covenant before the Lord to walk after him, and keep his commandments, and testimonies, and justifications, with all his heart, and with all his soul, and to do the things that were written in that book which he had read.

32 And he adjured all that were found in Jerusalem, and Benjamin, to do the same: and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of the Lord, the God of their fathers.

33 And Josias took away all the abominations out of all the countries of the children of Israel: and made all that were left in Israel, to serve the Lord, their God. As long as he lived, they departed not from the Lord, the God of their fathers.

ЧАП. XXXV.

Josias celebrateth a most solemn Pasch. He is slain by the king of Egypt.

AND "Josias kept a Phase to the Lord in Jerusalem, and it was sacrificed on the fourteenth day of the first month.

2 And he set the priests in their offices, and exhorted them to minister in the house of the Lord.

3 And he spoke to the Levites, by whose instruction all Israel was sanctified to the Lord, saying: Put the ark in the sanctuary of the temple, which Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel, built: for you shall carry it no more: but minister now to the Lord, your God, and to his people, Israel.

4 And prepare yourselves by your houses, and families, according to your courses, as David, king of Israel, commanded, and Solomon, his son, hath written.

5 And serve ye in the sanctuary by the families and companies of Levi,

6 And being sanctified, kill the Phase, and prepare your brethren, that they may do according to the words which the Lord hath spoken by the hand of Moses.

7 And Josias gave to all the people that were found there in the solemnity of the Phase, of lambs, and of kids, of the flocks, and of other small cattle, thirty thousand, and of oxen, three thousand: all these were of the king's substance.

8 And his princes willingly offered what they had vowed, both to the people, and to the priests and the

* A. M. 3381. 4 Kings xxiii. 21.

VER. 33. In Israel, who had fled into his dominions. See v. 6. C.—They. Sept. "he," &c. Josias worshipped God with all his heart: but all Israel paid him, at least, an external adoration. H.

ЧАП. XXXV. VER. 3. By whose. Sept. "the powerful in Israel, that they might be sanctified to the Lord; and they put," &c. Heb. "who instructed all Israel, the holy people of the Lord: Put," &c. H.—No more. Heb. adds, "upon your shoulders;" (H.) whence it is inferred, that it had been carried about the cities of Juda, under the impious kings, who would not suffer it in the temple. C.—Some believe that it was kept in the house of Sellum, the uncle of Jeremias, and husband of Oлда. S. Jer. Trad. T.

VER. 5. Families. Heb. adds, "according to the divisions of the families of the fathers of your brethren, the people, (H. or laica. C.) and the division of the families of the Levites." All were placed, with great order, in the temple.

VER. 6. Which. Heb. "of the Lord, by the hand of Moses," which ordinances he has written down. M.

VER. 7. In. Heb. "for the Passover-offerings, from the flock, lambs and kids, in number 30,000." Et reliqui pecoris, is not expressed. H.—The small cattle might be intended for other sacrifices. M.

VER. 8. Offered. Heb. "gave to the people." H.—Rulers: the first alone was high priest. C.—Small cattle: lit. "cattle of different sorts;" communiu. Prot. supply, "small cattle," which is not now in Heb. H.—Syr. and Arab.

Levites. Moreover, Helcias, and Zacharias, and Jahiel, rulers of the house of the Lord, gave to the priests to keep the Phase, two thousand six hundred small cattle, and three hundred oxen.

9 And Chonenias, and Semeias, and Nathanael, his brethren, and Hasabias, and Jehiel, and Jozabad, princes of the Levites, gave to the rest of the Levites to celebrate the Phase, five thousand small cattle, and five hundred oxen.

10 And the ministry was prepared, and the priests stood in their office: the Levites, also, in their companies, according to the king's commandment.

11 And the Phase was immolated: and the priests sprinkled the blood with their hand, and the Levites flayed the holocausts:

12 And they separated them to give them by the houses and families of every one, and to be offered to the Lord, as it is written in the book of Moses; and with the oxen they did in like manner.

13 And they roasted the Phase with fire, according to that which is written in the law: but the victims of peace-offerings they boiled in cauldrons, and kettles, and pots, and they distributed them speedily among all the people.

14 And afterwards they made ready for themselves, and for the priests: for the priests were busied in offering of holocausts and the fat until night: wherefore the Levites prepared for themselves, and for the priests, the sons of Aaron, last.

15 And the singers, the sons of Asaph, stood in their order, according to the commandment of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Idithun, the prophets of the king: and the porters kept guard at every gate, so as not to depart one moment from their service: and, therefore, their brethren, the Levites, prepared meats for them.

16 So all the service of the Lord was duly accomplished that day, both in keeping the Phase, and offering holocausts upon the altar of the Lord, according to the commandment of king Josias.

17 And the children of Israel that were found there, kept the Phase at that time, and the feast of unleavened bread seven days.

18 There was no Phase like to this in Israel, from the days of Samuel the prophet: neither did any of all the kings of Israel keep such a Phase as Josias kept, with the priests, and the Levites, and all Juda, and Israel that were found, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

have, "sheep;" but we had best follow (C.) the Sept. "sheep, both lambs and kids." Either would suffice. Ex. xii. 5.

VER. 9. Cattle. Prot. again supply these words. Sept. have, "sheep." H.

VER. 11. Blood is expressed in the Sept. and understood in Heb. H.—With. Heb. and Sept. "from their hands;" (H.) receiving it from the offerers, who might slay their own victims, (C.) unless they were unclean, (C.) xxx. 17. H.—Holocausts. Heb. and Sept. speak of the paschal lambs. H.—Holocausts were regularly to be flayed by priests. Lev. i. 6. The hurry of the solemnity, (C.) and necessity, here excused the Levites, (M.) if we understand proper holocausts. H.

VER. 12. Separated. Sept. "prepared the holocaust to give; having taken notice to whom the victims belonged, before they took off the skin, (M.) or rather, separating these from the other peace-offerings. Tournemine.

VER. 13. Victims. Heb. and Sept. "but the holy offerings they boiled." See Ex. xii. 9. H.

VER. 15. Prophets. Heb. "seer." But Sept. &c. read in the plural. These were "prophets of the king," (H.) or masters of music, C.—Vulg. might insinuate that these three gave orders, as well as David. But they were in office under him, as people of the same name were, probably, under Josias. H.

VER. 18. As Josias kept. He displayed greater liberality (E. See 4 K. xxiii. 20.) and devotion; and the festival had also been neglected for some time. W

19 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josias was this Phase celebrated.

20 *After that Josias had repaired the temple, Nechao, king of Egypt, came up to fight in Charcamis, by the Euphrates: and Josias went out to meet him.

21 But he sent messengers to him, saying: What have I to do with thee, O king of Juda? I come not against thee this day, but I fight against another house, to which God hath commanded me to go in haste: forbear to do against God, who is with me, lest he kill thee.

22 Josias would not return, but prepared to fight against him, and hearkened not to the words of Nechao, from the mouth of God, but went to fight in the field of Mageddo.

23 And there he was wounded by the archers, and he said to his servants: Carry me out of the battle, for I am grievously wounded.

24 And they removed him from the chariot into another, that followed him after the manner of kings, and they carried him away to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried in the monument of his fathers, and all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for him;

25 Particularly Jeremias: whose lamentations for Josias all the singing men and singing women repeat unto this day, and it became like a law in Israel: Behold it is found written in the Lamentations.

26 Now the rest of the acts of Josias, and of his mercies, according to what was commanded by the law of the Lord;

27 And his works, first and last, are written in the Book of the kings of Juda and Israel.

CHAP. XXXVI.

The reigns of Joachaz, Joakim, Joachin, and Sedecias: the captivity of Babylon released at length by Cyrus.

THEN *the people of the land took Joachaz, the son of Josias, and made him king instead of his father in Jerusalem.

2 Joachaz was three and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem.

3 And the king of Egypt came to Jerusalem, and

* 4 Kings xxiii. 29. A. M. 3894, A. C. 610.—^b Zach. xii. 11.—^c A. M. 3894, A. C. 610.

VER. 20. Charcamis belonged to the Assyrian monarch, (Isai. x. 9.) who subdued the empire of Babylon. C. xxxiii. 11.

VER. 21. With me. Grotius thinks that Jeremias had given the order; and the author of Heb. Traditions, supposes that he forbade Josias to oppose Pharaoh, who, it seems, was assured of victory. C.—But this is uncertain; and Josias might justly suspect that the king of Egypt spoke without authority. H.—The augurs of the latter might declare the truth, (M.) though they could not dive into futurity. H.—Herodotus (i.) informs us, that Nechos fought against the Syrians, (or Israelites) in Magdelum, and took Cadythis, a city as large as Sardis, of Lydia; probably Jerusalem, (D.) or Cades. C.

VER. 22. Prepared. Heb. "disguised himself," like Achab; (C.) or set his army in array. Sept. "he was bent on fighting him." H.—He supposed that Pharaoh intended to invade his dominions, and God would withdraw him from the world. W.

VER. 24. After the manner of kings, is not in Heb. &c. H.—Curtius (iv.) informs us, that the Persian monarch had always a horse behind his chariot, to be ready in case of any accident.

VER. 25. Lamentations. Some think that we have them in the Bible. Josephus, &c.—Others believe that they are lost. Salien, A. 3425.—Lara, on the anniversary; (M.) or when any calamity occurs, the lamentations of Jeremias are used. T.—There were collections of such poems, as well as of canticles, for victory and marriages. C.

VER. 27. Israel is placed first in Heb. and Sept. H.—The kings of Juda assumed the title, as the kingdom had been subverted above a century; and the wretched remains of Israel had retreated into the territories, (C.) or acknowledged their dominion. H.

CHAP. XXXVI. VER. 3. Him. Joachaz had attempted to defend himself, and had been conducted prisoner to Reblatha. 4 K. xxiii. 33. Ezech. xix. 4. He was now deposed in form, and a tribute laid upon the people. C.

deposed him, and condemned the land, in a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold.

4 And he made *Eliakim, his brother, king in his stead, over Juda and Jerusalem: and he turned his name to Joakim: but he took Joachaz with him, and carried him away into Egypt.

5 Joakim was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem: and he did evil before the Lord, his God.

6 Against him came up Nabuchodonosor, king of the Chaldeans, and led him bound in chains into Babylon.

7 And he carried also thither the vessels of the Lord, and put them in his temple.

8 But the rest of the acts of Joakim, and his abominations, which he wrought, and the things that were found in him, are contained in the Book of the kings of Juda and Israel. And Joachin, his son, reigned in his stead.

9 Joachin was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem, and he did evil in the sight of the Lord.

10 And at the return of the year, king Nabuchodonosor sent, and brought him to Babylon, carrying away, at the same time, the most precious vessels of the house of the Lord: *and he made Sedecias, his uncle, king over Juda and Jerusalem.

11 Sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem.

12 And he did evil in the eyes of the Lord, his God, and did not reverence the face of Jeremias, the prophet, speaking to him from the mouth of the Lord.

13 He also revolted from king Nabuchodonosor, who had made him swear by God: and he hardened his neck and his heart, from returning to the Lord, the God of Israel.

14 Moreover, all the chief of the priests, and the people, wickedly transgressed according to all the abominations of the Gentiles: and they defiled the house of the Lord, which he had sanctified to himself in Jerusalem.

15 And the Lord, the God of their fathers, sent to them, by the hand of his messengers, rising early, and 4 Kings xxiii. 30.—^a Mat. i. 11.—^b 4 Kings xxiv. 1. Jer. xxxvii. 1.—^c A. M. 3405, A. C. 599.

VER. 4. Brother. From the time of David, the son had always succeeded his father. W.

VER. 6. Babylon, but sent him back soon after; (T.) unless he altered his first design, (D.) and slew him disgracefully at Jerusalem. Iyras. E. C. 4 K. xxiii. 5.—He allowed him to reign as a vassal other three years, but took Daniel, &c. captives. The seventy years of Jeremias, (xxv. 11.) are to be dated from this event. A. 3402. Usher.

VER. 7. The vessels. Heb. and Sept. "a part of the vessels;" probably the most precious, (v. 10) breaking the rest in pieces, as he left none behind, v. 18.—Temple of his God. Dan. i. 2.

VER. 8. In him. The Jews explain this of the diabolical characters forbidden, Lev. xix. 28. Carthusian. R. Sal. &c.—But it may simply denote the hidden sins of the king, which God will bring to light, or his rebellious conduct. Amama. Gen. xiv. 16. *C.

VER. 9. Eight years old. He was associated by his father to the kingdom, when he was but eight years old; but after his father's death, when he reigned alone, he was eighteen years old. 4 K. xxiv. 8. Ch.—He only enjoyed the throne three months and ten days. T.—We must however observe, (H.) that the Alex. Sept. the Syr. and Arab. read here, eighteen. C.—"It is, in my opinion, a pity that the translators have not mended such apparent errata of the scribe of the present Heb. out of 2 K. xxiv. 8, or out of Sept. or out of common sense." Walf. Kennicott.—These eight years may be dated from the captivity, and not from the king's birth. Usher. D.

VER. 10. Year, in spring, when kings go out to war. C.—Uncle. Sept. "brother of his father," which comes to the same sense, and was certainly the case. Heb. "his brother." Abraham indeed gives the title to his nephew Gen. xiii. 8. C.

VER. 13. By God, to be faithful. T.—This enhances his crime. C.

VER. 15. Early. Prot. "betimes, and sending: because." &c. H.—Like a good daily admonishing them: because he spared his people and his dwelling-place.

16 But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised his works, and misused the prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, and there was no remedy.

17 For he brought upon them the king of the Chaldeans, and he slew their young men with the sword in the house of his sanctuary; he had no compassion on young man, or maiden, old man, or even him that stooped for age; but he delivered them all into his hands.

18 And all the vessels of the house of the Lord, great and small, and the treasures of the temple, and of the king, and of the princes, he carried away to Babylon.

19 And the enemies set fire to the house of God, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, burnt all the towers, and whatsoever was precious they destroyed.

20 Whosoever escaped the sword, was led into Babylon, and there served the king and his sons, till the reign of the king of Persia.

21 That the word of the Lord, by the mouth of Jeremias, might be fulfilled, and the land might keep her sabbaths: for all the days of the desolation, she kept a sabbath, till the seventy years were expired.

22 *But in the first year^b of Cyrus, king of the Persians, to fulfil the word of the Lord, which he had spoken by the mouth of Jeremias, the Lord stirred up the heart of Cyrus, king of the Persians: who commanded it to be proclaimed through all his kingdom, and by writing also, saying:

23 Thus saith Cyrus, king of the Persians: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord, the God of heaven, given to me, and he hath charged me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judea: who is there among you of all his people? The Lord, his God, be with him, and let him go up.

* Esdras i. 1. and vi. 3. Jerem. xxv. 12. and xxix. 10.—^b A. M. 3468, A. C. 586.

was at a stand, &c. H.—During this fifth age, the true religion subsisted invariable, not only in the kingdom of Juda, but also in that of Israel. See Worthington. H.

VER. 22. First. Cyrus had ruled over Persia from A. 3444. He was now emperor of the East. A. 3468. C.—These two verses are repeated by Esdras, which evinces that he was the author of this work also, (T.) adding them when he restored (W.) or revised (H.) the holy scriptures. W.

VER. 23. The Lord, (Jehova.) In Esdras we find yehi, "Let," his God. H.—Up. The sentence is completed in the following book, which makes it probable that these verses are here inserted improperly, by some transcriber. The book of Chronicles, though for many ages the last in the Heb. MSS. was, perhaps, once followed by Ezra, as in Camb. MS. I. (Kennicott) and as it is now in the Prot. version, taken from the Heb. H.

THE FIRST BOOK OF ESDRAS.

This Book taketh its name from the writer, who was a holy priest and doctor of the law. He is called by the Hebrews Ezra, (Ch.) and was son, (T.) or rather, unless he lived above 150 years, a descendant of Saraias. 4 K. xxv. 18. It is thought that he returned first with Zorobabel; and again, at the head of other captives, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, with ample authority. Esdras spent the latter part of his life in exhorting the people, and in explaining to them the law of God. He appeared with great dignity at the dedication of the walls of Jerusalem. 2 Esd. xii. 26. 35. We have four books which bear his name. C.—This and the following book of Nehemias, originally made but one in Heb. (S. Jerom, &c.) as the transactions of both those great men are recorded. The third and fourth are not in Heb. nor received into the canon of the Holy Scriptures, though the Greek Church hold the third as canonical, and place it first; (W.) and Genebrard would assert that both ought to be received, as they were by several Fathers. But they contain many things which appear to be erroneous, and have been rejected by others of great authority, and particularly by S. Jerom. The third book seems to have been written very early, by some Hellenist Jew, who was desirous of embellishing the history of Zorobabel; and the fourth was probably composed by some person of the same nation, who had been converted to Christianity, before the end of the second century; and who injudiciously attempted to convert his brethren, by assuming the name of a man who was so much respected. Many things have been falsely attributed to Esdras, on the same account. It is said that he invented the Masora; restored the Scriptures, which had been lost; fixed the canon of twenty-two books; substituted the Chaldaic characters instead of the ancient Hebrew, Samaritan, or Phœnician. But though Esdras might sanction the latter, now become common, the characters might vary insensibly, (Bianconi. Kennicott, Dis. ii.) as those of other languages have done, (H.) and the sacred books never perished wholly; nor could the canon be determined in the time of Esdras. C.—As for the Masoretic observations and points, they are of too modern an invention. Elias Levita, Capel. Houbigant, &c.—What we know more positively of Esdras, is, (W.) that he was empowered by Artaxerxes to bring back the Jews, and that he acted with great zeal. H.—This book contains the transactions of 82 years, till A. 3550. The letter of Reum, and the king's answer, (C. iv. 7. till C. vi. 19. as well as C. vii. 12, 27.) are in Chaldee; the rest of the work is in Hebrew. C.—We may discover various mysteries concealed under the literal sense of this and the following book. S. Jer. ep. ad Paulin. W.—Esdras is supposed by this holy doctor, as well as by some of the Rabbins, &c. to have been the same person with the prophet Malachy; (Button) and several reasons seem to support this conjecture, though it must still remain very uncertain. C.—Some think that (H.) Esdras wrote only the four last chapters, and the author of Paral. the six preceding ones. D.—But it is most probable that he compiled both from authentic documents. H.—Some few additions may have been inserted since, by divine authority. 2 Esd. xii. 11, 22. T.

CHAP. I.

Cyrus, king of Persia, releaseth God's people from their captivity, with licence to return and build the temple in Jerusalem: and restoreth the holy vessels which Nabuchodonosor had taken from thence.

IN the first year^a of Cyrus, king of the Persians, that the word of the Lord, by the mouth of Jeremias, ^a A. M. 3468, A. C. 586. 2 Par. xxxvi. 22. Jerem. xxv. 12.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. In. Heb. "And (C.) or But in," as 2 Par. xxxvi. 22. H.—Thus the historical works are connected. Spinoza infers, from this book being inserted after Daniel in the Heb. Bible, that the same author wrote both.

might be fulfilled, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, king of the Persians: and he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and in writing also, saying:

2 Thus saith Cyrus, king of the Persians: The Lord, the God of heaven, hath given to me all the kingdoms and xxix. 10. Isai. xlv. 23. and xlv. 1.

But the order of the books in the Sept. and Vulg. is far more natural, (C.) and this has often varied in Heb. &c. Kennicott. See 2 Par. xxxvi. 23. H.—First. The design was only put in execution the following year. A. 3468. Cyrus (5671) of the earth, and he hath charged me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judea.

3 Who is there among you of all his people? His God be with him. Let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judea, and build the house of the Lord, the God of Israel; he is the God that is in Jerusalem.

4 And let all the rest, in all places, wheresoever they dwell, help him every man from his place, with silver and gold, and goods, and cattle, besides that which they offer freely to the temple of God, which is in Jerusalem.

5 Then rose up the chief of the fathers of Juda and Benjamin, and the priests, and Levites, and every one whose spirit God had raised up, to go up to build the temple of the Lord, which was in Jerusalem.

6 And all they that were round about, helped their hands with vessels of silver, and gold, with goods, and with beasts, and with furniture, besides what they had offered on their own accord.

7 And king Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the temple of the Lord, which Nabuchodonosor had taken from Jerusalem, and had put them in the temple of his god.

8 Now Cyrus, king of Persia, brought them forth by the hand of Mithridates, the son of Gazabar, and numbered them to Sassabasar, the prince of Juda.

9 And this is the number of them: thirty bowls of gold, a thousand bowls of silver, nine and twenty knives, thirty cups of gold,

10 Silver cups of a second sort, four hundred and ten: other vessels, a thousand.

11 All the vessels of gold and silver, five thousand four hundred. All these, Sassabasar brought with them that came up from the captivity of Babylon to Jerusalem.

CHAP. II.

The number of them that returned to Judea: their oblations.

NOW *these are the children of the province, that went out of the captivity, which Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, had carried away to Babylon, and who returned to Jerusalem and Juda, every man to his city:

2 Who came with Zorobabel, Josue, Nehemia, Saraia, Rahelaia, Mardochai, Belsan, Mesphar, Beguai, Rehun, Baana. The number of the men of the people of Israel:

* 2 Esdr. vii. 6.

(Heb. coresch, (H.) or Koresch) means "the sun," according to Ctesias and Plutarch. Josephus (xi. 1.) informs us that this prince became a friend to the Jews, in consequence of having seen the prediction of Isaias (xliv. 28. and xlv. 1.) fulfilled in his own person. He took Babylon, A. 3466, and established the Persian empire, which was subverted by Alexander C.—He had before ruled over Persia 27 years, and only reigned three as sole monarch at Babylon. T.—The Lord; every good motion, even in infidels, proceeds from him. D.—Cyrus was one of the best and greatest conquerors of antiquity. He was the son of Cambyses, by Mandane, princess of Media. Xenophon informs us that he died in his bed; (H.) and had been lately conquered. T.

VER. 2. Earth, which had belonged to the king of Babylon. H.—This may be an hyperbole, or an allusion to Isai. xlv. 1. M.—The dominions of Cyrus were very extensive, (Xenophon, Cyrop. i. and viii.) reaching from Ethiopia to the Euxine sea, &c. He acknowledges that he received all from the hand of God. Nabuchodonosor makes a similar confession of his supreme dominion; (Dan. ii. 47.) and the potentates of Egypt and of Rome, procured sacrifices to be offered to him. But what advantage did they derive from this sterile knowledge of his divinity? since they did not honour him accordingly, but wished to join his worship with that of idols; though the force of miracles and of reason must have convinced them that there is but one God. C.—House, or temple. Isai. xlv. 28.—Judea. So the Sept. read, but the Heb. has "Juda," all along. The whole country now began to be known by the former name. H.

VER. 3. He is the God, is placed within a parenthesis, by the Prot. But the pagans might suppose that God was attached to this city, like their idols; and the temple was not yet begun. H.

VER. 4. Rest, who do not please to return. The Jews went at different times, and under the different leaders, Zorobabel, Esdras, and Nehemias. Many did not return at all. Cyrus allows them full liberty. He permits money to be exported, particularly the half siccle, required Ex. xxx. 13, and all voluntary contributions for the temple. Grotius. C.—He also enjoins the prefects of the provinces, (v. 6, and C. iii. 7.) whom Josephus styles "the king's friends," to forward the work; and he even designed to perfect it at his own expence. C. vi. 4.

VER. 8. Gazabar means, "the treasurer." Heb. Syr. C. Prot. 3 Esd. ii. 10. H.—Son is not in Heb. &c. (M.) and must be omitted. T.—Sassabasar. This was another name for Zorobabel, (Ch.) given by the Chaldees, as they changed the name of Daniel into Baltassar. Euseb. Præp. Evan. xi. 3. T.—But others think that this was the Persian "governor (Junius) of Judea," (3 Esd.) as one resided at Jerusalem, till the days of Nehemias. 2 Esd. v. 14. It does not appear that Zorobabel was invested with this dignity, before the reign of Darius Hystaspes. Agg. ii. 24. C.

VER. 9. Knives, Sept. &c. "changes" of garments. C.

VER. 10. Sort. Sept. and Syr. "double," yet of less value. C.—As no first sort had been mentioned, and some Latin MSS. read 2410, agreeably to 3 Esd. ii. 12, and the truth, (Hallet) it may be inferred that "thousands were expressed anciently by single letters, with a dot . . over them." Afterwards, when numbers were expressed by words at length, the o being thus reduced to signify "two," was, of course, written shnim; but this word making nonsense with the following, has been since changed into misnim, a word not very agreeable to the sense here, and which leaves the sum total, now specified in the Heb. text, very deficient for want of the 2000, thus omitted. Kennicott, Dis. ii.—Josephus nas, "30 golden cups, 2400 of silver." H.

VER. 11. Hundred. Only 2499 are specified. 3 Esd. reads, 5469. Josephus (xi. 1.) differs from all, reading 5210; which shews that the copies have varied, and that the Heb. is incorrect. C.—The use of numeral letters might cause this confusion. H. Capel iii. 20. 18

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Now. This catalogue is given again, 2 Esd. vii. 6. and 3 Esd. v. 7. immediately (H.) after the long interpolated story (Kennicott) of the three guards, concerning the superior strength of wine, the king, women or the truth, in which Zorobabel gains the victory, in favour of the latter. H.—The rest of the book is taken from other inspired writings; (Sandford) and their story may be borrowed from Josephus: so that there is no reason for asserting, "that one whole book is now lost out of the sacred canon." Kennicott.—Yet this argument is by no means conclusive, as the Paral. consists of such supplements &c. These three catalogues vary considerably, not only in the proper names, but also in the numbers, (H.) though they must have been the same originally and still give the same total, 42,360. We cannot find that number at present, by above 8,400. In many cases, the disagreement consists of a single unit, hundred, &c. which may lead us to suspect that the Palmyrene, or the more ancient Sidonian notation, may have been adopted in some Heb. MSS. being used about the time of Christ. See Swinton's tables, (Phil. Trans. xlviii. and i.) where the Sidonian coins express the units by small perpendicular strokes; and the Palmyrene inscriptions only admit four of these together, having an arbitrary mark for 5: "the hundreds and units after the tens, are expressed in both, in the same manner as the single units." Kennicott, 2 Dis.—Cordell (MS. note on this author) disapproves of this mode of correcting, and says that the females are included in the total sum, being 12,542, not recorded in the separate sums. But this number seems too small, as there are generally as many of that sex as of the other. H.—Some find the total 31,583, which leaves 10,777 wanting to complete 42,360, as these could not make out their genealogies, or were of the ten tribes. In this chapter only 29,818 are specified, whereas 2 Esd. vii. has 31,089; the latter reckons 1765 unnoticed by Esdras, who has 494 not specified in Nehemias. The difference, that seems to make a reconciliation impossible, is what makes these authors agree; for, if you add the surplus of each to the other, the same total, 31,583, will arise. Alting, ep. 59. This solution, though ingenious, is not solid or satisfactory. Rondet, t. v. p. 176.—De Vence rather thinks that the difference is to be laid to the charge of transcribers, or that some people enrolled themselves after the registers had been made up; so that they are only included in the general sum. H.—Some things may have been inserted from 2 Esd. though here out of place, (Grot.) as we find similar anachronisms, 1 Par. ix. 2, and perhaps Gen. xxxv. 31. Nehemias may also have included those whom he brought back along with these; unless we allow that some one, by attempting to reconcile the two, has thrown all into confusion. It seems undeniable, that some additions have been made to the latter book. C. xii. 11. and 22. The list given 1 Par. ix. 4, comprises only those who came first from Babylon. C.—After this remark, it will hardly be requisite to specify all the variations of names and numbers. H.—"For what can be hence inferred, but that there are some arithmetical mistakes in Scripture, which no one denies?" Huet.—"Almost all who are conversant with ancient copies, agree in the decision of S. Jerom, as they cannot but perceive that some variations have crept in, particularly with respect to numbers and proper names." Walton.—Province, born in Chaldaea, (M.) or rather belonging to Judea, which was now considered as a province of the empire, (C.) and paid tribute. C. iv. 13. 2 Esd. ix. 36. T.—In 3 Esd. we read, "These are they of Judea,"—Nabuchodonosor had taken some of these; the rest were chiefly their descendants.—Juda now is used to denote Judea. H.

VER. 2. Zorobabel was the prince, Josue the high priest. C.—There are 12 mentioned in 2 and 3 Esd. But here the sixth Nabamani, or Enenion, is omitted. H.—They represented the 12 tribes, (Kennicott) and were chiefs. M.—It is wonderful that Esdras is not here mentioned, as well as Nehemias, who led a company after him, many of whom are here recorded. C.—They might come to take care of their patrimony, and return into Chaldaea, like Mardochai, (T

- 3 The children of Pharos, two thousand one hundred seventy-two.
- 4 The children of Sephatia, three hundred seventy-two.
- 5 The children of Area, seven hundred seventy-five.
- 6 The children of Phahath Moab, of the children of Josue: Joab, two thousand eight hundred twelve.
- 7 The children of Elam, a thousand two hundred fifty-four.
- 8 The children of Zethua, nine hundred forty-five.
- 9 The children of Zachai, seven hundred sixty.
- 10 The children of Bani, six hundred forty-two.
- 11 The children of Bebai, six hundred twenty-three.
- 12 The children of Azgad, a thousand two hundred twenty-two.
- 13 The children of Adonicam, six hundred sixty-six.
- 14 The children of Beguai, two thousand fifty-six.
- 15 The children of Adin, four hundred fifty-four.
- 16 The children of Ather, who were of Ezechias, ninety-eight.
- 17 The children of Besai, three hundred and twenty-three.
- 18 The children of Jora, a hundred and twelve.
- 19 The children of Hasum, two hundred twenty-three.
- 20 The children of Gebbar, ninety-five.
- 21 The children of Bethlehem, a hundred twenty-three.
- 22 The men of Netupha, fifty-six.
- 23 The men of Anathoth, a hundred twenty-eight.
- 24 The children of Azmaveth, forty-two.
- 25 The children of Cariathiarim, Cephira, and Beroth, seven hundred forty-three.
- 26 The children of Rama and Gabaa, six hundred twenty-one.
- 27 The men of Machmas, a hundred twenty-two.
- 28 The men of Bethel and Hai, two hundred twenty-three.
- 29 The children of Nebo, fifty-two.
- 30 The children of Megbis, a hundred fifty-six.
- 31 The children of the other Elam, a thousand two hundred fifty-four.
- 32 The children of Harim, three hundred and twenty.
- 33 The children of Lod, Hadid and Ono, seven hundred twenty-five.
- 34 The children of Jericho, three hundred forty-five.

though it does not seem to be Esther's uncle. D.) and Nehemias, who is styled also Athersatha, v. 63. T.—Baana. 3 Esd. adds, "their leaders." H.

VER. 3. Children. When this term precedes the name of a man, it means his offspring; (v. 3. 20.) when placed before a city, it denotes the inhabitants, v. 21. 35. C.—The lay Israelites are placed here; then the Levitical tribe; (v. 36.) the Nathineans, &c. v. 43. It is very difficult to decide when the names designate places, and when persons. M.

VER. 5. Seven. 2 Esd. only 652. These arrived at Jerusalem; the rest altered their mind. Junius. C.—But 3 Esd. has 756: so that there is most probably a mistake somewhere. H.

VER. 6. Moab. This seems to be the name of a place, where the descendants of Josue and Joab might reside; (C. viii. 4. C.) or Phahath might have this title, on account of some victory, or residence in the country. His descendants, with those of Josue and Joab, were 2812, (T.) or 2818. 2 Esd. vii. 11. C.—Josue. Prot. "Jeshua and Joab." H.—Some translate Pahath, "the chief of" Moab, &c. D.—Grotius suspects that to v. 68 may be inserted from Nehemias.

VER. 13. Six. Other 60 returned afterwards with Esdras. H. C. viii. 13.

VER. 16. Ather. 3 Esd. Ator-Ezekios, 92: but 2 Esd. has Ater, children of Ezechias, &c. H.

VER. 17. Besai. We should perhaps read Hasum, (v. 19. C.) then Besai, and afterwards Jora, who may be the same with Hareph. 2 Esd. vii. 24. H.

VER. 20. Gebbar. 2 Esd. Gabaon. 3 Esd. "Baiterous, 3005." H.

- 35 The children of Senaa, three thousand six hundred thirty.

36 The priests: the children of Jadaia, of the house of Josue, nine hundred seventy-three.

37 The children of Emmer, a thousand fifty-two.

38 The children of Pheshur, a thousand two hundred forty-seven.

39 The children of Harim, a thousand and seven teen.

40 The Levites: The children of Josue, and of Cedmihel, the children of Odovia, seventy-four.

41 The singing men: The children of Asaph, a hundred twenty-eight.

42 The children of the porters: the children of Solum, the children of Ater, the children of Telmon, the children of Accub, the children of Hatita, the children of Sobai: in all a hundred thirty-nine.

43 The Nathinites: The children of Siha, the children of Hasupha, the children of Tabbaoth,

44 The children of Ceros, the children of Sia, the children of Phadon,

45 The children of Lebana, the children of Hagaba, the children of Accub,

46 The children of Hagab, the children of Semlai, the children of Hanan,

47 The children of Gaddel, the children of Gaher, the children of Raaia,

48 The children of Rasin, the children of Necoda, the children of Gazam,

49 The children of Aza, the children of Phasea, the children of Besee,

50 The children of Asena, the children of Munim, the children of Nephusim,

51 The children of Bacbuc, the children of Hacupha, the children of Harhur.

52 The children of Besluth, the children of Mahida, the children of Harsa,

53 The children of Bercos, the children of Sisara, the children of Thema, 54 The children of Nasia, the children of Hatipha.

55 The children of the servants of Solomon, the children of Sotai, the children of Sopheret, the children of Pharuda, 56 The children of Jala, the children of Dercon, the children of Geddel.

57 The children of Saphatia, the children of Hatil,

VER. 22. Six. 2 Esd. puts the inhabitants of those two cities together, and makes 188, instead of the present calculation 179. C.—Netupha was in Ephraim. D.

VER. 29. Nebo. 2 Esd. (vii. 33.) adds, "of the other Nebo," as in some Latin copies a first had been mentioned, (v. 30.) where we have Geba, (C.) here written Gabaa, v. 26. H.—Nebo belonged to some of the other tribes, as well as Phahath-Moab; which shews that some of the people returned, (C.) and are particularized, as well as the men of the three tribes of Juda, Benjamin, and Levi. H.

VER. 30. Megbis. 3 Esd. "Nipbis," (C.) or, according to the Alex. MS. "Phinea." H.—The verse is omitted 2 Esd. But Megphas occurs below. C. x. 20. Megabyse is a Persian name. Herod. iii. 20. and 160.

VER. 31. Other Elam. The first is mentioned (v. 7.) with exactly the same number. Is not this verse redundant? C.—Who would not be astonished? T.—3 Esd. omits this and the following name. H.

VER. 33. Hadid. These cities were of the tribe of Benjamin. C.—Senaa was in Ephraim, eight miles from Jericho. Euseb.

VER. 36. Josue, the high priest, v. 2.

VER. 40. Odovia, called Juda. C. iii. 9. C.

VER. 43. Nathinites, "people given" (1 Par. ix. 2. H.) by Josue, David, and Solomon. T.

VER. 55. Servants, proselytes. 1 Par. xxii. 2. M.

VER. 57. Pocereth-Hatsebaim, in Heb. (C.) or "of Zebaim." Prot.

the children of Phochereth, which were of Asebaim, the children of Ami, 58 All the Nathinites, and the children of the servants of Solomon, three hundred ninety-two.

59 And these are they that came up from Thelmela, Thelharsa, Cherub, and Adon, and Emer. And they could not shew the house of their fathers and their seed, whether they were of Israel.

60 The children of Dalaia, the children of Tobia, the children of Necoda, six hundred fifty-two.

61 And of the children of the priests: The children of Hobia, the children of Accos, the children of Berzellai, who took a wife of the daughters of Berzellai, the Galaadite, and was called by their name:

62 These sought the writing of their genealogy, and found it not; and they were cast out of the priesthood.

63 And Athersatha said to them, that they should not eat of the holy of holies, till there arose a priest, learned and perfect.

64 All the multitudes as one man, were forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty,

65 Besides their men-servants, and women-servants, of whom there were seven thousand three hundred and thirty-seven: and among them singing men and singing women, two hundred.

66 Their horses, seven hundred thirty-six, their mules, two hundred forty-five,

67 Their camels, four hundred thirty-five, their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

68 And some of the chief of the fathers, when they came to the temple of the Lord, which is in Jerusalem, offered freely to the house of the Lord to build it in its place.

69 According to their ability, they gave towards the expences of the work, sixty-one thousand solids of gold, five thousand pounds of silver, and a hundred garments for the priests.

* 2 Esdras vii. 65.—b A. M. 3469, A. C. 535.

VER. 59. Thelmela, "the height of Mela, or of salt." The river Melas empties itself into the Euphrates. Strabo xii.—The cities here mentioned were in Chaldea. Some of the ten tribes had probably been transported into Cappadocia, where Herodotus (ii. 35.) places some circumcised Syrians.—Thelharsa, or Thelassar, 4 K. xix. 12.—Cherub, &c. were cities of Chaldea, (T.) or chief men; but as they had been carried away by Theglathphalassar, they had lost their genealogies, and could only produce circumcision as a proof that they were Israelites.

VER. 61. Their name. The priest, Berzellai, assumed the name of the family, from which he had chosen a wife. H.—It was that of the famous old man, who was so hospitable to David. 2 K. xix. 31. C.

VER. 62. Priesthood. Those who cannot prove that they are priests, ought not to exercise the functions. W.—The Jews were particularly careful to preserve their genealogical tables, and transcribed them again after any very troublesome times. Joseph. c. Ap. 1, and in his own Life.—The Rabbins falsely assert that only the mother's side was examined, and that the children followed her condition. C.

VER. 63. Athersatha. Prot. marg. "the governor," (H.) in the Persian language. D.—Nehemias has this title. 2 Esd. viii. 9. H.—It means "a cup-bearer." C. M.—3 Esd. "And Nehemias, who is also Atharias, said unto them, that they should not partake of the holy things, till a high priest, clothed with manifestation and truth, should arise." H.—Learned. Heb. "with Urim and Thummin." We do not find that God had been consulted, in this manner, since the time of David: and the Jews inform us that the ornament was not used after the captivity, (C.) as it had been, perhaps, concealed with the ark, by Jeremias. 2 Mac. ii. 4. T.—Nehemias hoped that it would be soon recovered. In the mean time, he followed the spirit of the law, but with additional rigour, as it permitted such priests to eat consecrated meats. Lev. xxi. 22. It seems that this decision is out of its proper place, since Nehemias came 80 years after Zorobabel. C.—But he might have been present on this occasion. (H.) though he returned afterwards to Babylon, where he officiated as cup-bearer to the king. T.

VER. 64. Forty-two thousand, &c. Those who are reckoned up above of the tribes of Juda, Benjamin, and Levi, fall short of this number. The rest, who must be taken in to make up the whole sum, were of the other tribes. Ch.—This explanation is given by R. Solomon. W.—But we have seen that cities (570)

70 So the priests, and the Levites, and some of the people, and the singing men, and the porters, and the Nathinites, dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

CHAP. III.

An altar is built for sacrifice, the feast of tabernacles is solemnly celebrated, and the foundations of the temple are laid.

AND now the seventh month was come, and the children of Israel were in their cities: and the people gathered themselves together as one man to Jerusalem.

2 And Josue, the son of Josedec, rose up, and his brethren, the priests, and Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, and his brethren, and they built the altar of the God of Israel, that they might offer holocausts upon it: as it is written in the law of Moses, the man of God.

3 And they set the altar of God upon its bases, while the people of the lands, round about, put them in fear, and they offered upon it a holocaust to the Lord, morning and evening:

4 And they kept the feast of the tabernacles, as it is written, and offered the holocaust every day orderly, according to the commandment, the duty of the day in its day.

5 And afterwards the continual holocaust, both on the new moons, and on all the solemnities of the Lord, that were consecrated, and on all in which a free-will offering was made to the Lord.

6 From the first day of the seventh month they began to offer holocausts to the Lord: but the temple of God was not yet founded.

7 And they gave money to hewers of stones and to masons: and meat and drink, and oil to the Sidonians and Tyrians, to bring cedar-trees from Libanus to the sea of Joppe, according to the orders which Cyrus, king of the Persians, had given them.

8 And in the second year of their coming to the belonging to the ten tribes are specified. See v. 1, and 29. H.—Some might not be able to make out their genealogies. C. v. 62. Yet some of these also are counted, v. 60. H.—The particular sums may therefore be incorrect. Josephus (xi. 1.) adds 102 to the number. C.—3 Esd. has, "But they were all of Israel, from 12 years old and upwards, exclusive of boys and girls, (or male and female servants) 42,300." Grabe has in another character "sixty. The men and women servants of these, 7300." Then the Alex. MS. continues, "thirty-seven." So that without the addition it would give for the total, 42,337. Some copies (H.) have 40. C.—But the most correct (H.) read 60. Kennicott. The small number of servants and cattle shew that the people were poor. D.

* A. M. 3469.

VER. 65. Servants. Probably strangers. C.—Yet the Hebrews might renounce their liberty. Ex. xxi. 6. H.—Hundred, comprised in the last number; (C.) or they belonged to Israel, but were different from those mentioned v. 41. We find 45 more in 2 and 3 Esd. H.—These might be inserted by Nehemias, after they had proved themselves to be of the tribe of Levi. Tournemine.—There were in all 49,942. H.—So much was the power of this kingdom now reduced! Sulp. Severus says above 50,000 of every sex and rank could not be found. H.

VER. 69. Solids. Heb. darcemonim. H.—"Darics," worth as much as a golden sicle. Pelletier. C. 1 Par. xxix. 7.—Pounds, (mnas) or 60 sicles. M.—3 Esd. has "mnas" in both places.

VER. 70. Some. The laics, mentioned from v. 2. to 35. H. CHAP. III. VER. 1. Month. Tisri, famous for the feasts of trumpets, of expiation, and of tabernacles. D.—The Israelites might spend four months on their journey, and two in making preparations for the feast of tabernacles, (T.) and in erecting huts for themselves. C.

VER. 2. Josue, or Jesus, (Jeshua) the son of Josedec: he was the high priest at that time; (Ch.) the first after the captivity.—Salathiel, by whom he was brought up, though he was born of Phadaia. 1 Par. iii. 19. C.—Prot. read Shealtiel.

VER. 3. Fear. This must not prevent God's servants from offering sacrifice. W.

VER. 7. Meat, in imitation of Solomon. 3 K. v. 11.—Orders. Heb. "per mission." C.—Prot. "grant." H.

VER. 8. Work. Heb. adds, "of the house." Josias had appointed the Levites overseers. 2 Par. xxiv. 12. C.

temple of God in Jerusalem, the second month, Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, and Josue, the son of Josedec, and the rest of their brethren, the priests and Levites, and all that were come from the captivity to Jerusalem began, and they appointed Levites, from twenty years old and upward, to hasten forward the work of the Lord.

9 Then Josue, and his sons, and his brethren, Cedmihel, and his sons, and the children of Juda, as one man, stood to hasten them that did the work in the temple of God: the sons of Henadad, and their sons, and their brethren, the Levites.

10 And when the masons laid the foundations of the temple of the Lord, the priests stood in their ornaments with trumpets: and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, to praise God by the hands of David, king of Israel.

11 And they sung together hymns, and praise to the Lord: because he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever towards Israel. And all the people shouted with a great shout, praising the Lord, because the foundations of the temple of the Lord were laid.

12 But many of the priests and the Levites, and the chief of the fathers and the ancients, that had seen the former temple; when they had the foundation of this temple before their eyes, wept with a loud voice: and many shouting for joy, lifted up their voice.

13 So that one could not distinguish the voice of the shout of joy, from the noise of the weeping of the people: for one with another the people shouted with a loud shout, and the voice was heard afar off.

CHAP. IV.

The Samaritans, by their letter to the king, hinder the building.

NOW the enemies of Juda and Benjamin heard that the children of the captivity were building a temple to the Lord, the God of Israel.

* A. M. 3469.

VER. 10. Hands; compositions, (H.) or ordinances. W.—The 135th Psalm was sung, (C.) or the 117th. Vatab.

VER. 12. Temple. This second temple, though very large (2 Mac. xiv. 13.) and magnificent, (Agg. ii. 10.) never equalled the glory of the first, in its outward appearance, being also destitute of the ark, and perhaps of the Urim, &c. But the presence of the Messias gave it a more exalted dignity. C.—Joy. These different emotions of grief and joy filled their breasts, (D.) thinking how they had brought on the judgments of God by their transgressions, and that he was now appeased, and would enable them to have some sort of a temple. T.—As it was less beautiful than that of Solomon, Aggeus must be understood to speak of the Church of Christ. S. Aug. de C. xviii. 45. W.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Enemies; Samaritans, and others, v. 9.

VER. 2. Asor Haddan sent a priest to instruct these people, but Salmanasar had transported them into the country. C.—They continued for some time worshipping idols alone, and afterwards they consented to pay the like adoration to the Lord. 4 K. xvii. 24, &c. H.—It is clear, from their petition, that they had as yet no temple. The first was erected by them on Garizim, by leave of Alexander the Great, as a retreat for Manasses, brother of the Jewish high priest, and others who would not be separated from their strange wives. Joseph. xi.—Yet the Sam. Chronicle, lately published, seems to give a higher antiquity to that temple, and pretends that a miracle declared in favour of the place. C.—The fathers indeed adored there, (Jo. iv. 20. Gen. xii. 6.) and Josue erected an altar on Hebal, but the Samaritan copy says it was to be on Garizim. Deut. xviii. 4. Jos. viii. 30. H.

VER. 3. You, &c. Lit. "It is not for you and us to build." But why might not these people assist in the work, as well as king Hiram or Darius? H.—Schematics and heretics must not communicate in sacrifices with Catholics, (W.) nor must the latter have society with them, in matters of religion. The Jews feared lest the Samaritans might introduce the worship of idols, or claim a part of the temple, or at least boast of what they had done. T.—They were aware of the insincerity of these people. M.—The permission was moreover only granted to the Jews: (C.) but Cyrus had exhorted all to contribute; (C. i. 4.) and Darius, as well as his pagan governors, were not repelled with disdain. C. vi. 18. This treatment caused the Samaritans to be more inveterate, though the Jews were always more unwilling to come to a reconciliation. H.—"For the Scripture did not say, the Samaritans have no commerce with the Jews," says St. Chrys. in Jo. iv. The Jewish authors inform us, that "Ezra, &c. gathered all the congregation into the temple, and the Levites sung and cursed the Sa-

2 And they came to Zorobabel, and the chief of the fathers, and said to them: Let us build with you, for we seek your God as ye do: behold we have sacrificed to him, since the days of Asor Haddan, king of Assyria, who brought us hither.

3 But Zorobabel and Josue, and the rest of the chief of the fathers of Israel, said to them: You have nothing to do with us to build a house to our God, but we ourselves, alone, will build to the Lord, our God, as Cyrus, king of the Persians, hath commanded us.

4 Then the people of the land hindered the hands of the people of Juda, and troubled them in building.

5 And they hired counsellors against them, to frustrate their design all the days of Cyrus, king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius, king of the Persians.

6 And in the reign of Assuerus, in the beginning of his reign, they wrote an accusation against the inhabitants of Juda and Jerusalem.

7 And in the days of Artaxerxes, Beselam, Mithridates, and Thabeel, and the rest that were in the counsel, wrote to Artaxerxes, king of the Persians: and the letter of accusation was written in Syriac, and was read in the Syrian tongue.

8 Reum Beelteem, and Samsai, the scribe, wrote a letter from Jerusalem to king Artaxerxes, in this manner:

9 Reum Beelteem, and Samsai, the scribe, and the rest of their counsellors, the Dinities, and the Apharsathacites, the Therphalites, the Apharsites, the Erchuites, the Babylonians, the Susanechites, the Dievites, and the Elamites,

10 And the rest of the nations, whom the great and glorious Asenaphar brought over, and made to dwell in the cities of Samaria, and in the rest of the countries on this side of the river, in peace.

maritans, . . that no Israelite eat of any thing that is a Samaritan's, nor that any Samaritan be proselyted to Israel, nor have any part in the resurrection," &c. R. Tanehum. Lightfoot i. p. 598. Kennicott.—If this were true, it would be carrying their resentment too far; as we ought to promote the conversion of the greatest reprobates. But we have no reason to condemn such great men. They knew the character of the Samaritans, and wished to bring them to a sense of their duty, by this rebuke. H.

VER. 5. Counsellors; ministers of the king, (C.) or governors of the provinces. T.—Cyrus, who was ignorant of their machinations, (Josephus) being engaged in war with the Scythians. We may easily conceive what ill-disposed ministers may do, against the inclinations of their prince. C.—Darius, son of Hystaspes, who succeeded the false Smerdis, after five months' usurpation. C.

VER. 6. Assuerus; otherwise called Cambyses, the son and successor of Cyrus. He is also, in the following verse, named Artaxerxes, by a name common to almost all the kings of Persia, (Ch.) after Memnon. Diod. xv. Sept. "Arthasastha." Arta signifies "great," and xerxes, "warrior." Herod. vi. 98.—After Assuerus, some copies add, "he is Artaxerxes;" and Assuerus is so called in the Sept. of Sixtus. 3 Ed. ii. 16. M.

VER. 7. Artaxerxes may be the Oropastes of Trogus, (C.) or the false (H.) Smerdis. Herodot.—Beselam, &c. These governed the provinces on the west side of the Euphrates.—Syriac comprises the Chaldee, with which it has a great resemblance. It was spoken at the court of Babylon. Xenoph. vii. See 4 K. xviii. 26. and 2 Mac. xv. 37. Dan. ii. 4.

VER. 8. Beelteem. Syr. "the son of Baltam." The term designates the office of Reum, "the master of reason," president of the council, treasurer, &c. C.—Prot. "chancellor."—From. Prot. "against." H.—Heb. "concerning."

VER. 9. Counsellors. Sept. and Syr. "of our fellow-servants." Chal. "colleagues." This letter, and as far as C. vi. 19, is in the Chaldee language.—Dinities, perhaps the Denarenians. Junius. 4 K. xvii. 24. C.

VER. 10. Asenaphar, commonly supposed to be Asarhaddon, though we know not that he caused any of these nations to remove thither, as Salmanasar certainly did. C.—The name of the latter occurs in some copies. Lyran.—River, Euphrates.—In peace. H.—The original, ceheneth, is neglected by the Sept. and Arab. The Syr. reads, "Acheeneth." Others translate, "at that time," as if the date had been lost. Jun. &c.—Prot. "and at such a time." H.—Others suppose the writers lived "at Kineeth." Pagnin.—But who ever heard of such a place? Le Clerc takes it to mean "and the rest," as if the title were curtailed. But it is more probable that the text ought to be Ceheth, as v. 17, and that we

11 (This is the copy of the letter, which they sent to him) To Artaxerxes, the king, thy servants, the men that are on this side of the river, send greeting;

12 Be it known to the king, that the Jews, who came up from thee to us, are come to Jerusalem, a rebellious and wicked city, which they are building, setting up the ramparts thereof, and repairing the walls.

13 And now be it known to the king, that if this city be built up, and the walls thereof repaired, they will not pay tribute nor toll, nor yearly revenues, and this loss will fall upon the kings.

14 But we, remembering the salt that we have eaten in the palace, and because we count it a crime to see the king wronged, have, therefore, sent and certified the king,

15 That search may be made in the books of the histories of thy fathers, and thou shalt find written in the records: and shalt know that this city is a rebellious city, and hurtful to the kings and provinces, and that wars were raised therein of old times: for which cause also, the city was destroyed.

16 We certify the king, that if this city be built, and the walls thereof repaired, thou shalt have no possession on this side of the river.

17 The king sent word to Reum Beelteem, and Samsai, the scribe, and to the rest that were in their council, inhabitants of Samaria, and to the rest beyond the river, sending greeting and peace.

18 The accusation, which you have sent to us, hath been plainly read before me;

19 And I commanded: and search hath been made, and it is found, that this city of old times hath rebelled against kings, and seditions and wars have been raised therein.

20 For there have been powerful kings in Jerusalem, who have had dominion over all the country that is beyond the river: and have received tribute, and toll, and revenues.

21 Now, therefore, hear the sentence: Hinder those men, that this city be not built, till further orders be given by me.

22 See that you be not negligent in executing this, lest by little and little the evil grow to the hurt of the kings.

23 Now the copy of the edict of king Artaxerxes was read before Reum Beelteem, and Samsai, the scribe, and their counsellors: and they went up in haste to Jerusalem to the Jews, and hindered them with arm and power.

24 Then the work of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem was interrupted, and ceased till the second year of the reign of Darius, king of the Persians.

CHAP. V.

By the exhortation of Aggeus, and Zacharias, the people proceed in building the temple: which their enemies strive in vain to hinder.

NOW Aggeus, the prophet, and Zacharias, the son of Addo, prophesied to the Jews that were in Judea and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel.

2 Then rose up Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, and Josue, the son of Josedec, and began to build the temple of God in Jerusalem, and with them were the prophets of God helping them.

3 And at the same time came to them, Thathanai who was governor beyond the river, and Stharbuzanai, and their counsellors: and said thus to them: Who hath given you counsel to build this house, and to repair the walls thereof?

4 In answer to which we gave them the names of the men who were the promoters of that building.

5 But the eye of their God was upon the ancients of the Jews, and they could not hinder them. And it was agreed, that the matter should be referred to Darius, and then they should give satisfaction concerning that accusation.

6 The copy of the letter that Thathanai, governor of the country beyond the river, and Stharbuzanai, and his counsellors, the Arphasachites, who dwelt beyond the river, sent to Darius, the king.

a. A. M. 3485.

should translate, "beyond the river, (C.) as now, (11) unless this word ought to be here omitted, (H.) to Artaxerxes, the king, peace (and prosperity) as at present." C.—Chal. solum uerba, "peace even now." H.—So Horace says, mauiter ut nunc est, wishing a continuation of happiness. 8 Esd. (ii. 17.) joins the last word with v. 12, "And now be it," &c. Canoth may have this sense, (C.) and consequently no change is necessary. H.

VER. 11. Him. This is a gloss. C.—Greeting. Prot. "and at such a time." VER. 12. Rebellious. The Jews had shewn themselves impatient of subjection, contending with the kings of Assyria and Babylon, whose territories were now possessed by the successors of Cyrus, v. 15. H.

VER. 13. Revenues. Sept. &c. include all under the term of "tribute."

VER. 14. Eaten. Chal. "on account of the salt, with which we have been salted, from the palace." The king's officers were fed from his table. Salt is put for all their emoluments; (C.) and hence the word salary is derived. Pliny xxvi. 7. We may also translate, "because we have demolished the temple, and because," &c. Kinchi. Grot. &c. But this seems too refined. C.—Prot. "Now because we have maintenance from the king's palace, and it was not meet," &c. To have neglected their master's interests, would have betrayed great ingratitude and perfidy; particularly if they had entered into a covenant of salt, or solemnly engaged to be ever faithful servants, as the nature of their office implied. Num. xviii. 19. 2 Par. xiii. 5. H.—Palace, being honoured with much distinction. Delrio, adag. 215.

VER. 15. Fathers, the preceding emperors, Nabuchodonosor, Salmana-zar, &c. H.

VER. 16. Possession. Sept. have simply, "peace."

VER. 17. Greeting. Prot. "peace, and at such a time," which has no great meaning. H. See v. 10.

VER. 19. Seditions: so are styled the just efforts of the Jews, to keep or to regain their liberty. G.

VER. 20. Kings; only David and Solomon. M.—They had made some on the east side of the river pay tribute, though the king may speak of the countries on the west.

VER. 21. Hear. Chal. "give command," &c.—Further: lit. "perhaps." H.—This was a private edict, which might be rescinded. Dan. vi. 7.

VER. 23. Beelteem, is not in Chal.—Arm, or "force." Prot. H.

VER. 24. House. They went beyond the order, which only forbade the building of the city, v. 21.—Darius, A. 3485. C.—He was the son of Hystaspes, (S. Jer.) and not Nothus, the sixth from Cyrus, as Sulpitius and Scaliger believe. T.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Addo was grand-father of the prophet, whose writings are extant. C.—Both prophesied in the second year of Darius. M.

VER. 2. Them. Aggeus had rebuked the people for building houses for themselves, while they neglected the temple. The work was hereupon resumed without any fresh order from the king; as the edicts of the usurper, Oropastes, were considered as null, and the Jews only answer the governor, that they had been authorized by Cyrus, v. 13. 17. Josephus, and 3 Esd. iii. and iv. 47. assert that Darius had given leave. C. M.

VER. 3. River, over all Syria, &c. This man had not been bribed, but acted with great moderation, and in compliance with his duty. C.—Counsel. Chal. "order . . to make up this wall."

VER. 4. In. Sept. "Then I (or they; huv. The Syr. and Arab declare for the latter) said thus to them: What," &c.—We gave. Chal. "what are the names?" H.—It seems Thathanai asked this question, v. 10. The Jews might give in the names of Zorobabel, Josue, Aggeus, &c. C.

VER. 5. Ancients. Sept. "captivity of Juda." H.—Divine Providence favoured the undertaking. Delrio adag. 216. M. Pa. xxxii. 18.—His eye sometimes threatens ruin. Amos ix. 8. C.—God did both on this occasion. W.—Hinder Chal. "cause them to leave off, till the matter came to Darius, (H.) and his decision was brought back;" (C.) or Prot. "and then they returned answer by letter concerning this matter." Sept. "and they did not molest them, till the 7 The letter which they sent him, was written thus: To Darius, the king, all peace.

8 Be it known to the king, that we went to the province of Judea, to the house of the great God, which they are building with unpolished stones; and timber is laid in the walls: and this work is carried on diligently, and advanceth in their hands.

9 And we asked those ancients, and said to them thus: Who hath given you authority to build this house, and to repair these walls?

10 We asked also of them their names, that we might give thee notice: and we have written the names of the men that are the chief among them.

11 And they answered us in these words, saying: We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and we are building a temple that was built these many years ago, and which a great king of Israel built and set up.

12 But after that our fathers had provoked the God of heaven to wrath, he delivered them into the hands of Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, the Chaldean: and he destroyed this house, and carried away the people to Babylon.

13 But in the first year of Cyrus, the king of Babylon, king Cyrus set forth a decree, that this house of God should be built.

14 And the vessels also of gold and silver of the temple of God, which Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the temple, that was in Jerusalem, and had brought them to the temple of Babylon, king Cyrus brought out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered to one Sassabasar, whom also he appointed governor,

15 And said to him; Take these vessels, and go, and put them in the temple that is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be built in its place.

16 Then came this same Sassabasar, and laid the foundations of the temple of God in Jerusalem, and from that time, until now, it is in building, and is not yet finished.

17 Now, therefore, if it seem good to the king, let him search in the king's library, which is in Babylon, whether it hath been decreed by Cyrus, the king, that the house of God, in Jerusalem, should be built, and let the king send his pleasure to us concerning this matter.

• A. M. 3485, A. C. 519.

sentence should be brought to (or from) Darius; and then it (word) was sent to the tax-gatherer, concerning this affair."

VER. 8. Unpolished. Prot. "grent." H.—Heb. "to be rolled." See Vitruv. x. 6. Sept. "choice stones." Kimchi, &c. "marble." C.—3 Esd. "polished and precious stones." H.—Yet the Vulg. seems more conformable to C. vi. 4. and Agg. ii. 2. M. Ribera.—Walls, every fourth course. 3 K. vi. 36. C.

VER. 13. Built. It did not appear that this edict had been revoked; (C.) nor could it be changed, if it had been passed by the advice of the Lord. H.

VER. 14. Governor. Sept. "over the treasury."

VER. 16. In building, being pretty far advanced, though for some time past it had been at a stand. H.—It is not probable that Zorobabel said this, but the author of the letter added it, as he supposed the Jews continued to do some little. C.—He desired to favour their cause, yet so as not to irritate the Samaritans. M.

VER. 17. Library. Sept. "treasury-house." Arab. "for the archives." It is called "the house of books." C. vi. 1. C.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Library. Prot. "house of the rolls, where the treasures were," &c.—Babylon. In the city, the search was fruitless: (Vatab.) but in the kingdom, the record was discovered. M.

VER. 2. Ecbatana. Chal. achmetha, signifies "a jug, or chest." C.—"They found in the chest of the palace, under the inscription of Media." Munster. Pagnin.—"And a roll was found (some add, in Amatha) in the city, in a chest, (or tower; Bapti) and this memorial was written in it." Sept. Prot. style the place, Achmetha. H.—Arab. "Athana." Syr. "Ahmathane." The memoirs

CHAP. VI.

King Darius favoureth the building and contributeth to it.

THEN a king Darius gave orders, and they searched in the library of the books that were laid up in Babylon.

2 And there was found in Ecbatana, which is a castle in the province of Media, a book in which this record was written.

3 In the first year of Cyrus, the king: Cyrus, the king, decreed, that the house of God should be built, which is in Jerusalem, in the place where they may offer sacrifices, and that they lay the foundations that may support the height of threescore cubits, and the breadth of threescore cubits,

4 Three rows of unpolished stones, and so rows of new timber: and the charges shall be given out of the king's house.

5 And, also, let the golden and silver vessels of the temple of God, which Nabuchodonosor took out of the temple of Jerusalem, and brought to Babylon, be restored, and carried back to the temple of Jerusalem, to their place, which also were placed in the temple of God.

6 Now, therefore, Thathanai, governor of the country beyond the river, Stharbuzanai, and your counsellors, the Apharsachites, who are beyond the river, depart far from them.

7 And let that temple of God be built by the governor of the Jews, and by their ancients, that they may build that house of God in its place.

8 I also have commanded what must be done by those ancients of the Jews, that the house of God may be built, to wit, that of the king's chest, that is, of the tribute that is paid out of the country beyond the river, the charges be diligently given to those men, lest the work be hindered.

9 And if it shall be necessary, let calves, also, and lambs, and kids, for holocausts to the God of heaven, wheat, salt, wine, and oil, according to the custom of the priests that are in Jerusalem, be given them day by day, that there be no complaint in any thing.

10 And let them offer oblations to the God of heaven, and pray for the life of the king, and of his children.

11 And I have made a decree: That if any, whosoever, shall alter this commandment, a beam be taken of Cyrus had probably been conveyed to Eebatana, which was built by Dejocea, the first king of the Medes, and greatly enlarged by his successor, Phraortes. C.—Province. Media now only formed a province of the empire. T.

VER. 3. And . . foundations is not found in Sept. Syr. and Arab. but it is in Chal. The temple was thus of larger dimensions than that of Solomon, which was only 80 cubits high, and 20 broad inside. 3 K. vi. 2. The Rabbins assign 100 for each, (Tr. Middot. iv. 6.) speaking perhaps of the temple rebuilt by Herod, with still greater magnificence. Josephus allows 100 in height, and 60 in breadth. But the Scripture only speaks of 64 cubits breadth, and 99 in length including the adjoining edifices. C.—Breadth, from the front to the end of the holy of holies, which we should call the length. T.—This temple was lower than Solomon's by one half, (2 Par. iii. 4. M.) unless those 120 cubits refer only to a tower. H.

VER. 4. Unpolished, to correspond with the polished stones and cedar employed by Solomon. 3 K. vi. 36. M.—Prot. "great stones." See C. v. 8.—Charges. It appears that the Jews furnished money and meat to pay for the wood. C. i. 4. and iii. 7. Some annual sum might be assigned by Cyrus, either for the building, or for the daily holocausts. C.

VER. 5. Placed formerly, before the destruction of the temple. Prot. "and place them in the house of God."

VER. 8. Hindered. Thus Darius trod in the footsteps, or perhaps exceeded the liberality of Cyrus. H.

VER. 9. Complaint. Prot. "without fail," (H.) or "delay." Morf. C.

VER. 11. Nailed. Prot. "hanged." Sept. "covered with wounds, or fastened from his house, and set up, and he be nailed upon it, and his house be confiscated.

12 And may the God, that hath caused his name to dwell there, destroy all kingdoms, and the people that shall put out their hand to resist, and to destroy the house of God, that is in Jerusalem. I, Darius, have made the decree, which I will have diligently complied with.

13 So then Thathanai, governor of the country beyond the river, and Stharbuzanai, and his counsellors, diligently executed what Darius, the king, had commanded.

14 And the ancients of the Jews built, and prospered, according to the prophecy of Aggeus, the prophet, and of Zacharias, the son of Addo: and they built and finished, by the commandment of the God of Israel, and by the commandment of Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes, kings of the Persians.

15 And they were finishing this house of God, until the third day of the month of Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of king Darius.

16 And the children of Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and the rest of the children of the captivity, kept the dedication of the house of God with joy.

17 And they offered at the dedication of the house of God, a hundred calves, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, and for a sin-offering, for all Israel, twelve he-goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel.

18 And they set the priests in their divisions, and the Levites, in their courses, over the works of God, in Jerusalem, *as it is written in the book of Moses.

19 And the children of Israel, of the captivity, kept the Phase, *on the fourteenth day of the first month.

20 For all the priests and the Levites were purified as one man: all were clean to kill the Phase for all the children of the captivity, and for their brethren, the priests, and themselves.

21 And the children of Israel that were returned from captivity, and all that had separated themselves on it." H.—Some think that the criminal was to be scourged. De Dieu—"Let him be hanged on the wood, which shall stand upright, after his house shall have been demolished." Vatable.—Such was the custom of the Persians. Grot.—Aman perished on the gallows, which he had erected in his own house for Mardocheus. Est. vii. 9.—Confiscated. Prot. "be made a dunghill for this." H. Syr. &c.—We find some examples of such a treatment. 4 K. x. 27 Dan. iii. 5, and ix. 6. The effects of those who were condemned to die, in Persia, were generally confiscated. Est. iii. 13. and viii. 11. and ix. 14.

* Num. iii. 6, and viii. 9.—^a A. M. 3489, A. C. 515.

VER. 14. Artaxerxes, one of the seven who overturned the power of the magi; (Usher, A. 3483) or rather the king of Persia, who lived some time after this, and was very favourable to the Jews. He sent Esdras (A. 3537) and Nehemias (A. 3550) with great powers into the country. C.

VER. 15. Adar, corresponding with our Feb. and March. M.—In the latter month they celebrated the Passover, v. 19.—Darius. Hence twenty years had elapsed from the first foundation. They might continue to embellish the temple other twenty-seven years, as the Jews assert; (Jo. ii. 20,) unless they speak of the repairs made by Herod, (Baronius. T.) or exaggerate, (Grot.) being under a mistake. Salien, A. 3537.

VER. 17. Goats, which had not left off sucking. M. Numb. vii. 87.—Israel. The Sam. Chronicle asserts that the tribes returned, as the prophets had foretold, and the sacred history seems to suppose: (C.) which may be true of many, (H.) though the greatest part remained in captivity. C.

VER. 18. Moses. Num. iii. 8. David had perfected the plan, 1 Par. xxiii. &c. H.

VER. 19. And. Here the author resumes the Heb. language. C.—Captivity, from which they were released, v. 17. H.

VER. 20. One man, with zeal and unanimity; so that a second Phase was not to be celebrated. 2 Par. xxx. 3.

VER. 21. To them, becoming proselytes, and receiving circumcision. Ex. xii. 48.

VER. 22. Assyria. The successors of Cyrus now ruled over those countries; (C.) which had belonged to the most potent Assyrian and Chaldean monarchs; and therefore the titles are given to them indiscriminately. T.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Things, sixty-eight years after the journey of Zorobabel, (574) from the filthiness of the nations of the earth to them, to seek the Lord, the God of Israel, did eat.

22 And they kept the feast of unleavened bread seven days, with joy; for the Lord had made them joyful, and had turned the heart of the king of Assyria to them, that he should help their hands in the work of the house of the Lord, the God of Israel.

CHAP. VII.

Esdras goeth up to Jerusalem, to teach and assist the people, with a gracious decree of Artaxerxes.

NOW* after these things, in the reign of Artaxerxes, king of the Persians, Esdras, the son of Saraias, the son of Azarias, the son of Helcias,

2 The son of Sellum, the son of Sadoc, the son of Achitob,

3 The son of Amarias, the son of Azarias, the son of Maraioth,

4 The son of Zarahias, the son of Ozi, the son of Bocci,

5 The son of Abisue, the son of Phinees, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, the priest, from the beginning.

6 This Esdras went up from Babylon, and he was a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which the Lord God had given to Israel: and the king granted him all his request, according to the hand of the Lord, his God, upon him.

7 And there went up some of the children of Israel, and of the children of the priests, and of the children of the Levites, and of the singing men, and of the porters, and of the Nathinites, to Jerusalem, in the seventh year *of Artaxerxes, the king.

8 And they came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, in the seventh year of the king.

9 For upon the first day of the first month he began to go up from Babylon, and on the first day of the fifth month he came to Jerusalem, according to the good hand of his God upon him.

10 For Esdras had prepared his heart to seek the

^a A. M. 3531.—^d A. M. 3537.

C.—Salien adds ten years more. H.—Artaxerxes Longimanus. M. T.—Son, or great grandson of Saraias, who had been slain 121 years. Esdras was still living in the days of Nehemias. Many persons are omitted in this genealogy. The immediate descendants of Azarias may be found, 1 Par. vi. Similarity of names has occasioned many mistakes. 3 Esd. viii. reckons only eleven persons between Aaron and Esdras; and 4 Esd. i. has eighteen; whereas here we behold sixteen generations, and 1 Par. twenty-two. C.

VER. 5. Beginning of the Jewish republic.

VER. 6. Went up, a second time. 2 Esd. xii. 1. W.—Ready. Heb. mahir, "diligent," &c. H.—Scribe, not so much noted for his skill in writing fast, or drawing up deeds, as for his knowledge of the divine law. C.—The gospel sometimes gives the title of scribe to the doctors of the law. Matt. xxii. 35, with Mark xii. 28. It is peculiarly due to Esdras, who gave a correct copy of the Scriptures, and wrote them in a different character, leaving the ancient one to the Samaritans, that the people might be less connected. Bellarm. De Verb. xx. 1, citing (T.) the most learned Fathers and Jewish writers. C. Diss.—The author of 4 Esdras (xiv. 19,) intimates that the sacred books had been all destroyed, and were dictated again to Esdras by the Holy Spirit. But this book is not of sufficient authority to establish so dangerous an opinion; (H.) which is refuted by the whole context of the Bible, in which we see that the law was never forgotten. C. Diss. D.—As Esdras was inspired, what additions he might make, must be accounted divine and authentic. C.—Hand; protection, (Deirio, adag. 217,) or inspiration. M.—God can incline the heart of the king, (Prov. xxi.) to accomplish his decrees. H.

VER. 9. Month. Thus four entire months were spent on the journey, as they did not go the shortest way, and had much baggage, &c. C.

VER. 10. Heart. Thinking continually (M.) how he might keep the law himself, and direct others. H.—It would be well if all would thus teach by example, like Jesus Christ, who began to do and then to teach. H.—Judgment. Both these terms express the same thing. M.

VER. 11. Of the edict, is a farther explanation of the letter. H.

VER. 12. Kings. This title was placed on the tomb of Cyrus, (Strabo xv.)

law of the Lord, and to do and to teach, in Israel, the commandments and judgment.

11 And this is the copy of the letter of the edict, which king Artaxerxes gave to Esdras, the priest, the scribe, instructed in the words and commandments of the Lord, and his ceremonies, in Israel.

12 Artaxerxes, king of kings, to Esdras, the priest, the most learned scribe of the law of the God of heaven, greeting.

13 It is decreed by me, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the priests, and of the Levites, in my realm, that are minded to go into Jerusalem, should go with thee.

14 For thou art sent from before the king, and his seven counsellors, to visit Judea and Jerusalem, according to the law of thy God, which is in thy hand.

15 And to carry the silver and gold, which the king and his counsellors have freely offered to the God of Israel, whose tabernacle is in Jerusalem.

16 And all the silver and gold that thou shalt find in all the province of Babylon, and that the people is willing to offer, and that the priests shall offer of their own accord to the house of their God, which is in Jerusalem,

17 Take freely, and buy diligently with this money, calves, rams, lambs, with the sacrifices and libations of them, and offer them upon the altar of the temple of your God, that is in Jerusalem.

18 And if it seem good to thee, and to thy brethren, to do any thing with the rest of the silver and gold, do it according to the will of your God.

19 The vessels, also, that are given thee for the sacrifice of the house of thy God, deliver thou in the sight of God in Jerusalem.

20 And whatsoever more there shall be need of for the house of thy God, how much soever thou shalt have occasion to spend, it shall be given out of the treasury, and the king's exchequer, and by me.

21 I, Artaxerxes, the king, have ordered and decreed to all the keepers of the public chest, that are beyond the river, that whatsoever Esdras, the priest, the scribe of the law of the God of heaven, shall require of you, you give it without delay,

22 Unto a hundred talents of silver, and unto a hundred cores of wheat, and unto a hundred bates of wine, and unto a hundred bates of oil, and salt, without measure.

23 All that belongeth to the rights of the God of heaven, let it be given diligently in the house of the God of heaven: lest his wrath should be enkindled against the realm of the king, and of his sons.

24 We give you also to understand, concerning all the priests, and the Levites, and the singers, and the porters, and the Nathinites, and ministers of the house of this God, that you have no authority to impose toll, or tribute, or custom, upon them.

25 And thou, Esdras, according to the wisdom of thy God, which is in thy hand, appoint judges and magistrates, that may judge all the people, that is beyond the river, that is, for them who know the law of thy God, yea, and the ignorant teach ye freely.

26 And whosoever will not do the law of thy God, and the law of the king diligently, judgment shall be executed upon him, either unto death or unto banishment, or to the confiscation of goods, or at least to prison.

27 Blessed be the Lord, the God of our fathers, who hath put this in the king's heart, to glorify the house of the Lord, which is in Jerusalem,

28 And hath inclined his mercy toward me before the king and his counsellors, and all the mighty princes of the king: and I being strengthened by the hand of the Lord, my God, which was upon me, gathered together out of Israel, chief men, to go up with me.

CHAP. VIII.

The companions of Esdras. The fast which he appointed. They bring the holy vessels into the temple.

NOW* these are the chiefs of families, and the genealogy of them, who came up with me, from Babylon, in the reign of Artaxerxes, the king.

2 Of the sons of Phinees, Gersom. Of the sons of Ithamar, Daniel. Of the sons of David, Hattus.

3 Of the sons of Sechenias, the son of Pharos, Zacharias, and with him were numbered a hundred and fifty men.

4 Of the sons of Phahath Moab, Eleoenai, the son of Zareha, and with him two hundred men.

5 Of the sons of Sechenias, the son of Ezechiel, and with him three hundred men.

6 Of the sons of Adan, Abed, the son of Jonathan, and with him fifty men.

7 Of the sons of Alam, Isaias, the son of Athalias, and with him seventy men.

8 Of the sons of Saphatia, Zebedia, the son of Michael, and with him eighty men.

9 Of the sons of Joab, Obedia, the son of Jahiel, and with him two hundred and eighteen men.

* A. M. 3537.

and denoted a very powerful king. Artaxerxes had many tributaries in Media, Sion, &c. The kings of Assyria had before assumed such pompous titles. Ossee viii. 10. C.—The most learned, comes later in the original Chal. H.—“The priest, scribe of the law, . . . perfection, (health and happiness, (C.) or consummate in learning, &c. H.) as at present.” C.—Gemir uecheneth, “perfection (Castel. Lexia.) even now.” C. iv. 10. Prot. “perfect peace, and at such a time.” H.

VER. 14. Counsellors. Interpreters of the laws. Joseph. xi. 6.—The number seems to have been established at the courts of the Assyrian and Chaldee monarchs. Tob. xii. 15. We find their names, Est. i. 10. 14. The history of this queen happened in the reign of Darius Hystaspes. C.—Hand. By this he was to pass sentence, v. 25. H.—The Jews were authorized to follow their own laws (C.) under the Persian dominion, v. 26. T.

VER. 16. Babylon, which the Chaldees may freely give. M.
VER. 20. By me. Heb. “to spend, take it out of the king's treasure-house.” Sept. add. “and from me.”

VER. 22. Salt was used in all the sacrifices. Lev. ii. 13. In 3 Esd. no mention is made of oil or salt; but we read, “and all other things in abundance.”
VER. 24. Nathinites 3 Esd. “sacred slaves.” H.—Artaxerxes confirms the immunities granted by the law of God, (Num. iii. 6. 12.) by the kings of Egypt, (Gen. xlvii. 22.) and by all nations, to the ministers of religion. C.

VER. 25. River. 3 Esd. “In all Syria and Phenicia.” H.—Hitherto, it seems, the royal judges had decided all affairs of consequence, which required any public chastisement.

VER. 26. Banishment. Heb. lit. “eradication” by death or exile, (C.) or by being cut off from all society. C. x. 8. De Dieu.—Sept. “correction.” H.

VER. 27. Blessed. Here the author begins to write again in Heb. and in the following verse, Esdras speaks in person. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 2. Hattus. He was of the royal family, (H.) as the former were descendants of the two sons of Aaron. C.—The great numbers which were persuaded to return from Babylon, signify the conversions made by holy preachers. V. Bede. W.

VER. 5. Sons. Sept. and Arab. add. “of Zathoe, Sechenias, the son of Aziel.” The Syr. supplies the name of “Gado, the son of Nehziel,” which seems to have been lost. C.—Junius translates, “of the descendants of Sechenias N. son of Jahaziel.”

VER. 10. Sons of. Sept. supply “Baani,” whose name occurs, C. ii. 10, and is here visibly wanting. C.

10 Of the sons of Selomith, the son of Josphia, and with him a hundred and sixty men.

11 Of the sons of Bebai, Zacharias, the son of Bebai: and with him eight and twenty men.

12 Of the sons of Azgad, Joanan, the son of Eccetan, and with him a hundred and ten men.

13 Of the sons of Adonicam, who were the last: and these are their names: Eliphelet, and Jehiel, and Samaias, and with them sixty men.

14 Of the sons of Begui, Uthai and Zachur, and with them seventy men.

15 And I gathered them together to the river, which runneth down to Ahava, and we stayed there three days: and I sought among the people, and among the priests, for the sons of Levi, and found none there.

16 So I sent Eliezer, and Ariel, and Semeias, and Elnathan, and Jarib, and another Elnathan, and Nathan, and Zacharias, and Mosollam, chief men: and Joiarib, and Elnathan, wise men.

17 And I sent them to Eddo, who is chief in the place of Chasphia, and I put in their mouth the words that they should speak to Eddo, and his brethren, the Nathinites, in the place of Chasphia, that they should bring us ministers of the house of our God.

18 And by the good hand of our God upon us, they brought us a most learned man of the sons of Moholi, the son of Levi, the son of Israel, and Sarabias, and his sons, and his brethren, eighteen.

19 And Hasabias, and with him Isaias, of the sons of Merari, and his brethren, and his sons, twenty.

20 And of the Nathinites, whom David, and the princes, gave for the service of the Levites, Nathinites, two hundred and twenty: all these were called by their names.

21 And I proclaimed there a fast by the river Ahava, that we might afflict ourselves before the Lord, our God, and might ask of him a right way for us, and for our children, and for all our substance.

22 For I was ashamed to ask the king for aid, and for horsemen, to defend us from the enemy in the way: because we had said to the king: The hand of our God is upon all them that seek him in goodness: and his power and strength, and wrath, upon all them that forsake him.

23 And we fasted, and besought our God for this: and it fell out prosperously unto us.

24 And I separated twelve of the chief of the priests,

Sarabias, and Hasabias, and with them ten of their brethren.

25 And I weighed unto them the silver and gold, and the vessels consecrated for the house of our God, which the king and his counsellors, and his princes, and all Israel, that were found, had offered.

26 And I weighed to their hands six hundred and fifty talents of silver, and a hundred vessels of silver, a hundred talents of gold,

27 And twenty cups of gold, of a thousand solids, and two vessels of the best shining brass, beautiful as gold.

28 And I said to them: You are the holy ones of the Lord, and the vessels are holy, and the silver and gold, that is freely offered to the Lord, the God of our fathers.

29 Watch ye, and keep them, till you deliver them by weight before the chief of the priests, and of the Levites, and the heads of the families of Israel, in Jerusalem, into the treasure of the house of the Lord.

30 And the priests, and the Levites, received the weight of the silver and gold, and the vessels, to carry them to Jerusalem, to the house of our God.

31 Then we set forward from the river Ahava, on the twelfth day of the first month, to go to Jerusalem: and the hand of our God was upon us, and delivered us from the hand of the enemy, and of such as lay in wait by the way.

32 And we came to Jerusalem, and we stayed there three days.

33 And on the fourth day the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, were weighed in the house of our God, by the hand of Meremoth, the son of Urias, the priest; and with him was Eleazar, the son of Phinees, and with them Jozabad, the son of Josue, and Nodaia, the son of Bennoi, Levites.

34 According to the number and weight of every thing: and all the weight was written at that time.

35 Moreover, the children of them that had been carried away, that were come out of the captivity, offered holocausts to the God of Israel, twelve calves for all the people of Israel, ninety-six rams, seventy-seven lambs, and twelve he-goats, for sin: all for a holocaust to the Lord.

36 And they gave the king's edicts to the lords that were from the king's court, and the governors beyond the river, and they furthered the people and the house of God.

VER. 13. Last. Coming after their brethren. C. ii. 13.

VER. 14. Zachur. Heb. and Sept. "Zabud." C.—Two letters have been mistaken. H.

VER. 15. Ahava. This river (v. 21. and 31.) runs through the territory of the same name, called Hava; (4 K. xvii. 24.) the people of which exchanged places with the Israelites. Esdras makes a circuit to prevail on some of the latter to return with him, unless he began his journey from Susa. Babylon comprises all the country. C.—None there, who were not priests, v. 2. Lyran. M.

VER. 16. Sent. Sept. &c. "to Eliezer," &c. in order to give them his orders what to say to Eddo, who presided at Chasphia, as the sequel shews.—Wise men, instructors of the people, (2 Par. xxxv. 3. C.) Levites. M.

VER. 17. Chasphia. The Caspian mountains, between Media and Hyrcania. Here the Nathinites were forced to labour, under Eddo. The service of the temple would be far more eligible. C.

VER. 21. Fast it seems for eight days, so that they departed on the 12th, v. 31. M.—It will not suffice to leave sin, we must also do works of satisfaction. W.

VER. 22. Forsake him. Apostates are treated with the greatest severity. M.—Esdras thought that the glory of God was at stake, and he would not shew (57C) any diffidence in Providence, or scandalize the infidels. C.—We ought not to ask princes for what we should despise. D.

VER. 26. A hundred. Heb. adds, "talents," vessels of silver. H.—Some Rabbinists suppose there were only 100, each of this weight, which is not probable. All the silver vessels, of different sizes, weighed 100 talents. There was the same quantity of golden vessels. C.

VER. 27. Solids. Heb. adarconim. Darics, equivalent to the golden sicel. C. 1 Par. xxix. 7.—Best. Prot. "of fine copper, precious as gold." It might resemble the Corinthian brass, or aurichalcum, (H.) composed of gold, silver, and brass melted together, in the burning of Corinth, by L. Mummius. Pliny xxxiv. 2.—Yet no such Corinthian vessels have come down to us; so that the account seems fabulous; and, at any rate, the city was not taken in the days of Esdras, but A. 608 of Rome. We cannot say whether he speaks of copper, brass, &c. C.

VER. 35. Israel. Some of the different tribes certainly returned. C. vi. 17.

VER. 36. Lords, (satrapia.) 3 Esd. "to the royal officers and governors of Coelosyria and Phenicia; and they glorified," &c.—Furthered, by their assistance (H.) and praise. They formed their sentiments, as is usual, by those of the king. C.

CHAP. IX.

Esdras mourneth for the transgression of the people: his confession and prayer.

AND^a after these things were accomplished, the princes came to me, saying: The people of Israel, and the priests, and Levites, have not separated themselves from the people of the lands, and from their abominations, namely, of the Chanaanites, and the Hethites, and the Pherezites, and the Jebusites, and Ammonites, and the Moabites, and the Egyptians, and the Amorrites.

2 For they have taken of their daughters for themselves, and for their sons, and they have mingled the holy seed with the people of the lands. And the hand of the princes and magistrates hath been first in this transgression.

3 And when I had heard this word, I rent my mantle and my coat, and plucked off the hairs of my head and my beard, and I sat down mourning.

4 And there were assembled to me all that feared the God of Israel, because of the transgression of those, that were come from the captivity, and I sat sorrowful, until the evening sacrifice.

5 And at the evening sacrifice I rose up from my affliction, and having rent my mantle and my garment, I fell upon my knees, and spread out my hands to the Lord, my God,

6 And said: My God, I am confounded and ashamed to lift up my face to thee: for our iniquities are multiplied over our heads, and our sins are grown up even unto heaven,

7 From the days of our fathers: and we ourselves, also, have sinned grievously unto this day, and for our iniquities we, and our kings, and our priests, have been delivered into the hands of the kings of the lands, and to the sword, and to captivity, and to spoil, and to confusion of face, as it is at this day.

8 And now as a little, and, for a moment, has our prayer been made before the Lord, our God, to leave us a remnant, and give us a pin in his holy place, and that our God would enlighten our eyes, and would give us a little life in our bondage.

^a A. M. 3538, A. C. 466.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Abominations, or sins, (M.) marrying with infidels, contrary to the law. Ex. xxxiv. 15. Deut. vii. 3. D.—Malachy (ii. 11.) reprehends this conduct, and threatens both rulers and people who tolerate it, with God's indignation. W.

VER. 2. First. Or "was in this first transgression," incurred by those who returned with Zerobabel; or "was concerned in this very heinous transgression;" in transgressionem hac prima. C.—Prot. hath been chief. 3 Esd. "and the leaders and grandees partook in this illegal affair, from its commencement." Sept. "and the hand of the chiefs was in this trespass, in the beginning." This would greatly increase the difficulty of reformation. Some of the princes were however ready to undertake the work, and had preserved themselves from the too general contagion. H.—All marriages with the Moabites, &c. were prohibited, if the women remained infidels. Ex. xxxiv. 16. T.

VER. 3. Coat, (tunicam) or inner garment. H.—Mourning. Heb. "astonished." Syr. Mont. C. Prot.—Sept. "alone." 3 Esd. "pensive and in grief." H.—Arab. "not uttering a word." See Job i. 20. and ii. 8. This was the ordinary posture of people in sorrow. Isai. iii. 26. C.

VER. 4. To me, in the court of the temple. C. x. 1. M.—Sacrifice, which was offered last of all, about sun-set. Ex. xxix. 38. The Jews commonly protract their fasts till the stars appear. Leo, p. 3, art. 8.

VER. 7. At this day. Notwithstanding the favourable decrees of Cyrus, &c. the greatest part of the people continued in captivity, being dispersed, some into Egypt, others into distant countries, beyond the Euphrates. C.

VER. 8. As a. Prot. "for a little space, grace hath been shewed from the Lord," (H.) and yet we are again irritating Him! C.—A pin, or nail, here signifies a small settlement or holding; which Esdras begs for, to preserve even a part of the people, who, by their great iniquity, had incurred the anger of God. Ch.—Allusion is made to the pins which fasten down a tent, (Isai. xxxiii. 20. and liv. 2) or hinder a ship from being carried from the shore, (Tigur. M.) on which 9 For we are bondmen, and in our bondage our God hath not forsaken us, but hath extended mercy upon us before the king of the Persians, to give us life, and to set up the house of our God, and to rebuild the desolations thereof, and to give us a fence in Juda and Jerusalem.

10 And now, O our God, what shall we say after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments,

11 Which thou hast commanded by the hand of thy servants, the prophets, saying: The land which you go to possess, is an unclean land, according to the uncleanness of the people, and of other lands, with their abominations, who have filled it from mouth to mouth with their filth.

12^b Now, therefore, give not your daughters to their sons, and take not their daughters for your sons, and seek not their peace, nor their prosperity for ever; that you may be strengthened, and may eat the good things of the land, and may have your children your heirs for ever.

13 And after all that is come upon us, for our most wicked deeds, and our great sin, seeing that thou, our God, hast saved us from our iniquity, and hast given us a deliverance as at this day.

14 That we should not turn away, nor break thy commandments, nor join in marriage with the people of these abominations. Art thou angry with us unto utter destruction, not to leave us a remnant to be saved?

15 O Lord God of Israel, thou art just: for we remain yet to be saved, as at this day. Behold we are before thee in our sin, for there can be no standing before thee in this matter.

CHAP. X.

Order is taken for discharging strange women: the names of the guilty.

NOW^a when Esdras was thus praying, and beseeching, and weeping, and lying before the temple of God, there was gathered to him of Israel an exceedingly great assembly of men and women, and children, and the people wept with much lamentation.

2 And Sechenias, the son of Jehiel, of the sons of utensils are hung up, (Tournemine) referring to the magistrates, who were now of the same country. T. Isai. xxii. 21. Delrio, adag. 218.—Sept. "a support." Heb. yathed, denotes also a walking-stick, nail, &c. M.—Eyes, fill us with joy, in perfect security.—Little life, free us from danger. C.—Esdras is afraid to ask for the impunity of all, but only begs that a small part may be spared, like a nail or post from a house, which may serve to rebuild it. W.

^b Deut. vii. 3.—^a A. M. 3538, A. C. 466.

VER. 9. Fence. Heb. gader, "the name which the Carthaginians" gave to Cadiz, "as it signifies a fence," or an inclosure. Pliny xxii. C.—Some Latin MSS. read spem, "hope." Lyran.—The Tig. version understands the wall of Jerusalem, built in a hurry. M.—But this was not perfected, (H.) if begun, till the time of Nehemias. 2 Esd. i. 3. C.—God gave his protection to the people, (H. Delrio, adag. 219.) by the king of Persia. T.

VER. 11. Mouth, like a vessel brim-full. M.—Prot. "from one end to the other." H.

VER. 12. Peace. Alliance, (M.) or advantage. See Pa. cxxi. 8. Moses had thus proscribed the Moabites, &c. as he had done the people of Chanaan still more severely. The Israelites were to execute God's decrees. Deut. xxiii. 6. C.—The obstinate idolaters were to be exterminated.

VER. 13. Saved us. Prot. "hast punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and hast given us such deliverance as this." Sept. "hast made our transgressions light," (H.) not weighing them with rigid severity. C.

VER. 14. That. Heb. "should we again break, &c. . . Wouldst thou not be angry?" &c.

VER. 15. To be saved from our iniquities, which are still upon us. H.—We confess that, if we should be treated according to our deserts, we could expect no redress. But we trust in thy mercies, which have hitherto supported and brought us back from slavery. C.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. God, in the court of the people, before the eastern gate.

VER. 2. Sechenias. 3 Esd. calls him "Jechonias." See C. viii. 5. The name

Elam, answered, and said to Esdras: We have sinned against our God, and have taken strange wives of the people of the land: and now, if there be repentance in Israel concerning this,

3 Let us make a covenant with the Lord, our God, to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the will of the Lord, and of them that fear the commandment of the Lord, our God: let it be done according to the law.

4 Arise, it is thy part to give orders, and we will be with thee: take courage, and do it.

5 So Esdras arose, and made the chiefs of the priests and of the Levites, and all Israel, to swear that they would do according to this word; and they swore.

6 And Esdras rose up from before the house of God, and went to the chamber of Johanan, the son of Eliasib, and entered in thither, he eat no bread, and drank no water: for he mourned for the transgression of them that were come out of the captivity.

7 And proclamation was made in Juda, and Jerusalem, to all the children of the captivity, that they should assemble together into Jerusalem.

8 And that whosoever would not come within three days, according to the counsel of the princes, and the ancients, all his substance should be taken away, and he should be cast out of the company of them that were returned from captivity.

9 Then all the men of Juda, and Benjamin, gathered themselves together to Jerusalem within three days, in the ninth month, the twentieth day of the month: and all the people sat in the street of the house of God, trembling, because of the sin, and the rain.

10 And Esdras, the priest, stood up, and said to them: You have transgressed, and taken strange wives, to add to the sins of Israel.

11 And now make confession to the Lord, the God of your fathers, and do his pleasure, and separate yourselves from the people of the land, and from your strange wives.

12 And all the multitude answered, and said with a loud voice: According to thy word unto us, so be it done.

13 But as the people are many, and it is time of rain, and we are not able to stand without, and it is not a work of one day or two, (for we have exceedingly sinned in this matter)

14 Let rulers be appointed in all the multitude: and in all our cities, let them that have taken strange wives come at the times appointed, and with them the ancients, and the judges of every city, until the wrath of our God be turned away from us for this sin.

15 Then Jonathan, the son of Azahel, and Jaasia, the son of Thecua, were appointed over this, and Mosollam and Sebethai, Levites, helped them.

16 And the children of the captivity did so. And Esdras, the priest, and the men, heads of the families in the houses of their fathers, and all by their names, went and sat down, in the first day of the tenth month, to examine the matter.

17 And they made an end with all the men that had taken strange wives, by the first day of the first month.

18 And there was found among the sons of the priests, that had taken strange wives: Of the sons of Josue, the son of Josedec, and his brethren, Maasia, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Godolia.

19 And they gave their hands to put away their wives, and to offer for their offence a ram of the flock.

20 And of the sons of Emmer, Hanani, and Zebedia.

21 And of the sons of Harim, Maasia, and Elia, and Semeia, and Jehiel, and Ozias.

22 And of the sons of Pheshur, Elioenai, Maasia, Ismael, Nathanael, Jozabed, and Elasa.

23 And of the sons of the Levites, Jozabed, and Semei, and Celaia, the same is Calita; Phataia, Juda, and Eliezer.

24 And of the singing-men, Eliasib: and of the porters, Sellum, and Telem, and Uri.

25 And of Israel, of the sons of Pharos, Remeia, and Jezia, and Melchia, and Miamin, and Eliezer, and Melchia, and Banea.

26 And of the sons of Elam, Mathania, Zacharias, and Jehiel, and Abdi, and Jerimoth, and Elia.

27 And of the sons of Zethua, Elioenai, Eliasib, Mathania, Jerimoth, and Zabad, and Aziza.

28 And of the sons of Bebai, Johanan, Hanania, Zabbai, Athalai:

29 And of the sons of Bani, Mosollam, and Melluch, and Adaia, Jasub, and Saal, and Ramoth.

30 And of the sons of Phahath Moab, Edna, and of Sechenias is not found among the transgressors; (v. 20.) but that of Jehiel is, v. 26. It seems, however, that the former returned with Esdras, and speaks in the name of the people, to encourage them to confess their guilt, (C.) unless his name be omitted. M.—Repentance. Heb. "yet there is hope, (Prot.) or an assembly of Israel." De Dieu.

VER. 3. Covenant. The marrying with strange women seemed to have annulled the covenant with God.—Of them. The children were to follow the mothers, as in other unlawful connections. Their being suffered to remain behind, might have had dangerous consequences. C.—The custom of divorcing was then in force, (T.) and the Jews looked upon all as null, which was done contrary to the law; (V. Bede. E. C. Grot.) though here the law was only prohibitory. Cajet. T.—As all was directed by the will of God, the dictates of humanity would not be disregarded (C.) on this trying occasion. H.—The children might be placed in houses for education. Cajet. T.

VER. 4. Thy part. The high priest not acting, (M.) Esdras was appointed chief, (H.) and his abilities were universally acknowledged. C.

VER. 6. Before. 3 Esd. "the court or hall of the temple." H.—Eliasib. His son and successor is styled Joiada. 2 Esd. xii. 10. The same person had often many names, (C.) or Johanan might be a younger son. M.—Josephus (xi. 5.) says, that Esdras went to the apartments of John and Eliasib. H.—Esdras, though sent extraordinarily by God, repairs to the son of the priest, as S. Paul conferred with other apostles. Gal. ii. W.

VER. 8. Away. Heb. and Sept. "subjected to anathema," (C.) and utterly destroyed; (H.) or, according to some editions of the Sept. and Josephus, "consecrated to the temple." Esdras exercises the power which had been entrusted to him. C. vii. 16.

VER. 9. Ninth. Casleu, (Zac. vii. 1.) which corresponds with our November and December. M.—Street. Court, which afforded as yet no shelter from the rain. C.—This would tend to punish them for their sin, and to make them more sensible of it. W.

VER. 11. Confession. Sept. "give praise;" which is done by repentance and virtue. M.—Confess your faults, and submit to the justice of God. Joa. vii. 19. C.

VER. 14. Cities. It is not clear whether the rulers went to the different cities, or the principal men of each gave information, and caused the guilty to appear before Esdras, at Jerusalem. H.

VER. 16. So. Cajetan improperly concludes, that the sentence was not put in execution; because Nehemias (C. xiii. 23.) complains of such marriages. C.—But the guilty might have resumed their women. H.—Went. Heb. "were separated." H.—By making a small change, we may translate, with 3 Esd. "and Esdras separated or chose the men." Josephus seems generally to have followed the Greek of 3 Esd. The Syrians says there were 20 judges.

VER. 19. Hands. Thus the Persians confirmed their most solemn engagements. C.

VER. 25. Israel. Laymen, (C.) not of the tribe of Levi. M.

VER. 30. Moab. The inhabitants of this town, as well as of Nabo, (v. 43.) are specified.

Chalal, Banaías, and Maasias, Mathanías, Beseleel, Bennui, and Manasse.

31 And of the sons of Herem, Eliezer, Josue, Melchias, Semeias, Simeon, 32 Benjamin, Maloch, Samarias.

33 And of the sons of Hasom, Mathanai, Mathatha, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jermai, Manasse, Semei.

34 Of the sons of Bani, Maaddi, Amram, and Uel,

35 Baneas, and Badaías, Chelíau,

36 Vania, Marimuth, and Eliasib,

VER. 44. Children. Heb. may be, "and some of these women had exposed their children." But most follow the Sept. and Vulg. 3 Esd. ix. 36, "and they ejected them with their children." None was spared. C.—One great incon-

37 Mathanias, Mathanai, and Jasi,

38 And Bani, and Bennui, Semei,

39 And Salmias, and Nathan, and Adaias,

40 And Mechnedebai, Sisai, Sarai,

41 Ezrel, and Selemiau, Semeria,

42 Sellum, Amaria, Joseph.

43 Of the sons of Nebo, Jehiel, Mathathias, Zabad, Zabina, Jeddu, and Joel, and Banaia.

44 All these had taken strange wives, and there were among them women that had borne children.

venience of such connections is, that the offspring is illegitimate. W.—Only 17 priests, 10 Levites, and 86 laymen, are stigmatized as guilty of this scandal; yet these fill Israel with confusion, and Esdras with extreme affliction. H.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAS;

COMMONLY CALLED THE SECOND BOOK OF ESDRAS.

THIS Book takes its name from the writer, who was cup-bearer to Artaxerxes, (surnamed Longimanus) king of Persia, and was sent by him with a commission to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem. It is also called the Second Book of Esdras, because it is a continuation of the history begun by Esdras, of the state of the people of God after their return from captivity. Ch.—Genebrard believes that the latter wrote the work. But how long must he thus have lived? and how come the lists to vary so much? C.—We may allow that these variations are owing to the mistakes of transcribers, (1 Esd. ii. 1.) for the writer of both works was certainly inspired. Esdras lived a long time along with Nehemias; (C. xii. 35.) and he may have left memorials, as well as the latter, from which the present work seems to be compiled. H.—Some additions have been made since the days of Nehemias, particularly C. xii. to v. 26, or at least (C.) the five last of these verses. Capel. Chron.—The passage cited from the commentaries of Nehemias, (2 Mac. ii. 13.) is not to be found here; which shews that we have not his entire work, but only an abridgment, in which the author has adopted his words, with some few alterations. The fifth chapter seems to be out of its place, and also the dedication of the walls. C. xii. 27. Nehemias was a person in great favour at the court of Persia; and of high birth, probably of the royal family, (Euseb. Isid. Genebrard in Chron.) as most of the ancients believe that all who governed, till the time of the Asmoneans, were of the tribe of Juda. Hence he styles Hanani his brother, (C. i. 2.) and declines entering into the temple. C. vi. 11. His name never occurs among the priests; and though we read 2 Mac. i. 18. 21, jussit sacerdos Nehemias, (T.) the Greek has, "Nehemias ordered the priests;" lepis: (C. Huct. D.) and the title of priest sometimes is given to laymen at the head of affairs. H.—In this character Nehemias appeared, by order of Artaxerxes: and notwithstanding the obstructions of the enemies of Juda, rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem, and returned after twelve years to court, making a second visit to his own country, a little before the death of the king, whom he probably survived only one year, dying A. 3580, about thirty years after he had been appointed governor. C.—In the two first chapters we behold his solicitude for the welfare of his country, in the ten following his success, and in the last what abuses he corrected. W.—He renewed the covenant with God, (C. ix. and x.) sent for the sacred fire, and established a library at Jerusalem. 2 Mac. i. 19. 34. and ii. 13. H.

CHAP. I.

Nehemias, hearing of the miserable state of his countrymen in Judea, lamenteth, fasteth, and prayeth to God for their relief.

THE "words of Nehemias, the son of Helchias. And it came to pass in the month of Casleu, in the twentieth year, as I was in the castle of Susa,

2 That Hanani, one of my brethren, came, he and some men of Juda; and I asked them concerning the Jews, that remained and were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem.

3 And they said to me: They that have remained, and are left of the captivity there in the province, are

* A. M. 3550, A. C. 454.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Words, or transactions written by Nehemias. M.—Helcias, or Heb. and Sept. "Chelcias."—Casleu, the third of the civil year. 1 Esd. x. 9. —Year of Artaxerxes, (C.) after he was associated with his father on the throne; (T.) or rather the death of Xerxes. From this period the seventy weeks of Daniel are dated, (D.) or from the 23rd of Artaxerxes, and the 28th of Xerxes, (T.) as above three years must have been consumed in making preparations for the walls, &c. Josephus xi. 5.—The name of Nehemias, "comforter of God," as well as his being sent by a king to build, &c. prefigured Jesus Christ, sent by God to comfort and establish his Church. Ven. Bede. W. H.—Susa. Heb. "in Susa, the palace" where the kings of Persia resided in the months of winter, (Athen. xii. 1.) and of spring. Xenoph. Cyr. viii. Curt. v. 8.—Here Darius probably kept his court at other times. Est. i. 2. C.—Susa was situated on the river Coaspes, between the provinces of Babylon and Persia. D.

VER. 2. Hanani, a relation, whom Nehemias brought back. C. vii. 2.—Came. Some Latin copies add, "to me," (Lyran) as if a deputation had been sent; but of this the text is silent. C.

in great affliction and reproach: and the wall of Jerusalem is broken down, and the gates thereof are burnt with fire.

4 And when I had heard these words, I sat down, and wept, and mourned for many days: and I fasted, and prayed before the face of the God of heaven.

5 And I said: "I beseech thee, O Lord God of heaven, strong, great, and terrible, who keepest covenant and mercy with those that love thee, and keep thy commandments:

6 Let thy ears be attentive, and thy eyes open, to hear the prayer of thy servant, which I pray before

* Dan. ix. 4.

VER. 3. Province of Judea, subject to the Persians, as it was afterwards to the Romans; though, at present, they were allowed to have governors of their own nation. M.—Reproach, on account of the surrounding enemies. H.—Fire, recently; (M. See 1 Esd. iv. 12. and ix. 9.) or rather by Nabuchodonosor; as the kings of Persia would not suffer the city to be fortified, for fear of a fresh rebellion. Lyran. T.—We find that little progress (C. iii. and iv. C.) had at least been made in the work, though the blame must rather be laid on the enemies of Israel, than on several of the kings of Persia, who seem to have authorized the undertaking, which Cambyses, or Smerdis, had for a time interrupted. They only specify, indeed, that leave was granted to build the temple. But they allowed them to erect houses for themselves, which could not have been done to any purpose, among so many enemies, unless they had been defended by some sort of fortifications. H.

VER. 4. Days; about four months, till Nisan. C.

VER. 6. They. Heb. and Sept. "we have sinned." M.

VER. 7. Vanity. Heb. "we have been corrupted." Vat. "we have dealt thee now, night and day, for the children of Israel, thy servants: and I confess the sins of the children of Israel, by which they have sinned against thee: I and my father's house have sinned.

7 We have been seduced by vanity, and have not kept thy commandments, and ceremonies, and judgments, which thou hast commanded thy servant, Moses.

8 Remember the word that thou commandedst to Moses, thy servant, saying: If you shall transgress, I will scatter you abroad among the nations:

9 But if you return to me, and keep my commandments, and do them, though you should be led away to the uttermost parts of the world, I will gather you from thence, and bring you back to the place which I have chosen for my name to dwell there.

10 And these are thy servants, and thy people: whom thou hast redeemed by thy great strength, and by thy mighty hand.

11 I beseech thee, O Lord, let thy ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, who desire to fear thy name: and direct thy servant this day, and give him mercy before this man. For I was the king's cup-bearer.

CHAP. II.

Nehemias, with commission from king Artaxerxes, cometh to Jerusalem: and exhorteth the Jews to rebuild the walls.

AND "it came to pass in the month of Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, the king: that wine was before him, and I took up the wine, and gave it to the king: and I was as one languishing away before his face.

2 And the king said to me: Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou dost not appear to be sick? this is not without cause, but some evil, I know not what, is in thy heart. And I was seized with an exceedingly great fear:

3 And I said to the king: O king, live for ever:

• A. M. 3550, A. C. 454.

very corruptly." Prot. H.—The author of the Vulg. has read e for é. C.—Sept. "we have been very dissolute, or weak."

VER. 9. World. Lit. "of heaven, or the sky," (H.) which seems to the vulgar (C.) to rest upon the horizon. T. See Deut. xxx. 4.

VER. 10. Redeemed, or liberated from great evils. M.

VER. 11. Man; (virum) the great king, (H.) Artaxerxes. C.—Cup-bearer; Athersatha. 1 Esd. ii. 63. and 2 Esd. vii. 65.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Year. It seems the Persians began the year with Tizri, since both Casleu (the third) and Nisan (the seventh month of the civil year) fall on the twentieth of the king.—Wine. These kings drunk only that of Syria. Strabo xv.—People of distinction were appointed cup-bearers; and even the children of kings did not esteem the office beneath them. Herod. iii. 84. Athen. x. 6. Homer, &c. C.—I was. Prot. "I had not been before-time said in his presence." H.—Heb. lit. "I was not evil." Sept. "an enemy, or stranger." Arab. "disagreeable." Syr. "sorrowful." Sept. also, "there was not another (dux in throno) present," C. v. 6. S. Jerom seems not to have read the negation. H.

VER. 2. Is not. Heb. "nothing but sorrow of heart;" (Syr. C. Prot.) or rather, thou art meditating only treason. Sept. "This is nothing but wickedness of heart," (H.) which often shews itself on the countenance. The king might suspect that he was giving him poison. M.—Hence Nehemias feared, (C.) dreading such suspicions, (H.) and aware lest the company might frustrate his good design, as contrary to the interests of the crown. T.

VER. 3. Live; an usual salutation. Dan. iii. 9. and v. 10. So Ælian (var. i. 32.) says, "O king Artaxerxes, mayst thou reign for ever."—Father, v. 5. He knew that the Persians shewed great regard to the dead, (C. T.) whose bodies they sometimes cover with wax, and keep in their house, (Cic. Tusc. i. Alex. Genial. iii. 2.) or inter. Herod. i. 140.

VER. 4. Heaven, with a fervent ejaculation, in secret, (T.) to touch the king's heart, (C.) and to enable me to speak in a proper manner. M.

VER. 6. And, &c. In private the queen might dine with her husband, but not in public. Est. i. C.—Queen; probably Esther, if she were married to this king. M.—But this is uncertain. H.—Usher thinks it was Damaspia, mentioned by Ctesias. C.—Time, when I should return. Some say a year (T.) or two afterwards: but it is generally believed that he begged to be absent why should not my countenance be sorrowful, seeing the city of the place of the sepulchres of my fathers is desolate, and the gates thereof are burnt with fire?

4 Then the king said to me: For what doest thou make request? And I prayed to the God of heaven.

5 And I said to the king: If it seem good to the king, and if thy servant hath found favour in thy sight, that thou wouldst send me into Judea, to the city of the sepulchre of my father, and I will build it.

6 And the king said to me, and the queen that sat by him: For how long shall thy journey be, and when wilt thou return? And it pleased the king, and he sent me: and I fixed him a time.

7 And I said to the king: If it seem good to the king, let him give me letters to the governors of the country beyond the river, that they convey me over, till I come into Judea:

8 And a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, to give me timber, that I may cover the gates of the tower of the house, and the walls of the city, and the house that I shall enter into. And the king gave me according to the good hand of my God with me.

9 And I came to the governors of the country beyond the river, and gave them the king's letters. And the king had sent with me captains of soldiers, and horsemen.

10 And Sanaballat, the Horonite, and Tobias, the servant, the Ammonite, heard it, and it grieved them exceedingly, that a man was come, who sought the prosperity of the children of Israel.

11 And I came to Jerusalem, and was there three days.

12 And I arose in the night, I and some few men with me, and I told not any man what God had put in my heart to do in Jerusalem, and there was no beast with me, but the beast that I rode upon.

13 And I went out by night, by the gate of the twelve years. He then waited on the king eight or ten years, and returned into Judea towards the end of the reign of Artaxerxes. C. xiii. 6. C.—He perhaps asked permission to visit Jerusalem for only a short period, at first, but his presence being deemed necessary, he was permitted to continue there as governor full twelve years. M.

VER. 7. Over; give me a guard, (H.) or accompany me to Jerusalem. M.

VER. 8. Forest. Heb. pardes, "paradise," or garden planted with trees. Pliny (v. 23.) mentions a "paradise," in Cœlosyria. Grot.—But Nehemias might petition to be supplied with cedars from Libanus, (T.) as they had been given for the temple. 1 Esd. iii. 7. H.—Tower. Heb. bira, means also "a palace or temple." It may designate the porch of the temple, which was 120 cubits high; (2 Par. iii. 4. C.) though that had been lately repaired by Esdras. M.—Others think the doors of the courts are meant, as they were as strong as those of towers. Vatab.—They were not yet finished. C. x. 9. Many believe that (C.) Nehemias speaks of the royal palace, which had been almost contiguous to the temple, (M.) where he intended to build one for himself, while he should reside in the city. T.—But this might give umbrage to the king. C.—He could not, however, intend his favourite to remain without a suitable palace; and the latter seems to have designed not only to repair that which Solomon had founded, but also to erect another house for the governor. H.—Good hand; favour, (M.) and powerful aid. H.

VER. 10. Horonite, a native, not (C.) a petty king (Grot.) of Horonaim, in the country of Moab. Jer. xlviii. 3. He must have been very old, if he lived till the temple was built at Garizim: (Josephus and Scaliger) but Petau supposes that there were two of the name.—Servant; an officer appointed over the Samaritans, as well as Sanaballat. The Persian monarchs styled all their subjects servants or slaves. C.—Grieved. Thus unbelievers repine when any one endeavours to propagate the truth, (H.) or to establish the Church. W.

VER. 12. Any man, at Jerusalem, (v. 16) though he had informed the king v. 8. H.—No beast; that none might be alarmed.

VER. 13. Valley of Cedron, on the east, (C.) or west, near Calvary. M. T.—Dragon. Heb. Tannin, or "great fish," which might be kept there, unless the fountain was famous for the appearance of some dragon, or the water proceeded from the mouth of a brazen one. Sept. have read thanim, "figs." The fountain of Siloe might have many names. C.—Viewed. Sept. "I walked valley, and before the dragon-fountain, and to the dung gate, and I viewed the wall of Jerusalem, which was broken down, and the gates thereof, which were consumed with fire.

14 And I passed to the gate of the fountain, and to the king's aqueduct, and there was no place for the beast on which I rode to pass.

15 And I went up in the night by the torrent, and viewed the wall, and going back, I came to the gate of the valley, and returned.

16 But the magistrates knew not whither I went, or what I did: neither had I as yet told any thing to the Jews, or to the priests, or to the nobles, or to the magistrates, or to the rest that did the work.

17 Then I said to them: You know the affliction wherein we are, because Jerusalem is desolate, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire: come, and let us build up the walls of Jerusalem, and let us be no longer a reproach.

18 And I shewed them how the hand of my God was good with me, and the king's words, which he had spoken to me, and I said: Let us rise up, and build. And their hands were strengthened in good.

19 But Sanaballat, the Horonite, and Tobias, the servant, the Ammonite, and Gossem, the Arabian, heard of it, and they scoffed at us and despised us, and said: What is this thing that you do? are you going to rebel against the king?

20 And I answered them, and said to them: The God of heaven he helpeth us, and we are his servants: let us rise up and build: but you have no part, nor justice, nor remembrance in Jerusalem.

CHAP. III.

They begin to build the walls: the name and order of the builders.

THEN Eliasib, the high priest, arose, and his brethren, the priests, and they built the flock-gate: they sanctified it, and set up the doors thereof, even unto the tower of a hundred cubits they sanctified it unto the tower of Hananeel.

2 And next to him the men of Jericho built: and next to them built Zachur, the son of Amri.

3 But the fish-gate, the sons of Asnaa, built: they covered it, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks,

* A. M. 3550, A. C. 454.

upon the wall of Jerusalem, which these men are demolishing or clearing away." See H.

VER. 14. Aqueduct, or reservoir, made by Ezechias. 2 Par. xxxii. 30.

VER. 15. Torrent of Cedron, having gone round the city. C.

VER. 16. Magistrates. Sept. "guards." Seganim denotes various officers. C. — Work, or to any workmen. H. — None were now employed. T.

VER. 18. Hand. God had manifested his goodness and power, at the court of Persia. W.

VER. 19. Arabian governor. He afterwards accuses Nehemias. C. vi. 6. C.

VER. 20. Answered. Sept. "returned them an account (ἀδύον) . . . we are his pure servants, and we will build." H. — Part, or business. 1 Esd. iv. 4. — Justice, or right to the city. C. — You may mind your own affairs. T. — Remembrance. It was esteemed a high honour to be a citizen of Jerusalem. Ps. lxxvi. 5.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Priest, the third since the captivity, son (C.) or brother of Joachias. Lyrar. — Flock-gate, near which was probably the miraculous pool. John v. 2. But the situation of these gates is not ascertained. — Sanctified it, beginning the work (C.) with some religious ceremonies. Junius. — It was designed to protect God's temple; and therefore, when finished, they dedicated it (W.) with solemnity, as they did all the walls. C. xii. 27. The like custom is observed on laying the foundation-stone of our temples. H. Sanctified may also mean, cleared away the rubbish. Vatab. T. — Hundred. Heb. Mea. — Cubits is not in the original, Sept. or Syriac, (C.) though it seems to be understood. The ancient Jerusalem had twelve principal gates, four east, north, and west. There were none on the south, where Mount Sion lay. T. — The priests and others undertook this work, considering their eternal as well as their temporal inheritance. D.

and the bars. And next to them built Marimuth, the son of Urias, the son of Accus.

4 And next to him built Mosollam, the son of Barachias, the son of Merezabel, and next to them built Sadoc, the son of Baana.

5 And next to them the Thecutes built, but their great men did not put their necks to the work of the Lord.

6 And Joiada, the son of Phasea, and Mosollam, the son of Besodia, built the old gate: they covered it, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks, and the bars.

7 And next to them built Meltias, the Gabaonite, and Jadon, the Meronathite, the men of Gabaon and Maspha, for the governor that was in the country beyond the river.

8 And next to him built Eziel, the son of Araia, the goldsmith: and next to him built Ananias, the son of the perfumer: and they left Jerusalem unto the wall of the broad street.

9 And next to him built Raphaia, the son of Hur, lord of the street of Jerusalem.

10 And next to him Jedaia, the son of Haromaph, over-against his own house: and next to him built Hattus, the son of Hasebonia.

11 Melchias, the son of Herem, and Hasub, the son of Phahath Moab, built half the street, and the tower of the furnaces.

12 And next to him built Sellum, the son of Alohes, lord of half the street of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

13 And the gate of the valley Hanun built, and the inhabitants of Zanoë: they built it, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks, and the bars, and a thousand cubits in the wall unto the gate of the dunghill.

14 And the gate of the dunghill, Melchias, the son of Rechab, built, lord of the street of Bethacharam: he built it, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks, and the bars.

15 And the gate of the fountain, Sellum, the son of Cholhoza, built, lord of the street of Maspha: he built it, and covered it, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks and the bars, and the walls of the pool of Siloe, unto the king's garden, and unto the steps that go down from the city of David.

16 After him built Nehemias, the son of Azboc, lord

VER. 6. Old gate, or of the judges, who there assembled. Lyrar.

VER. 7. For the. Heb. "for (C. or) unto the throne of the governor on this side the river." Prot. H. — These people worked near the palace, which had been built for the Persian governor, who came to administer justice, till the time of Esdras. C. v. 16. and 1 Esd. vii. 25. Perhaps the governor of Syria had (H.) assisted the Jews, unless Nehemias himself be meant. M.

VER. 8. Goldsmith and perfumer, are plural in Heb. — Left, 400 cubits, (T.) as the wall was not demolished, (M.) having been repaired by Ozias just before the coming of the Chaldees. 2 Par. xxvi. 9. T. — Heb. "they pushed forward, (repaired, C. or) paved, (De Dieu) or fortified Jerusalem unto the broad wall." Prot. — The Sept. copies vary: some read, they placed, (restored) ἔθηκεν. Complut. But the Rom. edition has, "they left." D.

VER. 9. Street. Prot. "of the half part," (H.) belonging to Benjamin. Sellum was the inspector of that part which fell to the share of Juda, v. 12. C. iv. 19. Grotius. — Jerusalem, like all great cities, was divided into parts. C.

VER. 10. House. Thus he would be induced to do the work more perfectly. M.

VER. 11. Built. Heb. "repaired the other piece," or the part of the wall which corresponded with half a division, as in the following v. 12. 15. 24. &c.

VER. 12. Alohes, "the enchanter," (C.) as he could perhaps enchant serpents. Grot. — Daughters, who forwarded the work, as they had no brothers. M.

VER. 14. Bethacharam, in the tribe of Benjamin. Jer. vi. 1.

VER. 15. King's garden. This fountain is mentioned, Isai. viii. 6. Jo. ix. 7. — Steps. The place was so steep. C. xii. 36.

VER. 16. Labour, by Ezechias, for a reservoir. 2 Par. xxxii. 4. — Mighty men of David, (1 Par. xi. 10., or the king's guards, (C.) or the garrison. M. of half the street of Bethsur, as far as over-against the sepulchre of David, and to the pool, that was built with great labour, and to the house of the mighty.

17 After him built the Levites, Rehun, the son of Benni. After him built Hasebias, lord of half the street of Ceila, in his own street.

18 After him built their brethren Bavai, the son of Enadad, lord of half Ceila.

19 And next to him Aser, the son of Josue, lord of Maspha, built another measure, over-against the going up of the strong corner.

20 After him in the mount, Baruch, the son of Zachai, built another measure, from the corner to the door of the house of Eliasib, the high priest.

21 After him Merimuth, the son of Urias, the son of Haccus, built another measure, from the door of the house of Eliasib, to the end of the house of Eliasib.

22 And after him built the priests, the men of the plains of the Jordan.

23 After him built Benjamin and Hasub, over-against their own house: and after him built Azarias, the son of Maasias, the son of Ananias, over-against his house.

24 After him built Bennui, the son of Hanadad, another measure, from the house of Azarias unto the bending, and unto the corner.

25 Phalel, the son of Ozi, over-against the bending and the tower, which lieth out from the king's high house, that is, in the court of the prison: after him Phadaia, the son of Pharos.

26 And the Nathinites dwelt in Ophel, as far as over-against the water-gate toward the east, and the tower that stood out.

27 After him the Thecuites built another measure over-against, from the great tower that standeth out unto the wall of the temple.

28 And upward, from the horse-gate, the priests built, every man over-against his house.

29 After them built Sadoc, the son of Emmer, over-against his house. And after him built Semaia, the son of Sechenias, keeper of the east-gate.

30 After him built Hanania, the son of Selemia, and Hanun, the sixth son of Seleph, another measure: after him built Mosollam, the son of Barachias, over-against his treasury. After him Melchias, the goldsmith's son, built unto the house of the Nathinites, and of the sellers of small wares, over-against the judgment-gate, and unto the chamber of the corner, 31 And within the chamber of the corner in the flock-gate, the goldsmiths and the merchants built.

CHAP. IV.

The building is carried on notwithstanding the opposition of their enemies.

AND "it came to pass, that when Sanaballat heard that we were building the wall, he was angry: and being moved exceedingly, he scoffed at the Jews.

2 And said before his brethren, and the multitude of the Samaritans: What are the silly Jews doing? Will the Gentiles let them alone? will they sacrifice and make an end in a day? are they able to raise stones out of the heaps of the rubbish, which are burnt?

3 Tobias also, the Ammonite, who was by him, said: Let them build: if a fox go up, he will leap over their stone wall.

4 Hear thou, our God, for we are despised: turn their reproach upon their own head, and give them to be despised in a land of captivity.

5 Cover not their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from before thy face, because they have mocked thy builders.

6 So we built the wall, and joined it altogether unto the half thereof: and the heart of the people was excited to work.

7 And it came to pass, when Sanaballat, and Tobias, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Azotians, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were made up, and the breaches began to be closed, that they were exceedingly angry.

8 And they all assembled themselves together, to come, and to fight against Jerusalem, and to prepare ambushes.

9 And we prayed to our God, and set watchmen upon the wall day and night against them.

10 And Juda said: The strength of the bearer of

* A. M. 3550.

VER 17. Ceila, in the tribe of Juda. He inspected the workmen from this place.

VER 19. Strong corner, noted for some fortress, tower, (C.) or arsenal. Vatab. D.—Sept. "the ascent connecting the corner." H.

VER 20. Mount Sion. M.—Heb. and Sept. "earnestly repaired;" (H.) being indignant at the negligence of his neighbour, or undertaking his work with zeal. C.

VER 22. Plains. Sept. "from Chechar," retaining the original term cucar, which means "a plain." It lay in the environs of Jerusalem. C. xii. 28.—(f) the Jordan, is not in Heb. &c. C.—They might be natives of that place. Sa. Vat. M.

VER 26. Ophel. A very strong tower. See 2 Par. xxvii. 8. and xxxiii. 14.—East of the great court of the temple, from which it was not remote, as Esdras here harangued the people. C. xii. 36. and 3 Esd. viii. 1. Out of the gate was a pond of water, (C.) for the service of the temple. M.

VER 28. Horse-gate, by which the king's horses were led to water, at the torrent Cedron. It was near the temple and palace. 4 K. xi. 16. C.—Some Rabbinis assert that people were obliged to alight here, and to go on foot to the temple. LXXIII.

VER 29-30. After him, Semaia; as the Sept. &c. intimate; and not (C.) "after me," as if Nehemias spoke of himself, as some Heb. copies require. Jun. Grotius.—Treasury, or "room." Pagnin.—Judgment. Sept. "Maphekad." Heb. maphkad. Prot. "miphkad," (H.) may signify "command, review," &c. We can only guess at the reason of this appellation. C.—Perhaps the causes of the Nathinites were here decided, (M.) as well as those of others. It seems to be the same with the watch-gate, (C. xii. 38.) and led not out of the city, but into the street of the Nathinites. T.

CHAP. IV. VER. 2. Multitude. Heb. and Sept. "army." C.—Silly. Lit. "feeble." H.—Sacrifice, at the dedication. T.—Day, is so short a time, as their present vigorous proceedings seem to promise, notwithstanding their feeble condition, and the paucity of their numbers. H.—But no: we shall have time enough to hinder them, (M.) if the nature of their materials do it not for us. H.—Raise. Heb. "revive;" a word used for reparations of walls, &c. C. Delrio, adag. 221.—Sept. "heal." God's providence did not permit the enemy to rage, till the work was greatly advanced; so infidels laugh at the attempts of poor priests to restore religion, which nevertheless flourishes. W.

VER 3. Leap over. Heb. Sept. &c. "break down." C.—Bitter sarcasm, which excites the indignation of Nehemias! T.

VER 4. Captivity. Since they have not learnt to commiserate others. C.

VER 5. Fuca. Punish the obstinate. T.—He does not wish that they may continue impenitent. C.—But, on that supposition, he approves of the divine justice, and foretells what will happen. E.—Revenge was equally criminal under the old law, as it is at present. But the servants of God express their approbation (C.) of his inscrutable counsels. The imperative in Heb. is often used for the future tense. H.—Mocked. Prot. "provoked thee . . . before the builders." Sept. omit most of this and the following verses; having only, "Do not hide thyself, with respect to wickedness." H.

VER 6. Thercof, all round; as masons were stationed in different parts, (v. 19.) and not barely on one side of the city. C.—Tobias alludes to the present lowness of the walls, v. 3. H.

VER 8. Together, to the number of 180,000, according to the Jews; who say that they were terrified at the excommunication pronounced by 300 priests against them, while 300 young men sounded trumpets; and they fled, leaving Nehemias at liberty to continue the work. It is a pity that we have no foundation for this in Scripture. C. See 1 Esd. iv. 3. H.—The Samaritans durst not openly attack the Jews, who were under the protection of the Persian monarch. But they endeavoured clandestinely to injure them, (T.) and to prepare ambushes. H.

VER 10. Juda. Some of the Jews, (M.) who were dispirited at the greatness burdens is decayed, and the rubbish is very much, and we shall not be able to build the wall.

11 And our enemies said: Let them not know, nor understand, till we come in the midst of them, and kill them, and cause the work to cease.

12 And it came to pass, that when the Jews that dwelt by them, came and told us ten times, out of all the places from whence they came to us, 13 I set the people in the place behind the wall round about in order, with their swords, and spears, and bows.

14 And I looked and rose up: and I said to the chief men and the magistrates, and to the rest of the common people: Be not afraid of them. Remember the Lord, who is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, and your wives, and your houses.

15 And it came to pass, when our enemies heard that the thing had been told us, that God defeated their counsel. And we returned all of us to the walls, every man to his work.

16 And it came to pass from that day forward, that half of their young men did the work, and half were ready for fight, with spears, and shields, and bows, and coats of mail, and the rulers were behind them in all the house of Juda.

17 Of them that built on the wall, and that carried burdens, and that laded: with one of his hands he did the work, and with the other he held a sword.

18 For every one of the builders was girded with a sword about his reins. And they built, and sounded with a trumpet by me.

19 And I said to the nobles, and to the magistrates, and to the rest of the common people: The work is great and wide, and we are separated on the wall, one far from another:

20 In what place soever you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, run all thither unto us: our God will fight for us.

21 And let us do the work: and let one half of us hold our spears from the rising of the morning, till the stars appear.

22 At that time, also, I said to the people: Let every one with his servant stay in the midst of Jerusalem, of the work and the threats of the enemy.—Burdens. Sept. "of the enemies." Arab. "the Jews were strengthened, there were many porters, but they could not finish the work." C.—Rubbish to be removed. T.

VER. 12. Ten times, frequently. M.—Places, among the Cuthites.—Whence they. Prot. "ye return unto us, they will be upon you." Heb. the second person is put for the third, which occurs in the Sept. &c. though they refer it to the enemy. "They come up from all places against us." H.—De Dieu would translate, "return to us," cultivate the friendship of Sanaballat; or "return home," and leave off this work. The sense of the Vulg. is the most easy, and the best. C.

VER. 13. Place. Heb. adds, "below."—Round. Heb. "on the hills." H.—To remove the apparent contradiction, (C.) Prot. supply, "and on the higher places." Sept. "in lurking holes," excavations.

VER. 14. Remember. These are the most powerful arguments to encourage an army. H.

VER. 16. Their. Heb. "my servants," (M.) half of whom only wrought, while the rest stood guard. If we adhere to the Vulg. we must suppose that Nehemias altered his first plan, and ordered almost all to be ready to fight or to labour, as occasion might require, v. 17. C.—In. "Over, (H.) or behind all the family of Juda," (Vatab.) encouraging the people by word, and sometimes by example. T. M.

VER. 17. Sword. Heb. "dart." C.—The expression seems to be proverbial. So Ovid makes Canace speak, "My right hand holds the pen, my left the sword;" (H.) while I write, I am on the point of killing myself. C.

Dextra tenet calamus, strictum tenet altera ferrum.—Ep. Her
VER. 18. By me, when the enemy appeared. M and let us take our turns, in the night, and by day, to work.

23 Now I and my brethren, and my servants, and the watchmen, that followed me, did not put off our clothes: only every man stript himself when he was to be washed.

CHAP. V.

Nehemias blameth the rich for their oppressing the poor. His exhortation, and bounty to his countrymen.

NOW *there was a great cry of the people, and of their wives, against their brethren, the Jews.

2 And there were some that said: Our sons and our daughters are very many: let us take up corn for the price of them, and let us eat and live.

3 And there were some that said: Let us mortgage our lands, and our vineyards, and our houses, and let us take corn because of the famine.

4 And others said: Let us borrow money for the king's tribute, and let us give up our fields and vineyards:

5 And now our flesh is as the flesh of our brethren: and our children as their children. Behold we bring into bondage our sons, and our daughters; and some of our daughters are bond-women already, neither have we wherewith to redeem them, and our fields and our vineyards other men possess.

6 And I was exceedingly angry, when I heard their cry according to these words.

7 And my heart thought with myself: and I rebuked the nobles and magistrates, and said to them: Do you every one exact usury of your brethren? And I gathered together a great assembly against them,

8 And I said to them: We, as you know, have redeemed, according to our ability, our brethren, the Jews, that were sold to the Gentiles: and will you then sell your brethren, for us to redeem them? And they held their peace, and found not what to answer.

9 And I said to them: The thing you do is not good: why walk you not in the fear of our God, that we be not exposed to the reproaches of the Gentiles, our enemies?

10 Both I and my brethren, and my servants, have lent money and corn to many: let us all agree not

* A. M. 3550.

VER. 20. For us. Yet we must act with prudence and courage. H.

VER. 22. Midst. Before they had gone home. C.—Let us. Prot. "that in the night they may be a guard to us, and labour on the day." H.

VER. 23. Clothes, even to sleep.—Only. Sept. Compl. "man and his arms to the water." H.—They went armed to fetch water; (Malvenda) or they had their armour and water always at hand. Junius, &c.—Heb. "each kept his dart at the water." It may have various senses. C.—Prot. agree with the Vulg. "saving that every one put them off for washing" (H.) them, or themselves. T.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Cry. V. Bede (iii. 21.) complains of some pastors who neglected the flock, but exacted revenues. May not the same complaint still be made? W.

VER. 2. Very. Syr. "and our brethren are too numerous" to find meat.—For, &c. Heb. Sept. &c. "by force." Abenezra, &c.—Yet most people explain it in the sense of the Vulg. It was permitted to sell children in extreme distress. Ex. xxi. 7. Grot. C.

VER. 3. Let us. Prot. "We have mortgaged."—Famine, or "hunger." H.
VER. 4. Let us. Sept. Mont. "We have borrowed" on usury, contrary to Ex. xxii. 25. The Jews were still obliged to pay tribute.

VER. 5. Brethren, who are still in captivity, or we are of the same nature as the rich, (C.) who so cruelly oppress us. M.

VER. 7. Against them, as a private rebuke would not suffice. T.

VER. 8. Redeemed, by paying the ransom to the Babylonians, or by using all our endeavours to procure the releasement of our brethren. C.—For us. Prot. "or shall they be sold unto us?" H.—A true pastor practises what he preaches to others. W to call for it again; let us forgive the debt that is owing to us.

11 Restore ye to them this day their fields, and their vineyards, and their oliveyards, and their houses: and the hundredth part of the money, and of the corn, the wine, and the oil, which you were wont to exact of them, give it rather for them.

12 And they said: We will restore, and we will require nothing of them: and we will do so as thou sayest. And I called the priests, and took an oath of them, to do according to what I had said.

13 Moreover, I shook my lap, and said: So may God shake every man that shall not accomplish this word, out of his house, and out of his labours: thus may he be shaken out, and become empty. And all the multitude said: Amen. And they praised God. And the people did according to what was said.

14 And from the day, in which the king commanded me to be governor in the land of Juda, from the twentieth year, even to the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes, the king, for twelve years, I and my brethren, did not eat the yearly allowance that was due to the governors.

15 But the former governors that had been before me, were chargeable to the people, and took of them, in bread, and wine, and in money, every day, forty sicles: and their officers also oppressed the people. But I did not so for the fear of God.

16 Moreover, I built in the work of the wall, and I bought no land, and all my servants were gathered together to the work.

17 The Jews also, and the magistrates, to the number of one hundred fifty men, were at my table, besides them that came to us from among the nations that were round about us.

18 And there was prepared for me, day by day, one ox, and six choice rams, besides fowls, and once in ten days I gave store of divers wines, and many other things: yet I did not require my yearly allowance as governor: for the people were very much impoverished.

19 Remember me, O my God, for good, according to all that I have done for this people.

CHAP. VI.

The enemies seek to terrify Nehemias. He proceedeth and finisheth the wall.

AND *it came to pass, when Sanaballat, and Tobias, and Gossem, the Arabian, and the rest of our enemies, heard that I had built the wall, and that there was no breach left in it (though at that time I had not set up the doors in the gates,)

2 Sanaballat and Gossem sent to me, saying: Come, and let us make a league together in the villages, in the plain of Ono. But they thought to do me mischief.

3 And I sent messengers to them, saying: I am doing a great work, and I cannot come down, lest it be neglected whilst I come, and go down to you.

4 And they sent to me according to this word, four times: and I answered them after the same manner.

5 And Sanaballat sent his servant to me the fifth time, according to the former word, and he had a letter in his hand, written in this manner:

6 It is reported amongst the Gentiles, and Gossem hath said it, that thou and the Jews think to rebel, and therefore thou buildest the wall, and hast a mind to set thyself king over them: for which end

7 Thou hast also set up prophets, to preach of thee at Jerusalem, saying: There is a king in Judea. The king will hear of these things: therefore come now, that we may take counsel together.

8 And I sent to them, saying: There is no such thing done as thou sayest: but thou feignest these things out of thy own heart.

9 For all these men thought to frighten us, thinking that our hands would cease from the work, and that we would leave off. Wherefore I strengthened my hands the more:

10 And I went into the house of Semaia, the son of

* A. M. 3550.

VER. 11. For them, to the Persian governors, v. 14. H.—Nehemias remits this pension, which was before paid by the people, and exacted by the rich. Wolphius.—Du Moulin asserts that there is no question of usury, which the Jews always abhorred, much less of that which the Romans called the 100th, (C.) consisting in the payment of 12 per cent. (T.) or one every month. M.—Heb. "Give back to them," (H.) that they may enjoy those things.

VER. 12. Oath of them. Priests, in private, (M.) who were not innocent; (T.) or these were witnesses of the oath taken by the rich. Piscator.

VER. 13. Lap, or skirt of my robes. T.—Such figurative actions were very common. Thus a Roman ambassador at Carthage, folding up his garment, said he brought peace or war. Livy xxi. 18. C.—Said. Behold how easily was that effected at Jerusalem, which the Romans could never perfectly bring about, after the most violent riots! T.

VER. 14. Not eat, out of pity for the poor. M.—He was supported by the king, (C.) or by his own patrimony. H. v. 11.

VER. 15. Wall, pleading no exemption, but making my servants work. C.—Though no particular portion was assigned to him, he helped all. T.—No land, as I might have done, on advantageous terms. H.—Rare example of disinterestedness! He praises himself without vanity, only to induce others to follow the same course. So Moses, David, S. Paul, and others acted. Num. xii. 3. &c.

VER. 17. Men, my brethren, not (C.) Persians. Grot.—Them; ambassadors. M.—If Nehemias behaved with such generosity for twelve years, he must have been very rich: or he received a great pension from the king, or voluntary and abundant contributions from the rich.

VER. 18. Wines. This was only produced, in abundance, on extraordinary occasions; for the people of the East do not drink wine at every feast. Eccl. xxxi. 17. C.—Yearly. Sept. "Moreover, I have of extortion I did not seek, because a hard servitude lay upon this people." H.

VER. 19. Good. A good conscience confidently hopeth for a reward. W.

CHAP. VI. VER. 2. Make. Prot. "meet together." H.—When the adversaries of faith find themselves unable to suppress it, they offer peace: so when Protestants began, and where they are still weak, they would have none persecuted for any opinions in religious matters; "but where they are strong, they hardly grant toleration to Catholics." W.—This has been no where more observable than in these islands, where the spirit of persecution has not yet subsided, though banished from most other countries. See Dr. Milner's 4th let to a Preb. Debates in Parl. 1810, &c. H.—Villages. Most of the Lat. editions, before Sixtus V. read, in vitulis in campo uno, (C.) "with sacrifices of calves in some one field." H.—Perhaps Cephirim, (T.) or Copirim, "villages," (H.) may be the name of a place in the plain of Ono, (T.) which is styled the valley of craftsmen, (C. xi. 35. C.) in the tribe of Benjamin, near the Jordan. Adrichomius.—Mischief, by taking or killing. M.

VER. 3. You. This was one, (H.) though not the principal reason which hindered him. It is often advisable not to seem to suspect any evil.

VER. 5-6. Letter. Heb. Sept. and Arab. add, "open:" but this word is not in Syriac. The letter might be an order to appear, or might be left open to signify that the bearer was a man of confidence, from whom Nehemias might receive any further information; unless it was sent in this manner out of contempt.—Gossem, the Arabian governor. C. ii. 19. C.

VER. 7. Prophets. This was false; though, no doubt, the true prophets who lived at that time, would promote the laudable undertakings of Nehemias. H.—To counteract their influence, the enemies hired Semaia and Nodias, v. 10 and 14.—Together, that thou mayst clear thyself; (Vatab.) or that we may repress these rumors, lest the king should suspect us of any connivance. The first sense appears to be preferable. Nehemias did not take the information as a piece of civility. C.—The enemies left it ambiguous, whether they would not join their forces with his, in case he meant to revolt. M.

VER. 9. I. Heb. "Now, O Lord, strengthen my hands; (Jun. &c.) or, "now strengthening my hands, (C.) I went," &c. Sept. &c. agree with the Vulg. H.

VER. 10. Went, being invited. T.—Semaia, of the twenty-third course of priests. 1 Par. xxiv. 18. M.—Privately. Heb. "who was shut up," like a recluse, (H.) to deceive the people, by the appearance of superior sanctity, and by an imitation of the true prophets. C.—Some translate hatsur, "bound by Dalaia, the son of Metabeel, privately. And he said: Let us consult together in the house of God in the midst of the temple: and let us shut the doors of the temple, for they will come to kill thee, and in the night they will come to slay thee.

11 And I said: Should such a man as I flee? and who is there that, being as I am, would go into the temple, to save his life? I will not go in.

12 And I understood that God had not sent him, but that he had spoken to me as if he had been prophesying, and Tobias, and Sanaballat, had hired him.

13 For he had taken money, that I, being afraid, should do this thing, and sin, and they might have some evil to upbraid me withal.

14 Remember me, O Lord, for Tobias and Sanaballat, according to their works of this kind: and Nodias, the prophet, and the rest of the prophets, that would have put me in fear.

15 But the wall was finished the five and twentieth day of the month of Eslul, in two and fifty days.

16 And it came to pass, when all our enemies heard of it that all nations which were round about us, were afraid, and were cast down within themselves, for they perceived that this work was the work of God.

17 Moreover, in those days, many letters were sent by the principal men of the Jews to Tobias; and from Tobias there came letters to them.

18 For there were many in Judea sworn to him, because he was the son-in-law of Sechenias, the son of Area, and Johanan, his son, had taken to wife the daughter of Mosollam, the son of Barachias.

19 And they praised him also before me, and they related my words to him: and Tobias sent letters to put me in fear.

CHAP. VII.

Nehemias appointeth watchmen in Jerusalem. The list of those who came first from Babylon.

NOW *after the wall was built, and I had set up the doors, and numbered the porters and singing men, and Levites:

2 I commanded Hanani, my brother, and Hananias,

* A. M. 3550. Eccl. xlix. 15.

vow," (1 K. xxi. 7.) to protect the governor; (Malvenda) but this seems too far-fetched. C.

VER. 11. Should. Lit. "Does one like me retire from his post? And who like me shall enter the temple and live?" H.—It is unlawful for a layman to flee into the part of the temple assigned to the priests. Yet into this he had been invited, as the court of Israel was not perhaps yet cured. Those who suppose that Nehemias was a priest, say (C.) that he refused to flee, lest he should intimidate the people by his cowardly departure. T. M.—Semaia might also have a design upon his life, when they should be alone.

VER. 12. Understood, by the nature of the suggestion, and the manner in which he heard the refusal. Aggeus, or some of the true prophets, might also inform him, (C.) or a supernatural light irradiated his mind, unless human sagacity sufficed. T. M.

VER. 13. Sin, by taking any false step, so as to offend the people.

VER. 14. Prophet. Heb. "the prophetic." C.—Prot. "My God, think thou upon Tobias, . . . and on the prophetess Nodiah."

VER. 15. Eslul, the last of the civil year, corresponding with our August and September, when the walls were dedicated. C. xii. 27.—Days. Josephus (xi. 5.) says, "two years and three (Greek four) months" (H.) had been spent in perfecting the work. Cajet.—Others date from the reception of the letter, v. 5. Vatab.—But the work only lasted the time here specified, as the materials were at hand, and some of the walls were standing, while the rocks defended other parts; and the city was not then so large as it was afterwards. C.—The whole people wrought almost day and night, and Nehemias encouraged them with all his power. T.—Thus Alexander the Great built the walls of New Alexandria, on the Tanais, 60 stadia, or near 6000 paces (C.) long, in less than twenty days; (T.) and Caesar perfected other works, before Alise, &c. with equal expedition. Pel. Gal. i. and vii.—The Romans, at the last siege of Jerusalem, surrounded the ruler of the house of Jerusalem, (for he seemed as a sincere man, and one that feared God above the rest),

3 And I said to them: Let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened till the sun be hot. And while they were yet standing by, the gates were shut, and barred: and I set watchmen of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every one by their courses, and every man over-against his house.

4 And the city was very wide and great, and the people few in the midst thereof, and the houses were not built.

5 But God put in my heart, and I assembled the princes and magistrates, and common people, to number them: and I found a book of the number of them who came up at the first, and therein it was found written:

6 *These are the children of the province, who came up from the captivity of them that had been carried away, whom Nabuchodonosor, the king of Babylon, had carried away, and who returned into Judea, every one into his own city.

7 Who came with Zorobabel, Josue, Nehemias, Azarias, Raamias, Nahamani, Mardochai, Belsam, Mespharath, Begoai, Nahum, Baana. The number of the men of the people of Israel.

8 The children of Pharos, two thousand one hundred seventy-two.

9 The children of Saphatia, three hundred seventy-two.

10 The children of Area, six hundred fifty-two.

11 The children of Phahath Moab, of the children of Josue and Joab, two thousand eight hundred eighteen.

12 The children of Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four.

13 The children of Zethua, eight hundred forty-five.

14 The children of Zachai, seven hundred sixty.

15 The children of Bannui, six hundred forty-eight.

16 The children of Bebai, six hundred twenty-eight.

17 The children of Azgad, two thousand three hundred twenty-two.

* 1 Esd. ii. 1.

city with a wall 5000 paces long, and with thirteen towers, in three days. Joa. Bel. vi. 13. C.

VER. 18. Mosollam, one of the builders. C. iii. 4. M.—These two powerful men had consequently acted contrary to the laws of God, and the covenant of Esdras, with respect to marriages. They might fear the resentment of the zealous governor. Dangers from false brethren, (2 Cor. xi. 26.) wars without, and fears within, generally assail the servants of God. H.

CHAP. VII. VER. 2. House: "the citadel;" (Tigurin) "palace." Vatab.—The Sept. retain the original, Beira, (H.) which signifies a palace, (Pagnin) concerning which Nehemias had spoken. C. ii. 8. M.—But as it was not yet built, the house, being placed alone, more properly signifies the temple. We read of Zacharias and Jehiel, who occupied the same post (C.) as Hananias. 2 Par. xxxv. 8. H.—He was next to Eliasib, the high priest. C.

VER. 3. Sun. Lit. "the heat of the sun," or perfect daylight. H.—They Syr. and Arab. "while it was still day," (C.) or the sun shone. Before dusk the gates were shut, to prevent any improper person from entering. H.—House, on the walls. C.—These things protect a city; as grace a guard over the senses, and watchfulness do the soul. W.

VER. 4. Not built, sufficient for so great a multitude. C.—They lodged under tents, or in huts. H.

VER. 5. Heart, inspired me to provide inhabitants for the city, as was afterwards done by lot. C. xi. T.—Written. Hence it seems evident that Nehemias here only transcribes this ancient record, of those who came under Zorobabel, and consequently this chapter ought to agree with 1 Esd. ii. as well as with 3 Esd. v. 9, (H.) which is now strangely corrupted; so that it can throw no light upon the matter. C.—Some think that various catalogues were taken, at Babylon, at the first coming to Jerusalem, (M.) and at the dedication of the temple; (T.) and that Nehemias refers to a different one from that of Esdras.

- 18 The children of Adonicam, six hundred sixty-seven.
- 19 The children of Beguai, two thousand sixty-seven.
- 20 The children of Adin, six hundred fifty-five.
- 21 The children of Ater, children of Hezecias, ninety-eight.
- 22 The children of Hasem, three hundred twenty-eight.
- 23 The children of Besai, three hundred twenty-four.
- 24 The children of Hareph, a hundred and twelve.
- 25 The children of Gabaon, ninety-five.
- 26 The children of Bethlehem, and Netupha, a hundred eighty-eight.
- 27 The men of Anathoth, a hundred twenty-eight.
- 28 The men of Bethazmoth, forty-two.
- 29 The men of Cariathiarim, Cephira, and Beroth, seven hundred forty-three.
- 30 The men of Rama and Geba, six hundred twenty-one.
- 31 The men of Machmas, a hundred twenty-two.
- 32 The men of Bethel and Hai, a hundred twenty-three.
- 33 The men of the other Nebo, fifty-two.
- 34 The men of the other Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four.
- 35 The children of Harem, three hundred and twenty.
- 36 The children of Jericho, three hundred forty-five.
- 37 The children of Lod, of Hadid and Ono, seven hundred twenty-one.
- 38 The children of Senaa, three thousand nine hundred thirty.
- 39 The priests: The children of Idaia, in the house of Josue, nine hundred and seventy-three.
- 40 The children of Emmer, one thousand fifty-two.
- 41 The children of Phashur, one thousand two hundred forty-seven.
- 42 The children of Arem, one thousand and seventeen. The Levites:
- 43 The children of Josue and Cedmihel, the sons
- 44 Of Oduia, seventy-four: The singing men:
- 45 The children of Asaph, a hundred forty-eight.
- 46 The porters: The children of Sellum, the children of Ater, the children of Telmon, the children of Accub, the children of Hatita, the children of Sobai: a hundred thirty-eight.
- 47 The Nathinites: The children of Soha, the children of Hasupha, the children of Tebbaoth,
- 48 The children of Ceros, the children of Sias, the children of Phadon, the children of Lebana, the children of Hagaba, the children of Selmai,

- 49 The children of Hanan, the children of Geddel, the children of Gaher,
- 50 The children of Raaia, the children of Rasin, the children of Necoda,
- 51 The children of Gezem, the children of Asa, the children of Phasea,
- 52 The children of Besai, the children of Munim, the children of Nephussim,
- 53 The children of Bacbuc, the children of Hacupha, the children of Harhur.
- 54 The children of Besloth, the children of Mahida, the children of Harsa,
- 55 The children of Bercos, the children of Sisara, the children of Thema,
- 56 The children of Nasia, the children of Hatipha,
- 57 The children of the servants of Solomon, the children of Sothai, the children of Sophereth, the children of Pharida,
- 58 The children of Jahala, the children of Darcon, the children of Jeddel,
- 59 The children of Saphatia, the children of Hatil, the children of Phochereth, who was born of Sabaim, the son of Amon.
- 60 All the Nathinites, and the children of the servants of Solomon, three hundred ninety-two.
- 61 And these are they that came up from Thelmela, Thelharsa, Cherub, Addon, and Emmer: and could not shew the house of their fathers, nor their seed, whether they were of Israel.
- 62 The children of Dalala, the children of Tobia, the children of Necoda, six hundred forty-two.
- 63 And of the priests, the children of Habia, the children of Accos, the children of Berzellai, who took a wife of the daughters of Berzellai, the Galaadite, and he was called by their name.
- 64 These sought their writing in the record, and found it not: and they were cast out of the priesthood.
- 65 And Athersatha said to them: That they should not eat of the Holies of Holies, until there stood up a priest, learned and skilful.
- 66 All the multitude, as it were one man, forty-two thousand three hundred sixty,
- 67 Beside their men-servants, and women-servants, who were seven thousand three hundred thirty-seven: and among them, singing men and singing women, two hundred forty-five.
- 68 Their horses, seven hundred thirty-six, their mules, two hundred forty-five:
- 69 Their camels, four hundred thirty-five, their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty. [Hitherto is related what was written in the record. From this place forward goeth on the history of Nehemias.]

SA. Lucas. T.—Others suppose that changes were introduced, as the families were increased or diminished, in the time of Nehemias; (T.) who, therefore, judged it unnecessary to write a fresh catalogue, but only adjusted the old one to the present circumstances, including probably the names of those who had returned with Esdras, or with himself. C.—This seems contrary to the text, a book of, &c. and it would perhaps be as well to allow that the variations arise from transcribers, as all allow that many of the names and numbers are corrupted. H.—The similarity of Heb. letters for different numbers might easily occasion this; as we cannot suppose but Esdras would be able to give the total of sixty particular sums. Watson, let. 5.

VER. 33. Other Nebo. We find no first mentioned; but in the ancient Latin edition, Nebo occurred instead of Geba, v. 30. See 1 Esd. ii. 29. Sept. and Arab. omit "the other." This Nebo may be Nob, or Nobe, in the tribe of Benjamin. C.

VER. 43. The sons; or, "who were the sons (filiorum) of Oduia." H.

VER. 65. Athersatha; Nehemias, (C.) as he is called in Chaldee. 1 Esd. ii. 63. M.

VER. 68. Their. Heb. Rom. Sept. Syr. and Arab. omit this verse, but it is found in the Alex. Sept. and even in the Rab. Bible, printed at Venice, 1564, as well as in the 1st and 3rd Esdras, (C.) and it is inserted by Prot. H.

VER. 69. Hitherto. This is not in the original, or in the other versions. It is inserted in the margin of some Lat. MSS. and entirely omitted in others of great authority. The gloss might have been placed after v. 64. C.—Yet some of the following verses seem also to be copied from 1 Esdras. H.—8. Jerom informs us from what sources the work was compiled, which is all declared canonical by the Church, (W.) whether written by Esdras or by Nehemias. H.

VER. 70. Athersatha; that is, Nehemias, as appears from C. viii. 9. Either that he was so called at the court of the king of Persia, where he was cup-bearer, 70 And some of the heads of the families gave unto the work. Athersatha gave into the treasure a thousand drams of gold, fifty bowls, and five hundred and thirty garments for priests.

71 And some of the heads of families gave to the treasure of the work, twenty thousand drams of gold, and two thousand two hundred pounds of silver.

72 And that which the rest of the people gave, was twenty thousand drams of gold, and two thousand pounds of silver, and sixty-seven garments for priests.

73 And the priests, and the Levites, and the porters, and the singing men, and the rest of the common people, and the Nathinites, and all Israel, dwelt in their cities.

CHAP. VIII.

Esdras readeth the law before the people. Nehemias comforteth them. They celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

AND "the seventh month came: and the children of Israel were in their cities. And all the people were gathered together as one man, to the street which is before the water-gate, and they spoke to Esdras, the scribe, to bring the book of the law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded to Israel.

2 Then Esdras, the priest, brought the law before the multitude of men and women, and all those that could understand, in the first day of the seventh month.

3 And he read it plainly in the street that was before the water-gate, from the morning until mid-day, before the men, and the women, and all those that could understand: and the ears of all the people were attentive to the book.

4 And Esdras, the scribe, stood upon a step of wood, which he had made to speak upon: and there stood by him, Mathathias, and Semeia, and Ania, and Urias, and Helcia, and Maasia, on his right hand: and on the left, Phadaia, Misael, and Melchia, and Hasum, and Hasbaddana, Zacharia, and Mosollam.

5 And Esdras opened the book before all the people: for he was above all the people: and when he had opened it, all the people stood.

* A. M. 3551, A. C. 453.

or that, as some think, this name signifies governor; and he was at that time governor of Judea. Ch.—Rom. Sept. insinuates that the princes gave these things "to Nehemias." C.—Alex. Sept. "They gave for the work, unto Athersatha."—Prot. "The Tirbatha gave," &c. H.—Thersa means, "he fed," and satha, "he caused to drink." T.—The A, at the beginning, is only the article. H.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Were in, or had been at home, (H.) after the dedication of the walls, (C.) till they assembled (H.) at the beginning of the civil year, on the feast of trumpets, which was a day of rejoicing, (v. 9. Num. xxix. 1.) the festival of the new moon. Ribera. M.—Gate, near the temple. C. iii. 26. C.—Moses; the pentateuch. M.—He is not desired to restore what was lost. T.—As many copies had been preserved by the prophets, which Esdras revised. W.

VER. 2. Women, who were in a separate place.—Understand, being come to be use of reason. C.

VER. 3. It plainly. Prot. "therein, before the street." H.—Esdras probably read select pieces from Leviticus, &c. but principally from Deuteronomy. M.

VER. 4. Step. Heb. "wooden tower." C.—Prot. "pulpit" (H.) made in the form of a cup, (C.) like the cior, or tribune of Solomon. 2 Par. vi. 13.—Mosollam. We should imagine that this was not the person who had given his daughter in marriage to the son of Tobias. C. vi. 18. H.

VER. 5. Stood, out of respect, as we do while the gospel is read. See Num. xxiii. 13. C.

VER. 6. Understood, by those who were near enough, and were skilled in Heb. (H.) though many began to forget that language; (C. xiii. 24.) and for their benefit, an explanation was given in Chaldee, (v. 9. C.) or Syriac, the vulgar tongue after the captivity. Pure Hebrew was still retained in the public liturgy. T.—Thus the Catholic Church retains the use of the language first used in the conversion of the respective people, whether Greek, Latin, &c. while she takes care to explain to the people what is necessary, in their own language.

6 And Esdras blessed the Lord, the great God: and all the people answered: Amen, amen: lifting up their hands: and they bowed down, and adored God with their faces to the ground.

7 Now Josue, and Bani, and Serebia, Jamin, Accub, Septhai, Odia, Maasia, Celita, Azarias, Jozabed, Hanan, Phalaia, the Levites, made silence among the people to hear the law: and the people stood in their place.

8 And they read in the book of the law of God distinctly and plainly to be understood: and they understood when it was read.

9 And Nehemias (he is Athersatha) and Esdras, the priest and scribe, and the Levites, who interpreted to all the people, said: This is a holy day to the Lord, our God; do not mourn, nor weep: for all the people wept, when they heard the words of the law.

10 And he said to them: Go, eat fat meats, and drink sweet wine, and send portions to them that have not prepared for themselves: because it is the holy day of the Lord, and be not sad: for the joy of the Lord is our strength.

11 And the Levites stilled all the people, saying: Hold your peace, for the day is holy, and be not sorrowful.

12 So all the people went to eat and drink, and to send portions, and to make great mirth: because they understood the words that he had taught them.

13 And on the second day the chiefs of the families of all the people, the priests, and the Levites, were gathered together to Esdras, the scribe, that he should interpret to them the words of the law.

14 And they found written in the law, that the Lord had commanded by the hand of Moses, that the children of Israel should dwell in tabernacles, on the feast in the seventh month:

15 And that they should proclaim and publish the word in all their cities, and in Jerusalem, saying: Go forth to the mount, and fetch branches of olive, and branches of beautiful wood, branches of myrtle, and branches of palm, and branches of thick trees, to make tabernacles, as it is written.

Any change might be attended with more serious inconveniences than benefit. Our Saviour never blamed this practice, which subsisted among the Jews in his time, no more than that which obliged the people to keep without, while the priest offered incense, &c. Luke i. 10. 21.—And plainly. Prot. "and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading," as much as they were able; though many would, no doubt, still find difficulties, as we do at present. H.

VER. 9. Interpreted. S. Jerom renders the same term, made silence, (v. 7.) as it was the office of the Levites to keep the people in awe, v. 11. C.—Prot. "taught." They had also (H.) to instruct. 1 Esd. viii. 16. M.—Weep. The Jews had only one feast for mourning, the day of expiation. On all the rest, a holy joy was commended. For the same reason, the Church does not fast on such days. C.—Law, reflecting on the threats denounced against transgressors, which they had so lately witnessed. T.

VER. 10. Wine. Heb. and Sept. "things." Syr. and Arab. have simply, "drink."—Portions. The Greeks styled them, πίπτες; and the Latins, sportula. The custom prevailed not only among the Jews, (Est. ix. 19.) but also among Christians and pagans. Moses frequently exhorts the people to invite the poor; (Deut. xvi. 14.) and 3. Paul blames the rich Corinthians, for giving no part of their feast to them. 1 Cor. xi. 21.—Strength. By this holy joy, we shall be encouraged to perform all our duties. C.—Sept. "Be not downcast, because he (the Lord) is our strength." H.

VER. 13. Law, concerning some difficulties, particularly the manner of keeping the ensuing festival. T.—Thus Christ explained to his disciples what he had spoken to the people. H.

VER. 15. And that. This is not expressed in the law, though it was probably practised. C.—Some translate, "And they proclaimed," &c. Vatable.—Beautiful. Lit. "very or most beautiful." H.—Heb. "of oily wood" Sept. "cypress." Syr. "nut-tree." Others understand the pine, (Pagnin) balsam (Mariana) citron, (H.) or any other species of branches which might then be used. C. T.

16 And the people went forth, and brought. And they made themselves tabernacles every man on the top of his house, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the street of the water-gate, and in the street of the gate of Ephraim.

17 And all the assembly of them that were returned from the captivity, *made tabernacles, and dwelt in tabernacles: for since the days of Josue, the son of Nun, the children of Israel had not done so, until that day: and there was exceedingly great joy.

18 And he read in the book of the law of God, day by day, from the first day till the last, and they kept the solemnity seven days, and in the eighth day a solemn assembly according to the manner.

CHAP. IX.

The people repent with fasting and sack-cloth. The Levites confess God's benefits, and the people's ingratitude: they pray for them, and make a covenant with God.

AND ^bin the four and twentieth day of the month, the children of Israel came together with fasting, and with sack-cloth, and earth upon them.

2 And the seed of the children of Israel separated themselves from every stranger: and they stood, and confessed their sins, and the iniquities of their fathers.

3 And they rose up to stand: and they read in the book of the law of the Lord, their God, four times in the day, and four times they confessed, and adored the Lord, their God.

4 And there stood upon the step of the Levites, Josue, and Bani, and Cedmihel, Sabania, Bonni, Serebias, Bani, and Chanani: and they cried with a loud voice to the Lord, their God.

5 And the Levites, Josue and Cedmihel, Bonni, Hasebnia, Serebia, Odaia, Sebnia, and Phathahia, said: Arise, bless the Lord, your God, from eternity to eternity: and blessed be the high name of thy glory, with all blessing and praise.

6 Thou, thyself, O Lord, alone, thou hast made heaven, and the heaven of heavens, and all the host thereof: the earth, and all things that are in it: the seas, and all that are therein: and thou givest life to all these things, and the host of heaven adoreth thee.

7 Thou, O Lord God, art he who didst choose Abram, and broughtest him forth out of the fire of the Chaldeans, and gavest him the name of Abraham.

8 And thou didst find his heart faithful before thee: and thou madest a covenant with him, to give him the land of the Chanaanite, of the Hethite, and of the Amorrhite, and of the Pherezite, and of the Jebusite, and of the Gergesite, to give it to his seed: and thou hast fulfilled thy words, because thou art just.

9 And thou sawest the affliction of our fathers in Egypt: and thou didst hear their cry by the Red Sea.

10 And thou shewedst signs and wonders upon Pharaoh, and upon all his servants, and upon all the people of his land: for thou knewest that they dealt proudly against them: and thou madest thyself a name, as it is at this day.

11 And thou didst divide the sea before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea on dry land: but their persecutors thou throwest into the depth, as a stone into mighty waters.

12 And in a pillar of a cloud thou wast their leader by day, and in a pillar of fire by night, that they might see the way by which they went.

13 Thou camest down, also, to Mount Sinai, and didst speak with them from heaven, and thou gavest them right judgments, and the law of truth, ceremonies and good precepts.

14 Thou madest known to them thy holy sabbath, and didst prescribe to them commandments, and ceremonies, and the law, by the hand of Moses, thy servant.

15 And thou gavest them bread from heaven in their hunger, and broughtest forth water for them out of the rock in their thirst, and thou saidst to them that they should go in, and possess the land, upon which thou hadst lifted up thy hand to give it them.

16 But they and our fathers dealt proudly, and

* Lev. xxiii. 39.—^b A. M. 3551.

* Gen. xi. 31.

VER. 16. House, which was flat. H.—The tents might be erected in any place; in the open air. T.

VER. 17. Done so, with such alacrity, though they had displayed more magnificence. See the meaning of similar expressions, 4 K. xxiii. 22. C.

VER. 18. Assembly. Lit. "the collect." H.—Heb. "the day of retention;" the people being kept at the temple. C.—Sept. "the dismission;" as they were afterwards permitted to depart. H. See Lev. xxiii. 26.—It was probably on this occasion, that the sacred fire was found again; (2 Mac. i. 18. C.) and also the ark, the tabernacle, and the altar of incense, which had been hidden by Jeremias. 2 Mac. ii. 4. Torniel, A. 3610. Cano, &c.—But this is not so certain. H. C. Dies.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Mouth; Tizri, the day after they had sent away those women, (C.) whose company now covered them with confusion. H.—They were moved to compunction, by the hearing of the law, read by Esdras. M.

VER. 2. Stranger; idolatrous woman. H.—True repentance requires the works of mortification, and particularly the removal of all occasions of sin and disorderly pleasures. W.—The reformation had been commenced under Esdras, but some had relapsed. 1 Esd. x. 3. C. The true born Israelites would have no society with the sons of infidels. T.—Fathers, that they might not be punished for them. Ex. xx. 5. C.

VER. 3. Stand, to hear the law, out of reverence; (M.) or the Levites ascended the pulpit to read, four times in the day. T.—After each lecture psalms were sung, (C.) to praise God, and to declare the sins of the people, and their sincere repentance. H.—On days of mourning, the Jews assembled four times to pray, and thrice on other days, by the institution of Esdras. Maimonides. See Aots iii. 1.—On their fasts, they refrained from all meat, as well as from work, spending their time in prayer. They began at the first hour, and continued their exercises of devotion till the third, when they recommenced for other three hours. They did the like at the sixth and ninth hours; hearing the law, then prostrating themselves to confess their sins. Afterwards they rose to join with the Levites in praising the Lord. C.

VER. 4. Step, erected by Esdras. C. viii. 4.—Josue, &c. These Levites are mentioned again, (v. 5.) with some variation. Bani is called Bonni; Sabania is Hasebnia. C.—Perhaps some of them might be different, as there seems to be no reason for thus changing their names so soon. There are eight persons in both places. Sept. have "Jesus and the sons (Bani) of Kadmiel, Sachania, son of Sarabai, the sons of Chanani, &c.; (5.) and the Levites, Jesus and Kadmiel said, Arise, &c. (6.) and Esdras said, Thou," &c. H.

VER. 5. To eternity. Existing. Sa.—Bless him continually. M.—Let one generation after another praise his holy name. H.

VER. 6. Of heavens. The highest, (C.) and most glorious (H.) residence of the Eternal.—Host. Stars (C.) and angels, (M.) which are like his guards.—Life, or being. If the Levites had adopted the sentiment of the Persians, that the stars were animated, this does not prove the truth of that opinion, which has nevertheless been maintained by many. Gen. i. 18. C.—The expression is used for preserving, (Pa. xl. 3. M.) re-establishing, &c. C. iv. 2. C.

VER. 7. The fire of the Chaldeans. The city of Ur, in Chaldea, the name of which signifies fire. Or out of the fire of the tribulations and temptations, to which he was there exposed. The ancient Rabbins understood this literally, affirming that Abraham was cast into the fire by the idolaters, and brought out by a miracle without any hurt. Ch.—The Chaldees adored fire, (S. Jer. q. Heb. in Gen. xi. 31.) and the Persians probably imitated them. Strabo xv.—The emperor Heraclius destroyed their Pyreia. Suidas.—S. Jerom translates Ur of the Chaldees, in all other places. Anama.—Sept. "the country of," &c. C.—It is supposed that the sacred fire preserved in this city, gave name to it, (Ur, "fire,") as Heliopolis was so called, from the particular worship of "the sun." H.—Abraham, to imply some mystery. Gen. xvii. W. See Isai. xlii. 27.

VER. 10. A name. Glorious, (M.) and to be feared by all. Ex. xiv.

VER. 14. Sabbath. Which it seems had not been observed by them before, (Ex. xvi. 23. C.) at least not with such exactitude. H.

VER. 15. Hand. Promising with an oath, (Gen. xiv. 22. M. and xxii. 16. C.) or displaying thy power. H. hardened their necks, and hearkened not to thy commandments.

17 And they would not hear, and they remembered not thy wonders which thou hadst done for them. And they hardened their necks, and set their head to return to their bondage, as it were by contention. But thou, a forgiving God, gracious, and merciful, long-suffering, and full of compassion, didst not forsake them.

18 Yea, when they had made also to themselves a molten calf, and had said: This is thy God, that brought thee out of Egypt: and had committed great blasphemies:

19 Yet thou, in thy many mercies, didst not leave them in the desert: the pillar of the cloud departed not from them by day, to lead them in the way, and the pillar of fire by night, to shew them the way by which they should go.

20 And thou gavest them thy good Spirit to teach them, and thy manna thou didst not withhold from their mouth, and thou gavest them water for their thirst.

21 Forty years didst thou feed them in the desert, and nothing was wanting to them: their garments did not grow old, and their feet were not worn.

22 And thou gavest them kingdoms, and nations, and didst divide lots for them: and they possessed the land of Schon, and the land of the king of Hesebon, and the land of Og, king of Basan.

23 And thou didst multiply their children, as the stars of heaven, and broughtest them to the land concerning which thou hadst said to their fathers, that they should go in and possess it.

24 And the children came and possessed the land, and thou didst humble before them the inhabitants of the land, the Chanaanites, and gavest them into their hands, with their kings, and the people of the land, that they might do with them as it pleased them.

25 And they took strong cities and a fat land, and possessed houses full of all goods: cisterns made by others, vineyards, and oliveyards, and fruit-trees, in abundance: and they eat, and were filled, and became fat, and abounded with delight in thy great goodness.

26 But they provoked thee to wrath, and departed from thee, and threw thy law behind their backs: and they killed thy prophets, who admonished them earnestly to return to thee: and they were guilty of great blasphemies.

27 And thou gavest them into the hands of their enemies, and they afflicted them. And, in the time of their tribulation, they cried to thee, and thou heardest from heaven, and according to the multitude of thy tender mercies thou gavest them saviours, to save them from the hands of their enemies.

28 But after they had rest, they returned to do evil in thy sight: and thou leftest them in the hand of their enemies, and they had dominion over them. Then they returned, and cried to thee: and thou heardest from heaven, and deliveredst them many times in thy mercies.

29 And thou didst admonish them to return to thy law. But they dealt proudly, and hearkened not to thy commandments, but sinned against thy judgments, which if a man do, he shall live in them: and they withdrew the shoulder, and hardened their neck, and would not hear.

30 And thou didst forbear with them for many years, and didst testify against them by thy spirit, by the hand of thy prophets: and they heard not, and thou didst deliver them into the hand of the people of the lands.

31 Yet in thy very many mercies thou didst not utterly consume them, nor forsake them: because thou art a merciful and gracious God.

32 Now, therefore, our God, great, strong, and terrible, who keepest covenant and mercy, turn not away from thy face all the labour which hath come upon us, upon our kings, and our princes, and our priests, and our prophets, and our fathers, and all the people from the days of the king of Assur, until this day.

33 And thou art just in all things that have come upon us: because thou hast done truth, but we have done wickedly.

34 Our kings, our princes, our priests, and our fathers, have not kept thy law, and have not minded thy commandments, and thy testimonies, which thou hast testified among them.

35 And they have not served thee in their kingdoms, and in thy manifold goodness, which thou gavest them, and in the large and fat land, which thou deliveredst before them, nor did they return from their most wicked devices.

36 Behold we, ourselves, this day are bondmen: and the land, which thou gavest our fathers, to eat the bread thereof, and the good things thereof, and we, ourselves, are servants in it.

VER. 17. Their dead. Or appointed a leader instead of Moses, (Num. xiv. 4. M.) or an idol. Ex. xxxii. 1. Sept. "they gave a beginning, or a chief to return." Syr. "their heart returned to their crimes." C.—Prot. "and in their rebellion appointed a captain to," &c. They turned their back upon the promised land, and set their faces to return into Egypt. H.—Sinners are not deprived of free-will. W.

VER. 18. Blasphemies. By attributing the perfections of God to a senseless idol. Prot. follow the Sept. "provocations." Neatsoth (H.) properly implies words of an insulting nature. C.

VER. 20. Spirit. The conducting angel. M.—God enlightened and moved the hearts of the people, by his grace; which he gave in abundance to Moses. C.

VER. 21. Worn. So as to be sore, (H.) or without shoes. M. See Deut. viii. 4. C.—Prot. "their feet swelled not."

VER. 22. Lots. Heb. "them (the Chanaanites, or as it is more commonly understood, the Israelites,) into corners." C.—Sept. "by lot they possessed," &c. H.—Schon was king of Hesebon. Num. xxi. 26. C.

VER. 24. Land. From which most of their fathers were excluded by death.

VER. 25. Goodness. Prosperity was their ruin, (H.) as Moses had foretold. Deut. xxxii. 15. C.—"Empire is easily retained by the same arts by which it was procured: but when idleness takes the place of industry, when lust and pride banish continence and equity, fortune is changed with manners." Salust. Grot.

VER. 26. Earnestly. Lit. "called to witness" (H.) themselves, (Jos. xxiv. 21.) or heaven and earth. Deut. iv. 26. and xxx. 19. C.—Blasphemies. See v. 18. M.

VER. 27. Saviours. Josue, (C.) and more particularly the judges, (M.) David, &c. C.

VER. 28. Rest from their enemies. H.—The interval between their relapses was very short. C.

VER. 29. Shoulder. Slipping from under the burden of the law. H.—It seems this and the following verses chiefly regard the ten tribes, which proudly rebelled against Juda, (C.) and against the Lord. H.

VER. 30. Years. 254; during which time God had not ceased to recall his people to a sense of their duty, but all in vain.

VER. 32. Labour. Receive it in satisfaction. C.—Heb. "let not all the trouble seem little before thee;" as if it were not enough to appease thy anger, when borne with proper dispositions and faith. H.—Assur. Theglathphalassar who led some of the tribes into captivity, as Salmanasar did the rest. During this period, the whole nation was involved in misery, (C.) from which they had not been liberated even when the author wrote, v. 36. H. 1 Par. v. 26. M.

VER. 33. Truth, fulfilled thy promises. We have broken the covenant.

VER. 36. In it. Tributary to Persia. C. v. 4. and 1 Esd. vii. 24. and ix. 9. C.

37 And the fruits thereof grow up for the kings, whom thou hast set over us for our sins, and they have dominion over our bodies, and over our beasts, according to their will, and we are in great tribulation.

38 And because of all this we, ourselves, make a covenant, and write it, and our princes, our Levites, and our priests, sign it.

CHAP. X.

The names of the subscribers to the covenant, and the contents of it.

AND *the subscribers were Nehemias, Athersatha, the son of Hachelai, and Sedecias.

2 Saraias, Azarias, Jeremias,

3 Pheshur, Amarias, Melchias,

4 Hattus, Sebenia, Melluch,

5 Harem, Merimuth, Obdias,

6 Daniel, Genthon, Baruch,

7 Mosollam, Abia, Miamin,

8 Maazia, Belgia, Semeia: these were priests.

9 And the Levites, Josue, the son of Azanias, Ben-nui, of the sons of Henadad, Cedmihel.

10 And their brethren, Sebenia, Odaia, Celita, Phalaia, Hanan, 11 Micha, Rohob, Hasebia,

12 Zachur, Serebia, Sabania,

13 Odaia, Bani, Baninu.

14 The heads of the people, Pharos, Phahath Moab, Elam, Zethu, Bani, 15 Bonni, Azgad, Bebai,

16 Adonia, Begoai, Adin,

17 Ater, Hezecia, Azur,

18 Odaia, Hasum, Besai,

19 Hareph, Anathoth, Nebai,

20 Megphias, Mosollam, Hazir,

21 Mesizabel, Sadoc, Jeddua,

22 Pheltia, Hanan, Anaia,

23 Osee, Hanania, Hasub,

24 Alohes, Phalea, Sobec,

25 Rehum, Hasebna, Maasia,

26 Echaia, Hanan, Anan,

27 Melluch, Haran, Baana:

28 And the rest of the people, priests, Levites, porters, and singing men, Nathinites, and all that had separated themselves from the people of the lands to the law of God, their wives, their sons, and their daughters,

* A. M. 3551.

VER. 37. Tribulation. As we cannot enjoy the fruits, being so heavily taxed, and obliged to work in person for the king of a foreign country. C.

VER. 38. Because. Or "considering all these things," as chastisements due to our transgressions, we are resolved now to reform our conduct, (H.) and to comply more exactly with the covenant, which we will now solemnly renew. A copy was probably deposited in the temple, signed by the princes, (C.) in the name of all. H.—Malachi (i. 4.) seems to allude to this covenant. C.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Athersatha. Heb. hatirshatha. Prot. "the tirshatha," cup-bearer, or governor, highly (H.) "privileged" and honoured by Artaxerxes. W.—Heb. "And over those who were sealed, (C. Sept. or who sealed the deed. H.) Nehemias, the cup-bearer." Esdras, Eliasib, &c. were also princes. C.—It is not easy to account for the omission of their names. M.—They may be designated by different titles. An aristocracy, mixed with oligarchy, was the present form of government. The advice of the ancients, and of the people, was taken. C.—Hachelai, is less properly styled Helchias; (C. i. l.) where the Sept. read Chelchias, or Achalia, (Heb. chacala) as well as here.

VER. 8. Priests. All, at least after Nehemias. H.

VER. 14. Pharos. Many of these are mentioned as returning from Babylon. C. vii. 8. 11. &c.

VER. 28. Lands. Idolaters, (H.) namely, the proselytes. M.—Daughters. These did not all subscribe in person, but by the hands of the intelligent, and chief men, (v. 29.) or, (C.) as the Sept. seem to understand, these went through the different ranks of the people, and received their oaths. E. M.

29 All that could understand, promising for their brethren, with their chief men; and they came to promise, and swear that they would walk in the law of God, which he gave in the hand of Moses, the servant of God, that they would do and keep all the commandments of the Lord, our God, and his judgments, and his ceremonies.

30 And that we would not give our daughters to the people of the land, nor take their daughters for our sons.

31 And if the people of the land bring in things to sell, or any things for use, to sell them on the sabbath-day, that we would not buy them of them on the sabbath, or on the holy day. And that we would leave the seventh year, and the exaction of every hand.

32 And we made ordinances for ourselves, to give the third part of a sicle every year for the work of the house of our God,

33 For the loaves of proposition, and for the continual sacrifice, and for a continual holocaust on the sabbaths, on the new moons, on the set feasts, and for the holy things, and for the sin-offering: that atonement might be made for Israel, and for every use of the house of our God.

34 And we cast lots among the priests, and the Levites, and the people, for the offering of wood, that it might be brought into the house of our God, by the houses of our fathers, at set times, from year to year: to burn upon the altar of the Lord, our God, as it is written in the law of Moses:

35 And that we would bring the first-fruits of our land, and the first-fruits of all fruit of every tree, from year to year, into the house of our Lord.

36 And the first-born of our sons, and of our cattle, as it is written in the law, and the firstlings of our oxen, and of our sheep, to be offered in the house of our God, to the priests who minister in the house of our God.

37 And that we would bring the first-fruits of our meats, and of our libations, and the fruit of every tree, of the vintage also, and of oil to the priests, to the store-house of our God, and the tithes of our ground to the Levites. The Levites, also, shall receive the tithes of our works out of all the cities.

38 And the priest, the son of Aaron, shall be with the Levites in the tithes of the Levites, and the Levites

VER. 29. Understand. Heb. mebin, "the teachers," or Levites. 1 Esd. viii. 16. M.—Promising. Heb. "clave to their brethren;" and they promised with a curse to transgressors, and with an oath to walk, &c. H.

VER. 30. And. In all covenants, the articles which have been chiefly broken, are specified. W.

VER. 31. Holy day. The contrary practice is therefore sinful. H.—Year. Not cultivating the land. Lev. xxv. 4.—Hand. No debts were to be demanded. Deut. xv. 1. M.

VER. 32. Third part. About 9d. (H.) on account of the poverty of the people. C.—They afterwards paid half a sicle, or 1s. 2d. conformably to the law. Ex. xxx. 13. Mat. xvii. 23. H.—Before the captivity, the kings of Juda provided sacrifices, (2 Par. xxxi. 3.) and after, the Persian monarchs supplied what was requisite, in favour of Zerobabel and Esdras. C. vi. 8. and vii. 21. But these grants had been recalled, or were not well executed.

VER. 34. Wood. The Nathinites had performed this office till the captivity. But now their numbers were too small. C.—The people therefore brought the wood. The Levites, with the Nathinites, carried it into the temple, and the priests laid it upon the altars; all being regulated by lots. Lyran.—Hence the feast called Xylophoria, was instituted about the month of August, as we may gather from Josephus. The Rabbins say that the priests cut the wood, from March till the 15th of July.

VER. 35. Every tree, of seven species; the pear, apple, fig, apricot, olive, palm, and vine trees; besides wheat, legumes, &c. C.—For three years the fruit was deemed unclean. Lev. xix. 23. M.

shall offer the tithe of their tithes, in the house of our God, to the store-room, into the treasure-house.

39 For the children of Israel, and the children of Levi, shall carry to the treasury the first-fruits of corn, of wine, and of oil: and the sanctified vessels shall be there, and the priests, and the singing men, and the porters, and ministers, and we will not forsake the house of our God.

CHAP. XI.

Who were the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the other cities.

AND the princes of the people dwelt at Jerusalem: but the rest of the people cast lots, to take one part in ten to dwell in Jerusalem, the holy city, and nine parts in the other cities.

2 And the people blessed all the men that willingly offered themselves to dwell in Jerusalem.

3 These, therefore, are the chief men of the province, who dwelt in Jerusalem, and in the cities of Juda. And every one dwelt in his possession, in their cities: Israel, the priests, the Levites, the Nathinites, and the children of the servants of Solomon.

4 And in Jerusalem there dwelt some of the children of Juda, and some of the children of Benjamin: of the children of Juda, Athaias, the son of Aziam, the son of Zacharias, the son of Amarias, the son of Saphatias, the son of Malaleel: of the sons of Phares,

5 Maasia, the son of Baruch, the son of Cholhoza, the son of Hazia, the son of Adaia, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zacharias, the son of the Silonite:

6 All these, the sons of Phares, who dwelt in Jerusalem, were four hundred sixty-eight valiant men.

7 And these are the children of Benjamin: Sellum, the son of Mosollam, the son of Joed, the son of Phadaia, the son of Colaia, the son of Masia, the son of Etheel, the son of Isaia,

8 And after him, Gebbai, Sellai, nine hundred twenty-eight.

9 And Joel, the son of Zechri, their ruler, and Judas, the son of Senua, was second over the city.

10 And of the priests, Idaia, the son of Joarib, Jachin,

11 Saraia, the son of Helcias, the son of Mosollam, the son of Sadoc, the son of Meraioth, the son of Achitob, the prince of the house of God,

12 And their brethren that do the works of the temple: eight hundred twenty-two. And Adaia, the son of Jeroham, the son of Phelelia, the son of Amsi, the son of Zacharias, the son of Pheshur, the son of Melchias,

13 And his brethren, the chiefs of the fathers: two hundred forty-two. And Amassai, the son of Azreel, the son of Ahazi, the son of Mosollamoth, the son of Emmer,

14 And their brethren, who were very mighty, a hundred twenty-eight: and their ruler, Zabdiel, son of the mighty.

15 And of the Levites, Semeia, the son of Hasub, the son of Azaricam, the son of Hasabia, the son of Bonni,

16 And Sabathai, and Jozabed, who were over all the outward business of the house of God, of the princes of the Levites.

17 And Mathania, the son of Micha, the son of Zebedei, the son of Asaph, was the principal man to praise, and to give glory in prayer, and Becbecia, the second, one of his brethren, and Abda, the son of Samua, the son of Galal, the son of Idithum.

18 All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred eighty-four.

19 And the porters, Accub, Telmon, and their brethren, who kept the doors: a hundred seventy-two.

20 And the rest of Israel, the priests, and the Levites, were in all the cities of Juda, every man in his possession.

21 And the Nathinites, that dwelt in Ophel, and Siaha, and Gaspha, of the Nathinites.

22 And the overseer of the Levites, in Jerusalem, was Azzi, the son of Bani, the son of Hasabia, the son of Mathania, the son of Micha. Of the sons of Asaph, were the singing men in the ministry of the house of God.

23 For the king's commandment was concerning them, and an order among the singing men, day by day.

24 And Phathahia, the son of Mesezebel, of the children of Zara, the son of Juda, was at the hand of the king, in all matters concerning the people,

25 And in the houses through all their countries. Of the children of Juda, some dwelt at Cariatharbe, and in the villages thereof, and at Dibon, and in the villages thereof, and at Cabseel, and in the villages thereof,

26 And at Jesue, and at Molada, and at Bethphaleth,

27 And at Hasersual, and at Bersabee, and in the villages thereof,

VER. 37. Meats. Heb. "paste." Num. xv. 20. C. and xxiii. 17.—Ground, or the produce. M.

VER. 38. With. To observe that all is done according to the law. Num. xviii. 26. C.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Lots. Those who had a mind to fix their abode at Jerusalem, received every encouragement. But some were compelled, that the city might regain its ancient splendour, and become the bulwark of the nation. Josephus (xi. 5.) says, that Nehemias built at his own expense houses for the priests and Levites, who chose to reside there.

VER. 2. Blessed. Applauding their zeal and disinterestedness, as the city was yet only a heap of ruins. C.—Some from the other ten tribes returned; but the transactions of three tribes are more particularly noticed. V. Bede. W.

VER. 3. Solomon. See 1 Esd. ii. 55. and 1 Par. ix. 2.

VER. 4. Benjamin, as well as of Ephraim and Manasse. 1 Par. ix. 3. The difference between this last record and the present, arises from Nehemias including many who returned with Esdras and with himself. C.

VER. 5. Silonite. Or the son of Sela. 1 Par. ix. 5. T.

VER. 9. Second. Vicegerent of Joel, (C.) or commander of a second part of the city. Syr.

VER. 11. Achitob had the inspection over the Levites and treasures. Eliasib was then pontiff. C.

VER. 13. Amassai. Or (1 Par. ix. 12.) Maasai, the son of Adiel, the son of Jazra, the son of Mosollam, the son of Mosollamoth, the son of Emmer.

VER. 14. The mighty, for riches and power; on which account this family was conspicuous.

VER. 15. Semeia. The ancient Latin MSS. read Sebenia. Martinay.

VER. 16. Outward. For repairs of the temple, cultivation of the lands given by vow; also to buy provisions, sacred vestments, &c.

VER. 17. Praise. Master of music. C.—Heb. "chief to begin the thanksgiving in prayer." Syr. "leader of the Jews in prayer." H.

VER. 21. Gaspha, were chiefs of the Nathinites. C.—Heb. "over the," &c. Ophel was their place of residence. C. iii. 26.

VER. 22. Overseer. Lit. "bishop." Heb. pekid, which has the same meaning. H.—Christians styled him who was at the head, bishop; as the Athenians did their chief justice. Grot. E. C.

VER. 23. King's. David's, (C. xii. 24,) or perhaps the Persian monarch, who had appointed a maintenance for the priests, &c. 1 Esd. vi. and vii. C.—Order. Heb. "that a certain portion should be for the singers, due for every day." Prot.

VER. 24. People. They addressed themselves to him, (H.) and he gave an exact account to the king (C.) of Persia. M.

VER. 25. The houses. Heb. "and for the dwellings, (C.) or villages." Pagnin. M.—Villages. Lit. "daughters," which is often used in this sense. H.

VER. 26. Jesue. This, and many of the other cities, had changed names, or were not built in the time of Josue. C.

VER. 30. Bersabee. The southern extremity of Juda, (M.) unto the valley on the east of Jerusalem. Adric. 186.

- 28 And at Siceleg, and at Mochona, and in the villages thereof,
 29 And at Remmon, and at Saraa, and at Jerimuth.
 30 Zanoa, Odollam, and in their villages, at Lachis, and its dependancies, and at Azeca, and the villages thereof. And they dwelt from Bersabee unto the valley of Ennom.
 31 And the children of Benjamin, from Geba, at Mechmas, and at Hai, and at Bethel, and in the villages thereof,
 32 At Anathoth, Nob, Anania,
 33 Asor, Rama, Gethaim,
 34 Hadid, Seboim, and Neballat, Lod,
 35 And Ono, the valley of craftsmen.
 36 And of the Levites, were portions of Juda and Benjamin.

CHAP. XII.

The priests, and Levites, that came up with Zorobabel. The succession of high priests: the solemnity of the dedication of the wall.

NOW these are the priests, and the Levites, that went up with Zorobabel, the son of Salathiel, and Josue: Saraia, Jeremias, Esdras,
 2 Amaria, Melluch, Hattus,
 3 Sebenias, Rheum, Merimuth,
 4 Addo, Genthon, Abia,
 5 Miamin, Madia, Belga,
 6 Semeia, and Joiarib, Idaia, Sellum, Amoc, Helcias,
 7 Idaia. These were the chief of the priests, and of their brethren, in the days of Josue.
 8 And the Levites, Jesua, Bennui, Cedmihel, Sarebia, Juda, Mathanias, they and their brethren were over the hymns:
 9 And Becbecia, and Hanni, and their brethren, every one in his office.
 10 And Josue begot Joacim, and Joacim begot Eliasib, and Eliasib begot Joiada, 11 And Joiada begot Jonathan, and Jonathan begot Jeddoa.
 12 And in the days of Joacim, the priests and heads of the families were: Of Saraia, Maraia: of Jeremias, Hanania:

VER. 34-35. Lod. Built by Samad. 1 Par. viii. 12. It is called Lod-Hadid. C. vii. 37.—Ono had the same founder, and stood in the valley of craftsmen. C. vi. 2, and 1 Par. iv. 14.

VER. 36. Portions. The Levites dwelt in the cities assigned to these two tribes. C.

• CHAP. XII. VER. 1. Priests. But not all, as some are omitted. See v. 7. 22, &c.—Josue, or Jesua, the high priest.—Esdras, the famous scribe, who is supposed to have returned to Babylon, and to have been living under Nehemias, who came to Jerusalem 81 years after Zorobabel. If, therefore, Esdras was only 20 years old at the former period, he must have lived above 100 years, (C.) which is not improbable. Lyran. T. &c.—He returned again with many of his countrymen, by the king's leave. W.

VER. 7. Chief. Heads of the 24 great families. 1 Par. xxiv. 18.

VER. 8. Hymns. To preside over the banda. C. xi. 17. C.

VER. 9. Office. Heb. "in the watches," each in his turn, (Vatab.) "daily." Sept. M.

VER. 10. Joacim. These are some of the successors of Josue, (M.) who were high priests till the time of Jeddoa, or Jaddus. W.

VER. 11. Jonathan, is called Johanan by S. Jerom, (in Dan.) Josephus, &c.—Jeddoa. The Jaddus, who went to meet Alexander, in his pontifical attire, and was graciously received by him; as the monarch revered in his person the God of the Hebrews, who had formerly appeared to him in this manner, to encourage him to undertake the conquest of Asia. Josephus xi. 8.—Some think that the names of Jonathan and Jeddoa, and the v. 22, 23, and 24, have been inserted since the time of Nehemias; as he must have lived 140 years, to see the conquests of Alexander. T. Petau. N. Alex. T. 2 Dis. 7.—He could not be less than 20, when he returned in 3550. Jaddus met Alexander in 3672; consequently, at that time, Nehemias was 142 years old. But if he died at the commencement of the reign of Darius Codomannus 3668, he would still be 138. C.—Yet this longevity is by no means incredible, v. 1. C. xiii. 28. H.—Usher (A. 3602) maintains that Johanan was pontiff under Memnon.

- 13 Of Esdras, Mosollam: and of Amaria, Johanan:
 14 Of Milicho, Jonathan: of Sebenia, Joseph:
 15 Of Haram, Edna: of Maraioth, Helci:
 16 Of Adaia, Zacharia: of Genthon, Mosollam:
 17 Of Abia, Zechri: of Miamin and Moadia, Phelti:
 18 Of Belga, Sammua: of Semaia, Jonathan:
 19 Of Joiarib, Mathanai: of Jodaia, Azzi:
 20 Of Sellai, Celai: of Amoc, Heber:
 21 Of Helcias, Hasebia: of Idaia, Nathanael.
 22 The Levites, the chiefs of the families, in the days of Eliasib, and Joiada, and Johanan, and Jeddoa, were recorded, and the priests, in the reign of Darius, the Persian.

23 The sons of Levi, heads of the families, were written in the book of Chronicles, even unto the days of Jonathan, the son of Eliasib.

24 Now the chief of the Levites were Hasebia, Serebia, and Josue, the son of Cedmihel: and their brethren, by their courses, to praise, and to give thanks, according to the commandment of David, the man of God, and to wait equally in order.

25 Mathania, and Becbecia, Obedia, and Mosollam, Telmon, Accub, were keepers of the gates, and of the entrances before the gates.

26 These were in the days of Joacim, the son of Josue, the son of Josedec, and in the days of Nehemias, the governor, and of Esdras, the priest and scribe.

27 And at the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem, they sought the Levites out of all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem, and to keep the dedication, and to rejoice with thanksgiving, and with singing, and with cymbals, and psalteries, and harps.

28 And the sons of the singing men were gathered together out of the plain country about Jerusalem, and out of the villages of Nethuphati, 29 And from the house of Galgal, and from the countries of Geba, and Azmaveth: for the singing men had built themselves villages round about Jerusalem.

30 And the priests, and the Levites, were purified, and they purified the people, and the gates, and the wall.

VER. 12. Saraia had given his name to one of the principal families, at the head of which was Maraia, at this time. The Latin MSS. Sept. and Syr. style him Amaria.

VER. 17. Phelti was chief of two families, (C.) or perhaps the name of the head of Miamin (H.) is lost. Vatable.—And, is not in Heb. "of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Pittai." Prot. H.

VER. 19. Jodaia. The same name is written Idaia, v. 6, and 21.

VER. 22. Persian. Surnamed Codomannus, (H.) Condomanus, (Grot. C.) or Natus, under whom Jaddus was born, though he was pontiff under the former. Usher, A. 3553.

VER. 23. Chronicles. Not those which are now extant: but some records which regarded the families of the priests. See 1 Esd. ii. 61.—The son, or grandson of Eliasib. The author refers to other records, v. 26. C.

VER. 24. Order. Heb. "ward over-against ward." One company kept guard while another retired. M.

VER. 25. Entrances. These are not distinctly mentioned before. See 1 Par. xxvi. 15. 17. Ezec. xl. 8. C.—Sept. have only, after order, or him, v. 25. "When I assembled the door-keepers, (v. 26,) in the days of Joakim." H.

VER. 26. Scribe. Could these records have any greater authority than Nehemias himself? It seems, therefore, that this had been added by a later hand, whose testimony is perfectly authentic and inspired. C.—Nehemias might also refer to some records which he, or some other, had drawn up. H.

VER. 27. Wall. Some time before, (Usher. C.) or now, when the houses were completed. V. Bede. T.—Places, for greater solemnity. The ancients deemed "the walls and gates sacred things, the property of no man." Justinian, l. sacra loca.—Ovid describes the superstitious rites, with which the Romans laid the foundations of their cities, on some lucky day.

Fossa fit ad solidum, fruges jaciuntur in imo, &c.—Fast. iv.

VER. 30. Were purified first, that they might purify the rest. H.—Priests were obliged to abstain from wine, and from their wives, while they were on duty. See 2 Par. xxix. 34, and xxv. 2, &c. Levites were to wash their gar

31 And I made the princes of Juda go up upon the wall, and I appointed two great choirs to give praise. And they went on the right hand upon the wall toward the dunghill-gate.

32 And after them went Osaías, and half of the princes of Juda,

33 And Azarias, Esdras, and Micsollam, Judas, and Benjamin, and Semeia, and Jeremias.

34 And of the sons of the priests with trumpets, Zacharias, the son of Jonathan, the son of Semeia, the son of Mathania, the son of Michaia, the son of Zechur, the son of Asaph, 35 And his brethren, Semeia, and Azareel, Malalai, Galalai, Maai, Nathanael, and Judas, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David, the man of God: and Esdras, the scribe, before them at the fountain-gate.

36 And they went up over-against them by the stairs of the city of David, at the going up of the wall of the house of David, and to the water-gate eastward:

37 And the second choir of them that gave thanks went on the opposite side, and I after them, and the half of the people upon the wall, and upon the tower of the furnaces, even to the broad wall,

38 And above the gate of Ephraim, and above the old gate, and above the fish-gate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Emath, and even to the flock-gate: and they stood still in the watch-gate.

39 And the two choirs of them that gave praise, stood still at the house of God, and I, and the half of the magistrates with me.

40 And the priests, Eliachim, Maasia, Miamin, Michea, Elioenai, Zacharia, Hanania, with trumpets,

41 And Maasia, and Semeia, and Eleazar, and Azzi, and Johanan, and Melchia, and Elam, and Ezer. And the singers sung loud, and Jezraia was their overseer:

42 And they sacrificed, on that day, great sacrifices, and they rejoiced: for God had made them joyful with great joy: their wives, also, and their children rejoiced, and the joy of Jerusalem was heard afar off.

43 They appointed, also, in that day, men over the storehouses of the treasure, for the libations, and for the first-fruits, and for the tithes, that the rulers of the

* Deut. xxiii. 8.

ments. Lev. viii. 21. All lepers, &c. required a certain purification, ib. v. 2. 6. and Num. xix. 16. Care was taken that no dead body was found on the walls. These were probably sprinkled with water, &c. like the tabernacle. Lev. viii. 11.

VER. 31. Choirs. This is not expressed in Heb. and Sept. but must be understood. Prot. "great companies of them that gave thanks. Whereof one went." H.—The princes led the way, then the priests sounded the trumpets, (Num. x. 8.) the Levites sung, and were followed by the people. All were divided into two equal parts, and went round half the city. C.—They set out from the dunghill-gate, on the west, and proceeded to the watch-gate, on the east, v. 38. M.

VER. 35. Esdras, mentioned v. 33, was the chief personage, at the head of this company. H.

VER. 37. And, &c. Prot. "And the other company of them that gave thanks." —And upon. Heb. "beyond." This company (H.) proceeded northward. C.

VER. 38. Watch-gate. Syr. and Arab. "great gate," by which they came down.

VER. 42. Great. Numerous, or victims of a large size, oxen, &c.

VER. 43. Thanksgiving. S. Jerom, Sept. and Syr. have read in a different manner from the present Heb. (C.) which has, "for the tithes to gather into them, out of the fields of the cities, the portions of (or by) the law assigned to the priests, &c. Tora, "law," has been read, toda, "thanksgiving," by S. Jerom; and sarim, "princes," has been substituted for sadim, "fields." H.—The Syriac admits the second reading. C.—Sept. omit the first entirely. "For the tithes, and for the collections in them, brought to the princes of the cities, being the portions for the priests," &c. H.

VER. 44. Expiation. Or the legal purifications, (M.) when necessary. H.

VER. 45. Asaph was master of music in the reign of David. M.

VER. 46. Sanctified. That is, they gave them that which by the law was set aside, and sanctified for their use. Ch.—The Levites paid a tithe to the priests, C. x. 38. and Num. xviii. 26. C.) as the people did to them. W.

city might bring them in by them in honour of thanksgiving, for the priests and Levites: for Juda was joyful in the priests and Levites that assisted:

44 And they kept the watch of their God, and the observance of expiation, and the singing men, and the porters, according to the commandment of David, and of Solomon, his son.

45 For in the days of David and Asaph, from the beginning, there were chief singers appointed, to praise with canticles, and give thanks to God.

46 And all Israel, in the days of Zorobabel, and in the days of Nehemias, gave portions to the singing men, and to the porters, day by day, and they sanctified the Levites, and the Levites sanctified the sons of Aaron.

CHAP. XIII.

Divers abuses are reformed.

AND^a on that day they read in the book of Moses, in the hearing of the people: and therein was found written, that the Ammonites and the Moabites should not come into the church of God for ever:

2 Because they met not the children of Israel with bread and water: and they hired against them Balaam, to curse them: and our God turned the curse into blessing.

3 And it came to pass, when they had heard the law, that they separated every stranger from Israel.

4 And over this thing was Eliasib, the priest, who was set over the treasury of the house of our God, and was near akin to Tobias.

5 And he made him a great store-room, where before him they laid up gifts, and frankincense, and vessels, and the tithes of the corn, of the wine, and of the oil, the portions of the Levites, and of the singing men, and of the porters, and the first-fruits of the priests.

6 But in all this time I was not in Jerusalem, because in the two and thirtieth year^b of Artaxerxes, king of Babylon, I went to the king, and after certain days I asked the king:

7 And I came to Jerusalem, and I understood the evil that Eliasib had done for Tobias, to make him a storehouse in the courts of the house of God.

8 And it seemed to me exceedingly evil. And I

^a A. M. 3562, A. C. 442.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. That day, is often used for an indefinite time. H.—It is not probable that all this happened when the walls were dedicated. After that event, Nehemias rather went to court, and remained there about ten years. During his absence, many abuses crept in, which he endeavoured to remedy, (v. 7.) perhaps on the solemn day of tabernacles, when the law had been read.—Ever, (Deut. xxiii. 3.) so as to marry. C.

VER. 3. Stranger. Heb. herēb, "mixture," (H.) infidel women and their offspring.

VER. 4. Over this thing, &c. Or, he was faulty in this thing, or in this kind. Ch.—He was the source of all this evil. Heb. "and before this Eliasib," &c. It is probable that he was a different person from the high priest, (Usher) who had married his grandson to the daughter of Sanaballat, the intimate friend of Tobias. C.—The latter was a persecutor, and prefigured heretics, as Nehemias did our Saviour, who drove traffickers out of the temple. V. Bede in Esd. L. iii. 19. W.

VER. 5. He, Eliasib, or Tobias. The original is also ambiguous. Eliasib probably permitted Tobias to furnish himself apartments in the temple, where, by law, he was not allowed to enter. Hence the priests, being deprived of their support, were forced to retire. C.—Tobias rented the apartments, and was steward of the priests' revenues. T.

VER. 6. Days. Prefixed (C. ii. 6.) I asked. Heb. "was required to attend by the king," for about ten years. After which period, I returned and found such disorders. Some believe that Nehemias had been at Babylon, a long while before the 32d year of the king.

VER. 8. And I. Nehemias acted as governor, and performed the duty which the high priest neglected. C.

VER. 9. Storehouses, which had been profaned by the presence of a pagan. M.—Sacrifice. Heb. mincha, "offerings of flour, fruits, and liquors," which were kept in the storehouses, as well as frankincense. Eliasib had caused these things to be removed, to make place for Tobias. C.

cast forth the vessels of the house of Tobias out of the storehouse.

9 And I commanded, and they cleansed the storehouses: and I brought thither again the vessels of the house of God, the sacrifice, and the frankincense.

10 And I perceived that the portions of the Levites had not been given them: and that the Levites, and the singing men, and they that ministered, were fled away, every man to his own country.

11 And I pleaded the matter against the magistrates, and said: Why have we forsaken the house of God? And I gathered them together, and I made them to stand in their places.

12 And all Juda brought the tithe of the corn, and the wine, and the oil, into the storehouses.

13 And we set over the storehouses Selemias, the priest, and Sadoc, the scribe, and of the Levites, Phadaia, and next to them Hanan, the son of Zachur, the son of Mathania: for they were approved as faithful, and to them were committed the portions of their brethren.

14 Remember me, O my God, for this thing, and wipe not out my kindnesses, which I have done relating to the house of my God, and his ceremonies.

15 In those days I saw in Juda some treading the presses on the sabbath, and carrying sheaves, and lading asses with wine, and grapes, and figs, and all manner of burthens, and bringing them into Jerusalem on the sabbath-day. And I charged them that they should sell on a day on which it was lawful to sell.

16 Some Tyrians also dwelt there, who brought fish, and all manner of wares: and they sold them on the sabbaths to the children of Juda in Jerusalem.

17 And I rebuked the chief men of Juda, and said to them: What is this evil thing that you are doing, profaning the sabbath-day?

18 Did not our fathers do these things, and our God brought all this evil upon us, and upon this city? And you bring more wrath upon Israel by violating the sabbath.

19 And it came to pass, that when the gates of Jerusalem were at rest on the sabbath-day, I spoke: and they shut the gates, and I commanded that they should not open them till after the sabbath: and I set some of my servants at the gates, that none should bring in burthens on the sabbath-day.

20 So the merchants, and they that sold all kind of wares, stayed without Jerusalem once or twice.

21 And I charged them, and I said to them: Why stay you before the wall? if you do so another time, I will lay hands on you. And from that time they came no more on the sabbath.

22 I spoke also to the Levites, that they should be purified, and should come to keep the gates, and to sanctify the sabbath-day: for this, also, remember me, O my God, and spare me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies.

23 In those days, also, I saw Jews that married wives, women of Azotus, and of Ammon, and of Moab.

24 And their children spoke half in the speech of Azotus, and could not speak the Jews' language, but they spoke according to the language of this and that people.

25 And I chid them, and laid my curse upon them. And I beat some of them, and shaved off their hair, and made them swear by God that they would not give their daughters to their sons, nor take their daughters for their sons, nor for themselves, saying:

26 "Did not Solomon, king of Israel, sin in this kind of thing? and surely among many nations, there was not a king like him, and he was beloved of his God, and God made him king over all Israel: and yet women of other countries brought even him to sin.

27 And shall we also be disobedient, and do all this great evil, to transgress against our God, and marry strange women?

28 And one of the sons of Joiada, the son of Eliasib, the high priest, was son-in-law to Sanaballet, the Hironite, and I drove him from me.

29 Remember them, O Lord my God, that defile the priesthood, and the law of priests and Levites.

30 So I separated from them all strangers, and I appointed the courses of the priests and the Levites, every man in his ministry:

31 And for the offering of wood at times appointed, and for the first-fruits: remember me, O my God, unto good. Amen.

* 8 Kings iii. 1. and xi. 1.—* 8 Kings xi. 4.

VER. 10. Country. Heb. "field," that he might cultivate it, (H.) and get food. M.

VER. 11. Pleaded. Accusing them of treachery, in not opposing the wicked attempt.—Have us. He places himself in the number of the guilty, in order to soften the reproach. Sept. &c. C.—"Why is the house of God forsaken?" Prot.

VER. 14. And his. Heb. "its offices," and for the good of the sacred ministers. H.

VER. 15. Treading. Syr. and Arab. "travelling."

VER. 16. Tyrians. Who had established themselves there, for the sake of commerce, though the chosen people ought to have kept them at a great distance, for fear of seduction. C.

VER. 18. Fathers. Though warned by Jeremias, xvii. 21. M.

VER. 19. At rest. People travelling no longer. C.—Heb. "shaded, or in the dark." Before Friday night came on, the sabbath commenced, and then the gates were shut. H.—On the. Heb. "before the sabbath." M.

VER. 21. On you. To punish you, (C.) for thus endeavouring to tempt the people. H.

VER. 22. Gates. The Levites would more conscientiously discharge their duty, (M.) and restrain the people, so that they might keep the day holy. H.

VER. 23. Azotus. In the country of the Philistines.

VER. 24. Half. In the same family, some spoke the Philistine (Vatable) or Phœnician language: others the Hebrew; which, though it resembled the other very much, was still sufficiently distinct to be noticed. The children might also speak a jargon, composed of both languages. It is probable that, at this time, many of the common people spoke the Chaldee language, so that it was necessary to interpret pure Hebrew to them. C. viii. 8.

VER. 25. Curse, or excommunicated them, (C.) the guilty parents. H.—Shaved. Heb. and Sept. "plucked off their hair," by the roots, for greater torment. Sometimes quicklime was then sprinkled on the head, (C.) as adulterers were treated at Athens. Schol. Aristoph.—King Artaxerxes changed this punishment, and ordered that his officers should be forbidden to wear the tiara instead. Domitian caused the hair and beard of Apollonius to be shaven. Philost. iii. 14. C.—That they. Heb. "Ye shall not," &c.

VER. 27. Also be. Heb. "hearken unto you;" (Prot. H.) or "Have ye not heard the evils which fell upon our fathers (C.) for doing all?" &c. H.

VER. 28. One. Manasses, brother of Jaddus. Joseph. xi. 8.—Sanaballet, noted for his enmity towards the Jews. C. vi. 1. He obtained leave of Alexander to build the famous temple on Garizim, for his son-in-law. He must have been 150 years old when Alexander laid siege to Tyre, A. 3672. Esdras and Nehemias were noted for their great age. Yet some would suppose that there were two of the name of Sanaballet; and Josephus says that the one in question was appointed governor of Samaria by Darius, the last king of the Persians. This opinion is adopted by Usher, A. 3972. T. &c.—But there is still a difficulty to know whether it be necessary. C.—From me. In revenge he set up an opposition altar. H.—He had contracted a marriage, which was unlawful for all, and entailed degradation upon priests.

VER. 31. Wood. Conformably to the regulations mentioned, C. x. 34. C.—Good. A just man may confidently beg for a reward. W.—Amen, is not found in Heb. &c. The Holy Spirit records the praises of Nehemias. Eccli. xlix. 15 His political and moral virtues must ever assign him an exalted rank among the true Israelites. Like Jesus Christ, he rebuilt Jerusalem, reformed the nation, was the mediator of a new covenant, defended the rights of the priesthood and of all the people. C.

APOCRYPHA.

THE third and fourth Books of Esdras, and the prayer of Manasses, (W.) are found in many Latin Bibles, (H.) and translated in that of Douay, (W.) as works of dubious authority. Calmet also inserts the third and fourth books of Machabees. H.—Protestants class under the same head the books of Tobias, Judith, Wisdom, Ecclesiasticus, and Machabees, (W.) with Baruch, and parts of Esther and Daniel, &c. H.—They acknowledge that they are, “holy and worthy to be read in the Church, but not sufficient to prove points of faith.” The truth is, they find them too opposite to their creed; as S. Augustine (prædest. SS. C. xiv.) observes was the case with some heretics, who rejected the Book of Wisdom. W.—The pretence that these Books were not admitted by many ancient Fathers, would equally strike out of the canon the Epistle to the Hebrews, those of S. James and S. Jude, the second and third of S. Peter, and of S. John, and the Apocalypse, the authority of all which was formerly warmly controverted, (H.) and only admitted by degrees: (W.) paulatim tempore procedente meruit auctoritatem. S. Jerom, in Jacobo.—This holy doctor doubted (Prideaux) whether the book of Judith was canonical, till he found the decision of the Council of Nice. The declaration of the Church is the only sure rule by which matters of this nature can be decided. H.—“I would not believe the gospel, unless I were influenced to do it by the authority of the Catholic Church.” S. Aug. c. ep. Fund. c. 5.—This Church has spoken in favour of the controverted Books of the Old Testament, as much as for those of the New; so that the inconsistency of Protestants cannot pass unnoticed. If they had asserted that they appealed only to the private spirit, they might have been acceptable at least to fanatics; but now they attempt to follow the Catholic rule, and yet reject it the next moment! If we would relinquish all the parts of Scripture which have been called in question, what book would be safe? Some have been indeed more universally admitted, and may therefore be styled protocanonical, while the deuterocanonical books were recognized rather later; and after all difficulties had been maturely discussed, as has been the case with other articles of faith. But the declaration being promulgated sooner or later, does not alter the truth. The will of God, notified to us by his Church, is our infallible guide. This is the canon, or “rule,” (H.) to regulate our imperfect knowledge. S. Aug. c. Faust. xi. 5. and c. Crescon. ii. 32.—In this sense the Council of Carthage, (A. 419) styles these contested books, “canonical and divine,” and the ancient Popes, Innocent I. and Gelasius, as well as S. Aug. (Doct. ii. 8.) S. Isidore, (Etym. vi. 1.) and others, place them on a level with the other parts of Scripture, as has been done by the general Councils of Florence and of Trent. If the Jews did not admit them into their canon, it was because they were not extant in the Hebrew language, (H.) or known when the canon was closed by Esdras, (Huet. D.) or afterwards. H.—Besides, who sees not that the canon of the Church is preferable to that of the synagogue? W.—Otherwise how shall we receive the New Testament. H.—Many of the Fathers referred only to the Jewish canon, when they gave catalogues of the sacred books. C.—We shall find that they generally admitted the authority of what the Protestants style Apocrypha, and that they were far from considering them (H.) as “romances,” (Fagius) or inducements “to vice and superstitious practices, under the semblance of virtue,” (Button) as some have now the boldness to assert. They might well shew so much deference to the judgment of the majority of Christians, as to abstain from such censures. H.

THE BOOK OF TOBIAS.

THIS Book takes its name from the holy man Tobias, whose wonderful virtues are herein recorded. It contains most excellent documents of great piety, extraordinary patience, and of perfect resignation to the will of God. His humble prayer was heard, and the angel Raphael was sent to relieve him: he is thankful, and praises the Lord, calling on the children of Israel to do the same. Having lived to the age of one hundred and two years, he exhorts his son and grandsons to piety, foretells the destruction of Ninive, and the rebuilding of Jerusalem: he dies happily. Ch.—The Jews themselves have a great regard for the book of Tobias; (Grot. Sixtus Senens. viii.) which Origen (ad Afric.) says they “read in Hebrew,” meaning probably the Chaldee, (C.) out of which language S. Jerom translated it, preferring to displease the Pharisæical Jews, rather than not to satisfy the desires of the holy bishops Chromatius and Heliodorus. Ep. t. iii. W.—The Greek version seems to have been taken from another copy, or it has been executed with greater liberty by the Hellenist Jews, between the times of the Sept. and of Theodotion. C.—Huet and Prideaux esteem it more original; and Houbigant has translated it in his Bible, as the Council of Trent only spoke of the Latin editions then extant; and S. Jerom followed in his version the Heb. one of a Jew, as he did not understand the Chaldee. H.—The Syriac and the modern Hebrew edition of Fagius, agree mostly with the Greek, as that of Munster and another Heb. copy of Huet, and the Arabic version, both unpublished, are more conformable to the Vulgate. The most ancient Latin version used before S. Jerom’s, was taken from the Greek; and the Fathers who lived in those ages, speak of it when they call the book of Tobias canonical. S. Aug. leaves it, however, to adopt S. Jerom’s version, in his Mirrou. The copies of all these versions vary greatly, (C.) though the substance of the history is still the same; and in all we discover the virtues of a good parent, of a dutiful son, and virtuous husband, beautifully described. H.—“The servant of God, holy Tobias, is given to us after the law for an example, that we might know how to practise what we read; and that if temptations assail us, we may not depart from the fear of God, nor expect help from any other.” S. Aug. q. 119. ex utroque Test.—The four first chapters exhibit the holy life of old Tobias, and the eight following, the journey and affairs of his son, directed by Raphael. In the two last chapters they praise God, and the elder Tobias foretells the better state of the commonwealth. W.—It is probable that both left records, from which this work has been compiled, with a few additional observations. It was written during (C.) or after the captivity of Babylon. E.—The Jews had then little communication with each other, in different kingdoms. Tobias was not allowed to go into Media, under Sennacherib; and it is probable that the captives at Babylon would be under similar restrictions; so that we do not need to wonder that they were unacquainted with this history of a private family, the records of which seem to have been kept at Ecbatana. The original Chaldee is entirely lost, so that it is impossible to ascertain whether the Greek or the Vulg. be more conformable to it. The chronology of the latter seems however more accurate, as the elder Tobias foretold the destruction of Ninive, twenty-three years before the event, which his son just beheld verified, dying in the 18th year of king Josias. The accounts which appear to sectaries to be fabulous, may easily be explained. Houbigant.—Josephus and Philo omit this history. C.

CHAP. I.

Tobias's early piety: his works of mercy, particularly in burying the dead.

TOBIAS, of the tribe and city of Nephthali, (which is in the upper parts of Galilee, above Naason, beyond the way that leadeth to the west, having on the right hand the city of Sephet)

2 *When he was made captive in the days of Salmanasar, king of the Assyrians, even in his captivity, forsook not the way of truth,

3 But every day gave all he could get to his brethren, his fellow-captives, that were of his kindred.

* 4 Kings xvii. 3. and xviii. 9. A. M. 3283, A. C. 721.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Tobias, “good God,” (T.) is styled Tobia, by the ancient Latin version and S. Ambrose, and Tobit by the Greek and Syriac. These copies and the Heb. give a genealogy which does not agree. C.—Græbe’s edit. “The book of the words (or transactions) of Tobit, son of Tobiel, son of Ananiel, son of Adouel, (MS. has Nave) son of Galaël, (MS. Gamael) of the seed of Asiel, of the tribe of Nephthali, (2) who was made captive in the days of Enemessar, king of the Assyrians, from Thisbe, (MS. Thibe) which is on the right properly (MS. of Kudis. H. or Cades, capital. C.) of Nephthali, in Galilee, above Aser. 1, Tobit, walked in the ways of truth and of justice all the days of my life.” H.—Nehemias and the prophets frequently speak of themselves in the first person. The 4 And when he was younger than any of the tribe of Nephthali, yet did he no childish thing in his work.

5 Moreover, when all went to the golden calves, which Jeroboam, king of Israel, had made, he alone fled the company of all,

6 And went to Jerusalem, to the temple of the Lord, and there adored the Lord God of Israel, offering faithfully all his first-fruits, and his tithes.

7 So that in the third year he gave all his tithes to the proselytes, and strangers.

8 These, and such like things did he observe when but a boy, according to the law of God.

9 But when he was a man, he took to wife, Anna, of his own tribe, and had a son by her, whom he called after his own name,

10 And from his infancy he taught him to fear God, and to abstain from all sin.

11 And when, by the captivity, he, with his wife, and his son, and all his tribe, was come to the city of Ninive, 12 (When all ate of the meats of the Gentiles) he kept his soul, and never was defiled with their meats.

13 And because he was mindful of the Lord with all his heart, God gave him favour in the sight of Salmanasar, the king.

14 And he gave him leave to go whithersoever he would, with liberty to do whatever he had a mind.

15 He, therefore, went to all that were in captivity, and gave them wholesome admonitions.

16 And when he was come to Rages, a city of the Medes, and had ten talents of silver of that with which he had been honoured by the king:

* 3 Kings xii. 28.—b A. M. 3287.—c 4 Kings xix. 85, Eccli. xlviii. 24. 2 Mac. viii. 19.

truth of the history is the same. D.—Beyond, or behind; (post. H.) as the Hebrews speak with reference to a man turned towards the east. Hence this way would be on the west, and Sephet on the north.

VER. 2. Salmanasar. When Osee was conquered, A. 3283. See 4 K. xvii. 6.—Truth. His constancy in the observance of the true religion was so much the more wonderful, as he was rich, and lived among the wicked. C.

VER. 3. Kindred. Greek adds, "who went along with me . . . to Ninive."

VER. 4. Younger. "Very young," (H.) or the youngest of those who administered their own affairs. The parents of Tobias were deceased. C.—Greek, "when I was young in my country, in the land of Israel, all the tribe," &c.

VER. 5. All, or the greatest part; (H.) for some still feared God; (C. ii. 2. W.) and the Greek of C. v. 14. or 19. informs us that Ananias and Jonathan accompanied Tobias. H.—Greek is more diffuse. C.—(4) "All the tribe of Nephthali, of my father, departed from the house of Jerusalem, which city had been chosen from all the tribes of Israel, for all the tribes to offer sacrifice; and the temple of the tabernacle of the most High was sanctified, and was built for ever; (5) and all the tribes, apostatizing together, sacrificed to Baal, to the heifer; (Comp. ed. to the power of Baal) and the house of Nephthali, of my father, likewise. (6) And I alone went frequently to Jerusalem, at the feasts" (H.) of the Passover, &c. M.—The other versions are nearly similar. C.—But we cannot specify all these variations. H.—The number has induced some to conclude, not improbably, that there were two originals; (T.) the Syriac by the elder, and the Chaldee by the younger Tobias. Justiniani.—But this is destitute of proof. C.

VER. 7. Strangers. See Deut. xiv. 28. M. Lev. xxvii. 30. C.—Greek, "And the third I gave to whom it belonged, as Debhora, my father's mother, ordered me, as I was left an orphan by my father; (9) and when I was," &c. H.

VER. 9. Man. The Jews married young: but the time was not fixed. C.—After. Greek, "Tobias." They always style the father Tobit. H.

VER. 11. Ninive, called Ninus by Pliny, &c. M.—It was so large, as easily to receive a whole tribe, which was sold for slaves. C.

VER. 12. Meats, such as had been immolated to idols, (M.) or were forbidden to the Jews. C.

VER. 14. And he. Gr. "I was his marketter," (H.) to provide provisions for the palace. "He set me over all he had, till the day of his death." Munster.—But this Heb. author has probably exaggerated the matter, to make Tobias appear as great as he could. These editions add no more, continuing, (15) "And I went into Media, and I deposited with Gabael, or Gabelus," &c.

VER. 16. Rages means "rupture," by frequent earthquakes, and was (M. C.) the residence of the Parthian kings, in spring, (Athen. xii. 2.) in the mountains, separating their country from Media.—Honoured, for his salary, C.

17 And when amongst a great multitude of his kindred, he saw Gabelus in want, who was one of his tribe, taking a note of his hand, he gave him the aforesaid sum of money.

18 But after a long time, Salmanasar, the king, being dead, when Sennacherib, his son, who reigned in his place, had a hatred for the children of Israel:

19 Tobias daily went among all his kindred, and comforted them, and distributed to every one as he was able, out of his goods:

20 He fed the hungry, and gave clothes to the naked, and was careful to bury the dead, and they that were slain.

21 *And when king Sennacherib was come back, fleeing from Judea, by reason of the slaughter that God had made about him for his blasphemy, and being angry, slew many of the children of Israel, Tobias buried their bodies.

22 But when it was told the king, he commanded him to be slain, and took away all his substance.

23 But Tobias fleeing naked away with his son, and with his wife, lay concealed; for many loved him.

24 *But after forty-five days, the king was killed by his own sons.

25 And Tobias returned to his house, and all his substance was restored to him.

CHAP. II.

Tobias leaveth his dinner to bury the dead: he loseth his sight by God's permission, for manifestation of his patience.

BUT after this, when there was a festival of the Lord, and a good dinner was prepared in Tobias's house,

2 He said to his son: Go, and bring some of our tribe, that fear God, to feast with us.

* A. M. 3294.—c 4 Kings xix. 87. 2 Par. xxxii. 21. Isai. xxxvii. 39.

VER. 17. Money. People might formerly make use of what was merely deposited in their hands. Ulpian.—The old Latin version has, "I committed to him ten talents in gold."

VER. 18. Time. Salmanasar reigned fourteen years; seven after the captivity, which to people in distress would appear long. C.—Gr. "And after Ene-messar was dead, Sennacherib, his son, reigned in his stead; and his ways ceased, (or his high roads were stopped) and I could no longer go into Media." H.—We find nothing in history to confirm this stoppage: (C.) but it might be in consequence of the wars. Houbigant. See the pref. H.—Israel. This hatred was augmented, after the unfortunate expedition into Palestine. C. M. 4 K. xix. 85.

VER. 19. Goods, under Sennacherib; though he was now deprived of his place. C.—Greek, Syr. and Heb. insinuate, that this happened under his predecessor. H.

VER. 20. Slain, by order or connivance of Sennacherib. M.—Tobias buried the dead, out of charity, and the belief of a future resurrection. Hence arises the respect for tombs and the relics of the saints. C.—The pagans imagined that the souls could not rest till their bodies were interred. Homer, Virgil vii. &c. C.

VER. 22. Loved him, even of the Assyrians. The Jews were not able to afford him shelter. M.

VER. 24. Forty. Arab. twenty-five; Gr. and Syr. fifty; other Gr. copies, fifty-five days. Fagius says Tobias was hidden nineteen days. It seems, therefore, we should date these forty-five days from the return of Sennacherib.—Sons. See 4 K. xix. 37. and Isai. xxxvii. 38. C.—Gr. adds, "and they fled to the mountains of Ararat, and Sacherdoe, (our Assaraddon) his son, reigned in his stead; and he appointed Achiachar Anael, the son of my brother, over all the accounts of his kingdom, and over all his government. And Achiachar petitioned for me; and I came to Ninive. But Achiachar was cup-bearer, (Alex. MS. receiver of wine) and keeper of the ring, and governor and keeper of accounts; and Sacherdonosos gave him the second place. But he was my nephew. And when I returned to my house, and my wife Anna, and my son Tobias, were restored to me, at the feast of Pentecost," &c. H.—This seems contrary to v. 23. Yet the Heb. copies agree in this particular, and mention the dignity of Akikar. But we may judge what credit these additions deserve. C.—They merit some attention, as they may be original. See Pref. H.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. House. The law authorized such feasts. Deut. xii. 12 and xiv. 28. Tobias complied with it, by inviting also the poor servants of God. Gr. "I lay down to eat." This custom prevailed in the East. C.

VER. 2. Tribe. Gr. "brethren indigent, and who remembers God." H.—All had not given way to idolatry. W.

3 And when he had gone, returning, he told him, that one of the children of Israel lay slain in the street. And he forthwith leaped up from his place at the table, and left his dinner, and came fasting to the body:

4 And taking it up, carried it privately to his house, that after the sun was down, he might bury him cautiously.

5 And when he had hid the body, he ate bread with mourning and fear,

6 Remembering the word which the Lord spoke by ^aAmos, the prophet: Your festival days shall be turned into lamentation and mourning.

7 So when the sun was down, he went and buried him.

8 Now all his neighbours blamed him, saying: Once already commandment was given for thee to be slain because of this matter, and thou didst scarce escape the sentence of death, and dost thou again bury the dead?

9 ^bBut Tobias fearing God more than the king, carried off the bodies of them that were slain, and hid them in his house, and at midnight buried them.

10 Now it happened one day, that being wearied with burying, he came to his house, and cast himself down by the wall, and slept.

11 And as he was sleeping, hot dung, out of a swallow's nest, fell upon his eyes, and he was made blind.*

12 Now this trial the Lord, therefore, permitted to happen to him, that an example might be given to posterity of his patience, as also of holy Job.

13 For, whereas, he had always feared God from his infancy, and kept his commandments; he repined not against God, because the evil of blindness had befallen him, 14 But continued immoveable in the fear of God, giving thanks to God all the days of his life.

15 For as the kings insulted over holy Job, so his relations and kinsmen mocked at his life, saying:

16 Where is thy hope, for which thou gavest alms, and buriedst the dead?

* Amos viii. 10. 1 Mac. i. 41.—^b Supra i. 21.—^c A. M. 3295.

VER. 3. Street. Asarhaddon did not protect the Israelites, which renders the elevation of Akikar to the highest dignities suspicious. C.—But the king and his minister might not be able to prevent all murders. H.—Fasting. The ancients seldom eat anything before noon. Gr. "Before I had tasted, I leaped up and took him to a house, till the sun should be set," (H.) to prevent any danger from the Assyrians. M.—If he did not employ another, he must have eaten alone, being rendered unclean. This seems to have been the case; and hence he did not enter his own house, but lay down by the wall. C.—Gr. and Heb. mention, that he washed himself before he eat. H.

VER. 9. But. This version is not in Greek or Heb. C.—True zeal is not repressed by fear, as charity expels it. 1 Jo. iv. W.

VER. 10. Now. Gr. "And that very night I was."—He came. Gr. "I lay myself down, being defiled, beside the wall of the court, and my face was uncovered." H.—The touching the dead rendered a person unclean. Num. xix. 11.

VER. 11. Swallow's. Gr. denotes "sparrows," or any other small birds: serapias. Serarius.—Eyes. Gr. observes that they were "opened." Heb. "by chance." Yet "haves, and many men, sleep with their eyes open," (Pliny xi. 37.) as was here the case. S. Athan. Synops.—If not, the dung might insinuate itself by rubbing. It is extremely caustic. Vales. 42. Aldrov. 17. &c.—The blindness of Tobias was only a suspension of sight. C.—Blind. Greek, "white specks or skins came upon my eyes, and I went to the physicians, but they afforded me no relief. But Achiachar fed me (H.) till I (or he) went to Elymais;" Heb. of Fagius, "into Germany." C.—Abnuntium. H.

VER. 12. Now. This is omitted in Greek and Heb. as far as v. 19. S. Ambrose says beautifully, that Tobias "was more grieved that he could yield no assistance to others, than for the loss of his sight."

VER. 15. Kings. So Job's three friends are here called, because they were princes in their respective territories, (Ch.) like the petty kings of Palestine, in the days of Abraham and of Josue. They are styled kings in the Greek version of Job. C.—Relations, (parentes.) His father and mother were dead. W.

VER. 18. Saints; Abraham. &c. Thus Mathathias encouraged his children; (1 Mac. ii. 50.) and no argument can be more forcible.

17 But Tobias rebuked them, saying: Speak not so.

18 For we are the children of saints, and look for that life which God will give to those that never change their faith from him.

19 Now Anna, his wife, went daily to weaving work, and she brought home what she could get for their living by the labour of her hands.

20 Whereby it came to pass, that she received a young kid, and brought it home:

21 And when her husband heard it bleating, he said: ^dTake heed, lest perhaps it be stolen, restore ye it to its owners; for it is not lawful for us either to eat or to touch any thing that cometh by theft.

22 ^eAt these words, his wife being angry, answered: It is evident thy hope is come to nothing, and thy alms now appear.

23 And with these, and other such like words, she upbraided him.

CHAP. III.

The prayer of Tobias, and of Sara, in their several afflictions, are heard by God, and the angel Raphael is sent to relieve them.

THEN Tobias sighed, and began to pray with tears, 2 Saying: Thou art just, O Lord, and all thy judgments are just, and all thy ways are mercy, and truth, and judgment:

3 And now, O Lord, think of me, and take not revenge of my sins, neither remember my offences, nor those of my parents.

4 ^fFor we have not obeyed thy commandments, therefore are we delivered to spoil and to captivity, and death, and are made a fable, and a reproach to all nations, amongst which thou hast scattered us.

5 And now, O Lord, great are thy judgments, because we have not done according to thy precepts, and have not walked sincerely before thee:

6 And now, O Lord, do with me according to thy will, and command my spirit to be received in peace: for it is better for me to die, than to live.

^d Deut. xxii. 1.—^e Job xxii. 9.—^f Deut. xxviii. 15.

Dice puer virtutem ex me, verumque laborem

Sis memor, et te animo repentem exempla tuorum

Et pater Aeneas et avunculus excitet Hector.—Aeneid xii.

—Life eternal. These grand truths were more developed, as the Messias was nearer at hand.

VER. 19. Work. This was usually the employment of women. The great charities of Tobias, physicians, &c. had reduced him to poverty.

VER. 20. Kid, which had not left off sucking. Greek adds, that this was given besides the usual wages. M.

VER. 21. Theft. He was the master of the family, and knew that there was no money in the house, so that he was not guilty of rash judgment, (M.) through his wife might naturally be offended.

VER. 22. At. Gr. "but she said: It was given to me in addition to my wages. Yet I did not give credit to her, and I ordered her to restore it to its owners; and I blushed for her. But she replied: Where are thy alms-deeds and thy just works? Behold, all things are known with thee. Then, through grief, I wept," &c. H.—Hope in God, who nevertheless leaves us in distress. M.—She indirectly finds fault with Providence, which increases the grief of Tobias; or, at least, she insinuates that he must have been a hypocrite, as the friends of Job unjustly argued, from his being afflicted. H.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Then, retiring, v. 25.—Tears. He manifests no degree of impatience. C.

VER. 2. Judgment. Even in punishing, God remembers mercy, (H.) and never fails to perform what he has promised.

VER. 3. Parents, so as to punish me on their account. M.—The Scripture frequently seems to indicate that this is the case; (Ex. xx. 5.) and the Church still prays, Remember not, O Lord, our offences, nor those of our parents. C.—But children are only punished when they imitate the wicked conduct of their ancestors: they may be afflicted, though innocent, as their virtue will thus be tried, and shine more gloriously. H.—The pagans, being convinced that God can be guilty of no injustice, and perceiving that people who appeared to be free from sin were yet unhappy, concluded that they were explaining the sins committed in another world. Plotin. li. 13. Origen, (597)

7 Now it happened on the same day, that Sara, daughter of Raguel, in Rages, a city of the Medes, received a reproach from one of her father's servant-maids,

8 Because she had been given to seven husbands, and a devil named Asmodeus had killed them, at their first going in unto her.

9 So when she reproved the maid for her fault, she answered her, saying: May we never see son, or daughter of thee upon the earth, thou murderer of thy husbands.

10 Wilt thou kill me also, as thou hast already killed seven husbands? At these words she went into an upper chamber of her house: and for three days and three nights did neither eat, nor drink:

11 But continuing in prayer, with tears besought God, that he would deliver her from this reproach.

12 And it came to pass on the third day, when she was making an end of her prayer, blessing the Lord,

13 She said: Blessed is thy name, O God of our fathers: who when thou hast been angry, wilt shew mercy, and in the time of tribulation forgivest the sins of them that call upon thee.

14 To thee, O Lord, I turn my face, to thee I direct my eyes.

15 I beg, O Lord, that thou loose me from the bond of this reproach, or else take me away from the earth.

16 Thou knowest, O Lord, that I never coveted a husband, and have kept my soul clean from all lust.

17 Never have I joined myself with them that play: neither have I made myself partaker with them that walk in lightness.

18 But a husband I consented to take, with thy fear, not with my lust.

19 And either I was unworthy of them, or they, perhaps, were not worthy of me: because, perhaps, thou hast kept me for another man.

20 For thy counsel is not in man's power.

* A. M. 8299.—b Exod. xx. 12. Eccl. vii. 29.

prin. iii. C.—This might arise from a confused notion of original sin. Pascal's Thoughts. H.

VER. 6. Peace. Gr. "that I may be dissolved, and return to the earth; (lit. become earth) because it is more advantageous for me to die than to live, since I have heard false reproaches, and am much grieved. Command that I may be freed from this necessity, to go to my eternal place." H.

VER. 7. Rages. In the Greek it is Ecbatana, which was also called Rages. For there were two cities in Media of the name of Rages: Raguel dwelt in one of them, and Gabelus in the other. Ch. M.—Profane authors mention a Rages in the vicinity of Ecbatana. Diod. Bib. 19.—It may here denote the province. W.

VER. 8. Asmodeus, "the fire of Media." Heb. "king of the devils," of that country, exciting people to lust, (M. Serar. q. 8.) and destroying them. W.—Unto her. Gr. and Heb. intimate, when they first entered the nuptial chamber. C. vi. 14.

VER. 9. Murder. Gr. "Dost thou not understand that thou hast suffocated thy husbands. Thou hast already had seven husbands, and hast not received the name of any of them. Why dost thou strike us on their account? If they be dead, go along with them. May we," &c. H.

VER. 10. At. Gr. and Heb. "Hearing these things she was much grieved, so as to be unable to breathe; (H. was away-far) or, on the point of strangling herself." Grot. C.—But this interpretation is groundless, (Houbigant) and very injurious to Sara. H.—She could not entertain the thought without sin. Yet the Jews had very relaxed notions on this head. Judg. xvi. 30. 1 K. xxxi. 4. God approved of the conduct of Sara. C.—Gr. continues, "and she said, I am the only daughter of my father. If I do this thing, (as the servants suggested) it will be a disgrace for him. . . and she prayed before the window; and said, Blessed," v. 13. H.—There is no mention of the three days. Heb. and Syr. also omit v. 16 to 24. C.

VER. 13. Name. Gr. "Blessed art thou O Lord, my God, and blessed the name of thy glory, holy and glorious for ever. May all thy works praise thee for ever." H.—As she prayed for a long time, the Vulg. gives some sentences; and the Gr. and Heb. others. Serar. Salien. M.

21 But this every one is sure of that worshipping thee, that his life, if it be under trial, shall be crowned: and if it be under tribulation, it shall be delivered: and if it be under correction, it shall be allowed to come to thy mercy.

22 For thou art not delighted in our being lost: because, after a storm thou makest a calm, and after tears and weeping thou pourest in joyfulness.

23 Be thy name, O God of Israel, blessed for ever.

24 At that time the prayers of them both were heard in the sight of the glory of the most high God:

25 And the holy angel of the Lord, Raphael, was sent to heal them both, whose prayers at one time were rehearsed in the sight of the Lord.

CHAP. IV.

Tobias thinking he shall die, giveth his son godly admonitions: and telleth him of money he had lent to a friend.

THEREFORE, "when Tobias thought that his prayer was heard that he might die, he called to him Tobias, his son,

2 And said to him: Hear, my son, the words of my mouth, and lay them as a foundation in thy heart.

3 When God shall take my soul, thou shalt bury my body: and thou shalt honour thy mother all the days of her life:

4 For thou must be mindful what and how great perils she suffered for thee in her womb.

5 And when she also shall have ended the time of her life, bury her by me.

6 And all the days of thy life have God in thy mind: and take heed thou never consent to sin, nor transgress the commandments of the Lord, our God.

7 "Give alms out of thy substance, and turn not away thy face from any poor person: for so it shall come to pass, that the face of the Lord shall not be turned from thee.

8 "According to thy ability be merciful.

9 If thou have much, give abundantly: if thou have little, take care even so to bestow willingly a little.

* Prov. iii. 9. Eccl. iv. 1. and xiv. 13. Luke xiv. 13.—d Eccl. xxxv. 12.

VER. 15. Earth. Holy men have thus desired to die, as was the case with Moses, Elias, Job, and S. Paul, provided God was willing. M.

VER. 16. Coveted, through impure love. Gr. "I am pure from all the sin of a man, and I have not defiled my name, nor the name of my father, in the land of our captivity. I am an only child," &c. H.—Lust: a very high encomium; which Sara mentions without vanity, placing her confidence in God. M. Prov. xx. 9.

VER. 17. Play, lasciviously, (M.) or dance. Hugo. Ex. xxxii. 1.

VER. 21. Crowned. Jam. i. 12.—Delivered from falling, (M.) and in due time from affliction. H.

VER. 25. Raphael, "the medicine of God." He is invoked not only for health, but also in journeys. C.—Both. Gr. and Heb. of Fagius add, "Tobit, by taking away the white film, and to give Sara . . for a wife to Tobias . . and to bind Asmodeus, the wicked devil; because Tobias was to have her. At the same hour, Tobit returning, entered his own house, and Sara . . descended from her upper room." H.—Lord, by the angel. Acts x. Apoc. v. W.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. When. Gr. and Heb. and the old Vulg. (C.) "That very day Tobit remembered the money which he had deposited with Gabael . . and said within himself, I begged for death; why do I not call Tobias, my son, that I may declare it to him before I die? And calling him, he said: Son, if I die, bury me, and despise not thy mother." H.—He gives him fourteen instructions, in imitation of Moses and David. 3 K. ii. W.

VER. 3. Life. S. Aug. (Conf. x. 34.) cries out, "O Light, which Tobias had in view, when these corporal eyes being closed, he taught his son the way of life."

VER. 5. By me. Gr. adds, "in the same sepulchre," like the patriarchs. Pope Leo decreed: statuimus unumquemque in sepulchro suorum majorum jacere.

VER. 7. Substance. Be not liberal of another's property. Gr. adds, "and let not thy eye be envious, when thou givest alms." Do it generously. C.—The same doctrine of the reward of good works, occurs Dan. iv. 24. W.

VER. 9. Little. God regards the affections more than the gift. C.

10 For thus thou storest up to thyself a good reward for the day of necessity.

11 ^aFor alms deliver from all sin, and from death, and will not suffer the soul to go into darkness.

12 Alms shall be a great confidence before the most high God, to all them that give it.

13 ^bTake heed to keep thyself, my son, from all fornication, and beside thy wife never endure to know a crime.

14 Never suffer pride to reign in thy mind, or in thy words: ^cfor from it all perdition took its beginning.

15 ^dIf any man hath done any work for thee, immediately pay him his hire, and let not the wages of thy hired servant stay with thee at all.

16 ^eSee thou never do to another what thou wouldst hate to have done to thee by another.

17 ^fEat thy bread with the hungry and the needy, and with thy garments cover the naked.

18 Lay out thy bread, and thy wine, upon the burial of a just man, and do not eat and drink thereof with the wicked.

19 Seek counsel always of a wise man.

20 Bless God at all times: and desire of him to direct thy ways, and that all thy counsels may abide in him.

21 I tell thee also, my son, that I lent ten talents of silver, while thou wast yet a child, to Gabelus, in Rages, a city of the Medes, and I have a note of his hand with me:

22 Now, therefore, inquire how thou mayst go to him, and receive of him the aforesaid sum of money, and restore to him the note of his hand.

23 Fear not, my son: we lead indeed a poor life, ^gbut we shall have many good things if we fear God, and depart from all sin, and do that which is good.

CHAP. V.

Young Tobias seeking a guide for his journey, the angel Raphael, in shape of a man, undertaketh this office.

THEN Tobias answered his father, and said: I will do all things, father, which thou hast commanded me.

2 But how I shall get this money, I cannot tell: he knoweth not me, and I know not him: what token shall I give him? nor did I ever know the way which leadeth thither.

^a Eccli. xxix. 15.—^b 1 Thes. iv. 8.—^c Gen. iii. 5.—^d Lev. xix. 13. Deut. xxiv. 14.

VER. 11. Sin, provided faith, &c. be not wanting. M.—When the Scripture seems to attribute salvation to one virtue, to faith, repentance, &c. it always presupposes that the heart is free from all mortal guilt. H.—Alms deeds may procure a fresh supply of graces. M.—Darkness, or hell, which is thus represented. Matt. viii. 12. and xxii. 13. Eph. vi. 12.

VER. 12. Give it, with true charity. 1 Cor. xiii. 3. C.

VER. 13. Crime, or any commerce with another. H.—Gr. and Heb. add, conformable to the law, (Ex. xxxiv. 16.) "And take not a strange woman, who may not be of thy father's tribe, as we are the sons of the prophets, Noe, &c. . . All these married from among their brethren, and were blessed in their children, and their seed shall inherit the land." H.

VER. 14. Perdition of the angels, of Adam, &c. C. Gen. iii. 5. M.

VER. 15. At all, after sunset. Deut. xxiv. 14.

VER. 16. Another. Behold the grand maxim of fraternal charity. Matt. viii. 12. Alex. Severus was so much pleased with it, that he had it often repeated by a herald, and inscribed on public edifices. What thou wouldst not have done to thee, do not thou to another. Lamprid.—Gr. and Heb. add a caution against drunkenness and drunken companions. Fagius has another against revenge; and the old Vulg. "give not way to wickedness."

VER. 17. Eat. Gr. "give." Naked. Gr. adds, "give in alms all thy superfluities, and let not thy eye repine," &c. as v. 7. H.

VER. 18. Burial, or sepulchre. See Bar. vi. 26. Eccli. vii. 37. and xxx. 18. The Jews followed this custom, which was common to the pagans, but from very different motives. The latter supposed that the souls fed on such meats. The Jews, and afterwards Christians, did it to feed the indigent, that they might pray for the deceased. These feasts were sometimes abused, and on that account forbidden by S. Ambrose, to whose authority S. Monica submitted. S.

3 Then his father answered him, and said: I have a note of his hand with me, which when thou shalt shew him, he will presently pay it.

4 But go now, and seek thee out some faithful man, to go with thee for his hire: that thou mayst receive it, while I yet live.

5 Then Tobias going forth, found a beautiful young man, standing girded, and as it were ready to walk.

6 And not knowing that he was an angel of God, he saluted him, and said: From whence art thou, good young man?

7 But he answered: Of the children of Israel. And Tobias said to him: Knowest thou the way that leadeth to the country of the Medes?

8 And he answered: I know it: and I have often walked through all the ways thereof, and I have abode with Gabelus, our brother, who dwelieth at Rages, a city of the Medes, which is situate in the mount of Ecbatana.

9 And Tobias said to him: Stay for me, I beseech thee, till I tell these same things to my father.

10 Then Tobias going in, told all these things to his father. Upon which his father being in admiration, desired that he would come in unto him.

11 So going in, he saluted him, and said: Joy be to thee always.

12 And Tobias said: What manner of joy shall be to me, who sit in darkness, and see not the light of heaven?

13 And the young man said to him: Be of good courage, thy cure from God is at hand.

14 And Tobias said to him: Canst thou conduct my son to Gabelus, at Rages, a city of the Medes? and when thou shalt return, I will pay thee thy hire.

15 And the angel said to him: I will conduct him thither, and bring him back to thee.

16 And Tobias said to him: I pray thee, tell me, of what family, or what tribe art thou?

17 And Raphael, the angel, answered: Dost thou seek the family of him thou hirest, or the hired servant himself, to go with thy son?

18 But lest I should make thee uneasy, I am Azarias, the son of the great Ananias.

^a Mat. vii. 12. Luke vi. 31.—^b Luke xiv. 18.—^c Rom. viii. 17.

Aug. Conf. vi. 3. See Const. Apost. viii. 24. C.—Just man, who may be supposed to have died in God's peace. H.—It is of no service to pray and give alms for the damned.—Wicked, so as to encourage their evil conduct. M.—Works of mercy extend to the dead. W.

VER. 20. Abide. Gr. "prosper," (M.) or "be directed. For every nation has not counsel: but this same Lord bestows all good things. And whosoever he will, he humbles, as he pleases. And now, my son, remember my commands, and let them not be effaced from thy heart. Now, also, I make known unto thee the ten talents of silver, which I deposited with Gabelus," &c. H.

VER. 21. And I. The Gr. &c. take no notice of this, (C.) nor of the following verse. H.—The virtuous dispose of their temporal effects by will, &c. W.

VER. 23. We lead. Gr. "if we grow poor. Thou hast much if thou fear," &c. CHAP. V. VER. 2. I cannot. Gr. "as I know him not; and he gave him the handwriting, and said to him: Seek," &c. H.—The Gr. &c. had not before noticed this token. C.—Hitherto Tobit had spoken in the first person. H.

VER. 5. Beautiful: resplendent with celestial majesty. C.—Gr. "he found Raphael, who was an angel, and he knew it not, and said to him: Canst thou go with me to Rages, of Media, and art thou acquainted with the places?" H.—This angel prefigured Jesus Christ, who took indeed our human nature. V. Bede. W.

VER. 7. Israel. This is not in Greek, &c. But the old Vulg. has, "Raphael answered, of the children of Israel, thy brethren, I am come hither for work," (H.) or employment. C.

VER. 8. Often. Gr. "lodged with Gabelus, our brother, and Tobias," &c.

VER. 11. He saluted. Gr. "they saluted each other." H.—The rest till v. 16. is omitted also in Syr. and Fagius. But the Heb. of Munster nearly agrees with the Vulg. C.

19 And Tobias answered: Thou art of a great family. But I pray thee be not angry that I desired to know thy family.

20 And the angel said to him: I will lead thy son safe, and bring him to thee again safe.

21 And Tobias answering, said: May you have a good journey, and God be with you in your way, and his angel accompany you.

22 Then all things being ready, that were to be carried in their journey, Tobias bid his father and his mother farewell, and they set out both together.

23 *And when they were departed, his mother began to weep, and to say: Thou hast taken the staff of our old age, and sent him away from us.

24 I wish the money for which thou hast sent him, had never been.

25 For our poverty was sufficient for us, that we might account it as riches, that we saw our son.

26 And Tobias said to her: Weep not, our son will arrive thither safe, and will return safe to us, and thy eyes shall see him.

27 For I believe that the good angel of God doth accompany him, and doth order all things well that are done about him, so that he shall return to us with joy.

28 At these words his mother ceased weeping, and held her peace.

CHAP. VI.

By the angel's advice, young Tobias taketh hold on a fish that assaulteth him. Reserveth the heart, the gall, and the liver, for medicines. They lodge at the house of Raguel, whose daughter, Sara, Tobias is to marry; she had before been married to seven husbands, who were all slain by a devil.

AND *Tobias went forward, and the dog followed him, and he lodged the first night by the river of Tigris.

* Infra x. 4.

VER. 18. But lest. Gr. Comp. "and Tobit said, brother, I wish to know thy race and thy name. But he replied, I am of the race of Azarias, and of Ananias, who is also thy brother." Whitaker would have this to be a lie. H.—But the apparitions of angels are not to be examined by the ordinary rules of life. They take the name of God without scruple, as they acted in his name. Gen. xxxi. 11. C. M. T.—Azarias. The angel took the form of Azarias; and therefore might call himself by the name of the man whom he personated. Azarias, in Hebrew, signifies the help of God; and Ananias, the grace of God. Ch.—Tobias had not inquired whether he was a man or an angel, as Houbigant answers the objection of Prideaux. H.—The "help and medicine of God" nearly correspond. W.

VER. 19. Thy family. Gr. Syr. &c. add, "Thou art my brother, of a noble and good race. For I know Ananias and Jonathan, sons of the great Semei, as we went together to Jerusalem to adore, carrying the first-born, and tithes of the produce; and they did not join in the error of their brethren. Thou art of a great stock, brother. But tell me what reward I shall give thee? A drachm a day, and what may be requisite for thee and for my son. And I will give more than the hire if you return in health. And they agreed; and he said to Tobias, Be in readiness for the journey, and may you be directed: and his son prepared the requisites for the journey," &c. H.

VER. 22. Then all. It was not easy to procure provisions on the road.—Together. Gr. and Syr. add, (C.) "and the dog of the child with them."

VER. 27. Angel. This was the persuasion of the ancient Hebrews, approved by the gospel. Mat. xviii. 10. Some of the fathers also believed that each person had an evil angel tempting him to sin. Orig. 8. Greg. Nya. Vit. Mosis. Casian. col. viii. 17. C.—But this opinion is discarded. H.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Dog. Gr. and Heb. specify this circumstance, (C. v. 22.) but not here. Those who attack the authority of this book, infer that such a trifle would not be noticed by the Holy Spirit. C. xi. 9. Yet Homer mentions the fawning of the dog upon Ulysses, after he had been 20 years from home; and the gravest historians record instances of the fidelity of dogs. C.—Night, or stage, mansion, (H.) at a caravansera, or house where travellers might stop all night, and sometimes, though seldom, might be supplied with necessities. Herodotus (v. 52.) mentions several in the kingdom of Persia. C.

VER. 2. Feet. Gr. "to bathe."—Fish. The learned are of opinion that this was the fish which Pliny calls callyonymus: (l. xxii. ch. 7.) the gall of which is of sovereign virtue to remove white specks that grow over the eyes. Ch.—Other fishes have the like virtue; and as the aforesaid has no scales, and is not above a foot long, it could not be lawfully eaten by the Israelites, nor could it suffice for ten days' provision, v. 6. Lev. xi. 10. Others, therefore, prefer (C.) the sea-eel, (Brado) the hippopotamus (Grot.) the crocodile, (Carthus.) whale,

2 And he went out to wash his feet, and behold a monstrous fish came up to devour him.

3 And Tobias being afraid of him, cried out with a loud voice, saying: Sir, he cometh upon me.

4 And the angel said to him: Take him by the gill, and draw him to thee. And when he had done so, he drew him out upon the land, and he began to pant before his feet.

5 Then the angel said to him: Take out the entrails of this fish, and lay up his heart, and his gall, and his liver, for thee: for these are necessary for useful medicines.

6 And when he had done so, he roasted the flesh thereof, and they took it with them in the way: the rest they salted, as much as might serve them, till they came to Rages, the city of the Medes.

7 Then Tobias asked the angel, and said to him: I beseech thee, brother Azarias, tell me what remedies are these things good for, which thou hast bid me keep of the fish?

8 And the angel answering, said to him: If thou put a little piece of its heart upon coals, the smoke thereof driveth away all kind of devils, either from man or from woman, so that they come no more to them.

9 And the gall is good for anointing the eyes, in which there is a white speck, and they shall be cured.

10 And Tobias said to him: Where wilt thou that we lodge?

11 And the angel answering, said: Here is one whose name is Raguel, a near kinsman of thy tribe, and he hath a daughter named Sara, which he hath no son nor any other daughter beside her.

b A. M. 3299.

(Theophylact.) sturgeon, or silurus. Bochart, Anim. iv. 15.—But there are great difficulties with respect to all these; and Fran. George adopts the sentiment of the Rabbins in favour of the pike, which seems the least objectionable, as it has scales, gills, and cannot live long out of water, v. 4. It grows to a great size in the Tigris, and its gall is good for the eyes. C.

VER. 3. And. This verse is not in Greek. Tobias and the fish were both in the water. C.

VER. 4. Take him. "It," would be as proper.—Gill. Gr. "Seize the fish, and the boy got the better of the fish, and threw it upon the land." H.—Heb. also omits the gill and the panting, (C.) circumstances which would invalidate the opinions of many respecting the nature of this fish, v. ii. H.

VER. 5. For thee. Gr. "carefully." H.—The rest is omitted also in the Heb. of Fagius. C.

VER. 6. Flesh. S. Paul uses the like expression, (1 Cor. xv.) as well as Pliny, ix. 15. W.—Took. Gr. and Fagius, (C.) "eat, and both went on till they came near to Ecbatana." H.—From Ninive to Rages would be 10 or 12 days journey. C.

VER. 7. Tell. Gr. "What is the heart, the liver, and the gall of the fish for?" H.

VER. 8. Its heart, &c. The liver, (v. 19.) God was pleased to give to these things a virtue against those proud spirits, to make them, who affected to be like the Most High, subject to such mean corporeal creatures, as instruments of his power. Ch.—God sometimes makes use of things as remedies which have, naturally, a different effect; as when Christ put clay on the eyes of the blind man. Jo. ix. The things which the angel ordered were salutary, by God's appointment. W.—They could not act directly upon a spirit: but they might upon the person troubled by one, as Saul was relieved by music. C. Diss.—The smoke was a sign of the devil's expulsion, and of the efficacy of prayer; or rather, God subjected the proud spirits to such weak elements. Serar. q. 3. M.—Gr. "and he said to him, respecting the heart and liver, if any demon or wicked spirit be troublesome, make these smoke before a man or a woman, and the person shall be troubled no longer.

VER. 9. Gall. This is generally allowed by physicians to be most excellent, particularly that of the callyonymus, and of the hyena, (Vales. Phil. 42. Gaen 10. M.) and silurus, &c. so that one objection of the adversaries of this book falls to the ground. Houbigant.

VER. 10. And. Gr. "But as they approached to Rages, the angel said to the young man: Brother, to-day we shall lodge with Raguel, and he is thy relation, and he has an only daughter, by name Sara: I will propose that she may be given to thee for a wife, because the inheritance belongs to thee, and thou art the only one of her kindred. The girl is beautiful and prudent. Now, there 12 "All his substance is due to thee, and thou must take her to wife.

13 Ask her, therefore, of her father, and he will give her thee to wife.

14 Then Tobias answered, and said: I hear that she hath been given to seven husbands, and they all died: moreover, I have heard, that a devil killed them.

15 Now I am afraid, lest the same thing should happen to me also: and whereas I am the only child of my parents, I should bring down their old age with sorrow to hell.

16 Then the angel, Raphael, said to him: Hear me, and I will shew thee who they are, over whom the devil can prevail.

17 For they who in such manner receive matrimony, as to shut out God from themselves, and from their mind, and to give themselves to their lust, as the horse and mule, which have not understanding, over them the devil hath power.

18 But thou, when thou shalt take her, go into the chamber, and for three days keep thyself continent from her, and give thyself to nothing else but to prayers with her.

19 And on that night lay the liver of the fish on the fire, and the devil shall be driven away.

20 But the second night thou shalt be admitted into the society of the holy patriarchs.

21 And the third night thou shalt obtain a blessing, that sound children may be born of you.

22 And when the third night is past, thou shalt take the virgin, with the fear of the Lord, moved rather for love of children than for lust, that in the seed of Abraham thou mayst obtain a blessing in children.

* Num. xxvii. 8. and xxxvi. 8.

fore, give ear to me, and I will speak to her father, and when we return from Rages, we will celebrate the nuptials. For I know Raguel, that he will not give her to another man, conformably to the law of Moses, or he will incur death; because thou art entitled to the inheritance before any other. Then," &c. v. 14. H.—The law regulated the marriages of heiresses, (Num. xxxvi. 8.) though not under pain of death. C.

VER. 14. Died. Gr. "were destroyed in the nuptial chamber, (νυμφῶν). And as I am my father's only son, I fear lest, approaching to her, I should die like the former; because a demon is in love with her, which hurts no one but such as approach to her. Now, therefore, I fear lest I should die, and bring down the life of my father and mother upon me to their grave." H.—If this text may be styled Scripture, it only records the opinion of Toby, (C.) or what he had "heard." H.—Many grave authors have been of the same persuasion, that devils could be enamoured with mortal beauties: (C.) talesque asseverant ut hoc negare impudentiæ esse videatur. S. Aug. de C. xv. 23. Delrio, Magic. 2.—But this opinion is now almost entirely abandoned. Many who have testified such things, may have experienced only some diabolical illusions. The devil could not love the beauty, nor the virtue of Sara. But he was permitted by God to exercise his malice against those who would have gratified their impure desires. C.—We may perhaps decide too peremptorily on the nature of devils, with which we are little acquainted. As they are susceptible of pride, anger, &c., why may they not also give way to some subtle kind of mental impurity? Houbigant.

VER. 15. To hell. That is, to the place where the souls were kept below, before the coming of Christ; (Ch.) as the just had not yet access to heaven. See Gen. xxxvii. W. Gr. adds, "and they have no other son to bury them."

VER. 16. Raphael. Gr. "said to him: Dost thou not remember that thy father ordered thee to take a wife of thy kindred? Now then hearken to me, brother; for she shall be thy wife. Mind not the devil. For this night she shall be given in marriage to thee; and if thou enter the nuptial chamber, thou shalt take the ashes of incense, and shalt place thereon some of the heart and liver," &c. v. 19. H.

VER. 17. Mule, which are very libidinous. Ps. xlii.—Power. Yet he is not always permitted to kill them, as God often allows them time for repentance, or suffers them to draw down heavier judgments. M.—"The devils can do no more than God secretly permits;" (S. Aug. de C. ii. 23.) and "God justly suffers the wicked to fall victims to their iniquitous appetites." S. Greg. mor. ii.

VER. 18. Days. No morality could be more pure. The Christian Church has given similar counsels, in the Capitulars of France, and of Erard, archbishop of Tours, and in many rituals published in the 16th century. The council of Trent only advises priests to approach to the sacraments of penance and the

CHAP. VII.

They are kindly entertained by Raguel. Tobias demandeth Sara to wife.

AND ^bthey went into Raguel, and Raguel received them with joy.

2 And Raguel looking upon Tobias, said to Anna, his wife: How like is this young man to my cousin?

3 And when he had spoken these words, he said: Whence are ye, young men, our brethren?

4 But they said: We are of the tribe of Nephthali, of the captivity of Ninive.

5 And Raguel said to them: Do you know Tobias, my brother? And they said: We know him.

6 And when he was speaking many good things of him, the angel said to Raguel: Tobias, concerning whom thou inquirest, is this young man's father.

7 And Raguel went to him, and kissed him with tears, and weeping upon his neck, said: A blessing be upon thee, my son, because thou art the son of a good and most virtuous man.

8 And Anna, his wife, and Sara, their daughter, wept.

9 And after they had spoken, Raguel commanded a sheep to be killed, and a feast to be prepared. And when he desired them to sit down to dinner,

10 Tobias said: I will not eat nor drink here this day, unless thou first grant me my petition, and promise to give me Sara, thy daughter.

11 Now when Raguel heard this, he was afraid, knowing what had happened to those seven husbands that went in unto her: and he began to fear, lest it might happen to him also in like manner: and as he was in suspense, and gave no answer to his petition,

12 The angel said to him: Be not afraid to give holy Eucharist, three days at least before marriage. The Greeks, in their third council of Carthage, (c. 18) order the first night to be spent in continence.

^b A. M. 3299.

VER. 19. Lay. Gr. adds, "some of the heart . . and make it smoke, and the devil shall smell, and flee away, and shall not return for ever." H.—This is contrary to reason, say our adversaries. But though devils be incorporeal, may they not be affected by certain bodies, as our souls are when our limbs are hurt? The angel chose this sort of usual exorcism, that those who were present might be convinced of the devil's departure. As the devils abuse the works of the creation, it was convenient that they should be punished by them; and as they submit to magical operations, they must feel the power of such exorcisms (Houbigant) as are authorized by God and his Church. H.

VER. 20. Society (copulations). He then obtained this blessing, though he knew not his wife till the fourth night. W.—His marriage resembled that of the patriarchs. C.—Gr. "But when thou shalt go to her, arise both, and cry to the merciful God, and he will save and have pity on you. Fear not, for she was prepared for thee from eternity; and thou shalt save her, and she shall go with thee; and I flatter myself that thou shalt have children of her. And as soon as Tobias heard this, he loved her, and his soul was much attached to her: and they arrived at Ecbatana." H.—Some may wonder that Tobias did not ask for the consent of his parents. But the angel reminded him of his father's injunctions, (C.) and spoke in such a manner, that he was convinced his counsel was from God. H.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Joy; though as yet he only took them for Israelites. M.—Gr. "And they came to the house of Raguel. But Sara met them, and saluted them, as they did her, and she introduced them into the house."

VER. 2. Anna. Gr. and Heb. Edna, "pleasure."—Cousin. Gr. adds, "Tobit." H.—It is not certain that they were cousin-germans. C.

VER. 5. My. Gr. "our brother. But they replied; We know him. And he said: Is he well? But they answered: He is both alive and in health. And Tobias said: He is my father."

VER. 7. Went. Gr. "leaped up."—A. Gr. "my good . . man. And hearing that Tobit had lost his sight, he was grieved, and wept."

VER. 9. After. Gr. "and they gave them a cordial reception. And they slew (sacrificed) a ram of the flock, and placed much food before them," (H.) to shew their regard. Gen. xviii. 6. C.—"But Tobias said to Raphael: Brother Azarias, mention what thou saidst to me on the road, and let the affair come to perfection. And he explained the matter to Raguel. And Raguel said: Eat and drink, and be merry. It behoveth thee to have my child. Yet I will lay the truth before thee. I gave my child to seven husbands, and when they entered in to her, they died the very night. For the present, therefore, be merry. And Tobias said: I will taste nothing here, till you produce and place her before" her to this man, for to him who feareth God, is thy daughter due to be his wife: therefore another could not have her.

13 Then Raguel said: I doubt not but God hath regarded my prayers and tears in his sight.

14 And I believe he hath therefore made you come to me, that this maid might be married to one of her own kindred, *according to the law of Moses: and now doubt not but I will give her to thee.

15 And taking the right hand of his daughter, he gave it into the right hand of Tobias, saying: The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, be with you, and may he join you together, and fulfil his blessing in you.

16 And taking paper, they made a writing of the marriage.

17 And afterwards they made merry, blessing God.

18 And Raguel called to him Anna, his wife, and bid her prepare another chamber.

19 And she brought Sara, her daughter, in thither, and she wept.

20 And she said to her: Be of good cheer, my daughter: the Lord of heaven give thee joy for the trouble thou hast undergone.

CHAP. VIII.

Tobias burneth part of the fish's liver, and Raphael bindeth the devil. Tobias and Sara pray.

AND ^bafter they had supped, they brought in the young man to her.

2 And Tobias, remembering the angel's word, took out of his bag part of the liver, and laid it upon burning coals.

3 Then the angel, Raphael, took the devil, and bound him in the desert of Upper Egypt.

4 Then Tobias exhorted the virgin, and said to her: Sara, arise, and let us pray to God to-day, and to-mor-

* Num. xxxvi. 6.

ma. And Raguel said: Take care of her henceforth, according to judgment: (H. or the law. C.) you are brother and sister. May then the merciful God grant you the greatest prosperity. And he called Sara, his daughter, and she came to her father: then taking her by the hand, he gave her, v. 15. H.—S. Ambrose (Off. iii. 14.) reads in the same manner, (C.) and commends the candour of Raguel in disclosing the truth, though it might have prevented his daughter from marrying; (W.) a case where people allow themselves (C.) too much liberty, in concealing defects. H.

VER. 14. Moses. It was not so much in force during the captivity, particularly as Raguel had only moveables; and therefore the seven former husbands had not been near relations. M.—It was a disgrace to refuse marrying a relation, who was an heiress. Num. xxxvi. 6. Ruth iv. 6. C.

VER. 15. Hand. This was the mode of confirming agreements, in Media. Alex. Genial v. 3.—The custom prevailed in marriages, (Lament. v. 6. Isai. lxii. 8.) as it does still among Christians.—H. Gr. "her for a wife to Tobias, and said: Behold: take care of her according to the law of Moses, and go to thy father. And he blessed them. And he called Edna, his wife, and taking a book, wrote a note, (H. or contract. C.) and sealed it, and they began to eat." H.—It was almost universally the custom to have such writings, particularly where polygamy prevailed. The wives of lower condition were taken without formality. C.

VER. 18. Chamber. Different from that where they kept the feast, and perhaps (H.) not the same with the nuptial chamber, which had been so unfortunate, in order that Sara might not be so much alarmed. C.

VER. 19. Wept, at the recollection of what had happened. M.

VER. 20. And she. Gr. adds, "received the tears of her daughter; and said, have confidence, child."—For the. Gr. "instead of this sorrow, have a good heart, daughter." H.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. To her, in the nuptial chamber. See Gen. xxix. 23.

VER. 2. Bag, (cassidili) resembling a wallet or pannier, for provisions. C.—Liver. C. vi. 8. This mystically represented the Passion of Christ, by which the devil is expelled from men's hearts. S. Aug. ser. 28, de Sanct. Prosper. promia. ii. c. 39. W.—Gr. "and he took the ashes of incense, and placed thereon the heart of the fish and the liver, causing them to smoke. And when the devil perceived the odour, he fled to the highest parts of Egypt, and the angel bound him," (H.) confining his malice to those deserts. Jesus Christ insinuates row, and the next day: because for these three nights we are joined to God: and when the third night is over, we will be in our own wedlock.

5 For we are the children of saints, and we must not be joined together like heathens that know not God.

6 So they both arose, and prayed earnestly both together that health might be given them.

7 And Tobias said: Lord God of our fathers, may the heavens and the earth, and the sea, and the fountains, and the rivers, and all thy creatures that are in them, bless thee.

8 *Thou madest Adam of the slime of the earth, and gavest him Eve for a helper.

9 And now, Lord, thou knowest, that not for fleshly lust do I take my sister to wife, but only for the love of posterity, in which thy name may be blessed for ever and ever.

10 Sara also said: Have mercy on us, O Lord, have mercy on us, and let us grow old both together in health.

11 And it came to pass about the cock crowing, Raguel ordered his servants to be called for, and they went with him together to dig a grave.

12 For he said: Lest, perhaps, it may have happened to him, in like manner as it did to the other seven husbands that went in unto her.

13 And when they had prepared the pit, Raguel went back to his wife, and said to her:

14 Send one of thy maids, and let her see if he be dead, that I may bury him before it be day.

15 So she sent one of her maid-servants, who went into the chamber, and found them safe and sound, sleeping both together.

16 And returning, she brought the good news: and Raguel, and Anna, his wife, blessed the Lord, that the devil walks through dry places. Mat. xii. 24. The angel was not seen to absent himself. C.—This country was chosen as being very remote from Media. Houbigant.—It was afterwards sanctified by the presence of many Christian solitaries. H.—Our adversaries laugh at this account. But surely Christ has used similar expressions of binding the devil, who cannot molest people, when he is not present; (Houbigant) or do any thing without the divine permission. C. vi. 17. H.

^b A. M. 3299.—^c Gen. ii. 7.

VER. 4. Then. Gr. "and when they were shut up together, Tobias ascended the bed, (alins, on which it was customary to sit, (H.) or rather according to the Rom. edition, he rose from the bed) and said, Arise, sister, and let us pray, that the Lord may take pity on us. And Tobias began to say," v. 7. H.—The rest is omitted. C.

VER. 7. Lord. Gr. "Blessed art thou, the God of our fathers, and blessed is thy name, holy and glorious for ever. May the heavens and all thy creatures bless thee." H.

VER. 8. Of. Gr. "And gavest him Eve for his wife, an assistant, and a support. From these all the seed of men was formed. Thou didst say, It is not good for man to be alone; Let us make for him a helper like unto himself. And now Lord," &c.

VER. 9. Only. Gr. "for truth," resolving to be ever faithful to her. H.—We cannot read the pure sentiments of Tobias and Sara, brought up in the midst of infidels, without surprise. Nothing more perfect could be required of Christians (C.) in the married state. H.—S. Aug. (Doct. x. and xviii.) adduces this text to shew the true intent of marriage.

VER. 10. And. Gr. "Order pity to be shewn me, and that I may grow old with this woman. And she said along with him, Amen. And they both slept the night," probably on separate beds, v. 15. H.

VER. 11. It. Gr. "Raguel arising, went and dug a grave, saying, lest this man also should die. Then Raguel came to his own house, and said to Edna, his wife."

VER. 14. Dead. Gr. "alive. But if not, that I may bury him and no body may know." The custom of burying too soon ought to be avoided, as many have thus been consigned to the tomb before they were really dead!

VER. 15. Together. In the same chamber, (H.) or with their clothes on. Serar. q. 21. The Vulg. specifies that the three first nights were to be spent in 17 And said: We bless thee, O Lord God of Israel, because it hath not happened as we suspected.

18 For thou hast shewn thy mercy to us, and hast shut out from us the enemy that persecuted us.

19 And thou hast taken pity upon two only children. Make them, O Lord, bless thee more fully: and to offer up to thee a sacrifice of thy praise, and of their health, that all nations may know, that thou alone art God in all the earth.

20 And immediately Raguel commanded his servants to fill up the pit they had made, before it was day.

21 And he spoke to his wife to make ready a feast, and prepare all kind of provisions that are necessary for such as go a journey.

22 He caused also two fat kine, and four wethers to be killed, and a banquet to be prepared for all his neighbours, and all his friends.

23 And Raguel adjured Tobias, to abide with him two weeks.

24 And of all things which Raguel possessed, he gave one half to Tobias, and made a writing, that the half that remained, should, after their decease, come also to Tobias.

CHAP. IX.

The angel, Raphael, goeth to Gabelus, receiveth the money, and bringeth him to the marriage.

THEN ^aTobias called the angel to him, whom he took to be a man, and said to him: Brother Azarias, I pray thee hearken to my words:

2 If I should give myself to be thy servant, I should not make a worthy return for thy care.

3 However, I beseech thee, to take with thee beasts and servants, and to go to Gabelus, to Rages, the city of the Medes: and to restore to him his note of hand, and receive of him the money, and desire him to come to my wedding.

4 For thou knowest that my father numbereth the days: and if I stay one day more, his soul will be afflicted.

5 And, indeed, thou seest how Raguel hath adjured me, whose adjuring I cannot despise.

6 Then Raphael took four of Raguel's servants, and continence. But the other versions are silent on this head. C.—Gr. "And the girl entered, having opened the door, and found the two sleeping; and going out, she told them that he was alive. And Raguel blessed," &c.

^a A. M. 3299.—^b A. M. 3299.

VER. 17. And. Gr. "saying, Blessed art thou, O God, in all pure and holy benediction; and may all thy saints, and all thy creatures, bless thee. Yea, may all thy angels, and thy elect, bless thee for all ages. Blessed art thou, because thou hast filled me with joy, and it has not happened as I suspected: but thou hast done unto us according to thy great mercy. And," v. 19.

VER. 19. Make. Gr. "Shew them mercy, Lord. Perfect their life in health, with gladness and mercy. But he ordered his domestics to fill up the grave, and he made them a marriage feast for fourteen days. And," v. 23. The ancient Vulg. seems rather more conformable to the present. "Raguel ordered his wife to make several loaves, and going himself to the flock, he brought two cows and four rams, and ordered them to prepare a feast. He called Tobias, and swore to him, saying, Thou shalt not depart hence these 14 days, but remain here eating and drinking with me, and shalt fill with joy me and my daughter, who has been greatly afflicted. Receive half of my goods, and thou shalt return safe and sound to thy father; and after my death, and that of my wife, thou shalt have the other half." H.—Gr. and Heb. mention nothing of the beasts slaughtered, or of Raguel's testament. C.

VER. 21. Journey. He expected that Tobias would proceed to Rages. M.

VER. 23. Adjured. Gr. "said to him before the two days of the marriage were accomplished, with an oath, that he should not depart till the 14 days of marriage were over; and then taking half of his goods, he might depart in health to his father, and receive the rest when I and my wife shall be no more." H.—Weeks. The usual term was doubled, (Gen. xxix. 27.) on account of the mercy shewn to Sara, and her marriage. M.

two camels, and went to Rages, the city of the Medes. and finding Gabelus, gave him his note of hand, and received of him all the money.

7 And he told him concerning Tobias, the son of Tobias, all that had been done: and made him come with him to the wedding.

8 And when he was come into Raguel's house, he found Tobias sitting at the table: and he leaped up, and they kissed each other: and Gabelus wept, and blessed God,

9 And said: The God of Israel bless thee, because thou art the son of a very good and just man, and that feareth God, and doth alms-deeds:

10 And may a blessing come upon thy wife, and upon your parents.

11 And may you see your children, and your children's children, unto the third and fourth generation: and may your seed be blessed by the God of Israel, who reigneth for ever and ever.

12 And when all had said, Amen; they went to the feast: but the marriage feast they celebrated, also, with the fear of the Lord.

CHAP. X.

The parents lament the long absence of their son, Tobias. He sets out to return.

BUT ^bas Tobias made longer stay upon occasion of the marriage, Tobias, his father, was solicitous, saying: Why, thinkest thou, doth my son tarry, or why is he detained there?

2 Is Gabelus dead, thinkest thou, and no man will pay him the money?

3 And he began to be exceedingly sad, both he and Anna, his wife, with him: and they began both to weep together: because their son did not return to them on the day appointed.

4 ^cBut his mother wept and was quite disconsolate, and said: Woe, woe is me, my son, why did we send thee to go to a strange country, the light of our eyes, the staff of our old age, the comfort of our life, the hope of our posterity?

5 We, having all things together in thee alone, ought not to have let thee go from us.

^c Supra v. 23.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. The angel. Gr. "Raphael, and said."—I pray. Gr. "Take with thee a servant and two camels," v. 6. H.

VER. 3. Rages. Tobias remained in the province of the same name. C. iii. 7. W.—And to. Gr. "Bring me the money and him to the marriage feast."

VER. 5. Whose. Gr. "that I should not go out, and my father," &c. v. 4 H.—Tobias finds out an expedient to shew his respect for God, his father, and his friend, (C.) without retarding the business for which he came.

VER. 6. And received. Gr. "But he produced the coffers sealed up, and gave him, and they set off early together, and came to the wedding, and Tobias blessed his wife," (H.) by removing the source of her disgrace. The Heb. of Pagnius is equally concise in this chapter, omitting all the rest. C.—Munster has only, "Raguel wept, embracing Tobias, and said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who has made thee (Sara) marry this man. May he, in his mercy, grant you male children, who may employ themselves in the law of the Lord."

VER. 12. Lord. Not giving too much way to pleasure, (H.) or gluttony, as Plato beautifully commends. Leg. vi. Serarius. W.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. But. Gr. "And Tobit, his father, counted each day; and as the days of the journey were ended, and they did not come, Tobit said, Is he not put to shame?" (H.) and refused payment! C.—Old Vulg. and Prot. "detained."

VER. 3. He. Gr. "He was much troubled. But his wife said to him, the boy is come to an untimely end, since he tarries; and she began to mourn for him, and said, I am not, or am I not full of solicitude, my son, that I have let thee go, the light of my eyes and Tobit?" v. 6. Without this interrogation, (H.) the Gr. seems to be corrupt; (C.) and de, "how," or de, "woe," should be put instead of de, "not." Drus. Grot. &c. "Now I care for nothing, my son, since I have let thee go, the light," &c. Prot.

6 And Tobias said to her: Hold thy peace, and be not troubled, our son is safe: that man with whom we sent him, is very trusty.

7 But she could by no means be comforted, but daily running out, looked round about, and went into all the ways by which there seemed any hope he might return, that she might, if possible, see him coming afar off.

8 But Raguel said to his son-in-law: Stay here, and I will send a messenger to Tobias, thy father, that thou art in health.

9 And Tobias said to him: I know that my father and mother now count the days, and their spirit is grievously afflicted within them.

10 And when Raguel had pressed Tobias with many words, and he by no means would hearken to him, he delivered Sara unto him, and half of all his substance in men-servants, and women-servants, in cattle, in camels, and in kine, and in much money, and sent him away safe and joyful from him,

11 Saying: The holy angel of the Lord be with you in your journey, and bring you through safe, and that you may find all things well about your parents, and my eyes may see your children before I die.

12 And the parents taking their daughter, kissed her, and let her go:

13 Admonishing her to honour her father and mother-in-law, to love her husband, to take care of the family, to govern the house, and to behave herself irreprehensibly.

CHAP. XI.

Tobias anointeth his father's eyes with the fish's gall, and he recovereth his sight.

AND "as they were returning they came to Charan, which is in the midway to Ninive, the eleventh day.

2 And the angel said: Brother Tobias, thou knowest how thou didst leave thy father.

• A. M. 3299.

VER. 6. That. Gr. "And she said to him, Be silent, deceive me not. My son is lost; and she went out daily into the road without, by which they departed. In the day time she eat no bread, and the night she spent in bewailing her son, Tobias, till the 14 days of the wedding were finished, which Raguel had adjured him to tarry there. And," v. 9. H.—Thus the converted Jews lament that Christ should so long abandon their nation, while some hope like Tobias, and others are in more suspense, like his wife. V. Bede.—So Catholics, in countries fallen into heresy, are in great distress for their brethren; (Rom. ix.) while some more confidently hope that God will enlighten our nation again, as sight was restored to old Tobias. W.

VER. 8. Raguel. Gr. "Tobias," as v. 9, which is transposed.

VER. 9. Days. It would require 42, (T.) or 38, (Torniel) or 34 days, (Salien. M.) to perform what is here recorded. H.—But it would be difficult to ascertain the precise time. To go from Ninive to Ecbatana would occupy eight or ten days. C.—If, therefore, the parents of Tobias expected that he would return in about 20 days, they might well wonder at the 14 days' delay occasioned by the marriage. The distance might prevent him from giving notice of this event. Gr. "Dismiss me, because my, &c. . . no longer hope to see me again. But his father-in-law replied, Stop with me," &c. v. 8. H.

VER. 10. When. Gr. "And Tobias said, No; but dismiss me to my father and mother. Then Raguel rising up, gave him Sarra, his wife, and half his goods, bodies, beasts, and silver." This expression, bodies, (H.) or men, generally denotes slaves; but it may also be put for others, (C.) who were in the train of Sara. Grot.—Safe. Gr. "with blessing, saying, May God prosper you, children, the God of heaven, before I die; and he said to his daughter, Honour thy father and mother-in-law, they are now thy parents. May I hear a good report of thee, and he kissed her; and Edna said to Tobias, dear brother, May the Lord of heaven re-establish thee, and grant me to behold thy children" by my daughter, Sarra, that I may rejoice before the Lord; and behold, I place my daughter with thee as a deposit, and thou must not grieve her. Afterwards she departed, and Toby also blessing God, and he made his journey prosperous, and blessed Raguel, and Edna, his wife." H.—The Jews still adopt many customs similar to those which we here behold, as this is a most excellent description of a holy marriage. Serarius. C.—Some also prevail in the Christian 3 If it please thee, therefore, let us go before, and let the family follow softly after us, together with thy wife, and with the beasts.

(304)

4 And as this their going pleased him, Raphael said to Tobias: Take with thee of the gall of the fish, for it will be necessary. So Tobias took some of that gall and departed.

5 But Anna sat beside the way daily, on the top of a hill, from whence she might see afar off.

6 And while she watched his coming from that place, she saw him afar off, and presently perceived it was her son coming: and returning, she told her husband, saying: Behold thy son cometh.

7 And Raphael said to Tobias: As soon as thou shalt come into thy house, forthwith adore the Lord, thy God: and giving thanks to him, go to thy father, and kiss him:

8 And immediately anoint his eyes with this gall of the fish, which thou carriest with thee. For be assured that his eyes shall be presently opened, and thy father shall see the light of heaven, and shall rejoice in the sight of thee.

9 Then the dog, which had been with them in the way, ran before, and coming as if he had brought the news, shewed his joy by his fawning and wagging his tail.

10 And his father, that was blind, rising up, began to run, stumbling with his feet: and giving a servant his hand, went to meet his son.

11 And receiving him, kissed him, as did also his wife, and they began to weep for joy.

12 And when they had adored God, and given him thanks, they sat down together.

13 Then Tobias taking of the gall of the fish, anointed his father's eyes.

14 And he stayed about half an hour: and a white skin began to come out of his eyes, like the skin of an egg.

Church, though marriage is now become more holy, and a sacrament. Cat. Rom. q. 22.—The proper intent of the contract, and many rites accompanying it, may be seen in the preceding chapters. W.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Charan. Not the residence of Abraham. Gen. xii. 4. Syr. reads, "Bazri," or "Carrac." Old Vulg. ibat Caracha, quæ est civitas in Ninive. Arrian places Carcha in Assyria, and Ptolemy mentions a Characa in Susiana.—Midway. At this rate, the distance from Ninive to Ecbatana would be 22 days' journey. But it is not half so much for a man travelling expeditiously. C.—Tobias had much luggage. Leaving it with his wife, (H.) he went from this city to Ninive in three or four days, v. 18. C.—Gr. "And he travelled on till he came near to Ninive. And Raphael said," &c.

VER. 3. If. Gr. "Let us go quickly before thy wife, and prepare the house." H.—This would be necessary, for the reception of so many goods, as well as to relieve the anxiety (C.) of the aged parents, and prevent surprise.

VER. 4. And. Gr. "Take now in thy hand the gall of the fish. And they went on. And the dog followed close up to them; (H. Syr. "ran before them." C.) and Anna."

VER. 6. Cometh. Gr. adds, "and the man who went with him."

VER. 7. To. Gr. "I know, Tobias, that thy father will open his eyes. Anoint, therefore, the gall upon his eyes, and feeling the smart, he will rub and remove the white specks, and shall see thee." H.—God. This laudable custom was observed by the ancient solitaries, and prescribed by the rule of S. Benedict, c. 53.

VER. 9. The dog, &c. This may seem a very minute circumstance to be recorded in sacred history; but, as we learn from our Saviour, (S. Matt. v. 18.) there are *iota*s and tittles in the word of God, that is to say, things that appear minute, but which have indeed a deep and mysterious meaning in them. Ch.—V. Bede. S. Jer. in Isai. lvi. S. Aug. con. Faust. xxii. 56. W.—The other versions relate this event, v. 4.

VER. 10. And. After v. 7, Gr. adds, "and Anna, running before, fell upon the neck of her son, and said to him, I have beheld thee, son; henceforth I may die. And they both wept. And Tobit went out towards the door, and he stumbled. But his son ran up to him, and took hold of his father and he spread the gall upon his father's eyes, saying, Have confidence, father. But as soon as 15 And Tobias took hold of it, and drew it from his eyes, and immediately he recovered his sight.

16 And they glorified God, both he and his wife, and all that knew him.

17 And Tobias said: I bless thee, O Lord, God of Israel, because thou hast chastised me, and thou hast saved me: and behold I see Tobias, my son.

18 And after seven days, Sara, his son's wife, and all the family, arrived safe, and the cattle, and the camels, and an abundance of money of his wife's: and that money, also, which he had received of Gabelus:

19 And he told his parents all the benefits of God, which he had done to him by the man that conducted him.

20 And Achior, and Nabath, the kinsmen of Tobias, came, rejoicing for Tobias, and congratulating with him for all the good things that God had done for him.

21 And for seven days they feasted and rejoiced, all with great joy.

CHAP. XII.

Raphael maketh himself known.

THEN ^aTobias called to him his son, and said to him: What can we give to this holy man that is come with thee?

2 Tobias answering, said to his father: Father, what wages shall we give him? or what can be worthy of his benefits?

3 He conducted me and brought me safe again, he received the money of Gabelus, he caused me to have my wife, and he chased from her the evil spirit, he gave joy to her parents, myself he delivered from being they began to smart, he rubbed his eyes, and the white specks came off like skins from the corners: and beholding his son, he fell upon his neck, and wept. Then he said," v. 17. H.

^a A. M. 3299.

VER. 14. Hour. This is not in the other versions. C.—It would intimate that the operation was natural. M.—Yet some think that the cure was too instantaneous; (Drusius) or that the miracle consisted in the revelation of a remedy, till then unknown. Serarius.—The effect seems to have been of the same nature as that produced by the heart, &c. C. vi. 8. W. C.—Estius believes that the optic nerve was entirely burnt. If the external coat of the eyes was only covered with a sort of skin, it might be removed by the gall of several fishes. C.—Callionymi fel cicatrices sanai & carnes oculorum supervacuas consumit. Pliny xxxii. 4. M.

VER. 17. Lord. Gr. "Blessed be God, and blessed be thy name for ever, and blessed be all thy holy angels; because thou hast scourged, and hast shewn mercy, and," &c.

VER. 18. Days. Or perhaps hours; (H.) as the other versions intimate that Sara arrived the same day. C.—Gr. "And his son entered, rejoicing, and related to his father the great things which had taken place in Media. And Tobit went out to meet his daughter-in-law, rejoicing, and blessing God, to the gate of Ninive. And those who saw him walking were astonished, because he saw. And Tobit confessed before them that God had taken pity on him. And as Tobit approached to Sara, his daughter-in-law, he blessed her, saying, Mayst thou come with safety, daughter. Blessed be God, who has brought thee to us, and blessed be thy father and thy mother. And there was joy among all his brethren at Ninive. And," v. 20. H.

VER. 20. Achior. Gr. "Achiachar," mentioned C. i. 24. This text insinuates that he was also styled Anael (H.) and Nasbas, and was the nephew of Tobit. Grot. C.—Gr. "And there came Achiachar, and Nasbas, his brother's son, and the wedding of Tobias was kept in joy for seven days." H.

VER. 21. Joy. Old Vulg. adds, "and many presents were made to him."

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. What. Gr. Heb. and Syr. C. "See thou give the man who has come with thee his hire, and something must be added to it;" (H.) as he had promised (C. vii. 19.) a drachm a day, (C.) and more if they returned safe. H.

VER. 2. Said. Gr. "Father, I shall not be hurt if I give him half of what have brought, since he has conducted me safe back to thee, and has healed my wife, and brought my money, and likewise has cured thee. And the old man said, he justly deserves it. And he called the angel, and said to him, Take half of what you have brought, and depart in health. Then," v. 6.

VER. 6. Said. Gr. "Calling the two, in private, he said to them."

VER. 7. Hide. Gr. "To bless God, and to extol his name, exposing with honour the words of God, and delay not to confess unto him. For," &c. H.—The Old Vulg. greatly abridges the remainder of this book, having only, "Then devoured by the fish, thee also he hath made to see the light of heaven, and we are filled with all good things through him. What can we give him sufficient for these things?

4 But I beseech thee, my father, to desire him, that he would vouchsafe to accept of one half of all things that have been brought.

5 So the father and the son calling him, took him aside: and began to desire him that he would vouchsafe to accept of half of all things that they had brought.

6 Then he said to them secretly: Bless ye the God of heaven, give glory to him in the sight of all that live, because he hath shewn his mercy to you.

7 For it is good to hide the secret of a king: but honourable to reveal and confess the works of God.

8 Prayer is good with fasting and alms, more than to lay up treasures of gold:

9 For alms delivereth from death, and the same is that which purgeth away sins, and maketh to find mercy and life everlasting.

10 But they that commit sin and iniquity, are enemies to their own soul.

11 I discover then the truth unto you, and I will not hide the secret from you.

12 When thou didst pray with tears, and didst bury the dead, and didst leave thy dinner, and hide the dead, by day, in thy house, and bury them by night, I offered thy prayer to the Lord.

13 And because thou wast acceptable to God, it was necessary that temptation should prove thee.

14 And now the Lord hath sent me to heal thee, and to deliver Sara, thy son's wife, from the devil.

Raphael having called the two Tobies, said to them, Since thou hast not delayed to arise, and to leave thy meals to bury the dead, I have been sent to try thee to heal thee, and to deliver thy daughter-in-law. I am Raphael, one of the angels who assist and appear before the brightness of God. Hereupon the two Tobies were startled, and fell prostrate on the ground, and were seized with fear. And Raphael said, Fear not, Peace be with you. Bless the Lord all the days of your life, and sing his praises. You thought that I eat when I was at table with you. But you saw with your eyes; (H. only a vision. C.) wherefore bless the Lord upon the earth, and praise his goodness. As for me, I return to him who sent me. Write down all that has happened. The angel having spoken thus to Tobias, the latter wrote this prayer as a monument of his joy, and said, Blessed be the Lord, who is great in eternity, because his reign endures for ever. It is He who strikes, and who shews mercy, who conducts to the grave, and who, by his majesty, rescues from the greatest miseries; and no one can withdraw himself from his hands. End of Tobias the just. H.—King. Secrecy is the soul of human councils, to prevent an enemy from thwarting our designs: but nothing can withstand the divine power. It is therefore proper to testify our gratitude for favours received, as the ancient saints have done by their canticles. C.

VER. 8. Alms. Gr. adds, "and justice. Better is a little with justice, than much with iniquity." H.—Fasting and alms are like the wings of prayer. W. See C. iv. 11.

VER. 9. Everlasting. This word is not found in Greek, though sufficiently implied; as liberality does not always secure a person's life, or temporal happiness. C.—Gr. "Those who perform alms-deeds and justice, shall be filled with life. But sinners are enemies," &c.

VER. 10. Soul. If this were understood of the present life, nothing could be less accurate, as the wicked often prosper. See Ps. x. 6. Jo. xii. 25. C.

VER. 11. I. Gr. "I will not hide from you any word or thing. I said then: It is good to conceal the mystery of the king, but glorious to manifest the works of God. And now, when thou and thy daughter-in-law, Sara, did pray, I brought forward the memorial of your prayer before the holy one." H.—The angels are represented as God's ministers, offering our prayers to him. Apoc. viii. 3. C. S. Aug. W.—Philo styles them ambassadors. Socrates says, "every demon (or good spirit) is between God and mortals." Plutarch.—Inter homines calicolasque, vectores hinc precum, inde donorum. Apuleius de Deo Socrate. C.—Gr. continues, "and when thou didst bury the dead, in like manner, I was present with thee; when thou didst not delay to rise and leave thy dinner, that going thou mightest cover the dead; in thy good work, thou wast not hidden from me: but I was with thee. And," &c. v. 14. H.

VER. 13. Thee. This rule is invariable, that the good may advance in virtue, and set a pattern to the world, (Heb. ii. 18. and xii. 6. Acts xiv. 21. C.) and cancel their smallest faults.

15 For I am the angel Raphael, one of the seven, who stand before the Lord.

16 And when they had heard these things, they were troubled, and being seized with fear, they fell upon the ground on their face.

17 And the angel said to them: Peace be to you, fear not.

18 For when I was with you, I was there by the will of God: bless ye him, and sing praises to him.

19 I seemed, indeed, to eat, and to drink with you: but I use an invisible meat and drink, which cannot be seen by men.

20 It is time, therefore, that I return to him that sent me: but bless ye God, and publish all his wonderful works.

21 And when he had said these things, he was taken from their sight, and they could see him no more.

22 Then they lying prostrate for three hours upon their face, blessed God: and rising up, they told all his wonderful works.

CHAP. XIII.

Tobias, the father, praiseth God, exhorting all Israel to do the same. Prophecieth the restoration and better state of Jerusalem.

AND *Tobias, the elder, opening his mouth, blessed the Lord, and said: Thou art great, O Lord, for ever, and thy kingdom is unto all ages:

2 *For thou scourgest, and thou savest: thou leadest down to hell, and bringest up again: and there is none that can escape thy hand.

3 Give glory to the Lord, ye children of Israel, and praise him in the sight of the Gentiles:

4 Because he hath therefore scattered you among

* A. M. 3299.—Deut. xxxii. 39.

VER. 14. From the devil, is not in Greek. H.—In this history, as well as in other parts of Scripture, we have convincing proofs of the good which each one receives from his angel guardian, and from the other blessed spirits. See S. Luke xv. and xvi. S. Chrys. in col. hem. 3. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xi. 31. &c. W.

VER. 15. Raphael. We know also the names of Michael and Gabriel. All others are apocryphal; such as Uriel, Sattiel, Jendriel, Barachiel, &c.—Seven. This number is clearly specified by S. John, Apoc. i. 4. A mass in their honour was approved by Pius IV. It is supposed that the seven deacons in the Church of Rome, and of Jerusalem, were instituted in imitation of them. The kings, Assuerus, &c. had seven chief officers. Est. i. 10. C.—Lord, ready to fulfil his orders, as innumerable other angels, of inferior degree, are likewise. M. Dan. vii. 10.—These were the princes of the heavenly court. S. Jerom (con. Jovin.) admits only seven orders of angels. C.—Gr. "I am Raphael, one of the seven holy angels who offer up the prayers of the saints, and go out before the glory of the Holy One. And they were both troubled," &c. (H.) at so unusual a thing, (M.) and filled with reverential awe. H.—They might also suspect that death would shortly follow. C. Gen. xvi. 13.

VER. 17. Be. Gr. "shall be with you. But praise God: for I came not of my own accord, but by the will of our God. Wherefore praise him for ever."

VER. 19. I. Gr. "I appeared to you all the days; yet I did not eat nor drink. But you beheld a vision." H.—Having an aerial body, he made the provisions disappear, as the sun melts snow. Gen. xviii. 9. C.—He might swallow, though he had no need of meat, (S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xiii. 22.) or digestion, (Grotius) so as to convert it into his substance. M.—Men. I constantly enjoy the beatific vision. Mat. xviii. 10. C.

VER. 20. R. Gr. "And now confess to God, because I ascend to him who sent me. Write ye all these occurrences in a book. And they arose, and beheld him no longer; and they proclaimed the great and wonderful works of God, and how the angel of the Lord had appeared to them." H.—Almost all interpreters infer from this injunction, (C.) that the work before us was originally composed by these holy men. H.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Tobias. Gr. "Tobit wrote a prayer for exultation, and said." H.

VER. 2. Hell; death. M.—Out of hell there is no redemption or return. H. 1 K. ii. 6.

VER. 4. Therefore, is not in Greek. H.—But God had the good of the Gentiles in view, that they might become acquainted with his law, and behold the conduct of his saints, Tobias, Esther, Daniel, &c. (C.) as well as to punish his people. H.—Temporal afflictions are sometimes for the spiritual good of others. W.—Gr. "because he has scattered you among them. There shew forth his grandeur, and extol him before every one living: for he is our Lord and God, our Father for ever. Yea, he hath chastised us in our iniquities, and the Gentiles, who know not him, that you may declare his wonderful works, and make them know that there is no other Almighty God besides him.

5 He hath chastised us for our iniquities: and he will save us for his own mercy.

6 See then what he hath done with us, and with fear and trembling give ye glory to him: and extol the eternal king of worlds in your works.

7 As for me, I will praise him in the land of my captivity: because he hath shewn his majesty toward a sinful nation.

8 Be converted, therefore, ye sinners, and do justice before God, believing that he will shew his mercy to you.

9 And I and my soul will rejoice in him.

10 Bless ye the Lord, all his elect, keep days of joy, and give glory to him.

11 Jerusalem, city of God, the Lord hath chastised thee for the works of thy hands.

12 Give glory to the Lord for thy good things, and bless the God eternal, that he may rebuild his tabernacle in thee, and may call back all the captives to thee, and thou mayst rejoice for ever and ever.

13 Thou shalt shine with a glorious light: and all the ends of the earth shall worship thee.

14 *Nations from afar shall come to thee: and shall bring gifts, and shall adore the Lord in thee, and shall esteem thy land as holy.

15 For they shall call upon the great name in thee.

16 They shall be cursed that shall despise thee: and they shall be condemned that shall blaspheme thee: and blessed shall they be that shall build thee up.

1 Kings ii. 6. Wisd. xvi. 13.—Isai. lx. 5.

again he will have mercy, and will gather us from all nations where he has scattered us, if ye be converted to him with all your heart, and with all your soul, to set sincerely. Then he will turn towards you, and will not hide his face from you, and ye shall behold what he will do with you, and ye shall confess to him with all your mouth, and bless the Lord of power, and extol the king of ages. 1. &c. v. 7. H.

VER. 5. Mercy. He can discover nothing in the sinner. C.

VER. 7. Nation; the Israelites, (M.) whom he has chastised. H.—Nineve was still flourishing. Yet the Greek seems to refer to the Assyrian idolaters, (C.) or to both. Gr. "and I shew his power and magnificence to a sinful nation. Who knows if he will love and shew his mercy to you? I exalt my God, and my soul magnifies the King of heaven, and shall gladly proclaim his greatness: let all speak and confess to him in justice."

VER. 11. Jerusalem. What is prophetically delivered here, and in the following chapter, with relation to Jerusalem, is partly to be understood of the rebuilding the city after the captivity, and partly of the spiritual Jerusalem, which is the Church of Christ, and the eternal Jerusalem in heaven. Ch.—It would seem that Jerusalem and the temple were now destroyed, which is contrary to chronology, as Manasses had not yet begun to reign, (C.) and Tobias died when he had been on the throne fifty-two years. Houbigant.—But the Greek shews that (C.) he speaks prophetically: (W.) "Jerusalem, holy city, He will chastise thee for the works of thy children, and again he will shew mercy on the children of the just. Confess to the Lord, for he is good; and bless the king of ages, that his tabernacle may be again rebuilt in thee, with joy." H.—The Heb. of Munster had only a few verses of this and the following chapter. C.

VER. 12. Call. Gr. "cause thy captives to rejoice in thee, and love in thee all the distressed unto eternity."

VER. 13. Thou. Gr. "Many nations from afar shall come to the name of the Lord God, with presents in their hands, presents for the king of heaven; race after race shall praise thee, and give exultation. They," &c. v. 16. H.—How many potent monarchs of Persia, Egypt, Rome, &c. honoured the temple of Jerusalem! How many wars have been carried on by Christian potentates, to rescue that favourite spot out of the hands of infidels! all out of respect for Christ. These priests are still better verified in his Church, to which the powers of the earth have submitted, (C.) esteeming it an honour and happiness to be members of this holy society. H.

VER. 14. Holy. This soil has been carried into distant countries, out of reverence, (4 K. v. 17. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. xxii. 8.) and has been honoured with miracles. S. Greg. Turon. i. 7.

VER. 16. Despise. Gr. "hate thee, and blessed shall be those who love thee for ever." H.

VER. 17. But. Gr. "rejoice, and exult for the children of the just, because 17 But thou shalt rejoice in thy children, because they shall all be blessed, and shall be gathered together to the Lord.

18 Blessed are all they that love thee, and that rejoice in thy peace.

19 My soul, bless thou the Lord, because the Lord, our God, hath delivered Jerusalem, his city, from all her troubles.

20 Happy shall I be if there shall remain of my seed, to see the glory of Jerusalem.

21 * The gates of Jerusalem shall be built of sapphire, and of emerald, and all the walls thereof round about of precious stones.

22 All its streets shall be paved with white and clean stones: and Alleluia shall be sung in its streets.

23 Blessed be the Lord, who hath exalted it, and may he reign over it for ever and ever, Amen.

CHAP. XIV.

Old Tobias dieth at the age of a hundred and two years, after exhorting his son and grandsons to piety, foreshewing that Ninive shall be destroyed, and Jerusalem rebuilt. The younger Tobias returneth with his family to Raguel, and dieth happily as he had lived.

AND the words of Tobias were ended. And after Tobias was restored to his sight, he lived two and forty years, and saw the children of his grandchildren.

2 And after he had lived a hundred and two years, he was buried honourably in Ninive.

3 For he was six and fifty years old when he lost the sight of his eyes, and sixty when he recovered it again.

4 And the rest of his life was in joy, and with

* Apoc. xxi. 18.—A. M. 3341,

they shall be gathered together, and shall bless the Lord of the just." H.—The people of God, in the old law, have often this title, as those of the new are styled saints. Both have a claim to this prediction. The Jews became more faithful after the captivity, so that the most cruel persecution of Epiphanes could not overcome their resolution; and the world was astonished at the courage of the martyrs, and the exemplary conduct of the primitive Christians. C.

VER. 18. Peace. Gr. adds, "blessed are those who have mourned on account of thy chastisements, because they shall rejoice, beholding all thy glory, and their joy shall endure for ever." H.

VER. 19. Thou. Gr. "God, the great king: For Jerusalem," &c. v. 21. H.—Troubles. This regards only the heavenly Jerusalem. W.

VER. 20. Seed. Hence it appears that Tobias did not speak of an approaching event, (C.) or at least he wished that his posterity might be set free.

VER. 21. Emerald. Gr. adds, "and precious stone: thy walls, and towers, and battlements, of pure gold. And the streets of Jerusalem shall be strewed with beryl and carbuncle, and stone from Souda." H.—This description resembles that of Isaiah, (liv. 11.) who lived a little before. S. John (Apoc. xxi. 10.) represents the church in the same ornaments, denoting the merits of Christ and the virtues of his saints. All are convinced that such expressions are not to be taken in the literal sense. C.

VER. 22. Alleluia. A sound of praise. S. Aug. (ep. 86.) means, "Praise ye the Lord (H.) with joy." W.—It is disused in times of penance. C.—Gr. adds, "and they shall praise, saying, Blessed be God, who has exalted it for ever."

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Words. Gr. "confession; (or hymn of praise) and he was 58 years old when he lost his sight, which he recovered eight years after, and gave alms, and continued to fear the Lord God, and to confess unto him. Now he arrived at a very advanced age," 158, v. 10. H.—But this chronology must be abandoned. All the versions disagree; and perhaps there may be none perfectly accurate. C.

VER. 2. Two. Arab. and Schol. History, read "twelve."

VER. 5. Seven. Gr. Compl. and Alex. as well as Fagius, have only "six."

VER. 6. The. Gr. "Son, take thy children. Behold, I am grown old, and my life is hastening to an end. Depart into Media, my son, for I believe all that the prophet, Jonas, spoke concerning Ninive, that it will be overturned. But in Media there will be more peace for a time, and that our brethren in the land will be scattered from the good land; and Jerusalem shall be deserted, and the house of God in it will be burnt, and shall be abandoned for a time; and they shall build the house, not like the former, till the times of the world or age be accomplished; and afterwards they shall return from the captives, and shall build Jerusalem gloriously; and the house of God shall be built in it, and the edifice shall be glorious for ever, as the prophets have spoken concerning it; and all the Gentiles shall turn truly to fear the Lord God, and shall undermine (and great increase of the fear of God he departed in peace.

5 And at the hour of his death he called unto him his son, Tobias, and his children, seven young men, his grandsons, and said to them:

6 The destruction of Ninive is at hand: for the word of the Lord must be fulfilled: *and our brethren, that are scattered abroad from the land of Israel, shall return to it.

7 And all the land thereof, that is desert, shall be filled with people, and the house of God which is burnt in it, shall again be rebuilt: and all that fear God shall return thither.

8 And the Gentiles shall leave their idols, and shall come into Jerusalem, and shall dwell in it,

9 And all the kings of the earth shall rejoice in it, adoring the King of Israel.

10 Hearken, therefore, my children, to your father: serve the Lord in truth, and seek to do the things that please him:

11 And command your children that they do justice and alms-deeds, and that they be mindful of God, and bless him at all times in truth, and with all their power.

12 And now, children, hear me, and do not stay here: but as soon as you shall bury your mother, by me, in one sepulchre, without delay direct your steps to depart hence:

13 For I see that its iniquity will bring it to destruction.

14 And it came to pass, that after the death of his mother, Tobias departed out of Ninive with his wife, destroy) their idols; and all the Gentiles shall bless the Lord," &c. v. 9. H.—This text is of importance, as it specifies the name of Jonas, and is quoted by S. Jerom; (ibid.) though Nahum (iii. 8.) and Sophonias (ii. 13.) also foretold the destruction of Ninive. It speaks of the future, and not of the past ruin, of the temple, which certainly took place after the death of Tobias. C.—The prophets, however, frequently speak of future events, as if they were past, to shew the certainty of their predictions. H.

A. C. 668.—1 Esdras iii. 8.

VER. 8. In it. Let the Jews shew when this was accomplished. We can easily point out the nations converted from idolatry to the Church of Christ, as the prophets foretold. Jer. iii. 17. and xvi. 18. C.—It cannot, therefore, be understood of the temporal Jerusalem. W.

VER. 9. And. Gr. "And his people shall confess to God, and the Lord shall exalt his people, and all shall rejoice who love the Lord God in truth and justice, shewing mercy to our brethren. And now, son, depart from Ninive; for what the prophet, Jonas, spoke, shall surely be accomplished." H.—This prediction was conditional, as was also the pardon of the people, who were justly punished for their relapse. M.

VER. 10. Seek with diligence, not barely doing what you are commanded. H.—Gr. is much more diffuse. C.—"But do thou keep the law and the ordinances, be a lover of alms-deeds, and just, that it may be well with thee. Bury me with decency, and thy mother with me, and tarry then no longer at Ninive. Son, behold what Aman (Syr. Acab.) did to Achiachar, who sed him, how he conducted him from light into darkness, and what return he made him. Now, Achiachar met with safety; but he received his due, and he went down into darkness. Manasses gave alms, and was rescued from the snare of death, which was laid for him: but Aman fell into the snare, and perished. And now, son, behold the effects of alms-deeds, and how justice brings deliverance. While he was speaking these things, his soul failed upon the bed: but he was 150 years old, and he buried him honourably." H.—The allusion to Aman seems improper, he lived many years after the captivity; (C.) or rather it may refer to some other history (Houbigant) with which we are not acquainted. H.

VER. 14. And. Gr. "And when Anna, his mother, was dead, he buried her with his father. But Tobias departed with his wife and sons to Ecbatana, to Raguel, his father-in-law, and lived to an honourable old age; and he buried honourably his father and mother-in-law, and he inherited their substance, as well as that of his father, Tobit." H.

VER. 15. Fifth. Including himself. He might see the offspring of his great-grandson, if he lived only 70 years after his marriage. C.

VER. 16. Nine. Syr. 107. C.—Gr. "But he also died at the age of 127, at Ecbatana, of Media; and he heard, before his death, of the destruction of Ninive, the citizens of which Nabuchodonosor and Assuerus led captives; and and children, and children's children, and returned to his father and mother-in-law.

15 And he found them in health in a good old age: and he took care of them, and he closed their eyes: and all the inheritance of Raguel's house came to him: and he saw his children's children, to the fifth generation.

he rejoiced over Ninive before he died." We have been more particular in giving the Greek text of this book, because some look upon it as an original; and we should wish to lose no particle of the word of God, which is more precious than gold. Tobias might applaud the execution of divine justice without any private resentment. H.—Ninive was taken by Nabuchodonosor, who acted for his father, Nabopolassar, with whom Astyages, king of the Medes, was leagued. They took the city in the reign of Chinaladan, or Sarac, A. 3378. It also fell a prey to its enemies, under Sardanapalus, A. 3257; as the inhabitants did not persevere in sentiments of repentance, which they had entertained at the preaching of Jonaa, in the reign of Phul. Hence God revealed its destruction to Tobias. C.—With joy, may refer to the surviving friends, who rejoiced interiorly at his felicity, while they wept for their own loss; or it may be understood of the deceased, who, like his father, (v. 4. C.) rejoiced in the Lord, and in performance of good works.

16 And after he had lived ninety-nine years in the fear of the Lord, with joy they buried him.

17 And all his kindred, and all his generation continued in good life, and in holy conversation, so that they were acceptable, both to God and to men, and to all that dwelt in the land.

VER. 17. Kindred. Behold the influence of good example; (H.) and a proof that the true religion failed not in Israel, much less in Juda, or the Church of Christ. W.—The virtues of these two holy men are truly deserving of applause and imitation. They thought and acted in perfect conformity with the gospel. The father might represent the old law, under all its inconveniences, while the son holds forth the light of Christ, and banishes the devil. C.

THE BOOK OF JUDITH.

The sacred writer of this Book is generally believed to be the high priest Eliachim, (called also Joachim.) The transactions herein related, most probably happened in his days, and in the reign of Manasses, after his repentance and return from captivity. It takes its name from that illustrious woman, by whose virtue and fortitude, armed with prayer, the children of Israel were preserved from the destruction threatened them by Holofernes and his great army. It finishes with her canticle of thanksgiving to God. Ch.—He was a chief officer at court, under Ezechias, (4 K. xviii. 18. H.) before he was high priest, assuming his father Helchias's name. Many suppose that he was the author of this Book, as Josephus informs us that the priests recorded the most remarkable transactions. But this would prove that they wrote all the histories of the Bible. S. Jerom (in Agg. i. 6.) seems to believe that Judith left these memoirs. Yet we have no certain proof of the author. Josephus passes over this history, as he professed to exhibit only the Heb. books. Ant. x. 11. Prol. &c. S. Jerom doubts not but this was written in Chaldee, from which language he translated it; unless he caused it to be first explained to him in Heb. as he did the Book of Tobias. C.—He might, however, have attained sufficient knowledge of the former language, which is so like the Heb. before he undertook this work. H.—He professes to give "the sense," rather than a verbal translation. The Greek must have been taken from another copy, and is followed by the Syriac, in which we find some passages more exact than in the present Greek copies. The original is entirely lost. It might have removed many difficulties. Those however which are started by our adversaries, are not unanswerable. Grotius would suppose that this work is only a parable, representing the state of the Jewish church under the persecution of Epiphanes. But this singular notion has no foundation; and if it had, the authenticity of the Book would not be endangered, as the parables both of the Old and New Testament are certainly true, and written by inspiration. C.—Luther styles it a poetical comedy; (Pref. et Sympos. 29.) but both Jews and Christians have esteemed it a true history: (W.) and this innovator (H.) allows, that "the Book is beautiful, and written by an inspired prophet." C.—The Fathers have looked upon it with the utmost veneration; and S. Jerom, though he was at one time under some doubts, placed it on a level with the Books of Ruth and Esther, &c. Ep. ad Principian.—It is admitted by Origen, Tertullian, S. Chrys. S. Hilary, V. Bede, &c. as the history of a most valiant matron, delivering God's people from a cruel tyrant. W.—Some place this event under Cambyces, son of Cyrus; (Euseb. S. Aug.) others under Xerxes, (Torniel) or Darius Hystaspes, (E.) or Ochus: (Sulp. Severus) but the opinion which has been given above is more accurate; (C.) or rather Bethulia was saved, while Manasses was in captivity, (in the 10th year of his reign) and the high priest administered affairs in his absence. At this period, Judith might be thirty-five years old. She lived seventy years afterwards; and many days (perhaps eight years more) passed before the country was invaded by Pharaoh Necho. C. xvi. 30. Thus Manasses survived 45 years, Amon 2, Josias 31; total, 78. This chronology removes every difficulty. Houbig. Pref.—If true, it seems probable that the work would be originally in Heb. as the Chaldee was used only after the captivity, (H.) which may be farther proved from C. i. 15. Greek. Houbigant.—Protestants prefer to translate this and the other apocrypha from the Greek. H.

CHAP. I.

Nabuchodonosor, king of the Assyrians, overcometh Arphaxad, king of the Medes.

NOW Arphaxad, king of the Medes, had brought many nations under his dominion, and he built a very strong city, which he called Ecbatana,

2 Of stones squared and hewed: he made the walls thereof seventy cubits broad, and thirty cubits high, and the towers thereof he made a hundred cubits high. But

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Now, refers to the internal purpose of the author. S. Greg. hom. 2. in Ezecl. W. Many of the books begin with And; shewing their connection. This work formed a part of the general history. The building of Ecbatana likewise took place soon after the destruction of Ninive, mentioned in the preceding book.—Arphaxad. He was probably the same as is called Dejoces by Herodotus; to whom he attributes the building of Ecbatana, the capital city of Media; (Ch.) or rather Arphaxad, more resembles both in name and actions the second king Phraortes, or Aprhaartas, (Montfaucon and Houbig.) who fortified and embellished the city. C.—Ecbatana, or Agbata, which in Arabic signifies "variegated;" (Bochart) as the seven walls, rising one higher than another round it, were marked with one white, two black, three red, four blue, five dark red, six silver, seven gold. Herodot. i. 98. C. See Tob. iii. 7.

VER. 2. Hewed. Gr. adds, "three cubits broad and six long." The ancients aimed at solidity in their architecture, as appears from their ruins. C.—High. Salien (A. 3345) thinks there is a transposition, and that the walls were 70 cubits high. M.—What need was there of such a breadth? Gr. allows 70 in height, and 50 in breadth which seems more proportionate. Old Vulg. has 60 cubits on the square of them, each side was extended the space of twenty feet.

3 And he made the gates thereof according to the height of the towers:

4 And he gloried as a mighty one in the force of his army, and in the glory of his chariots.

5 Now in the twelfth year* of his reign: Nabuchodonosor, king of the Assyrians, who reigned in Ninive,

* A. M. 3347, A. C. 657.

high, and 50 broad. On the walls of Ninive, three chariots might fight abreast, (C.) and six on those of Babylon. Ctesias.—Feet. Projecting from the wall, to remove an enemy. M.—Gr. "and the towers thereof he placed above the gates 100 cubits, and the foundation was 60 cubits broad. And he made the gates to rise 70 cubits, being 40 cubits in breadth, to send out the armies of his mighty men, and to draw up his infantry." H.

VER. 4. Gloried. Fool, this night wilt thou perish. Luke xii. 20. W.

VER. 5. Nabuchodonosor. Not the king of Babylon, who took and destroyed Jerusalem, but another of the same name, who reigned in Ninive; and is called by profane historians Saouduchin. He succeeded Asarhaddon in the kingdom of the Assyrians, and was contemporary with Manasses, king of Juda. Ch.—He might be the same with Asarhaddon, who resided at Ninive in the 20th year of his reign. After the defeat at Bethulia, the Medes recovered part of their power, under Cyaxares I. who was succeeded by Astyages and Cyaxares II. with whom Cyrus was associated in the empire. Xenophon.—Asarhaddon spent the latter years of his life at Babylon, of which he had made himself master. Houbigant.—The Jews frequently give names to foreign princes different from those by the great city, fought against Arphaxad, and overcame him,

6 In the great plain which is called Ragau, about the Euphrates, and the Tigris, and the Jadason, in the plain of Erioch, the king of the Elicians.

7 Then was the kingdom of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and his heart was elevated: and he sent to all that dwelt in Cilicia, and Damascus, and Libanus,

8 And to the nations that are in Carmelus, and Cedar, and to the inhabitants of Galilee, in the great plain of Esdreton,

9 And to all that were in Samaria, and beyond the river Jordan, even to Jerusalem, and all the land of Jesse, till you come to the borders of Ethiopia.

10 To all these, Nabuchodonosor, king of the Assyrians, sent messengers:

11 But they all, with one mind, refused, and sent them back empty, and rejected them without honour.

12 Then king Nabuchodonosor being angry against all that land, swore by his throne and kingdom, that he would revenge himself of all those countries.

CHAP. II.

Nabuchodonosor sendeth Holofernes to waste the countries of the west.

IN the thirteenth year of the reign of Nabuchodonosor, the two and twentieth day of the first month, the word was given out in the house of Nabuchodonosor, king of the Assyrians, that he would revenge himself.

2 And he called all the ancients, and all the governors, and his officers of war, and communicated to them the secret of his counsel:

3 And he said that his thoughts were to bring all the earth under his empire.

4 And when this saying pleased them all, Nabuchodonosor, the king, called Holofernes, the general of his armies,

5 And said to him: Go out against all the kingdoms of the west, and against them, especially, that despise my commandment.

• A. M. 3348.

which they are known in profane history. See Tob. ult. H.—Him. Gr. afterwards (v. 15) insinuates, that he prevented any from mounting the throne of Media, till this work was written, "he transfixed him with his darts, and destroyed him till this day." Houbigant.

VER. 6. Ragau, near Rages. Tob. i. 16. M.—Syr. "Dura," mentioned Dan. iii. 1. C.—Jadason, or Mount Jason, above the Caspian gates; (Strabo xi.) unless it may be the city Jassu, in Armenia. Gr. has "the Hydaspes," a river of India, though Curtius (v.) places it near Susa; confounding it with the Choaspes. —Elicians. Gr. "Elymeans," perhaps the same with Pontus. Heb. Ellasar. (Gen. xiv. 9. Various battles were fought during this war, which the Greek intimates lasted seven years. C.—That version also would represent these and various other nations coming to meet Nabuchodonosor, who hereupon sent his ambassadors to all in Persia, and westward to Cilicia, &c. As they were treated contemptuously, he swore that he would revenge himself. But first he attacked Arphaxad, took and sacked Ninive, slew the king, and then abandoned himself with his army to pleasure in the conquered city, "120 days." H.

VER. 8. Esdreton. Syr. "Jezebel," which is the usual name in Scripture. Joa. xvii. 16.

VER. 9. Jesse, or Gessen, where Joseph placed his brethren. Gen. xli. 34.

VER. 11. Refused. Gr. adds, "and did not come to help him in the war, because they feared him not, (H. supposing he would have enough to do with Arphaxad) as he was but like their equal, or as one man. C.

VER. 12. Countries. Those who were subject to him did wrong in refusing aid. But the Jews were under no such obligations; and God espoused their cause the more, as the king set up for a deity. C. iii. C.—He had at first entertained thoughts of universal dominion, (H.) being elated by his victory, like other conquerors.—Auferre, trucidare, rapere falsis nominibus imperium, atque ubi solitudinem faciunt, pacem appellant. Tacit. Agric.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Thirteenth. Gr. 18th.—Month. Nisan, in spring.

VER. 2. Secret. Lit. "mystery." Tob. xii. 7. C.—Abditos principis sensus acquirere illicitum. Tacit. An. vi.

VER. 8. Empire. "The thirst of empire and riches is an old and deep-rooted cause of making war." Sallust. Frag.—Gr. adds, "and they (counsellors) judged

6 Thy eye shall not spare any kingdom, and all the strong cities thou shalt bring under my yoke.

7 Then Holofernes called the captains, and officers of the power of the Assyrians: and he mustered men for the expedition, as the king commanded him, a hundred and twenty thousand fighting men on foot, and twelve thousand archers, horsemen.

8 And he made all his warlike preparations to go before with a multitude of innumerable camels, with all provisions sufficient for the armies in abundance, and herds of oxen, and flocks of sheep, without number.

9 He appointed corn to be prepared out of all Syria, in his passage.

10 But gold and silver he took out of the king's house in great abundance.

11 And he went forth, he and all the army, with the chariots, and horsemen, and archers, who covered the face of the earth, like locusts.

12 And when he had passed through the borders of the Assyrians, he came to the great mountains of Ange, which are on the left of Cilicia: and he went up to all their castles, and took all the strong places.

13 And he took, by assault, the renowned city of Melothus, and pillaged all the children of Tharsis, and the children of Ismahel, who were over-against the face of the desert, and on the south of the land of Cellon.

14 And he passed over the Euphrates, and came into Mesopotamia: and he forced all the stately cities that were there, from the torrent of Mambre, till one comes to the sea:

15 And he took the borders thereof, from Cilicia to the coasts of Japheth, which are towards the south.

16 And he carried away all the children of Madian, and stripped them of all their riches, and all that resisted him he slew with the edge of the sword.

17 And after these things he went down into the plains of Damascus in the days of the harvest, and he set all the corn on fire, and he caused all the trees and vineyards to be cut down:

that all flesh must be destroyed of those who had not complied with his order. H.—God laughs at the vain designs of men. C.

VER. 4. Armies. Gr. adds, "and the second after himself," in the kingdom M.—Cassaubon suspects that this drunkard was the king mentioned in history, as having lost the kingdom of Cappadocia, by attempting to introduce the dissolute feasts of Bacchus. Polyb. xxxii. ap. Athen. x. 11.—He made his attack first upon this country, v. 13.

VER. 5. Commandment. Gr. adds, he must demand "earth and water," as an acknowledgment of his dominion, and that all necessities of life be'longed to him. This custom prevailed in Persia. Herod. iv. 123. Polyb. xix. Brisson iii.

VER. 9. Syria: part of which, it seems, had submitted. C.—Gr. "and corn for every man, in abundance," (H.) for fear it should be carried off in the countries which he invaded. M.

VER. 11. Archers. Gr. adds, "a mixed multitude," not bearing arms. Ex. xii. 38.

VER. 12. When. Gr. "and they proceeded from Ninive, three days' journey, to the plain of Bektileth," or Bagdania, in Cappadocia, between Mount Argee and Taurus. Strabo (xii.) assures us that Argee is the highest mountain in the country, from which the two seas of Cilicia and the Euxine may be seen. C.

VER. 13. Melothus, or Melita, built by Semiramis, (Pliny vi. 3.) in the same country.—Tharsis, or Cilicia, peopled by the son of Javan.—Ismahel, on the Euphrates, east of the Desert Arabia.

VER. 14. Mambre. Gr. "Abrona, (C.) or Arbonai;" (H.) that is, from the river Chaboras to the Persian Gulph, or sea. C.

VER. 15. Japheth, or Joppe, now Jaffa. Serarius.—Gr. "he cut in pieces all who opposed him; and he came to the borders of Japheth, which are on the south, over-against Arabia."

VER. 16. Carried. Gr. "surrounded . . and burnt their tents, and plundered their folds for cattle;" πάσθας. H.—Madian lay to the east of the Dead Sea. C.

VER. 17. Harvest. The rapidity of his conquests was astonishing, as all this had been done in six or seven weeks, v. 1. But Holofernes probably sent his lieutenants into different parts at the same time. C.—Caused. Gr. "he burnt 18 And the fear of him fell upon all the inhabitants of the land.

CHAP. III.

Many submit themselves to Holofernes. He destroyeth their cities, and their gods, that Nabuchodonosor only might be called god.

THEN the kings and the princes of all the cities and provinces, of Syria, Mesopotamia, and Syria Sobal, and Lybia, and Cilicia, sent their ambassadors, who coming to Holofernes, said:

2 Let thy indignation towards us cease: for it is better for us to live and serve Nabuchodonosor, the great king, and be subject to thee, than to die and to perish, or suffer the miseries of slavery.

3 All our cities and our possessions, all mountains, and hills, and fields, and herds of oxen, and flocks of sheep, and goats, and horses, and camels, and all our goods, and families, are in thy sight:

4 Let all we have be subject to thy law.

5 Both we and our children are thy servants.

6 Come to us a peaceable lord, and use our service as it shall please thee.

7 Then he came down from the mountains with horsemen, in great power, and made himself master of every city, and all the inhabitants of the land.

8 And from all the cities he took auxiliaries, valiant men, and chosen for war.

9 And so great a fear lay upon all those provinces, that the inhabitants of all the cities, both princes and nobles, as well as the people, went out to meet him at his coming,

10 And received him with garlands, and lights, and dances, and timbrels, and flutes.

11 And though they did these things, they could not for all that mitigate the fierceness of his heart.

12 For he both destroyed their cities, and cut down their groves.

13 For Nabuchodonosor, the king, had commanded all their fields, and destroyed their flocks and herds, and plundered their cities, and put to the sword all their young men."

VER. 18. Land. Gr. adds, "on the sea-shore, in Sidon, . . . Ascalon," &c. H.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Kings. Gr. "they sent to him ambassadors, with proposals for peace, saying: Behold we, the servants of Nabuchodonosor, the great king, lay before thee; use us as thou thinkest best," &c. These proposals were made by those on the sea-coast, from Sidon and Tyre to Ascalon, from whom Holofernes took "the choicest men," being received with honour, v. 10. H.—Syria, &c. These are not specified in the Greek.—Sobal, or Soba, (1 K. xiv. 47.) near Damascus, where Ptolemy (v.) places Samoulis.—Lybia seems too remote, and had not been attacked: some therefore would read Lycia, or Lygia, (Herod. vii. 72.) or rather Lydia, (L.) which Holofernes had "cut in pieces," according to the Greek. C. ii. 13. H.

VER. 2. Great. This was his usual title. Dan. ii. 30. 4 K. xviii. 19. C.—Slavery. Yet they make an unconditional submission. H.—It is better for us to submit to servitude than to be slaughtered like our brethren. M.

VER. 3. Sight, at thy disposal. Gen. xiii. 9. Prov. xv. 11.

VER. 10. Lights. Torches were used to testify joy. 2 Mac. iv. 22.

VER. 11. Though. Gr. "He demolished all their borders, and cut down their groves."

VER. 13. Called. Gr. "Worshipped by all nations, and that all their tongues and tribes might call him god." H.—Behold to what lengths ambition may be carried. If he had only claimed a place among the other pagan deities, his title was as good as theirs. C.—He was a figure of Antichrist; for whom all heretics pave the way. 2 Thes. ii. W.

VER. 14. Apamea, on the river Orontes, between which and the river Eleutherus, lay the Mesopotamia here mentioned.—Idumeans, or to "Rama," near Gabaa, which was on the north of Jerusalem; whereas Idumea lay far to the south. C.—Yet (H.) Gabaa may designate a mountainous country, as 1 K. vii. 1. (M.) and there is no reason why Idumea might not have felt the power of Holofernes, as well as Madian, &c. H.—The order of conquests is not observed, (M.) for while the commander-in-chief was in one place, his generals were dispersed into different parts. He had now advanced as far as Gabaa of Saul, (H.) when meditating a serious attack upon Egypt, he thought proper to concentrate his forces; little expecting to meet with such a check at Bethulia. C.—Gr. "He came to Esdrelon, near Dotsia, (or Dothaim, north of Sichem) which is opposite (610) him to destroy all the gods of the earth, that he only might be called god by those nations which could be brought under him by the power of Holofernes.

14 And when he had passed through all Syria Sobal, and all Apamea, and all Mesopotamia, he came to the Idumeans, into the land of Gabaa, 15 And he took possession of their cities, and stayed there for thirty days, in which days he commanded all the troops of his army to be united.

CHAP. IV.

The children of Israel prepare themselves to resist Holofernes. They cry to the Lord for help.

THEN the children of Israel, who dwelt in the land of Juda, hearing these things, were exceedingly afraid of him.

2 Dread and horror seized upon their minds, lest he should do the same to Jerusalem, and to the temple of the Lord, that he had done to other cities, and their temples.

3 And they sent into all Samaria round about, as far as Jericho, and seized upon all the tops of the mountains:

4 And they compassed their towns with walls, and gathered together corn, for provision for war.

5 And Eliachim, the priest, wrote to all that were over-against Esdrelon, which faceth the great plain near Dothaim, and to all by whom there might be a passage of way, that they should take possession of the ascents of the mountains, by which there might be any way to Jerusalem, and should keep watch where the way was narrow between the mountains.

6 And the children of Israel did as the priest of the Lord, Eliachim, had appointed them.

7 And all the people cried to the Lord with great earnestness, and they humbled their souls in fastings, and prayers, both they and their wives.

8 And the priests put on hair-cloths, and they caused the great saw of Judea," or the range of mountains of Ephraim. C.—Old Vulg. "of Juda," dividing it from Idumea. The kings of Israel had fortified the defiles. 8 K. xv. 17

VER. 15. Took. Gr. "encamped between Gaba and Scythopolis, (Bethsan. Joa. xvii. 11.) and he was there a month of days, to collect all the burden of his army."

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Juda, whither those had retreated who had escaped the fury of the Assyrians, under Teghathphalassar, &c. H.

VER. 2. Temples. Surrendering would not secure these things; so that their very life and religion were at stake. Resistance, in other circumstances, would have been rashness. C.—Gr. adds, "because they were recently come up from captivity, and lately all the people had been collected out of Judea, and the vessels, and the altar, and the house, had been purified from profanation," (H.) to which they had been exposed under Manasses, (C. v. 23. C.) who with several of his subjects had been made prisoner, and was now at Babylon; or, if returned, (H.) was wholly taken up with the concerns of his soul, and committed the care of affairs to Eliachim. See Joseph. x. 4. 2 Par. xxxiii. 12. 16. C.

VER. 3. Samaria, though an enemy's country, as the danger was common. M.—Ezechias and Josias seemed to claim a right over the country. 2 Par. xxx. 1. &c. xxxiv. 6. and 83.

VER. 4. War. Gr. adds, "as the harvest was just ended."

VER. 5. Priest. Gr. "the great priest in Jerusalem, in those days, wrote to the inhabitants of Betouloua, (H. Bethulia, in the tribe of Simeon) and of Betemesthani, (Bethsames. C.) which is over-against Esdrelon, and the plain near Dothaim, giving orders to seize the mountainous ascents, by which there was a passage into Judea; and it was easy to stop their progress, as the passage was narrow, and would not admit above two men at once." This reminds us of the heroic resistance which Leonidas, with his 300 Spartans, made to the millions in the army of Xerxes, at Thermopylae. H.—It seems that Jews attempted to defend these defiles. They had received the orders before the enemy encamped near Scythopolis.

VER. 6. Them. Gr. adds, "and the senate of all the people of Israel, which sat at Jerusalem." Serarius thinks that Manasses was busy fortifying the city, and had committed the rest of the kingdom to Eliachim, (M. W.) who receives such high commendations. Isai. xxii. 20. C.—But it is more probable that he was at Babylon. Houbigant.

the little children to lie prostrate before the temple of the Lord, and the altar of the Lord they covered with hair-cloth.

9 And they cried to the Lord, the God of Israel, with one accord, that their children might not be made a prey, and their wives carried off, and their cities destroyed, and their holy things profaned, and that they might not be made a reproach to the Gentiles.

10 Then Eliachim, the high priest of the Lord, went about all Israel, and spoke to them,

11 Saying: Know ye that the Lord will hear your prayers, if you continue with perseverance in fastings and prayers, in the sight of the Lord.

12 Remember Moses, the servant of the Lord, who overcame Amalec, that trusted in his own strength, and in his power, and in his army, and in his shields, and in his chariots, and in his horsemen, not by fighting with the sword, but by holy prayers:

13 *So shall all the enemies of Israel be; if you persevere in this work which you have begun.

14 So they being moved by this exhortation of his, prayed to the Lord, and continued in the sight of the Lord.

15 So that even they who offered the holocausts to the Lord, offered the sacrifices to the Lord, girded with hair-cloths, and with ashes upon their head.

16 And they all begged of God, with all their heart, that he would visit his people, Israel.

CHAP. V.

Achior gives Holofernes an account of the people of Israel.

AND it was told Holofernes, the general of the army of the Assyrians, that the children of Israel prepared themselves to resist, and had shut up the ways of the mountains.

2 And he was transported with exceedingly great fury and indignation, and he called all the princes of Moab, and the leaders of Ammon,

3 And he said to them: Tell me what is this people that besetteth the mountains: or what are their cities, and of what sort, and how great: also what is their power, or what is their multitude: or who is the king over their warfare:

4 And why they, above all that dwell in the east,

* Exod. xvii. 12.—^b Gen. xi. 81.—^c Gen. xii. 1.

VER. 7. Wives. Gr. adds, "and their little ones, and beasts, and every sojourner, and hired servant and slave. They put sackcloth on their loins, and every man, woman, and child, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, fell prostrate before the temple, and sprinkled ashes on their heads." The very beasts were covered with sackcloth, to denote the general sorrow. H.

VER. 8. Priests. Gr. "and they spread their sackclothes before the Lord, and arrayed the altar with sackcloth." H.—This spectacle must have made impression on the most obdurate. C.

VER. 9. Off. Lit. "divided" from their husbands, (H.) or among the victors. M.—Gentiles. Gr. adds, "and God heard their petition, and rescued them from their affliction; and all the people fasted many days in all Judea and Jerusalem, before the sanctuary of the Lord all mighty; and the high priest, Joachim, and all the priests who stood before the Lord, and ministered to the Lord, having their loins girded with sackcloth, offered the accustomed holocaust and the vows and presents of the people, and ashes were upon their caps, and they cried to the Lord with their power, to look down graciously upon all the house of Jerusalem. And," C. v.

VER. 10. Israel, before the approach of the enemy. H. v. 5.

VER. 15. Clothes, conformably to the advice of Joel, i. 13. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Mountains. Gr. adds, "and had fortified every summit of a high mountain, and had placed scandals in the plains," obstructing the passage (H.) with ditches, trees, (C.) and snares of every description. H.

VER. 2. Ammon. Gr. adds, "and the satraps of the maritime country," (H.) the Philistines, who had submitted like the rest.

VER. 3. Them. Gr. adds, "Ye sons of Chanaan tell." He was not acquainted with their origin: the title belonged only to the Phœnicians, (C.) who might also be present. H.

have despised us, and have not come out to meet us, that they might receive us with peace?

5 Then Achior, captain of all the children of Ammon, answering, said: If thou vouchsafe, my lord, to hear, I will tell the truth in thy sight, concerning this people, that dwelleth in the mountains, and there shall not a false word come out of my mouth.

6 This people is of the offspring of the Chaldeans.

7 *They dwelt first in Mesopotamia, because they would not follow the gods of their fathers, who were in the land of the Chaldeans.

8 Wherefore, forsaking the ceremonies of their fathers, which consisted in the worship of many gods,

9 They worshipped one God of heaven, *who also commanded them to depart from thence, and to dwell in Charan. And when there was a famine over all the land, ^dthey went down into Egypt, and there for four hundred years were so multiplied, that the army of them could not be numbered.

10 And when the king of Egypt oppressed them, and made slaves of them, to labour in clay and brick, in the building of his cities, they cried to their Lord, and he struck the whole land of Egypt with divers plagues.

11 *And when the Egyptians had cast them out from them, and the plague had ceased from them, and they had a mind to take them again, and bring them back to their service,

12 *The God of heaven opened the sea to them in their flight, so that the waters were made to stand firm as a wall on either side, and they walked through the bottom of the sea, and passed it dry foot.

13 And when an innumerable army of the Egyptians pursued after them in that place, they were so overwhelmed with the waters, that there was not one left, to tell what had happened to posterity.

14 And after they came out of the Red Sea, they abode in the deserts of Mount Sina, in which never man could dwell, or son of man rested.

15 There bitter fountains were made sweet for them to drink, and for forty years they received food from heaven.

16 Wheresoever they went in without bow and ar-

^d Gen. xlv. 6.—^e Exod. xii. 38.—^f Exod. xiv. 29.

VER. 4. East. Gr. "west," which seems more accurate, unless Holofernes was on the sea-coast, (C.) or that part of the country went by this name, as it does at present. H.—He was not absolutely unacquainted with the Jews, but spoke in contempt, (v. 27. W. M.) and wished to know if they had formed a league with the Egyptians, &c. C.

VER. 5. My. Gr. "the mouth of thy slave." H.

VER. 6. Chaldeans. Abraham was a native of Ur. Gen. xii. C.—This tended to conciliate the favour of the general, who was of the same country. M.

VER. 9. Heaven. Gr. adds, "the God whom they had known, and they (the Chaldean idolaters) cast them out from the face of their gods, and they fled into Mesopotamia, and dwelt there many days: (H. that is, about two years. C.) and their God commanded them to leave their abode, and to go into the land of Chanaan; and they dwelt there, and were enriched; . . . and when," &c.—There. Gr. "and were there till they returned; and there they became innumerable." H.

VER. 10. Oppressed. Gr. "craftily inveigled them." Ex. i. 10.

VER. 11. Plague. Gr. adds, "for which there was no remedy, And the Egyptians cast them out from among them. And God dried up the Red Sea before them, and conducted them to Mount Sinai and Caldes-Bawee, and cast out all the inhabitants of the desert; and they dwelt in the land of the Amorrites, and exterminated all of Hesebon, by their power. Then crossing the Jordan, they took as their inheritance all the mountainous parts, and ejected the Chanaanite, Pherezite, Jebusite, Sichem, and all the Gergesites, and dwelt therein many days. And," v. 21. H.—The environs of Sichem belonged to the Benites. C.

VER. 14. Rested. This is attested, Deut. xxxii. 10. and Jer. ii. 6. M.

VER. 16. Overcame, in the days of Josue, (M.) at Jericho, &c. H.

row, and without shield and sword, their God fought for them, and overcame.

17 And there was no one that triumphed over this people, but when they departed from the worship of the Lord, their God.

18 But as often as, beside their own God, they worshipped any other, they were given to spoil, and to the sword, and to reproach.

19 And as often as they were penitent for having revolted from the worship of their God, the God of heaven gave them power to resist.

20 So they overthrew the king of the Chanaanites, and of the Jebusites, and of the Pherezites, and of the Hethites, and of the Hevites, and of the Amorrhites, and all the mighty ones in Hesebon, and they possessed their lands, and their cities:

21 And as long as they sinned not in the sight of their God, it was well with them: for their God hateth iniquity.

22 And even some years ago, when they had revolted from the way which God had given them, to walk therein, they were destroyed in battles by many nations, and very many of them were led away captive into a strange land.

23 But of late returning to the Lord, their God, from the different places wherein they were scattered, they are come together, and are gone up into all these mountains, and possess Jerusalem again, where their holies are.

24 Now, therefore, my lord, search if there be any iniquity of theirs in the sight of their God: let us go up to them, because their God will surely deliver them to thee, and they shall be brought under the yoke of thy power:

25 But if there be no offence of this people in the sight of their God, we cannot resist them, because their God will defend them: and we shall be a reproach to the whole earth.

26 And it came to pass, when Achior had ceased to speak these words, all the great men of Holofernes were angry, and they had a mind to kill him, saying to each other:

27 Who is this, that saith the children of Israel can resist king Nabuchodonosor, and his armies, men unarmed, and without force, and without skill in the art of war?

28 That Achior, therefore, may know that he deceiveth us, let us go up into the mountains: and when the bravest of them shall be taken, then shall he with them, be stabbed with the sword:

29 That every nation may know that Nabuchodonosor is god of the earth, and besides him there is no other.

CHAP. VI.

Holofernes, in great rage, sendeth Achior to Bethulia, there to be slain with the Israelites.

AND it came to pass, when they had left off speaking, that Holofernes, being in a violent passion, said to Achior:

2 Because thou hast prophesied unto us, saying, that the nation of Israel is defended by their God, to shew thee that there is no God, but Nabuchodonosor:

3 When we shall slay them all as one man, then thou also shalt die with them, by the sword of the Assyrians, and all Israel shall perish with thee:

4 And thou shalt find that Nabuchodonosor is lord of the whole earth: and then the sword of my soldiers shall pass through thy sides, and thou shalt be stabbed, and fall among the wounded of Israel, and thou shalt breathe no more till thou be destroyed with them.

5 But if thou think thy prophecy true, let not thy countenance sink, and let the paleness that is in thy face, depart from thee, if thou imaginest these, my words, cannot be accomplished.

6 And that thou mayst know that thou shalt experience these things, together with them, behold from this hour thou shalt be associated to their people, that when they shall receive the punishment they deserve from my sword, thou mayst fall under the same vengeance.

7 Then Holofernes commanded his servants to take Achior, and to lead him to Bethulia, and to deliver him into the hands of the children of Israel.

8 And the servants of Holofernes taking him, went through the plains: but when they came near the mountains, the slingers came out against them.

9 Then turning out of the way by the side of the

VER. 22. Battles. He seems to speak of the captivity of Manasses, (W.) of the ten tribes, and of the loss sustained by Achaz. 2 Par. xxviii. 5. M.—By many. Gr. "exceedingly; and they were led captive into a land which was not their own, and the temple of their God became as a pavement, and their cities were taken by the enemies. But now, returning to their God, they are come up from the places to which they had been scattered, and have possession of Jerusalem, where is their sanctuary; and they have inhabited the mountainous country, for it was a desert." H.—Our adversaries would infer from this, and similar passages, that the siege of Bethulia could not have taken place till after the captivity at Babylon; and this many Catholics allow. But the proof is not conclusive, as all this might be verified under Manasses: (C.) "the temple was trampled on," (Syr. tyawishn lis bapos) and profaned. See C. iv. 2. and 1 Mac. iii. 51. Luke xxi. 24. It had been pillaged by Seseac and the Assyrians, and had stood in need of great repairs under Ezechias, Josias, &c. Several of the Israelites had escaped from the hands of their oppressors, (2 Par. xxiv. 9.) and the Jews had regained their strength after the captivity of Manasses, (C.) having retired before into their strong holds in the deserts. H.

VER. 25. Cannot. Gr. "let my lord indeed pass by, lest their Lord should cover them by a shield, for their God is for them, and we," &c.

VER. 26. All the. Gr. "all the people round the tent murmured; and the great men of Holofernes, and all who dwelt in the maritime country, and in Moab, threatened to cut him to pieces. For we shall not fear the children of Israel. Lo! a people without power, strength, or army in battle array! We shall then go up, and they shall be for food to all thy army, lord Holofernes. And," C. vi.

VER. 27. Who. They speak thus through indignation, though they knew Achior well enough. W.—Their blasphemous presumption was soon punished. M.

VER. 28. Other. This foolish attempt was not peculiar to this king. The great Nabuchodonosor was infected with the same vanity, (Dan. vi. 7.) and was imitated by many of the Persian monarchs, and by Alexander. Persas non pietantum sed etiam prudenter Reges suos inter deos colere: Majestatem enim imperii salutis esse tutelam. Curtius viii. Yet most of the Greeks could not brook such flattery, though they were not influenced by religion, but by reason, and their own haughty temper. See Justin vi. Mart. x. 62.

CHAP. VI. VER. 1. Achior. Gr. adds, "before all the populace of the strangers." And who art thou, Achior, before all this company of foreigners, and the sons of Moab? and what are the mercenaries of Ephraim, that thou? v. 2.

VER. 2. To shew. Gr. "and who is God but Nabuchodonosor? He will," &c. H.—They allow the title to none but their king. Neither will God admit of any rival. W.—The generous advice of Achior was highly resented. Chari demus, who spoke with the like boldness to Darius, when Alexander approached, was even put to death, though the king repented when it was too late. Curt. iii. Diod. xiv.

VER. 6. People. Gr. "my slaves shall station thee on the mountainous country, and in one of the cities on the ascents, (of which thou hast so much spoken) and thou shalt not perish till thou perish with them. But if thou believest in thy heart that they will not be taken, let not thy countenance fall. I have spoken, and nothing that I have said shall be without effect."

VER. 7. Bethulia. Travellers, depending on the uncertain traditions of the country, generally place this fortress in the tribe of Zabulon, about three miles west of Tiberias. See Brocard. &c. But S. Jerom places it nearer Egypt; (Vita Hil.) and the Scripture speaks of Bethul, in the tribe of Simeon, (Jos. xix. 4.) to which Judith and the ancients belonged. Holofernes left his camp near Scythopolis, (C. vii. 1.) when he proceeded (C.) to attack the southern countries. H.

mountain. they tied Achior to a tree hand and foot, and so left him bound with ropes, and returned to their master.

10 And the children of Israel coming down from Bethulia, came to him. And loosing him, they brought him to Bethulia, and setting him in the midst of the people, asked him what was the matter, that the Assyrians had left him bound.

11 In those days the rulers there were Ozias, the son of Micha, of the tribe of Simeon, and Charmi, called also Gothoniel.

12 And Achior related in the midst of the ancients, and in the presence of all the people, all that he had said, being asked by Holofernes: and how the people of Holofernes would have killed him for this word,

13 And how Holofernes himself, being angry, had commanded him to be delivered for this cause to the Israelites: that when he should overcome the children of Israel, then he might command Achior also himself to be put to death by diverse torments, for having said: The God of heaven is their defender.

14 "And when Achior had declared all these things, all the people fell upon their faces, adoring the Lord, and all of them together, mourning and weeping, poured out their prayers with one accord to the Lord,

15 Saying: O Lord God of heaven and earth, behold their pride, and look on our low condition, and have regard to the face of thy saints, and shew that thou forsakest not them that trust on thee, and that thou humblest them that presume of themselves, and glory in their own strength.

16 So when their weeping was ended, and the people's prayer, in which they continued all the day, was concluded, they comforted Achior,

17 Saying: The God of our fathers, whose power thou hast set forth, will make this return to thee, that thou rather shalt see their destruction.

18 And when the Lord, our God, shall give this liberty to his servants, let God be with thee also in the midst of us: that as it shall please thee, so thou, with all thine, mayst converse with us.

19 Then Ozias, after the assembly was broken up, received him into his house, and made him a great supper.

20 And all the ancients were invited, and they refreshed themselves together after their fast was over.

* Supra v. 6.

VER. 11. And. Gr. adds, "Chabris, the son of Othoniel, and Charmis, the son of Melchiel." M.—The former is, in effect, mentioned C. viii. 9. C.

VER. 15. Pride. God will not fail to reward those who trust in him, (H.) and to humble the presumptuous. W.—Saints. Syr. "sanctuary." This version and the Greek have only, "Look upon the face of the persons (or things) sanctified unto thee on this day. And they consoled Achior, and praised him greatly. And Ozias took him from the assembly to his own house, and made a feast (lit. drinking) for the ancients, and they invoked the God of Israel to assist them during all that night." H.

VER. 18. With us, observing the true religion. M.

VER. 20. Over. The Jews eat nothing before night, and then no abstinence is prescribed, (C.) as the fast is at an end. H.

VER. 21. The church. That is, the synagogue or place where they met in prayer. Ch.—For such places were established, particularly after the captivity, though some have denied that there were any synagogues, even in the days of the Machabees. See Mat. iv. 23. Est. iv. 16. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 2. Twenty. Gr. seventy; Syr. sixty-two. C.—Two, &c. Gr. twelve, as above. C. ii. 7. M.—Syr. twenty two. Some of these texts must be inaccurate. C.—Yet the cavalry of Holofernes (H.) might be increased, since he began the war.—Taken. Syr. "servants and those who had joined them in great numbers."

21 And afterwards all the people were called together, and they prayed all the night long within the church, desiring help of the God of Israel.

CHAP. VII.

Holofernes besiegeth Bethulia. The distress of the besieged.

BUT Holofernes, on the next day, gave orders to his army, to go up against Bethulia.

2 Now there were in his troops a hundred and twenty thousand footmen, and two and twenty thousand horsemen, besides the preparations of those men who had been taken, and who had been brought away out of the provinces and cities, of all the youth.

3 All these prepared themselves together to fight against the children of Israel, and they came by the hill side to the top, which looketh towards Dothain, from the place which is called Belma, unto Chelmon, which is over-against Esdrelon.

4 But the children of Israel, when they saw the multitude of them, prostrated themselves upon the ground, putting ashes upon their heads, praying, with one accord, that the God of Israel would shew his mercy upon his people.

5 And taking their arms of war, they posted themselves at the places, which by a narrow path-way lead directly between the mountains, and they guarded them all day and night.

6 Now Holofernes, in going round about, found that the fountain which supplied them with water, run through an aqueduct without the city, on the south side: and he commanded their aqueduct to be cut off.

7 Nevertheless, there were springs not far from the walls, out of which they were seen secretly to draw water, to refresh themselves a little rather than to drink their fill.

8 But the children of Ammon, and Moab, came to Holofernes, saying: The children of Israel trust not in their spears, nor in their arrows, but the mountains are their defence, and the steep hills and precipices guard them.

9 Wherefore, that thou mayst overcome them without joining battle, set guards at the springs, that they may not draw water out of them, and thou shalt destroy them without sword, or at least being wearied out, they will yield up their city, which they suppose, because it is situate in the mountains, to be impregnable.

10 And these words pleased Holofernes, and his offi-

VER. 3. Hill side, on the coast of the Mediterranean, leaving the mountains of Ephraim, (C.) which were so strait, (H.) on the left, as well as Jerusalem, as he intended to go into Egypt. Bethulia alone opposed his progress. C. vi. 7.

VER. 4. Of them. Gr. adds, "were greatly afraid, and each one said to his neighbour: Now these will consume (Complut. shut up) the face of the earth, and neither the high mountains, nor the vales, nor the hills, will bear their weight. Then taking their arms, and lighting fires upon their towers, they kept guard all that night: but the second day, Holofernes brought out all his cavalry against the Israelites, in Bethulia, and he reconnoitred the ascent of their city, and came to the fountains of their waters, and took them; and leaving a guard of soldiers, he returned to his men," &c. v. 8. H.—The Syr. is also silent about the aqueduct and the small springs. C.—The servants of God first humble themselves, and then take arms, confiding in God. W.

VER. 6. An aqueduct: the fountain must therefore have been on a higher ground than the city, though the latter was on an eminence. C.—Yet water may be forced to ascend by pipes. H.

VER. 8. Children of. Gr. and Syr. "the chiefs of the sons of Esau," as Idumea had been conquered. C. iii. 14. They omit Ammon, and after Moab subjoin "the generals of the maritime countries," Tyrians and Philistines. H.

VER. 10. Spring. Gr. and Syr. intimate that the Ammonites and Moabites, with 5,000 Assyrian infantry, guarded the springs: the rest of the army, accord cers, and he placed all round about a hundred men at every spring.

11 And when they had kept this watch for full twenty days, the cisterns, and the reserve of waters, failed among all the inhabitants of Bethulia, so that there was not within the city enough to satisfy them, no not for one day, for water was daily given out to the people by measure.

12 Then all the men and women, young men, and children, gathering themselves together to Ozias, all together with one voice, 13 Said: "God be judge between us and thee, for thou hast done evil against us, in that thou wouldst not speak peaceably with the Assyrians, and for this cause God hath sold us into their hands.

14 And therefore there is no one to help us, while we are cast down before their eyes in thirst, and sad destruction.

15 And now, assemble ye all that are in the city, that we may, of our own accord, yield ourselves all up to the people of Holofernes.

16 For it is better that, being captives, we should live and bless the Lord, than that we should die, and be a reproach to all flesh, after we have seen our wives and our infants die before our eyes.

17 We call to witness this day heaven and earth, and the God of our fathers, who taketh vengeance upon us according to our sins, conjuring you to deliver now the city into the hand of the army of Holofernes, that our end may be short by the edge of the sword, which is made longer by the drought of thirst.

18 And when they had said these things, there was great weeping and lamentation of all in the assembly, and for many hours with one voice they cried to God, saying:

19 "We have sinned with our fathers, we have done unjustly, we have committed iniquity:

* Exod. v. 21.—Psal. cv. 6.

ing to the old Vulg. was stationed in the plain. Gr. and Syr. specify over-against Duthaim, which seems too remote; (C.) though such an immense army might cover a great part of the country, as all would not be necessary to besiege Bethulia; and it was agreed only to blockade the place, in order that no men might be lost, and the army might be ready to march against the more distant and powerful nations of Egypt. Another detachment was (H.) "southward, at Eerebel, (Syr. Ekarbat, probably Akrabin, the ascent of the scorpions) near Cush, (or Arabia) which is above the torrent Mochmur, (Syr. Peor, or Bezor, C.) and the rest of the army of the Assyrians encamped in the plain, and covered the face of the earth." H.

VER. 11. Days. Gr. "and all the collection of the Assyrians continued round them . . . thirty-four days." H.—Old Vulg. "twenty-four days." Syr. "two months and four days."—Measure. Gr. adds, "the infants, women, and young men fainted, and fell down dead." H.

VER. 13. Hands. We shall be treated as miserable slaves. C.

VER. 15. Assemble. Gr. "call them, and give up all the city to plunder to thee," &c.

VER. 17. Conjuring. Gr. "and the sins of our parents, that he may not treat us thus to-day," and deliver us up to death. H.

VER. 18. Saying. Gr. "And Ozias said to them: Take courage, brethren," v. 23. H.

VER. 23. Five. Sulpitius reads, fifteen. C.—But instead of decim, we should read denum. H.

VER. 25. Spoken. Gr. and Syr. add, "and he dispersed the people to their tents, and they went upon the walls and towers of the city, and sent their wives and children home. And they were under great humiliation in the city."

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Lox. Gr. "ox," &c. All the versions disagree, as the copyists have probably taken in part of v. 3 too soon, supposing that the genealogy of women was never given. S. Fulgentius (ep. ad Gallam) differs from all, giving the ancestors of Manasses as the same with those of Judith. C.—Simeon, the son of Ruben. In the Greek it is, the son of Israel. For Simeon, the patriarch, from whom Judith descended, was not the son, but the brother of Ruben. It seems more probable, that the Simeon and the Ruben here mentioned are not the patriarchs, but two of the descendants of the patriarch Simeon: and that the genealogy of Judith, recorded in this place, is not carried (614)

20 Have thou mercy on us, because thou art good, or punish our iniquities, by chastising us thyself, and deliver not them that trust in thee to a people that knoweth not thee,

21 That they may not say among the Gentiles: Where is their God?

22 And when, being wearied with these cries, and tired with these weepings, they held their peace,

23 Ozias, rising up all in tears, said: Be of good courage, my brethren, and let us wait these five days for mercy from the Lord.

24 For perhaps he will put a stop to his indignation, and will give glory to his own name.

25 But, if after five days be past, there come no aid, we will do the things which you have spoken.

CHAP. VIII.

The character of Judith: her discourse to the ancients.

NOW it came to pass, when Judith, a widow, had heard these words, who was the daughter of Merari, the son of Idox, the son of Joseph, the son of Ozias, the son of Elai, the son of Jamnor, the son of Gedeon, the son of Raphaim, the son of Achitob, the son of Melchias, the son of Enan, the son of Nathania, the son of Salathiel, the son of Simeon, the son of Ruben:

2 And her husband was Manasses, who died in the time of the barley-harvest:

3 For he was standing over them that bound sheaves in the field; and the heat came upon his head, and he died in Bethulia, his own city, and was buried there with his fathers.

4 And Judith, his relict, was a widow now three years and six months.

5 And she made herself a private chamber in the upper part of her house, in which she abode, shut up with her maids,

6 And she wore hair-cloth upon her loins, and fasted all the days of her life, except the sabbaths, and new moons, and the feasts of the house of Israel.

up so high as the patriarchs. No more than that of Eleana, the father of Samuel, (1 Kings i. 1.) and that of king Saul. 1 Kings ix. 1. Ch.—Others think that Judith descended from Ruben, by her father, and from Simeon, by her mother; (E.) or that, instead of son of Ruben, we should read "brother." But as we know that Judith calls Simeon her father, (C. ix. 2.) it is more likely that Ruben has been placed for Israel, as it is in Syr. S. Fulg. &c. This correction is maintained by Bellarmine, Salien, M. C.—Thus both Judith and her husband were of the same tribe, the former by Salathiel, the latter by Sarisadai. C.—Innumerable are the mistakes in the proper names, in Scripture. H.—Some of these might have had more than one. Gr. has Sarasadai, (Compl. "Saladai:" Alex. "Salasadai.") instead of Simeon, son of Israel: (C.) Alex. "Jeel," which is probably a contraction for Israel. H.

VER. 2. Who. Gr. adds, "of her tribe and family, and he died in the days," &c.

VER. 3. Died. Gr. "fell upon his couch; (Grabe adds, "and died in Bethulia, his own city,") and they buried him with his fathers, in the field between Duthaim and Balamo." H.—These places seem to be added without reason, as they were too remote from Bethulia. C.

VER. 4-5. Six. So the old Vulg. Gr. and Syr. have, four months.—Private. Gr. "a tent on the roof," that she might look towards Jerusalem, and pray with less distraction. Absalom lay in such a situation. 2 K. xvi. 22. C.—In sack. Gr. "and she put sackcloth," &c. v. 6. H.—It was a rough sort of garment. C.—Judith led a most religious life, in prayer, hair-cloth, and fasting, all the year, except on the festivals. W.

VER. 6. Loins. Gr. "and she had on the garments of her widowhood, and." H.—She laid these aside. C. x. ii. C.—Life. Gr. "widowhood, except the day before the sabbath, and the sabbaths, and the new moons, and feasts, and days of rejoicing of the house of Israel." H.—Syr. and old Vulg. omit, "the day before the sabbath;" and perhaps it may not have been in the original, the Greek translator having inserted it conformably to the practice of his times. It was then prescribed to abstain from fasting, that the joy of the festival might not be impaired, (Grot.) and because it would be necessary to taste what was made ready for the sabbath; (Skikard, Purim) or rather because, as the festival began on Friday, between the two vespers, or from three to six in the afternoon, during the equinoxes, the fast could not be rigorously observed on Friday. C.—New moons were days of rejoicing. M. 1 K. xx. 5.—The Jews kept two days

7 And she was exceedingly beautiful, and her husband left her great riches, and very many servants, and large possessions of herds of oxen, and flocks of sheep.

8 And she was greatly renowned among all, because she feared the Lord very much, neither was there any one that spoke an ill word of her.

9 When, therefore, she had heard that Ozias had promised that he would deliver up the city after the fifth day, she sent to the ancients, Chabri and Charmi.

10 And they came to her, and she said to them: What is this word, by which Ozias hath consented to give up the city to the Assyrians, if within five days there come no aid to us?

11 And who are you that tempt the Lord?

12 This is not a word that may draw down mercy, but rather that may stir up wrath, and enkindle indignation.

13 You have set a time for the mercy of the Lord, and you have appointed him a day, according to your pleasure.

14 But for as much as the Lord is patient, let us be penitent for this same thing, and with many tears let us beg his pardon:

15 For God will not threaten like man, nor be inflamed to anger like the son of man.

16 And therefore, let us humble our souls before him, and continuing in an humble spirit, in his service:

17 Let us ask the Lord with tears, that according to his will so he would shew his mercy to us: that as our heart is troubled by their pride, so also we may glory in our humility:

18 For we have not followed the sins of our fathers, who forsook their God, and worshipped strange gods.

19 For which crime, they were given up to their enemies, to the sword, and to pillage, and to confusion: but we know no other God but him.

20 Let us humbly wait for his consolation, and the Lord, our God, will require our blood of the afflictions of our enemies, and he will humble all the nations that shall rise up against us, and bring them to disgrace.

21 And now, brethren, as you are the ancients among the people of God, and their very soul resteth upon you: comfort their hearts by your speech, that they may be mindful how our fathers were tempted, that they might be proved, whether they worshipped their God truly.

22 *They must remember how our father, Abraham, was tempted, and being proved by many tribulations, was made the friend of God.

23 So Isaac, so Jacob, so Moses, and all that have pleased God, passed through many tribulations, remaining faithful.

24 But they that did not receive the trials with the fear of the Lord, but uttered their impatience, and the reproach of their murmuring, against the Lord, 25 ^bWere destroyed by the destroyer, and perished by serpents.

26 As for us, therefore, let us not revenge ourselves for these things which we suffer,

27 But esteeming these very punishments to be less than our sins deserve, let us believe that these scourges of the Lord, with which, like servants, we are chastised, have happened for our amendment, and not for our destruction.

28 And Ozias, and the ancients, said to her: All things which thou hast spoken are true, and there is nothing to be reprehended in thy words.

29 Now therefore pray for us, for thou art a holy woman, and one fearing God.

30 And Judith said to them: As you know that what I have been able to say, is of God:

31 So that which I intend to do, prove ye if it be of God, and pray that God may strengthen my design.

32 You shall stand at the gate this night, and I will go out with my maid-servant: and pray ye, that as you have said, in five days the Lord may look down upon his people, Israel.

* Gen. xxii. 1.

^b 1 Cor. x. 9.

together, for fear of missing the day on which the moon really appeared. Several feasts were also prescribed perhaps before this time, on the 1st and 22nd of Nisan, &c.

VER. 7. Ofozen. Gr. Syr. &c. add, "and fields, and she lived on them."

VER. 8. Her. "The reputation of chastity in women is tender, and, like a beautiful flower, presently withers at the least blast, and perishes; particularly when they are at an age prone to vice, and destitute of the authority of a husband, whose shadow is the safeguard to a wife." S. Jer. ad Salvirianum.—The Scripture could not give Judith a greater character. C.—How few can obtain it at present, though their virtue may be most pure, detraction is so keen! H.

VER. 9. When. Gr. and Syr. "and she heard of the evil discourses of the populace against the magistrate, as they lost courage on account of the scarcity of water; and Judith heard of all the words of Ozias to them, how he had sworn to them that he would deliver up the city to the Assyrians after five days. Then sending her maid, whom she had placed at the head of all her possessions, she called Ozias," &c. The following verses give the same sense as the Vulg. though in other words, and with some additional circumstances. H.

VER. 13. Pleasure. She blames the magistrates for taking a rash oath, pretending to fathom the designs of God, and to fix a time for him, and not attempting to make any resistance, though the welfare of the whole nation, and the sacred things, depended on their exertions. C.—They had been assured that God had heard their prayer, (C. iv. 9.) and had often witnessed a miraculous interference of Providence. In other circumstances (H.) the magistrates would not have been to blame, though Judith might think them so; (Serarius. See v. 26. M.) and, in effect, they ought rather to have died than thus to have exposed all to certain ruin. W.

VER. 15. Man. Gr. "But do not you govern the designs of the Lord, our God, for God is not to be menaced like man, nor forced to give an account like the son of man." H. Num. xxiii. 19.

VER. 18. For. Gr. "As there has not arisen in our families generations, nor is there at this day either tribe, or family, or populace, or city among us, adoring gods made with hands, as it happened in days past;" in the former part of the reign of Manasses. All had begun to open their eyes, at the sight of the dreadful catastrophe. H.

VER. 20. Let. Gr. "Wherefore we hope that he will not despise us, nor those of our race; nor, if we be taken, will Judea be so styled, our sacred things will be plundered. He will require his profanation at our mouth, &c. She shews the dreadful consequences which will ensue from the rash oath, and from such dastardly conduct under trial. H.

VER. 21. Brethren. Gr. adds, "Let us shew our brethren that their soul depends on us, and the holy things, and the house, (temple) and the altar, are supported by us." These were not therefore demolished. C. v. 22. H.—"Yea, let us give thanks, above all, to the Lord our God, who tries us like our fathers. Remember," &c.

VER. 23. Jacob. Gr. adds, "in Mesopotamia . . . because he does not take vengeance on us, as he made them pass through fire to examine their heart. But the Lord, for an admonition, chastises those who approach to him. And Ozias," v. 28. H.

VER. 25. Destroyer. As this word is not used elsewhere, (W.) S. Paul seems to allude to this passage, (1 Cor. x. 10.) as Judith does to various punishments (Num. xi. 1. and xiv. 12. and xx. 4. C.) inflicted by an angel. M.

VER. 26. Snuff, as if to shew our impatience (H.) and anger against God. M.

VER. 28. Words. Gr. adds, "for it is not to-day only that thy wisdom has appeared, but from thy earliest days all the people has known thy prudence, as the formation (H. Syr. the thought. C.) of thy heart is good. But the people was much oppressed with thirst, and they forced us to . . . take an oath, which we shall not break. Now," &c. H.—It hence appears that Judith was not very young; and as many desired to marry her, (C. ult. Gr.) we may conclude that she was of a middle age, or about thirty-five. Houbigant.

VER. 29. God. Gr. adds, "and the Lord will send rain to fill our reservoirs, and we shall faint no longer. And Judith replied: Hear me, and I will perform 33 But I desire that you search not into what I am doing; and till I bring you word, let nothing else be done but to pray for me to the Lord, our God.

34 And Ozias, the prince of Juda, said to her: Go in peace, and the Lord be with thee, to take revenge of our enemies. So, returning, they departed.

CHAP. IX.

Judith's prayer, to beg of God to fortify her in her undertaking.

AND when they were gone, Judith went into her oratory: and putting on hair-cloth, laid ashes on her head: and falling down prostrate before the Lord, she cried to the Lord, saying:

2 O Lord God of my father Simeon, *who gavest him a sword to execute vengeance against strangers, who had defiled by their uncleanness, and uncovered the virgin unto confusion:

3 And who gavest their wives to be made a prey, and their daughters into captivity: and all their spoils to be divided to thy servants, who were zealous with thy zeal: assist, I beseech thee, O Lord God, me, a widow.

4 For thou hast done the things of old, and hast devised one thing after another: and what thou hast designed, hath been done.

5 For all thy ways are prepared, and in thy providence thou hast placed thy judgments.

6 ^bLook upon the camp of the Assyrians now, as thou wast pleased to look upon the camp of the Egyptians, when they pursued armed after thy servants, trusting in their chariots, and in their horsemen, and in a multitude of warriors.

7 But thou lookedst over their camp, and darkness wearied them.

8 The deep held their feet, and the waters overwhelmed them.

9 So may it be with these also, O Lord, who trust in their multitude, and in their chariots, and in their pikes, and in their shields, and in their arrows, and glory in their spears,

* Gen. xxxiv. 26.—^b Exod. xiv. 9.

an action which shall come to the ears of all future generations of our race. You," &c. v. 32. H.—She did not tell what she was going to do. C.

VER. 32. Servant. Gr. ἄρρα, commonly (H.) denotes a maid of honour, (W.) or companion, though sometimes it is applied to people of loose morals. This servant had probably the administration of the affairs of her mistress, v. 9. C.—Pray. Gr. "as you . . . the Lord will by my hand look," &c.

VER. 33. And till. Gr. "for I shall not tell you, till what I am about be accomplished. And Ozias, with the princes, said to her."

VER. 34. Departed. Gr. adds, "from the tent to their respective stations."

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. Oratory. Of such our Saviour speaks, Matt. vi.; and Baronius at large. A. D. 298. W.—Gr. "But Judith fell prostrate, and sprinkled ashes upon her head, (Syr. adds, and tore her tunic) and uncovered the sackcloth which she had on. That evening the incense had just been offered, in the house of the Lord, at Jerusalem. And Judith cried aloud," &c.

VER. 2. Gavest him a sword, &c. The justice of God is here praised, in punishing by the sword of Simeon the crime of the Sichemites; and not the fact of Simeon, which was justly condemned by his father. Gen. xlix. 5. Though even with regard to this fact, we may distinguish between his zeal against the crime committed by the ravishers of his sister, which zeal may be considered just; and the manner of his punishing that crime, which was irregular and excessive. Ch.—The former is here commended. W. M.—Yet Simeon was not blameless. God put the sword into his hand as he makes use of tyrants; in which sense Nabuchodonosor is styled his servant. Jer. xxv. 9. Ezech. xxix. 18. Gen. xxxiv. 2. 25.

VER. 3. And. Gr. "For thou didst say: It shall not be so: and they did it because thou hadst given their princes unto slaughter, and their bed, which had perceived their deceit, unto blood; and thou didst slay the slaves with the princes, and the princes on their thrones; and thou gavest," &c. H.—This style seems rather poetical. Grot. C.

VER. 4. Of old. Gr. "before these, and these, and what followed, and is at present, and things to come, thou hast foreseen." All events depend on Thee.

10 And know not that thou art our God, who destroyest wars from the beginning, and the Lord is thy name.

11 Lift up thy arm as from the beginning, and crush their power with thy power: let their power fall in thy wrath, who promise themselves to violate thy sanctuary, and defile the dwelling-place of thy name, and to beat down with their sword the horn of thy altar.

12 Bring to pass, O Lord, that his pride may be cut off with his own sword.

13 Let him be caught in the net of his own eyes, in my regard, and do thou strike him by the graces of the words of my lips.

14 Give me constancy in my mind, that I may despise him: and fortitude, that I may overthrow him.

15 ^aFor this will be a glorious monument for thy name, when he shall fall by the hand of a woman.

16 For thy power, O Lord, is not in a multitude, nor is thy pleasure in the strength of horses, nor from the beginning have the proud been acceptable to thee: but the prayer of the humble and the meek hath always pleased thee.

17 O God of the heavens, creator of the waters, and Lord of the whole creation, hear me a poor wretch, making supplication to thee, and presuming of thy mercy.

18 Remember, O Lord, thy covenant, and put thou words in my mouth, and strengthen the resolution in my heart, that thy house may continue in thy holiness:

19 And all nations may acknowledge that thou art God, and there is no other besides thee.

CHAP. X.

Judith goeth out towards the camp, and is taken, and brought to Holofernes.

AND it came to pass, when she had ceased to cry to the Lord; that she rose from the place wherein she lay prostrate before the Lord.

2 And she called her maid, and going down into her house, she took off her hair-cloth, and put away the garments of her widowhood,

^c Judg. iv. 21. and v. 26.

"For the things which thou hadst decreed were at hand, and said: Behold, we are here." H.

VER. 5. Judgments. All is foreseen: nothing can resist the decrees of God. C.

VER. 6. As. Gr. speaks not of the Egyptians: "For behold the Assyrians are multiplied in their power, and exalted on account of their cavalry; they have boasted on the strong arm of the infantry, have trusted in their shield, and bow, and sling; and they have not known that thou art the Lord, making an end of wars: Thy name is Lord; break their force, by thy power," &c. v. 11. H.

VER. 7. Them, as they were not able to come to action during the night. Ex. xiv.

VER. 13. Lips, or with my endearing speeches. M.—She meant innocently to engage the affections of Holofernes, (H.) and prays that he may receive her in that manner, as he might have done without sin. But when he abused his free-will, God turned his sin to the good of others. See Ex. vii. 8. Aug. ser. 288. W.—Gr. "Give that power which I have devised to the hand of me, a widow. Strike the slave by the lips of my delusion, (or by my ensnaring words) with the prince; and the chief, with his minister, break their haughtiness by the hand of a female, v. 15. H.—This prayer seems contrary to sound morality, as well as the indiscreet conduct of Judith, in exposing herself to danger, though her intention was good. C.—But are not stratagems lawful in war? See 2 K. xv. Is it sinful for a woman to endeavour to captivate the heart? The situation might be dangerous, but it was not criminal; and Judith was certainly determined to yield to no dishonest proposals. God therefore approved of her designs, and enhanced her beauty. C. x. 4. H.

VER. 16. Horses. Gr. "the potent, but thou art the Lord of the bumble."

VER. 17. And. Gr. "give my word and deceit to be a wound and a scar to them, who, against thy covenant and sanctified house, and the summit of Sior . . . have devised cruel things, and do for all thy nation according to thy power and strength; for there is no other to shield Israel but Thou."

CHAP. X. VER. 2. House. Gr. adds, "where she spent the sabbath and festival days, she rolled up her," &c. H.—She remained in her oratory therefore only on other days. C.

1891

3 And she washed her body, and anointed herself with the best ointment, and plaited the hair of her head, and put a bonnet upon her head, and clothed herself with the garments of her gladness, and put sandals on her feet, and took her bracelets, and lilies, and earlets, and rings, and adorned herself with all her ornaments.

4 And the Lord also gave her more beauty: because all this dressing up did not proceed from sensuality, but from virtue: and therefore the Lord increased this her beauty, so that she appeared to all men's eyes incomparably lovely.

5 And she gave to her maid a bottle of wine to carry, and a vessel of oil, and parched corn, and dry figs, and bread and cheese, and went out.

6 And when they came to the gate of the city, they found Ozias, and the ancients of the city waiting.

7 And when they saw her they were astonished, and admired her beauty exceedingly.

8 But they asked her no question, only they let her pass, saying: The God of our fathers give thee grace, and may he strengthen all the counsel of thy heart with his power, that Jerusalem may glory in thee, and thy name may be in the number of the holy and just.

9 And they that were there said, all with one voice: So be it, so be it.

10 But Judith praying to the Lord, passed through the gates, she and her maid.

11 And it came to pass, when she went down the hill, about break of day, that the watchmen of the Assyrians met her, and stopped her, saying: Whence comest thou? or whither goest thou?

12 And she answered: I am a daughter of the Hebrews, and I am fled from them, because I knew they would be made a prey to you, because they despised you, and would not of their own accord yield themselves, that they might find mercy in your sight.

13 For this reason, I thought with myself, saying: I will go to the presence of the prince Holofernes, that I may tell him their secrets, and shew him by what way he may take them, without the loss of one man of his army.

14 And when the men had heard her words, they beheld her face, and their eyes were amazed, for they wondered exceedingly at her beauty.

15 And they said to her: Thou hast saved thy life by taking this resolution, to come down to our lord.

16 And be assured of this, that when thou shalt stand before him, he will treat thee well, and thou wilt be most acceptable to his heart. And they brought her to the tent of Holofernes, telling him of her.

17 And when she was come into his presence, forthwith Holofernes was caught by his eyes.

18 And his officers said to him: Who can despise the people of the Hebrews, who have such beautiful women that we should not think it worth our while for their sakes to fight against them?

19 And Judith, seeing Holofernes sitting under a canopy, which was woven of purple and gold, with emeralds and precious stones:

20 After she had looked on his face, bowed down to him, prostrating herself to the ground. And the servants of Holofernes lifted her up, by the command of their master.

CHAP. XI.

Judith's speech to Holofernes.

THEN Holofernes said to her: Be of good comfort, and fear not in thy heart: for I have never hurt a man that was willing to serve Nabuchodonosor the king.

2 And if thy people had not despised me, I would never have lifted up my spear against them.

VER. 3. Body. Compl. Gr. "mouth." But other editions seem more accurate. H.—Best. Gr. "thick," probably the myrobalanum of Pliny, xii. 21. and xiii. 1.—Bonnet, or mitre, tied with ribbands, hanging down behind, like those of bishops.—Sandals, highly ornamented, and worn by people of quality. C.—Lilies, pendent from the neck. Grot.

VER. 4. And. Gr. "and she was richly adorned, so that she might captivate (lit. deceive) the eyes of whatever men should behold her. And," v. 5. H.—The fathers highly extol her virtue, and she was, no doubt, actuated by the purest motives. Yet she might be guilty of some indiscretion. Even the working of miracles would not prove the contrary, as wicked priests may confer the sacraments; and Moses was reprehensible the moment (C.) before (H.) he wrought a miracle. Num. xx. 10. Mat. vii. 22. God inspired her with the laudable design of freeing her country, but the means were left to her own choice. C.—The making use of this rich attire was not, however, sinful in itself; and we have no right to suspect that Judith gave any way either to vanity or to sensuality. How many ladies of quality are dressed so as to enchant all those who are not upon their guard! Yet, provided they observe due modesty, who will blame their rich attire or perfumes? H.—Judith might lawfully desire to marry Holofernes for the good of her nation, (M.) as Esther became the wife of Assuerus, though an infidel. The general seemed even willing to become a convert. C. xi. 21. H.—God bore witness to the holy intention of Judith in adorning herself. W.

VER. 5. Bottle; made of leather, (C.) used for carrying wine. Pollux. M.—Corn. It was eaten either steeped in water or mixed with oil.—Cheese. So the Syr. reads. Gr. "pure loaves." C.—Why she took her provisions with her, she explains. C. xii. 2. M.

VER. 7. Her. Gr. adds, "with her countenance and robes changed."

VER. 8. But. Gr. 'And they said to her, May God, the God of'—With. Gr. "For the glory of the Israelites, and the exaltation of Jerusalem; and they adored God. And she said to them, Order the gate of the city to be opened for me, and I will go out to accomplish what you were talking about to me. And they commanded the young men to open for her; and they did so. But Judith and her maid went out. And the citizens looked at her while she descended the hill, till she had passed the valley, when they lost sight of her; and they passed along straight through the vale, and the advanced guard of" &c. H.—It appears that there was still day-light, (C.) or the moon shone brightly. H.

VER. 12. Because I knew, &c. In this and the following chapter, some things are related to have been said by Judith, which seem hard to reconcile with truth.

But all that is related in Scripture of the servants of God, is not approved by the Scripture: and even the saints in their enterprizes may sometimes slip into venial sins. Ch.—By means of mental reservations, we may exculpate her from lying. Serar. M.—But this expedient is bad and childish. H.—She might speak ironically, (Carnhus.) or prophetically. Raban. Glossa, &c.—Still it might be an untruth, (C.) to be excused, like stratagems in war. M.—How often does an enemy give out that he is going to march to some place, when he intends to go quite another way! H.—I knew. Gr. "Because they are about to be given up a prey to you. Therefore, I come to Holofernes, general in chief of your army, to inform him of the truth, and to shew," &c. H.—She spoke many things certainly true, and others which would probably have taken place, if God had not sent relief. W.

VER. 15. Lord. Gr. adds, "and now proceed to his tent, and some of us shall give thee into his hands. But if thou stand before him, let not thy heart fear, but tell him this, and he will treat thee well. And they selected 100 men, and surrounded her and her servant-maid, and conducted her to the tent of Holofernes. And they ran from all parts of the camp, as soon as her coming was made known, and they came round her as she stood without the tent of Holofernes, till they had told him of her. And they were astonished at her beauty, and at the Israelites, and said to each other, Who," &c. v. 18.

VER. 18. That we. Gr. "For it is not expedient to leave one man of them alive, lest they should delude all the earth." (Old Vulg. omits the negation.) "And all who slept near Holofernes, and all his servants, came out and introduced her into the tent;" (H. which was divided into two apartments. Heraclides) "and Holofernes was reposing on a bed in the canopy, (or inner room) which," &c. H.—The curtain was intended to keep off gnats. M. Anthony imitated this delicacy.

Interque signa (turpe!) militaria,

Sol aspiciit conopseum.—Hor. epod. ix. C.

VER. 20. After. Gr. "And they told him of her, and he came out to the forepart of the tent, and silver lamps preceded him, (H.) either for grandeur, as they did the kings of Persia and the emperors of Rome and of the Turks, or because it was still dark." C.—"But as soon as Judith came in sight of him and of his ministers, they all were astonished at the beauty of her face: and falling prostrate, she adored him, (with civil respect) and his servants lifted her up." H.—S. Fulgentius (ep. 2.) judges, with great probability, that Judith was not about 40 years old. W.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. King. Gr. adds, 'of all the earth.'

3 But now tell me, for what cause hast thou left them, and why it hath pleased thee to come to us?

4 And Judith said to him: Receive the words of thy handmaid, for if thou wilt follow the words of thy handmaid, the Lord will do with thee a perfect thing.

5 For as Nabuchodonosor, the king of the earth, liveth, and his power liveth, which is in thee for the chastising of all straying souls: not only men serve him through thee, but also the beasts of the field obey him.

6 For the industry of thy mind is spoken of among all nations, and it is told through the whole world, that thou only art excellent and mighty in all his kingdom, and thy discipline is cried up in all provinces.

7 *It is known, also, what Achior said, nor are we ignorant of what thou hast commanded to be done to him.

8 For it is certain that our God is so offended with sins, that he hath sent word by his prophets to the people, that he will deliver them up for their sins.

9 And because the children of Israel know they have offended their God, thy dread is upon them.

10 Moreover, also, a famine hath come upon them, and for drought of water they are already to be counted among the dead.

11 And they have a design even to kill their cattle, and to drink the blood of them.

12 And the consecrated things of the Lord, their God, which God forbade them to touch, in corn, wine, and oil, these have they purposed to make use of, and they design to consume the things which they ought not to touch with their hands: therefore, because they do these things, it is certain they will be given up to destruction.

13 And I, thy handmaid, knowing this, am fled from them, and the Lord hath sent me to tell thee these very things.

14 For I, thy handmaid, worship God even now that

* Supra v. 5.

VER. 3. Why. Gr. "And art come to us! For thou art come for thy own safety. Take courage, for thou shalt live this night and henceforth, as no one shall hurt thee, but shall do thee good, as the servants of my lord, Nabuchodonosor, the king, are treated."

VER. 4. Handmaid. Gr. adds, "and I will tell no untruth to my lord this night, for," &c.—Thing. Gr. adds, "and none of the projects of my lord shall fail." H.—All that Judith said was true in her sense, though the enemy did not understand her properly. So Josue lawfully entrapped the citizens of Hai. S. Aug. q. 10. in Jos. viii. W.

VER. 5. Liveth. She imitates Joseph, (Gen. xlii. 15.) and Eliseus; (4 K. ii. 1.) and speaks the truth, as the general had subjected many to his master. M.—Her speech was not superstitious, but shewed a civil respect. C.

VER. 7. To him. Gr. intimates that she advised him to follow his counsel. "For our nation is not punished with the sword, unless they sin against their God. But now let not my lord be at a loss what to do. For death has fallen upon them, and sin has taken possession of them, so that they have irritated God by their folly," &c. v. 10. This might also be true, though they had not fallen into idolatry (C viii. 18. 11.) at Bethulia. M.

VER. 8. Prophets. Though this had been threatened by the ancient prophets, still we cannot pretend to specify which she means. C.

VER. 10. Famine. They might have provisions, but they would be useless, on account of excessive thirst. M.

VER. 11. Drink. Gr. "and all that God had forbidden them to eat by his laws, (1.) without making any distinction between the clean and unclean. Grot.—Blood was prohibited even before the law. Gen. ix. 4. Lev. xvii. 14. C.

VER. 12. Oil. Gr. may explain this. "And the first-fruits of corn, and the tithes of wine and of oil, which they had reserved as sacred for the priests, standing in Jerusalem, before our God, they have decreed to consume; though none of the people ought so much as to touch these things. Yet they have sent to obtain permission of the senate at Jerusalem, where the people have done the like. And when they shall have obtained an answer, they will fall to work, and then they will be abandoned to be destroyed by thee." H.—She insinuates that her countrymen are in the utmost distress, and not much attached to religion; (C.) though in extreme want the distinction of meats is not to be enforced. H.

I am with thee, and thy handmaid will go out, and I will pray to God,

15 And he will tell me when he will repay them for their sins, and I will come and tell thee, so that I may bring thee through the midst of Jerusalem, and thou shalt have all the people of Israel, as sheep that have no shepherd, and there shall not so much as one dog bark against thee:

16 Because these things are told me by the providence of God.

17 And because God is angry with them, I am sent to tell these very things to thee.

18 And all these words pleased Holofernes, and his servants, and they admired her wisdom, and they said one to another:

19 There is not such another woman upon earth in look, in beauty, and in sense of words.

20 And Holofernes said to her: God hath done well who sent thee before the people, that thou mightest give them into our hands:

21 And because thy promise is good, if thy God shall do this for me, he shall also be my God, and thou shalt be great in the house of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shall be renowned through all the earth.

CHAP. XII.

Judith goeth out in the night to pray: she is invited to a banquet with Holofernes.

THEN he ordered that she should go in where his treasures were laid up, and bade her tarry there, and he appointed what should be given her from his own table.

2 And Judith answered him and said: Now I cannot eat of these things which thou commandest to be given me, lest sin come upon me: but I will eat of the things which I have brought.

3 And Holofernes said to her: If these things which thou hast brought with thee fail thee, what shall we do for thee?

4 And Judith said: As thy soul liveth, my lord, ligion; (C.) though in extreme want the distinction of meats is not to be enforced. H.

VER. 13. Tell. Gr. "To perform with thee a feat which will astonish all who shall hear these things. For thy handmaid is religious, and serveth the God of heaven day and night; and now my lord, I am," &c.

VER. 14. God. Gr. adds, "in the night, in the valley."

VER. 15. He will. Gr. "They shall have completed their sins."—Tell thee. Gr. adds, "and thou shalt go out with all thy forces, and none of them shall resist thee; and I will bring thee through Judea, over-against Jerusalem, and will place thy throne in the midst of it, and thou shalt drive them like sheep," &c.—Dog. This is proverbial. Ex. xi. 7. C.—All Israel was at rest after the death of Holofernes. Judith brought his head in triumph through the country. The promise of dominion (H.) was ironical. 3 K. xxii. 15. M.

VER. 16. God. Gr. "My foreknowledge; and I was sent to inform thee." H.—She flatters Holofernes with the idea that he is under the special care of heaven. C.

VER. 20. That. Gr. "To increase our strength, and to bring destruction on those who have despised my lord."

VER. 21. Because. Gr. "And now thou art comely in thy appearance, and good in thy discourse. If then thou perform what thou hast spoken, thy God shall," &c. H.—It is hardly probable that he spoke in earnest. Perhaps he did not know that the true God allowed of no other. Being captivated with Judith's beauty, and perceiving that she was attached to religion, he had a mind to remove all her objections to his person. C.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. And bade. Gr. "and ordered a bed (or table) to be prepared for her, to eat of his own meat, and drink of his wine," (H.) that her beauty might be enhanced, (Dan. i.) and to honour her. M.

VER. 2. Upon me, as these meats had been offered to idols; (W.) or she might fear they had, and wished to avoid all scandal. 2 Mac. vi. 21. Tob. i. 12. C.

VER. 3. Thee. Gr. adds, "for there is none of thy race."

VER. 4. Which I. Gr. "he."—Which. Gr. "and she slept till midnight, and she arose at the morning watch." H.—The mode of counting by hours, prevailed after the captivity. C.

thy handmaid shall not spend all these things till God do by my hand that which I have proposed. And his servants brought her into the tent which he had commanded.

5 And when she was going in, she desired that she might have liberty to go out, at night, and before day, to prayer, and to beseech the Lord.

6 And he commanded his chamberlains that she might go out and in, to adore her God as she pleased, for three days.

7 And she went out in the nights into the valley of Bethulia, and washed herself in a fountain of water.

8 And as she came up, she prayed to the Lord, the God of Israel, that he would direct her way to the deliverance of his people.

9 And going in, she remained pure in the tent, until she took her own meat in the evening.

10 And it came to pass on the fourth day, that Holofernes made a supper for his servants, and said to Vagao, his eunuch: Go, and persuade that Hebrew woman, to consent of her own accord to dwell with me.

11 For it is looked upon shameful among the Assyrians, if a woman mock a man, by doing so as to pass free from him.

12 Then Vagao went in to Judith, and said: Let not my good maid be afraid to go in to my lord, that she may be honoured before his face, that she may eat with him, and drink wine, and be merry.

13 And Judith answered him: Who am I, that I should gainsay my lord?

14 All that shall be good and best before his eyes, I will do. And whatsoever shall please him, that shall be best to me all the days of my life.

15 And she arose and dressed herself out with her garments, and going in, she stood before his face.

16 And the heart of Holofernes was smitten, for he was burning with the desire of her.

17 And Holofernes said to her: Drink now, and sit down and be merry; for thou hast found favour before me.

18 And Judith said: I will drink, my lord, because my life is magnified, this day, above all my days.

19 And she took, and eat and drank before him, what her maid had prepared for her.

20 And Holofernes was made merry on her occasion, and drank exceedingly much wine, so much as he had never drunk in his life.

CHAP. XIII.

Judith cutteth off the head of Holofernes, and returneth to Bethulia.

AND when it was grown late, his servants made haste to their lodgings, and Vagao shut the chamber-doors, and went his way.

2 And they were all over-charged with wine:

3 And Judith was alone in the chamber.

4 But Holofernes lay on his bed, fast asleep, being exceedingly drunk.

5 And Judith spoke to her maid to stand without before the chamber, and to watch:

6 And Judith stood before the bed, praying with tears, and the motion of her lips in silence,

7 Saying: Strengthen me, O Lord, God of Israel, and in this hour look on the works of my hands, that as thou hast promised, thou mayst raise up Jerusalem, thy city: and that I may bring to pass that which I have purposed, having a belief that it might be done by thee.

8 And when she had said this, she went to the pillar that was at his bed's head, and loosed his sword that hung tied upon it.

9 And when she had drawn it out, she took him by the hair of his head, and said: Strengthen me, O Lord God, at this hour.

10 And she struck twice upon his neck, and cut off his head, and took off his canopy from the pillars, and rolled away his headless body.

11 And after a while she went out, and delivered

VER. 5. And. Gr. "and she sent to Holofernes, saying: May my lord please to order that thy handmaid may go out to pray. And," &c. v. 6. II.—She had prepared him to grant this request before: but out of civility, and that he may have greater confidence in her, she asks again. The choice of a retired place for prayer is very commendable, but she made choice of the fields, that she might go out of the camp afterwards without being suspected. C.

VER. 6. Chamberlains. Gr. "life-guards, not to hinder her; and she remained in the camp three days." H.

VER. 7. Water. Gr. "in the camp;" perhaps she washed only her hands and face. C.

VER. 9. Pure, from forbidden food. W.—Evening. Thus she continued to fast, to draw down the blessing of God. C.

VER. 10. Servants. Gr. adds, "only, and he did not call any of those whom he usually employed," (H.) that they might not witness his excesses. Vagao, or Bagoas, the Persian name for an "eunuch," or chief officer; though such were generally to wait on the ladies.

Quem penes est Dominam servandi cura Bagoæ. Ovid, Amor. ii. —Eunuch. Gr. and Syr. add, "who was appointed over all his affairs. Persuade the Hebrew woman who is with thee to come to us, and to eat and drink with us. For we deem it shameful to dismiss such a woman, without having commerce with her; and if we do not attract her, she will deride us."

VER. 12. Merry. This would pave the way for greater liberties. C.—Gr. adds, "and to become this day as a daughter of the Assyrians, standing to wait in the house of Nabuchodonosor." He probably alludes to those courtizans (C.) who sung at night, before the palace, &c. Athen. Dip. xii. 2. The Persians admitted women to their feasts, though they were generally excluded in the East. Est. i. 12. Herod. v. 18.

VER. 14. Best. Gr. "a boast, or matter of exultation." II.—This answer seems to shock our delicacy. Did she not understand the meaning of the eunuch, which was sufficiently plain? She only passed a compliment, which always implies a tacit condition, if the thing be practicable and honest: as the words might have two meanings, she was bound in charity to interpret them in the best sense. C.—It was surely lawful to be merry. M.

VER. 15. Garments. Gr. adds, "and all her female ornaments; and her servant came and spread on the ground, before Holofernes, the fleeces which she had received from Bagoas for her daily use, to eat lying upon them. And coming in, Judith fell prostrate." H.—The custom of sitting on the ground, upon skins, to eat, is very ancient, (Targum, Est. i.) and is still observed by the Turks. The kings of Persia let none eat with them at the same table. Heracles. Athen. v. 10.—The character of drunkenness, with which this nation has been branded, seems not unfounded. C.

VER. 16. Her. Gr. adds, "company; and he had sought an opportunity of deluding her, from the day when he first beheld her." He justly, therefore, fell into the snare which he had laid.

VER. 20. Life. Gr. adds, "in any one day," (H.) at supper. M.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. Doors. Gr. adds, "without," yet so that Judith could open them. C.

VER. 4. Drunk. Gr. "drunken in wine."

VER. 5. The. Gr. "her chamber."—Watch. Gr. adds, "her coming out, as on other days; for she had said she would go out to pray, and she had told this to Bagoas. And all had departed," &c. All these precautions were necessary. H.

VER. 6. Judith. She seems not to have disclosed her secret even to her companion, taking the whole upon herself.—Lips. Gr. "in her heart." C.—Yet the Jews generally use some words, (H.) thinking that prayer too cold, which is barely mental. Grotius.

VER. 7. Raise up. If Bethulia had been taken, perhaps (H.) Jerusalem had also fallen. W.

VER. 8. Pillar. Gr. ἀστυ, "the rule," (C.) or pole on which the arms were hung. Hesychius.—Sword, (acinace) used by the Persians, (M.) and shorter than the Greek or Roman sword. C.—If she had not been inspired by God to act thus, like Aod, (Judg. iii.) it would be difficult to excuse her, in thus hurrying a man, in the most wretched state, before the judgment-seat of God. H.

VER. 10. Canopy, to convince all that it was the head of Holofernes. M.—Body, on the ground; (C. xiv. 14.) perhaps to cut off the head more easily, (C.) and that it might appear more ghastly (H.) at the first entrance. T.

VER. 11. While, having composed herself (H.) and done every thing necessary to prevent detection. M.

the head of Holofernes to her maid, and bade her put it into her wallet.

12 And they two went out according to their custom, as if it were to prayer, and they passed the camp, and having compassed the valley, they came to the gate of the city.

13 And Judith, from afar off, cried to the watchmen upon the walls: Open the gates, for God is with us, who hath shewn his power in Israel.

14 And it came to pass, when the men had heard her voice, that they called the ancients of the city.

15 And all ran to meet her, from the least to the greatest: for they had now no hopes that she would come.

16 And lighting up lights they all gathered round about her: and she went up to a higher place, and commanded silence to be made. And when all had held their peace, 17 Judith said: Praise ye the Lord, our God, who hath not forsaken them that hope in him.

18 And by me, his handmaid, he hath fulfilled his mercy, which he promised to the house of Israel: and he hath killed the enemy of his people, by my hand, this night.

19 Then she brought forth the head of Holofernes out of the wallet, and shewed it them, saying: Behold the head of Holofernes, the general of the army of the Assyrians, and behold his canopy, wherein he lay in his drunkenness, where the Lord, our God, slew him by the hand of a woman.

20 But as the same Lord liveth, his angel hath been my keeper, both going hence, and abiding there, and returning from thence hither: and the Lord hath not suffered me, his handmaid, to be defiled, but hath brought me back to you without pollution of sin, rejoicing for his victory, for my escape, and for your deliverance.

21 *Give all of you glory to him, because he is good, because his mercy endureth for ever.

22 And they all adored the Lord, and said to her: The Lord hath blessed thee by his power, because by thee he hath brought our enemies to nought.

23 And Ozias, the prince of the people of Israel, said to her: Blessed art thou, O daughter, by the Lord, the most high God, above all women upon the earth.

24 Blessed be the Lord who made heaven and earth,

* Psal. cv. 1. and cvi. 1.

VER. 18. Open. Gr. repeats, "open ye now the gate; God, our God is with us, still to shew power in Israel, and strength against the enemies, as he hath done to-day." H.

VER. 14. That. Gr. "they hastened to descend to the gate of their city, and called," &c.

VER. 15. Had now. Gr. "it was a paradox to them that she should come, and they opened the gate, and received them."

VER. 16. And she. Gr. "said to them with a loud voice: Praise God, praise, ye praise God, because he hath not withdrawn his mercy from the house of Israel, but hath destroyed our enemies by my hand this night." H.

VER. 19. Drunkenness. "The fasting of one woman overthrew an innumerable host of drunkards." S. Amb. de jej. ix. W.

VER. 20. And abiding. Gr. "for my face has deluded him to his ruin, and he has not committed sin with me, for defilement and shame. And all the people were much amazed; and bowing down, they adored the Lord, and said, with one accord: Our God, thou art blessed, because this day thou hast brought the enemies of thy people to nought." H.—Judith's guardian angel defended her; as Jacob's did him. Gen. xlviii. W.

VER. 28. Prince, in that town, though Manassea was king. M.—Gr. "Ozias said."

VER. 25. Praise. Gr. "hope."—For that. Gr. "and may God make these who hath directed thee to the cutting off the head of the prince of our enemies.

25 Because he hath so magnified thy name this day, that thy praise shall not depart out of the mouth of men, who shall be mindful of the power of the Lord, for ever, for that thou hast not spared thy life, by reason of the distress and tribulation of thy people, but hast prevented our ruin in the presence of our God.

26 And all the people said: So be it, so be it.

27 And Achior, being called for, came, and Judith said to him: The God of Israel, to whom thou gavest testimony, that he revengeth himself of his enemies, he hath cut off the head of all the unbelievers this night by my hand.

28 And that thou mayst find that it is so, behold the head of Holofernes, who in the contempt of his pride despised the God of Israel: and threatened thee with death, saying: When the people of Israel shall be taken, I will command thy sides to be pierced with a sword.

29 Then Achior, seeing the head of Holofernes, being seized with a great fear, he fell on his face upon the earth, and his soul swooned away.

30 But after he had recovered his spirits, he fell down at her feet, and revered her, and said:

31 Blessed art thou, by thy God, in every tabernacle of Jacob, for in every nation which shall hear thy name, the God of Israel shall be magnified on occasion of thee.

CHAP. XIV.

The Israelites assault the Assyrians, who, finding their general slain, are seized with a panic fear.

AND Judith said to all the people. Hear me, my brethren, hang ye up this head upon our walls:

2 And as soon as the sun shall rise, let every man take his arms, and rush ye out, not as going down beneath, but as making an assault.

3 Then the watchmen must needs run to awake their prince for the battle.

4 And when the captains of them shall run to the tent of Holofernes, and shall find him without his head, wallowing in his blood, fear shall fall upon them.

5 And when you shall know that they are fleeing, go after them securely, for the Lord will destroy them under your feet.

6 Then Achior, seeing the power that the God of Israel had wrought, leaving the religion of the Gentiles, things turn to thy eternal exaltation, to regard thee for good; because thou hast not."—Ruin. Gr. adds, "walking aright in," &c. H.

VER. 27. And. This is related after v. 5, in the following chapter, in Gr. Syr. and the old Vulg. (C.) and indeed it seems to be there in its proper place.—Head, or general. H.

VER. 29. Fear. Astonished (M.) at the instability of human things, and admiring how God had rescued him from the threatened danger.

VER. 30. Reverenced. Lit. "adored;" a word often used in this sense. H.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Walls. Gr. adds, "upon the pinnacle."

VER. 2. Beneath. Into the valley; but make your appearance just out of the walls, as if you were rushing upon the enemy. Gr. adds after arms, "and you shall appoint a leader over them, as if descending into the plain to the advanced guard of the Assyrians; but ye shall not go down. Then these seizing all their armour, will go to the camp, and awaken the leaders of the Assyrians, and they will run to the tent of Holofernes, and shall not find him. Then fear shall seize upon them, and they will flee before us. Whereupon ye, and all who inhabit the confines of Israel, shall follow after, and strew them in their paths," slain and wounded, v. 6. H.

VER. 6. Then. Gr. &c. "But before ye do this, call to me Achior, the Ammonite, that seeing, he may recognize the contemner of the house of Israel, and the man who sent him away to us unto certain death. And they called Achior:

he believed God, and circumcised the flesh of his fore-skin, and was joined to the people of Israel, with all the succession of his kindred, until this present day.

7 And immediately at break of day, they hung up the head of Holofernes upon the walls, and every man took his arms, and they went out with a great noise and shouting.

8 And the watchmen, seeing this, ran to the tent of Holofernes.

9 And they that were in the tent, came and made a noise before the door of the chamber to awake him, endeavouring by art to break his rest, that Holofernes might awake, not by their calling him, but by their noise.

10 For no man durst knock, or open and go into the chamber of the general of the Assyrians.

11 But when his captains and tribunes were come, and all the chiefs of the army of the king of the Assyrians, they said to the chamberlains:

12 Go in, and awake him, for the mice coming out of their holes, have presumed to challenge us to fight.

13 Then Vagao going into his chamber, stood before the curtain, and made a clapping with his hands: for he thought that he was sleeping with Judith.

14 But when with hearkening, he perceived no motion of one lying, he came near to the curtain, and lifting it up, and seeing the body of Holofernes, lying upon the ground, without the head, weltering in his blood, he cried out with a loud voice, with weeping, and rent his garments.

15 And he went into the tent of Judith, and not finding her, he ran out to the people,

16 And said: One Hebrew woman hath made confusion in the house of king Nabuchodonosor: for behold Holofernes lieth upon the ground, and his head is not upon him.

17 Now when the chiefs of the army of the Assyrians had heard this, they all rent their garments, and an intolerable fear and dread fell upon them, and their minds were troubled exceedingly.

18 And there was a very great cry in the midst of their camp.

CHAP. XV.

The Assyrians flee: the Hebrews pursue after them, and are enriched by their spoils.

AND when all the army heard that Holofernes was beheaded, courage and counsel fled from them, and being seized with trembling and fear, they thought only to save themselves by flight.

2 So that no one spoke to his neighbour, but hanging down the head, leaving all things behind, they made haste to escape from the Hebrews, who, as they heard, were coming armed upon them, and fled by the ways of the fields, and the paths of the hills.

3 So the children of Israel, seeing them fleeing, followed after them. And they went down sounding with trumpets and shouting after them.

4 And because the Assyrians were not united together, they went without order in their flight; but the children of Israel, pursuing in one body, defeated all that they could find.

5 And Ozias sent messengers through all the cities and countries of Israel.

6 And every country and every city, sent their chosen young men armed after them, and they pursued them with the edge of the sword, until they came to the extremities of their confines.

7 And the rest that were in Bethulia, went into the camp of the Assyrians, and took away the spoils, which the Assyrians in their flight had left behind them, and they were loaded exceedingly.

8 But they that returned conquerors to Bethulia, brought with them all things that were theirs, so that there was no numbering of their cattle, and beasts, and of all their moveables, insomuch, that from the least to the greatest, all were made rich by their spoils.

from the house of Ozias. But as soon as he came, and saw the head of Holofernes in the hand of one of the assembly of the people, he fell," &c. as C. xiii. 29. 30. "Blessed art thou in every tent of Juda, and in every nation. All who shall hear thy name shall be amazed. But now tell me what thou hast done during these days. And Judith, in the midst of the people, informed him of all that she had performed, since the day of her departure till the time when she was speaking. She had no sooner ended her speech, than all the people set up a loud shout of joy in their city. Then," &c.—Leaving. Gr. "He believed in God greatly," or with the utmost sincerity. H.—Hitherto Achior had only considered the Deity as the peculiar God of Israel, (C.) or as the common gods "revered by all nations;" (Virg. xii. Servius) but not as the only supreme Being. He now becomes a proselyte, not merely, like Naaman, to adore one God; but also to observe all the rites of the Jewish religion. The latter was a matter of choice. C. vi. 18. It is not still clear that he could enjoy the privileges of the nation as a magistrate, or even marry, (C.) which shews his greater fervour. Grotius.—It is certain that no nation could be forbidden to worship God. Deut. xxi. 3. S. Thomas (1. 2. q. 105. a. 3.) believes that a dispensation was granted to Achior, (C.) so that he might be treated like an Israelite in all respects. Serar. q. 1. M.—This evinces that only the impenitent Ammonites, &c. were excluded from the Church. W.—With. Gr. "till this day."

VER. 7. With. Gr. "In companies, to the ascent of the mountain."
VER. 8. Ran. Gr. "Sent to their officers. But they went to the leaders and captains of thousands, and to every chief among them, and they proceeded to the tent of Holofernes, and said to his chief steward: Awaken now our lord, for the slaves have been so bold as to come down to offer us battle for thy utter ruin. Then Bagoas," &c. v. 13. H.

VER. 12. Mice. They speak contemptuously of their foes, like the Philistines. 1 K. xiv. 11. M.

VER. 13. Intro. Gr. "In, knocked at the hall, (ἀνὰ, or antichamber) of the tent, for he suspected that he was sleeping with Judith. But as no one answered, he opened and went into the bed-chamber, and found him thrown upon the floor, dead, and his head taken from him, and he cried," &c.—Curtain, which separated this apartment from the rest, (H.) and hung before the door, as Heracles describes the tent of the Persian kings. Holofernes assumed the like importance, and was treated almost as a deity. C.—Hence he must not be awaked, in a rude manner. H.—Civility requires that we should knock modestly at the doors of the great. C.

VER. 16. Said. Gr. "cried aloud, the slaves have prevaricated. One," &c. H.—Perhaps he thought that Judith had introduced some of the Jews. C.

VER. 18. Cry. Gr. adds, "and shouting of them (the captains) in," &c. H.

CHAP. XV. VER. 1. All. Gr. "Those who were in the tents heard, they were astonished at the fact; and fear and trembling fell upon them, and there was not a man remaining before his neighbour; but rushing out, with one accord, they fled through every path, in the plains and in the mountains; and those who were encamped in the high places around Bethulia, (H. the Moabites, &c. C. vii. 8. C.) fled. Then every warrior of Israel rushed out upon them, and Ozias," v. 5.

VER. 5. Israel. Gr. adds, "informing them of what had been accomplished, and that all might pour upon the enemies, to cut them off. But when the Israelites heard this, they all, unanimously, fell upon them, as far as Chobai: (H. Hoba. C.) in like manner those from Jerusalem came up, and from all the mountainous country; for they also were informed of what had happened in the camp of their enemies; and the men of Galaad and of Galilee scattered them with great slaughter, till they had passed Damascus and its boundaries." H.—As the enemy fled without a leader, we may easily imagine what carnage would ensue. C.

VER. 7. The. Gr. "their spoils, and were greatly enriched." H.—Mariana suggests that we should read honestati, which is used in this sense, (Eccli. xi. 23.) instead of onustati, loaded.

VER. 8. They. Gr. "The Israelites, returning from the slaughter, took possession of the remainder, and the villages and cities, both in the mountains and champaign country, took many spoils; for there was great abundance. But Joachim," &c.

VER. 9. Came. Gr. adds, "and the senate of Israel, residing at Jerusalem, came." This alludes to the sanhedrim. Grotius.—But, it seems, its institution was posterior to the captivity, and we may understand the principal men of the city, or of the priests. C.—To see. Gr. adds, "the good things (Compl. to confirm or lay a foundation for, the good things) which God had done to Israel, and to see Judith, and speak peace with her" Prot. "to salute her." H.—Joachim is the same with Eliacim; El being only prefixed. T.—He is the Saviour (621)

9 And Joachim, the high priest, came from Jerusalem to Bethulia, with all his ancients, to see Judith.

10 And when she was come out to him, they all blessed her with one voice, saying: Thou art the glory of Jerusalem, thou art the joy of Israel, thou art the honour of our people:

11 For thou hast done manfully, and thy heart has been strengthened, because thou hast loved chastity, and after thy husband hast not known any other: therefore, also, the hand of the Lord hath strengthened thee, and therefore thou shalt be blessed for ever.

12 And all the people said: So be it, so be it.

13 And thirty days were scarce sufficient for the people of Israel to gather up the spoils of the Assyrians.

14 But all those things that were proved to be the peculiar goods of Holofernes, they gave to Judith, in gold and silver, and garments, and precious stones, and all household stuff, and they all were delivered to her by the people.

15 And all the people rejoiced with the women and virgins, and young men, playing on instruments and harps.

CHAP. XVI.

The canticle of Judith: her virtuous life and death.

THEN Judith sung this canticle to the Lord, saying: 2 Begin ye to the Lord with timbrels, sing ye to the Lord with cymbals, tune unto him a new psalm, extol, and call upon his name.

3 The Lord putteth an end to wars, the Lord is his name.

II. or Odes of Josephus; (Reinec.) and succeeded Sobna both in spiritual and temporal power. Isai. xxii. Bellarmin.

VER. 10. She. Gr. "They were gone into her apartment, they," &c.—Art thou. Gr. adds, "great joy, and the great boast of our race; because thou hast done all these things with thy hand, thou hast procured the good of Israel, and God hath been pleased with them. Be thou blessed by the omnipotent Lord for ever." H.—Judith was a figure of the blessed Virgin, to whom these praises chiefly belong. Fulbert. W.

VER. 11. Chastity, &c. This is not in Syr. &c. and though, generally speaking, celibacy was not esteemed honourable among the Jews; yet chastity was so much the more admired, as it was more uncommon. A widow was deserving of praise for not lightly entering upon a second marriage. C.—Those who abstain from it, were respected, like virgins, by the Romans. Val. Maxim. ii. 1.

VER. 13. Thirty. Gr. "And the people plundered the camp thirty (Syr. three) days." The camp of the Assyrians was in various places, and the people waited a month before they began to divide the spoils among all, according to their laws. Num. xxxi. 27. and 1 K. xxx. 24. C.

VER. 14. But. Gr. "And they gave to Judith the tent of Holofernes, and all the silver plate, and beds and basins, and all his furniture, which she taking, placed upon her mule, and put to her chariots, and heaped them thereon; and every woman of Israel ran to see her, and they blessed her, and danced in her honour. Then she took some thyrsus (H. or branches entwined with ivy, &c. C.) in her hands, and gave to those women who accompanied her; and they crowned with olive both her and her attendant; (maid, or Alex. Sept. "and she was crowned with olive, and her mule;" Grabe substitutes "female companions,") and she went before all the people, leading the dance of all the women; and every man of Israel followed in arms, with crowns, and with hymns in their mouth. Then," &c. C. xvi. H.—The bearing of green branches, on such occasions, was very common. Lev. xxiii. 40. 2 Mac. x. 7. Mat. xxi. 8. Hence Tacitus (Hist. v.) supposed that the Jews adored Bacchus. But there was nothing here of the immodesty, which generally attended the pagan festivals. We only find this instance of women being crowned with olive. But this tree was very proper, as it was used in rejoicings: Ramo felicitis olivæ; (Virg. vi.) on which Servius remarks, olivæ, arboris festæ. At certain races in Greece, women who gained the victory, were thus crowned; (Alex. Genial v. 8.) and it was used by the Roman cavalry on the ides of July, and in ovations. Pliny xv. 4.—The processions of the Church often admit of similar ornaments in honour of God, (T.) and to promote piety. H.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 1. Sung. Gr. "Gave out this confession, in all Israel; and all the people echoed this praise;" (H.) either repeating the whole after her, or singing the first verse as a chorus. Ex. xv. 20. 1 K. xviii. 6. 1 Par. xvi. 8. C.—Saying. Gr. "And Judith said: Begin ye to my Lord." H.—It is time for us to break silence, and to sound forth the praises of God. C.

VER. 3. Wars, or destroys armies. H.—God is often represented as a mighty warrior. Isai. i. 24. Jer. ii. 20. Rom. ix. 29. C.—This passage is quoted by S.

4 He hath set his camp in the midst of his people, to deliver us from the hand of all our enemies.

5 The Assyrian came out of the mountains from the north in the multitude of his strength: his multitude stopped up the torrents, and their horses covered the valleys.

6 He bragged that he would set my borders on fire, and kill my young men with the sword, to make my infants a prey, and my virgins captives.

7 But the Almighty Lord hath struck him, and delivered him into the hands of a woman, and hath slain him.

8 For their mighty one did not fall by young men, neither did the sons of Titan strike him, nor tall giants oppose themselves to him, but Judith, the daughter of Merari, weakened him with the beauty of her face.

9 For she put off her the garments of widowhood, and put on her the garments of joy, to give joy to the children of Israel.

10 She anointed her face with ointment, and bound up her locks with a crown, she took a new robe to deceive him.

11 Her sandals ravished his eyes, her beauty made his soul her captive, with a sword she cut off his head.

12 The Persians quaked at her constancy, and the Medes at her boldness.

13 Then the camp of the Assyrians howled, when my lowly ones appeared, parched with thirst.

14 The sons of the damsels have pierced them through, and they have killed them like children flee-

Ephrem (ser. de 2. Adv.) as a part of Scripture. W.—Lord is. Gr. "For he has drawn me from the hands of my persecutors, into his camp, in the midst of the people." H.

VER. 5. Mountains of Cilicia, and through the defiles of Libanus and Hermon, on the north of Palestine, by which road they were forced to come. The desert Arabia was impassable for a large army. C.—North, inclining to the east. H. Isai. xiv. 13. Jer. i. 13. Eze. i. 4.—Torrents, drinking them up, as Sennacherib boasted; (4 K. xix. 24.) and the Greeks assert the same of the army of Xerxes Herod. vii. 108.

—Epotaque flumina Medo
Prudente.—Juv. x.

The Gr. seems to insinuate that the Assyrian "stopped up the springs," to distress the country, as Philopator did. C.—Valleys. Gr. "hills."

VER. 6. To make. Gr. "that he would throw my children at the breast, on the pavement, and make," &c. H.

VER. 7. Struck. Lit. "hurt him, overturning all his projects, (C.) as the Greek (ἠδίνων) intimates. M.—Him. Gr. "them, by the hand of a woman: For," &c.

VER. 8. Men; soldiers. C. xiv. 6. Gen. xiv. 24.—Titan. So the Sept. render Raphaim. 2 K. v. 18. The Greek translator of this work seems to have read the poets, who pretend that the Titans attempted to take heaven by storm. C.—Neither such giants as those who lived before the flood, (Gen. vi.) nor such as were seen after, (Num. xiii. W.) attacked Holofernes. H.—Neither does the Vulg. give any authority to poetic fictions, but only adopts terms which are best understood. T. S. Jer. in Amos v. 8.

VER. 9. And put. Gr. "for the exaltation of those who laboured in Israel."

VER. 10. Crown. Gr. "mitre," or ribband, ornamented with jewels. C. x. 3. Syr. "net-work."—New. Gr. "linen stole," which was a long robe, usually of linen, and worn both by men and women. C.—Deceive him; as he would make love to her, and thus give her an opportunity to perform what she had designed. H.—She was not actuated by the desire of being admired, but sought to deliver her people, v. 9. M.

VER. 11. Sandals. The bandages which tied the shoe-soles (H.) to the feet, were most ornamental. Isai. iii. The city of Antylla was assigned to furnish sandals for the queens of Egypt. Herod. xii. 98. C.—With. Gr. "a sword (acinace) passed through his neck."

VER. 12. Medes. This is the first mention of these two nations, who afterwards became so famous. Nabuchodonosor had overcome Phraortes. C. i. C.

VER. 13. Then. Gr. "Then my lowly ones (H. she speaks thus contemptuously of the Assyrians. C.) howled, my weak ones cried out through fear; they raised their voice, and were overthrown." H.—Others think that she is speaking of her fellow-citizens, (T.) or of both. H.

VER. 14. Damsels; young boys. Syr. "they run them through, as if they had been damsels."—Children, or "slaves." Syr. Being thus overtaken, what could they do but sue for pardon? C.—Before. Gr. "of the Lord," &c.

ing away: they perished in battle before the face of the Lord, my God.

15 Let us sing a hymn to the Lord, let us sing a new hymn to our God.

16 O Adonai, Lord, great art thou, and glorious in thy power, and no one can overcome thee.

17 *Let all thy creatures serve thee: because thou hast spoken, and they were made: thou didst send forth thy Spirit, and they were created, and there is no one that can resist thy voice.

18 The mountains shall be moved from the foundations with the waters: the rocks shall melt as wax before thy face.

19 But they that fear thee, shall be great with thee in all things.

20 Woe be to the nation that riseth up against my people: for the Lord Almighty will take revenge on them; in the day of judgment he will visit them.

21 For he will give fire, and worms into their flesh, that they may burn, and may feel for ever.

22 And it came to pass after these things, that all the people, after the victory, came to Jerusalem to adore the Lord: and as soon as they were purified, they all offered holocausts, and vows, and their promises.

* Psal. xxxii. 9.

VER. 15. Let. Gr. "I will sing a new hymn to the Lord. Lord, thou art great." H.

VER. 17. Spirit, and they. Gr. "he built" the world. Gen. i. 8. Ps. xxxii. 9. C.

VER. 18. Waters, by earthquakes and storms. Job ix. 5. Isai. v. 25. Ps. xvi. 8.

VER. 19. Great. Gr. "treated mercifully by thee: for little with thee is all sacrifice, for the odour of sweetness; and all fat is but the least for thy holocausts. But he who fears the Lord, is ever great." H.—This text is remarkable, as it shews (C.) that no sacrifice can please God, without interior holiness. Outward magnificence will be otherwise rejected with contempt. W.

VER. 20. He will visit them, is not in Greek, and only expresses the same again. H.

VER. 21. Flesh, which is thus punished for ever, (S. Aug. de Civ. Dei xxv. 4.) while the soul is still more tormented with the loss of God's vision. W.—The bodies of those who persecute God's people, will not only be thrown out with ignominy, but the impenitent shall suffer eternal torments. These worms and fires do not cease. They are not merely figurative, but real, according to the Fathers. Serar. q. 1. T. Essais de Mor.—Though the damned have not yet their bodies, they are no less affected with pain; as people who have lost a member, often seem to feel pain in it. That our soul should even now suffer, when the body is hurt, depends on God's appointment. The Jews spoke of eternal torments in similar terms. Eccli. vii. 19. Isai. lxvi. 24. Mar. ix. 45.

VER. 22. And. Gr. "But as soon as they arrived at Jerusalem, they adored God; and when the people were purified, they offered their holocausts, and free gifts, and presents." H.—They stood in need of purification, as they had shed blood, and had touched so many things of the Assyrians, which were to them unclean. C. Num. xxxi. 24.

VER. 23. An anathema of oblivion. That is, a gift or offering made to God, by way of an everlasting monument, to prevent the oblivion or the forgetting of so great a benefit. Ch.—Yet some would read (C.) oblationis, instead of oblivionis. T.—Gr. and Syr. say nothing of oblivion. The Scriptures, and pagan histories, are full of such monuments of gratitude, to perpetuate the memory of benefits received from above. C.—Gr. "to the Lord, all the vessels," or furniture. C. xv. 14. H.—Joseph called one of his sons, Manasses, because God had caused him to forget his former toils. Gen. xli. 51. M.—Judith's husband had the same name; and this victory made her forget past sorrow. H.

VER. 24. Three. Syr. "one entire month." C.—Joy. Gr. "and Judith remained with them."

VER. 25. Was made. Gr. "returned also to Bethulia, and dwelt on her own possessions; and in her time, was honourable throughout all the land."

VER. 26. Chastity. Gr. "many desired to have her, (H. in marriage. W.) but no man knew her," &c. H.—She again practised the same mortifications which she had done before. Suidas. C.—Husband. Gr. adds, "when he was removed to his people. And proceeding, (to the temple, or advancing in age) she was very great, and she grew old in her," &c. H.—She probably went up to Jerusalem at the great festivals. M.

VER. 28. Five. Suidas also reads, "fifty." Some would suppose that Judith lived 105 years after her husband's death; so that she might have been in all 23 And Judith offered for an anathema of oblivion all the arms of Holofernes, which the people gave her, and the canopy that she had taken away out of his chamber.

24 And the people were joyful in the sight of the sanctuary, and for three months the joy of this victory was celebrated with Judith.

25 And after those days every man returned to his house, and Judith was made great in Bethulia, and she was most renowned in all the land of Israel.

26 And chastity was joined to her virtue, so that she knew no man all the days of her life, after the death of Manasses, her husband.

27 And on festival days she came forth with great glory.

28 And she abode in her husband's house a hundred and five years, and made her handmaid free, and she died, and was buried with her husband in Bethulia.

29 And all the people mourned for her seven days.

30 And all the time of her life there was none that troubled Israel, nor many years after her death.

31 But the day of the festivity of this victory is received by the Hebrews in the number of holy days, and is religiously observed by the Jews, from that time until this day.

125 years old. But she would thus have survived the siege of Jerusalem under Nabuchodonosor; (C.) and the text does not require this sense. H. See Ex. xii. 40. T.—Free; as she had been her assistant in such a glorious work. M.—Died. Gr. adds, "in Bethulia; and they buried her in the cave of her husband, Manasses." See C. viii. 3.

VER. 29. Seven days. The usual term; (Eccli. xxii. 13.) but it was extraordinary for the whole province (C.) to mourn for an individual. Gr. and Syr. add, "And she divided all her possessions, before her death, among the nearest relations of her husband, Manasses, and among her own" (H.) which was very equitable, as she had no children, (C.) we may suppose. T. H.

VER. 30. Years. Gr. "days." See the pref. H.—Judith was a widow near seventy years, shewing an excellent pattern to all in that state. Notwithstanding the many inducements which she might have had to marry again, she chose to abstain, for greater perfection. Mat. xix. and 1 Cor. vii. W.—From the death of Holofernes (A. 3348) to that of Josias, (A. 3394) only forty-six years of peace would occur in Juda. Hense Hardouin would suppose that the text speaks of the kingdom of Israel. But it would be hard to prove that it existed at that time, after the ten tribes had been led away. A. 3283. As the Scripture does not specify how old Judith was when she addressed Holofernes, (C.) she might be sixty-five. Vitre.—If, therefore, we should make this peace last till the coming of Nabuchodonosor, to attack Jerusalem, about forty-six years might elapse before the period here assigned. C.—It is, however, much more probable, (H.) that the peace subsisted from the 11th of Manasses to the death of Josias, 73 (Gr. 78) years; (T.) and that she was not above forty when she performed her exploit; as she was then styled a beautiful girl, (C. xii. 12.) and many desired to marry her. H.—No instance can be produced, of the Jews entering into such contracts with those who were past child-bearing. Frenet, who seems afraid to allow this book the same authority as the additions to Daniel, though both are equally rejected by Protestants, supposes that Bethulia was besieged in the 11th or 12th year of Josias; and, of course, that Judith would then be about eighty four years old! Houbigant.

VER. 31. But. This is taken from the Chaldee of S. Jerom, though omitted in the old Vulg. as well as in the Gr. and Syriac. We find no express mention of this festival in the Jews' Calendar, (C.) though no one can doubt but it once was kept. D.—It probably ceased during the captivity; as that, in memory of the victory over Nicanor, (which was kept in the days of Josephus, xii. 16.) has been long since abolished, (C.) with many others. D.—Many suppose (C.) that the feast of Judith concurred with that of the new fire, when the temple was renewed under Judas the Maccabee, on the 25th of Casleu, (Salien, &c.) in December, though the victory of Judith was obtained about August. The point is not easily decided. As the festival was of human institution, it might be abrogated by the same authority. C.—In Judith we behold a widow indeed, such as the apostle commends. 1 Tim. v. 3. S. Jer. ad Furiam.—We may also raise our minds still higher, and contemplate in her a glorious figure of the Christian Church, which is spotless; and by the practice of all virtues, overcomes the power of persecutors, giving all the glory to God. After victory, she continues in silence to practise her former austerities, which render her secure in peace and terrible in war. C.

THE BOOK OF ESTHER.

THIS Book takes its name from queen Esther; whose history is here recorded. The general opinion of almost all commentators on the Holy Scripture, make Mardochei the writer of it: which also may be collected below from C. ix. 20. Ch.—He and the queen were certainly authors of the letter, (H) enjoining the celebration of the feast of Purim, or “lots,” which is the ground-work (C.) of the present narration. D.—The compiler has also had recourse to the archives of the kingdom of Persia; so that his work has all the authority that can be required of a profane historian; and being moreover inspired in all its parts, we cannot refuse to receive it with the utmost respect. Those additions which are not now in Hebrew, (C.) though they were perhaps formerly, (W. Origen. D.) have been carefully preserved by S. Jerom, and were recognized by the ancient Vulg. as they are at present by the Greek, without any distinction. Lysimachus, the Greek translator, was probably the author of them. C. xi. 1. C.—The objections of Capellus against this “Greek scribbler,” as he is pleased to style him, despising the judgment of both Jews and Christians, are in general very unaccountably borrowed (H.) from the Latin version, and are easily refuted. Houbigant.—Those Jews, who have rejected this work entirely, with Melito, (Eus. Hist. iv. 26. S. Greg. Naz. &c.) ought not to prevail against the consent of the majority, (C.) expressed in the Councils of Laodicea, Carthage, Trent, sess. 4, &c. To read this book according to the order of time, we should begin C. xi. v. 2, &c. C. i. it. and xii. and i. to v. 14; then we find the distress of the Jews in the rest of that chapter, and in C. xiii. to v. 8, and their delivery in C. iv. to ix. v. 17, and C. xiii. v. 8, &c. and C. xiv. xv. and xvi. The consequences of these events are recorded C. ix. v. 17, &c. to C. xi. 1. (W.) with which verse the book ends, in the Greek editions. H.—They vary considerably, as did the copies of the ancient Vulgate, which called forth the complaints of S. Jerom, Pref. But the Church has distinguished what was spurious from the genuine word of God: so that the doubts of Lyrain, Sixtus, (Bib. viii.) &c. respecting the fragments at the end of the book being not canonical, ought no longer to be indulged; much less can the boldness of many Lutherans, (C.) and particularly of Le Clerc, (Houbigant) be tolerated, who represent the whole work as a mere fiction. The Jews have a greater respect for it than for any of the prophets; whose works, they say, will perish at the coming of the Messiah: whereas this will subsist with the books of Moses, and the feast of Purim will never be abolished. C. ix. 28. Maimon.—Ben. Gorion (ii. 2.) admits the additions. But Josephus is silent about them, as he probably did not find them in his copy. C.—He recites, however, both the epistles of Assuerus. Ant. xi. 6. D.—It is not agreed whether these events happened before or after the captivity. But it is now most commonly supposed, that Esther was married to Darius Hystaspes, A. 3489, about the time of the dedication of the temple. C. xiv. 9. He had been on the throne six years, and reigned other thirty. See Herod. vii. 4. C.—Josephus thinks that Esther was the queen of Artaxerxes Longimanus, who was a great friend of the Jews. D.—The Talmud attributes this work to the great Synagogue, consisting of Esdras, Mardochei, Joachim, &c. and, as various persons might write the same history, the Greek, with the additions, seems to be taken from one copy, and the Hebrew from another rather more concise, (Huet. D.) but equally inspired. H.

CHAP. I.

King Assuerus maketh a great feast. Queen Vasthi being sent for, refuseth to come: for which disobedience she is deposed.

IN the days of Assuerus, who reigned from India to Ethiopia over a hundred and twenty-seven provinces:

2 When he sat on the throne of his kingdom, the city Susan was the capital of his kingdom.

3 Now in the third year^a of his reign he made a great feast for all the princes, and for his servants, for the most mighty of the Persians, and the nobles of the Medes, and the governors of the provinces, in his sight,

4 That he might shew the riches of the glory of his kingdom, and the greatness, and boasting of his power, for a long time, to wit, for a hundred and fourscore days.

5 And when the days of the feast were expired, he invited all the people that were found in Susan, from the greatest to the least: and commanded a feast to be

^a A. M. 3485, A. C. 519.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. In. Heb. “and in.” In this manner the books of Scripture are usually connected. Sept. place first the dream of Mardochei. C. xi. 2. C.—Assuerus. Sept. Artaxerxes; as C. xvi. 1. The former is the title of the Median, the latter of the Persian, monarchs. This king reigned over both nations, and was most probably Darius Hystaspes, the third king of the Persians, (T.) who subdued India, &c. Herod. C. T.—Some understand Cambyases, (1 Esd. iv. Genebrard) or Xerxes, (Scalig.) or Artaxerxes Longimanus, (Bellarm. Salien) or Memnon, (Euseb.) or Oehus. Serarius.—But (C.) the author of 3 Esd. iii. 1. and iv. 43. seems clearly to declare for Hystaspes. T.—Though that work be not canonical, (D.) it may claim some authority, as an ancient history. H.—This king gave orders for the building of the temple. 1 Esd. vi. 1. 14.—India. Part had been (C.) subject to Xerxes. Herod. vii. 65.—But Darius subdued the country, and imposed a heavy tribute. Herod. iv. 44.—Ethiopia, beyond Egypt, paid an acknowledgment. Cambyases had taken possession of this country. C.—Some understand a part of Arabia to be meant. D.—Seven: 120 had been regulated by Darius, the Mede. Dan. vi. 1. H.—The number might vary as the monarch chose. D.—Herodotus (iii. 89.) only specifies “twenty.” But he speaks of large departments, to which he intimates that several others were subordinate. C.—Provinces. Heb. medina, “seat of judges.” H.—Prefecture. M.

VER. 2. Capital. Heb. “palace, (Prot. H.) or castle,” (C.) may also signify “a capital.” Mont. &c.—Hystaspes founded this ancient royal city of Persia, (Pliny. vi. 27.) or he greatly embellished it. C. Median, Anim. xiii. 18. T.—He seems to have resided here almost constantly. The preceding kings (C.) spent the winter in this warm climate, and perhaps the spring. See 2 Esd. i. 1. They spent other parts of the year at Ecbatana and at Babylon. C.

VER. 3. Reign. When he was solemnly crowned, again, (T.) or removed his court, (C.) and dedicated this new capital, with feasting, &c. H.

VER. 4. Days, of a full half year, according to their reckoning. Nabuchodo-made seven days in the court of the garden, and of the wood, which was planted by the care and the hand of the king.

6 And there were hung up on every side sky-coloured, and green, and violet hangings, fastened with cords of silk, and of purple, which were put into rings of ivory, and were held up with marble pillars. The beds, also, were of gold and silver, placed in order upon a floor, paved with porphyry and white marble: which was embellished with painting of wonderful variety.

7 And they that were invited, drank in golden cups, and the meats were brought in divers vessels, one after another. Wine, also, in abundance and of the best was presented, as was worthy of a king’s magnificence.

8 Neither was there any one to compel them to drink that were not willing, but as the king had appointed, who set over every table one of his nobles, that every man might take what he would.

nosor, after his victory over Arphaxad, (Judith i.) feasted 120 days; Dionysius of Syracuse 90; (Aristot.) Solomon seven; (8 K. viii. 63.) and David three; when he was recognized by all Israel. 1 Par. xii. 39. The Gaul, Ariumnus, gave a feast to all his countrymen for a whole year. Athen. iv. 13.—The Roman emperors sometimes treated all the citizens of Rome, and Alexander did the like to 9000 of his chief officers for one day. But the magnificence of Assuerus surpasses all the rest. The Persians were famous on this account.—Persicos odi, puer, apparatus. Hor. i. Ode 38. C.

VER. 5. Expired. (Feuarent) or in the last week. M. C.—King. The Persian monarchs delighted in agriculture. Cyrus the younger, planted trees at Sardis, and never eat till he had taken some exercise of this or of a military nature. Xenoph. Memor. Cicero Senect.

VER. 6. Were. Prot. “where were,” white, green, and blue hangings.—Ivory Heb. “silver.” H.—Beds, to lie down on at table; though sitting was formerly the fashion. Gen. xliii. 33. The other custom prevailed among the more luxurious nations, and was observed in our Saviour’s time, each person reclining upon his left arm, and having his feet behind the next. T.—These beds were made very low, in Persia; so that Alexander had one put under his feet, when he sat on the throne of Darius, as he was not so tall. Curt. v. 7.—Their magnificence was surprising. Herod. ix. 81. C.—Variety, in Mosaic work. T.—They lay upon sheep skins. Chal. Sept. “and the beds (or coverlets) were transparent, with various flowers, and full-blown roses, all round.” H.

VER. 7. Vessels. When Lysanias had taken the camp of Mardonius, and beheld the rich vessels, he could not help expressing a surprise that people possessing such advantages, should come to molest the Lacedemonians, who lived so poorly. Herod. ix. 79.

VER. 8. Neither. Heb. “and the drinking was according to the law.” Or “was not according to the pre-established law;” (H.) as the usual custom was altered, on this occasion; and thus both may be accurate. The Persians had 9 Also Vasthi, the queen, made a feast for the women in the palace, where king Assuerus was used to dwell.

10 Now on the seventh day, when the king was merry, and after very much drinking, was well warmed with wine, he commanded Mauman, and Bazatha, and Harbona, and Bagatha, and Abgatha, and Zethar, and Charcas, the seven eunuchs that served in his presence, 11 To bring in queen Vasthi before the king, with the crown set upon her head, to shew her beauty to all the people, and the princes: for she was exceedingly beautiful.

12 But she refused, and would not come at the king's commandment, which he had signified to her by the eunuchs. Whereupon the king, being angry, and inflamed with a very great fury,

13 Asked the wise men, who, according to the custom of the kings, were always near his person, and all he did was by their counsel, who knew the laws, and judgments of their forefathers:

14 (Now the chief and nearest him were, Charsena, and Sethar, and Admatha, and Tharsis, and Mares, and Marsana, and Mamuchan, seven princes of the Persians, and of the Medes, who saw the face of the king, and were used to sit first after him:)

15 What sentence ought to pass upon Vasthi, the queen, who had refused to obey the commandment of king Assuerus, which he had sent to her by the eunuchs?

16 And Mamuchan answered, in the hearing of the king and the princes: Queen Vasthi hath not only injured the king, but also all the people and princes that are in all the provinces of king Assuerus.

17 For this deed of the queen will go abroad to all women, so that they will despise their husbands, and commonly a king of the feast, whose orders all were obliged to obey in drinking. Hor. i. Ode 4. Eccli. xxxii. 1.—This was an occasion of quarrels, (S. Jer.) and of intoxication. Ageailaus followed the example of Assuerus. Darius, and Cyrus the younger, gloried in being able to drink much wine without being deranged. C.

—Roges dicuntur urgere culullis,

Et torquere mero, quem perspicax laborant,

An sit amicitia dignus.—Hor. ad Pison.

Among friends, these "absurd laws" were laid aside.

Siccit inaequales calices conviva, solutus

Legibus insanis.—Hor. ii. Sat. 6. C.

This may suggest to Christians, that they ought not to urge any to get drunk, (S. Aug. ser. 231. de Temp.) lest they should be condemned by the very heathens. W.—Would, and thus prevent disorders as much as possible. Athen. x. 6.

VER. 9. Vasthi. Sept. Astin. H.—Serarius suspects she was the king's sister, or daughter, as such marriages were common in Persia. T.—The name is not very different from that of Atossa, the daughter of Cyrus, who was married to Cambyses, Smerdis, and Darius; to the latter of whom she bore four children. Herod. iii. 68. and vii. 3.—This prince had other wives, particularly Artistona, (C. our Hadossa, (H.) or Esther) whom he espoused a virgin, and loved the most. Herodotus seems to confound her with Atossa.—Dwell. Some Greek copies have "in her own palaces." Usher.—It was proper for women to be more retired. M.—The men feasted in the open air. H.

VER. 10. Wine. From the king's excess, and the haughtiness of Vasthi, God took occasion to advance Esther, and to deliver his people. C.—Mauman. Sept. "Aman." T.—But the names vary. The Persians seem to have had a predilection for the number seven, v. 14. C. Gr. "the seven eunuchs, ministers (deacons) of Artaxerxes."

VER. 11. Head. But without any other covering. Chal. Sulpitius entertained perhaps the same idea. Stulto rege consultior, prudens, virorum oculis spectaculum corporis praeberet iussa, abnuvit. H.—Some Greek copies assert, very improbably, (C.) that she was sent for "to be crowned queen."—Beautiful. "The Persian ladies were noted for beauty," (Ammian) inasmuch that Alexander called them eye-sores, oculorum dolores. Curt.—Only prostitutes appeared publicly at feasts. Macrob. vii. 1. S. Amb. de Elia. i. 15.—In effect, Vasthi's refusal was conformable to the laws of the country. Josephus. Plut. in Themist.—Her offence consisted, therefore, rather in her haughty carriage or words. H.—For the proposal was neither decent nor safe for the king, (Grot.) as the history of Candaules shews. Herodot. i. Not. Var. in Sulp.

VER. 12. Fury. This is the usual consequence of excess. W.

VER. 13. According Heb. "knew the times, (for so was the king's custom will say: King Assuerus commanded that queen Vasthi should come in to him, and she would not.

18 And by this example, all the wives of the princes of the Persians, and the Medes, will slight the commandments of their husbands: wherefore, the king's indignation is just.

19 If it please thee, let an edict go out from thy presence, and let it be written according to the law of the Persians, and of the Medes, which must not be altered, that Vasthi come in no more to the king, but another, that is better than she, be made queen in her place.

20 And let this be published through all the provinces of thy empire (which is very wide) and let all wives, as well of the greater as of the lesser, give honour to their husbands.

21 His counsel pleased the king, and the princes and the king did according to the counsel of Mamuchan.

22 And he sent letters to all the provinces of his kingdom, as every nation could hear and read, in divers languages and characters, that the husbands should be rulers and masters in their houses: and that this should be published to every people.

CHAP. II.

Esther is advanced to be queen. Mardochar detecteth a plot against the king

AFTER this, when the wrath of king Assuerus was appeased, he remembered Vasthi, and what she had done, and what she had suffered:

2 And the king's servants, and his officers said: Let young women be sought for the king, virgins, and beautiful.

3 And let some persons be sent through all the provinces to look for beautiful maidens and virgins: and let them bring them to the city of Susan, and put them with those who knew law and judgment.) And the next," &c. H.—These were the magi, more particularly versed in the constitutions of the country. The Persians commonly held their consultations over wine. Herod. i. 133.—Sept. "and the king said to his friends, Thus has Astin spoken; do therefore, in this affair, law and judgment. Then came forth to him Arkesaios and Sares-thaios, and Malesear, the princes of the Persians and Medes, men near the king, and who sat first after the king. H.—The old Vulg. places Mardocheus first. These seven counsellors were perhaps styled the king's relations," (Brisson i. p. 171.) and administered justice; as even the kings referred their causes to them. Plut. Artax. &c.

VER. 16. Mamuchan. Old Vulg. "Mardocheus." Yet the Jews say this was the infamous Aman; and one Greek copy has Bilgaiois, (C.) and Arabo, "Mou chaiois." C. iii. 1. and xii. 6. He was the youngest, but spoke first, as was sometimes the case.

VER. 18. Wives. Gr. repudvdes, "princesses, or female tyrants."—Slight. Sept. "dare to slight their husbands. Wherefore if," &c. II.—Just. Heb. "enough of contempt and indignation." This may be referred either to the king or to the women's husbands. The example will prove a source of continual quarrels. C.—Brentius approves the decision of this parasite; though S. Amb. &c. think that the queen was justified by the laws, which the king had no right to infringe, to gratify his drunken humour, v. 10. Luther would also wrest this text in favour of adultery, p. ii. Divort. p. 177. W.

VER. 19. Altered. This regarded the more solemn acts, signed by the counsellors. Dan. vi. 17. Grotius.—Some decrees were neglected or changed. C. viii. 9. 1 Esd. iv. 5. 21. and vi. 1. C.

VER. 21. Counsel. It was very inconclusive; (M.) and even supposing the queen were guilty of some indiscretion, the punishment was too severe. M. Grotius, v. 11. H.

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Suffered. He began to repent. The Persians used to deliberate when warm with wine: but their decrees were not ratified till they had examined them again the next day. Herod. i. 133.—This was not the case here; the king divorced his wife without any delay. C.—Sept. intimate that he presently lost thoughts of her. "He no longer remembered Vasthi with any affection, reflecting what she had said, and how he had condemned her." H.—But the Alex. copy agrees with the Heb. C.

VER. 2. Beautiful. Thus Abiesag was brought to David. 3 K. i. 2. The Turkish emperors select women from all their dominions, without distinction of noble or ignoble; as all are their slaves.

VER. 3. House. Distinct from the palace, v. 14.—Women's. Heb. "things for rubbing, (C.) or purification;" (H.) such as perfumes, but not clothes.

VER. 4. Commanded. Heb. "did so."

into the house of the women, under the hand of Egeus, the eunuch, who is the overseer and keeper of the king's women, and let them receive women's ornaments, and other things necessary for their use.

4 And whosoever among them all shall please the king's eyes, let her be queen instead of Vasthi. The word pleased the king: and he commanded it should be done as they had suggested.

5 There was a man in the city of Susan, a Jew, named Mardochai, "the son of Jair, the son of Semei, the son of Cis, of the race of Jemini,

6 Who had been carried away from Jerusalem at the time that Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, carried away ^bJechonias, king of Juda,"

7 And he had brought up his brother's daughter, Edissa, who, by another name, was called Esther: now she had lost both her parents, and was exceedingly fair and beautiful. And her father and mother being dead, Mardochai adopted her for his daughter.

8 And when the king's ordinance was noised abroad, and, according to his commandment, many beautiful virgins were brought to Susan, and were delivered to Egeus, the eunuch: Esther, also, among the rest of the maidens, was delivered to him to be kept in the number of the women.

9 And she pleased him, and found favour in his sight. And he commanded the eunuch to hasten the women's ornaments, and to deliver to her her part, and seven of the most beautiful maidens of the king's house, and to adorn and deck out both her and her waiting-maids.

10 And she would not tell him her people nor her country. For Mardochai had charged her to say nothing at all of that:

11 And he walked every day before the court of the house, in which the chosen virgins were kept, having a care for Esther's welfare, and desiring to know what would befall her.

* Infra xi. 2.—^b 4 Kings xxiv. 15. Infra xi. 4.

VER. 5. Jew. He was of the tribe of Benjamin. But all went by this name, after the captivity. Mardochai had probably returned from Jerusalem, seeing things were unfinished there. 1 Est. ii. 2. C.—Semei, who cursed David. Chal.—Cis. The head of the royal family of Saul; whence authors have concluded that he and Esther were of royal blood, (C.) and descendants of Mi-phiboseth. T.

VER. 6. Who. This may refer to Cis, great-grandfather of Mardochai, if we postpone this history till the latter end of the Persian monarchy. D.—But it more naturally applies to Mardochai himself, who (C. xi. 4. T.) was led captive 80 years before, being then perhaps 10 years old, so that he would now be only 90; an age when many are fit for great things. C. Cic. de Senect.—He might even have been an infant when taken, and of course would not be much above 80 when he came into such favour. H.

VER. 7. Brothers. Josephus, (xi. 6.) the old Latin version of the Syr. Aben-ezra, &c. suppose that Mardochai was uncle to Esther. But the Heb. Syr. Gr. and Chal. assert that he was only her cousin. Sept. "daughter of Aminadab, (or rather Abihail, v. 15.) his father's brother, and her name was Esther; and after her parents were dead, he educated her for a wife;" its yivata, as some Rabbins also maintain, believing she was an heiress. Yet other Greek copies, Heb. &c. read, "he educated her as a daughter, byadrapa: for the damsel was very beautiful." He had probably adopted her. C.—Edissa. Heb. hadassa, (H.) or Hadassah, signifies "of myrtle." M.—Esther, "a sheep." C.

VER. 9. And he, Egeus, commanded the under eunuch. T.—Heb. "he quickly gave her things for purifications, (v. 3.) and her portions, with seven maids, suitable for her, out of the king's house; and he charged her and her maids to dwell in the best of the women's house," (II.) where things were the most-commodious. C.

VER. 10. Would. Heb. "had not declared." He was not influenced to treat her thus on account of her royal extracation. H.—In effect, the Jews were despised. C.

VER. 11. Court. He was one of the life-guards. C. xi. 3. T.—This situation enabled him to disclose a conspiracy, (v. 23. and C. xii. 5.) as he often went to enquire after the health of Esther. C.

12 Now when every virgin's turn came to go in to the king, after all had been done for setting them off to advantage, it was the twelfth month: so that for six months they were anointed with oil of myrrh, and for other six months they used certain perfumes and sweet spices.

13 And when they were going in to the king, whatsoever they asked to adorn themselves they received: and being decked out, as it pleased them, they passed from the chamber of the women to the king's chamber.

14 And she that went in at evening, came out in the morning, and from thence she was conducted to the second house, that was under the hand of Susagaz, the eunuch, who had the charge over the king's concubines: neither could she return any more to the king, unless the king desired it, and had ordered her, by name, to come.

15 And as the time came orderly about, the day was at hand, when Esther, the daughter of Abihail, the brother of Mardochai, whom he had adopted for his daughter, was to go in to the king. But she sought not women's ornaments, but whatsoever Egeus, the eunuch, the keeper of the virgins, had a mind, he gave her to adorn her. For she was exceedingly fair, and her incredible beauty made her appear agreeable, and amiable, in the eyes of all.

16 So she was brought to the chamber of king Assuerus the tenth month, which is called Tebeth, in the seventh year ^dof his reign.

17 And the king loved her more than all the women, and she had favour and kindness before him above all the women, and he set the royal crown on her head, and made her queen instead of Vasthi.

18 And he commanded a magnificent feast to be prepared for all the princes, and for his servants, for the marriage and wedding of Esther. And he gave rest to all the provinces, and bestowed gifts according to princely magnificence.

* A. M. 3485.—^d A. M. 3490, A. C. 514.

VER. 12. Turn. This was rigidly observed, in that country, where polygamy prevailed. Gen. xxx. 16. Herod. iii. 69.—The wives were "shut up in separate apartments," (Just. i. 9.) in the remotest parts of the palace. C.—Twelfth. A full year elapsed before they could be admitted.—A sweet. Prot. "other things for the purifying of the women." H.—It would be difficult to form an adequate idea of the luxury of the Persians, if the Scripture had not informed us. The kings were not satisfied with one wife. Assuerus had 400; (Josephus) and Darius Codomannus carried 360 with him, in his expeditions. Curt. iii.—Pammenio took an incredible number of his concubines, at Damascus. Athen. xiii. 9.—They were not all treated alike, but all were very sumptuously adorned. Cities were allotted to furnish one with sandals, another with girdles, &c. Cic. in Verrem. v. C.

VER. 15. Abihail. Sept. "Aminadab, brother of Mardochai's father." H. v. 7. VER. 16. Tenth. Sept. and old Vulg. "twelfth month, which is Adar." Tebeth corresponds with December and January. C.—Notwithstanding all exertions, Esther had been near four years in preparing; (T. C. i. 3. C.) unless some years had elapsed before she was brought, v. 12. H.—She was guilty of no sin in becoming an inferior wife of the king. M. T.

VER. 17. Crown. Lit. "diadem," (H.) which was a bandage "of purple striped with white," by which the queen was distinguished from the other wives. C.—The king wore "a four-square cidaris" with a similar ornament. Alex. Genial. i. 27.—Only one queen was chosen from all the wives, and she was "adored" by the rest. Dion. Athen. iii. 1.—Though God had forbidden marriages with infidels, (C.) at least with those of Chanaan, (H.) a dispensation might be granted, (Ex. xxxv. T. 2 K. iii. 3. W.) for a greater good. Esther was not puffed up with her exaltation, and refrained from all forbidden meats. C. xiv. 15. C.—If she be the Artystona of Herodotus, (vii. 69. H.) as it is most probable, (T.) her two sons, Arsames and Gobryas, had a command in the famous expedition of Xerxes. Usher, A. 3524. C.

VER. 18. Servants. Sept. add, "seven days, and he magnified the nuptials of Esther." H.—Rest, from labour. C.—Sept. "remission to all his subjects," of tribute, as was sometimes done. Herod. iii. 86. T. C.—Gifts, on Esther Chal. Malvenca.

19 And when the virgins were sought the second time, and gathered together, Mardochai stayed at the king's gate, 20 Neither had Esther as yet declared her country, and people, according to his commandment. For whatsoever he commanded, Esther observed: and she did all things in the same manner as she was wont at that time, when he brought her up a little one.

21 At that time, therefore, when Mardochai abode at the king's gate, Bagathan, and Thares, two of the king's eunuchs, who were porters, and presided in the first entry of the palace, were angry: and they designed to rise up against the king, and to kill him.

22 And Mardochai had notice of it, and immediately he told it to queen Esther: and she to the king in Mardochai's name, who had reported the thing unto her.

23 It was inquired into, and found out: and they were both hanged on a gibbet. And it was put in the histories, and recorded in the chronicles before the king.

CHAP. III.

Aman, advanced by the king, is offended at Mardochai, and therefore procureth the king's decree to destroy the whole nation of the Jews.

AFTER these things, king Assuerus advanced Aman, the son of Amadathi, who was of the race of Agag: and he set his throne above all the princes that were with him.

2 And all the king's servants, that were at the doors of the palace, bent their knees, and worshipped Aman: for so the emperor had commanded them; only Mardochai did not bend his knee, nor worship him.

3 And the king's servants that were chief at the doors of the palace, said to him: Why dost thou alone not observe the king's commandment?

4 And when they were saying this often, and he would not hearken to them, they told Aman, desirous to know whether he would continue in his resolution: for he had told them that he was a Jew.

5 Now when Aman had heard this, and had proved by experience that Mardochai did not bend his knee to him, nor worship him, he was exceedingly angry.

6 And he counted it as nothing to lay his hands upon Mardochai alone: for he had heard that he was of the nation of the Jews, and he chose rather to destroy all the nation of the Jews that were in the kingdom of Assuerus.

7 In the first month, (which is called Nisan) in the twelfth year^a of the reign of Assuerus, the lot was cast into an urn, which, in Hebrew, is called Phur, before Aman, on what day and what month the nation of the Jews should be destroyed: and there came out the twelfth month, which is called Adar.

8 And Aman said to king Assuerus: There is a people scattered through all the provinces of thy kingdom, and separated one from another, that use new laws and ceremonies, and moreover despise the king's ordinances: and thou knowest very well that it is not expedient for thy kingdom that they should grow insolent by impunity.

9 If it please thee, decree that they may be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents to thy treasurers.

10 And the king took the ring that he used, from his own hand, and gave it to Aman, the son of Amadathi, of the race of Agag, the enemy of the Jews,

11 And he said to him: As to the money which thou promisest, keep it for thyself: and as to the people, do with them as seemeth good to thee.

12^b And the king's scribes were called in the first month, Nisan, on the thirteenth day of the same month: and they wrote, as Aman had commanded, to all the

^a A. M. 3494, A. C. 510.

^b A. M. 3495.

VER. 19. And Sept. "But Mardochai," &c. H.—They say nothing of the gifts, v. 18.—Second. The same process had been observed before, when Vasthi was chosen. C.—Mardochai was perhaps then one of the king's guards. II. v. 11. T.—This second inquiry is here specified, to introduce the following account. M.

VER. 20. Commandment. No one interrogated her, as she had been educated at Susa, and was taken for a Persian lady, v. 10. M.

VER. 21. Bagathan, or Bagatha and Thara. C. xii. 1. One of the chief counsellors was called Bagatha. H.—But these two were porters, (C.) or guards, of the king, (Sept. Grot.) or of the treasury. Vatab.—Some Gr. copies and the Chal. insinuate that they were displeased at the advancement of Mardochai. The latter supposes that they meant also to poison Esther. C.—It appears that they wished to make Aman king, (M.) and the detection was always resented by him. C. xii. 6. C.

VER. 22. Notice of it, from Barnabaz, a Jew in the service of one of them. Joseph. xi. 6.—He might also hear some suspicious words. R. Calom. W.

VER. 23. King. Such histories were preserved with great care. 1 Esd. vi. 1. C.—Sept. "the king ordered a memorial of it to be kept in the royal library, for the praise of Mardochai's good will." H.—The latter also wrote an account. C. xii. 4.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Aman means, "a disturber." H.—Who. Sept. add, Bougaiois, or Gogaiois." Gog designates Scythia, where Aman might have been born. Pliny (iv. 12) places there the lake and river Bugeis. But the Bugean, in Greek, may mean, "greatly puffed up:" or it may stand for Bagas, "an eunuch," (Judith xii. 11.) like Putiphar.—Agag, the king of Amalec. 1 K. xv. This title, like that of Macedonian, (C. xvi. 10.) is probably used out of contempt, as the Jews frequently styled their enemies, "race of Chanaan." Ezeo. xvi. 3. Dan. xiii. 56. C.—Sulpitius takes Aman to have been a Persian. His Amalecite ancestors may have fled before Saul into Macedonia, though he himself resided in Persia, so as to belong to all those nations. T. M.—Throne. Thus were Joseph and Joakim exalted. Gen. xli. 40. and 4 K. xxv. 23. C.—The Persians gave places according to merit, (H.) or as a reward. Brisson.

VER. 2. Worship him, with divine honours, as he required, in imitation of the kings. Judith iii. 13. On certain solemn occasions, the latter at least exacted this respect from their subjects. But the pious Jews avoided appearing at such times, or the kings dispensed with them. The mere bending the knee, out of civil respect, would not have been objected to; and Mardochai says, he would not have refused to kiss the footsteps of Aman. C. xiii. 12. C. S. Tho.

2. 2. q. 84. T.—But he could not give such worship as was claimed by the minor gods. W.

VER. 4. Resolution. They did not mean to injure Mardochai, who had an employment at court. C. xii. 5. C.—Jew, and of course hindered by his religion from giving divine worship to any man. M.

VER. 6. Counted. Sept. "consulted how to exterminate all the Jews in the kingdom."—Assuerus. Heb. adds, "the people of Mardochai."

VER. 7. Lot. The Persians were much addicted to divination. The superstitious Aman, though he would appear a deity, was to be regulated by lots! Providence caused almost a whole year to intervene, before the cruel execution was to commence. C.—Reason began to shew the futility of divination, (Cicero) but the Christian religion alone has been able to counteract its baneful influence. C.—India is still much infected with it. Bernier.—Phur, Heb. "they cast Pur, that is the lot, before Aman." II.—The explanation intimates that Pur is a Persian word. D.—Yet Pagnin maintains that it means in Heb. "to crush," a wine-press, or vessel; and the lot, which is thrown therein. M.—Tickets, with the names of the twelve months, were probably drawn; and after the month was thus determined, Aman put in the urn as many tickets as it had days, and was directed to pitch upon the 13th. Sept. have the 14th, both here and v. 13. C.—How preposterous was the (H.) fury of this man, thus to decide upon the day before he had the king's leave! W.

VER. 8. Another, as the ten tribes were from Juda, or rather (H.) they were scattered about the empire. C.—Heb. "and dispersed; and their laws are different from all other people's; neither do they observe the king's laws: therefore it is not for the king's profit to tolerate them." H.—These are the old calumnies repeated by Tacitus, (Hist. v.) and ably refuted by Josephus. c. Ap. Almost all Israel still continued about Media. Few had taken advantage of the decree of Cyrus.

VER. 9. Talents. Heb. &c. add, "of silver." M.—If the Heb. talent be meant, this sum would be immense for an individual; (C.) though Aman might expect to raise it by the confiscation of the Jews' effects, v. 18. Some think he speaks of the Babylonian talent, on which supposition the sum would amount to twenty-one millions of French livres, (Bude. C.) or of the Attic one, which is worth half the Heb. talent. The king might thus be prevented from thinking that the tributes would be lessened. T.

VER. 10. Ring, to transfer his power to him, for the time. Gen. xli. 42. Alexander gave his ring to Perdiccas, and was generally supposed thus to designate him for his successor Justin. xii. See 1 Mac. vi. 14. 15.

king's lieutenants, and to the judges of the provinces, and of divers nations, as every nation could read, and hear, according to their different languages, in the name of king Assuerus: and the letters, sealed with his ring,

13 Were sent by the king's messengers to all provinces, to kill and destroy all the Jews, both young and old, little children, and women, in one day, that is, on the thirteenth of the twelfth month, which is called Adar, and to make a spoil of their goods.

14 And the contents of the letters were to this effect, that all provinces might know, and be ready against that day.

15 The couriers, that were sent, made haste to fulfil the king's commandment. And, immediately, the edict was hung up in Susan, the king and Aman feasting together, and all the Jews, that were in the city, weeping.

CHAP. IV.

Mardochai desireth Esther to petition the king for the Jews. They join in fasting and prayer.

NOW when Mardochai had heard these things, he rent his garments, and put on sackcloth, strewing ashes on his head: and he cried with a loud voice in the street, in the midst of the city, shewing the anguish of his mind.

2 And he came, lamenting in this manner, even to the gate of the palace: for no one clothed with sackcloth might enter the king's court.

3 And in all provinces, towns, and places, to which the king's cruel edict was come, there was great mourning among the Jews, with fasting, wailing, and weeping, many using sackcloth and ashes for their bed.

4 Then Esther's maids, and her eunuchs, went in, and told her. And when she heard it, she was in a consternation: and she sent a garment, to clothe him, and to take away the sackcloth; but he would not receive it.

5 And she called for Athach, the eunuch, whom the king had appointed to attend upon her, and she commanded him to go to Mardochai, and to learn of him, why he did this.

6 And Athach going out, went to Mardochai, who was standing in the street of the city, before the palace gate:

7 And Mardochai told him all that had happened, how Aman had promised to pay money into the king's treasures to have the Jews destroyed.

8 He gave him, also, a copy of the edict which was hanging up in Susan, that he should shew it to the queen, and admonish her to go in to the king, and to entreat him for her people.

9 And Athach went back and told Esther all that Mardochai had said.

10 She answered him, and bade him say to Mardochai:

11 All the king's servants, and all the provinces that are under his dominion, know that whosoever whether man or woman, cometh into the king's inner court, who is not called for, is immediately to be put to death without any delay: except the king shall hold out the golden sceptre to him, in token of clemency, that so he may live. How then can I go in to the king, who, for these thirty days now, have not been called unto him?

12 And when Mardochai had heard this,

13 He sent word to Esther again, saying: Think not that thou mayst save thy life only, because thou art in the king's house, more than all the Jews:

14 For if thou wilt now hold thy peace, the Jews shall be delivered by some other occasion: and thou, and thy father's house shall perish. And who knoweth whether thou art not, therefore, come to the kingdom, that thou mightest be ready in such a time as this?

15 And again Esther sent to Mardochai in these words:

16 Go, and gather together all the Jews whom thou

VER. 12. Lieutenants. Lit. "satrapa." Heb. achashdarpene, "courtiers," (H.) or those who are in the presence of his majesty, or porters. C.—They were entrusted with the care of the different provinces. H.

VER. 13. Messengers. Lit. "runners." H.—Posts were first established in Persia, and were the admiration of other nations, though nothing compared with ours, as they were not regular, nor for the people. They called these messengers Astandæ, or Angari. Mat. v. 41. Darius Condomanus was one of these postillions, before he came to the crown. C.—At first the kings had people stationed on eminences, at a convenient distance, to make themselves heard, when they had to communicate some public news. Diod. xix. p. 680.—Cyrus afterwards appointed horsemen, to succeed each other. Xenophon, Cyrop. viii.—Cæsar made some regulations on this head, which were perfected by Augustus and Adrian; but being neglected, Charlemagne strove to restore them: yet it is thought that the posts were not established, in France, till the reign of Louis XI. C.

VER. 14. Letter. It should appear here, as it is in Gr. but the Heb. &c. omitting it, the Vulg. gives it, C. xiii. 1.

VER. 15. Jews. Heb. "but the city of Susan was in perplexity." Gr. "troubled." C.—Even the pagans could not view such a cruel decree, without horror. H.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Shewing. Sept. old Vulg. and Josephus, "a nation which has done no wrong, is to be cut off." The eastern nations were accustomed to such marks of sorrow. Jon. ii. 6. The citizens of Susa tore their garments, and cried aloud, for many days after the defeat of Xerxes. Herod. viii. 98.—The domestics of Darius and Alexander tore also their hair, &c. after their masters' death. Curt. iii. and xi.

VER. 2. Sackcloth. Gr. adds, "and ashes." Such an appearance was deemed disrespectful. God forbids his priests to act thus. Lev. xxi. 1. See Gen. xli. 14. Yet the miserable ought not to be entirely excluded from the king's presence, as he ought to be their protector.

VER. 3. Edict. Lit. "dogma;" (H.) a word used in this sense, (Acts xv. 16.) and by Demosthenes, &c. T.—Mourning. The most effectual means of redress, is to do works of penance for past transgressions. 1 Cor. xi. 31. W.

VER. 4. Her, concerning the unusual distress of one of the courtiers. They new not, (M.) perhaps, that he was related to her. H.

VER. 7. Money. Heb. "the sum of money." Sept. "ten thousand talents."

VER. 8. Entreat. Sept. "to put in a counter-petition, and entreat," &c.—People. Sept. add, "and country, remembering the days of thy lowly state, how thou wast fed by my hand; for Aman, the second after the king, has spoken against us, to have us destroyed. Call then upon the Lord, and speak to the king for us, and rescue us from death." H.—This servant must have been very trusty, as the secret was confided to him, respecting the nation to which the queen belonged. M.

VER. 11. Inner court, with regard to many others around, though there was one still more retired, (T.) where the king alone could enter. This admitted the light only by the door, before which hung a curtain, so that the king could see (C.) who came into the hall of audience, (H.) without being seen. None durst come even to this antichamber, without being called. It was also death to appear with their hands out of their sleeves, (Cyrop. ii.) or to sit down, (Diod. xvii.) or look at any of the king's wives in the face, &c. Plat. Artax.—This gloomy retirement was intended to keep up the idea of his majesty being something more than man. H.—And Persas persona regis, sub specie majestatis, occultatur. Justin. i.—The king's secret cabinet (C.) resembled, in magnificence, (C. xv. 9.) the description which Ovid has given us of the palace of the sun. T.—It was covered with gold and precious stones. Here he continued, almost inaccessible, and business was despatched slowly. C.—Agessilaus, king of Sparta, shewed how ridiculous these customs were, by acting quite the reverse, appearing frequently among his subjects, and granting their just requests without delay. Xenophon.—Thirty. She might apprehend that the king's affection was beginning to cool. God was pleased thus to try her the more. H.

VER. 13. Only. Aman would contrive to effect her ruin with the rest.

VER. 14. Occasion. Wonderful confidence! Gr. "if thou wilt not hearken (C. to me; (H.) or, if thou obstinately despise) at this time, the Jews shall be assisted and protected by some," &c. H.—As this. So Joseph was raised, in Egypt, (C.) that he might save all his family. H.

VER. 16. Pray. Heb. "fast." They might take some refreshment in the evening, (Lyran) of dried meats. Joseph. Grot.—Few constitutions could have done without any thing. Yet after two nights and one full day were elapsed, Esther ventured to go to the king. C. v. 1. We have here another instance of places for prayer. Judith vi. 21. The old Vulg. has, "publish a fast, and court? for Aman was coming in to the inner court of the king's house, to speak to the king, that he might order Mardochai to be hanged upon the gibbet which was prepared for him.

5 The servants answered: Aman standeth in the court. And the king said: Let him come in.

6 And when he was come in, he said to him: What ought to be done to the man whom the king is desirous to honour? But Aman thinking in his heart, and supposing that the king would honour no other but himself,

7 Answered: The man whom the king desireth to honour,

8 Ought to be clothed with the king's apparel, and to be set upon the horse that the king rideth upon, and to have the royal crown upon his head,

9 And let the first of the king's princes and nobles hold his horse, and going through the street of the city, proclaim before him and say: Thus shall he be honoured, whom the king hath a mind to honour.

10 And the king said to him: Make haste and take the robe and the horse, and do as thou hast spoken to Mardochai, the Jew, who sitteth before the gates of the palace. Beware thou pass over any of those things which thou hast spoken.

11 So Aman took the robe and the horse, and arraying Mardochai in the street of the city, and setting him on the horse, went before him, and proclaimed: This honour is he worthy of, whom the king hath a mind to honour.

12 And Mardochai returned to the palace gate: and Aman made haste to go to his house, mourning, and having his head covered:

13 And he told Zares, his wife, and his friends, all that had befallen him. And the wise men whom he had in counsel, and his wife answered him: If Mardochai be of the seed of the Jews, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou canst not resist him, but thou shalt fall in his sight.

14 As they were yet speaking, the king's eunuchs came, and compelled him to go quickly to the banquet which the queen had prepared.

CHAP. VII.

Esther's petition for herself and her people: Aman is hanged upon the gibbet he had prepared for Mardochai.

SO *the king and Aman went in, to drink with the queen.

2 And the king said to her again the second day, after he was warm with wine: What is thy petition, Esther, that it may be granted thee? and what wilt thou have done? although thou ask the half of my kingdom, thou shalt have it.

3 Then she answered: If I have found favour in thy sight, O king, and if it please thee, give me my life for which I ask, and my people for which I request.

4 For we are given up, I and my people, to be destroyed, to be slain, and to perish. And would God we were sold for bond-men and bond-women: the evil might be borne with, and I would have mourned in silence: but now we have an enemy, whose cruelty redoundeth upon the king.

5 And king Assuerus answered, and said: Who is this, and of what power, that he should do these things?

6 And Esther said: It is this Aman that is our adversary and most wicked enemy. Aman hearing this, was forthwith astonished, not being able to bear the countenance of the king and of the queen.

7 But the king being angry rose up, and went from the place of the banquet into the garden set with trees. Aman also rose up, to entreat Esther, the queen, for his life, for he understood that evil was prepared for him by the king.

8 And when the king came back out of the garden set with trees, and entered into the place of the banquet, he found Aman was fallen upon the bed on which Esther lay, and he said: He will force the queen, also, in my presence, in my own house. The word was not

* A. M. 3495.

Herod. iii. 72. and 84. This king had himself come thither with six others, when they conspired to destroy Smerdis. Heb. &c. read "the outward court," in which Aman was, till he heard the king was awake, and called for him. C.

VER. 8. Apparel. Gr. "of byssus," which was very superb. C. xv. 9. The king alone could wear the tiara upright. The nobles wore it hanging backwards. Cyrus allowed his nobility to appear in purple, but he would have only his own robes striped with white. Cyrop. viii. Curt. iii.—The kings often made presents of garments, &c. to ambassadors, and to those who were styled "their relations."—Horse: 200 such appeared in the train of Cyrus, with golden bits, which none were permitted to use without special leave.—Head. Gr. seems to refer this to the horse, which might indeed have a sort of crown. But the golden one was more probably worn by the person honoured. C. viii. 15.

VER. 9. Nobles. Lit. "tyrants." H.—But this word was not formerly odious; as it only denoted "a prince." Pars mihi pacis erit dextram tetigisse tyranni. Æneid vii.—Abuse of power caused it to become hateful. T.

VER. 10. Spoken. The distinction was not for one day only. Mardochai might afterwards wear the tiara, &c. God thus clearly manifested that he would resist the proud, and give grace to the humble. S. Jam. iv. 6. The exaltation of Joseph in Egypt, (C.) and lately of Daniel at the court of Babylon, (T.) was hardly less wonderful. Gen. xli. Dan. vi. C.—We may easily conceive the astonishment which would fill the breast of Aman, as well as of Mardochai, on this occasion. The Greek published by Usher, has expressed these sentiments; (H.) and the Chaldee has added many embellishments, which are of no authority. C.

VER. 12. Covered. To hide his shame, (T.) as Demosthenes did, when the people kissed him. Plutarch. See 2 K. xv. Eze. xii. 6.

VER. 13. Wise men. Probably the magi, who concluded, from the first miscarriage, that the undertaking would prove abortive, (C.) as they were also informed of God's protection given repeatedly to the Jews. Sept. "because the living God is with him." Chal. They might have heard of the fate of Sennacherib and of Holofernes, (C.) or of God's promises, (Gen. xxi. and xv.) unless they were guided by human prudence. W.

VER. 14. Aa. Thus from morning till noon, (T.) or night, had this petty god

(H.) been forced to stoop to the meanest offices, and durst not say a word in opposition. T.—He would gladly have now absented himself from the feast, (M.) with the idea of which he had been enraptured. H.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Drink. Wine was only used at great feasts. Eccl. xxxi. 17. Water was served up first, from the river Choaspes only. The king and his eldest son were allowed to drink of "the golden waters," of which they alone had 70 fountains. Athen. xii. 2.—Their wine was brought from Chelbou, near Damascus. Id. i. 22. Eze. xxvii. 18. C.

VER. 3. People. She was more concerned for these than for half of the kingdom. Hence all fasted and prayed, and Esther obtained their deliverance. W.

VER. 4. Perish. Three terms of the same import express the greatness of the misery. H.—King. Whose revenue will be greatly impaired, (C.) and character injured, for having given such power to a monster. H.—The kings of Persia had taken many precautions not to be thus deluded, having appointed officers, who were styled "the eyes and ears" of the king, purposely to obtain all necessary information. But these eyes were often darkened; these ears were often deaf, (C.) and unwilling to act with fidelity; (H.) though their diligence in making secret transactions known, caused the people to look upon their kings as gods. Apul. Mund. Cyrop. viii. C.

VER. 5. What. Heb. "where, who durst entertain this design?" H.

VER. 6. Astonished. Horror of a guilty conscience is the first punishment S. Chrys. W.

VER. 7. Set. Heb. "of the palace," (H.) belonging to the queen. C.

VER. 8. My own. Heb. "will he force . . . in the house?" H.—Those who know with what jealousy the Persians treated their wives, so as to punish with death those who crossed the road before the queens, (Plut. Artax.) or touched them, will not wonder at the indignation of Assuerus, (C.) though his suspicions were groundless. H.—Aman wished to incline the queen to shew clemency, (M.) and intercede for him. He threw himself as a suppliant at her feet, as she lay on the bed at table. H.—Face. His crime was notorious; no trial was requisite, and the kings could treat their subjects as slaves. It was customary to cover the faces of those who were led to execution. Philotas was thus conducted into the presence of Alexander. Curt. vi.

yet gone out of the king's mouth, and immediately they covered his face.

9 And Harbona, one of the eunuchs that stood waiting on the king, said: Behold the gibbet which he hath prepared for Mardochai, who spoke for the king, standeth in Aman's house, being fifty cubits high. And the king said to him: Hang him upon it.

10 So Aman was hanged on the gibbet which he had prepared for Mardochai: and the king's wrath ceased.

CHAP. VIII.

Mardochai is advanced: Aman's letters are reversed.

ON that day king Assuerus gave the house of Aman, the Jews' enemy, to queen Esther, and Mardochai came in before the king. For Esther had confessed to him that he was her uncle.

2 And the king took the ring which he had commanded to be taken again from Aman, and gave it to Mardochai. And Esther set Mardochai over her house.

3 And not content with these things, she fell down at the king's feet and wept, and speaking to him, besought him that he would give orders that the malice of Aman, the Agagite, and his most wicked devices which he had invented against the Jews, should be of no effect.

4 But he, as the manner was, held out the golden sceptre with his hand, which was the sign of clemency: and she arose up and stood before him,

5 And said: If it please the king, and if I have found favour in his sight, and my request be not disagreeable to him, I beseech thee, that the former letters of Aman, the traitor, and enemy of the Jews, by which he commanded that they should be destroyed in all the king's provinces, may be reversed by new letters.

6 For how can I endure the murdering and slaughter of my people?

7 And king Assuerus answered Esther, the queen, and Mardochai, the Jew: I have given Aman's house to Esther, and I have commanded him to be hanged on a gibbet, because he durst lay hands on the Jews.

8 Write ye, therefore, to the Jews, as it pleaseth you in the king's name, and seal the letters with my ring. For this was the custom, that no man durst gainsay the

* A. M. 3495.

VER. 9. Harbona. Cr. "Bougathan." H.—He had been to call Aman to the feast. Jos.—Little dependence is to be had on false friendship, when a man is disgraced. W.—Upon it. His body was perhaps afterwards exposed in the street. C. xvi. 18. It is not clear that he was nailed to the cross, though this custom prevailed in the country. 1 Esd. vi. 11. Alexander crucified many satraps. Curt. ix.—The old Vulg. observes that the wife and ten children of Aman suffered with him. C. ix. 6. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. House, and furniture. Sept. "all the possessions of Aman, the devil," (accuser, &c. H.) which were confiscated for treason; and no one had a better title than the queen, whose life had been in such danger. Yet she did not touch the estates of the children, v. 18. C. ix. 10.—King. In the place of Aman. C. ix. 4. and x. 3.—Uncle, or cousin. C.

VER. 2. Aman. It seems the traitor had hitherto kept possession of it, and sealed the king's edicts, as Mardochai was now to do, v. 8.—House. Heb. &c. "of Aman," to whom it had belonged. C.

VER. 3. Down. Such reverence is due to God's representatives, whatever heretics may say. Jude 8.

VER. 5. To him. Heb. adds, "and I be pleasing in his eyes," which had been expressed just before. Yet she might insist on this point, as it shewed a greater regard for the king's pleasure.—I beseech. Heb. "let it be written, to reverse the device of Aman, the son," &c. H.—When the edict was not sealed by the nobles, it might be altered; (C. i. 19.) and at any rate, when the king had been to visibly imposed upon, in an affair of such consequence, justice dictated that it should not be enforced. C.

VER. 7. Durst. Heb. "laid." He had sufficiently manifested his intention to destroy them, though he had not been able to injure any one. H.

letters which were sent in the king's name, and were sealed with his ring.

9 Then the king's scribes and secretaries were called for (now it was the time of the third month, which is called Siban) the three and twentieth day of the month, and letters were written, as Mardochai had a mind, to the Jews, and to the governors, and to the deputies, and to the judges, who were rulers over the hundred and twenty-seven provinces, from India even to Ethiopia: to province and province, to people and people, according to their languages and characters, and to the Jews, according as they could read and hear.

10 And these letters which were sent in the king's name, were sealed with his ring, and sent by posts: who were to run through all the provinces, to prevent the former letters with new messages.

11 And the king gave orders to them, to speak to the Jews in every city, and to command them to gather themselves together, and to stand for their lives, and to kill and destroy all their enemies, with their wives and children, and all their houses, and to take their spoil.

12 And one day of revenge was appointed through all the provinces, to wit, the thirteenth of the twelfth month, Adar.

13 And this was the content of the letter, that it should be notified in all lands and peoples that were subject to the empire of king Assuerus, that the Jews were ready to be revenged of their enemies.

14 So the swift posts went out carrying the messages, and the king's edict was hung up in Susan.

15 And Mardochai going forth out of the palace, and from the king's presence, shone in royal apparel, to wit, of violet and sky-colour, wearing a golden crown on his head, and clothed with a cloak of silk and purple. And all the city rejoiced, and was glad.

16 But to the Jews a new light seemed to rise, joy, honour, and dancing.

17 And in all peoples, cities, and provinces, whithersoever the king's commandments came, there was wonderful rejoicing feasts, and banquets, and keeping holyday; insomuch that many of other nations and religion, joined themselves to their worship and ceremonies. For a great dread of the name of the Jews had fallen upon all.

VER. 8. This. Heb. "no one may reverse the letter," &c.

VER. 9. Third. Rom. Sept. "first . . . Nisan," ten days after Aman's decree, who seems to have been presently brought to judgment. Yet two whole months might easily elapse, (C.) and ten days more; before this contrary edict was dispatched. H.—The day of slaughter was still remote. M.

VER. 10. Posts, who had a right to make use of any person's horse, &c. M.—Who. Prot. "on horseback, and riders on mules, camels, and young dromedaries." H.—The original terms greatly embarrass interpreters. C.—Sept. have simply, "he sent the writings by letter-carriers, ordering them to follow their own laws in every city, to help themselves, and treat their adversaries and opponents as they pleased, on one day . . . the 13th . . . of Adar. This is a copy," &c. C. xvi. H.

VER. 11. Spoil. This was retaliating, as they were to have been treated in like manner. C.—Such were the barbarous customs of the country. H.—It might not still be lawful thus to involve the innocent with the guilty, though the king did not ill in allowing the Jews to stand up in their own defence. 2 K. xxi. 6. Some think that they were only to prevent the execution of the former edict, which could not be revoked. See C. iii. C.—A form of trial was observed. C. xvi. 20. M.

VER. 15. Cloak. The kings wore one of purple, over their purple and white tunic. Cyrop. viii.—Gr. have "diadem." C.

VER. 17. Ceremonies. Becoming acquainted with the sanctity of the law, and the protection which God gave to his people. M.—Heb. "the Jews had joy and gladness, a feast, and a good day, and many of the people of the land became Jews; for the fear of the Jews," &c. Prot. H.

CHAP. IX. VER. 1. As. Heb. "(which is the month of Adar) when the

CHAP. IX.

The Jews kill their enemies that would have killed them. The days of Phurim are appointed to be kept holy.

SO on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which, as we have said above, is called Adar, when all the Jews were designed to be massacred, and their enemies were greedy after their blood, the case being altered, the Jews began to have the upper hand, and to revenge themselves of their adversaries.

2 And they gathered themselves together in every city, and town, and place, to lay their hands on their enemies, and their persecutors. And no one durst withstand them, for the fear of their power had gone through every people.

3 And the judges of the provinces, and the governors, and lieutenants, and every one in dignity, that presided over every place and work, extolled the Jews, for fear of Mardochai:

4 For they knew him to be prince of the palace, and to have great power: and the fame of his name increased daily, and was spread abroad through all men's mouths.

5 So the Jews made a great slaughter of their enemies, and killed them, repaying them according to what they had prepared to do to them:

6 Inasmuch that even in Susan they killed five hundred men, besides the ten sons of Aman, the Agagite, the enemy of the Jews: whose names are these:

7 Pharsandatha, and Delphon, and Esphatha,

8 And Phoratha, and Adalia, and Aridatha,

9 And Phermesta, and Arisai, and Aridai, and Jezatha.

10 And when they had slain them, they would not touch the spoils of their goods.

11 And presently the number of them that were killed in Susan was brought to the king.

12 And he said to the queen: The Jews have killed five hundred men in the city of Susan, besides the ten sons of Aman: how many dost thou think they have slain in all the provinces? What askest thou more, and what wilt thou have me to command to be done?

* A. M. 3496, A. C. 508.

13 And she answered: If it please the king, let it be granted to the Jews, to do to-morrow, in Susan, as they have done to-day, and that the ten sons of Aman may be hanged upon gibbets.

14 And the king commanded that it should be so done. And forthwith the edict was hung up in Susan, and the ten sons of Aman were hanged.

15 And on the fourteenth day of the month Adar, the Jews gathered themselves together, and they killed, in Susan, three hundred men: but they took not their substance.

16 Moreover, through all the provinces which were subject to the king's dominion, the Jews stood for their lives, and slew their enemies and persecutors: inasmuch that the number of them that were killed amounted to seventy-five thousand, and no man took any of their goods.

17 Now the thirteenth day of the month, Adar, was the first day with them all of the slaughter, and on the fourteenth day they left off. Which they ordained to be kept holyday, so that all times hereafter they should celebrate it with feasting, joy, and banquets.

18 But they that had killed in the city of Susan, were employed in the slaughter on the thirteenth and fourteenth day of the same month: and on the fifteenth day they rested. And, therefore, they appointed that day to be a holyday of feasting and gladness.

19 But those Jews that dwelt in towns, not walled, and in villages, appointed the fourteenth day of the month, Adar, for banquets and gladness, so as to rejoice on that day, and send one another portions of their banquets and meats.

20 And Mardochai wrote all these things, and sent them comprised in letters to the Jews that abode in all the king's provinces, both those that lay near, and those afar off,

21 That they should receive the fourteenth and fifteenth day of the month, Adar, for holydays, and always, king's command and edict drew near to be executed, in that day when the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, (though it turned out that the Jews had dominion over those who hated them.)" H.—To revenge, &c. The Jews, on this occasion, by authority from the king, were made executioners of the public justice, for punishing by death a crime worthy of death, viz. a malicious conspiracy for extirpating their whole nation; (Ch.) so inscrutable are the judgments of God, who never wholly abandoned his people! The old Vulg. passes over the first 19 verses, with the 24th, 25th, and 28th. C.—In this whole history we cannot but admire the Providence of God. W.

VER. 8. Extolled. Prot. "helped." Sept. "the king's secretaries honoured the Jews." H.

VER. 6. Sons. It seems as if they had been slain with their father, v. 10. See C. vii. 9. C.—Yet, as the contrary would appear from C. xvi. 18, we may suppose that they were at least (H.) imprisoned till this time, for a more exemplary punishment, while all the rest of the family perished with Aman. Serar. Salien. M.—These are the kindred, specified nine months before. C. xvi. T.—Some Masorets childishly (H.) write these ten names one over another, and with greater and less letters, to shew that they were hung one above another, and that the guilt of all was not the same, but the youngest son was the most malicious. Kennicott.

VER. 10. Goods. in any place, (T.) that they might not appear to be actuated by the desire of riches, (C.) to fall upon the innocent. How often does this fatal cause blind Christian conquerors! The sons of Aman were married, and had separate establishments. C. viii. 1.

VER. 13. Susan. Aman's influence had been the greatest there, and had stirred up many enemies to the Jews, who were to be carefully sought out. H.—If we should consider only the dictates of clemency, we should think that the Jews were too eager in their revenge. But when we reflect, that their enemies had intended to destroy them all, and to seize their effects, we shall allow that they did not exceed the limits of justice, as they acted by royal authority, and abstained from touching any effects of the deceased. C.—In the capital, 800 men fell victims to their fury. But as the citizens of that place were probably the most guilty, we must not imagine that other cities would be treated with the like severity. H.—Gibbets, for a terror to the wicked. M.—This disgrace was not unusual. C. xvi. 18. Polycrates was treated thus. Herod. iii. 125.

VER. 16. Lives. In many cases they would probably be attacked, as Aman's edict was perhaps still in force, as well as that of Mardochni. Hence both parties would be upon the watch. H.—Seventy-five. Rom. Sept. has only 15,000. Complut. 10,085. C.

VER. 19. Meats, not only to the poor, but to all their friends, v. 22, and 2 Esd. viii. 10. C.

VER. 21. Receive. Prot. "establish this among them, that they should keep the 14th . . . yearly." 2 Mac. xv. 37. H.—None were obliged to keep more than one of these days, according to their respective dwellings. The 14th was for the provinces, the 15th for the Jews of Susan, v. 18. T. C. W.—Yet it would seem that both days were enjoined, v. 27, 28. H.—The Jews still observe, them, as they gratify their vanity and vindictive spirit. The 13th is kept a rigid fast, for all above sixteen, for twenty-four hours, during which they eat nothing. C.—If that day should be the sabbath, or its eve, they fast on the 11th or 12th Drusus.—The day before the festival they give alms to their poor brethren, enjoining them to consume the whole in making good cheer. Each person must then contribute the half sicle, (Ex. xxx. 13.) which is bestowed on those who undertake a pilgrimage to the land of promise. At night, when the feast commences, they light the lamps, and begin to read the Book of Esther, as soon as the stars appear. They use an old parchment MS. roll, and, in five places, the reader shouts with all his might, running over the names of the ten sons of Aman with all haste, to shew that they all died in a moment. Whenever Aman is mentioned, the children beat the benches with mallets; and formerly they used to strike at a stone on which his name was cut, till it broke, v. 31. After the lecture, they take a repast at home. Early the next morning they return to the synagogue, and read the account of Amalec from the Pentateuch, and repeat the Book of Esther, with the aforesaid ceremonies. The rest of the day the at the return of the year, should celebrate them with solemn honour :

22 Because, on those days, the Jews revenged themselves of their enemies, and their mourning and sorrow were turned into mirth and joy, and that these should be days of feasting and gladness, in which they should send one to another portions of meats, and should give gifts to the poor.

23 And the Jews undertook to observe, with solemnity, all that they had begun to do at that time, which Mardochai, by letters, had commanded to be done.

24 For Aman, the son of Amadathi, of the race of Agag, the enemy and adversary of the Jews, had devised evil against them, to kill them, and destroy them : and had cast Phur, that is, the lot.

25 And, afterwards, Esther went in to the king, beseeching him that his endeavours might be made void by the king's letters : and the evil that he had intended against the Jews, might return upon his own head. And so both he and his sons were hanged upon gibbets.

26 And since that time, these days are called Phurim, that is, of lots : because Phur, that is, the lot, was cast into the urn. And all things that were done, are contained in the volume of this epistle, that is, of this book :

27 And the things that they suffered, and that were afterwards changed, the Jews took upon themselves and their seed, and upon all that had a mind to be joined to their religion, so that it should be lawful for none to pass these days without solemnity : which the writing testifieth, and certain times require, as the years continually succeed one another.

28 These are the days which shall never be forgot : and which all provinces in the whole world shall celebrate throughout all generations : neither is there any city wherein the days of Phurim, that is, of lots, must not be observed by the Jews, and by their posterity which is bound to these ceremonies.

29 And Esther, the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mardochai, the Jew, wrote also a second epistle, that with all diligence, this day should be established a festival for the time to come.

30 And they sent to all the Jews that were in the hundred and twenty-seven provinces of king Assuerus, that they should have peace and receive truth,

31 And observe the days of lots, and celebrate them with joy in their proper time : as Mardochai and Esther had appointed, and they undertook them to be observed by themselves, and by their seed, fasts, and cries, and the days of lots, 32 And all things which are contained in the history of this book, which is called Esther.

CHAP. X.

Assuerus's greatness. Mardochai's dignity.

AND king Assuerus made all the land, and all the islands of the sea, tributary.

2 And his strength and his empire, and the dignity and greatness wherewith he exalted Mardochai, are written in the books of the Medes, and of the Persians :

3 And how Mardochai, of the race of the Jews, was next after king Assuerus : and great among the Jews, and acceptable to the people of his brethren, seeking the good of his people, and speaking those things which were for the welfare of his seed.

4 Then Mardochai said : God hath done these things.

5 I remember a dream that I saw, which signified these same things : and nothing thereof hath failed.

6 The little fountain which grew into a river, and was turned into a light, and into the sun, and abounded into many waters, is Esther, whom the king married, and made queen.

7 But the two dragons ; are I, and Aman.

8 The nations that were assembled ; are they that endeavoured to destroy the name of the Jews.

spend in merriment. Their teachers allow them to drink till they are unable to distinguish the name of Aman from that of Mardochai. Basnage, vi. 15.—They also change clothes, in contradiction to the law ; (Deut. xxii. 5) and were formerly accustomed to crucify a man of straw, which they burnt with the cross, till Christian emperors put a stop to them ; as it was concluded, from their curses, &c. that they had an eye to our Saviour. C. See C. v. 14. H.

VER. 25. And. Heb. "But when she came." Sept. "and how he came to the king, asking leave to hang Mardochai. But his machinations against the Jews, turned upon his own head ; and so," &c. H.

VER. 28. Ceremonies. The king also enjoined (C. xvi. 22.) all his subjects (T.) to keep a day of rejoicing, (H.) as the death of Aman was deemed a public benefit. C.

VER. 29. Second. The first might be the edict, (C. viii. 9.) or else the provisional establishment of the festival, as it could not have general authority till it was ratified by the high priest ; after which, this second letter was dispatched. C.—Sept. "and queen Esther, daughter of Aminadab, &c. . . wrote all that they had done, and also the confirmation of the epistle of the Phourai." They should say Phurim, as the former word means "guards." Heb. "wrote with all authority, to confirm this second letter of Purim ;" (Prot. H.) or rather, "this letter, Phurim, of which this is a copy." The Rom. Sept. only add for this and the following chapter, to v. 9 : "They set them apart during their lives, and by their advice ; (C. Ed. Alex. "for their health and counsel.") and Esther established for ever, and wrote as a memorial: My nation," &c. H.

VER. 30. Peace : receive these glad tidings, and faithfully observe the injunctions. C.

VER. 31. Fasts and cries. See v. 21. C.—Prot. "the matters of their fastings and their cry : and the decree of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim, and it was written in the book." H.—This feast, instituted by Mardochai, was accepted and observed by the Jews as a constitution agreeable to, and not contrary to, the law. Deut. iv. 2. and xii. 32. W.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Land. He conquered many countries on the continent, and several to which he could not come but by water, which the Jews call islands, whether they were surrounded on all sides by the sea or not. Heb. has not the word all ; but as the expressions are indefinite, they are usually taken in this sense. Yet we must not suppose, that the dominion of Assuerus extended over the whole world, no more than that of the Romans, who were styled masters of it. Before this king, the provinces had not paid tribute, but gave what they judged proper. But Darius laid a heavy tribute upon all, that, when half was afterwards remitted, they might esteem it a favour. The Persians hence looked upon him as a trafficker : καπηλος. Herod. iii. 89. and iv. 44. and vi. 7 &c. C. —Providence punished them for thirsting after the possessions and blood of the Jews. T.

VER. 3. Seed. Benjamin (Itin.) informs us, that both he and the queen were buried in the chief city of the Medes, which he calls "the great Hamda ;" perhaps the province Mardochæa, (or Apodaxia. Ptol. v. 20.) near the Persian gulf, may have been called after this statesman. T.

VER. 4. Then Mardochai, &c. Here S. Jerom adviseth the reader, that what follows is not in the Hebrew ; but is found in the Sept. Greek edition, which the 72 interpreters translated out of the Hebrew, or added by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. Ch.—He says, "What is extant in Heb. I have faithfully translated. What follows I found in the Vulg. edition, contained in the Greek language and character : and in the mean time, or waving all dispute for the present, (interim) this little chapter was inserted at the end of the book, which, according to our custom, we have marked with an obel or spit." H.—These fragments (H.) which the Sept. might have in Heb. or wrote by inspiration, (W.) are not in Chal. or Syr. and the old Latin version, taken from the Greek (C.) of Lysimachus, (C. xi. 1. H.) is inserted by S. Jerom. C.—Things. He attributes the salvation of the Jews to God alone. H.—Reflecting on the fall of Aman, (T.) he recollects a dream which he had formerly had. H.

VER. 5. A dream. This dream was prophetic and extraordinary, otherwise the general rule is, not to observe dreams. Ch.

VER. 6. And was. Sept. "and there was light, and the sun and much water." The light enabled him to discern the progress of the little fountain. Yet it was not absurd that the water should appear luminous, like the sun, as it was intended to shew the wonderful exaltation of Esther. H.—She extinguished a great fire, which threatened ruin. M.

VER. 10. Lots. Alluding to the Purim of Aman ; (C. Capel.) or rather these are only mentioned, v. 13. Houbigant.—Gr. "He had therefore made two lots."

9 And my nation is Israel, who cried to the Lord, and the Lord saved his people: and he delivered us from all evils, and hath wrought great signs and wonders among the nations:

10 And he commanded that there should be two lots, one of the people of God, and the other of all the nations.

11 And both lots came to the day appointed already from that time before God to all nations:

12 And the Lord remembered his people, and had mercy on his inheritance.

13 And these days shall be observed in the month of Adar, on the fourteenth, and fifteenth day of the same month, with all diligence, and joy of the people, gathered into one assembly, throughout all the generations, hereafter, of the people of Israel.

CHAP. XI.

The dream of Mardochai, which, in the ancient Greek and Latin Bibles, was in the beginning of the book, but was detached by S. Jerom, and put in this place.

IN the fourth year ^a of the reign of Ptolemy and Cleopatra, Dositheus, who said he was a priest, and of the Levitical race, and Ptolemy, his son, brought this epistle of Phurim, which they said Lysimachus, the son of Ptolemy, had interpreted in Jerusalem.

2 In the second year ^b of the reign of Artaxerxes the great, in the first day of the month Nisan, Mardochai, the son of Jair, the son of Semei, the son of Cis, of the tribe of Benjamin:

3 A Jew, who dwelt in the city of Susan, a great man, and among the first of the king's court, had a dream.

4 ^c Now he was of the number of the captives, whom Nabuchodonosor, king of Babylon, had carried away from Jerusalem, with Jechonias, king of Juda:

5 And this was his dream: Behold there were voices, and tumults, and thunders, and earthquakes, and a disturbance upon the earth.

6 ^d And behold two great dragons came forth ready to fight one against another.

^a A. M. 3827, A. C. 177.—^b A. M. 3484, A. C. 520.

.... and the two lots came to the hour and time and day of judgment before God, and for all nations." H.

VER. 11. Time. From all eternity (T.) God had ordained to save his people; and this he declared to his servant, by shewing him two lots. H.—This became more intelligible after the event, (T.) like other predictions. H.

VER. 12. Mercy. Gr. "justified." But this often means, shewed mercy. Ex. xxxiv. 7. C.—The book concludes in Greek with the first verse, which we have in the following chapter, though some editions seem (H.) to have had that remark (D.) of the Alexandrian Jews, (C.) at the head of the book. H.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Cleopatra. So the kings and queens of Egypt were styled after Lagus, whence we can only gather, that this translation was brought after the reign of Alexander, and most probably under Philometer, the sixth of his successors. He was a great admirer of the Jews, and employed one Dositheus as his general, who might be the priest here mentioned; as such an office was not incompatible with his character. T.—Usher is of this opinion. See Jos. con. Ap. ii. But would he then be mentioned as if he had been a person almost unknown? C.—We may say that he only raised himself by merit, after this time. H.—Philometer reigned 177 years, B. C. The Sept. (C.) who gave their version in the 7th year of Philadelphus, (S. Epip.) were not the authors of the Gr. edition of Esther; (C.) or perhaps, they may have adopted this of Lysimachus, (Huet. D.) as far as it went; the letter of Purim being only the groundwork of this history. If they did, Lysimachus must have lived before the time of Philometer; or what seems as probable, (H.) that celebrated version has been made by different authors, and at different times. Hody.—Jerusalem. Here S. Jerom subjoins, "This beginning was also in the Vulg. edition, which does not occur in Heb. or in any interpreter," (H.) except the Sept. W.—This must be referred to what follows.

VER. 2. Second year, the same when Darius gave an edict for building the temple, (1 Esd. iv. T.) and the year before the great feast, (C. 1. 3.) when the Jews little thought of such danger hanging over them. C. W.—Benjamin. C. ii. 5. we read Jemini, which shews that they have the same import. T.

VER. 3. Court, afterwards. C.—He had a dream in the second year. Houbigant.

7 And at their cry all nations were stirred up to fight against the nation of the just.

8 And that was a day of darkness and danger, of tribulation and distress, and great fear upon the earth.

9 And the nation of the just was troubled, fearing their own evils, and was prepared for death.

10 And they cried to God: and as they were crying, a little fountain grew into a very great river, and abounded into many waters.

11 The light and the sun rose up, and the humble were exalted, and they devoured the glorious.

12 And when Mardochai had seen this, and arose out of his bed, he was thinking what God would do: and he kept it fixed in his mind, desirous to know what the dream should signify.

CHAP. XII.

Mardochai detects the conspiracy of the two eunuchs.

AND ^a he abode at that time in the king's court with Bagatha, and Thara, the king's eunuchs, who were porters of the palace.

2 And when he, understood their designs, and had diligently searched into their projects, he learned that they went about to lay violent hands on king Artaxerxes, and he told the king thereof.

3 Then the king had them both examined; and after they had confessed, commanded them to be put to death.

4 But the king made a record of what was done: and Mardochai also committed the memory of the thing to writing.

5 And the king commanded him, to abide in the court of the palace, and gave him presents for the information.

6 But Aman, the son of Amadathi, the Bugite, was in great honour with the king, and sought to hurt Mardochai and his people, because of the two eunuchs of the king who were put to death.

^c 4 Kings xxiv. 15. Supra ii. 6.—^d Supra x. 7.—^e Supra ii. 21. and vi. 2.

VER. 4. Juda. This has been noticed already. C. ii. 5. But we need not be surprized at such repetitions. We find the like in the books of Moses, and 1 K. xvi. 10. and xvii. 12. &c. H.—S. Jerom says, "Librum Esther variis translationibus constat esse vitiatum;" or, various historical documents may have been improperly inserted in the Greek, though they be true; and therefore S. Jerom has rightly removed them to the end. Houbigant.

VER. 7. Cry. While Aman was full of indignation against Mardochai, and the latter would not submit to adore him, the various nations of the empire were instigated to fall upon the Jews. H.

VER. 10. Waters. Esther, by her tears, extinguished the rising flame. W.

VER. 11. Rose up. A bright sun (T.) represented God, (C.) or the king Grotius.

VER. 12. Signify. He was convinced that it was from heaven. C.

CHAP. XII. VER. 1. At that time, is not in Greek. Capellus therefore argues in vain against the Greek author, as if this event took place in the 2d year. Houbigant.—The expression often occurs in Scripture, without determining the precise time. H.

VER. 2. When. Gr. "for he heard their deliberations."—Told, by the mouth of Esther. C. ii. 21. H.

VER. 5. Palace, as an officer.—Presents, of small value. C.—The king had inquired, (Gr. C. vi. 3.) "What glory or favour have we done to Mardochai? and the ministers replied: Thou hast done nothing to him," to honour him as he deserves.

VER. 6. Bugite, may refer to some town of Macedon. C. iii. 1.—Honour. Yet he might be still more exalted, after the conspiracy was detected; (Houbig.) as the king little suspected that he was concerned in it. H.—Death. It is thought that they wished to place Aman, or some Macedonian, on the throne. C. xvi. 12. 14. C.—This reason for the malevolence of Aman, might be unknown to Mardochai. C. xiii. 12. Houbigant.—The former was either a favourer of traitors, or perhaps of the same conspiracy. W.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. "Hitherto," S. Jerom observes, "the preface extends what follows, was placed in that part of the volume where it is written, And they, &c. (C. iii. 12. where the edict should naturally appear. C.) which we have

CHAP. XIII.

A copy of a letter sent by Aman to destroy the Jews. Mardochai's prayer for the people.

AND this was the copy of the letter. Artaxerxes, the great king, who reigneth from India to Ethiopia, to the princes and governors of the hundred and twenty-seven provinces, that are subject to his empire, greeting.

2 Whereas I reigned over many nations, and had brought all the world under my dominion, I was not willing to abuse the greatness of my power, but to govern my subjects with clemency and lenity, that they might live quietly without any terror, and might enjoy peace, which is desired by all men.

3 But when I asked my counsellors how this might be accomplished, one that excelled the rest in wisdom and fidelity, and was second after the king, Aman by name,

4 Told me that there was a people scattered through the whole world, which used new laws, and acted against the customs of all nations, despised the commandments of kings, and violated by their opposition the concord of all nations.

5 Wherefore having learned this, and seeing one nation in opposition to all mankind, using perverse laws, and going against our commandments, and disturbing the peace and concord of the provinces subject to us,

6 We have commanded, that all whom Aman shall mark out, who is chief over all the provinces, and second after the king, and whom we honour as a father, shall be utterly destroyed by their enemies, with their wives and children, and that none shall have pity on them, on the fourteenth day of the twelfth month, Adar, of this present year :

7 That these wicked men going down to hell in one day, may restore to our empire the peace which they had disturbed.

8 But Mardochai besought the Lord, remembering all his works, found only in the Vulg. edition." H.—Josephus produces this edict at length, but with some variations, (C.) which are of no importance. H.

VER. 2. World. This is an exaggeration. Princes are flattered with high titles, but none more so than those of the East. C.—Quietly. Lit. "in silence." Gr. "undisturbed by the stormy billows, (ἀκυσταρτος) at all times; and that the kingdom might be rendered quiet, and the roads unmolested, to the very extremities; that peace, which is desired by all men, may be renewed." How amiable are these dispositions, which ought to be cherished by all princes! We might then hope soon to see peace restored. H.

VER. 3. After. Gr. "of all kingdoms as a reward, Aman shewed me," &c. Josephus, "the second after me, for his fidelity and confirmed good will." C.—It is a great hurt for a king to be governed by one counsellor. Prov. xv. 22. W.

VER. 4. A people. Gr. "a certain perverse people, mixed with every tribe through," &c.—New. Gr. "opposite to those of every nation, which always casteth aside the edicts of kings, so that we cannot extend to them that upright and blameless dominion which we exercise over you."

VER. 6. Second. Gr. "our second father." C.—Compl. "the second after us, shall be all extirpated by," &c. H.—This king is represented as very stupidly giving orders for the destruction of a nation which he never names; (Capel.) but he intimates that Aman would do it, in whom he placed the most unbounded confidence. H.—If the latter had any suspicions of the queen's being of that nation, he might very prudently abstain from mentioning the Jews even to the king, contenting himself with describing them so that they would easily be known by his agents; and, in effect, the king sufficiently pointed out the Jews, by saying that they followed laws different from all the world. Houbigant. —Infidels generally represented them as a wicked race, enemies to all but their own nation. Tacitus, &c.—We need not wonder if Catholics be painted in the same colours, as the devil is still the same. H.—Fourteenth. Josephus has the same day, though the 13th is specified in Heb. &c. (C. iii. 12.) and in the Gr. and Vulg. C. xvi. 20. We must, therefore, allow that the Jews might be slaughtered on both days, or that the Greek is incorrect in this place. C.—Seven thinks it would not be lawful to spare the Jews any longer than the 9 And said: O Lord, Lord, almighty king, for all things are in thy power, and there is none that can resist thy will, if thou determine to save Israel.

10 Thou hast made heaven and earth, and all things that are under the cope of heaven.

11 Thou art Lord of all, and there is none that can resist thy majesty.

12 Thou knowest all things, and thou knowest that it was not out of pride and contempt, or any desire of glory, that I refused to worship the proud Aman,

13 (For I would willingly and readily for the salvation of Israel have kissed even the steps of his feet,)

14 But I feared lest I should transfer the honour of my God to a man, and lest I should adore any one except my God.

15 And now, O Lord, O king, O God of Abraham, have mercy on thy people, because our enemies resolve to destroy us, and extinguish thy inheritance.

16 Despise not thy portion, which thou hast redeemed for thyself out of Egypt.

17 Hear my supplication, and be merciful to thy lot and inheritance, and turn our mourning into joy, that we may live and praise thy name, O Lord, and shut not the mouths of them that sing to thee.

18 And all Israel, with like mind and supplication, cried to the Lord, because they saw certain death hanging over their heads.

CHAP. XIV.

The prayer of Esther, for herself and her people.

QUEEN Esther, also, fearing the danger that was at hand, had recourse to the Lord.

2 And when she had laid away her royal apparel, she put on garments suitable for weeping and mourning, instead of divers precious ointments, she covered her head with ashes and dung, and she humbled her body with fasts: and all the places in which before she was accustomed to rejoice, she filled with her torn hair.

3 And she prayed to the Lord, the God of Israel, saying: O my Lord, who alone art our king, help

14th day; (M.) or the carnage was to cease on the 14th, as it did at Susa. C. ix. 17. 19. T.

VER. 7. Hell. Prot. "grave." The king only wanted to send them out of this world. At the end of this verse, S. Jeron says, "Hitherto is given the copy of the epistle. I found what follows after that place where we read, So Mardochai, &c. (C. iv. 17.) yet it is not in Heb. nor does it appear in any of the interpreters." H.—He means, Aquila, &c. For he plainly asserts before, that it was in the Septuagint, which he calls the Vulgate; and all know that this version was taken from the Heb. The Church reads this prayer of Mardochai, (T.) in the mass, against pagans, (W.) and 21st Sunday after Pentecost, &c. so that this is a part of Scripture which the Council of Trent will not suffer to be rejected. T.

VER. 14. To a man; "as if," says Capellus, "the salutation and civil honour be not quite different from adoration or religious worship, which must be given to God alone. Neither did Haman demand religious adoration, but only salutation and civil honour. . . . To bend the knee is frequently used in civil honour, nor is it necessarily understood of religious worship." May our English Protestants deign to borrow this grain of common sense from one of their foreign brethren, when they attempt to impugn the respect given by Catholics to the saints. H.—"We grant that Aman did not require religious worship: but as the civil respect which he claimed, was to be performed in the same manner as the Jews worshipped God, Mardochai would not wound his own conscience, or that of his people." Houbigant.—Yet it is by no means clear that Aman did not insist on being worshipped as a god. It is evident that Mardochai understood him, at least, in that light. C. iii. 2. H.

VER. 17. Inheritance. Lit. "line," (H.) as it was usual to measure land with lines. M.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Fearing. Gr. "caught in the agony of death." The old Vulgate has many variations in this chapter. C.—This prayer should be placed after that of Mardochai, at the end of C. iv. M.

VER. 2. Ointments. Gr. "instead of the proud sweets, she filled her head with ashes and dust." Such as might be soon cleansed again. H.—Torn. Gr. "curled hair," (εστριαν ῥιζων. H.) some of which she cut off. See Lev. xix. 27. and xxi. 5. Houbig.

me, a desolate woman, and who have no other helper but thee.

4 My danger is in my hands.

5 "I have heard of my father that thou, O Lord, didst take Israel from among all nations, and our fathers from all their predecessors, to possess them as an everlasting inheritance, and thou hast done to them as thou hast promised.

6 We have sinned in thy sight, and therefore thou hast delivered us into the hands of our enemies:

7 For we have worshipped their gods. Thou art just, O Lord.

8 And now they are not content to oppress us with most hard bondage, but attributing the strength of their hands to the power of their idols,

9 They design to change thy promises, and destroy thy inheritance, and shut the mouths of them that praise thee, and extinguish the glory of thy temple and altar,

10 That they may open the mouths of Gentiles, and praise the strength of idols, and magnify, for ever, a carnal king.

11 Give not, O Lord, thy sceptre to them that are not, lest they laugh at our ruin: but turn their counsel upon themselves, and destroy him that hath begun to rage against us.

12 Remember, O Lord, and shew thyself to us in the time of our tribulation, and give me boldness, O Lord, king of gods, and of all power:

13 Give me a well ordered speech in my mouth in the presence of the lion, and turn his heart to the hatred of our enemy, that both he himself may perish, and the rest that consent to him.

14 But deliver us by thy hand, and help me, who have no other helper but thee, O Lord, who hast the knowledge of all things,

15 And thou knowest that I hate the glory of the wicked, and abhor the bed of the uncircumcised, and of every stranger.

16 Thou knowest my necessity, that I abominate the sign of my pride and glory, which is upon my

* Dent. iv. 20. 84. and xxxii. 9.

VER. 4. Hasts; very imminent. I am ready to expose my life. Ps. cxviii. 109. C.

VER. 5. Heard. Old Vulg. often repeats, "from the books of my fathers;" adducing the various instances of protection which God had shewn to his people, Noe, Abraham, Jonas, the three children, Daniel, Ezechias, and Anna: which intimates that Esther made the sacred books the subject of her frequent meditations, as good people ought to do. H.

VER. 7. For. Gr. "since we have extolled," &c. Esther had not been guilty herself of this prevarication; but too many of the people had. H.

VER. 8. But. Gr. Compl. "Yea, thou hast placed (or rather as the Alex. MS. reads, they have placed) their hands upon the hands of their idols, (H. making a league together. C.) to tear away the decree of thy mouth," (H.) and to put in execution the projects of (M.) the Devil. H.

VER. 10. Idols. Gr. "of the vain things, and to render wonderful for ever," &c.

VER. 11. Not idols, as they are often here designated, (C. and 1 Cor. viii.) being only the imaginations of men. W.—Destroy. Gr. "Make an example of the man, who has begun (H. evils. C.) against us." H.—She throws the blame upon Aman, and not upon her husband. C.

VER. 12. Gods. Gr. "nations, and Lord of all power." H.

VER. 13. Lion. This expression seems not sufficiently respectful. Capellus. —But why might not Esther use it with regard to one, who was raging against her people more than any lion, as S. Paul applies it to Nero, probably after her example? Houbigant. 2 Tim. iv. 17.—David also thus styles Saul and his persecutors in general. Ps. vii. 3. &c. C.

VER. 15. Stranger. Only those near Chanaan were forbidden to marry; and S. Paul commends Eunice, who had espoused an infidel. Capel.—But this was not the reason of his commendation; for he ordains, Bear not the yoke with unbelievers. A pious woman might, therefore, very well refrain from such contracts, to which the Jews, at this time, were in a manner forced. Still Esther might head in the days of my public appearance, and detest it as a menstruous rag, and wear it not in the days of my silence.

17 And that I have not eaten at Aman's table, nor hath the king's banquet pleased me, and that I have not drunk the wine of the drink-offerings:

18 And that thy handmaid hath never rejoiced, since I was brought hither unto this day, but in thee, O Lord, the God of Abraham.

19 O God, who art mighty above all, hear the voice of them, that have no other hope, and deliver us from the hand of the wicked, and deliver me from my fear.

CHAP. XV.

Esther comes into the king's presence: she is terrified, but God turns his heart.

AND he commanded her (no doubt but he was Mardochai) to go to the king, and petition for her people, and for her country.

2 Remember (said he) the days of thy low estate, how thou wast brought up by my hand, because Aman, the second after the king, hath spoken against us unto death.

3 And do thou call upon the Lord, and speak to the king for us, and deliver us from death.

4 And on the third day she laid away the garments she wore, and put on her glorious apparel.

5 And glittering in royal robes, after she had called upon God, the ruler and saviour of all, she took two maids with her,

6 And upon one of them she leaned, as if for delicateness and overmuch tenderness, she were not able to bear up her own body:

7 And the other maid followed her lady, bearing up her train flowing on the ground.

8 But she with a rosy colour in her face, and with gracious and bright eyes, hid a mind full of anguish, and exceedingly great fear.

9 So going in she passed through all the doors in order, and stood before the king, where he sat upon his royal throne, clothed with his royal robes, and glittering with gold, and precious stones, and he was terrible to behold.

have a conjugal love for her husband, (Houbig.) though she would have preferred to marry one poorer of her own religion; and here she only submitted to the designs of God, in raising her to such an elevated station. M.

VER. 16. Sign. The diadem. It was no sin to wear it. Capel.—What then? May not a pious prince despise such ornaments, raising his mind above them? Houbig.—Silence, when I am alone. Nothing could give us a higher idea of Esther's virtue and greatness of soul, as her elevation did not make her forget herself. C.

VER. 17. Me. Ought she to have been thus affected towards her husband? Capel.—Undoubtedly: as the meats and the wine had been offered to idols. Houbig.

CHAP. XV. VER. 1. S. Jerom says, "These additions I also found in the Vulg. edition." H.—This history is more succinctly related. C. v. C.—Her. Lit. "And he commanded her (no doubt Mardochai did Esther) to go," &c. The parenthesis was added by S. Jerom. H.

VER. 2. Remember. This is not here in Greek, but more regularly. C. iv. 8. C.

VER. 3. Death. S. Jerom subjoins, I found there "also what follows."

VER. 4. Day. Gr. adds, "as she had finished her prayer."—Wore. Lit. "of her ornament." But the Greek has properly, (H.) "of her mourning." M.

VER. 5. Glittering. Gr. "and was resplendent after," &c.

VER. 6. As if. Gr. "as being delicate. But the other followed, holding up her garment. But she, blushing in the height of her beauty, with a cheerful and most lovely countenance, felt the pressure of fear on her heart."

VER. 10. Eyes. Gr. adds, "with glory," with which he was surrounded. This made him at first resent the coming in of women uncalled, till he perceived Esther, and saw her fainting. H.—Capellus would represent this conduct of the king as ridiculous, and contrary to the true history. But this is false: and he improperly renders dyuñctas, regem concidisse de animo defecisse; as if the king had fallen down in a swoon; whereas it only means that he ex

10 And when he had lifted up his countenance, and with burning eyes had shewn the wrath of his heart, the queen sunk down, and her colour turned pale, and she rested her weary head upon her handmaid.

11 And God changed the king's spirit into mildness, and all in haste and in fear he leaped from his throne, and holding her up in his arms, till she came to herself, caressed her with these words:

12 What is the matter, Esther? I am thy brother, fear not.

13 Thou shalt not die: for this law is not made for thee, but for all others.

14 Come near then, and touch the sceptre.

15 And as she held her peace, he took the golden sceptre, and laid it upon her neck, and kissed her, and said: Why dost thou not speak to me?

16 She answered: "I saw thee, my lord, as an angel of God, and my heart was troubled for fear of thy majesty."

17 For thou, my lord, art very admirable, and thy face is full of graces.

18 And while she was speaking, she fell down again, and was almost in a swoon.

19 But the king was troubled, and all his servants comforted her.

CHAP. XVI.

A copy of the king's letter in favour of the Jews.

THE great king Artaxerxes, ^bfrom India to Ethiopia, to the governors and princes of a hundred and twenty-seven provinces, which obey our command, sendeth greeting.

2 Many ^ahave abused unto pride the goodness of princes, and the honour that hath been bestowed upon them:

3 And not only endeavour to oppress the king's

^a Gen. xxxiii. 10. 2 Kings xiv. 17.

perienced those sentiments of anxiety which every good husband would do on the like occasion. Houbig. C. v. 2.—Assuerus had at first only perceived the maid, who went before the queen, and the hall was very spacious. Houbig.—Pale. Gr. "in a fainting-fit, and she leaned upon the head of her maid, (Abra.) who was going before."

VER. 11. All. Gr. "being in an agony, he," &c.—Caressed. Gr. "comforted her with words of peace, and said to her, What," &c. H.

VER. 12. Brother; (united by the closest bands. Cant. viii. 1. C.) Gr. "Take courage, Thou," &c.

VER. 13. Others, is not expressed; (II.) and Esther might well suppose that she was included, as she probably was, (C. iv. 11. Capellus) though the king now altered his mind. Houbig.—Gr. "our decree is common," made for our subjects. According to the Roman law, the empress enjoyed the like privileges as her husband. C.

VER. 14. Then. Gr. "and taking the golden sceptre, he laid," &c.

VER. 15. Why. Gr. "speak to me; and she said to him." II.

VER. 16. Angel. The Chaldees had the same notions as the Jews about angels; and the latter never shewed more devotion towards them than after the captivity, when the Scriptures speak more plainly on this subject. Jacob compares his brother Esau to an angel, (C.) or to God. Gen. xxxiii. 10. See also 1 K. xxix. 9. and 2 K. xiv. 17. H.

VER. 18. Almost. Lit. "almost dead." Gr. "she fell in a fainting fit."

CHAP. XVI. VER. 1. From India to Ethiopia. That is, who reigneth from India to Ethiopia. Ch.—S. Jerom writes, "The copy of the letter of king Artaxerxes, which he wrote in favour of the Jews, to all the provinces of his kingdom, which also is not in the Heb. volume." It should properly occur, C. viii. 13, as it does in Greek. The edict is well written in that language, which has induced a belief that it is not a translation. C.—But that is no very strong argument. H.

VER. 2. Princes. Gr. "Beneficent." Luke xxii. 25. C.—Gr. "Many of those who have been the most honoured by the kindness of the beneficent, have increased in folly, and not only endeavour to injure our subjects, but, unable to bear the weight of favours, devise schemes against their benefactors."

VER. 4. Neither. Gr. "And they not only take away gratitude from among men, but elated with good fortune, which they had not before experienced, they flatter themselves that they will escape the sentence of an all-seeing God, levelled against the wicked." H.—Artaxerxes insists with reason on the in-subjects, but not bearing the glory that is given them, take in hand to practise also against them that gave it.

4 Neither are they content not to return thanks for benefits received, and to violate in themselves the laws of humanity, but they think they can also escape the justice of God, who seeth all things.

5 And they break out into so great madness, as to endeavour to undermine by lies such as observe diligently the offices committed to them, and do all things in such manner as to be worthy of all men's praise.

6 While with crafty fraud they deceive the ears of princes that are well-meaning, and judge of others by their own nature.

7 Now this is proved both from ancient histories, and by the things which are done daily, how the good designs of kings are depraved by the evil suggestions of certain men.

8 Wherefore we must provide for the peace of all provinces.

9 Neither must you think, if we command different things, that it cometh of the levity of our mind, but that we give sentence according to the quality and necessity of times, as the profit of the commonwealth requireth.

10 Now that you may more plainly understand what we say, ^dAman, the son of Amadathi, a Macedonian, both in mind and country, and having nothing of the Persian blood, but with his cruelty staining our goodness, was received, being a stranger, by us:

11 And found our humanity so great toward him, that he was called our father, and was worshipped by all, as the next man after the king:

12 But he was so far puffed up with arrogancy, as to go about to deprive us of our kingdom and life.

13 For with certain new and unheard of devices, gratitude of Aman, as it was a crime punishable by their laws; (Cyrop. i. Brisson ii. p. 250.) and the Persian kings were particularly careful to reward those who had done them good. C.

^b Supra xi. 2.—^c Supra iii. 10.—^d Supra iii. 1.

VER. 5. And. Gr. "For oftentimes fair speeches, or (II.) revenge, (παρηγορία, Isai. i. 24. C.) has made several of those who have been in authority, and entrusted with the affairs of their friends, partakers in the spilling of innocent blood, and involved them in irremediable calamities, by the wicked craft of those who purposely lead astray the unsuspecting benevolence of governors." H.—Josephus (xi. 3.) gives nearly the same sense: (C.) "For some of these being placed in power by their friends, and bearing a private hatred towards some, have deluded their princes by false reasons, and by accusations have persuaded them to stir up the wrath of those who have done no wrong; on which account, they have been in danger of perishing." This author was not, therefore, unacquainted with the fragment, or part of the history, before us. H.

VER. 7. Proved. Gr. "may be seen, not so much from ancient histories, as we have observed, but more so, if ye examine what wicked things have been done recently, by the fault (or cruelty) of those who have been unworthily in command: and if ye attend, in future, that we may without trouble settle our kingdom in peace for all men. For though we make some changes, yet we make a discernment of what falls under our inspection, and order things with more equity." He intimates that the former decree of Aman had been sub-reptitious.

VER. 10. Now. Gr. "For as Aman, of Amadathos, a Macedonian, a stranger to the real blood of the Persians, and of a very different character from our goodness, and who, though a stranger to us, partook of that philanthropy which we have for every nation, inasmuch as to be styled," &c. H.—At this time the Macedonians were hardly known. Capel.—But this may be questioned, as their kingdom was of ancient date. Houbigant.—Some think that the Asiatic Macedonians may be designated. Hardouin. Pliny v. 30. 31.—These, however, may have been so called only after the conquests of Alexander. This king fought against the Greeks, of whom the Macedonians formed a part. T.—The name may here be placed only for a stranger. C.—Staining. The faults of ministers often redound to the disgrace of those who employ them. M.

VER. 12. Life. This he might only suspect; (C.) or his machinations with the two porters, might be declared after his disgrace. II.—Capellus thinks it improbable that Aman intended to murder the queen, as he was so much elated at being invited by her to a feast, &c. But his schemes were various: (Houbig.

he hath sought the destruction of Mardochai, by whose fidelity, and good services, our life was saved; and of Esther, the partner of our kingdom, with all their nation:

14 Thinking that after they were slain, he might work treason against us, left alone, without friends, and might transfer the kingdom of the Persians to the Macedonians.

15 But we have found that the Jews, who were, by that most wicked man, appointed to be slain, are in no fault at all, but, contrariwise, use just laws,

16 And are the children of the highest, and the greatest, and the ever-living God; by whose benefit the kingdom was given, both to our fathers and to us, and is kept unto this day.

17 Wherefore know ye that those letters which he sent in our name, are void, and of no effect.

18 For which crime, both he himself that devised it, and all his kindred, hang on gibbets, before the gates of this city, Susan: not we, but God, repaying him as he deserved.

and who can pretend to say what would have satisfied his cruelty and ambition! H.

VER. 14. Without. Gr. "abandoned." H.—Macedonians; or to himself, who was of that nation. It was not necessary to call over forces, as Capellus would suppose.

VER. 16. God. Cyrus had styled him, "the God of heaven." Houbig. 1 Rsd. i. H.—But Darius embraced the true religion, and adored God. T.—Fathers. "Hystaspes was not a descendant of Cyrus, but he was of the same royal stock." Just. i. Herod. iii. 85.—And is. Gr. "by the best disposition. You will therefore do well not to make use of the letter, sent by Aman." The edict could not be repealed; (Capel. Houbig.) though this seems doubtful, when it was manifestly subreptitious, (M.) unjust, and not sealed by the nobles. C.

VER. 18. Gibbets. Aman was thus treated, several months before his ten sons. C. vii. 10. and ix. 6. Yet all the family might still be seen hanging, when this edict was despatched. Houbigant suspects that this and the following verses properly belong to the letter written by Esther and Mardochai. The arguments are not very cogent. H.

VER. 19. Laus. This was a privilege often desired. Joseph. xiii. 4.

VER. 20. Kill. Gr. "take revenge on those who in the day of distress shall fall upon them, on the 13th."

19 But this edict, which we now send, shall be published in all cities, that the Jews may freely follow their own laws.

20 And you shall aid them, that they may kill those who had prepared themselves to kill them, on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is called Adar.

21 For the Almighty God hath turned this day of sadness and mourning into joy to them.

22 Wherefore, you shall also count this day among other festival days, and celebrate it with all joy, that it may be known also in times to come,

23 That all they who faithfully obey the Persians, receive a worthy reward for their fidelity; but they that are traitors to their kingdom, are destroyed for their wickedness.

24 And let every province and city, that will not be partaker of this solemnity, perish by the sword, and by fire, and be destroyed in such manner as to be made unpassable, both to men and beasts, for an example of contempt, and disobedience.

VER. 21. Sadness. Gr. "destruction of his chosen race, into," &c. H.

VER. 22. Days. A festival was kept in memory of the destruction of the magi, in which this king was a principal actor. Herod. iii. 79.—The Persians were ordered to keep the 13th of Adar, on account of the preservation of the royal family, and the ruin of a great enemy. C.

VER. 23. All. Gr. "Salvation is to us, and to all well-affected Persians: but a memorial of destruction to all who are traitors to us."

VER. 24. And. Gr. "But every country or city throughout the kingdom, which shall not comply, shall be consumed with the spear and fire in wrath." —Beasts. Gr. adds hyperbolically, "and birds, and also be accounted most abominable for ever." H.—Similar expressions occur in the prophets, to denote an entire destruction. Jer. ix. 10. &c. Mardochai and Esther have left us in this work the most perfect examples of virtue. The latter is given as a pattern of Christian sovereigns, and a figure of the Church. S. Jerom ad Paulin. (C.) and prol. in Sophon.—Like Judith, she proved the salvation of her people, and the ruin of their adversaries. Nothing could be more striking, (W.) or visible, than the hand of God in these transactions. H.—Esther was also a type of the blessed Virgin, by whose intercession the head of the serpent is crushed, and letters of grace succeed to the hand-writing that stood against us. S. Thomas, prol. in ep. Cath. W.

THE BOOK OF JOB.

THIS Book takes its name from the holy man, of whom it treats; who, according to the more probable opinion, was of the race of Esau, and the same as Jobab, king of Edom, mentioned Gen. xxxvi. 33. It is uncertain who was the writer of it. Some attribute it to Job himself; others to Moses, or some one of the prophets. In the Hebrew it is written in verse, from the beginning of the third chapter to the forty-second chapter. Ch.—The beginning and conclusion are historical, and in prose. Some have divided this work into a kind of tragedy, the first act extending to C. xv., the second to C. xlii., the third to C. xlviii., where God appears, and the plot is unfolded. They suppose that the sentiments of the speakers are expressed, though not their very words. This may be very probable: but the opinion of those who look upon the work as a mere allegory, must be rejected with horror. The sacred writers speak of Job as of a personage who had really existed, (C.) and set the most noble pattern of virtue, and particularly of patience. Tob. ii. 12. Ezec. xiv. 14. Jam. v. 11. Philo and Josephus pass over this history, as they do those of Tobias, Judith, &c. H.—The time when Job lived is not clearly ascertained. Some have supposed (C.) that he was a contemporary with Esther: (D. Thalmud) on which supposition, the work is here placed in its chronological order. But Job more probably lived during the period when the Hebrews groaned under the Egyptian bondage, (H.) or sojourned in the wilderness. Num. xiv. 9. The Syrians place the book at the head of the Scriptures. C.—Its situation has often varied, and is of no great importance. The subject which is here treated, is of far more: as it is intended to shew that the wicked sometimes prosper, while the good are afflicted. H.—This had seldom been witnessed before the days of Abraham: but as God had now selected his family to be witnesses and guardians of religion, a new order of things was beginning to appear. This greatly perplexed Job himself; who, therefore, confesses that he had not sufficiently understood the ways of God, till he had deigned to explain them in the parable of the two great beasts. C. xlii. 3. We cannot condemn the sentiments expressed by Job, since God has declared that they were right, (ib. v. 8) and reprimands Elihu, (C. xxxviii. 2.) and the other three friends of Job, for maintaining a false opinion, though, from the history of past times, they had judged it to be true. This remark may exculpate them from the stain of wilful lying, and vain declamation. Houbigant.—However, as they asserted what was false, their words of themselves are of no authority: and they are even considered as the forerunners of heretics. S. Greg. S. Aug. &c. T.—Job refutes them by sound logic. S. Jerom.—We may discover in this book the sum of Christian morality, (W.) for which purpose it has been chiefly explained by S. Gregory. The style is very poetical, (H.) though at the same time simple, like that of Moses. D.—It is interspersed with many Arabic and Chaldaic idioms; (S. Jer.) whence some have concluded, that it was written originally by Job and his friends (H.) in Arabic, and translated into Heb. by Moses, for the consolation of his brethren. W.—The Heb. text is in many places incorrect; (Houbig.) and the Sept. seem to have omitted several verses. Orig.—S. Jerom says almost eight hundred, (C.) each consisting of about six words. H.—Shultens, in 1747, expressed his dissatisfaction with the labours of all preceding commentators. To explain this book may not therefore be an easy task: but we must be as short as possible. H.—Those who desire farther information, may consult Pineda, (W.) whose voluminous work, in two folios, will nearly (H.) give all necessary information. C.

CHAP. I.

Job's virtue and riches. Satan, by permission from God, strippeth him of all his substance. His patience.

THERE was a man in the land of Hus, whose name was Job, and that man was simple and upright, and fearing God, and avoiding evil.

2 And there were born to him seven sons and three daughters.

3 And his possession was seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she-asses; and a family exceedingly great: and this man was great among all the people of the east.

4 And his sons went, and made a feast by houses, every one in his day. And sending, they called their three sisters, to eat and drink with them.

5 And when the days of their feasting were gone about, Job sent to them, and sanctified them: and rising up early, offered holocausts for every one of them. For he said: Lest perhaps my sons have sinned, and have blessed God in their hearts. So did Job all days.

6 Now on a certain day, when the sons of God came to stand before the Lord, satan also was present among them.

7 And the Lord said to him: Whence comest thou? And he answered and said: I have gone round about the earth, and walked through it.

8 And the Lord said to him: Hast thou considered my servant, Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a simple and upright man, and fearing God, and avoiding evil?

9 And satan answering, said: Doth Job fear God in vain?

10 Hast thou not made a fence for him, and his house, and all his substance round about, blessed the works of his hands, and his possession hath increased on the earth?

11 But stretch forth thy hand a little, and touch all that he hath, and see if he bless thee not to thy face.

* A. M. circoiter 2520, A. C. 1484.

CHAP. I. VER. 1. Hus. The land of Hus was a part of Edom: as appears from Lament. iv. 21.—Simple. That is, innocent, sincere, and without guile, (Ch.) in opposition to hypocrites and double dealers. C.—Heb. Tam, "perfect."

VER. 3. Sheep. Heb. including "goats," which are equally valuable in that country for milk.—Camels. These animals were used for riding in those barren sands, where they can travel for four days without water; and that which is muddy is the best for them.—East, in the desert Arabia. Sept. add at the end of the book, that Job was king; and he seems to have been independent, (C.) and to have had other kings who acknowledged his authority. Pineda. C. xxix. 7. &c.—Each city had its own king in the days of Abraham and of Josue. Job, or Jobab, resided at Denaba. Gen. xxxvi. 32. C.

VER. 4. His day of the week in succession; (Pineda) or each on his birthday, (Gen. xl. 20. Mat. xiv. 6. Grot.) or once a month, &c. The daughters of Job were probably unmarried.

VER. 5. Blessed. For greater horror of the very thought of blasphemy, the Scripture both here and v. 11, and in the following chapter (v. 5. and 9.) uses the word bless, to signify its contrary. Ch. 8 K. xxi. 10.—Thus the Greeks styled the furies Eumenides, "the kind," out of a horror of their real name. Even those who are the best inclined, can hardly speak of God without some want of respect, (C.) in the midst of feasts, where the neglect of saying grace is also too common. H.—Sept. "they have thought evil against God." Every kind of offence may be included, to which feasting leads. M.

VER. 6. The sons of God. The angels, (Ch.) as the Sept. express it. C.—Satan also, &c. This passage represents to us in a figure, accommodated to the ways and understandings of men, 1. The restless endeavours of satan against the servants of God. 2. That he can do nothing without God's permission. 3. That God doth not permit him to tempt them above their strength: but assists them by his divine grace in such manner, that the vain efforts of the enemy only serve to illustrate their virtue and increase their merit. Ch.—A similar prosopopeia occurs, 8 K. xxii. 19. Zac. i. 10. C.—Devils appear not 12 Then the Lord said to satan: Behold, all that he hath is in thy hand: only put not forth thy hand upon his person. And satan went forth from the presence of the Lord.

13 Now upon a certain day, when his sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine, in the house of their eldest brother,

14 There came a messenger to Job, and said: The oxen were ploughing, and the asses feeding beside them,

15 And the Sabeans rushed in, and took all away, and slew the servants with the sword; and I alone have escaped to tell thee.

16 And while he was yet speaking, another came, and said: The fire of God fell from heaven, and striking the sheep and the servants, hath consumed them; and I alone have escaped to tell thee.

17 And while he also was yet speaking, there came another, and said: The Chaldeans made three troops, and have fallen upon the camels, and taken them; moreover, they have slain the servants with the sword: and I alone have escaped to tell thee.

18 He was yet speaking, and behold another came in, and said: Thy sons and daughters were eating and drinking wine in the house of their eldest brother,

19 A violent wind came on a sudden from the side of the desert, and shook the four corners of the house, and it fell upon thy children, and they are dead: and I alone have escaped to tell thee.

20 Then Job rose up, and rent his garments, and having shaven his head, fell down upon the ground, and worshipped, 21 And said: ^bNaked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away: as it hath pleased the Lord, so is it done: blessed be the name of the Lord.

22 In all these things Job sinned not by his lips, nor spoke he any foolish thing against God.

^b Eccle. v. 14. 1 Tim. vi. 7.

in God's sight, but sometimes in presence of angels, who represent God. S. Athan. q. 8. ad Antioch. (W.) or some ancient author.—The good angels can make known their orders to them. Zac. iii. 1. Jude 9. Both good and bad spirits may be considered as the ministers of God. C.—They appear in judgment; though the latter could not see the Lord. C.

VER. 9. In vain, without recompense. H.

VER. 11. Face, like a hypocrite, (Sanctius) or rather curse thee openly, v. 5. H.

VER. 12. Hand. God permits evils. W.—The devil can do nothing without leave. C.

VER. 15. Sabeans, descended from Abraham, in the desert (C.) or happy Arabia. These nations lived on plunder. Pliny vi. 28. M.

VER. 16. Heaven, or the air, where the devils exercise a power. Ephes. ii. 2.

VER. 17. Chaldeans. Some copies of the Sept. read "horsemen," These nations inhabited the other side of the Euphrates, but made frequent incursions to plunder their neighbours. C.

VER. 20. Head. Heb. torn his hair, and rolled in the dust. Bochart. Isai. xv. 2. &c. C.—The fathers oppose this example to the apathy of the stoics. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. i. 9. Rom. i. 31.

VER. 21. Thither. To that earth from which all are taken. H.—Inta terra gentes omnes peperit & resumet demum. Varro.—Ut mater operum. Pliny ii. 63. See 1 Tim. vi. 7.—As . . done. Some copies of S. Jerom omit this, which is borrowed from the Sept. C.

VER. 22. By his lips, as not in Heb. but occurs C. ii. 10.—God. Much less did he blaspheme, as satan had said, v. 11. He did not consider all as the effect of chance, or like a mere philosopher. His thoughts were regulated by religion and the fear of God. C.—The virtue of Job was so much the more wonderful, as he lived among the wicked. S. Greg. He bore patiently with the loss of all things: and English Catholics have often imitated him. W.—He might well record his own good actions, the gifts of God, being moved by divine inspiration, like Moses, &c. S. Greg.

CHAP. II.

Satan, by God's permission, striketh Job with ulcers from head to foot: his patience is still invincible.

AND it came to pass, when on a certain day the sons of God came, and stood before the Lord, and Satan came amongst them, and stood in his sight,

2 That the Lord said to Satan: Whence comest thou? And he answered, and said: I have gone round about the earth, and walked through it.

3 And the Lord said to Satan: Hast thou considered my servant, Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a man simple and upright, and fearing God, and avoiding evil, and still keeping his innocence? But thou hast moved me against him, that I should afflict him without cause.

4 And Satan answered, and said: Skin for skin; and all that a man hath, he will give for his life:

5 But put forth thy hand, and touch his bone and his flesh, and then thou shalt see that he will bless thee to thy face.

6 And the Lord said to Satan: Behold, he is in thy hand, but yet save his life.

7 So Satan went forth from the presence of the Lord, and struck Job with a very grievous ulcer, from the sole of the foot even to the top of his head:

8 And he took a potsherd and scraped the corrupt matter, sitting on a dunghill.

9 And his wife said to him: Dost thou still continue in thy simplicity? bless God and die.

10 And he said to her: Thou hast spoken like one of the foolish women: If we have received good things at the hand of God, why should we not receive evil? In all these things Job did not sin with his lips.

11 Now when Job's three friends heard all the evil

CHAP. II. VER. 1. Day. Job had been under trial for some time, perhaps a year. C.

VER. 2. Through it. Seeking whom he might devour. 1 Pet. v. 8. II.

VER. 3. Simple. Plain-dealing, mild, and without guile. S. Greg. W—Without cause. This may form a new sentence. H.—Thy proposal and attempts are vain. C.—Job has not deserved this treatment. S. Chrys. &c.

VER. 4. Skin: a proverbial expression, denoting that a man will part with any thing sooner than his life, (C.) or health. H.—Satan hints, that if those inestimable blessings should be endangered, (C.) Job would shew his real sentiments. H.—Skin was formerly used instead of money, at Sparta. Senec. Ben. v. 14. &c. Yet perhaps not in the time of Job.

VER. 6. Life. Afflict him with any species of illness; but do not kill him, (C.) nor inspire him directly with wicked thoughts. Grot.

VER. 7. Ulcer; the leprosy; and even with that species which is called the venereal disease, which may be contracted without any crime. Job was afflicted with a complication of the most painful and disgraceful disorders. Pineda. C.

VER. 8. Potsherd. His nails were worn, and poverty had left him nothing else.—Dunghill. Heb. ages. H.—S. Chrysostom represents this place as visited by pilgrims, instructive and more brilliant than any throne. Hom. 5. ad Pop. Ant.—Sept. add, “upon the dung, without the city: and after a long time had elapsed, his wife also said to him, How long wilt thou wait, saying: Lo, I will still tarry a little while, expecting the hope of my salvation? For behold thy memory is perished from the land, thy sons and daughters, the pains and labours of my womb, whom I brought forth in labour and sorrow, to no purpose. But thou sittest in the open air, the night long, amid the corruption of worms, while I wander like a slave, seeking for one place and house after another, in expectation of the sun setting, that my labours may cease, and the sorrows which now surround and hold me fast. But speak thou some word to (or against) the Lord and die.” H.—This addition has been omitted in the Comp. edition, to make it like the Vulg. (C.) though it is found in all the Greek copies (Nobilius) and fathers, and also in several Latin Bibles. It seems, however, to be only a gloss of some transcriber. The devil had not destroyed this wife, as she would prove one of his most powerful auxiliaries. C.

VER. 9. Bless. She speaks with cruel irony. C.—Curse God, that he may take away (S. Basil) thy miserable life; or, after taking this revenge on such unjust treatment, put an end to thy own existence. Beza and Amama excuse this woman, though condemned by Job. They pretend that she only meant to insinuate, like the rest of his friends, that he must be guilty of some grievous crime, which she urges him to confess, giving glory to God, before it be too late. H.

VER. 10. Foolish. The same word often means impious, (C. i. 22.) and ignothat had befallen him, they came every one from his own place, Eliphaz, the Themanite, and Baldad, the Subite, and Sophar, the Naamathite. For they had made an appointment to come together and visit him, and comfort him.

12 And when they had lifted up their eyes afar off, they knew him not, and crying out, they wept, and rending their garments, they sprinkled dust upon their heads toward heaven.

13 And they sat with him on the ground seven days and seven nights, and no man spoke to him a word: for they saw that his grief was very great.

CHAP. III.

Job expresseth his sense of the miseries of man's life, by cursing the day of his birth.

AFTER this, Job opened his mouth, and cursed his day,

2 And he said:

3 *Let the day perish wherein I was born, and the night in which it was said: A man-child is conceived.

4 Let that day be turned into darkness, let not God regard it from above, and let not the light shine upon it.

5 Let darkness, and the shadow of death, cover it, let a mist overspread it, and let it be wrapped up in bitterness.

6 Let a darksome whirlwind seize upon that night, let it not be counted in the days of the year, nor numbered in the months.

7 Let that night be solitary, and not worthy of praise.

8 Let them curse it who curse the day, who are ready to raise up a leviathan:

* Jerem. xx. 14.

rant, (H.) or “delirious.” Aquila. Ps. xiii. 1.—Lips. The Jews assert, without reason, that he was guilty in his heart. C.

VER. 12. Heaven. This denoted mourning or indignation. Jos. vii. 8. Acts xxii. 23.

VER. 13. Seven days, &c. They sat with him for a good part of the day, and of the night, during seven days: and spoke nothing all that time that could give him any uneasiness. Ch. M. Olympiad.—They mourned for him as if he had been dead. Their mutual grief was too great for utterance. But the text seems to intimate that they remained with Job, all this time. Scultet. C.—Their design in coming was really to afford him consolation; but being under a mistake, respecting the conduct of Providence towards mankind, (C.) they erred involuntarily, (T.) and by attempting to prove their assertions, as if none but criminals could be so grievously afflicted, they eventually insulted the holy man. Tob. ii. 15.—They argued on the principle, “that under a just God no one is miserable, unless he have deserved it;” not reflecting that God sometimes puts his best servants to the trial, that their merit and glory may increase. Notwithstanding their piety and learning, they became therefore the devil's most powerful agents unawares: (C.) and though they were not properly heretics, as they acquiesced when better informed, they were a figure of them, by drawing from many undeniable truths false inferences, and by a parade of learning, and of new things. S. Greg. Mor. iii. 24. and v. 18.—They also judged rashly of Job's secret behaviour. W.

CHAP. III. VER. 1. Cursed his day. Job cursed the day of his birth, not by way of wishing evil to any thing of God's creation; but only to express in a stronger manner his sense of human miseries in general, and of his own calamities in particular. Ch.—He has these only in view: though, in another light, it is better for a man to be born, and to undergo any misery, than he may obtain eternal rewards. H.—Some allowances must be made for extreme pain, and for the style of the Eastern (C.) poetry. H.—Jeremias, (xx. 14.) Habacuc, (i. 2.) the psalmist, and even our Saviour in his agony, made use of such strong expressions. Mat. xxvi. 39. and xxvii. 46. Some heretics accuse Job of impatience and blasphemy. The devil, therefore, came off with victory; and the praises given to Job's patience are false. He might offend by some degree of exaggeration. C.—But even that is by no means clear. Time past could not be recalled, nor receive any injury by the maledictions. H.

VER. 7. Praise, by the appearance of the stars. C. xxxviii. 7. C.

VER. 8. Day. The nations of Ethiopia, under the line, curse the sun as their greatest enemy. Strabo xvii. Pliny v. 8.—They also brave the fury of the leviathan or crocodile. C. xl. 27. and xli. 1. Ps. lxxiii. 14. The natives of Tentyra, upon the Nile, were supposed to be a terror to that monster, or they were very courageous in entangling and pursuing it. Seneca q. 4. 2. Pliny viii.

9 Let the stars be darkened with the mist thereof: let it expect light, and not see it, nor the rising of the dawning of the day:

10 Because it shut not up the doors of the womb that bore me, nor took away evils from my eyes.

11 Why did I not die in the womb? why did I not perish when I came out of the belly?

12 Why received upon the knees? why suckled at the breasts?

13 For now I should have been asleep and still, and should have rest in my sleep:

14 With kings and consuls of the earth, who build themselves solitudes:

15 Or with princes, that possess gold, and fill their houses with silver:

16 Or as a hidden untimely birth, I should not be; or as they that, being conceived, have not seen the light.

17 There the wicked cease from tumult, and there the wearied in strength are at rest.

18 And they sometime bound together without disquiet, have not heard the voice of the oppressor.

19 The small and great are there, and the servant is free from his master.

20 Why is light given to him that is in misery, and life to them that are in bitterness of soul?

21 That look for death, and it cometh not, as they that dig for a treasure:

22 And they rejoice exceedingly when they have found the grave?

23 To a man whose way is hidden, and God hath surrounded him with darkness?

25.—Leviathan. Prot. "their mourning." De Dieu rejects this interpretation, substituting "and thou, leviathan, rouse up," &c. The fathers generally understand the devil to be thus designated. Sept. "he who is about to seize the great whale," (H.) or fish, which they also explain of the conflict of Satan with Jesus Christ. Origen, &c.

VER. 10. Nor took. Sept. "for it would then have freed my eyes from labour."

VER. 11. In the. Heb. "from the womb," (H.) or as soon as I was born. C.—He seems to have lost sight of original sin, (v. 1.) or there might be some method of having it remitted to children unborn, which we do not know. H.

VER. 12. Knees, by my father or grandfather. Gen. xxx. 3. Iliad ix. C.

VER. 13. Sleep. So death is often styled.
*Olli dura quies oculos et ferreus urget
Somnus: in eternam clauduntur lumina noctem.* Æneid x.

VER. 14. Consuls. Heb. "counsellors," or any in great authority. Sept. "kings, the counsellors of the land, who rejoiced, boasting of their swords." The same word, choraboth, (H.) means both swords and solitudes. D.—Those great ones had prepared their own tombs, which were usually in solitary places; (C.) or they had filled all with their extensive palaces; and removed the people to a distance. H.

VER. 15. Houses, while alive; (C.) or their tombs were thus enriched with silver, (M.) as this practice was not uncommon, v. 22. Joseph. xiii. 15.—Marcian forbade it. S. Chrys. complains it subsisted in his time. Orat. Anna. C.

VER. 16. Light; dying in the womb. He expresses a desire that he had been thus prevented from feeling his present miseries and danger of sin. H.

VER. 17. Tumult. In the grave they can no longer disturb the world. M.—In strength. Sept. "in body." Both heroes and labourers then find rest, (C.) if they have lived virtuously. H.

VER. 18. Bound in chains, like incorrigible slaves, (C.) or debtors. Cocceius.—These were formerly treated with great severity. Luke xii. 59. C.

VER. 21. Not. They feel the same eagerness for death as those who seek for a treasure; (C.) and when death is at hand, they rejoice no less than those who discover a grave, in which they hope to find some riches, v. 15. 22.

VER. 22. Grave, full of stores, or the place where they may repose. H.

VER. 23. To. Why is life given to? &c. The uncertainty whether a man be worthy of love or hatred, (Eccl. ix. 1.) and whether he will persevere to the end, is what fills Job with distress; though we must trust that God will suffer none to be tempted above their strength. 1 Cor. x. 13.—He finds himself surrounded with precipices, and in the dark. C.—So God often tries his faithful servants. D.

VER. 24. Sigh, through difficulty of swallowing, (Pineda) or sense of misery. H.

VER. 25. Fear. In prosperity he feared the assaults of pride. Now he is in danger of yielding to impatience and despair. C.

24 Before I eat I sigh: and as overflowing waters, so is my roaring:

25 For the fear which I feared, hath come upon me: and that which I was afraid of, hath befallen me.

26 Have I not dissembled? have I not kept silence? have I not been quiet? and indignation is come upon me.

CHAP. IV.

Eliphaz charges Job with impatience, and pretends that God never afflicts the innocent.

THEN Eliphaz, the Themanite, answered, and said: 2 If we begin to speak to thee, perhaps thou wilt take it ill; but who can withhold the words he hath conceived?

3 Behold thou hast taught many; and thou hast strengthened the weary hands:

4 Thy words have confirmed them that were staggering, and thou hast strengthened the trembling knees:

5 But now the scourge is come upon thee, and thou faintest: It hath touched thee, and thou art troubled.

6 Where is thy fear, thy fortitude, thy patience, and the perfection of thy ways?

7 Remember, I pray thee, who ever perished being innocent? or when were the just destroyed?

8 On the contrary, I have seen those who work iniquity, and sow sorrows, and reap them,

9 Perishing by the blast of God, and consumed by the spirit of his wrath.

10 The roaring of the lion, and the voice of the lioness, and the teeth of the whelps of lions, are broken:

11 The tiger hath perished for want of prey, and the young lions are scattered abroad.

VER. 26. Dissembled my sufferings, making no complaint, not only during the seven days that his friends had been with him, but long before. Heb. and Sept. "I was not in safety, nor at rest; neither was I indolent: (H. in the administration of affairs. C.) yet trouble came." H.—I have enjoyed no peace, since the wrath of the Lord has found me. C.—In such a situation, Job might well beg to be delivered, (H.) and to pray that those things which obstructed his repose in God might be removed; considering them not so much the works of God, as the effects of sin. Pineda. W.—In this light he curses his birth-day, and will no longer look upon it as a joyful and happy day. D.

CHAP. IV. VER. 1. Themanite. People of this city, about twelve miles from Petra, in Arabia, were renowned for wisdom. Jer. xlix. 7. Bar. iii. 22. Pythagoras therefore visited this country. S. Cyr. con. Jul. x.—Eliphaz attempts to prove that no innocent person is chastised. He does not speak of small faults, to which any person may be exposed, and which God may severely punish. But he will have Job to be a great offender, at least in secret, and represents himself in too advantageous a light; though he was really a good man, and meant well. C.—But this did not exempt him from sin, (C. xlii.) no more than Eliu. C. xxxii. Bonum ex integra causa; malum ex quolibet defectu; as theologians agree. H.

VER. 2. Conceived? and to which the speech of Job had given occasion. M.—Sept. "Who shall bear the force of thy words? For if thou," &c. H.

VER. 4. Knees. It is just that thou shouldst apply thy instructions to thyself. M.

VER. 5. And thou. Sept. "and has touched thee. But thou makest haste" (H.) to flee. Heb. "art consternated." We may easily prescribe for others, but when we are sick we know not what to do. C.

VER. 6. Where? Sept. "Rather is not thy fear foolishness as well as thy hope, and the innocence of thy path?" H.—Is not all hypocrisy? M. C.—Many of the assertions of Job's friends are true, but their inferences are false. M.

VER. 7. Destroyed? They never were eternally. But Abel and many other just persons, have been exposed to tribulation in this world, (W.) for their greater improvement. Yet Eliphaz falsely concludes from the sufferings of Job, that he must have been a criminal. C.—If any one should now hold the same opinion, we should deem him very ignorant or foolish. But we have observed, (Pref.) that this was not so obvious at that time. Cain, the giants, Her, Onan, Sodom, &c. had been made examples of divine vengeance. But a new order of things was now commencing. Houbigant.

VER. 8. Reap them. He insinuates that Job now reaps what he had sown. Gal. vi. 8.

VER. 11. Tiger. Heb. Layish, means also an "old lion." Sept. μυρμηκίδων "ant-lion," which some have deemed fabulous, improperly. Bochart, vi. 5. Ælian, xvii. 42.—Eliphaz tacitly accuses Job of violence and pride. Vau Bede. C.

12 Now there was a word spoken to me in private, and my ears by stealth, as it were, received the veins of its whisper.

13 In the horror of a vision by night, when deep sleep is wont to hold men,

14 Fear seized upon me, and trembling, and all my bones were affrighted:

15 And when a spirit passed before me, the hair of my flesh stood up.

16 There stood one whose countenance I knew not, an image before my eyes, and I heard the voice, as it were, of a gentle wind.

17 *Shall man be justified in comparison of God, or shall a man be more pure than his Maker?

18 ^bBehold, they that serve him are not steadfast, and in his angels he found wickedness:

19 How much more shall they that dwell in houses of clay, who have an earthly foundation, be consumed as with the moth?

20 From morning till evening they shall be cut down: and because no one understandeth, they shall perish for ever.

21 And they that shall be left, shall be taken away from them: they shall die, and not in wisdom.

CHAP. V.

Eliphaz proceeds in his charge, and exhorts Job to acknowledge his sins.

CALL now, if there be any that will answer thee, and turn to some of the saints.

2 Anger indeed killeth the foolish, and envy slayeth the little one.

3 I have seen a fool with a strong root, and I cursed his beauty immediately.

4 His children shall be far from safety, and shall be destroyed in the gate, and there shall be none to deliver them.

5 Whose harvest the hungry shall eat, and the armed man shall take him by violence, and the thirsty shall drink up his riches.

6 Nothing upon earth is done without a cause, and sorrow doth not spring out of the ground.

* *Infra xxv. 4.—^b *Infra xv. 15.

VER. 12. Private. Heretics pretend such obscure visions, rather to get credit than to edify others. S. Greg. v. 18. W.—Many suppose that Eliphaz was guilty of feigning: but the greatest part think that he had truly seen a vision, but did not draw the proper conclusions from it. C.—Prot. "Now a thing was secretly brought to me, and mine ear received a little thereof." H.

VER. 13. The horror. Heb. "thoughts," while I considered the cause of thy distress. C.

VER. 15. Spirit: angel, or gentle breeze. C.

VER. 16. And I. Prot. "there was silence, and I heard a voice." Marg. "a still voice." Sept. "But I heard a breeze and a voice." H.

VER. 17. Maker. It is thought that these were the words of the angel. If God punish without cause, may not the sufferer esteem himself the better of the two? You must therefore be guilty. C.—Job would never dispute; but God was infinitely more pure than man, who may nevertheless be free from grievous sins. W.—The highest angel has nothing but what he has received from God, in comparison with whom he is still as a mere nothing. But this does not prove that Job was a criminal, or that he pretended to arrogate to himself any excellence, independent of the giver of all good gifts. He did not assert that he was unpeccable: yet, with God's grace, he might be innocent. C.

VER. 18. Angels, who fell, as the fathers explain it. E. T.—Heb. "behold, he put no trust in his servants, and his angels he charged with folly." C. xv. 15. and xxv. 5. and 2 Pet. ii. 4. Prot. H.

VER. 19. Foundation. Children of Adam, whose bodies are taken from the dust. M.

VER. 20. Understandeth. Heb. "regardeth." Sept. "can help himself." H.—Man is justly punished because he does not reflect on what he ought. C.

VER. 21. And they. Heb. "doth not their dignity pass away with them? They die without wisdom." H.—This is but too frequently the case of the great ones of this world, who never discern true from false riches. C.

CHAP. V. VER. 1. Saints. This is a proof of the invocation of saints (C.)

7 Man is born to labour, and the bird to fly.

8 Wherefore I will pray to the Lord, and address my speech to God:

9 Who doth great things, and unsearchable and wonderful things without number:

10 Who giveth rain upon the face of the earth, and watereth all things with waters:

11 Who setteth up the humble on high, and comforteth with health those that mourn.

12 Who bringeth to nought the designs of the malignant, so that their hands cannot accomplish what they had begun:

13 *Who catcheth the wise in their craftiness, and disappointeth the counsel of the wicked:

14 They shall meet with darkness in the day, and grope at noon-day as in the night.

15 But he shall save the needy from the sword of their mouth, and the poor from the hand of the violent.

16 And to the needy there shall be hope, but iniquity shall draw in her mouth.

17 Blessed is the man whom God correcteth: refuse not, therefore, the chastising of the Lord.

18 For he woundeth, and cureth: he striketh, and his hands shall heal.

19 In six troubles he shall deliver thee, and in the seventh, evil shall not touch thee.

20 In famine he shall deliver thee from death; and in battle, from the hand of the sword.

21 Thou shalt be hidden from the scourge of the tongue: and thou shalt not fear calamity when it cometh.

22 In destruction and famine thou shalt laugh: and thou shalt not be afraid of the beasts of the earth.

23 But thou shalt have a covenant with the stones of the lands, and the beasts of the earth shall be at peace with thee.

24 And thou shalt know that thy tabernacle is in peace, and visiting thy beauty, thou shalt not sin.

25 Thou shalt know also that thy seed shall be multiplied, and thy offspring like the grass of the earth.

2 Peter ii. 4. Jude 6.—1 Cor. iii. 19.

and angels. H.—The Jews often begged God to have mercy on them for the sake of the patriarchs. 2 Par. vi. 42. C.—Eliphaz, therefore, exhorts Job, if he have any patron or angel, to bring him forward in his defence. M.—Sept. "Invoke now if any one will hear thee, or if thou perceive any of the holy angels," (H.) as I have done. M.—He extols himself, to correct the pretended presumption of his friend, (C.) and other defects, which none will dare to deny, as he supposes. See S. Greg. v. 30. W.

VER. 2. Foolish and . . little, here denote the wicked, as in the book of Proverbs. C.—He accuses Job of anger (M.) and folly. C.

VER. 3. And I. Sept. "But presently their subsistence was eaten up." I envied not their riches: but judged they would soon end. H.

VER. 4. Gate, in judgment. M.

VER. 6. Ground. If you had not sinned, you would not suffer. C.

VER. 7. Bird. Heb. "sparks fly up." H.—You can no more then expect to pass unpunished, since it is impossible for man to be innocent! (C.) and, at any rate, labour is inevitable. M.—We must gain our bread by the sweat of our brow. W.

VER. 8. I will, or if I were in your place, I would sue for pardon. C.—Prot. "I would seek unto God," (H.) under affliction. M.

VER. 15. Mouth; detraction and calumny. C.

VER. 19. In six, mentioned below; (M.) or in many, indefinitely. C.—Both during the six days of (M.) life, and at death, God's grace delivers us. S. Greg. W.

VER. 21. Scourge. Ecclus. (xxvi. 9. and xxviii. 21.) has the same expression. See Jam. iii. 6. C.—Calamity, from robbers, as the Heb. shod, (H.) intimates. The word is rendered destruction, vastitate, v. 22. M.

VER. 23. Stones, so as not to stumble; or, the rocks will be a retreat for thee.

VER. 24. Beauty does not mean his wife, as some grossly imagine, (C.) but a house well ordered. M.—Heb. "thy habitation." Yet Sanchez adopts the former sentiment. In effect, the habitation includes all the regulation of a wife and family. H.

26 Thou shalt enter into the grave in abundance, as a heap of wheat is brought in in its season.

27 Behold, this is even so, as we have searched out: which thou having heard, consider it thoroughly in thy mind.

CHAP. VI.

Job maintains his innocence, and complains of his friends.

BUT Job answered, and said:

2 O that my sins, whereby I have deserved wrath, and the calamity that I suffer, were weighed in a balance.

3 As the sand of the sea, this would appear heavier: therefore, my words are full of sorrow:

4 For the arrows of the Lord are in me, the rage whereof drinketh up my spirit, and the terrors of the Lord war against me.

5 Will the wild ass bray when he hath grass? or will the ox low when he standeth before a full manger?

6 Or can an unsavoury thing be eaten, that is not seasoned with salt? or can a man taste that which, when tasted, bringeth death?

7 The things which before my soul would not touch, now, through anguish, are my meats.

8 Who will grant that my request may come: and that God may give me what I look for?

9 And that he that hath begun may destroy me, that he may let loose his hand, and cut me off?

10 And that this may be my comfort, that afflicting me with sorrow, he spare not, nor I contradict the words of the Holy one.

11 For what is my strength, that I can hold out? or what is my end, that I should keep patience?

VER. 26. Abundance. "With loud lamentations." De Dieu.—"In full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in its season." Prot.—"After a life spent in happiness, thy memory will not be obliterated. Many shall bewail thy loss." H.

VER. 27. Which thou. Sept. "And what we have heard: but do thou reflect with thyself what thou hast done." H.—"What had been revealed to Eliphaz was very true. Yet his conclusions were unwarrantable. C.—How confidently does he speak of his own knowledge, and how great must have been his disappointment, when God condemned him of folly, and sent him to beg the prayers of that very man whom he now considered as a wretched sinner! H.

CHAP. VI. VER. 2. My sins, &c. In the Heb. my wrath. He does not mean to compare his sufferings with his real sins; but with the imaginary crimes which his friends falsely imputed to him: and especially with his wrath or grief, expressed in the third chapter, which they so much accused. Though, as he tells them here, it bore no proportion with the greatness of his calamity. Ch.—Job does not deny but he may have transgressed. C. See C. vii 20.—"But he is not conscious of any mortal offence; such as his friends insisted he must have committed, as he was so cruelly tormented. H.—Some deny canonical authority to the words of Job, because God reprehended him. But S. Greg. (Mor. vii.) says, Ab eterno iudice casurus laudari non potuit. D.—"The man who was on the point of falling, could not be praised by the eternal Judge;" (H.) and it seems to be a mistake that Job erred, (Houbig.) though asserted by many. See C. W. &c. —Wrath. Heb. "O that my grief (H. or complaints. C.) were thoroughly weighed, and my calamity laid in the balances together." Prot. H.—A just man confesses his own sins, but not those which are wrongfully laid to his charge. W.

VER. 3. Heavier. The figure hyperbole is frequently used in Scripture, to give us some idea of what surpasses our understanding. Job intimates that the punishment was incomparably greater than his sins. As he and other saints, particularly our Saviour and the blessed Virgin, have thus patiently suffered more than they had deserved, these merits form part of that treasure of the Church, out of which the pope and bishops are empowered to dispense indulgences, to release people from the pains due to sin, either in this world or in purgatory. W.—Sept. "Yea, these (sorrows) are heavier than the sand of the seashore. But, it seems, my words are wicked." H.

VER. 4. Rage. Heb. "poison;" (H.) or "venom;" (Chal. M.) as it was customary to use poisoned arrows. C.—Sept. "When I begin to speak, they pierce me. For what! Does the wild ass continually bray, except when he is in quest of food?" H.—It is easy for those to be silent who suffer nothing. The wild asses were so common in those parts, (C.) that Herod sometimes slew 40 in a hunt. Joseph. Bel. i. 16.—"Many fabulous accounts have been given of them. Some are still found in Ethiopia resembling a mule, except in the ears, and beautifully striped with grey, black, and reddish colours. Bernier.

VER. 6. Salt. I wonder not that you should consider my lamentations as insipid; I now find some consolation in them, v. 7. C.—Or can. Heb. "or is there any taste in the white of an egg?" (Prot.) or in blue milk? (Mercer) or in 12 My strength is not the strength of stones, nor is my flesh of brass.

13 Behold there is no help for me in myself, and my familiar friends also are departed from me.

14 He that taketh away mercy from his friend, forsaketh the fear of the Lord.

15 My brethren have passed by me, as the torrent that passeth swiftly in the valleys.

16 They that fear the hoary frost, the snow shall fall upon them.

17 At the time when they shall be scattered they shall perish: and after it groweth hot, they shall be melted out of their place.

18 The paths of their steps are entangled: they shall walk in vain, and shall perish.

19 Consider the paths of Thema, the ways of Saba, and wait a little while.

20 They are confounded, because I have hoped: they are come also even unto me, and are covered with shame.

21 Now you are come: and now, seeing my affliction, you are afraid.

22 Did I say: Bring to me, and give me of your substance?

23 Or deliver me from the hand of the enemy, and rescue me out of the hand of the mighty?

24 Teach me, and I will hold my peace: and if I have been ignorant of any thing, instruct me.

25 Why have you detracted the words of truth, whereas there is none of you that can reprove me?

26 You dress up speeches only to rebuke, and you utter words to the wind.

the spittle, which a man swallows in a dream!" See Isai. xxviii. 8. If pain did not extort these complaints, should I find any pleasure in them? C.—Sept. "is there any taste in vain words?" Can I hear your arguments without indignation? H. M.—Some MSS. add, "For to a hungry soul even bitter things appear to be sweet," from Prov. xxvii. 7. C.

VER. 9. Off, and release me from this state of misery and danger. H.—He is ready to die cheerfully, if it be God's will. C.—Sept. "May the Lord, who has begun, wound me, but not take me away finally. Yea, let my city, over which I have exulted, be my grave. I will not spare, for I have not belied a word of my holy God." H.

VER. 11. End. Sept. "time." I am too weak and short-lived to bear all this. H.—I can perceive no end. M.—Keep. Prot. "prolong my life." H.—"What is the extent of my soul, to reach so far?" C.—Longanimity is the characteristic of a great soul. H.

VER. 12. Brass. This is proverbial. Homer (Iliad A) says, "Attack the Greeks; their skin is neither of stone, (C.) iron, or brass." Those who are aware of their own frailty, ought not to expose themselves to dangerous company, particularly to those of the other sex.

VER. 13. Myself. "Have I not placed my trust in him?" God alone. H.—All my other friends have abandoned me, v. 15. C.—Can they wonder if I express my grief? H.—Familiar. Heb. "is wisdom removed far from me?" H.—Has my strength abandoned me, so that I cannot be recognized? C.

VER. 16. Them. They shall run from a less to a greater evil. C.—Sept. "Those who respected me, have now fallen upon me, like snow or ice; (17) as when it is consumed with heat, it is no longer known where it was: (18) thus I have been abandoned by all, lost and expelled from my house." Consider, (19) Heb. continues, in the comparison of the torrents, (15) "which are hidden by the ice and snow," and are left dry and of no service in summer, when most wanted. H.—So these friends stood by me only in the days of my prosperity. C.—Luther and the Dutch version follow the Vulg. Amama says, improperly. He proposes that of Pagnin, "which (torrents) are darkened by the ice. Snow is concealed in (Mont. upon) them." H.

VER. 18. Entangled. Like meandering streams, my friends act crookedly. M.

VER. 19. While. Till the torrent subside, when the caravans from these towns of Arabia may pass on. Job may also address his friends, (C.) and bid them consider how few had taken any notice of him. M.—Prot. "the troops of Tema looked, the companies of Sheba waited for them."

VER. 20. I. Heb. "they had hoped" to pass along. H.

VER. 21. Come. Heb. "are good for nothing." C.—Prot. marg. "like to them."

VER. 25. Why. Heb. "How strong are the words of truth!" C.—Whereas. Prot. "But what doth your arguing reprove?" What part of my discourse do you find erroneous? Sept. "But it seems the words of the man of truth are deceitful. Yet I do not beg from you (a word or) strength." H.

27 You rush in upon the fatherless, and you endeavour to overthrow your friend.

28 However, finish what you have begun: give ear, and see whether I lie.

29 Answer, I beseech you, without contention: and speaking that which is just, judge ye.

30 And you shall not find iniquity in my tongue, neither shall folly sound in my mouth.

CHAP. VII.

Job declares the miseries of man's life: and addresses himself to God.

THE life of man upon earth is a warfare, and his days are like the days of a hireling.

2 As a servant longeth for the shade, as the hireling looketh for the end of his work;

3 So I also have had empty months, and have numbered to myself wearisome nights.

4 If I lie down to sleep, I shall say: When shall I rise? and again, I shall look for the evening, and shall be filled with sorrows even till darkness.

5 My flesh is clothed with rottenness and the filth of dust; my skin is withered and drawn together.

6 My days have passed more swiftly than the web is cut by the weaver, and are consumed without any hope.

7 Remember that my life is but wind, and my eye shall not return to see good things.

8 Nor shall the sight of man behold me: thy eyes are upon me, and I shall be no more.

9 As a cloud is consumed, and passeth away: so he that shall go down to hell shall not come up.

10 Nor shall he return any more into his house, neither shall his place know him any more.

11 Wherefore, I will not spare my mouth, I will

VER. 25. Wind. Job humbles the vanity of Eliphaz. C.—Sept. “nor shall your rebuke silence my words: for I will not admit the sound of your discourse. Nay, you rush,” &c. H.

VER. 30. Mouth. He engages their attention. C.—Heb. “Cannot my taste discern perverse things,” (Prot. H.) or “the evil” which I endure! My complaints are not surely unfounded. C.

CHAP. VII. VER. 1. Warfare. Heb. “is it not determined” (H.) for some short space, as the Levites had to serve from 30 to 50 years of age; (Num. iv. 3. and viii. 25.) and the days of a hireling are also defined and short. Is. xvi. 14. Ananias.—No soldier or hireling was ever treated so severely as Job. Yet they justly look for the term of their labours. Sept. have νεκροποιον. Old Vulg. tentatio. “Is not the life of man a temptation?” C.—Palestra, school, or time given to learn the exercise of a soldier and wrestler; or of one who has to prepare himself for a spiritual warfare, and for heaven. H.—Are we not surrounded with dangers? and may we not desire to be set at liberty? The Vulg. is very accurate, (C.) and includes all these senses. H.—A soldier must be obedient even unto death, and never resist his superior. W.—Hireling, who has no rest till the day is spent. C.

VER. 3. And have. Heb. “they have appointed for me.” C.—God treats me with more severity, as even the night is not a time of rest for me, and my months of service are without any present recompense. H.

VER. 4. And again. Heb. “and the night be completed, I toss to and fro,” (H.) or “I am disturbed with dreams, (C.) till day break.” Vulg. insinuates that night and day are equally restless to a man in extreme pain. H.—As I find no comfort, why may I not desire to die? M.—I desire to be dissolved, as being much better, said S. Paul.

VER. 6. Web. Heb. “the weaver’s shuttle.” C. xvi. 23. Isa. xxxviii. 12. H.—The pagans have used the same comparison. But they make the three daughters of Necessity guide the thread of life. Plato Rep. xii. Natal. iii. 6.—Sept. “my life is swifter than speech.” Tetrapla, “than a runner.” C.—Hope. Heu fugiit, &c. Ah! time is flying, never to return! H.

VER. 7. Wind. What is life compared with eternity, or even with past ages? C.—“What is any one? Yea, what is no one? Men are the dream of a shadow,” says Pindar; (Pyth. viii. Σκιάς θυρὰ θνητῶναι) “like the baseless fabric of a vision.” Shakespeare.

VER. 8. Eyes, in anger, (C.) or thy mercy will come too late when I shall be no more.

VER. 9. Hell, or the grave. M.—He was convinced of the resurrection. But he meant that, according to the natural course, we can have no means of returning to this world after we are dead.

VER. 10. More. This may be explained both of the soul and of the body. Ps. cii. 16. The former resides in the body for a short time, and then seems to take no farther notice of it (C.) till the resurrection.

VER. 11. Mouth. I will vent my bitter complaints before I die. H.

speak in the affliction of my spirit: I will talk with the bitterness of my soul.

12 Am I a sea, or a whale, that thou hast inclosed me in a prison?

13 If I say: My bed shall comfort me, and I shall be relieved, speaking with myself on my couch:

14 Thou wilt frighten me with dreams, and terrify me with visions.

15 So that my soul rather chooseth hanging, and my bones death.

16 I have done with hope, I shall now live no longer: spare me, for my days are nothing.

17 What is a man, that thou shouldst magnify him? or why dost thou set thy heart upon him?

18 Thou visitest him early in the morning, and thou provest him suddenly.

19 How long wilt thou not spare me, nor suffer me to swallow down my spittle?

20 I have sinned: what shall I do to thee, O keeper of men? why hast thou set me opposite to thee, and am I become burdensome to myself?

21 Why dost thou not remove my sin, and why dost thou not take away my iniquity? Behold now I shall sleep in the dust: and if thou seek me in the morning, I shall not be.

CHAP. VIII.

Baldad, under pretence of defending the justice of God, accuses Job, and exhorts him to return to God.

THEN Baldad, the Suhite, answered, and said:

2 How long wilt thou speak these things, and how long shall the words of thy mouth be like a strong wind?

VER. 12. Sea. Ungovernable and malicious. Some of the ancients looked upon the sea as a huge animal, whose breathing caused the tides. Strabo i. Solin xxxii.—They represented its fury as proverbial. “Fire, the sea, and woman are three evils;” and they call the most savage people sons of Neptune. Agel. xv. 21.—Am I so violent as to require such barriers? Am I capacious, or strong enough to bear such treatment? C.

VER. 15. Hanging. Prot. “strangling and death, rather than my life,” or Marg. “bones.” H.—Any species of Death would be preferable to this misery. C.—Who would not entertain the same sentiments, if the fear of worse in the other world did not withhold him? But Job had reason to hope that his sorrows would end with his life. H.—It is thought that he was dreadfully tempted to despair. C.—Yet he resisted manfully, and overcame all attempts of the wicked one.

VER. 16. Hope of surviving this misery. H.

VER. 17. Magnify him, or put him to such severe trials. He is not worthy of thy attention. C.—Heb. ii. 6. H.

VER. 18. Suddenly. During his whole life, he is exposed to dangers; (C.) or if, at first, he taste some comfort, that is presently over. The greatest saints have experienced this treatment. H.

VER. 20. Sinned. I acknowledge my frailty. M.—How may I obtain redress? C.—Job’s friends maintained that he was guilty. But he does not acquiesce in their conclusion, that these sufferings were precisely in punishment of some crime, though he acknowledges that he is not without his faults. H.—Shall. Heb. also, “what have I done to thee?” I have only hurt myself. But this reasoning is nugatory. Though God loses nothing by our sins, they are no less offensive to him, as the rebel does his utmost to disturb the order which he has established. The sinner indeed resembles those brutal people, who hurl darts against the sun, which fall upon their own heads. C. iii. 8. C.—Opposite, as a butt to shoot at. H.—Myself. Heb. was formerly “to thee,” till the Jews changed it, as less respectful. Cajet.—Sept. still read, “and why am I a burden to thee?” (H.) as I am under the necessity of complaining, in my own defence. C.—I throw my grief upon the Lord, that He may support me. Ps. liv. 23. 1 Pet. v. 7. Pineda.

VER. 21. Be. He lovingly expostulates with God, and begs that he would hasten his deliverance, lest it should be too late. C.

CHAP. VIII. VER. 1. Suhite, from Sue, the son of Abraham, who dwelt in the desert Arabia; (Gen. xxv. 2.) though several suppose, without reason, (C.) that Baldad resided at Sueta, in Colosyria. M.—He was the second in age and dignity. Pineda.

VER. 2. How long. He seems tired with hearing, (H.) and accuses Job of want of moderation, representing him as a hypocrite, (C.) and an obstinate defender of his own opinion, against the better judgment of Eliphaz; (M.) though he was in reality only a constant asserter of truth. W.

VER. 3. Just. He begins with the same principle as Eliphaz, which nobody

3 Doth God pervert judgment, or doth the Almighty overthrow that which is just?

4 Although thy children have sinned against him, and he hath left them in the hand of their iniquity:

5 Yet if thou wilt arise early to God, and wilt beseech the Almighty:

6 If thou wilt walk clean and upright, he will presently awake unto thee, and will make the dwelling of thy justice peaceable:

7 In so much, that if thy former things were small, thy latter things would be multiplied exceedingly.

8 For inquire of the former generation, and search diligently into the memory of the fathers:

9 (For we are but of yesterday, and are ignorant* that our days upon earth are but a shadow:)

10 And they shall teach thee: they shall speak to thee, and utter words out of their hearts.

11 Can the rush be green without moisture? or a sedge-bush grow without water?

12 When it is yet in flower, and is not plucked up with the hand, it withereth before all herbs.

13 Even so are the ways of all that forget God, and the hope of the hypocrite shall perish:

14 His folly shall not please him, and his trust shall be like the spider's web.

15 He shall lean upon his house, and it shall not stand: he shall prop it up, and it shall not rise:

16 He seemeth to have moisture before the sun cometh; and at his rising, his blossom shall shoot forth.

17 His roots shall be thick upon a heap of stones, and among the stones he shall abide.

* Infra xiv. 2. Psal. cxliii. 4.

denied. But he does not reflect, that God may cause even the just to be afflicted, for their trial and improvement.

VER. 4. Iniquity, and suffered them to perish. C.

VER. 6. Peaceable. Justice and peace shall kiss. H.—Prosperity will attend the righteous. C.

VER. 9. That. Heb. "because our days." H.—Baldad strives, in vain, to prove what nobody contested. But he does not come to the point, and shew that Job was guilty. Past histories might have informed him that the just are often persecuted, like Abel, Abraham, Jacob, and Joseph. C.—It is true, these were afterwards comforted in honour, except the first, who was slain, and better off in the other world. But Job might hope for the same treatment; and no man can be pronounced happy or miserable till his death. After a storm a calm frequently ensues; as Baldad might have seen verified in the person of his friend, if he had waited patiently, and not judged so peremptorily from equivocal arguments. H.—We must allow, however, that what he said had been generally true. Houbigant.

VER. 11. Sedge-bush, or flag. Heb. achu; so called, because from one root many brothers (as it were) spring. Sept. style it Bobropov, as it was usually "cut for oxen." Gen. xli. 2. Parkhurst. H.—As plants die without suction, so do those who depart from God. M.

VER. 12. Herbs, for want of moisture. C.—Sic transit gloria mundi. H.—The prophets often compare the prosperity of the wicked to grass, (Pa. xxxvi. 2. Jam. i. 10.) and Baldad ranks Job with them.

VER. 14. Him, the hypocrite, or God. C.—Both shall one day condemn the ill use of riches. H.

VER. 15. He. The spider, or rather the hypocrite, who will not be able to secure himself, by his possessions, from the wrath of God. C.

VER. 16. Seemeth. Heb. "he is green before the sun" beat upon him.—Rising, or to horto, (H.) as the Heb. &c. have "garden," (M.) with some Latin editions. He had compared the wicked to a rush without moisture. But the just is like a plant in a fine garden, which is not hurt by the sun beams. It will grow even among stones, (C.) and may be transplanted without danger, v. 19. H.—The whole may be, however, a continuation of the former simile. The rush will presently be scorched, as if it were thrown among stones, and its place will know it no longer, v. 18. M.

VER. 19. Joy. Sept. "the catastrophe of the wicked, for another shall spring," &c. H.

VER. 21. Until. If thou be simple, (H.) or irreproachable, (C.) God will make thee exult. H.—Until, &c. M.—He will restore thee to thy former state of affluence. C.

CHAP. IX. VER. 2. God. Job answers both his friends, and with admirable humility acknowledges that in God's sight he is full of defects; but not of such a nature as to fall (C.) under the cognizance of man. I am not conscious to myself of any thing; but . . . God is the judge. 1 Cor. iv. 4. H.

18 If one swallow him up out of his place, he shall deny him, and shall say: I know thee not.

19 For this is the joy of his way, that others may spring again out of the earth.

20 God will not cast away the simple, nor reach out his hand to the evil doer:

21 Until thy mouth be filled with laughter, and thy lips with rejoicing.

22 They that hate thee, shall be clothed with confusion: and the dwelling of the wicked shall not stand.

CHAP. IX.

Job acknowledges God's justice: although he often afflicts the innocent.

AND Job answered, and said:

2 Indeed I know it is so, and that man cannot be justified, compared with God.

3 If he will contend with him, he cannot answer him one for a thousand.

4 He is wise in heart, and mighty in strength: who hath resisted him, and hath had peace?

5 Who hath removed mountains, and they whom he overthrew in his wrath, knew it not.

6 Who shaketh the earth out of her place, and the pillars thereof tremble.

7 Who commandeth the sun, and it riseth not: and shutteth up the stars, as it were, under a seal:

8 Who alone spreadeth out the heavens, and walketh upon the waves of the sea.

9 Who maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and Hyades, and the inner parts of the south.

10 Who doth things great and incomprehensible, and wonderful, of which there is no number.

VER. 3. Thousand. Pa. cxlii. 2. "Woe even to the praise worthy life of man, if God judge without mercy." S. Aug. II.

VER. 4. Resisted. Heb. and Sept. "hardened himself against him."

VER. 5. Removed, by earthquakes. Pliny ii. 83. C.—In Calabria, 5th Feb. &c. 1783, during the most destructive and dreadful earthquake, a level valley was removed entire about a mile, and a hill, with the trees still growing, was projected down a declivity half a mile, and another above four miles. Sir W. Hamilton.—Sept. "who makes the mountains grow old, and they know not who overturns them in his wrath." H.—Kings and empires fall to ruin at his command. C.

VER. 6. Pillars. These are represented as fixed in the waters. Prov. viii. 29. Pa. xxvii. 16. &c.

VER. 7. Seal. So that they appear not. He alludes (C.) to masters confining their servants with seals, before locks were invented. Macrobi. vii. 3.—From these noble effects of God's power, Job takes occasion to humble himself. C.

VER. 8. Heavens, like a tent. Pa. ciii. 2. These nations lived under tents; (C.) and beholding the magnificent one which God had spread over the heads of all, Job, in rapture, (H.) wonders that he should have created such a pavilion for his servants.

VER. 9. Arcturus, &c. These are names of stars or constellations. In Hebrew, Hesh, Cesil, and Cima. Ch.—And chadre theman, (H.) the "bottom or seals of the south," which were to him invisible, being the Antarctic constellations. The ancients were acquainted only with these four, (Homer, Virg. Æn. iii. &c.) which denoted the four quarters and seasons. C.—Ash, Arcturus, "the bear's tail," near the north pole, (H.) rules in autumn, when the year begins (C.) in Arabia. Cesil, (H.) or Orion, on the west, styled by astronomers "the heart of the scorpion," rises about the autumnal equinox, and presides over winter; (C.) as Cima, (H.) the Hyades, or the seven "rainy" stars, do over spring, the "pleasing" season, as Cima denotes, (C. xxxviii. 31.) when navigation commences. "The seals of the south," designate summer. C.—We must not, however, imagine that Job countenances poetical fables; (S. Jerom in Amos v. 8.) or that he called the constellations by these names, Arcturus, &c. C.—Heb. "who makes the fire, the spirit, and the light," Cima. C. xxxviii. 31. H.—The creation of these seems grander than the making of any constellation, and all the stars had been asserted to be the work of God, v. 7. What connection is there between the names assigned by the Rabbins and the Heb. terms? R. Abraham observes that the list is "a northern star, causing heat, and producing fruit." Parkhurst.—The Arabs were convinced of the influence of the stars; (C. xxxviii. 31.) and living under a sky generally without clouds, could easily observe them. Roger. ii. 2. and 15.—Sanchez asserts, that the peasants in Spain can point out the stars by name. C.—Inner. Prot. "the chambers." They agree with the Vulg. in the other names. Sept. "who makes the Pleiads, and Hesper, and Arcturus, and the store-rooms of the south?" H.—They are styled inner with respect to us who cannot see them.

11 If he come to me, I shall not see him: if he depart, I shall not understand.

12 If he examine on a sudden, who shall answer him? or who can say: Why dost thou so?

13 God, whose wrath no man can resist, and under whom they stoop that bear up the world.

14 What am I then, that I should answer him, and have words with him?

15 I, who although I should have any just thing, would not answer, but would make supplication to my judge.

16 And if he should hear me when I call, I should not believe that he had heard my voice.

17 For he shall crush me in a whirlwind, and multiply my wounds even without cause.

18 He alloweth not my spirit to rest, and he filleth me with bitterness.

19 If strength be demanded, he is most strong: if equity of judgment, no man dare bear witness for me.

20 If I would justify myself, my own mouth shall condemn me: if I would shew myself innocent, he shall prove me wicked.

21 Although I should be simple, even this my soul shall be ignorant of, and I shall be weary of my life.

22 One thing there is that I have spoken, both the innocent and the wicked he consumeth.

23 If he scourge, let him kill at once, and not laugh at the pains of the innocent.

24 The earth is given into the hand of the wicked, he covereth the face of the judges thereof: and if it be not he, who is it then?

VER. 11. Understand, as he is a spirit; (M.) and not that God is changeable, but his works and judgments are above our comprehension, and we are always liable to change. Hence the proud erroneously think themselves to be in favour; while the humble, on the contrary, keep at a distance, and still sue for pardon, when their sins have been forgiven. Luke xviii. 18. Eccle. ii. 1. C.

VER. 13. God. Prot. "If God will not withdraw his anger, the proud helpers do stoop under him." Sept. "For he is not turned aside by wrath;" (or Rom. edit.) "God, whose anger cannot be averted," (H.) unless we repent: (C.) "under him the whales below heaven bend." H.—Perhaps they may have had some notions, like the Rabbins, respecting Leviathan; and S. Jerom may have alluded to the fable of the giants placed under mountains; (Æn. iii. and ix. C.) or to Atlas propping the skies. H.—World. Great heroes, (C.) Kings, (Pineda) angels, (M.) who move the spheres, (W.) or devils. Eph. vi. 12. Cajetan.

VER. 14. What? Heb. "Much less shall I answer him, choosing even my words with him." H.—This is the conclusion from the display of God's power. C.—No eloquence will persuade him. H.—Though not conscious of any sin, Job will not justify himself (1 Cor. iv. W.) before God. H.

VER. 16. Voice. So much am I beneath his notice. How unjust were the aspersions of Job's friends, who accused him of presumption and blasphemy! C.—No one ever spoke with greater humility (H.) and respect of God's absolute dominion. C.—He will attribute nothing to his own prayers, as he is still in the dark. M.

VER. 17. Without cause. That is, without my knowing the cause; or without any crime of mine. Ch.—To argue from my afflictions, that I am a criminal, is unjust. C. ii. 3.

"Notions mistaken, reasonings ill apply'd,
And sophisms that conclude on either side."

Pope, Pleasures, &c.

VER. 19. Equity. Heb. "if judgment, who will appoint me a time," (H.) or "set me before him," and undertake my defence? Who will dare to sit as judge between us?

VER. 20. Condemn me, as this conduct would appear presumptuous. C.—Sept. "if I be just, my mouth will utter impiety," (H.) in declaring it. Olymp.

VER. 21. Life, under this uncertainty and affliction. M.

VER. 22. Consumeth. Eccle. ix. 2. H.—This principle is incontrovertible. W.—I do not retract it. M.—The misery inflicted on the just, is not contrary to the goodness of the Almighty. Job perfectly discovered this truth, which puzzled his enlightened friends, and most of those who lived before Christ; (Ps. lxxii. 2. Jer. xii. 1. C.) and even Job himself was not fully convinced of the motives of Providence, till God had explained them. Houbigant. C. xlii.

VER. 23. Innocent. Having expressed his sentiments clearly, now he mentions what he could desire under the pressure of misery. M.—Seeing the danger of falling, to which he was exposed, he begged to be delivered by death. We are taught by our Saviour to pray, Lead us not into temptation. Matt. vi. 13. God does not laugh at our sufferings, but he acts like a surgeon, and cuts with-25 My days have been swifter than a post: they have fled away and have not seen good.

26 They have passed by as ships carrying fruits, as an eagle flying to the prey.

27 If I say: I will not speak so: I change my face, and am tormented with sorrow.

28 I feared all my works, knowing that thou didst not spare the offender.

29 But if so also I am wicked, why have I laboured in vain?

30 If I be washed, as it were, with snow-waters, and my hands shall shine ever so clean:

31 Yet thou shalt plunge me in filth, and my garments shall abhor me.

32 For I shall not answer a man that is like my self: nor one that may be heard with me equally in judgment.

33 There is none that may be able to reprove both, and to put his hand between both.

34 Let him take his rod away from me, and let not his fear terrify me.

35 I will speak, and will not fear him: for I cannot answer while I am in fear.

CHAP. X.

Job laments his afflictions, and begs to be delivered.

MY soul is weary of my life, I will let go my speech against myself, I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.

2 I will say to God: Do not condemn me: tell me why thou judgest me so?

3 Doth it seem good to thee that thou shouldst out minding our complaints. Riders Dei est humana nolle afflictioni miserari. S. Greg. C.—Heb. "If the scourge slay suddenly, he will laugh at the trial of the innocent." Prot. H.

VER. 24. Wicked one, (H.) the devil, (M.) or any impious person who enjoys prosperity. He, (C.) or even God permissively, covered the face, (H.) by bribes; so that judges pass sentences unjustly.—Then. If it be not the devil, (M.) or God. C.

VER. 25. Good, of late. Heb. "they see no good."

VER. 26. Carrying. Heb. Lit. "of desire," belonging to one person, or full of goods, which he desires to carry quickly to market. M.—Chal. agrees with us. But most interpreters vary. Pagnin retains the original, ebe; (H.) supposing the river Abch, or Avah, is meant. It certainly implies expedition "they have hastened like (C.) the eagle to its prey." Sept. "Is there any trace of ships, or of an eagle flying in quest of food?" H.

VER. 27. Sorrow. I cannot entirely repress it. C.—The more I strive, (H.) the greater is my pain. M.

VER. 28. Works. Heb. "sorrows." I dread their increase, and fear impatience. Even in the midst of prosperity, Job offered sacrifice, lest the sins of his children should be laid to his charge.

VER. 29. Vain. Why have I endeavoured to repress my grief in silence? God does not forbid us to complain, but only to murmur. C.—Sept. "Since I am wicked, why did I not die?" H.—Should a wretch be even suffered to live S. Chrys.

VER. 30. Snow. Nitre brings off the dirt better. Chal. "soap." Heb. bor, is supposed by many to be the Borith of Jer. ii. 22. Snow-water was also used through delicacy in summer. Petron. Sat.

VER. 31. Abhor me. This striking expression intimates something extremely filthy. God will make his servants discern many stains, even when they have aimed at the greatest purity. C.

VER. 33. There. Sept. "O that an umpire, (or a mediator) were between us, and one arguing and giving ear in the midst of both!"

VER. 35. Fear him. Sept. "and I shall not fear, but speak. For I am not conscious to myself of injustice." H.—The dread of incurring God's displeasure makes me prefer to be silent; and if I had no other reason, this fear would suffice, as I should not be master of myself under such anxiety and pain. C.—If my sufferings were at an end, I should take courage, and speak in my own defence, (M.) in answer to my false friends. H.

CHAP. X. VER. 1. Life. Job had intimated a fear to proceed any farther C.—But perceiving that he had not convinced his friends, he continues his discourse (H.) in still stronger terms, yet so as to acknowledge the justice of God. C.—Speech against. Heb. "complaint upon, (H.) or respecting myself," I will deplore my misfortunes, (C.) or I will say no more about them. M.

VER. 2. Judgeth. Heb. "contentest with me," as with an enemy! Is it to punish some fault, or only to make thy grace shine forth? C.

VER. 3. Calumniate permissively, by treating me in such a manner, that others calumniate me, and oppress me, the work of thy own hands, and help the counsel of the wicked?

4 Hast thou eyes of flesh: or, shalt thou see as man seeth?

5 Are thy days as the days of man, and are thy years as the times of men?

6 That thou shouldst inquire after my iniquity, and search after my sin?

7 And shouldst know that I have done no wicked thing, whereas there is no man that can deliver out of thy hand?

8 Thy hands have made me, and fashioned me wholly round about, and dost thou thus cast me down headlong on a sudden?

9 Remember, I beseech thee, that thou hast made me as the clay, and thou wilt bring me into dust again.

10 Hast thou not milked me as milk, and curdled me like cheese?

11 Thou hast clothed me with skin and flesh: thou hast put me together with bones and sinews:

12 Thou hast granted me life and mercy, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit.

13 Although thou conceal these things in thy heart, yet I know that thou rememberest all things.

14 If I have sinned, and thou hast spared me for an hour: why dost thou not suffer me to be clean from my iniquity?

15 And if I be wicked, woe unto me: and if just, I shall not lift up my head, being filled with affliction and misery.

16 And for pride thou wilt take me as a lioness, and returning, thou tormentest me wonderfully.

17 Thou renewest thy witnesses against me, and multiplieth thy wrath upon me, and pains war against me.

18 Why didst thou bring me forth out of the womb? O that I had been consumed, that eye might not see me!

lay false crimes to my charge. Heb. "oppress and despise the work."—Wicked, who are ready enough (H.) to assert that virtue is useless, (C.) and that God mindeth not human affairs. My affliction will confirm them in their false notion, (H.) and my friends will triumph as if their arguments were well founded. The devil will also exult. C.—He knew that God could not be guilty of calumny, and inquire why he is afflicted. W.

VER. 4. Seeth, judging only of the exterior. T. v. 6.
VER. 5. Days, sometimes denote judgments. 1 Cor. iv. 3. Is God liable to change, like men, or does he stand in need of time to examine them, or fear lest they should escape? C.—Is it necessary for him to prove his friends, to know their real dispositions? Sanctius.

VER. 7. Shouldst. Heb. and Sept. "Thou knowest that . . . and there," &c. II.—It would be vain for me to appeal to any other. C.
VER. 8. Sudden, like a potter's vessel? Job was reduced to misery all at once. C.—He acknowledges that God may destroy him as his creature; but that character encourages him to hope for mercy, grace, and glory. W.

VER. 10. Milked. Heb. "poured me out as milk, and curdled me like cheese?" H.—See Wisd. vii. 1. The ancients explained our origin by the comparison of milk curdled, or cheese; (Arist. i. 10. Pliny vii. 15.) which the moderns have explained on more plausible principles. C.—Yet still we may acknowledge our ignorance with the mother of the Machabees. 2 Mac. vii. 22.

VER. 12. Thy fatherly visitation (H.) but still preserved my life. C.
VER. 13. Rememberest. Sept. "canst do all things." Heb. "this is with thee." II.—I am convinced that thou still regardest me with affection, though it would appear as if thou hadst forgotten me. C.

VER. 14. Iniquity? Punishing me for the sins which seemed to be pardoned. C.—Heb. "If I sin, then thou markest me, and wilt not suffer; (H.) or if thou hast not pardoned my iniquity: (15) And," &c. C.

VER. 15. Woe. Thou wilt not suffer me to pass unpunished. C.—Head. I will adore in silence. C. ix. 15. 31. Ven Bede. C.

VER. 16. Pride. If I give way to pride, thou wilt pull me down, though I were as fierce and strong as a lioness. Heb. "for it (affliction) increaseth. Thou huntest me." Prot.—Returning. Heb. and Sept. "again." H.

VER. 17. Witnesses, afflictions; (M.) "wounds." Pagnin. T.

VER. 20. Lament. Heb. "take comfort," (H.) or breath. C.—Repentance is always necessary, but more particularly at the hour of death. W.

19 I should have been as if I had not been, carried from the womb to the grave.

20 Shall not the fewness of my days be ended shortly? Suffer me, therefore, that I may lament my sorrow a little:

21 Before I go and return no more, to a land that is dark and covered with the mist of death:

22 A land of misery and darkness, where the shadow of death, and no order, but everlasting horror dwelleth

CHAP. XI.

Sophar reproveth Job for justifying himself, and inviteth him to repentance.

THEN Sophar, the Naamathite, answered, and said:

2 Shall not he that speaketh much, hear also? or shall a man full of talk be justified?

3 Shall men hold their peace to thee only? and when thou hast mocked others, shall no man confute thee?

4 For thou hast said: My word is pure, and I am clean in thy sight.

5 And I wish that God would speak with thee, and would open his lips to thee,

6 That he might shew thee the secrets of wisdom, and that his law is manifold, and thou mightest understand that he exacteth much less of thee, than thy iniquity deserveth.

7 Peradventure thou wilt comprehend the steps of God, and wilt find out the Almighty perfectly?

8 He is higher than heaven, and what wilt thou do? he is deeper than hell, and how wilt thou know?

9 The measure of him is longer than the earth, and broader than the sea.

10 If he shall overturn all things, or shall press them together, who shall contradict him?

11 For he knoweth the vanity of men, and when he seeth iniquity, doth he not consider it?

12 A vain man is lifted up into pride, and thinketh himself born free like a wild ass's colt.

VER. 21. Death, to the grave, or to hell, (C.) if my sins deserve it. H.

VER. 22. Horror. At death all distinction of ranks is at an end. T.—Heb. "where the light is as darkness." Prot. "To the land of eternal darkness, where there is no sound, nor life of mortals to see." Sept. H.

CHAP. XI. VER. 1. Naamathite. Sept. "the Minean," in Arabia Felix, or rather of the Meonim, not far from the Themanites. Judg. x. 11. Sophar was probably a descendant of Sepho, styled by Sept. Sophar, (Gen. xxxvi. 11. and 1 Par. i. 38.) brother of Theman, and grandson of Eliphaz, the son of Esau. C.—He speaks with greater insolence than the two others, (Pineda) and inveighs against Job, insisting that he can be punished thus only for his crimes. C.

VER. 2. Much. The speeches of Job seemed tedious to him, because he was not of his opinion. M.—He might have applied to himself and his friends the fault of talking too much, as they all spoke many things to no purpose, whereas Job went straight to the point. W.

VER. 3. Men. Heb. "shall thy lies make men keep silence?" Sept. "Blessed be the short-lived son of a woman. Speak not much, for there is no one to give sentence against thee." H.—Mocked, by not acquiescing to their solid arguments, (M.) and speaking with much animation. Pineda.

VER. 4. Sight. Job had just said the reverse. C. ix. 2. S. Chrysa.

VER. 6. Law. Heb. Thushiya, (H.) "the essence" of any thing. Hence it is explained, "law, strength, comfort," &c. We might translate, "and that the reality of thy crimes deserved double punishment," &c. The obligations of the natural, and also of the written law of Moses, with which Job was (C.) perhaps (H.) acquainted, (C. xxii. 22.) are very numerous and difficult. The ways of Providence are not easily understood, though some are obvious enough. He rewards and punishes. C.—Sept. "for it is double of what has come against thee, and then thou wouldst know that thy sins are justly required." Prot. "that they are double to that which is: Know, therefore, that God exacteth of thee less than thine iniquity deserveth." 1 Esd. ix. 18. H.

VER. 7. Perfectly? If not, it is rash to find fault. M.

VER. 11. It? To inflict punishment. Sept. "he will not overlook." H.

VER. 12. Is. Heb. "is he hearty or wise, (C.) he who is born like a," &c. Shall he assert his independence, or pretend to be wise? H.—The Hebrews place wisdom in the heart, as we do courage. C. xii. 3. Prov. ii. 2. &c. C.

VER. 13. But. Heb. "If thou direct thy heart, &c. Thou mayst lift up thy face," (v. 15. H.) without fear. 2 K. ii. 22. C.

13 But thou hast hardened thy heart, and hast spread thy hands to him.

14 If thou wilt put away from thee the iniquity that is in thy hand, and let not injustice remain in thy tabernacle:

15 Then mayst thou lift up thy face without spot, and thou shalt be steadfast, and shalt not fear.

16 Thou shalt also forget misery, and remember it only as waters that are passed away.

17 And brightness like that of the noon-day, shall arise to thee at evening: and when thou shalt think thyself consumed, thou shalt rise as the day-star.

18 And thou shalt have confidence, hope being set before thee, and being buried thou shalt sleep secure.

19 *Thou shalt rest, and there shall be none to make thee afraid: and many shall entreat thy face.

20 *But the eyes of the wicked shall decay, and the way to escape shall fail them, and their hope the abomination of the soul.

CHAP. XII.

Job's reply to Sophar. He extols God's power and wisdom.

THEN Job answered, and said:

2 Are you then men alone, and shall wisdom die with you?

3 *I also have a heart as well as you; neither am I inferior to you: for who is ignorant of these things which you know?

4 *He that is mocked by his friend as I, shall call upon God and he will hear him: for the simplicity of the just man is laughed to scorn.

5 The lamp despised in the thoughts of the rich, is ready for the time appointed.

6 *The tabernacles of robbers abound, and they provoke God boldly; whereas it is he that hath given all into their hands.

7 But ask now the beasts, and they shall teach thee: and the birds of the air, and they shall tell thee.

8 Speak to the earth, and it shall answer thee: and the fishes of the sea shall tell.

* Levit. xxvi. 6.—^b Levit. xxvi. 16.—^c Infra xx. 2.—^d Prov. xiv. 2.

VER. 14. Iniquity. Of this Job was not conscious, and therefore could not confess it. W.

VER. 15. Without. Sept. "as clean water, thou shalt put away corruption, and shalt not fear."

VER. 17. Brightness. Sept. "But thy prayer, like the day-star and life, shall arise to thee from the south, or as at noon-day." Heb. "Thy age (H.) shall appear clearer than the noon-day, and darkness like the morning." Prosperity shall succeed, (C.) when thou shalt think all lost. M.

VER. 18. Secure, dying full of hope. Chal. Heb. "thou shalt dig," (for water, which was there a great treasure. Gen. xxi. 25. and xxvi. 15.) or to fasten down thy tent, (C.) "and rest secure." H.

VER. 19. Face. Luther translates "shall flatter thee." The Dutch version, which is taken from Luther's, has mistaken a letter, and rendered "shall flee before thee," which shews the danger of translating, without recurring to the originals. Amama.

VER. 20. Soul, because hope deferred causeth pain to the soul. Prov. xiii. 12. M.—Heb. "their hope shall be the sorrow, or the breathing out of the soul." C.—Prot. "the giving up of the ghost." Margin, "a puff of breath." C. xviii. 14. H.

CHAP. XII. VER. 2. You. Heb. "Truly you are the people, and wisdom will die with you!" This irony is very sharp. C.—"Are you alone men? or shall I?" &c. Sept. Syr.

VER. 4. Mocked. He retaliates on Sophar, (C. xi. 3. H.) who had very seriously exhorted Job to call on God, as if he had been ignorant of this duty. C.—God will one day force the wicked to retract their false notion, in despising his servants. Wisd. v. 3. W.

VER. 5. The lamp. Such is the just man, who under affliction is (H.) exposed to the ridicule of men who live at their ease.—For. Heb. "to fall." C.—Sept. "It was appointed for me to fall under others at the time fixed."

VER. 6. Abound. Heb. "are at peace." C.—The prosperity of the wicked is therefore no proof that they are pleasing to him. H.—All nature testifies that God exercises a sovereign dominion over his works. He may therefore cause the just to suffer, though they be guiltless. This is one of Job's grand maxims. C.

9 Who is ignorant that the hand of the Lord hath made all these things?

10 In whose hand is the soul of every living thing and the spirit of all flesh of man.

11 *Doth not the ear discern words, and the palate of him that eateth, the taste?

12 In the ancient is wisdom, and in length of days prudence.

13 With him is wisdom and strength, he hath counsel and understanding.

14 *If he pull down, there is no man that can build up: if he shut up a man, there is none that can open.

15 If he withhold the waters, all things shall be dried up: and if he send them out, they shall overturn the earth.

16 With him is strength and wisdom: he knoweth both the deceiver and him that is deceived.

17 He bringeth counsellors to a foolish end, and judges to insensibility.

18 He looseth the belt of kings, and girdeth their loins with a cord.

19 He leadeth away priests without glory, and overthroweth nobles.

20 He changeth the speech of the true speakers, and taketh away the doctrine of the aged.

21 He poureth contempt upon princes, and relieveth them that were oppressed.

22 He discovereth deep things out of darkness, and bringeth up to light the shadow of death.

23 He multiplieth nations, and destroyeth them, and restoreth them again after they were overthrown.

24 He changeth the heart of the princes of the people of the earth, and deceiveth them, so that they walk in vain where there is no way.

25 They shall grope as in the dark, and not in the light, and he shall make them stagger like them that are drunk.

* Ps. xliii. 11. and xlviii. 7.—^a Infra xxxiv. 3.—^b Isai. xxii. 22. Apoc. iii. 7.

VER. 11. Taste. For this no master is requisite; so I stood in no need of your information, (C.) or of such trite remarks. H.

VER. 12. Ancient. He rather chides the youth of Sophar for offering to give him lessons. Old age is indeed commonly wiser and more experienced. Yet, what is man's knowledge compared to that of God! v. 13.

VER. 17. To a. Heb. "to be despoiled" of their wisdom and riches. C.—Sept. "into captivity." H.—Crafty plotters at last fall into such misconduct, as to be derided by men of the meanest capacity. W.

VER. 18. Looseth. Sept. "setteth kings upon the throne," &c.—Belt. This was usually very magnificent, and a military ornament. See that of Pallas described. Æn. x. Job intimates that God deprives kings of their authority, at pleasure. Heb. may also signify that he looseth the bond or prisoner of kings, and reduces themselves to slavery. C.—Things never remain long in the same state. H.—Even kings are sometimes obliged to beg. M.

VER. 19. Without. Heb. "despoiled." Sept. "captives." Cohanim, may comprise both sacred ministers and civil princes. 1 K. viii. 18. All are equally subject to God. C.

VER. 20. Speakers. Permitting them to speak deceitfully, (C.) or causing their oracles to be contemned. H.—Heb. "he withdraws speech from men of confidence." C.—Neemanim, (H.) ambassadors or prime ministers. Num. xii. 4. He disconcerteth the best concerted plans.

VER. 21. Relieveth. Heb. "ungirdeth (disarms) the strong." C.—Sept. "but the lowly (humble) he has healed."

VER. 22. Of death. Tsalnaveth (H.) may perhaps simply denote darkness. C.—God bringeth to light the most hidden things. H.

VER. 23. Multiplieth. Heb. Sept. and Syr. "deceiveth," (C.) suffering them to confide too much in their strength, so that they fall an easy prey. H.—How many nations, once so powerful, are now fallen; while others of no account have risen to eminence!

VER. 24. Changeth. Heb. "taketh away the heart," or prudence of princes." Hence they follow the most absurd counsels. Isai. xxix. 19. C.—No way. This was the case of Pharaoh, when he pursued the Israelites into the sea; (T.) and the like may rationally be feared by those princes, who attempt to make innovations in the true religion, or in the sacred laws of a kingdom. M.

CHAP. XIII.

Job persists in maintaining his innocence: and reproves his friends.

BEHOLD my eye hath seen all these things, and my ear hath heard them, and I have understood them all.

2 According to your knowledge, I also know: neither am I inferior to you.

3 But yet I will speak to the Almighty, and I desire to reason with God:

4 Having first shewn that you are forgers of lies, and maintainers of perverse opinions.

5 And I wish you would hold your peace, that you might be thought to be wise men.

6 Hear ye therefore my reproof, and attend to the judgment of my lips.

7 Hath God any need of your lie, that you should speak deceitfully for him?

8 Do you accept his person, and do you endeavor to judge for God?

9 Or shall it please him, from whom nothing can be concealed? or shall he be deceived as a man, with your deceitful dealings?

10 He shall reprove you, because in secret you accept his person.

11 As soon as he shall move himself, he shall trouble you: and his dread shall fall upon you.

12 Your remembrance shall be compared to ashes, and your necks shall be brought to clay.

13 Hold your peace a little while, that I may speak whatsoever my mind shall suggest to me.

14 Why do I tear my flesh with my teeth, and carry my soul in my hands?

15 Although he should kill me, I will trust in him: but yet I will reprove my ways in his sight.

16 And he shall be my saviour: for no hypocrite shall come before his presence.

CHAP. XIII. VER. 1. All, without your information. C.

VER. 3. Reason. Heb. "to dispute with, or before God," concerning the matter which we have in hand. He appeals to God, as to the judge of all.

VER. 4. Having. Heb. "But ye are sewers of lies." C.—Sept. "unskillful surgeons, (who instead of sewing up a wound, increase it) and all of you doctors of evil;" vain empirics—Maintainers. Prot. "ye are all physicians of no value." H.

VER. 5. Men. Prov. xvii. 28. If you had been silent, you might still have had the reputation of wisdom. C.

VER. 6. Judgment. Heb. "pleading" before our common judge. H.

VER. 8. Accept. Heb. "will you not be seized with fear?" Olympiodorus translates, "will you stand in his presence, and dispute with him?" C.—Sept. "Are you sent to be judges?" &c., or, do you suppose that you please him by asserting that he punishes me for my sins? H.—Is it thus you hope to gain his favor? C.—He knows the state of my soul best; then I myself: but you are quite in the dark. W.

VER. 9. Or. Heb. "Is it good that he should examine you, would you escape?" C.

VER. 10. His. Heb. "persons." Because you see me afflicted, you infer that I am guilty; and think this mode of judging most honorable to God, whom you wish thus to please. H.—But he stands not in need of lies; (C.) and something farther is still to be proved. H.—You judge rashly, as if you designed to please a prince, (M.) without examining the cause of the accused. H.

VER. 12. Necks. Sept. "body." Heb. also, (H.) "heights," (C.) or "fortifications." Grotius.

VER. 13. Whatsoever. Heb. "come what will." Sept. "that my anger may cease." H.

VER. 14. Why you seem to ask do I thus eagerly desire to die, (H.) as if I were tearing my own flesh, and exposing my soul to danger, (W.) like a madman? T.—Is it not better for me to address myself to God, that he would hasten my departure, than thus to tear my flesh with my teeth? C.—Some have supposed that Job really did so in extreme anguish. (V. Bede) the leprosy occasioning such an insupportable irritation. H.—But the expression insinuates an interior anguish or despair; (Isai. xlix. 26) in which sense Pythagoras enjoins, "not to eat the heart."—Hands, in imminent danger of death. Ps. cxviii. 109.—S. Gregory explains it in a moral sense; "It is to manifest the intention of the heart by the actions." H.

VER. 16. In him. Heb. lu is read, though lo, "not," is written in the Heb.

17 Hear ye my speech, and receive with your ears hidden truths.

18 If I shall be judged, I know that I shall be found just.

19 Who is he that will plead against me? let him come: why am I consumed, holding my peace?

20 Two things only do not to me, and then from thy face I shall not be hid.

21 Withdraw thy hand far from me, and let not thy dread terrify me.

22 Call me, and I will answer thee: or else I will speak, and do thou answer me.

23 How many are my iniquities and sins? make me know my crimes and offences.

24 Why hidest thou thy face, and thinkest me thy enemy.

25 Against a leaf, that is carried away with the wind, thou shewest thy power, and thou pursuest a dry straw.

26 For thou writest bitter things against me, and wilt consume me for the sins of my youth.

27 Thou hast put my feet in the stocks, and hast observed all my paths, and hast considered the steps of my feet:

28 Who am to be consumed as rottenness, and as a garment that is moth-eaten.

CHAP. XIV.

Job declares the shortness of man's days: and professes his belief of a resurrection.

MAN born of a woman, living for a short time, is filled with many miseries.

2 *Who cometh forth like a flower, and is destroyed, and fleeth as a shadow, and never continueth in the same state.

3 And dost thou think it meet to open thy eyes

* Supra viii. 9. Ps. cxliii. 4.

text. H.—Prot. &c. follow the sense of the Vulg. and Junius comes to the same, as he reads lo with an interrogation: "Should I not hope in him?" Luther and the Belgic version go astray: "Behold he shall kill me, and I cannot expect," or hope; I am resolved to die: which words indicate "extreme impatience." Amama.—Sept. "If the powerful (or Lord) lay [not] hands on me, since it is commenced? No: but I shall speak and arraign [you] before him," &c. The words not and you are thus placed in Grabe's edition H.—Ways. I do not pretend that I am quite blameless. C.—Prot. "I will maintain (Marg. prove, or argue) mine own ways before him." H.—I will hope, like Abraham, even against hope, to shew that I am not actuated by despair: yet I will continue to declare my innocence, v. 16. T.

VER. 16. Hypocrite. If I were such, I should not dare to appeal so boldly to his tribunal. C.

VER. 17. Truths Lit. "riddles" to you. Heb. achavathi, (H.) means "instructions," &c. C.

VER. 18. Just. He was in extreme anguish, yet still trusted in God. W.

VER. 19. Peace. It will be some consolation to explain my reasons. If I am fairly overcome, I shall die with more content. C.

VER. 20. Only. He makes the same petition to God as C. ix. 34. and xxxiii. 7. H.

VER. 23. Offences, which might be hidden to Job himself. W.—He speaks to God with the freedom which he had requested, desiring to know if he were really guilty, (C.) that he might give glory to him, (H.) by an humble confession.

VER. 26. Bitter. The judge wrote down the sentence: which he read, or gave to his officer. C.—Youth, for which I thought I had satisfied. H.

VER. 27. Stocks, in which the person's legs were sometimes stretched to the sixth hole; (C.) at other times, the neck was confined. M.—Some translate the Heb. "in the mud," which agrees with the other part of the verse.—Steps. Heb. and Sept. "roots," or ancles, which retained the prints made by the stocks.

VER. 28. Rottenness. Sept. "an old vessel," or skin, to contain wine, &c. C.—My condition might excite pity. M.

CHAP. XIV. VER. 1. Man. He exposes to God the common miseries of mankind. C.—They cannot avoid many miseries in their short life, yet may be brought to heaven. W.

VER. 2. Shadow. Pulvis et umbra sumus. Hor. iv. Ode 7. "Come then, ye men, whom nature condemns to spend your days in darkness, ye who resemble the leaves, are of little strength, formed of mud, shadow like, . . . of a day's upon such an one, and to bring him into judgment with thee?

4 "Who can make him clean that is conceived of unclean seed? is it not thou who only art?"

5 The days of man are short, and the number of his months is with thee: thou hast appointed his bounds which cannot be passed.

6 Depart a little from him, that he may rest, until his wished-for day come, as that of the hireling.

7 A tree hath hope: if it be cut, it groweth green again, and the boughs thereof sprout.

8 If its root be old in the earth, and its stock be dead in the dust:

9 At the scent of water it shall spring, and bring forth leaves, as when it was first planted.

10 But man when he shall be dead, and stripped and consumed, I pray you where is he?

11 As if the waters should depart out of the sea, and an emptied river should be dried up:

12 So man, when he is fallen asleep, shall not rise again; till the heavens be broken, he shall not awake, nor rise up out of his sleep.

13 Who will grant me this, that thou mayst protect me in hell, and hide me till thy wrath pass, and appoint me a time when thou wilt remember me?

14 Shall man that is dead, thinkest thou, live again? all the days, in which I am now in warfare, I expect until my change come.

15 Thou shalt call me, and I will answer thee: to the work of thy hands thou shalt reach out thy right hand.

* Psal. l. 4.—Infra xxxi. 4.

duration, miserable mortals, men like dreams, attend to the immortals." Aristoph. Avib.—Most of these expressions occur in Job, Ps. ci. 12. Wisd ii. 5. Eccl. ii. 23. &c.

VER. 3. With thee. He seems beneath God's attention: (Arist. Met. viii. 9 Cicero, Nat. d.) but as the knowledge and other attributes of the Deity are infinite, he must necessarily attend to the whole creation. The moral actions of men being also infinite in their object, tending to God, or contradicting his ordinances, they are not beneath the consideration of an infinite Being. C.

VER. 4. Seed, is not expressed in Heb. "unclean." It may refer to Adam. There is no contagion in the seed to infect the soul, as Tertullian supposed: it is only unclean in the cause, as every person who is born according to the common course of nature, becomes a child of Adam, and partakes in his original sin. The Scholastics. T.—Only art. Essence itself. Carthus—"The justification of the sinner is a greater miracle than the creation of the world." St. Aug. ibid.—The birth of Jesus Christ was free from stain: (Luk. i. 35.) as was also the conception of his virgin Mother, by the power of God: (M.) and his grace, as it is piously believed. H.—He alone can purify man. C.—Heb. "who can produce what is clean out of the unclean? Not one." Or Chal. "Is there not one?" Sept. "For who shall be pure from corruption? Not so much as one; (5) though his life be only of one day upon earth." The more ancient Fathers have generally quoted the text in this manner, to prove original sin; (H. S. Cyp. Tert. S. Deo. Mag. in Nat. i. &c. T.) and Bellarmine almost does the same, (Grat. iv. 4.) observing that the Sept. have taken in three words from the following verse: "though his days are few." Yet there are some words which are not in Heb. though the doctrine here maintained be indubitable. Amama.—Job was fully convinced of it, and adduced it as a plea for mercy. It also tends to keep us in the most profound humility and watchfulness, to resist the motions of concupiscence. C.—Man.

"Now too late,
Saw the rash error, which he could not mend;
An error fatal not to him alone,
But to his future sons, his fortune's heirs."

Blair's Grave. Milton. x. 151. H.

VER. 6. Hireling, who rejoices at being permitted to rest a little. So, before death, suffer me to have some relaxation. C. vii. 1.

VER. 8. Dust. After being even exposed to the air, for a long time, some branches will take root, like the rose of Jericho, the willow, &c.

VER. 9. Scent, or light touch. Dan iii. 94. M.

VER. 10. Is he? Will he naturally come to life again?

VER. 11. Sea. There would be no supply of rain for the fountains. Eccl. i. 7. All would continue dry: so when the blood is once gone, life is at an end. See 2 K. xiv. 14. C.—The water cannot go back. M.

VER. 12. Till. At that time, the general resurrection will take place. Vat. Scultet. But people will never revive, according to the course of nature. In S. Matt. v. 18. Ps. lxxi. 7. till is used in this sense. C.

VER. 13. That thou mayst protect me in hell. That is, in the state of the (654)

16 "Thou indeed hast numbered my steps, but spare my sins.

17 Thou hast sealed up my offences as it were in a bag, but hast cured my iniquity.

18 A mountain falling cometh to nought, and a rock is removed out of its place.

19 Waters wear away the stones, and with inundation the ground by little and little is washed away: so in like manner thou shalt destroy man.

20 Thou hast strengthened him for a little while, that he may pass away for ever: thou shalt change his face, and shalt send him away.

21 Whether his children come to honour or dishonour, he shall not understand.

22 But yet his flesh, while he shall live, shall have pain, and his soul shall mourn over him.

CHAP. XV.

Eliphaz returns to the charge against Job, and describes the wretched state of the wicked.

AND Eliphaz, the Themanite, answered, and said:
2 Will a wise man answer as if he were speaking in the wind, and fill his stomach with burning heat?

3 Thou reprovest him by words, who is not equal to thee, and thou speakest that which is not good for thee.

4 As much as is in thee, thou hast made void fear, and hast taken away prayers from before God.

5 For thy iniquity hath taught thy mouth, and thou imitatest the tongue of blasphemers.

and xxxiv. 21. Prov. v. 21.

dead; and in the place where souls are kept waiting for their Redeemer; (Ch.) and in the grave, where the body awaits the resurrection. H.—These words are repeated in the office for the dead, in the name of the souls in purgatory. Carthus. a. 34.—They are adduced in proof of limbo. But sheol denotes also "the grave." Amama.—What then? The soul is not confined there. It must consequently be explained of the lower receptacle for souls, as well as of the grave. H.

VER. 14. Dead. Shall one in a condition nearly as bad, like myself, be restored to health? Yes, I entertain this hope. C.—Thinkest thou, is not in Heb. or Sept. The latter speaks (H.) clearly of the resurrection. C.—"For if a man die, shall he revive, having completed the days of his life? I wait (for thee) till I be again." Grabe. H.—Warfare. C. vii. 1.

VER. 16. But. Heb. "Mark not, (C.) or dost thou not observe my sin?" This fills me with terror, (H.) unless thou shew mercy.

VER. 17. Cured. Heb. "sewed up." This method and sealing was in use to keep things of value, before locks were invented. C.—Sept. "thou hast noted if I had transgressed unwillingly, amav." Yet God will not make us accountable for what we cannot help.

VER. 19. Man. Heb. and Sept. "the hope of man." H.—He must not expect to be more privileged than all other things, which time consumes. C.—Job again deplores human misery. M.

VER. 20. Strengthened. Sept. "driven away." Pagnin, &c.—"Thou wilt treat him harshly." C.

VER. 21. Or dishonour. He cannot naturally be informed. M.—God may, however, reveal to souls departed, what may increase their accidental happiness or misery. H.—Hence the Church prays to the saints. Job is speaking chiefly of the body in the grave, and of what appears exteriorly. During life man cannot foresee the state of his children; nor in the other world, would their condition render him happy or otherwise. C. Mercer.—Sept. "If his sons be many, . . . few, he knows not." H.—He is not affected in the same manner as he would be, if living. W.

VER. 22. Over. Heb. "within him." H.—During life man is full of cares, and presently he is consigned to the dreary tomb, v. 19. C.

CHAP. XV. VER. 2. Heat. Heb. "east wind," (M.) or give vent to passion. H.—Eliphaz now rebukes Job without any reserve. C.—He was perhaps displeased at the comparison used by the latter. C. xiii. 4. Baldus had also hinted that Job's discourse was nothing but wind. C. viii. 2. H.—Being unable to answer his arguments, he reviles him as an enemy of God. W.

VER. 3. Equal God, who is far above thee. Hob. "Will he (the wise) argue with less words, or with speeches which are nothing to the purpose?" C.

VER. 4. God. Another, after thy example, will assert his own innocence under affliction, and will not fear, nor have recourse to God by humble prayer. Behold the dangerous consequences of thy principle. C.

VER. 5. Blasphemers. Heb. "of the crafty," which is sometimes taken in a good sense. Sept. "thou hast not distinguished the speeches of the princes." Thou hast not shewn respect to our admonitions, (C.) or understood our mean-

6 Thy own mouth shall condemn thee, and not I: and thy own lips shall answer thee.

7 Art thou the first man that was born, or wast thou made before the hills?

8 Hast thou heard God's counsel, and shall his wisdom be inferior to thee?

9 What knowest thou that we are ignorant of? what dost thou understand that we know not?

10 "There are with us also aged and ancient men, much elder than thy fathers.

11 Is it a great matter that God should comfort thee? but thy wicked words hinder this.

12 Why doth thy heart elevate thee? and why dost thou stare with thy eyes, as if thou wert thinking great things?

13 Why doth thy spirit swell against God, to utter such words out of thy mouth?

14 What is man that he should be without spot, and he that is born of a woman that he should appear just?

15 "Behold among his saints none is unchangeable, and the heavens are not pure in his sight.

16 How much more is man abominable, and unprofitable, who drinketh iniquity like water?

17 I will shew thee, hear me: and I will tell thee what I have seen.

18 Wise men confess and hide not their fathers.

19 To whom alone the earth was given, and no stranger hath passed among them.

20 The wicked man is proud all his days, and the number of the years of his tyranny is uncertain.

21 The sound of dread is always in his ears: and when there is peace, he always suspecteth treason.

22 He believeth not that he may return from darkness to light, looking round about for the sword on every side.

* Eccl. xviii. 8.—^b Supra iv. 18.

ing H.—Thou rather choosest to imitate those false sages, who strive to deceive the world. Abuse could hardly be carried to greater lengths than it is by this man; who before spake with some moderation. C. iv. C.

VER. 7. First. Is thy experience so great, (M.) or art thou the most excellent of men? To hear thee we are but novices. C. xiii. 5 C.

VER. 8. His. Heb. "dost thou restrain wisdom to thyself?" Sept. "or has wisdom come to thee?" H.

VER. 10. Fathers. Heb. and Sept. "father." H.—Eliphaz always speaks first, and hints that he was as old, perhaps older, than Job; who had rather found fault with the youth of Sophar. C. xii. 12. He also boasts that they, or their country, furnished masters of greater wisdom and experience than even Job's father. C.

VER. 11. Thee. This would not be difficult (T.) if thy presumption did not prove an obstacle. Thou makest small account of those comforts or of our advice, trusting in thy own justice. C.—Sept. "thou hast been chastised little, considering thy sins. Thou hast spoken with excessive insolence."

VER. 12. Why. Sept. "What has thy heart dared, or what have thine eyes brought thee?" Heb. "what do thy eyes wink at?" (H.) through pride and disdain. Ps. xxxiv. 19. Prov. vi. 13. C.—We need not wonder that Eliphaz should misunderstand the looks of Job, (H.) since he gives such a false notion of his speeches. C.

VER. 14. Just. Few are free from all spot; but venial sins do not hinder a man from being styled truly virtuous. W.

VER. 15. Unchangeable, of his own nature, and during this life. C. Heb. and Sept. "is not trusted by him," till they have been tried, (H. C. iv. 17. None is good but God alone. Mar. x. 18) in comparison. T.

VER. 16. Water, with the utmost avidity and unconcern. Prov. x. 23. and xxvi. 6.

VER. 17. Seen. He had before given himself out for a prophet. Perhaps he may only mean to deliver what he had been taught, or had learned by experience, v. 18. His observations are in themselves just; but the application to Job is no less insulting. C.

VER. 18. Wise. Prot. "which wise men have told from their fathers, and we have not hid it." C. viii. 8. The authority of tradition was then very great; and why should it now be despised? H.

VER. 19. Them. Their antiquity, courage, and purity of morals must consequently be greater, as they have preserved themselves from the inroads of strangers. C.

23 When he moveth himself to seek bread, he knoweth that the day of darkness is ready at his hand.

24 Tribulation shall terrify him, and distress shall surround him, as a king that is prepared for the battle.

25 For he hath stretched out his hand against God, and hath strengthened himself against the Almighty.

26 He hath run against him with his neck raised up, and is armed with a fat neck.

27 Fatness hath covered his face, and the fat hangeth down on his sides.

28 He hath dwelt in desolate cities, and in desert houses that are reduced into heaps.

29 He shall not be enriched, neither shall his substance continue, neither shall he push his root in the earth.

30 He shall not depart out of darkness: the flame shall dry up his branches, and he shall be taken away by the breath of his own mouth.

31 He shall not believe, being vainly deceived by error, that he may be redeemed with any price.

32 Before his days be full, he shall perish: and his hands shall wither away.

33 He shall be blasted as a vine when its grapes are in the first flower, and as an olive tree that casteth its flower.

34 For the congregation of the hypocrite is barren, and fire shall devour their tabernacles, who love to take bribes.

35 "He hath conceived sorrow, and hath brought forth iniquity, and his womb prepareth deceits.

CHAP. XVI.

Job expostulates with his friends: and appeals to the judgment of God.

THEN Job answered and said:

2 I have often heard such things as these: you are all troublesome comforters.

* Psal. vii. 15. Isai. lix. 4.

VER. 20. Proud; uncertain. Heb. "in pain." H.—Sept. "numbered," or few. Gen. xxxiv. 30. These are the maxima which Eliphaz had received in a vision, or from the ancients, v. 17. The description of a tyrant's life was admirably verified in Dionysius, of Syracuse, (C.) and in our Cromwell, (H.)—"pale and trembling in the dead of night." Pope.

—who rarely lodged two nights in one chamber. Clarendon.—Such live in dread, (H.) and seldom die a natural death.

Ad generum Cereris sine cæde et vulnere pauci

Descendunt reges et accedunt morte Tyranni —Juv. x. 113.

Nocte dieque suum gestare in pectore testem. —Juv. xiii.

They bear always about the witness, "conscience." H.—They distrust every one, and are hated by all.

Districus ensis cui super impia

Cervice pendet. &c. —Hor. iii. Ode 1.

—These miseries are incident to the wicked, but are improperly addressed to Job. W.

VER. 26. And is. Heb. "even upon the thick bosses of his buckler." H.—God thus seizes his antagonist, who, like Pharaoh, swells with pride. C. Deut. xxxii. 15.

VER. 28. Heaps, by his ambition and fury, (C.) and exactions, (Cajet. M.) till the king chooses to rebuild the cities. Vatab.

VER. 31. That he. Heb. and Sept. "for vanity shall be his reward." H.—If he would repent, he might still be safe. M.

VER. 32. Hands; strength and prosperity. C.—Sept. "his branch shall not grow thick." H.

VER. 33. First. Heb. "unripe." H.—He shall derive no aid or comfort from his young family.

VER. 34. Congregation, or family.—Bribes. Lit. "presents," which (H.) frequently were not given freely, but extorted as a real tribute. C.—Sept. "for the death of the wicked is a martyrdom," or proof of his impiety. "But fire shall consume the houses of the present (or bribe) receivers."

VER. 35. Sorrow. Heb. "mischief." H. See Ps. vii. 15. Isai. xlix. 4.—The tree is known by its fruit. Eliphaz sufficiently insinuates, that he is speaking of Job. C.—His, or "its," the congregation's womb, v. 34. Prot. "their belly." H.

CHAP. XVI. VER. 2. Comforters. "Job's friends or comforters," are become proverbial, to denote people who do the contrary to what they seem to promise. H.—Never did men sustain worse the character of comforters. They

3 Shall windy words have no end? or is it any trouble to thee to speak?
 4 I also could speak, like you: and would God your soul were for my soul.
 5 I would comfort you also with words, and would wag my head over you.
 6 I would strengthen you with my mouth, and would move my lips, as sparing you.
 7 But what shall I do? If I speak, my pain will not rest: and if I hold my peace, it will not depart from me.
 8 But now my sorrow hath oppressed me, and all my limbs are brought to nothing.
 9 My wrinkles bear witness against me, and a false speaker riseth up against my face, contradicting me.
 10 He hath gathered together his fury against me; and threatening me, he hath gnashed with his teeth upon me: my enemy hath beheld me with terrible eyes.
 11 They have opened their mouths upon me, and reproaching me, they have struck me on the cheek; they are filled with my pains.
 12 God hath shut me up with the unjust man, and hath delivered me into the hands of the wicked.
 13 I that was formerly so wealthy, am all on a sudden broken to pieces: he hath taken me by my neck, he hath broken me, and hath set me up to be his mark.
 14 He hath compassed me round about with his lances, he hath wounded my loins, he hath not spared, and hath poured out my bowels on the earth.
 15 He hath torn me with wound upon wound, he hath rushed in upon me like a giant.
 16 I have sewed sackcloth upon my skin, and have covered my flesh with ashes.

all magnify their knowledge and piety, and make the most absurd application of their principles to Job's condition. C.—He was not ignorant that tyrants and wicked men were often nay generally till the age in which he lived, visited with visible judgments. H.

VER. 3. Windy, inconclusive arguments. They all entertain a mean opinion of their adversaries, as they did not agree in the application of the propositions. Hence though they might be true, they were nothing to their present purpose. C. xv. 8. H.—Trouble. You can speak without any pain: but the case is far different with me. M.—Heb. "what emboldeneth thee to answer?" H.—Who asks thee for advice? C.—True friends will give it without upbraiding, or laying false crimes to the charge of any one. W.

VER. 4. My soul. If you had experienced my state of misery, (H.) I surely would not have behaved thus to you. C.

Facile, cum vitemus, recti consilia ægrotis damus:

Tu si licet sis aliter sentias.—Terent. Andria.

VER. 5. Wag, or shake my head out of pity. C. xlii. 11. Nah. iii. 7. The same sign often indicates astonishment, or contempt. Ps. xxi. 8. Matt. xxvii. 39. C.

VER. 7. But. Heb. "If I speak," &c.

VER. 8. Limbs. Heb. "company," (H.) or family. The assemblage of my limbs is also disordered by the leprosy.

VER. 9. Against me, in your opinion, as if I were guilty of lies. Heb. "my leanness bears witness, my falsehood has risen up against me and answered me to my face," which may be understood in the same sense as the argument of Eliphaz. He is designated by the false speaker; (C.) unless we explain it of the wrinkles, which falsely indicated that Job was advanced in years, or of the malady; whence it was gathered that he must be a criminal. M.—Prot. "my leanness riseth up," H.

VER. 11. Check. His friends seemed so enraged, as to be disposed to do so. C.—These expressions were strikingly verified in Christ. M.—The outrages may also be attributed to the devil; (C.) or, by personification, to the malady of Job. M.

VER. 14. Lances. Heb. "archers." Sept. "they have encompassed me, throwing lances into my veins, or loins, not sparing," &c. H.—Bowels. Heb. and Sept. "gall," being afflicted with a dysentery. C.—S Thomas explains it of his children, who were slain. H.

VER. 16. Flesh. Heb. "horn," Sept. "strength." H.—I have lost all my beauty and splendor, and have put on the garments of penance. C.

VER. 17. Dim. Heb. and Sept. "covered with the shadow of death," (H.) greatly impaired. Some have almost lost their sight by weeping; and death seemed ready to close Job's eyes. C.

VER. 18. Hand, which has not been defiled with any injustice. M.—When. Heb. "and my prayer was pure." I never neglected this sacred duty. (C. i. 5.) as my friends accuse me. C. xv. 4. H.—They continued in their false accusations; so he repeats the same true answer. W.

17 My face is swollen with weeping, and my eye-lids are dim.

18 These things have I suffered without the iniquity of my hand, when I offered pure prayers to God.

19 O earth, cover not thou my blood, neither let my cry find a hiding place in thee.

20 For behold my witness is in heaven, and he that knoweth my conscience is on high.

21 My friends are full of words: my eye poureth out tears to God.

22 And O that a man might so be judged with God, as the son of man is judged with his companion!

23 For behold short years pass away, and I am walking in a path by which I shall not return.

CHAP. XVII.

Job's hope in God: he expects rest in death.

MY spirit shall be wasted, my days shall be shortened, and only the grave remaineth for me.

2 I have not sinned, and my eye abideth in bitterness.

3 Deliver me, O Lord, and set me beside thee, and let any man's hand fight against me.

4 Thou hast set their heart far from understanding, therefore they shall not be exalted.

5 He promiseth a prey to his companions, and the eyes of his children shall fail.

6 He hath made me, as it were, a bye-word of the people, and I am an example before them.

7 My eye is dim through indignation, and my limbs are brought, as it were, to nothing.

8 The just shall be astonished at this, and the innocent shall be raised up against the hypocrite.

VER. 19. In thee. Let the cry of my blood, which issues from my wounds, and the injury which my reputation has suffered, come before the throne of God. Calumny is a species of murder. See Gen. iv. 10. C.—If I be really guilty, I am willing to remain unburied. Let the dogs lick up my blood. Cajet.—Cry. Let the hills re-echo my sufferings. Pineda.

Et quodcumque meæ possunt narrare querela.

Cogor ad argulas dicere solus avar.—Propertius.

VER. 21. Full. Heb. "scorners." Therefore I appeal to inanimate things, and, above all, to God, who cannot give a wrong judgment.

VER. 22. Judged. Heb. "might plead." H.—Earthly judges may be compelled to pronounce sentence publicly. Job is afraid lest the justice of his cause should remain undecided, till death overtook him, v. 23. Pineda.

VER. 23. Fears. Heb. and Sept. "of number." Pauperis est numerare pecus. H.—Like a man under affliction, Job repeats what he had said. C. xiv. 6. M. and C. x. 20. H.

CHAP. XVII. VER. 1. Spirit. Heb. "breath is corrupt," (H.) or spent. I cannot breathe without the greatest difficulty. C.—Only. Sept. "but I want the grave, and do not obtain it." H.

VER. 2. Not sinned. That is, I am not guilty of such sins as they charge me with. Ch.—Heb. "the wicked were not with me" in friendship at any time. Prot. "Are there not mockers with me?" H.—Job was doubly afflicted, with corporal pain and calumny: yet hopeth in God. W.

VER. 3. Fight. I am secure under thy protection. Heb. "who will strike hands with me?" or stand bondsman for my debt? Prov. vi. 1. Who will take my place? You accuse me of weakness and of impiety: but how would you act, if you were treated in the same manner? C.

VER. 4. Understanding. They will not answer for me. They are not of such a generous disposition; nor can they distinguish between the punishment of guilt and the trial of virtue. C.

VER. 5. He. My friend. C.—Heb "speaketh flattery," (H.) or promiseth to caress me, while he neglects his own children. But the sense of the Vulg. and Chal. seems preferable. My friends speak as if they could do any thing, and as if no trial would stagger their resolution. But they durst not be in my situation for a short time. C.—Like hunters, who have promised their children some prey, my friends will not, however, gain the victory over me. M.

VER. 6. Example. Prot. "a tabret." H.—The people sing over my misfortunes. Lam. iii. 14. I am represented as a victim of God's just indignation. C. Sept. "a laughter," or laughing stock. H.

VER. 7. Indignation of God, or of myself. M.—Nothing. Heb. "as a shadow." C.

VER. 8. Hypocrite. If you condemn me, I shall comfort myself with the approbation of the righteous, and still maintain my station. H.—Men of sense and virtue will tremble at the judgments of God, and will never join the crowd of scoffers. C.

9 And the just man shall hold on his way, and he that hath clean hands shall be stronger and stronger.

10 Wherefore, be ye all converted, and come, and I shall not find among you any wise man.

11 My days have passed away, my thoughts are dissipated, tormenting my heart.

12 They have turned night into day, and after darkness I hope for light again.

13 If I wait, hell is my house, and I have made my bed in darkness.

14 I have said to rottenness: thou art my father; to worms, my mother and my sister.

15 Where is now then my expectation, and who considereth my patience?

16 All that I have shall go down into the deepest pit: thinkest thou that there, at least, I shall have rest?

CHAP. XVIII.

Baldad again reproves Job: and describes the miseries of the wicked.

THEN Baldad, the Suhite, answered, and said:

2 How long will ye throw out words? understand first, and so let us speak.

3 Why are we reputed as beasts, and counted vile before you?

4 Thou that destroyest thy soul in thy fury, shall the earth be forsaken for thee, and shall rocks be removed out of their place?

5 Shall not the light of the wicked be extinguished, and the flame of his fire not shine?

6 The light shall be dark in his tabernacle, and the lamp that is over him shall be put out.

7 The steps of his strength shall be straitened, and his own counsel shall cast him down headlong.

8 For he hath thrust his feet into a net, and walketh in its meshes.

9 The sole of his foot shall be held in a snare, and thirst shall burn against him.

VER. 10. Man. He offers to dispute with them again, and convince them of folly; (M.) or rather he here concludes his address to them, and invites them to change their preposterous judgments.

VER. 11. Thoughts. or fine projects of living happy a long time. C.

VER. 12. Day. Sleep flees from me. M.—All is in confusion.—After. Heb. and Sept. "light is near in the face of darkness. H.—I still hope for relief.

VER. 13. Hell. Scul. The region of the dead. Ch.—Prot. "grave." H.—But this text proves that there was a place of rest called hell. W.—He speaks here chiefly of the body. C.—Mors ultima linea rerum est. Hor.—"death is the end of all." H.—If I refrain from complaining, still I cannot expect to be restored to health.

VER. 14. Sister. I am nearly related to such things, and ready to drop into the grave, as my flesh is already devoured by worms. M.

VER. 15. Who. Heb. "who shall see my hope?" I wish all might witness it. H.—But I expect no redress on this side of the grave. C.

VER. 16. Deepest pit. Literally hell. Ch.—Heb. "We shall go down to the base of the pit, when we shall rest together in the dust." My hopes may be frustrated by death; (H.) or you, my friends, must also go to the house of eternity. C.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. 2. Understand ye. Teach this man to comprehend what we say. He deigns not to address Job in person: but repeats most of his former remarks respecting the wicked, as if they were unquestionably applicable to Job. C. viii. C.—Heb. "mark ye." Sept. "do thou attend." H.—Baldad speaks to many who might be of Job's opinion, as he was a figure of the Church, defending the common cause; while his friends, like heretics, speak both true and false things. S. Greg. xiv. 1. W.

VER. 3. Reputed. Sept. "set as four-footed animals before thee? (H.) without discipline or understanding." C. xvii. 4. M.

VER. 4. Thou. Heb. "He teareth his soul in his fury!" H.—This is spoken with an air of contempt, as if Job were mad. C. xlii. 14. C.—Place. We should expect to see such effects, as soon as we would allow that God punishes thee, without thy being guilty. Hitherto he has treated the wicked only with such rigour. Still thou wouldst assert that thou art a singular example of an innocent man under oppression! C.

VER. 6. Light; prosperity, (M.) offspring, &c. C.

VER. 7. Step. He shall be greatly embarrassed, (M.) like a man in a narrow pass (C.) beset with thorns. H. Prov. iv. 12.—Sept. "the weakest have made a prey of his possessions." H.

10 A gin is hidden for him in the earth, and his trap upon the path.

11 Fears shall terrify him on every side, and shall entangle his feet.

12 Let his strength be wasted with famine, and let hunger invade his ribs.

13 Let it devour the beauty of his skin, let the first-born, death, consume his arms.

14 Let his confidence be rooted out of his tabernacle, and let destruction tread upon him like a king.

15 Let the companions of him that is not, dwell in his tabernacle, let brimstone be sprinkled in his tent.

16 Let his roots be dried up beneath, and his harvest destroyed above.

17 Let the memory of him perish from the earth, and let not his name be renowned in the streets.

18 He shall drive him out of light into darkness, and shall remove him out of the world.

19 His seed shall not subsist, nor his offspring among his people, nor any remnants in his country.

20 They that come after him shall be astonished at his day, and horror shall fall upon them that went before.

21 These then are the tabernacles of the wicked, and this the place of him that knoweth not God.

CHAP. XIX.

Job complains of the cruelty of his friends: he describes his own sufferings: and his belief of a future resurrection.

THEN Job answered, and said:

2 How long do you afflict my soul, and break me in pieces with words?

3 Behold, these ten times you confound me, and are not ashamed to oppress me.

4. For if I have been ignorant, my ignorance shall be with me.

• Prov. ii. 22.

VER. 8. Meshes (maculis) or holes of the net. M.—The more he strives to get out, the more he gets entangled. C.

VER. 9. Thirst: the greedy hunter. C.—Heb. "the robber." H.

VER. 11. Fears. Hunters used to place loose feathers round the wood, except where the gin was laid, in order to frighten the prey into it.

Puniceoque agitant formidine pennae. Georg. iii.

Jer. xlviii. 44. "Like timid stags, while you avoid the moving feathers, you are entrapped in the strongest nets." S. Jerom. c. Lucif.—Every thing tends to fill the poor beast with alarm. So the devil, conscience, and enemies on all sides, beset the wicked. C.

VER. 13. First-born denotes the best, or the worst. H.—Death. Heb. "of death," the devil, or a premature death, and most cruel enemy. C.—Sept. "But death devours his most beautiful things." H.

VER. 14. Confidence. Sept. "health."—Let. Prot. "and it shall bring him to the king of terrors;" (H.) or, "thou (O God) shalt," &c. Sept. "let him be in the greatest (C.) want, on account of a royal accusation," (H.) of high treason. C.

VER. 15. Tent. When he is gone to purify it.

Et veniat quæ huiusmodi lectumque locumque, Præferat et tremulæ sulphur et oua manu.—Ovid. Art.

—Yet Moses does not mention sulphur as a thing proper for purifications. Some think that Baldad hints that his house will be destroyed with lightning, or rendered uninhabitable by a loathsome smell.

VER. 16. Harvest. Heb. also, "branch;" (C.) his family, (M.) and all on which he trusted. C.—All must be destroyed, root and branch.

VER. 20. Them. Lit. "the first," who were witnesses of his misery. H.

CHAP. XIX. VER. 3. Ten times; very often.—Oppress me. Heb. word occurs no where else, and is variously translated. It may signify "to dig a pit for me." C. vi. 27. Ps. vi. 6. Job repeats nearly what he had said before, only with greater vehemence. He admits that Providence treats him in an unusual manner. Yet he still retains an assured hope, and arraigns his adversaries before the divine tribunal. C.—Yet he rather hesitates; (v. 4. 6.) and this species of ignorance is the folly of which he, at last, accuses himself. C. xlii. 3. It was no real fault, ib. v. 8. H.

VER. 4. With me. I alone am answerable for it. But I am no wiser for your remarks. If I have sinned, have I not been sufficiently punished? C.—Sept. "Yea, truly, I was under a mistake; and the mistake still remains with me, to have spoken a word which was not becoming. But my speeches are erroneous and importunate." He talks thus ironically. H.

5 But you set yourselves up against me, and reprove me with my reproaches.

6 At least now understand, that God hath not afflicted me with an equal judgment, and compassed me with his scourges.

7 Behold I shall cry, suffering violence, and no one will hear: I shall cry aloud, and there is none to judge.

8 He hath hedged in my path round about, and I cannot pass, and in my way he hath set darkness.

9 He hath stript me of my glory, and hath taken the crown from my head.

10 He hath destroyed me on every side, and I am lost; and he hath taken away my hope, as from a tree that is plucked up.

11 His wrath is kindled against me, and he hath counted me as his enemy.

12 His troops have come together, and have made themselves a way by me, and have besieged my tabernacle round about.

13 He hath put my brethren far from me, and my acquaintance, like strangers, have departed from me.

14 My kinsmen have forsaken me, and they that knew me have forgotten me.

15 They that dwell in my house, and my maid-servants, have counted me as a stranger, and I have been like an alien in their eyes.

VER. 5. Reproaches, which I endure, as if they were a sure proof of your assertion. H.—I must therefore refute you. C.

VER. 6. With an equal judgment. S. Gregory explains these words thus: Job being a just man, and truly considering his own life, thought that his affliction was greater than his sins deserved; and in that respect, that the punishment was not equal, yet it was just, as coming from God, who gives a crown of justice to those who suffer for righteousness' sake, and proves the just with tribulations, as gold is tried by fire. Ch.—He knew that God would surely give a just reward. 2 Tim. iv. S. Greg. xiv. 16. W.—The friends of Job had too contracted a notion of Providence, supposing that the virtuous could not be afflicted. Job allowed that the ordinary rules were not here observed. Heb. "the Lord hath perverted, or overthrown me." C.—This gave him no small uneasiness. If the thing had been as plain as it appears now to us, he might have refuted all with a bare denial. Houbigant.

VER. 7. Hear. Jeremias makes the same complaint, Lam. iii. 8. C.

VER. 12. Troops: (latrones) "free-booters," (H.) or "soldiers." Sanctius.—Those nations made a practice of plundering one another's territories, without any declaration of war. Mercury and Autolychnus are praised for thefts of this description. Odyss. xix. See Judg. xi. 3. Sept. "his temptations (C. or militia; πειρασμοί) came rushing together upon me; lying down (H.) in ambush, (C.) they surrounded my paths" H.

VER. 17. Entreated. Prot add, "for the children's sake of mine own body." Sept. "I invited with flattering speeches the sons of my concubines. (18) But they cast me from them for ever. When I arise, they speak against me." H.—Interpreters generally suppose that Job speaks of the children by his inferior wives: though he might have some at home by the first wife, who were not old enough to be invited to the feast, with those who were destroyed. C.

VER. 18. Fools; wicked men, (M) or the meanest of the people, (C.) whom (H.) these unnatural children (C.) resembled. Heb. "young children." Prot. H.

VER. 19. Sons. Heb. "men of my secret." Sept. "who knew me;" my most intimate friends.—And he. Heb. and Sept. "They whom I loved are." H.—These ungratefully joined with the rest, in turning their backs on their benefactor. W.

VER. 20. Teeth. I am like a skeleton, so strangely emaciated, and my flesh corrupted: even my bones are not entire. H.—Heb. "I have escaped with the skin of my teeth." Only my gums are left. My bones cut the skin. Sym. "I tore my skin with my teeth."

VER. 22. Flesh? acting with the like inhumanity towards me. Am I not then sufficiently tormented in your opinion, that you insult over my distress? C.

VER. 23. In a. Heb. "lead, in the rock for ever." Prot. Sept have, "for ever," after book, (v. 23) and subjoins, "with a writing instrument of iron and (or) lead, or be engraven on the rocks for a memorial." Grabe insinuates that before there was only, "and on lead, or be engraven on the rocks." H.—Instrument, (celle) means "a chisel," (H.) like caelum from caelo: "I engrave" Pineda.—S. Jeron. (ad Pam.) and the late editor of his works, retain this word, as the older editions of S. Greg. did; (C.) though certe, "surely," has been inserted instead, from several MSS. by the Benedictines. H.—Ancient MSS. and Latin Bibles have more generally the latter word. But the received editions are supported by many MSS (C.) and the Sept. εγγράφεται, expresses as much. Celle est, χαλκῷ. Anama. Caraub. in Athen. vii. 20. p. 556.—An inscription, in Dalmatian, has in the same sense: Neque hic atramentum vel papyrus aut membrana ulla adhuc; sed malleolo et celle literatus silex. "Here as yet was neither ink, nor paper, nor any parchments: but a flint stone was lettered with a mallet and 16 I called my servant, and he gave me no answer I entreated him with my own mouth.

17 My wife hath abhorred my breath, and I entreated the children of my womb.

18 Even fools despised me, and when I was gone from them, they spoke against me.

19 They that were some time my counsellors, have abhorred me: and he whom I loved most, is turned against me.

20 The flesh being consumed, my bone hath cleaved to my skin, and nothing but lips are left about my teeth.

21 Have pity on me, have pity on me, at least you, my friends, because the hand of the Lord hath touched me.

22 Why do you persecute me as God, and glut yourselves with my flesh?

23 Who will grant me that my words may be written? who will grant me that they may be marked down in a book:

24 With an iron pen, and in a plate of lead, or else be graven with an instrument in flint-stone?

25 For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and in the last day I shall rise out of the earth.

26 And I shall be clothed again with my skin, and in my flesh I shall see my God.

27 Whom I myself shall see, and my eyes shall a chisel." The former modes of writing were not, in effect, invented in the days of Job. C.—But it was long very usual to make use of lead. Pineda.—What he desired to have written in such durable characters, (H.) was the following sentence, in proof of his unshaken confidence in God, and as a refutation of his friends, who accused him of despair and blasphemy, (C.) as also the whole history of his conflict. His desire has been granted. T.

VER. 25. Redeemer may be understood of the Deity, without confining it to the second Person; (Isai. xli. 14. and xlix. 7. Piscator) though it may have a more peculiar reference to Christ: (Junius. H.) in whom he believed, as the Redeemer of all mankind. C.—Earth. Yea, ere long I shall be restored to health, (S. Chrys. Grot.) as an earnest and figure of the resurrection. Nothing is more common, in Scripture, than for the same prophecy to have a double accomplishment; one soon after it is made public, and another more sublime and remote. Job seemed to have no expectation of surviving his present misery, (v. 7. and C. vii. 7. and xxiv. 15.) unless God now revealed it to him, as a figure of his future resurrection, founded on the hope of our Saviour's, which he expresses in much clearer terms. Heb. "I know that my Redeemer is living, and that he will raise himself one day upon the earth," (C.) like a conqueror, (H.) or wrestler, having overthrown his antagonist: (Amama) or, "he will stand the last upon the earth, or dust," (Piscator) ascending his throne, to judge all. Deodat.—Yet Luther translates, "and one day he will raise me up from the earth;" which is not conformable to the Heb. Others explain, "he will place (26) this, my skin, after they (worms) shall have ruined it." Pagnin. Mont.—But Amama suspects that the latter is not in earnest. Pineda defends the Vulg. and observes that yakum (H.) may signify, "will raise" himself, or "me;" the latter being at least a consequence of the former, if S. Jerome did not read it in his copy. So S. Paul argues: If Christ be risen, we also shall rise again. Sept. "For I know that he is eternal, who will set me free," (H.) by death, (C. or redemption; ἐλευθερία) "upon the earth."

VER. 26. And I. Sept. "But he will raise up my body or skin, which has sustained these things. This now has been accomplished for me by the Lord: (27) which I know within myself, which my eyes have seen, and not another. For all things are accomplished in my bosom." I am as fully convinced of this glorious event, (H.) as if it were past. C.—Heb. "and though, after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." Prot. or, in the margin, "After I shall awake, though this body be destroyed, yet out of," &c. Various other interpretations are given. H.—But we had as well adhere to the Sept. Vulg. &c. D.—God. Sixtus V. and some other editions, add "Saviour." C.—Job would see the Messiah by the eyes of his posterity. S. Aug. or Funstus, ser. 234. t. v. App. Sanctius.—He hoped also to see God face to face in glory (C.) though not by means of his corporeal eyes, (H.) and to be restored to favour so that God would no longer turn his back on him. C. xlii. 5. S. Gregory when legate at Constantinople, convinced the patriarch Eutychius, by this text, that after the resurrection, our bodies would still be palpable, and not aerial only. C.—It contains an express profession of Job's faith, on this head. We shall rise the same in substance. W.

VER. 27. Myself. Heb. "for myself," and for my comfort; not like the reprobate, who shall see their judge to their eternal confusion. Job insists so much on this point, that he shews he is not speaking merely of the divine favour being restored to him, in the re-establishment of his health and affairs, but that he raises his mind to something more solid and desirable, of which the former was only a faint representation. C.—"No one since Christ has spoken so plainly of the resurrection, as this man did before the coming of the Mes-behold, and not another: this, my hope, is laid up in my bosom.

28 Why then do you say now: Let us persecute him, and let us find occasion of word against him?

29 Flee then from the face of the sword, for the sword is the revenger of iniquities; and know ye that there is a judgment.

CHAP. XX.

Sophar declares the shortness of the prosperity of the wicked: and their sudden downfall.

THEN Sophar, the Naamathite, answered, and said: 2 Therefore various thoughts succeed one another in me, and my mind is hurried away to different things.

3 The doctrine with which thou reprovest me, I will hear, and the spirit of my understanding shall answer for me.

4 This I know from the beginning, since man was placed upon the earth,

5 That the praise of the wicked is short, and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment.

6 If his pride mount up even to heaven, and his head touch the clouds:

7 In the end he shall be destroyed, like a dunghill; and they that had seen him, shall say: Where is he?

8 As a dream that fleeth away, he shall not be found; he shall pass as a vision of the night:

9 The eye that had seen him, shall see him no more, neither shall his place any more behold him.

10 His children shall be oppressed with want, and his hands shall render to him his sorrow.

11 His bones shall be filled with the vices of his youth, and they shall sleep with him in the dust.

12 For when evil shall be sweet in his mouth, he will hide it under his tongue.

chas. 8 Jer. ad Pam.—This. Heb. “though my reins be consumed within me.” Prot. H.) or, “my reins (desires and tender affections) are completed in my bosom.” C.

VER. 23. Let us. Sept. “Why do we contend against him? and the root of the word (reason) we shall find in him.” He provokes us to speak thus. H.—Hob. reads, “in me.” But the Chal. &c. “have him,” as the sequel requires; unless Job speaks this in his own person. I am ready to answer you; or, have you already discovered in me any grounds for your virulent attack? C.

VER. 29. Know. Sept. “And then they shall know that their power is nowhere;” or, “where is their substance?” Grabe. H.—Job menaces his friends with God’s judgments, as they had done him. C.

CHAP. XX. VER. 2. Therefore. From this concession which thou hast just made. M.—Various. Heb. “Hence do my thoughts cause me to answer, and for this I hasten.” Sept. “I did not thus suspect that thou wouldst contradict these things,” &c. H.—Sophar only speaks this second time; and he produces little new, but begins with an air of more moderation, as if the arguments of Job had made some impression upon him. C.—He attempts to prove that the wicked have no comfort long: which is true in one sense, as all time is short though they may prosper all their lives, as Job corrects his observation. C. xxi. 13. W.

VER. 4. I know. Heb. and Sept. “dost thou not know?”

VER. 6. Pride. Sept. “presents.” H.—Riches may be meant by pride. C.

VER. 7. Itth. Heb. “his own dung.” H. Prov. x. 7.

VER. 8. Fleeth. The poets assign wings to sleep and to dreams. Homer, æ. Iliad (xxix. 7.) describes a man who dreams that he is eating, and finds himself hungry when he awakes. Such is the life of the avaricious, (C.) and of all wicked people. H.

VER. 9. Behold him, as if it were susceptible of resentment, and entered into the views of God. C. vii. 10. Ps. xxvi. 35. C.

VER. 10. Be. Heb. “seek to please the poor, and his hands shall restore their goods,” which the wicked had gotten by oppression. H.

VER. 11. Vices of, is not in Heb. but must be understood. H.—Youth. Some translate, “hidden.” Sophar perhaps accuses Job of some secret abominations, for which he was afflicted with the venereal disease. At least, nothing is more common than to see people brought to old age and infirmities unnumbered, (C.) before their time, in consequence of riotous living in their youth. H.—Youth may also denote the sin in which we are born, which is the source of all our maladies, and is always dragging us towards the grave. C.

VER. 12. Evil of any kind, and particularly (H.) injustice, which at first 13 He will spare it, and not leave it, and will hide it in his throat.

14 His bread in his belly shall be turned into the gall of asps within him.

15 The riches which he hath swallowed, he shall vomit up, and God shall draw them out of his belly.

16 He shall suck the head of asps, and the viper’s tongue shall kill him.

17 (Let him not see the streams of the river, the brooks of honey and of butter.)

18 He shall be punished for all that he did, and yet shall not be consumed: according to the multitude of his devices so also shall he suffer.

19 Because he broke in, and stript the poor: he hath violently taken away a house which he did not build.

20 *And yet his belly was not filled: and when he hath the things he coveted, he shall not be able to possess them.

21 There was nothing left of his meat, and therefore nothing shall continue of his goods.

22 When he shall be filled, he shall be straitened; he shall burn, and every sorrow shall fall upon him.

23 May his belly be filled, that God may send forth the wrath of his indignation upon him, and rain down his war upon him.

24 He shall flee from weapons of iron, and shall fall upon a bow of brass.

25 The sword is drawn out, and cometh forth from its scabbard, and glittereth in his bitterness: the terrible ones shall go and come upon him.

26 All darkness is hid in his secret places: a fire that is not kindled shall devour him: he shall be afflicted when left in his tabernacle.

* Eccli. v. 9.

seems sweet, but will prove in the end a mortal poison. C.—The unjust will be forced to restore his ill-gotten goods, or suffer eternally for the neglect, v. 14. 18. H.—Habitual sins are also overcome with most difficulty, v. 11. M.

VER. 16. Head. Heb. “venom.” Sept. “the wrath of dragons.” C.—Vipers. The same Heb. term is elsewhere rendered basilisk, or asp. The precise import of such things is not easily ascertained. Pineda.—Tongue. The ancients thought that serpents communicated the venom by the tongue, or sting. Moderns think they do it rather by the teeth. C.

VER. 17. Butter. The impious may have a short-lived pleasure, but it will not give perfect satisfaction. The poets use similar expressions. C.

Mella fiant illi, ferat et rubus asper animum. Virg.

Flumina jam lactis, jam flumina nectaris abund. Met. i.

VER. 18. Suffer eternal torments. C.—Heb. “according to his substance, shall the restitution be, and he shall not rejoice.” Prot.

VER. 20. Them. Death will overtake him, like the rich man. Luke xii. 20. C.

VER. 21. Continue. Heb. “no one shall look for his goods.” The sinner eat up all in his life-time, or saw his possessions slip from him. H.—At least, he shall not take them with him to the grave. C.

VER. 23. May. Heb. “And when he shall be about to fill his belly,” like king Balthazar, death shall hurry him away. C.—Ram. Sept. “hurl sorrows upon him,” (H.) by an untimely death, followed with eternal hunger and thirst. Thus was treated the rich glutton. Luke xvi. 22. C.

VER. 24. Brass; of which metal the strongest bows were made. Prot. have, “steel.” (H.) but brass was used by the ancients for the same purpose. C.—This proverb shews that those who endeavour to escape from men, fall into the hands of God. Delrio. Adag. 9, t. ii.

Incidit in Scyllam cupiens vitare Charybdim. Virg. M.

VER. 25. The sword is, occurs not in the Vulg. (H.) though it be in the Compl. and Sixtine editions. C.—Heb. “It is drawn, and cometh out of the body; the glittering sword cometh out of his gall; terrors are upon him.” Prot. “May likewise the dart come out through his body.” &c. H.—Ones. Heb. Enim; giants, who formerly inhabited the land of Moab, near the eastern Idumea. Their name might be placed for any cruel enemies. C.

VER. 26. Darkness, or misery. C.—Sept. “Terrors upon him, (26) and all darkness may await him.” H.—He shall find no means of escaping. C.—Kindled. Heb. “blown.” S. Gregory observes that hell-fire is corporeal, but very different from our material fire. Chal. &c. explain this passage in the same sense. It may also intimate interior anguish, (C.) lightning, (Vatable) pesti- (655)

27 The heavens shall reveal his iniquity, and the earth shall rise up against him.

28 The offspring of his house shall be exposed, he shall be pulled down in the day of God's wrath.

29 This is the portion of a wicked man from God, and the inheritance of his doings from the Lord.

CHAP. XXI.

Job shews that the wicked often prosper in this world, even to the end of their life: but that their judgment is in another world.

THEN Job answered, and said:

2 Hear, I beseech you, my words, and do penance.

3 Suffer me, and I will speak; and after, if you please, laugh at my words.

4 Is my debate against man, that I should not have just reason to be troubled?

5 Harken to me and be astonished, and lay your finger on your mouth.

6 As for me, when I remember, I am afraid, and trembling taketh hold on my flesh.

7 * Why then do the wicked live, are they advanced, and strengthened with riches?

8 Their seed continueth before them, a multitude of kinsmen, and of children's children in their sight.

9 Their houses are secure and peaceable, and the rod of God is not upon them.

10 Their cattle have conceived, and failed not: their cow hath calved, and is not deprived of her fruit.

11 Their little ones go out like a flock, and their children dance and play.

* Jerem. xii. 1, Habac. i. 18.

ience, (Grot.) and every species of calamity. C.—Tabernacle, in hell. M.—We may also translate, "he who is left," (H.) the offspring shall be also miserable. M.

VER. 27. Heavens, as his sins have cried for vengeance. Gen. xviii. 20. C.—All creatures shall fight against the wicked. M.

VER. 28. Exposed. Heb. "the bud, (C.) or increase of his house, shall depart," (H.) and be led away into captivity, (C.) and ruined. Sept. "Let final destruction drag away his house, and the day of wrath overtake him."

VER. 29. Doings. Lit. "words." Heb. "of his decrees." H.—This is what he may expect for his impiety both in words and actions. C.

CHAP. XXI. VER. 2. Do. "Alter your opinion." M.—Sym. "hear." Sept. "may this be for your consolation," (Heb.) which I shall receive from you, or which you may make use of, if you should be afflicted (C) as I am. H.—Job undertakes to show that the wicked are sometimes suffered to enjoy a long prosperity.

VER. 4. Troubled. Heb. "Why is not my spirit shortened" by death, if your assertion be true? (H.) or why may I not be "troubled," since I have to deal, not with an enlightened judge, but with men who are under the greatest prejudices? C.—I seem to you to dispute against God. Have I not then reason to tremble? v. 6. H.—Though he disputed with men, it was concerning Providence and eternal things. W.

VER. 5. Harken to. Lit. "look steadfastly on me." H.—Compare my present with my former condition, and do not pretend to fathom God's judgments; which fill me also with astonishment, when I consider why the virtuous are distressed, and the wicked prosper, v. 7.—Mouth be silent. Harpocrates, the god of silence, was represented in this posture; and Virgil says, Intentiq; ora tenebant. Æneid ii.—Sept. "upon the cheek," like men in deep consideration. C.

VER. 7. Riches. This is what fills me with great anxiety. Yet it quite destroys the force of your argument, (C.) since you pretend that the prosperity of the wicked is never of long duration. We see them, however, live to an advanced old age, (H.) continually offending God, and annoying their neighbours. C.—Sept. "yea, they grow old in riches."

VER. 8. Sight. The Jews esteemed this as the greatest blessing and mark of God's favour. Yet it was also equivocal, as it was often possessed by the wicked. C.

VER. 9. Rod. Divine judgments. M. Ps. lxxii. 5.

VER. 10. Cattle. Lit. "ox," bos. Prot. "their bull gendereth, and faileth not." H.—But Bochart explains it of the cows' bringing forth every year. C.—Ox is used in the same sense, both by sacred and profane authors. H.—A great part of the riches of these nations consisted in cattle. Ps. cxliii. 14. Zac viii. 5.

VER. 11. Their. Sept. "They continue like eternal sheep," as if they and their flocks would never die. C.—And play, is to shew the nature of the dance. It is not in Heb. H.—The children are healthy and sportive. M.—Sept. "they play before them." H.

12 They take the timbrel and the harp, and rejoice at the sound of the organ.

13 They spend their days in wealth, and in a moment they go down to hell.

14 Who have said to God: Depart from us, we desire not the knowledge of thy ways.

15 ^b Who is the Almighty, that we should serve him? and what doth it profit us if we pray to him?

16 Yet because their good things are not in their hand, may the counsel of the wicked be far from me.

17 How often shall the lamp of the wicked be put out, and a deluge come upon them, and he shall distribute the sorrows of his wrath?

18 They shall be as chaff before the face of the wind and as ashes which the whirlwind scattereth.

19 God shall lay up the sorrow of the father for his children: and when he shall repay, then shall he know.

20 His eyes shall see his own destruction, and he shall drink of the wrath of the Almighty.

21 For what is it to him what befalleth his house after him: and if the number of his months be diminished by one half?

22 Shall any one teach God knowledge, who judgeth those that are high?

23 One man dieth strong and hale, rich and happy.

24 His bowels are full of fat, and his bones are moistened with marrow.

25 But another dieth in bitterness of soul, without any riches:

^b Malac. iii. 14.

VER. 13. Moment. Sept. "in the rest of the lower region, δδω, they shall be laid," (H.) in the grave. M.—A sudden death, without agony or sickness, (H.) was the choice of Julius Cæsar, the night before he was slain. Repentantem inopinatumque prætulit. Sueton.—But the enlightened servant of God would rather desire time to do penance, and to prepare for death. For who shall presume that he has that charity which banisheth fear? C.—Hell. The same term is used for the place where the damned are tormented, as for that where the souls of the just waited (C. vii. and xvii.) for their Redeemer's coming. But here Job is speaking of the apparent happiness of the wicked; (H.) and only alludes to the grave, (C. M.) or comfortable death and burial of the reprobate, though, at the same time, he may declare that their souls are buried in hell. H.

VER. 14. Ways. The too common effect of riches. Prov. xxx. 8. Eccli. v. 2.

VER. 16. Because is not in Heb. "Lo, their good is not." They are not possessed of true riches, or of good sense. Alex. Sept. "For good things were in their hands: but the works of the impious are not pure." No: the more they possess, the greater is their perversity. Græbe substitutes ἀκαθάρτα, for καθάρτα; God "does not behold" the works, &c. which is more conformable to the other editions; and thus the blasphemies of the impious are continued. F.—When we are not sensible of our wants and dependance, we think less on God. C.—Hand, or power, they are only the gift of God; far be then such sentiments from me. C.

VER. 17. How often. When do we witness the downfall of the wicked? Mercer.—Or, in a contrary sense, how often are they miserable as well as the just? Such things are, therefore, a very equivocal argument, to prove either side of the question. Those who are afflicted, and cling closer to God, must be accounted virtuous and happy; while that prosperity is fatal which is an occasion of our neglecting his service. C.—Job answers his own questions, v. 7. "if the wicked be happy for a time, their future state is deplorable, and often they forfeit even their temporal advantages. M.

VER. 19. The sorrow. Prot. "his iniquity." Marg. "that is the punishment." H.—The children shall share in his punishment, (C.) when they have been partakers, or imitators of his injustice. H.—Know his offence, and whether there be a God (C.) and Providence. M.

VER. 21. And if. Heb. "when" he is cut off in the midst of his days: he does not regard the happiness or misery of those whom he leaves behind. H.—The children are rather taken away for his punishment, while he is living, as their misery would not touch him in the grave. M.

VER. 23. Hale, or healthy. Heb. "in perfect strength." H.—Sept. "simplicity, or fully." S. Aug. reads with the old Vulg. "in the strength of his simplicity," (C.) or innocence. H.—These outward appearances prove nothing for interior piety or wickedness. C.

VER. 24. Bowels. Prot. "breasts" (Marg. "milk-pails") are full of milk. But the Sept. Bochart, &c. agree with the Vulgate. Job describes a corpulent man (C.) living in luxury, like the glutton. H.

VER. 25. Any. Heb. "ever having eaten with pleasure." H.

26 And yet they shall sleep together in the dust, and worms shall cover them.

27 Surely I know your thoughts, and your unjust judgments against me.

28 For you say: Where is the house of the prince? and where are the dwelling-places of the wicked?

29 Ask any one of them that go by the way, and you shall perceive that he knoweth these same things.

30 Because the wicked man is reserved to the day of destruction, and he shall be brought to the day of wrath.

31 Who shall reprove his way to his face? and who shall repay him what he hath done?

32 He shall be brought to the graves, and shall watch in the heap of the dead.

33 He hath been acceptable to the gravel of Cocytus, and he shall draw every man after him, and there are innumerable before him.

34 How then do ye comfort me in vain, whereas your answer is shewn to be repugnant to truth?

CHAP. XXII.

Eliphaz falsely imputes many crimes to Job: but promises him prosperity if he will repent.

THEN Eliphaz, the Themanite, answered, and said:

2 Can man be compared with God, even though he were of perfect knowledge?

VER. 27. Ma. I perceive you are not convinced; and what you say respecting the wicked, is pointed at me. M.

VER. 28. Prince. Job, (M.) or rather the tyrant, whose lot we know is miserable, as he falls a victim to God's justice. C. xx. 7.

VER. 29. Way. Travellers, who have seen foreign countries, (Vatab.) or any one that may be passing, (Sanchez) will answer this objection (H.) in my favour. M.—They will all agree in testifying that the wicked prosper, even for a long time. C.

VER. 30. To the. He will be requited indeed, at last; or rather, when others are in the utmost danger, he will be protected as it were by God. Sept. (C.) or Theodotion, "the wicked is kept on high," κορυφίζεται. All from v. 28 to 33 inclusively, is marked as an addition to the Sept. by Grabe, who has supplied many similar omissions, of which Origen and S. Jerom complained. H.

VER. 31. Done. Man is afraid, and God defers to take cognizance. C.

VER. 32. Dead. Heb. "the sheaves," being quite ripe for harvest, and even in the tomb, the tyrant retains some sort of pre-eminence, as he is buried with honour, and set like a more elevated sheaf, to inspect the rest. C.—Godias, is rendered by Prot. "tomb," (margin) "heap." But (C. v. 26. where only the word occurs again, we find "a shock of corn," and this comparison seems very suitable here. The damned shall watch, alas, when it will be to no purpose, among the heap of fellow-sufferers, who would not think while they had time to repent. After millions of nights spent thus without sleep or ease, we may imagine we hear their mournful lamentations from the depth of the abyss. Always misery! and never any hope of ease! H.—"Eternity," says Bridayne, (ser. in Maury's Eloq.) "is a pendulum, the vibration of which sounds continually, Always! Never! In the mean while, a reprobate cries out: What o'clock is it! And the same voice answers, Eternity!" Thus at last the wicked shall awake from the sleep in which they have spent their days; (H.) and their watching, restless, and immortal souls (S. Thom.) will bitterly lament their past folly. What profit will they derive from the honours paid to their corpse by surviving friends, (H.) even though they be embalmed, and seem to live in marble statues! Pineda.

VER. 33. Acceptable to the gravel of Cocytus. The Hebrew word, which S. Jerom has here rendered by the name Cocytus, (which the poets represent as a river in hell) signifies a valley or a torrent: and in this place, is taken for the low region of death, and hell: which willingly, as it were, receives the wicked at their death: who are ushered in by innumerable others that have gone before them; and are followed by multitudes above number. Ch.—Isaias (xiv. 9.) and Ezechiel (xxxii. 21.) describe the splendid reception in hell of the kings of Babylon and of Egypt, nearly in the same manner as Job does that of any sinner who has lived in prosperity. C. xxxviii. 17. He gives life to the whole creation, in the true spirit of poetry. C.—The rich man is represented as tenderly embraced by his mother earth; (C. i. 21. H.) the very stones and turf press lightly upon him, as the ancients prayed, Sit tibi terra levis. Heb. "the stones or clods of the torrent (C.) shall be sweet to him, and he," &c. H.—S. Jerom has chosen to mention a particular river, instead of the general term vel, "a torrent or vale," to intimate that Job is speaking of the state after death.—Cocytus is a branch of the Styx, a river of Arcadia, of a noxious quality, which the poets have placed in hell. Pineda.—Sept. "The pebbles of the torrent became sweet to him, and in his train every man shall come, and unnumbered men before him." Alex. MS. has "men of number:" the two first letters of ἀριθμῶντος being omitted.

L.—The Church reads in her office for S. Stephen, Lapides torrentis illi dulces

3 What doth it profit God if thou be just? or what dost thou give him if thy way be unspotted?

4 Shall he reprove thee for fear, and come with thee into judgment?

5 And not for thy manifold wickedness, and thy infinite iniquities?

6 For thou hast taken away the pledge of thy brethren without cause, and stript the naked of their clothing.

7 Thou hast not given water to the weary, thou hast withdrawn bread from the hungry.

8 In the strength of thy arm thou didst possess the land, and, being the most mighty, thou heldest it.

9 Thou hast sent widows away empty, and the arms of the fatherless thou hast broken in pieces.

10 Therefore art thou surrounded with snares, and sudden fear troubleth thee.

11 And didst thou think that thou shouldst not see darkness, and that thou shouldst not be covered with the violence of overflowing waters?

12 Dost not thou think that God is higher than heaven, and is elevated above the height of the stars?

13 And thou sayest: What doth God know? and he judgeth as it were through a mist.

14 The clouds are his covert, and he doth not consider our things, and he walketh about the poles of heaven.

fuervnt: ipsum sequuntur omnes animæ justæ. Many explain this passage of Job as a menace. The wicked have carried their insolence so far as to (C.) give orders to (H.) be buried with the utmost pomp: but in the other world, they shall be thrown ignominiously among the other dead. S. Greg. &c. C.—They were little moved with the thought of death, as it was common to all. But what will they think of eternal misery! H.

VER. 34. Vain. These arguments shew that your assertions are destitute of proof, and afford me no comfort. C.

CHAP. XXII. VER. 2. Knowledge. How then canst thou dispute with God! VER. 3. Profit. God rules all with justice or with mercy: since, therefore, he punishes, it must be for some guilt, and not for his own advantage. But he might still chastise for the good of man, or to manifest his own power. Jo. ix. 8. God also punishes the sinner for the wrong which he does to himself. S. Aug. Conf. iii. 8. Any one may discover the sophism of Eliphaz. If God were indifferent with regard to our virtue, who would be able to advance one step towards him! C.—Man is unprofitable indeed to God, but he may reap great advantage from piety himself; and this is what God desires, as well as his own glory. Mat. v. 17. W.

VER. 4. Fear. These malefactors are condemned, that they may no longer disturb society. But may not God afflict the just, though he have nothing to fear? C.

VER. 5. Iniquities. He adduces no fresh arguments, but boldly taxes Job with many crimes, which a person in his station might have committed. He rashly concludes that he must have fallen into some of them at least. C.

VER. 6. Pledge. Heb. "person." Debtors might be sold. Matt. xviii. 30.

VER. 7. Water. Job's disposition was the reverse. C. xxix. 15. Such inhumanity would hardly be conceived possible among us. But the Indians were guilty of it; (Num. xx. 18. Isai. xxi. 14.) and if it had not been probable, Eliphaz would not have dared to speak thus. C.

VER. 8. It. Heb. and Sept. intimate that Job accepted persons, and gave sentence in favour of his rich friends. fl.

VER. 9. Arms; possessions, condemning orphans unjustly.

VER. 11. Waters, and misery, (C.) which such conduct deserved. H.

VER. 12. Stars; and of course, that his Providence regardeth not human affairs. C.—When an infidel observed, "I think the gods are too great to want my adoration," Socrates well replied, "The greater they appear to thee, the more oughtest thou to treat them with respect and honour." Xenophon, Memor.

VER. 14. Doth. Heb. "seeth not." Sept. "is not seen."—Poles, on which the whole machine seems to turn. C.—"Hipparchus intimated that there would be a time when the hinges, or poles of heaven, would be moved out of their places." Colum. i. 1. Heb. and Sept. (according to Origen's edition, v. 13 to 16) "he walketh about in the circuit of heaven." H.

Immortali ævo munus cum pare fruatur
Senola a noxia rebus, æquinoctia longe. Lucret.

This was the error of the Egyptians, (Arist. Mun. 84.) which Eliphaz unjustly lays to the charge of Job, as heretics often impute condemned tenets to Catholics. W.

VER. 15. Wicked. Sept. Alex. "just." But Grabe substitutes unjust; (H.) as otherwise, Eliphaz would argue against his own principles: unless just be put ironically for hypocrites. C.—Wilt thou imitate the ancient giants, before the deluge? C.

15 Dost thou desire to keep the path of ages, which wicked men have trodden?

16 Who were taken away before their time, and a flood hath overthrown their foundation:

17 Who said to God: Depart from us: and looked upon the Almighty as if he could do nothing.

18 Whereas he had filled their houses with good things: whose way of thinking be far from me.

19 *The just shall see, and shall rejoice, and the innocent shall laugh them to scorn.

20 Is not their exaltation cut down, and hath not fire devoured the remnants of them?

21 Submit thyself then to him, and be at peace: and thereby thou shalt have the best fruits.

22 Receive the law of his mouth, and lay up his words in thy heart.

23 If thou wilt return to the Almighty, thou shalt be built up, and shalt put away iniquity far from thy tabernacle.

24 He shall give for earth flint, and for flint torrents of gold.

25 And the Almighty shall be against thy enemies, and silver shall be heaped together for thee.

26 Then shalt thou abound in delights in the Almighty, and shalt lift up thy face to God.

27 Thou shalt pray to him, and he will hear thee, and thou shalt pay thy vows.

28 Thou shalt decree a thing, and it shall come to thee, and light shall shine in thy ways.

29 *For he that hath been humbled, shall be in glory: and he that shall bow down his eyes, he shall be saved.

30 The innocent shall be saved, and he shall be saved by the cleanness of his hands.

* Psal. cvi. 42.

VER. 16. Flood. Heb. "river," (Sept. C.) or "flood," Prot. This does not certainly allude to the deluge, though Job could not be unacquainted with an event (H.) which appears in the writings of the most ancient pagan authors. Grot. Relig.

VER. 18. From me. He thus insinuates that Job entertained such sentiments, though he seemed to condemn them. C. xxi. 16. C.—Sept. "is far from him," God.

VER. 19. Shall. Sept. "saw." The Jews explain this of Noe, who saw the ruin of the giants with pity, mixed with joy, as he approved of the divine judgments. Vatab. &c.—The just can thus rejoice, only on this account; as they would not be just if they were devoid of charity. S. Greg. Ps. lviii. 11. and cvi. 42. C.

VER. 20. Their. Heb. "our." C.—"Whereas our substance is not cut down." Prot. H.—But the Sept. and Chal. agree with the Vulg. which gives a better sense.—Fire, which consumed Sodom, &c. C.

VER. 22. Law of Moses, (Rabbins) or rather (H.) the natural law, which teaches that God is just, and deserves to be adored. He addresses Job, as if he had acknowledged no law or restraint.

VER. 24. Gold, to build and adorn thy habitation, v. 28. Heb. "He will give thee gold instead of dust; (or more abundant) yea, gold of the torrents of Ophir." The Phasis is said to roll gold dust, which is of the purest kind. Gen. ii. 11. C.—"Thou shalt lay up gold as dust, and the gold of Ophir, as the stones of the brooks" Prot. H.—This is an exaggeration, (8 K. x. 27. C.) and a sort of proverb, intimating that strength and plenty should succeed to infirmity. The foundations should be the hard rock, instead of earth, &c.

VER. 25. Silver. Sept. "But he shall purify thee, as silver, which has passed the fire." H.

VER. 26. Face, with confidence of being in favour and accepted. C.

VER. 27. Vows, after obtaining thy requests. M.—

Et positus aris jam vota in littore solvet. Æn. iii.

VER. 28. Decree. Thy projects shall succeed. Sept. "But he shall appoint for thee the rule of justice." H.

VER. 29. Glory, as the gospel declares. Mat. xxiii. 12. The Heb. is more perplexed. "When men are cast down, then thou shalt say, there is lifting up." Prot. (H.) or "when thy eyes shall be cast down, they shall say to thee, Arise," C.

VER. 30. Innocent. Heb. "He shall deliver even the man who is not innocent, and that for the sake of the purity of thy hands." Chal. Jun. &c.—God will even spare the guilty, to manifest the regard which he has for the in-

CHAP. XXIII.

Job wishes to be tried at God's tribunal.

THEN Job answered, and said:

2 Now also my words are in bitterness, and the hand of my scourge is more grievous than my mourning.

3 Who will grant me that I might know and find him, and come even to his throne?

4 I would set judgment before him, and would fill my mouth with complaints.

5 That I might know the words that he would answer me, and understand what he would say to me.

6 I would not that he should contend with me with much strength, nor overwhelm me with the weight of his greatness.

7 Let him propose equity against me, and let my judgment come to victory.

8 But if I go to the east, he appeareth not: if to the west, I shall not understand him.

9 If to the left hand, what shall I do? I shall not take hold on him: if I turn myself to the right hand, I shall not see him.

10 But he knoweth my way, and has tried me as gold that passeth through the fire.

11 My foot hath followed his steps; I have kept his way, and have not declined from it.

12 I have not departed from the commandments of his lips, and the words of his mouth I have hid in my bosom.

13 For he is alone, and no man can turn away his thought: and whatsoever his soul hath desired, that hath he done.

14 And when he shall have fulfilled his will in me, many other like things are also at hand with him.

* Prov. xxix. 28.

tercession of the saints. These interpreters have taken as in the same sense as ain, which is the case, 1 K. iv. 21. C.—Others explain, "He shall deliver the island of the innocent, and it is delivered by the pureness of thine hands." Prot. This also would shew the merit and protection of the saints, as a whole island may owe its safety to one of God's servants. In effect, the world stands by the prayers of the saints. H.—All that has been said from v. 21. tends to shew that God favours his friends; and, consequently, that he would never have punished Job, if he had not been guilty. C.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. 2. Bitterness. Instead of comfort, he only meets with insult from his friends. He therefore appeals to God, (W.) but with fear. C.—Scourge, is not in Heb. M.—But it explains the meaning of "my hand," (H.) or the heavy chastisement (S. Greg.) which I endure. M.

VER. 6. Nor. Prot. "No, but he would put strength in me." He would enable me to stand my trial. H.—He would lay no falsehood to my charge.

VER. 7. Victory. Before such a judge I should hope to be acquitted. Job must have been well convinced of his innocence. For woe to man, if God treat him according to the rigour of his justice! C.—Sept. "For truth and reproot are with him. But, oh! that he would bring my judgment to an end." H.

VER. 8. East, or Heb. "before . . . if behind I cannot perceive him." C.—Where, then, shall I find this just judge? v. 3. H.

VER. 9. Right, southward.—See. The southern part of the heavens, or the antarctic stars could not be discerned in Idumea. C. ix. 9. C.—Job speaks in a human manner, as he was not ignorant of God's immensity. M.

VER. 10. Fire. They had not a stone, like the Greeks, to try gold. C.

VER. 12. Lips, given to Noe, (Gen. ix. 5.) or to Moses. This work was written by a Jew, who dresses up the sentiments of Job in his own style. The holy man was also acquainted with the Mosaic dispensation, though he was not bound to observe the ceremonial part of it. C.—His words may, however, be verified, though he speak only of the natural law, or of that which was preserved by tradition of the patriarchs, as both proceeded from God. H.—Hid. Prot. "esteemed . . . more than my necessary food." H.—Sept. agree with the Vulg. The ancients placed in their bosom what they greatly esteemed. The Turks still use it as a pocket. Thevenot xxii. C.

VER. 13. Alone. Self-existent. Heb. "in one thing," or resolution. He is immutable: all I could say would avail nothing. C.

VER. 14. With him, to punish me afresh. Heb. "when he shall have appointed me my portion, he shall still have many such." He may treat me as a slave, allowing me only a certain portion of meat. Prov. xix. 8. and xxxi. 15. C.

15 And therefore I am troubled at his presence, and when I consider him I am made pensive with fear.

16 God hath softened my heart, and the Almighty hath troubled me.

17 For I have not perished because of the darkness that hangs over me, neither hath the mist covered my face.

CHAP. XXIV.

God's providence often suffers the wicked to go on a long time in their sins: but punishes them in another life.

TIMES are not hid from the Almighty: but they that know him, know not his days.

2 Some have removed land-marks, have taken away flocks by force, and fed them.

3 They have driven away the ass of the fatherless, and have taken away the widow's ox for a pledge.

4 They have overturned the way of the poor, and have oppressed together the meek of the earth.

5 Others, like wild asses in the desert, go forth to their work: by watching for a prey, they get bread for their children.

6 They reap the field that is not their own, and gather the vintage of his vineyard whom by violence they have oppressed.

7 They send men away naked, taking away their clothes who have no covering in the cold:

8 Who are wet with the showers of the mountains, and, having no covering, embrace the stones.

9 They have violently robbed the fatherless, and stript the poor common people.

10 From the naked, and them that go without clothing, and from the hungry, they have taken away the ears of corn.

11 They have taken their rest at noon among the stores of them who, after having trodden the wine-presses, suffer thirst.

12 Out of the cities they have made men to groan, and the soul of the wounded hath cried out, and God doth not suffer it to pass unrevenged.

13 They have been rebellious to the light, they have not known his ways, neither have they returned by his paths.

14 The murderer riseth at the very break of day, he killeth the needy, and the poor man: but in the night he will be as a thief.

15 The eye of the adulterer observeth darkness, saying: No eye shall see me: and he will cover his face.

16 He diggeth through houses in the dark, as in the day they had appointed for themselves, and they have not known the light.

17 If the morning suddenly appear, it is to them the shadow of death: and they walk in darkness as if it were in light.

18 He is light upon the face of the water: cursed be his portion on the earth; let him not walk by the way of the vineyards.

19 Let him pass from the snow waters to excessive heat, and his sin even to hell.

20 Let mercy forget him: may worms be his sweetness: let him be remembered no more, but be broken in pieces as an unfruitful tree.

VER. 17. Face. My afflictions have not yet taken away my life, as might have been expected. H.—I am less affected with my miseries, than with the dread of God's presence, v. 15. 16. C.

CHAP. XXIV. VER. 1. Days, when he will punish. M.—They are convinced it will be sometime: while the wicked flatter themselves with impunity. W.—Job has already shewn that his complaints had not been excessive, and that they were extorted chiefly by the dread which he had of God. He now comes to prove that he had not denied Providence. For though he asserted that the wicked were sometimes at ease, he maintained that there was another world, where all would be set to rights. Without this the book would be inexplicable. C.—Know him. Sept. "the impious." H.

VER. 2. Marks. This was a heinous offence, (Deut. xix. 14.) which Numa punished with death. Halyc. l. C.—And fed. Sept. "and those who fed them."

VER. 4. Poor, by oppression, not allowing them to get their bread, or to walk on the same road. C.—And have. Heb. and Sept. "the meek . . have hidden themselves together."

VER. 5. Others. Heb. "Behold as," (H.) which may be explained of these oppressors, or rather of the poor, who are forced to flee before them to seek for food. C.—The Vulg. and Sept. seem more favourable to the former supposition. H.

VER. 6. Not, is omitted by the Prot. H.—Heb. "they reap in the field food for the cattle." C.—His. Heb. "the wicked man's vineyard." H.—They do not examine whether the person whom they plunder be just or not. C.—Sept. "they have reaped before the season the field which was not theirs. But the poor (helpless men) have laboured in the vineyards of the wicked without wages or meat." H.

VER. 7. Cold. Heb. is still ambiguous, as it may be understood either of the oppressor or of the poor. The cruelty here reprobated is contrary to the law. Ex. xxii. 28. C.

VER. 8. Stones, for their bed, though they be so wet. H.

VER. 9. Robbed. Heb. and Sept. "snatched from the breast."—Stript. Sept. "knocked down." Heb. "taken a pledge of, or seized the poor." C.

VER. 10. Corn, which they had gleaned for their daily sustenance. Heb. also, "the poor, perishing through hunger, carry the sheaf" of the rich.

VER. 11. Of them. Heb. "of corn, and thirst while pressing out their olives." C.—Prot. "they take away the sheaf from the hungry, (11) which make oil within their walls, and tread their wine-presses, and suffer thirst," (H.) not being allowed to taste any thing, though the law of Moses would not suffer even the ox to be muzzled. Deut. xxv. 4. The rich look on without pity, taking their rest at noon, amid the heaps which really belong to the poor, whom they force to labour for them.

VER. 12. Suffer. Heb. "and God suffers no disorder," according to you. C.—Symb. "God inspirith not folly: but they have," &c. v. 13. Sept. "But why does he not regard," (H.) or punish these things? C.

VER. 13. Light of reason and humanity. C.—Pineda understands that they have sought darkness, (v. 14.) to do evil. But this expression would be too harsh. C.—Heretics, acting against their own conscience, are stricken with blindness, so that they see not the truth. S. Greg. xvi. 26. W.

VER. 14. Thief. Oppressing the poor, (Ven. Bede) and taking away their bread. Eccli. xxxiv. 25.

VER. 15. Face. Sept. insinuate "with a mask." Prot. "disguiseth his face."

VER. 16. Themselves. The band of robbers had marked out their prey. H.—Heb. "In the day time they lie concealed, and know not the light." C.—Sept. or rather Theodotion, from whom v. 15 to 17. is taken, "They have sealed themselves up during the day." If we should read favrois, Heb. tamo, we might translate as well "they marked them out for themselves." H.—The adulterer had made his arrangement with the faithless woman, when he should break into the house. M.

VER. 17. Death. They are as much afraid of the light as others are of profound darkness. C.—They dread being detected. H.

VER. 18. He is light, &c. That is, the adulterer, that he may not be perceived and discovered, steps as nimbly and as light as if he were walking upon the waters. Or the sense is: he is as light, that is, as swift and nimble as the running waters.—By the way of the vineyards. That is, by the way where he may meet with fruit and blessings. Ch.—The wicked are always inconstant. C. Isai. lvii. 29.—He deserves no temporal nor eternal happiness. If he were deprived of the former, he might perhaps endeavour to escape the torments of hell. H.

VER. 19. Let. Heb. "Drought and heat consume the snow waters; so doth the grave those which have sinned." Prot. Chal. H.—The wicked die quickly, and without a lingering illness. Piscat.—What foundation, therefore, has the hell of cold as well as of fire? says Anama. S. Jerom (in Matt. x.) observes, "We read very plainly in the Book of Job that there is a double gehenna, both of too much heat and of too much cold;" the latter occasions the gnashing of teeth. Mat. viii. Carthus.—"In this world people pass through a medium or temperate state. But in hell, they pass from the excess of tormenting cold to that of burning fire; they will know no medium, because in this life they proceeded from one vice to another, even to the heat of lust. Albertus Magnus. H.—Therefore they are punished with torments of a contrary nature. W.—They go from the coldness of infidelity to the heat of heresy; (S. Greg.) from one calamity to another. Sa.—Sept. "For they have torn away the arm of the orphans. Then his or their sin has been remembered, and, like a dew-drop, he has disappeared. H.

VER. 20. Sweetness. These will inherit him; (H.) for here all his pleasures will terminate. C.

VER. 21. Fed the barren. That is, the harlot. Or else, he hath fed; that is, he hath fed upon the barren; that is, the poor and desolate. Ch.—He has not had posterity, but pleasure in view, when he married. Rabbins.—Sept. agree with the Vulg. H.—But most explain the Heb. "He hath oppressed the barren;" which may denote those whose husband and children have been slain. C.—No good, but even dealt with them dishonestly. Cajetan.

21 For he hath fed the barren that beareth not, and to the widow he hath done no good.

22 He hath pulled down the strong by his might: and when he standeth up, he shall not trust to his life.

23 *God hath given him place for penance, and he abuseth it unto pride: but his eyes are upon his ways.

24 They are lifted up for a little while and shall not stand, and shall be brought down as all things, and shall be taken away, and as the tops of the ears of corn they shall be broken.

25 And if it be not so, who can convince me that I have lied, and set my words before God?

CHAP. XXV.

Baldad represents the justice of God, before whom no man can be justified.

THEN Baldad, the Suhite, answered, and said:

2 Power and terror are with him, who maketh peace in his high places.

3 Is there any numbering of his soldiers; and upon whom shall not his light arise?

4 Can man be justified, compared with God, or he that is born of a woman appear clean?

5 Behold even the moon doth not shine, and the stars are not pure in his sight.

6 How much less man that is rottenness, and the son of man who is a worm?

CHAP. XXVI.

Job declares his sentiments of the wisdom and power of God.

THEN Job answered, and said:

2 Whose helper art thou? is it of him that is

* Apoc. ii. 21.

VER. 22. Down. Heb. "taketh along with him his guards for his defence. He riseth and is not sure of his life," fearing lest his enemies may still overpower him. This is a description of the tyrant's continual anxiety. C.—Prot. "And no man is sure of life" may intimate that the wicked put all men in danger. H.—He who puts others in fear, must also be alarmed. M.

VER. 23. God. Sept. "Being sick, let him not expect to be healed, but he shall fall under sickness." Heb. "Though it be given him to be in safety, whereon he resteth, yet his eyes are upon their ways." Prot. or "he has given (H.) himself, or appointed them (guards) for his defence, and rests on them; yet his eyes," &c. He suspects the fidelity of his servants. C.—Pride. Man abuseth by his free-will the time which God had allowed him to repent for former sins. Rom. ii. W.

VER. 25. And set. Sept. and Prot. "and make my speech nothing worth." H.—This conclusion comes frequently. C. ix. 15. and xvii. 15. Job defies his friends to shew the fallacy of his arguments, or that the wicked do not enjoy prosperity, though they may be inwardly miserable. C.

CHAP. XXV. VER. 1. Answered. He directs his attack against Job's desiring to plead before God, and gives a wrong statement of his request, which he also attempts to refute, by urging the same inconclusive arguments as before. C.—Blind and obstinate disputers still repeat the same objections; (W.) as Protestants do against the Catholic doctrines, which have been so often and so ably defended. H.

VER. 2. Places. Directing all the heavenly bodies with perfect harmony. C.

VER. 3. Soldiers. The works of the whole creation, particularly the stars and angels. M.

VER. 4. Clean. Job had used a similar expression, as well as Eliphaz. C. iv. 17. and xiv. 4. and xv. 15. The holy man did not assert that he was free from sin, but only that God did not punish him (C.) so dreadfully (H.) on that account, and that he has just reasons for afflicting his servants, if it were only to manifest his own power and glory. C.

VER. 5. Sight, compared with him. The most beautiful things in nature are nothing; and of course, the most just are all imperfection, when left to themselves. C.

CHAP. XXVI. VER. 4. Life. Sept. also seem to understand this of God. C.—Job does not blame his friends for undertaking to approve the ways of Providence, but for condemning himself (S. Chrys.) rashly, (H.) and, with an air of haughtiness, endeavouring to restrain him from pleading his cause before the divine tribunal. M.—Heb. "Whose spirit came from thee?" Prot. (H.) Did I receive my life, or do I seek advice from thee? C.—God stood in no need of Baldad's wisdom (W.) no more than Job. H.

VER. 5. With them. The less and the greater fishes, (M.) or rather the giants and others who were buried in the waters of the deluge, and are confined in the dungeons of hell. The poets speak in the same manner.

"Hic genus antiquum terræ, Titania putes, Fulmine dejecti fundo voluuntur in imo."

Alia sub gurgite vasto,

Infectum cluitur oculus aut exurit igni."—Æn. vi.

weak? and dost thou hold up the arm of him that has no strength?

3 To whom hast thou given counsel? perhaps to him that hath no wisdom, and thou hast shewn thy very great prudence.

4 Whom hast thou desired to teach? was it not him that made life?

5 Behold the giants groan under the waters, and they that dwell with them.

6 Hell is naked before him, and there is no covering for destruction.

7 He stretcheth out the north over the empty space, and hangeth the earth upon nothing.

8 He bindeth up the waters in his clouds, so that they break not out and fall down together.

9 He withholdeth the face of his throne, and spreadeth his cloud over it.

10 He hath set bounds about the waters, till light and darkness come to an end.

11 The pillars of heaven tremble, and dread at his beck.

12 By his power the seas are suddenly gathered together, and his wisdom has struck the proud one.

13 His spirit hath adorned the heavens, and his artful hand hath brought forth the winding serpent.

14 Lo, these things are said in part of his ways: and seeing we have heard scarce a little drop of his word; who shall be able to behold the thunder of his greatness?

—Homer (Iliad viii.) and Hesiod (Theog.) place the giants at the extremity of the earth, in the utmost darkness. See also Prov. ix. 18. Isai. xiv. 9. C.

VER. 6. Hell. The grave.—Destruction. Heb. abaddon. H.—S. John (Apoc. ix. 11.) styles the bottomless abyss; (C.) or its angel, (H.) Abaddon, or Apollyon. It may here be called destruction, (C.) as all its victims are lost for ever to every thing that is good. The obscurity of the grave, and even that of hell, can hide nothing from God.

VER. 7. North pole, which alone was visible in Idumea, and continued unmoved, while all the stars performed their revolutions. C.—Nothing. Terra, pila similis, nullo fulmine nixa. Ovid, Fast. vi. C.—All tends to the centre, (M.) by the laws of attraction. Newton, &c. H.

VER. 8. Clouds, as in a vessel or garment. Prov. xxx. 4.

VER. 9. Over it. The firmament, with all its beauty, is but like a cloud, to conceal from our feeble eyes the splendor of God's throne.

VER. 10. End. Till the end of the world, the ocean will respect these limits. H.—The ancients looked upon it as a continual miracle that the world was not deluged, as the waters are higher than the earth. Jer. v. 22. Amos v. 8. S. Bas. and S. Amb. Hexem. Cicero, Nat. ii.—Philosophers have explained this phenomenon. But it is still certain that the power and wisdom of God preserve the equilibrium, without which all would return to the ancient chaos. C.

VER. 11. Heaven. The mountains are so styled by Pindar; and the poets represent them supporting the heavens. Totum ferre potest humeris minitanti bus orbem. Petron.—Yet others understand that power which keeps all things together, (C.) or the angels, to whose rule the ancients attributed the celestial bodies. S. Greg. Ven. Bede, &c.

VER. 12. Together, at the beginning. Gen. i. 9. Heb. "By his strength he has divided the sea; and by his wisdom he has pierced the proud, or Egypt." Rahab, (H.) or Rachab, is often put for Egypt; (Ps. lxxxviii. 11.) and all would naturally have concluded that the fall of Pharaoh was pointed at, if it had not been supposed that Job lived before that event. That is, however, dubious. Isaias (li. 9.) uses the same terms in describing the fall of this tyrant. C.—Yet the Sept. translate, "the whale," (H.) or some sea monster, which God holds in subjection, (Pineda) like the weakest creature. H.—The foaming billows (M.) are likewise subject to his controul. H.

VER. 13. Heavens, with stars, &c. Ps. xxxii. 6. Wisd. i. 7. God also sends winds to disperse the clouds, that the heavens may appear. C.—Artful, (obstinate) "being the midwife." The least things are ruled by Providence. W.—Serpent; a constellation, lightning, the devil, or rather the leviathan. Isai. xxvii. 1. Drusius. C.—Sept. "by his decree, he killed the apostate dragon." H.—But there is no need of having recourse to allegory. C.

VER. 14. Drop. This comparison is often applied to speech. Deut. xxxii. 2. Isai. lv. 10. If the little that we know of God's works give us such an exalted idea of his greatness, what should we think if we could fully comprehend his mysteries! C.

CHAP. XXVII. VER. 1. Parable: speaking in a figurative poetic style, Num. xxiii. 7. Job grants that God generally punishes the wicked, but he maintains that he also chastises the just and hence admonishes all to revere his judgments.

CHAP. XXVII.

Job persists in asserting his own innocence, and that hypocrites will be punished in the end.

JOB also added, taking up his parable, and said:

2 As God liveth, who hath taken away my judgment, and the Almighty, who hath brought my soul to bitterness,

3 As long as breath remaineth in me, and the Spirit of God in my nostrils,

4 My lips shall not speak iniquity, neither shall my tongue contrive lying.

5 God forbid that I should judge you to be just: till I die I will not depart from my innocence.

6 My justification, which I have begun to hold, I will not forsake: for my heart doth not reprehend me in all my life.

7 Let my enemy be as the ungodly, and my adversary as the wicked one.

8 For what is the hope of the hypocrite, if through covetousness he take by violence, and God deliver not his soul?

9 Will God hear his cry, when distress shall come upon him?

10 Or can he delight himself in the Almighty, and call upon God at all times?

11 I will teach you by the hand of God, what the Almighty hath, and I will not conceal it.

12 Behold you all know it; and why do you speak vain things without cause?

13 This is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the inheritance of the violent, which they shall receive of the Almighty.

14 If his sons be multiplied, they shall be for the sword, and his grandsons shall not be filled with bread.

and wisdom, and to decline from evil; which truths must always subsist, whatever may be the conduct of Providence. C.—Parables do not always imply similes, but sometimes pithy and profound sentences, spoken by the wisest men.

VER. 2. Judgment. Chal. "my rule of judging." Sept. "Live the Lord, who hath judged me thus." Sym. "hath despised my judgment." The expression seems very harsh, and may be one of those which God blames. C. xl. 3. E. C.—Yet we shall examine that point later. C. xlii. II.—He may only mean that he is so well convinced of his innocence, that he calls God to witness it, (C.) and adores his ways, (II.) in not permitting him to appear before his tribunal, (C.) to justify himself; (M.) so that he is abandoned to the rash judgments of others. C. xxxiv. 6. Isaias (xl. 27.) and Sophonias (iii. 15.) speak in similar terms. C.—God deferred passing sentence, for Job's greater trial. W.

VER. 3. Nostrils: while I live. H.—Gen. ii. 7. Eze. xxxvii. 14. C. VER. 5. Till. Never will I abandon this path, (II.) nor will I yield to your reasons, (C.) or cease to defend myself. M.—It would have been contrary to justice and charity, (II.) as well as to truth, to confess a false crime. W.

VER. 7. Enemy, or opponent. Heb. "my enemy shall be," &c. H.—In effect, those who maintained the contrary to what Job taught, favoured the cause of impiety, as they represented God never punishing his servants, &c. (C.) which is contrary to experience; (H.) though it was not so evident at that time. Houbigant.—Job is so far from thinking riches a proof of sanctity, that he rather would wish his enemy to have them, (M.) as they are too frequently an incentive to sin. H.

VER. 8. Soul, in death: What will it profit? &c. Mat. xvi. 26. All this proves demonstratively another world. C.

VER. 9. Him. Like Antiochus, the wicked pray only through fear of punishment, and their request is therefore rejected. 2 Mac. ix. 18. M.

VER. 11. Hand, or grace of God.—Hath, how he acts, and with what design. C.—Quid disponat Deus. S. Aug.

VER. 12. Portion. This you have repeatedly asserted; and (H.) I acknowledge it is generally, but not always, the case. C.

VER. 14. Bread. Sept. "if they grow up to manhood, they shall beg." Ps. xxxvi. 25. H.

VER. 15. In death; without honour. Sanctius.—Weep for him. Sept. "his widows no one shall lament, or pity." H. Ps. lxxvii. 68. M.

VER. 18. Moth. Heb. "as the polar star." Jun.—But the Chal. &c. translate with the Vulg. which agrees better with the latter part of the verse. The moth devours another's property, like the wicked man, who lodges commodiously though not at his own expense.—Keeper of a field, or of a vineyard. C.—Sept. "His house has slept away like a moth, and what he has kept (or his 15 They that shall remain of him, shall be buried in death, and his widows shall not weep.

16 If he shall heap together silver as earth, and prepare raiment as clay:

17 He shall prepare indeed, but the just man shall be clothed with it: and the innocent shall divide the silver.

18 He hath built his house as a moth, and as a keeper he hath made a booth.

19 *The rich man when he shall sleep shall take away nothing with him: he shall open his eyes and find nothing.

20 Poverty, like water, shall take hold on him; a tempest shall oppress him in the night.

21 A burning wind shall take him up, and carry him away, and as a whirlwind shall snatch him from his place.

22 And he shall cast upon him, and shall not spare: out of his hand he would willingly flee.

23 He shall clasp his hands upon him, and shall hiss at him, beholding his place.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Man's industry searcheth out many things: true wisdom is taught by God alone.

SILVER hath beginnings of its veins, and gold hath a place, wherein it is melted.

2 Iron is taken out of the earth, and stone melted with heat is turned into brass.

3 He hath set a time for darkness, and the end of all things he considereth, the stone also that is in the dark, and the shadow of death.

4 The flood divideth from the people that are on their journey, those whom the foot of the needy man hath forgotten, and who cannot be come at.

* Psal. xlviii. 18.

riches) like a spider." H.—The moth demolishes its own house, and is then disturbed, (M.) or thrown with the rotten wood into the fire.

VER. 19. Nothing. His riches are all left behind! The men of riches have slept their sleep, and have found nothing in their hands. They awake as from a dream, (C. xx. 8. H.) and then they form a true estimate of things. M.—God chiefly punishes the wicked in death. Ps. lxxv. W.

VER. 20. Night. Darkness often denotes disgrace and misery.

VER. 22. And he (God) shall, or Sept. the wind, (C.) "shall fall upon him." H.—Flee. Yet he will not escape, (M.) though he flee with all expedition. H.

VER. 23. Place. God having waited patiently a long time, at last displays the effects of his indignation, with a sort of contempt. Prov. i. 26. Eze. v. 13. C. Ps. ii. 4. M. Pineda.—Every passenger who shall witness his fall, and his now abandoned place, shall also testify his approbation. H.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. 1. Silver. Heb. "Surely there is a vein, or mine, for silver." H.—The sagacity of man has discovered all these things. Wonderful also is the instinct of animals, v. 7. Yet wisdom comes from God alone; and those act rashly, who pretend to dive into his counsels in punishing his creatures and ruling the world. C.

VER. 2. Stone. Prot. "and brass is molten out of the stone." H.—"When brass comes out of the mine it resembles stone, and being mixed with earth is refined in the fire." Pliny xxxvi. 27. M.—All this process would require much ingenuity and time. Tubalcain was a great artist before the deluge; (Gen. iv. 22.) but we cannot tell who were the inventors of these things, though (C.) the Greeks have specified the names of some who introduced these metals into their respective countries. Pliny vii. 56. H.

VER. 3. He (God) hath, &c. H.—Darkness, before which these inventions could not be made; (M.) or, man has been able to measure the hours of day and night by the shadow of the sun, and by other means. He always strives to perfect his works, and examines with care the mines which lay concealed in the most profound obscurity. C.—Precious stones and metals lie the deepest. M.—From the consideration of these beautiful works, men ought to raise their minds to the Creator, and wisely rest in him alone. W.

VER. 4. At. Nations are separated by waters from each other. C.—Some, like the Chinese, keep all strangers at a distance. H.—But the industry of man breaketh through all barriers. Heb. "a river separates a foreign nation forgotten by travellers; but these waters cannot stop man: they flow away." C.—"The flood breaketh out from the inhabitant, even the waters; forgotten of the foot, they are dried up; they are gone away from men." Prot. "Sand cuts off a torrent: but those who forget the way of justice, have become infirm, and have been instable among mortals." Sept. H.—Travellers are sometimes perished (661)

5 The land, out of which bread grew in its place, hath been overturned with fire.

6 The stones of it are the place of sapphires, and the clods of it are gold.

7 The bird hath not known the path, neither hath the eye of the vulture beheld it.

8 The children of the merchants have not trodden it, neither hath the lioness passed by it.

9 He hath stretched forth his hand to the flint, he hath overturned mountains from the roots.

10 In the rocks he hath cut out rivers, and his eye hath seen every precious thing.

11 The depths also of rivers he hath searched, and hidden things he hath brought forth to light.

12 But where is wisdom to be found, and where is the place of understanding?

13 Man knoweth not the price thereof, neither is it found in the land of them that live in delights.

14 The depth saith: It is not in me: and the sea saith: It is not with me.

15 *The finest gold shall not purchase it, neither shall silver be weighed in exchange for it.

16 It shall not be compared with the dyed colours of India, or with the most precious stone sardonyx, or the sapphire.

* Wis. vii. 9.

by a swelling torrent; (Sa.) and waters, bursting forth suddenly, change the roads of men. W.

VER. 5. In its, &c. Heb. and Sept. "and under it is turned up as it were fire," which lies in it. H.—Fire, like Sodom; to which event Job alludes, C. xxii. 20. C.—The furnaces to melt various metals have taken the place of corn, and occupy the land. M.—Men have extracted bitumen, &c. even from the lake of Sodom. Pliny vii. 15.—Nothing escapes them. C.

VER. 6. Sapphires. The best are found in Media, in the country of the Taphyri, (Ptol.) or Raspires. Herod. iii. 94.—Gold. This precious metal, like all others, is found in the bowels of the earth, (H.) and in the bed of rivers, in Ophir, Peru, &c. C.

VER. 7. Path of these metals, (M.) or a path in general. H.—They fly, as beasts roam about, without keeping the high road; yet never miss their way, or fail to return to their own place, though they may have crossed the sea or woods, and been absent many months. This instinct is one of the wonders of nature. C.

VER. 8. Merchants, who go the shortest road. H.—Heb. "of lions," which find their dens without asking for the path. C.

VER. 9. Roots, in quest of precious metals. M.—"Inus in viscera terre et in sede Marium opes quarimus." Pliny xxxiii. pref.

Effodiuntur opes, irritantia malorum. Ovid, Met. i.

VER. 10. Rivers. Or, the waters lodged in the mines. M.—He hath even cut canals through the hardest rocks, (H.) and sunk wells. C.

VER. 11. Searched, by diving; (C.) or, Heb. "he bindeth the rivers from flowing," diverting their course by dams, &c. This is another proof of the power of man. C.—Labor omnia vincit. Hor.

VER. 12. Understanding, of supernatural things, which teaches us to love God, and to comprehend his counsels. This is very different from the human sagacity of which he has been speaking; and this is the gift of God alone. C.

VER. 13. Price. It has none, like other precious things. Bar. iii. 15.—In delights is not expressed in Heb. or Sept. C.—But to live in misery is hardly to be accounted living, (H.) and the addition restrains the proposition, as some men possess this treasure, though not those who take no pains (C.) to mortify corrupt nature. H.—Chal. "it is not found in the land of the proud, whose life is spent in sin." C.—True wisdom is found, not in natural, but in supernatural, things. W.

VER. 15. Finest, obrizum, which has the colour of fire. Pliny xxiii. 3. The old Vulg. and Sept. read "locked-up gold," aurum conclusum, (C.) and the Heb. Segor, (H.) "that which is shut up," like things of value; gold is sometimes specified, 3 K. vi. 20.

VER. 16. Dyed, &c. Heb. cethem ophir, (H.) "the shut up" (gold, though the Vulg. Sept. &c. vary in the interpretation) "of Ophir." This country was famous for its gold. C.—Its situation is not clearly ascertained. S. Jerom seems to have placed it in India, with Josephus, "in the golden country," now Malacca. —Stone. Prot. onyx. Heb. shoham (H.) means, probably, the emerald. Gen. ii. 12. C.—But these names are very indeterminate. Theodotion, from whom great part of this chapter is inserted in the Sept. has "the gold of Ophir, and the precious onyx and sapphire." H.

VER. 17. Gold. This is the third time it has been mentioned, according to its different degrees of excellence. Hence it is called by the most common name, (C.) zahab. H.—Crystal was formerly more "transparent" than we have it at present. C.—Zecnoith (H.) denotes something of this kind. C.

VER. 18. Things. Heb. Remoth and Gabish (H.) are terms much contro-

17 Gold or crystal cannot equal it, neither shall any vessels of gold be changed for it.

18 High and eminent things shall not be mentioned in comparison of it: but wisdom is drawn out of secret places.

19 The topaz of Ethiopia shall not be equal to it, neither shall it be compared to the cleanest dying.

20 Whence then cometh wisdom? and where is the place of understanding?

21 It is hid from the eyes of all living, and the fowls of the air know it not.

22 Destruction and death have said: With our ears we have heard the fame thereof.

23 God understandeth the way of it, and he knoweth the place thereof.

24 For he beholdeth the ends of the world: and looketh on all things that are under heaven.

25 Who made a weight for the winds, and weighed the waters by measure.

26 When he gave a law for the rain, and a way for the sounding storms.

27 Then he saw it, and declared, and prepared, and searched it.

28 And he said to man: Behold the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom: and to depart from evil, is understanding.

verted. The first may denote the unicorn, (Deut. xxxiii. 17.) and the latter the thunderbolt, or ceraunia, which were in high request. Pliny xxxvii. 9. Ezechiel (xiii. 11. and xxvii. 16.) mentions the former as carried by merchants to Tyre. These stones, which fell from the sky, were used by the Parthian magi, &c. for secret purposes. They have given rise to many fabulous accounts. Those which are to be seen, are by no means beautiful. C.—Yet if the people esteemed them, Job might well include them among other things of most value. Prot "No mention shall be made of coral or of pearls, for the price of wisdom is above rubies." H.—The latter part of the verse would be rather, "the fishing for wisdom would be more difficult than that for pearls;" (C.) or, "the extraction of wisdom is above the drawing forth of peninim." H.—The pinna is a kind of fish which is fastened to the bottom of the sea, by roots, of which the byssus was made. 1 Par. xv. 27. Pearls were commonly found in the Persian Gulf, near Idumea. The art of diving for them, and extracting them from the fish, was very difficult, but nothing in comparison with the labour requisite to discover wisdom. The ancients describe some pearls of a reddish gold colour. Athen. iii. 13. Jer. Lam. iv. 7.—Adam, which is interpreted red, in Jeremias, means also any thing very shining; in which sense the word purpureus is used. Hor. vi. Ode 1. Bochart, Anim. p. 2, b. v. vi. (C.) and t. iii. 681. 91. The opinion of this author seems preferable to that of Hutchinson and Cooke, who would translate peninim (H.) by "loadstones or magnets," which the former says are like "reddish clay," though they are really of a dusky iron grey, sometimes tinged with brown or red. This complexion would not be very beautiful. Yet the Nazaries are compared to peninim, (Lam. iv.) and to snow, (Parkhurst) as they were of a most fair red and white, like pearls. H.—Though the ancients seem to have been acquainted with the loadstone or magnetic needle, particularly the Phœnicians (Odyss. viii. 556.) and Chinese, for many ages, yet it was never so common as to form a popular comparison. Aquila renders the word in question, περίσπινδρα, "conspicuous things;" and pearls were certainly highly valued by the Jews, &c. Parkhurst, in pono.—Theodotion, in the Sept. "draw forth wisdom before the inmost things."—Both these versions agree with the Vulg. as the most precious goods are kept out of sight. H.—Yet the deepest mines of gold do not require so much diligence and sagacity for us to discover and possess them, as wisdom does; but, in return, it will abundantly recompense the man who finds such a treasure. Eccl. vi. 19. and 24. Pineda.

VER. 19. Ethiopia, on the east of the Red Sea. Pliny (vi. 29.) mentions the isle of Chulthis, which was also famous for the topaz.—Dying. Heb. cethem, (H.) which we have observed relates to gold, v. 16.

VER. 22. Destruction. Heb. abaddon, which is before (C. xxvi. 6.) used to signify the bottomless abyss. There, too late! the dead become acquainted with the value and nature of wisdom. H.—But their knowledge is imperfect, and of no use to us. C.

VER. 25. Measure. He regulates the winds, and knows the drops of water (H.) which to man is impossible. Prov. xvi. 2.

VER. 26. Storms; or Heb. "for the lightning, which attends thunder." C.

VER. 27. It. All the works of God proclaim his wisdom. H.—He never made an acquisition of it, but possessed it from all eternity. Prov. viii. 23.

VER. 28. Understanding. This is the duty of man, and a thing of the utmost importance. This teaches us to adore God's judgments (C.) in silence. H.—It is the most important instruction of the whole book. Pineda.—Man must consider God's works to fear Him; and by avoiding evil, and doing good, (W.) to shew true wisdom. H.

CHAP. XXIX.

Job relates his former happiness, and the respect that all men shewed him.

JOB also added, taking up his parable, and said :

2 Who will grant me, that I might be according to the months past, according to the days in which God kept me ?

3 When his lamp shined over my head, and I walked by his light in darkness ?

4 As I was in the days of my youth, when God was secretly in my tabernacle ?

5 When the Almighty was with me : and my servants round about me ?

6 When I washed my feet with butter, and the rock poured me out rivers of oil ?

7 When I went out to the gate of the city, and in the street they prepared me a chair ?

8 The young men saw me, and hid themselves : and the old men rose up and stood.

9 The princes ceased to speak, and laid the finger on their mouth.

10 The rulers held their peace, and their tongue cleaved to their throat.

11 The ear that heard me, blessed me, and the eye that saw me, gave witness to me :

12 Because I had delivered the poor man that cried out ; and the fatherless that had no helper.

13 The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me, and I comforted the heart of the widow.

14 I was clad with justice : and I clothed myself with my judgment as with a robe and a diadem.

15 I was an eye to the blind, and a foot to the lame.

16 I was the father of the poor : and the cause which I knew not, I searched out most diligently.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. 2. Me. Job perceiving that his friends made no reply, (C.) and yet did not appear satisfied, (H.) explains how he had behaved in prosperity, in answer to the insinuations of Eliphaz ; (C. xxii. 5.) and what miseries he now experienced ; though he maintains these were not inflicted on account of his sin. He continues this discourse in the two next chapters. C.—He wishes to be restored to his former state, for his own vindication, (H.) and that he might exercise the works of mercy. Ven. Bede.

VER. 4. Youth. Heb. also “autumn or winter,” which are seasons of repose, when people enjoy the fruits of their labours.—Tabernacle, and all consulted me as an oracle. C.—Sept. “when God made the visit of my house,” (H.) and filled it with blessings, like that of Obededom, 2 K. vi. 12.

VER. 6. Butter. Many understand “cream.” But butter was used to anoint the body, as well as oil. Non omitendum in eo (butyro) olei vim esse, & Barbaros omnes infantisque nostros ita ungi. Pliny ix. 41.—Oil. These hyperbolic expressions denote the utmost fertility. Gen. xlix. 11. C.—Sept. have “milk.” On all sides, Job could behold his rich pastures and cattle, (H.) so that he might have washed his feet in butter and milk. The rocks also were covered with olive trees ; (M.) or the stone used for a press made the oil gush forth. Cajet. Sa.

VER. 7. To the gate. Sept. “early.”—Chair, or throne, where Job sat in judgment. H.—It appears evident that he was the prince in his city. Idumea had at first several petty kings at the same time. Gen. xxxvi. 15. C.—But Job had several princes (ver. 9. H.) under him. Pineda.

VER. 11. Gave. Sept. “winked,” through approbation. C.

VER. 16. Diligently, not passing sentence at random. I also endeavoured to do justice to those who durst not make any complaint. The prince ought to have an eye to all things. C.

VER. 17. Prey, which he had extorted from the poor. M.

VER. 18. Nest, in security, and among my children. C.—Palm-tree. Sept. “But I said, my youth shall grow old like the shoot of the palm-tree : I shall live a long time.” This is clearly the meaning of this version, (H.) as appears from the word σπλῆξ, “a shoot (C.) or trunk.” M.—Yet as φειν, signifies also “a Phœnician, and the phœnix,” some have explained this passage of the latter, which seems agreeable to the mention of a nest. Many fabulous accounts have been given of this bird, of which only one is supposed to exist at a time, rising from its parent’s ashes ; which, if true, (C.) would have been very (H.) beautifully applicable to a future resurrection. S. Clem. ep. 1 Cor. S. Amb. de fide Res. ii. 59, &c. See Solin. xlii. Tacit. Ann. vi. This uncertain bird may have been confounded with the bird of Paradise. Palm-trees live a long time, and multiply shoots all round them surprisingly. Pliny xiii. 4. and xvi. 44.—Yet the Scripture never elsewhere uses the term evil for this tree. The moderns generally translate, “I shall multiply my days like the sand,” which is a very 17 I broke the jaws of the wicked man, and out of his teeth I took away the prey.

18 And I said : I shall die in my nest, and as a palm-tree shall multiply my days.

19 My root is opened beside the waters, and dew shall continue in my harvest.

20 My glory shall always be renewed, and my bow in my hand shall be repaired.

21 They that heard me, waited for my sentence, and being attentive held their peace at my counsel.

22 To my words they durst add nothing, and my speech dropped upon them.

23 They waited for me as for rain, and they opened their mouth as for a latter shower.

24 If at any time I laughed on them, they believed not, and the light of my countenance fell not on the earth.

25 If I had a mind to go to them, I sat first, and when I sat as a king, with his army standing about him, yet I was a comforter of them that mourned.

CHAP. XXX.

Job shews the wonderful change of his temporal estate, from welfare to great calamity.

BUT now the younger in time scorn me, whose fathers I would not have set with the dogs of my flock :

2 The strength of whose hands was to me as nothing, and they were thought unworthy of life itself.

3 Barren with want and hunger, who gnawed in the wilderness, disfigured with calamity and misery.

4 And they eat grass, and barks of trees, and the root of junipers was their food.

5 Who snatched up these things out of the valleys, common expression. C. Diss.—The following verse seems, however, favourable to the sense of the Sept. and Vulg. though the heavy nature of sand, which “remains” in its place, might serve to express the confidence which Job had of continuing for a long time in the midst of prosperity. H.

VER. 19. Harvest. Prot. “branch.” Ps. i. 3. Isai. xviii. 4. H.

VER. 20. Bow, strength. I thought my glory would never end. M.

VER. 23. Shower, in autumn, at which season only, and in spring, it rained in those countries. C. Deut. xi. 14. M.—It would, of course, be very acceptable after the drought of summer. Prov. xvi. 15.

VER. 24. Earth, with neglect. C.—My attendants could scarcely believe their own eyes, through joy, (H.) when I assumed a more familiar air with them. C.—They still revered my authority. M.

VER. 25. With. Heb. “in his army, like one comforting people in mourning.” H.—Job was not merely as, or like a king, but also one in effect ; exercising the power, (v. 7.) and wearing the royal robes, v. 14. S. Isid. Ven. Bede, &c. W.

CHAP. XXX. VER. 1. Flock, to watch over them. Sanchez. C.—I had so little confidence in them, (H.) or they were so very mean. C.—They were not as well fed as my dogs. Nicetas.—Job does not speak this out of contempt, as he was affable to all. But this proverbial expression denotes how vile these people were. M.—Even the most contemptible, and such as were not fit to have the care of dogs, derided him. W.

VER. 2. And they. Heb. “Their old age is perished.” They were good for nothing all their lives. C.

VER. 3. Who. Heb. “solitary in,” &c. Yet these vagabond (H.) people now insult over me. C.

VER. 4. Grass. “There (in Crete, where no noxious animal, no serpent lives) the herb alimos, being chewed, expels hunger for the day ;” adnorsæ diurnam famem prohibet. Solin. 17.—The Heb. malluach, is rendered halima, by the Sept. (H.) and Buchart would translate, “who gather the halima from the bush.” C.—Prot. “who cut up mallows by the bushes, and juniper roots for their meat.” H.—Yet all agree that the latter is not proper for food. C.—Rethamim may (H.) designate any “shrubs or wild herbs,” as the Sept. and Symmachus have explained it. C.—Perhaps the very poor people might use the juniper or broom roots for food, (M.) or to burn in order to prepare their victuals. H.—The Arabs and Spaniards still use the word retama for “the birch-tree.” Parkhurst.

VER. 5. Who. Sept. “through excessive hunger. Robbers rushed upon me.” Prot. “They were driven forth from among men ; (they cried after them as after a thief)” H.

VER. 6. Gravel of the torrents. M.—Heb. “in the rocks,” living like the Troglodites. H. and when they had found any of them, they ran to them with a cry.

6 They dwelt in the desert places of torrents, and in caves of the earth, or upon the gravel.

7 They pleased themselves among these kinds of things, and counted it delightful to be under the briars.

8 The children of foolish and base men, and not appearing at all upon the earth.

9 Now I am turned into their song, and am become their bye-word.

10 They abhor me, and flee far from me, and are not afraid to spit in my face.

11 For he hath opened his quiver, and hath afflicted me, and hath put a bridle into my mouth.

12 At the right hand of my rising, my calamities forthwith arose: they have overthrown my feet, and have overwhelmed me with their paths as with waves.

13 They have destroyed my ways, they have lain in wait against me, and they have prevailed, and there was none to help.

14 They have rushed in upon me, as when a wall is broken, and a gate opened, and have rolled themselves down to my miseries.

15 I am brought to nothing: as a wind thou hast taken away my desire: and my prosperity hath passed away like a cloud.

16 And now my soul fadeth within myself, and the days of affliction possess me.

17 In the night my bone is pierced with sorrows: and they that feed upon me, do not sleep.

18 With the multitude of them, my garment is consumed, and they have girded me about as with the collar of my coat.

VER. 7. Pleased. Heb. "brayed." C.—Briars. Prot. "nettles." They were driven from the society of men, and forced to abscond. H.

VER. 8. And not. Heb. "viler than the earth." Prot.

VER. 9. Bye-word. "Proverb." H.—They speak of me with contempt. C. xvii. 6.

VER. 10. Face. This most people explain literally; while some, (C.) as Job was herein a figure of Christ, (M. Matt. xxvi. W.) think that the expression denotes the utmost contempt; (S. Greg. &c.) or that the people spit upon the ground (C.) for fear of contracting any infection; (H.) and because lepers were held in the utmost abhorrence. C.

VER. 11. For he. Prot. "Because he hath loosed my cord, and afflicted me, they have also let loose the bridle before me," (H.) being no longer under any restraint. Sometimes it was customary to put bits into the mouth of a person who was led to execution. Isai. xxxvii. 29. C.—The Heb. plural, have put, insinuates the plurality of persons in God, (W.) though it may be as well referred to the enemies of Job.

VER. 12. Forthwith. Heb. pirchuck seems to be translated (H.) by three terms, rising, calamities, and forthwith, as it denotes "a bud" which suddenly appears. C.—Sept. ελασται, "On the right hand of the bud they rose up." H.—Heb. "Youth stood up on the right," to accuse me; (Ps. cviii. 6.) or, "Scarcely had I begun to flourish, when they rose up," &c. The days of prosperity soon vanished, (C.) and young men were ready to insult the distressed, and, as it were, to trip them up. M.—Sept. "they stretched out their feet and trampled upon me, that they might destroy me." H.—They seem to have read (C.) rag-tiem, "their feet," though the two last letters are now omitted in Heb. H.

VER. 13. Help them, or me. C. Sept. "they took off my garment." H.—Job seemed to be besieged, and could not escape. C.

VER. 14. Down, (devoluti sunt.) They have proceeded to aggravate my misfortunes. H.—"They came upon me as a wide breaking in of waters: in the desolation they rolled themselves upon me." Prot.

VER. 15. Nothing. Heb. "terror." H.—Desire. Heb. "princess," reason. C.—Prot. "soul." Sept. "my hope has flown away like wind." H.

VER. 16. Fadeth. Heb. "is poured out," (H.) ready to take its flight. Ps. xli. 5.

VER. 17. They that. Heb. "my sinews take no rest." Sept. "are dissolved." H.—The worms prey upon me, and I am like one in a raging fever. C.

VER. 18. Coat. The worms are so numerous, (M.) or my enemies pour upon me. C.—Sept. "with great power He (God; Prot. my disease) has seized me by the garment." Theodotus adds, "He has taken hold of me like the collar of my tunic;" (H.) which corresponded with our shirt, and had an opening at the top. C.

VER. 19. I am. Heb. "He hath cast me into the mire;" (Prot.) or, "He re-

19 I am compared to dirt, and am likened to embers and ashes.

20 I cry to thee, and thou hearest me not: I stand up, and thou dost not regard me.

21 Thou art changed to be cruel toward me, and in the hardness of thy hand thou art against me.

22 Thou hast lifted me up, and set me as it were upon the wind, and thou hast mightily dashed me.

23 I know that thou wilt deliver me to death, where a house is appointed for every one that liveth.

24 But yet thou stretchest not forth thy hand to their consumption: and if they shall fall down thou wilt save.

25 I wept heretofore for him that was afflicted, and my soul had compassion on the poor.

26 I expected good things, and evils are come upon me: I waited for light, and darkness broke out.

27 My inner parts have boiled without any rest, the days of affliction have prevented me.

28 I went mourning without indignation; I rose up, and cried in the crowd.

29 I was the brother of dragons, and companion of ostriches.

30 My skin is become black upon me, and my bones are dried up with heat.

31 My harp is turned to mourning, and my organ into the voice of those that weep.

CHAP. XXXI.

Job, to defend himself from the unjust judgments of his friends, gives a sincere account of his own virtues.

I MADE a covenant with my eyes, that I would not so much as think upon a virgin.

gards me as dirt; my portion is on the earth and dust." H.—All look upon me with horror and contempt. C.

VER. 20. Not is supplied by Prot. in the second part of the verse from the first; (H.) as this construction is not unusual in the Heb. Sept. "they have stood up, and have considered me," (C.) to procure my entire ruin. H.

VER. 22. Dashed me in pieces, as if I had been raised so high for that purpose. Heb. "thou hast dissolved my substance," wisdom, &c. The signification of tushiova (H.) is very indeterminate. C. v. 12. C.—"Thou hast cast me far away from salvation." Sept. and Theodot. H.

VER. 23. Liveth. Death is a relief to a just man in tribulation. W.

VER. 24. Consumption. Thou dealest mercifully with other people; but all the effects of thy anger fall upon me, even here. Sept. "O that I might lay hands on myself, or desire another to do this for me!" Heb. has nothing similar; but it is very obscure: "He will not, however, stretch forth his hand to the grave; and when they are wounded, they are healed." C.—Prot. "grave, though they cry in his destruction." H.—The grave is more desirable than such a life. There the dead are freed from the miseries of this world. C.

VER. 28. Mourning. Heb. "blackened without the sun." H.—Bile has disfigured my countenance, through excessive sorrow, v. 30. The dark olive complexions of the Jews and Arabs would be more susceptible of these effects. C.—Indignation. I have not given way to passion, though I allowed full scope to my groans. Sept. H.

VER. 29. Brother of dragons, &c. Imitating these creatures in their lamentable noise. Ch.—I was like those beasts which retire in order to lament. W.—The dragons hiss dreadfully, when crushed by the elephant; (S. Jer.) and the young ostriches, being abandoned, make great lamentations. M. Delrio, t. ii. adag. 18.—This comparison occurs, Mic. i. 8. Natural history does not, however, represent these animals as very plaintive. The former term may denote sea monsters, or crocodiles; thawmin: (Sept. syrens) and "the daughters of the yavana," signify "swans," (Isai. xlii. 21.) though commonly rendered ostriches, as they are by the Sept. &c. C.—Prot. have, "owls." But we may adhere to the Vulg. H.

VER. 31. Weep. I have exchanged my songs of joy for mourning. M.
CHAP. XXXI. VER. 1. I made. Job is compelled to proclaim his own praises, for his vindication, as S. Paul was, being at the same time convinced that he had only done his duty. Luk. xvii. 10. This is the third part of his discourse. Having given a picture of his prosperous and of his miserable condition, he observes that the latter was not inflicted in consequence of any misconduct, since he had always been very attentive to avoid (C.) the most remote danger of offending God, or his neighbour. H.—That I. Heb. "for why should I think upon a virgin?" H.—Why should I expose myself, (C.) by indiscreet looks, (H.) since the passage from the eye to the heart is so easy

2 For what part should God from above have in me, and what inheritance the Almighty from on high?

3 Is not destruction to the wicked, and aversion to them that work iniquity?

4 Doth not he consider my ways, and number all my steps?

5 If I have walked in vanity, and my foot hath made haste to deceit:

6 Let him weigh me in a just balance, and let God know my simplicity.

7 If my step hath turned out of the way, and if my heart hath followed my eyes, and if a spot hath cleaved to my hands:

8 Then let me sow, and let another eat: and let my offspring be rooted out.

9 If my heart hath been deceived upon a woman, and if I have laid wait at my friend's door:

10 Let my wife be the harlot of another, and let other men lie with her.

11 For this is a heinous crime, and a most grievous iniquity.

12 It is a fire that devoureth even to destruction, and rooteth up all things that spring.

13 If I have despised to abide judgment with my man-servant, or my maid-servant, when they had any controversy against me:

14 For what shall I do when God shall rise to judge? and when he shall examine, what shall I answer him?

15 Did not he that made me in the womb make him also: and did not one and the same form me in the womb?

Eccles. ii. 10. M.—In the warfare between the flesh and the spirit, Job deemed this precaution necessary, (W.) and was thus preserved from carnal thoughts. S. Greg. xx. 2.

VER. 2. High, if I should give way to such unchaste thoughts. M.

VER. 3. Aversion of God. Heb. "strange punishment." Prot. Incontinence is a source of much mischief, and of the most dreadful punishments, as the deluge and fate of Sodom evince. H.

VER. 5. Vanity, or hypocrisy, (C.) so as to overreach others. M.

VER. 6. Simplicity, and "uprightness." Tummathi. H.

VER. 7. Eyes. Sixtus V. read, "If my eye hath followed my heart." C.—Job kept the utmost restraint both upon his eyes and heart, that no evil impressions from exterior objects might cause his ruin. Num. xv. 39. H.—Hands, from presents, (C.) or injustice, particularly that of impurity. H.

VER. 9. Door, to seduce his wife. C. M.

VER. 10. Let. Heb. "Let my wife grind for another, and let others bend over her," urging her to work like the meanest slave. C.—Sept. "Let my wife please (Grabe substitutes λ for ρ, and reads ἀλειαι, grind for) another, and my little children be brought low." H.—Yet the sense of the Vulg. is most followed. Eccli. xlvii. 21. Lam. v. 13. Ausonius (epig. 5) says, molitur per utramque cavernam. G.

VER. 11. This adultery, to which I might have given way, and that of others with my wife, (H.) which would have been a requital, of which I could not indeed have complained, (M.) but which is nevertheless a most heinous offence, H.—Iniquity. Heb. "a crime of judgment," or capital. Gen. xxxviii. 24. C.—The canons of the Church (H.) have ranked adultery with murder and idolatry, which shews the horror in which it is held. C.

VER. 12. Spring; the children. Eccli. xxiii. 35. Wisd. iv. 8. C.—Prot. "all mine increase." H.—Adulteresses were formerly consigned to the flames. The injured husband would resent the offence, and even dislike her former children. Love is also like a fire, and those who entertain it, may soon consume all their substance (M.) in feasting and presents. Above all, the fire of God's indignation in hell will still pursue the libidinous.

VER. 13. Me, in private; as slaves had no redress in the common courts of judicature. We cannot but admire Job's humility, and noble sentiments of God, (C.) whose majesty will eclipse all human grandeur, and place the master and the servant on the same level. S. Greg. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei. x. 25. Ephes. vi. 9. Col. iv. 1.

VER. 16. Wait, and not given sentence in due time, (H.) but frustrated her expectation. M.

VER. 17. Alone. This was objected to S. Chrysostom. C.—But his conduct proceeded not from pride or avarice. H.—The ancient patriarchs delighted much in the exercise of hospitality; and Tobias (iv. 17.) exhorts his son to invite the poor. Cama, or "supper," received its name from many eating "together," while people dined alone. Plut. Sym. viii. prob. 6.

16 If I have denied to the poor what they desired, and have made the eyes of the widow wait:

17 If I have eaten my morsel alone, and the fatherless hath not eaten thereof:

18 (For from my infancy mercy grew up with me: and it came out with me from my mother's womb:)

19 If I have despised him that was perishing for want of clothing, and the poor man that had no covering:

20 If his sides have not blessed me, and if he were not warmed with the fleece of my sheep:

21 If I have lifted up my hand against the fatherless, even when I saw myself superior in the gate:

22 Let my shoulder fall from its joint, and let my arm, with its bones, be broken.

23 For I have always feared God as waves swelling over me, and his weight I was not able to bear.

24 If I have thought gold my strength, and have said to fine gold: My confidence.

25 If I have rejoiced over my great riches, and because my hand had gotten much.

26 If I beheld the sun when it shined, and the moon going in brightness:

27 And my heart in secret hath rejoiced, and I have kissed my hand with my mouth:

28 Which is a very great iniquity, and a denial against the most high God.

29 If I have been glad at the downfall of him that hated me, and have rejoiced that evil had found him.

30 For I have not given my mouth to sin by wishing a curse to his soul.

31 If the men of my tabernacle have not said: Who will give us of his flesh that we may be filled?

VER. 18. Womb. I was of a compassionate disposition, with which I always corresponded. S. Greg.—Heb. "from my youth, pity (ceab, which Prot. translate "as with a father." H.) grew up with me; and from my birth I have preserved it." C.—Prot. "From my youth he was brought up with me, as with a father, and I have guided her (the widow, margin) from my mother's womb." Sept. "I fed him as a father, Theodotion adds, and was his leader from," &c. It was my earliest delight to assist the afflicted orphan and widow. H.

VER. 20. Blessed me for clothing. M.

VER. 21. Gate, in judgment, (C.) where I was the supreme judge, (H.) and none could resist me.

VER. 22. With. Heb. "from its bone," at the elbow. Sept. C.

VER. 23. Bear. I knew that he would resent the injury, though I might, for a time, oppress the weak.

VER. 24. Fine obrizo. Heb. cechem. C. xxviii. 15. H.

VER. 27. Rejoiced. Heb. and Chal. "been seduced" to idolatry. M.—The worship of the sun and moon was most ancient. Ezech. viii. 16.—Mouth, to testify respect and admiration. This custom prevailed in many nations. Lucian (dial. de sacrificiis) observes that this only sacrifice of the poor was not disregarded. The Syrians still extend their hands towards the altar, and then apply them to their mouth and eyes, when the body and blood of Christ are offered in the Mass. Life of M. de Chateaul. C.—Sept. (26) "Do I not see the shining sun eclipsed, (H.) and the moon disappear, for light does not belong to them," but to the Creator, from whom we have every thing; (C.) so that we should not swell with pride. Theodotion adds, (27) "and if my heart was secretly deceived." Sept. continue, "if indeed, putting my hand to my mouth, I kissed, (28) this would also be imputed to me as a great transgression, because I should have acted falsely before the most high God." H.—He will admit of no rival; hence the man who admits another god, denies Him. M.—Job repels the charge which had been indirectly brought against him. W.

VER. 29. Rejoiced. Heb. "lifted up myself." Sept. "said in my heart, well, well;" euge. H.—These sentiments of perfection shew that the same Spirit animated those who lived under the law of nature, as well as those who were favoured with the Mosaic or Christian dispensation. C.

VER. 30. For. Sept. "Then let mine ear hear my curse, and may I fall a prey to the whispers of my people."

VER. 31. Filled. If my servants have not testified sufficient affection for me, (H.) because I kept them under restraint, and obliged them to wait on my guests, (M. S. Greg.) I still would not omit that duty; (v. 32. H.) or if they gave way to the greatest excesses of rage, so as to threaten to devour me, I refrained from wishing any evil to my enemy, v. 30. C.—Others suppose that Job's domestics urged him on to revenge, and spoke as if they were ready to eat his enemies; (Cajet. T.) while some explain the expression in a contrary sense, to denote the extreme attachment of Job's servants to his person; in which manner the Church uses it, speaking of Christ's feeding us with his own body and blood. C.—Sept.

32 The stranger did not stay without; my door was open to the traveller.

33 If as a man I have hid my sin, and have concealed my iniquity in my bosom.

34 If I have been afraid at a very great multitude, and the contempt of kinsmen hath terrified me: and I have not rather held my peace, and not gone out of the door.

35 Who would grant me a hearer, that the Almighty may hear my desire: and that he himself that judges would write a book;

36 That I may carry it on my shoulder, and put it about me as a crown?

37 At every step of mine I would pronounce it, and offer it as to a prince.

38 If my land cry against me, and with it the furrows thereof mourn:

39 If I have eaten the fruits thereof without money, and have afflicted the soul of the tillers thereof:

40 Let thistles grow up to me, instead of wheat, and thorns instead of barley.

[The words of Job are ended.]

CHAP. XXXII.

Eliu is angry both with Job and his friends. He boasts of himself.

SO these three men ceased to answer Job, because he seemed just to himself.

2 And Eliu, the son of Barachel, the Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, was angry, and was moved to indignation: now he was angry against Job, because he said he was just before God.

"If frequently my maids said who?" &c. Heb. "said not, oh! that we had of his flesh! we cannot be satisfied." Prot. H.—Have I given my servants any reason to utter these expressions!

VER. 33. A man. Heb. "Adam," who, to excuse himself, threw the blame upon Eve. Gen. iii. 12. C.—His posterity have too frequently imitated his example. The name of Adam often designates any man. H.—It was requisite that Job should assert his sincerity, that his friends might not suppose that he was actuated by self-love or obstinacy to defend his innocence. C.—Sept. "If falling into an involuntary fault I hid my sin, (for I feared not the crowd of people, that I should not plead before them) but if I let the needy pass my gate with his bosom empty." Theod. xxxv. subjoins, "who would give me a hearer! but if I did not reverse the hand of the Lord." Sept. go on, "the bond which I had against any one, if I placed on my shoulder, as a crown, and read, and did not rather tear it, and give it up, taking nothing from my debtor. If" &c. v. 38. According to this version, Job insists on his pity for the distressed, and shews that he had no reason to fear. But the Heb. is more conformable to the Vulg.

VER. 34. Have not. Heb. "that I kept silence, not going out of doors" to defend the innocent. H.—Moses commands judges to do their duty without fear. Ex. xxii. 2. People in such situations ought to be uninfluenced by hatred, love, &c. Cesar says, justly, (in Sallust) "qui de rebus dubiis consultant, ab odio, amicitia, ira atque misericordia vacuos esse decet. Haud facillè animus verum providet, ubi illa officunt." H.

VER. 35. He himself. Heb. "my adversary would write a book." His very accusation would establish my cause, provided he adhered to the truth. C.—I would carry it about as a trophy. H.—A book. The judge wrote down the sentence. Job appeals to God, and fears not being condemned.

VER. 36. Crown. This shews that something pliable was then used to write on. The people of the East still lift up to their head such letters as they respect. Chardin Perse, p. 218. See 4 K. xi. 12. C.

VER. 37. To a. Heb. "as a prince would I approach to him," and not fear my adversary. H.

VER. 38. Mourn, as if I possessed the land unjustly, or had committed some crime.

VER. 39. Money. Or paying for them. M.—And have. Prot. "or have caused the owners thereof to lose their life."

VER. 40. Thorns. Prot. "cockle." Marg. "loathsome weeds." H.—The precise import of the word is not known; but it means something "stinking." C.—Sept. Batos, "a briar." H.—Ended. Many Latin editions omit these words with S. Greg. &c. The old Vulg. has et quieverunt verba Job, as a title. C.—Sept. place at the beginning of the next chapter, "And Job ceased to speak. His three friends also left off contending with Job; for Job was just before them." Grabe substitutes "himself," as they were not perhaps yet convinced. H.—Job, however, addresses his discourse no more to them, but only to God. (C.) acknowledging some unadvised speeches; (W.) or want of information. H.

CHAP. XXXII. VER. 1. Himself. They thought it useless to say any more.

VER. 2. Buzite, a descendant of Buz, the son of Nachor. Gen. xxii. 21. C.—Of, &c. Sept. "of the country of Huz."—Ram. Chal. "Abraham;" (M.) or (E66)

3 And he was angry with his friends, because they had not found a reasonable answer, but only had condemned Job.

4 So Eliu waited while Job was speaking, because they were his elders that were speaking.

5 But when he saw that the three were not able to answer, he was exceedingly angry.

6 Then Eliu, the son of Barachel, the Buzite, answered, and said: I am younger in days, and you are more ancient; therefore, hanging down my head, I was afraid to shew you my opinion.

7 For I hoped that greater age would speak, and that a multitude of years would teach wisdom.

8 But, as I see, there is a spirit in men, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth understanding.

9 They that are aged are not the wise men, neither do the ancients understand judgment.

10 Therefore I will speak: Harken to me, I also will shew you my wisdom.

11 For I have waited for your words, I have given ear to your wisdom, as long as you were disputing in words.

12 And as long as I thought you said something, I considered: but, as I see, there is none of you that can convince Job, and answer his words.

13 Lest you should say: We have found wisdom, God hath cast him down, not man.

14 He hath spoken nothing to me, and I will not answer him according to your words.

rather (H.) this is put for Aram. Sym. "Syria." 2. Par. xxii. 6. Some suppose that Eliu sprung from Aram, the son of Esron, of the tribe of Juda. Others think that (C.) he was the same with Balaam. S. Jer. Ven. Bede.—He is never ranked among the friends of Job, as he perhaps did not come from a distance. His speech, or good intention, is not condemned by God; and Job seems to have acquiesced in what he said. C.—This silence of the latter might rather proceed from a just (H.) contempt, as Eliu said nothing to the purpose; many of his observations being palpably false, and others not at all controverted. Yet with his private spirit he comes forth, not much unlike Prot and Puritans, who pretend that they will overturn the Catholic faith by arguments which have escaped the sagacity of all preceding ages! W.—God also did not let Eliu pass entirely unnoticed; but, in one line, showed his displeasure: (C. xxxviii. 2. Houbigant) as Job perhaps did likewise, by repeating the same decision. C. xlii. 8. H.—Eliu vainly explains why he had not spoken before. He arraigns Job for asserting his own innocence, though the holy man only maintained that he was not punished thus for his crimes, according to the laws of vindictive justice; (C. xxvii. 2.) much less did he pretend that he was juster than God, (C. xxxv. 2.) as his adversary asserts; taking thence occasion to praise the divine wisdom and power, as if Job had called them in question: C.—God, whose eyes behold the smallest faults. M.—Heb. "rather on, or (H.) above God." C.—This young man, who was learned and proud, is the pattern of those hot disputants who set themselves above their elders. S. Greg. xxiii. 2. W.

VER. 3. Found. Heb. "produced an answer, but had still condemned Job," (H.) or, "had made Job wicked," by giving him occasion to blaspheme, in order to defend his own righteousness. C.—Sept. "they took it for granted (or laid it down as a fact, id est) that he was a wretch." This was not true: (H.) but they had also done their best to prove it. C.—Job. Almost all the Rabbins assert that the original copies read Jehova, "the Lord;" (H.) and that the Masorets changed it, to avoid the apparent blasphemy; as if the three friends had rendered themselves guilty by not answering Job. But the Chal. &c. are silent on this head, and Abenezra allows that the change is very doubtful. C.

VER. 6. Hanging. Heb. "I felt a reverential awe, (Sept. I was silent) and durst not shew," &c. H.

VER. 8. Spirit, which is communicated to the young, as well as to the old. M.

VER. 9. Aged: πολεμῶναι. Sept. Rabbim, "the Rabbins," (H.) the "great ones," placed in authority. These are not always the wisest, as understanding is the gift of God, and not attached to rank. C.

VER. 11. Disputing. Heb. "searching out words," or arguments. H.

VER. 12. None. A notorious piece of arrogance, to esteem himself wiser than any of his own sect, or of his adversaries. W.

VER. 13. Man. You seem to think this a convincing proof that Job is guilty: (Ven. Bede. H.) but it is no such thing. You would fain excuse yourselves from saying any more, for fear of causing him pain, which is already very great; and you vainly imagine that you may thus leave him to be judged by God. We must however convince Job. C.

VER. 14. He; Job, or God. I do not pretend that I have had any revelation, like Eliphaz and Sophar. C. iv. 12. and xi. 5. Job has addressed himself to you; (C.) but I shall not answer him as you have done. M.—Those who 15 They were afraid, and answered no more, and they left off speaking.

16 Therefore, because I have waited, and they have not spoken: they stood, and answered no more:

17 I also will answer my part, and will shew my knowledge.

18 For I am full of matter to speak of, and the spirit of my bowels straiteneth me.

19 Behold, my belly is as new wine which wanteth vent, which bursteth the new vessels.

20 I will speak, and take breath a little: I will open my lips, and will answer.

21 I will not accept the person of man, and I will not level God with man.

22 For I know not how long I shall continue, and whether after a while my maker may take me away.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Eliu blames Job for asserting his own innocence.

HEAR, therefore, O Job, my speeches, and hearken to all my words.

2 Behold now I have opened my mouth, let my tongue speak within my jaws.

3 My words are from my upright heart, and my lips shall speak the pure sentence.

4 The Spirit of God made me, and the breath of the Almighty gave me life.

5 If thou canst answer me, and stand up against my face.

6 Behold God hath made me as well as thee, and of the same clay I also was formed.

7 But yet let not my wonder terrify thee, and let not my eloquence be burdensome to thee.

8 Now thou hast said in my hearing, and I have heard the voice of thy words:

neither believe Catholics, nor their own teachers, but rely on the private spirit, think that the answers which have been given to others, on the same points, do not regard them. S. Greg. W.

VER. 15. They. Eliu speaks thus contemptuously of the three friends, as if they had been absent. In the former verse he spoke to them: now he turns to Job. Heb. "they were amazed." H.

VER. 18. Me. And forces me to speak. Jer. v. 24. and xx. 9. Thus Juvenal describes a great talker. Tunc immensa cavi spirant mendacia folles.—Conspuiturque sinus. Sat. vi. C.

VER. 19. Vessels, made of skins. Heb. oboth. H.

VER. 21. Man. Heb. "give flattering titles unto man." Prot. "I do not respect a mortal." Sept. (H.) "nothing shall make me conceal the truth: I will give things their proper names." Job seemed to him to have arrogated to himself the perfection of God, in maintaining his own innocence. C.—He promises to stand up in defence of the Almighty, (M.) as his advocate. C.

VER. 22. Away. I shall therefore speak with the utmost caution, (H.) as one who must shortly appear before the divine tribunal. M.—Heb. "For I know not how to call things by their surnames, (C.) or titles of vanity; (H.) If I do, may my Creator soon (C.) take me away." Sept. "I know not how to admire the face. If it be not so, the worms shall consume me." H.

CHAP. XXXIII. VER. 3. Sentence. Some Edit. have scientiam, "knowledge," with the Heb. C.

VER. 4. Spirit. We are therefore equal. M.—Thou canst not fear being overpowered with the divine majesty, in this dispute. C. xiii. 21. C.—Life. Sept. "instruction." H.

VER. 6. Formed. Job had expressed a desire to plead before a man. C. ix. 32. and xiii. 19. and xxxi. 35. Eliu offers himself to maintain the cause of God. C.

VER. 7. Wonder (miraculum.) Heb. "terror," (H.) in allusion to Job's words. C. ix. 34.—Eloquence. Heb. "hand." C.—Sept. "the dread of me shall not cast thee down, nor my hand be heavy upon thee." Arrogant men esteem their own observations as something wonderful. S. Greg. W.

VER. 9. In me. Job had not said so in express terms, though he had said something to the same purpose. But he had sufficiently explained himself, and Eliu could not be ignorant that he only meant that his present sufferings were not proportioned to his guilt. C.

VER. 10. Complaints. Something similar had indeed come from Job's lips; (C. xiv. 17. and xxx. 21.) not that he pretended that God sought to find him guilty without cause; but he meant that He treated him as an enemy, for some secret purpose. C.

VER. 11. Stocks. C. xiii. 14. and xiv. 16. Eliu interprets the words in the 9 I am clean, and without sin: I am unspotted, and there is no iniquity in me.

10 Because he hath found complaints against me, therefore he hath counted me for his enemy.

11 He hath put my feet in the stocks, he hath observed all my paths.

12 Now this is the thing in which thou art not justified: I will answer thee, that God is greater than man.

13 Dost thou strive against him, because he hath not answered thee to all words?

14 God speaketh once, and repeateth not the self same thing the second time.

15 By a dream in a vision by night, when deep sleep falleth upon men, and they are sleeping in their beds.

16 Then he openeth the ears of men, and teaching, instructeth them in what they are to learn.

17 That he may withdraw a man from the things he is doing, and may deliver him from pride.

18 Rescuing his soul from corruption: and his life from passing to the sword.

19 He rebuketh also by sorrow in the bed, and he maketh all his bones to wither.

20 Bread becometh abominable to him in his life, and to his soul the meat which before he desired.

21 His flesh shall be consumed away, and his bones that were covered, shall be made bare.

22 His soul hath drawn near to corruption, and his life to the destroyers.

23 If there shall be an angel speaking for him, one among thousands, to declare man's uprightness.

24 He shall have mercy on him, and shall say: Deliver him, that he may not go down to corruption: I have found wherein I may be merciful to him.

worst sense, though Job had only expostulated with God on the treatment which he received, testifying a great love and confidence in him. He acknowledges some want of knowledge. C. xiii. 3. C.

VER. 12. Man: so that he is not obliged to explain his reasons. M.

VER. 13. Because. Sept. "Thou hast said, Why has not He heard every word of my pleading or judgment." Aquila and Theod. "for all his words are unanswerable." Prot. "He giveth not account of any of his matters." H.

VER. 14. Time. One decision ought to suffice; and God had declared Job innocent. C. i. 8. &c. W.—His decrees are immutable; and yet thou wouldst have him to explain his conduct, as if he could be under a mistake, and correct it. He manifests his will, and it is our business to be attentive. We cannot expect that he should speak twice, though he does so frequently in his great mercy. Heb. "God speaketh once, and he regardeth not a second time." C.—Sept. "But the second time, (16) a dream," &c. H.—Eliu specifies three methods by which God declares his will; (v. 26) 1. By vision; 2. by afflictions; 3. by the voice of angels, or of preachers, v. 19. 23.

VER. 15. Beds. It seems prophetic dreams were not then uncommon.

VER. 16. Instructeth. Heb. "sealing," that they may not mistake such a favour for a common dream. C.

VER. 17. Him. Sept. "his body from the fall [of iniquity.]" Grabe. H.

VER. 19. Also. This is the second method of instruction. Eliu pretends that Job had thus been visited by God, and had not understood his meaning.

VER. 21. Bare. The skin will scarcely cover them. He will appear ghastly, like a skeleton. C.—Heb. "his bones . . shall stick out." Prot. H.

VER. 22. Destroyers; the worms in the grave, (H.) or to sickness, (M.) "which bring on death." Pagnin mortiferis.

VER. 23. Angel, by secret inspirations, (S. Tho. T. &c.) or a man sent by God, to announce the truths of salvation. Mariana.—Man's, or "to man." C.—Heb. "a messenger with him, an interpreter, one . . to declare to man his uprightness." Prot. (H.) "If there be any merit in him, the angel comforter, chosen from a thousand accusers, is ready to declare to the son of man his rectitude." Sept. "If there be a thousand destroying angels, not one of them shall hurt him; if he consider in his heart to be converted unto the Lord. Though he (the angel) lay before man his reproof, and shew his folly, He (God) will take hold of him, that he may not die. He will renew his flesh as the plaster of a wall, and fill his bones with marrow: (26) he will make his flesh soft, like that of an infant, and will place him in manhood among men." H.—But this is different from the Heb. C.—The intercession of angels is very powerful. They are represented as suggesting motives, which prevail on God to shew mercy, v. 24. H.

VER. 25. Consumed. Heb. "fresher than a child's," (H.) as was the case of Naaman. 4 K. v. 14.

25 His flesh is consumed with punishments, let it return to the days of his youth.

26 He shall pray to God, and he will be gracious to him: and he shall see his face with joy, and he will render to man his justice.

27 He shall look upon men, and shall say: I have sinned, and indeed I have offended, and I have not received what I have deserved.

28 He hath delivered his soul from going into destruction, that it may live and see the light.

29 Behold, all these things God worketh three times within every one.

30 That he may withdraw their souls from corruption, and enlighten them with the light of the living.

31 Attend, Job, and hearken to me: and hold thy peace, whilst I speak.

32 But if thou hast any thing to say, answer me, speak: for I would have thee to appear just.

33 And if thou have not, hear me: hold thy peace, and I will teach thee wisdom.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Eliu charges Job with blasphemy: and sets forth the power and justice of God.

AND Eliu continued his discourse, and said:

2 Hear ye, wise men, my words, and ye learned hearken to me:

3 *For the ear trieth words, and the mouth discerneth meats by the taste.

4 Let us choose to us judgment, and let us see among ourselves what is the best.

5 For Job hath said: I am just, and God hath overthrown my judgment.

6 For in judging me there is a lie: my arrow is violent without any sin.

7 What man is there like Job, who drinketh up scorning like water?

* Supra xii. 11.—b Deut. x. 17. 2 Par. xix. 7. Wis. vi. 8. Eccl. xxxv. 16.

VER. 26. And he. It is ambiguous whether this refer to God or to man. C.—But both shall see each other with joy. The penitent will be restored to as much favour as if he had never sinned. H.

VER. 29. Times, or often. God instructs man by visions, sickness, and the intercession and inspirations of angels, v. 14. C.

VER. 30. Living, both soul and body, delivering them from adversity. C.

VER. 32. Just, and to be so indeed. M.—How much would his vanity be mortified, when Job answered him only with silence! (H.) though he urged him to reply so often. W.

CHAP. XXXIV. VER. 3. Taste. The most accurate philosophers attribute this faculty to the tongue, (C.) rather than to the throat, guttur. Heb. "mouth or palate." H.—But Eliu speaks agreeably to the notions of the vulgar. C.—Intellectus saporum ceteris est in prima lingua, homini et in palato. Pliny xi. 37.

VER. 5. Judgment. C. xxvii. 2. Job had used this expression, but only to intimate that strict justice did not take place, as he thought his faults had not deserved so severe a chastisement. He did not pretend that God was unjust, or that he was quite blameless; and he had so explicitly declared his sentiments, that Eliu could not well be ignorant of them. C.

VER. 6. There, Sept. "he has been deceived;" apavoure. Heb. "I will convict my judge of lying;" or (C.) Prot. "should I lie against my right?" H.—Job, in the excess of grief, had expressed himself forcibly. C. xix. 6. and xxiii. 7. But great deductions must be made from such hyperboles; and he had frequently praised the mercy and justice of God, and his just punishment of the wicked. He had indeed excepted himself from the number; and Eliu ought to have proved that he was wrong in this respect. But he seems to have all along evaded or mistaken the point under dispute. C.—Arrow, which pierces me. H.—The deferring judgment was not a subversion of it, as Eliu would argue. C. xxvii. 2. W.

VER. 7. What. This may be a continuation of Job's speech, who seemed to assert that none had ever been insulted like himself, nor borne it with greater patience; (C. xvi. 4.) or Eliu reproaches him with talking scornfully to his friends and to God. C.

VER. 8. Goeth in. Sept. insert a negation, which is not found in Heb. Chal. &c. They may be understood to speak ironically. C.—"Who committeth no sin, nor iniquity, nor has had any society with lawless people, so as to walk with wicked men." H.

VER. 9. With him, and strive to please him. Horrible blasphemy! of which Job was incapable: as if God were a cruel master, and threw us into despair. (668)

8 Who goeth in company with them that work iniquity, and walketh with wicked men?

9 For he hath said: Man shall not please God, although he run with him.

10 Therefore, ye men of understanding, hear me: far from God be wickedness, and iniquity from the Almighty.

11 For he will render to a man his work, and according to the ways of every one he will reward them.

12 For, in very deed, God will not condemn without cause, neither will the Almighty pervert judgment.

13 What other hath he appointed over the earth? or whom hath he set over the world which he made?

14 If he turn his heart to him, he shall draw his spirit and breath unto himself.

15 All flesh shall perish together, and man shall return into ashes.

16 If then thou hast understanding, hear what is said, and hearken to the voice of my words.

17 Can he be healed that loveth not judgment? and how dost thou so far condemn him that is just?

18 Who saith to the king: Thou art an apostate: who calleth rulers ungodly:

19 *Who accepteth not the persons of princes: nor hath regarded the tyrant, when he contended against the poor man: for all are the work of his hands.

20 They shall suddenly die, and the people shall be troubled at midnight, and they shall pass, and take away the violent without hand.

21 For his eyes are upon the ways of men, and he considereth all their steps.

22 There is no darkness, and there is no shadow of death, where they may be hid who work iniquity.

23 For it is no longer in the power of man to enter into judgment with God.

Acts x. 24. Rom. ii. 11. Gal. ii. 6. Ephes. vi. 9. Colos. iii. 25. 1 Pet. i. 17.

He had asserted that God punishes the wicked, and often treats his friends with the like severity, (C. ix. 22. and xxx. 26.) in this world: which is very true. C.—Sept. "Say not that man is not visited. He is indeed visited by the Lord." H.—Eliu wrests Job's words, in order that he may have something to say against him. S. Greg. xxiv. 25. W.

VER. 18. Earth? If God cannot be unjust, hath he given the administration of the world to some other, who may have been deceived? This will not be asserted. Heb. "who hath visited the earth for him?" or, "who hath set him over the earth?" Is he a hired judge, who may be bribed? C.

VER. 14. To him, and examine his conduct with rigour: there is scarcely a moment of our lives in which he would not discover a just reason for withdrawing his hand, and suffering us to die. Ps. ciii. 29. C.

VER. 17. Judgment. How can one hope for redress from God, while he condemns his conduct? M.—How can we bring Job to a sense of his duty, since he entertains such perverse notions? Heb. "Shall he hold dominion, who hates justice?" If God be unjust, does he deserve our adoration? (C.) or, "ought not the person to be put in prison, who resists judgment?" Grot. "If thou dost not think that He who hates crimes, and destroys the impious, is eternal and just?" Sept. H.

VER. 18. Who. Theod. in Sept. "wicked is he who says to the king, thou actest contrary to the law; and to the rulers, thou most impious." H.—Apostate. Heb. "Belial."

VER. 19. Tyrant. This title is not always odious. It formerly was given to all princes, and came to be used in a bad sense, on account of the misconduct of some kings of Sicily. Tyrannus a rege distat factis, non nomine. Sen. Clem. xii.—Heb. "the rich more than the poor." H.—God fears not to rebuke even the greatest princes, and dost thou dare to arraign his justice? C.

VER. 20. They, the wicked, whatever may be their station in life. H.—God takes off the tyrant (C.) when he least expects it, as well as the poor. H.—Troubled, or make an insurrection. C.—This often proves the ruin of tyrants. H.—Hand, by the destroying angel. C.

VER. 22. Death, or the most obscure recess. H.

VER. 23. Man. Heb. "He will not lay upon man (C.) more than right (Prot. H.) to," &c. After once passing sentence, all is over. C.—When man has fallen into sin, he cannot with a good grace contend with God. C.

VER. 24. Stead. Where are now the ancient Assyrians, Carthaginians, &c. who once made such a figure in the world? C.—Sept. "glorious and sudden and unnumbered." The next eight verses are taken from Theodotus. H.

24 He shall break in pieces many and innumerable, and shall make others to stand in their stead.

25 For he knoweth their works: and therefore he shall bring night on them, and they shall be destroyed.

26 He hath struck them as being wicked, in open sight.

27 Who, as it were on purpose, have revolted from him, and would not understand all his ways.

28 So that they caused the cry of the needy to come to him, and he heard the voice of the poor.

29 For when he granteth peace, who is there that can condemn? When he hideth his countenance, who is there that can behold him, whether it regard nations, or all men.

30 Who maketh a man that is a hypocrite to reign for the sins of the people?

31 Seeing then I have spoken of God, I will not hinder thee in thy turn.

32 If I have erred, teach thou me: if I have spoken iniquity, I will add no more.

33 Doth God require it of thee, because it hath displeased thee? for thou beganst to speak, and not I: but if thou know any thing better, speak.

34 Let men of understanding speak to me, and let a wise man hearken to me.

35 But Job hath spoken foolishly, and his words sound not discipline.

36 My father, let Job be tried even to the end: cease not from the man of iniquity.

37 Because he addeth blasphemy upon his sins, let him be tied fast in the mean time among us; and then let him provoke God to judgment with his speeches.

CHAP. XXXV.

Eliu declares that the good or evil done by man cannot reach God.

MOREOVER Eliu spoke these words.

2 Doth thy thought seem right to thee, that thou shouldst say: I am more just than God?

VER. 25. Night, calamities. At once they shall be oppressed. C.

VER. 26. Sight. Lit. "in the place of the beholders," (H.) in public. C.

VER. 27. Alh. Prot. "Any of." The wicked observe none of God's commandments as they ought. He that offends in one becomes guilty of all. Jam. ii. 10.

VER. 29. Condemn, either God or the person whom he approves. Does not he exercise dominion over all? C.—Men. Lit. "all men." Heb. "a man." God may destroy either a part or the whole of the creation. Sometimes whole nations or cities are cut off, and the deluge nearly swept away all mankind. H.

VER. 30. People. A hypocrite denotes one infected with all sorts of crimes. S. Irén. v. 24. Such a king is sometimes given to punish a wicked people. Ose. xiii. 11. Isai. iii. 4. This sense is beautiful, and followed by the Chal. Sept. &c. We may explain the Heb. in like manner, by neglecting the Masoretic points. C.—Prot. "That the hypocrite reign not, lest the people be ensnared." H.—Heb. "He overturns the throne of hypocrites, on account of the scandal of the people," or "he delivers the people from servitude." The sense of the Vulg. seems preferable. C.—Eliu insinuates that Job had been a hypocrite and an oppressor; but God exculpates him. W.

VER. 31. Seeing. Heb. "Thou shouldst have said to the Lord, I have suffered enough: (C.) I will not offend." Prot. H. v. 32.—Turn. He had undertaken to plead God's cause. C.

VER. 33. Al, my iniquity. M.—Will God make thee accountable for it? H.—Yes, if thou keep silence, (C.) thou wilt seem to connive at it. H.—He wishes to engage Job to speak. Heb. may be translated many ways. C.—Prot. "Should it be according to thy mind? He will recompense it whether thou refuse, or whether thou choose; and not I. Therefore speak what thou knowest." H.

VER. 36. Father. From God all the rights of a father spring. Ephes. iii. 15. C.—Sept. "No indeed: but learn Job, answer not like fools." Prot. "my desire is, (marg. my father) that Job may be tried unto the end, because of his answers for the wicked." H.—He has imitated their wicked discourses; let his chastisement deter others. C.—The sequel seems to intimate, that Eliphaz is here styled Father. M.

VER. 37. Fast, and pressed by arguments. M. C.—Heb. "since he adds crime (C. Prot. rebellion) to his sin, and clappeth his hands among us, and multiplieth his words against the Lord." Eliu concluding that Job was obstinate, (H.) invites his friends to join in prayer, that he might be still more severely chastised, to make him enter into himself. Such a strange petition might possi-

3 For thou saidst: That which is right doth not please thee: or what will it profit thee if I sin?

4 Therefore I will answer thy words, and thy friends with thee.

5 Look up to heaven and see, and behold the sky that it is higher than thou.

6 If thou sin, what shalt thou hurt him? and if thy iniquities be multiplied, what shalt thou do against him?

7 And if thou do justly, what shalt thou give him, or what shall he receive of thy hand?

8 Thy wickedness may hurt a man that is like thee: and thy justice may help the son of man.

9 By reason of the multitude of oppressors they shall cry out: and shall wail for the violence of the arm of tyrants.

10 And he hath not said: Where is God, who made me, who hath given songs in the night?

11 Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth, and instructeth us more than the fowls of the air.

12 There shall they cry, and he will not hear, because of the pride of evil men.

13 God therefore will not hear in vain, and the Almighty will look into the causes of every one.

14 Yea, when thou shalt say: He considereth not: be judged before him, and expect him.

15 For he doth not now bring on his fury, neither doth he revenge wickedness exceedingly.

16 Therefore, Job openeth his mouth in vain, and multiplieth words without knowledge.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Eliu proceeds in setting forth the justice and power of God.

ELIU also proceeded, and said:

2 Suffer me a little, and I will shew thee: for I have yet somewhat to speak in God's behalf.

3 I will repeat my knowledge from the beginning, and I will prove my maker just.

bly proceed from charity. But Eliu had given too many proofs of passion, to allow this interpretation. Had he evinced that Job was a criminal! and were not his sorrows already too great, so that he might rather have prayed that God would alleviate them, or grant him more patience?

CHAP. XXXV. VER. 2. God. Eliu being greatly mortified at Job's silence, uses still more provoking expressions, and pretends to refute one of the holy man's assertions, which never escaped his lips, though he had complained that God treated him as an enemy, and with more severity than his sins deserved; (C. vi. 2. C.) or, that his affliction was greater than his sin. C. xxiii. 7. &c. Eliu therefore calumniates him. W.

VER. 3. Please thee, since thou punishest the guiltless. M.—If I sin. Job had not said so, but it seemed to follow from his expressions. C. xxi. 7. See C. xxii. 3. Whether sin be committed and punished, or not, what does it profit God? C.—His sovereign perfections require that he should not let sin pass unnoticed, and Job never entertained an idea to the contrary.

VER. 4. Thee. I will shew that you are all wrong. H.—I will supply what the three have left imperfect. C.

VER. 5. Thy sin cannot hurt, nor thy virtue add any thing to God. He is not therefore actuated by resentment, or jealousy, but by justice. C.—He revenges the injury done by the sinner to himself, v. 8. S. Aug. Conf. iii. 8.—The inference is therefore wrong, (C.) that God will not regard the sins or punishment of men, because he thence derives no profit, v. 8. H.—The strong sentences of Eliu agree not (or are ill-applied) to the blessed Job. S. Greg. xxvi. 7. W.

VER. 9. Out. The wicked shall cry out, through vexation, but still they will not address themselves to God, v. 10. Why are they abandoned, but because He takes cognizance of all!

VER. 10. Songs. Arab. "thoughts," by means of visions. Chal. "where is the Lord, in whose presence the angels sing canticles of praise in the night?" C.—Sept. "who has ordered the night watches;" (H.) the stars, which display the power of God! His servants also are filled with interior joy, even in the midst of afflictions. C.

VER. 11. Air: and yet the wicked make not use of their understanding, to have recourse to God under distress. C.

VER. 13. Vain. Heb. "falsehood." He will not relieve the hypocrite, who does not cry to him with sincerity. This conduct shews that God acts with discretion, and hears people according to their deserts. C.

4 For, indeed, my words are without a lie, and perfect knowledge shall be proved to thee.

5 God doth not cast away the mighty, whereas he himself also is mighty.

6 But he saveth not the wicked, and he giveth judgment to the poor.

7 He will not take away his eyes from the just, and he placeth kings on the throne for ever, and they are exalted.

8 And if they shall be in chains, and be bound with the cords of poverty:

9 He shall shew them their works, and their wicked deeds, because they have been violent.

10 He also shall open their ear, to correct them: and shall speak, that they may return from iniquity.

11 If they shall hear and observe, they shall accomplish their days in good, and their years in glory.

12 But if they hear not, they shall pass by the sword, and shall be consumed in folly.

13 Dissemblers and crafty men prove the wrath of God, neither shall they cry when they are bound.

14 Their soul shall die in a storm, and their life among the effeminate.

15 He shall deliver the poor out of his distress, and shall open his ear in affliction.

16 Therefore he shall set thee at large out of the narrow mouth, and which hath no foundation under it: and the rest of thy table shall be full of fatness.

VER. 14. Before him. Try whether the assertion be true. H.—Only change thy life, and hope in him, and thou wilt see the good effects. C.

VER. 15. For. Prot. "But now because it is not so, he hath visited in his anger; yet he (marg. Job) knoweth it not, in great extremity." H.—In this world, God punishes not with rigour. C.

VER. 16. Knowledge. I have shewn that God punishes or rewards according to our deserts, and is not indifferent about our sins. If Job have not experienced the divine bounty, it is because he has not deserved it. C.

CHAP. XXXVI. VER. 8. Beginning. Heb. "afar" from that God, who is ancient, and not of human invention; (Jer. xxiii. 23.) or from the consideration of the heavens. Nothing could be more magnificent than the descriptions which conclude this fourth part of the discourse. C.

VER. 4. Lie. Every orator will promise to speak the truth, and will do so sometimes to gain credit. W.—Shall be. Heb. "is with thee." Thou art not devoid of sense, and thou wilt (C.) surely approve my reasons, which are suggested by the God of all knowledge. H.

VER. 5. God. Sept. "Know that the Lord will not cast away the innocent." Theod. continues to v. 12: "The mighty, in strength of heart, (Wisd. vi.) will not make the impious live, and will render judgment to the poor." H.—They seem to have read Thom., which is now wanting in Heb. C.—"Behold God is mighty, and despiseth not any: mighty in strength and wisdom." Prot. H.—Eliu begins to prove that God administers justice to all equally. C.

VER. 7. Just. Heb. Syr. &c. "the just man, he will place him with kings on the throne." C.—Exalted, or "extolled" for ever, if they have done well. W.—He always disposes of kingdoms. M.

VER. 9. Violent, while in power and on the throne, or because even in a private station, their will has risen up in rebellion against God. H.—Poverty and afflictions are scourges, which are often inflicted by mercy, to bring us to a sense of our duty. C.

VER. 10. Ear, by secret inspirations, or by the admonitions of pastors. C.—Afflictions will also speak louder to them than any orator. H.

VER. 12. Folly. Heb. "without knowledge." He speaks of princes, (C.) and of all the wicked, who have not known the day of their visitation. H.—They shall suffer the punishment prepared for fools or wicked men. M.

VER. 13. Bound, in misery and evil habits. They will not have recourse to God by humble prayer, though they perceive his displeasure, and design in punishing them.

VER. 14. Storm. Heb. and Sept. "in youth," (H.) being suddenly cut off, without having deplored the sins of their youth. C.—Effeminate. Heb. "the consecrated" to prostitution. Eliu compares those who will not attend unto God, to the most infamous characters. C.—Sept. "and let their life be taken away by the angels" (H.) of death. C. xxxiii. 23. C.—He may allude to the impure Sodomites. M.

VER. 16. He shall. He would have prevented thee from falling into this irremediable distress, if thou hadst imitated the poor who trust in Him. C.—Yea, he will still restore thee to favour, if thou wilt repent. H.—He will fill thee with joy and plenty. M.—Foundation. Heb. where there is no straitness. Prot. He would have rescued thee from distress, and set thee at large. H.—The psalmist often speaks in the same language. C.

VER. 17. Recover. Thou shalt be treated as thou hast treated others. Heb. (870)

17 Thy cause hath been judged as that of the wicked, cause and judgment thou shalt recover.

18 Therefore, let not anger overcome thee, to oppress any man: neither let multitude of gifts turn thee aside.

19 Lay down thy greatness without tribulation, and all the mighty of strength.

20 Prolong not the night, that people may come up for them.

21 Beware that thou turn not aside to iniquity: for this thou hast begun to follow after misery.

22 Behold, God is high in his strength, and none is like him among the lawgivers.

23 Who can search out his ways? or who can say to him: Thou hast wrought iniquity?

24 Remember that thou knowest not his work, concerning which men have sung.

25 All men see him, every one beholdeth afar off.

26 Behold, God is great, exceeding our knowledge: the number of his years is inestimable.

27 He lifteth up the drops of rain, and poureth out showers like floods:

28 Which flow from the clouds that cover all above.

29 If he will spread out clouds as his tent,

30 And lighten with his light from above, he shall cover also the ends of the sea.

31 For by these he judgeth people, and giveth food to many mortals.

is not well understood. It may be, "Thou hast spoken like the impious; but judgment and justice rule. (18.) Beware lest wrath overtake thee, so that thy prayers may not avert it. (19) Will He regard thy cries, thy riches, gold or strength?" C.

VER. 19. Without, or before thou be forced by tribulation. M.—Lay aside all sentiments of pride, (S. Greg.) or keep in awe the mighty, who administer justice in thy name. M.—Prot. "Will he esteem thy riches? No, not gold, nor all the forces of strength." Sept. "Let not a willing mind incline thee unjustly to the prayer of the needy in distress." H.

VER. 20. Prolong not the night, &c. Prolong not causes that are brought before thee, but dispatch, by early rising, the business of them that come up to thee. Ch.—Sept. "and all the men of power do not withdraw in the night," from just punishment. Theod. adds, "that the people may come up against them," to demand vengeance. Do strict justice both to the rich and to the poor, without pity or fear. H.—This text is very obscure; and the Heb. may have different meanings, which do not, however, seem well connected with the rest. "Plant not after night, when people retire home;" (C.) or Prot. "are cut off in their place." H.—Delay not to banish temptations, or they will increase. S. Greg. xxvi. 38. W.

VER. 21. Iniquity, or blaspheming, (C. xxxiv. 37. M.) and murmurs, to which alone thou hast given way since thy fall. C.

VER. 22. Lawgivers. Heb. more, "a master." In Chal. "a sovereign." Grot. Sept. "what potentate is against him?" H.—What art thou, to dare thus to resist him? C.—S. Gregory (xxvii. 1.) explains this as a prediction of Christ, "our singular lawgiver." God is most able to punish transgressors, and willing to reward those who obey his laws. W.

VER. 24. Not, is omitted in Heb. and Sept. "Remember that thou magnify his work, which men behold;" Prot. (H.) or "thou hast magnified," formerly. Do so again.—Sung. The memory of great exploits was commonly preserved by canticles. C.

VER. 25. All. The rest of this chapter, and the five first verses of the next, seem to be inserted in the Sept. from Theodotion. "Every man sees in himself how many mortals are wounded," &c.—Off, in the stars, &c. or in ancient times, what wonders God has performed. C.—The works of God are like a ladder by which we may ascend to the knowledge of him. M. Wisd. xiii. H.

VER. 27. Floods. God causes the water on the earth to evaporate, (C.) to form the clouds, (H.) which afterwards fall in torrents. M.—Theod. "the drops of rain are numbered by him," &c. C. xxvi. 8.

VER. 29. If. Heb. "Also can any understand the spreading out of the clouds, the elevation or noise of his pavilion?" H.—What could be more magnificent than the throne of God! C.

VER. 30. Ends. Lit. "the hinges," or poles, cardines. H.—Heb. "roots," Aristotle (Meteor. ii. 1.) and Hesiod (Theog. 727.) use the same term, (C.) to denote the fountains which supply the sea. H.—Who ever discovered these deep recesses? Eliu describes a thunder-storm, when the sea is covered with darkness. He intimates that the pavilion of God, though hidden from us by the clouds, is not destitute of light. C.—God inhabits light inaccessible. H.

VER. 31. Mortals. Heb. "in abundance." H.—By thunder he overwhelms many nations, while, by moderate rains, he causes the earth to fructify (C.) and nourish mankind. M.

32 In his hands he hideth the light, and commandeth it to come again.

33 He sheweth his friend concerning it, that it is his possession, and that he may come up to it.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Eliu goes on in his discourse, shewing God's wisdom and power, by his wonderful works.

AT this my heart trembleth, and is moved out of its place.

2 Hear ye attentively the terror of his voice, and the sound that cometh out of his mouth.

3 He beholdeth under all the heavens, and his light is upon the ends of the earth.

4 After it a noise shall roar, he shall thunder with the voice of his majesty, and shall not be found out, when his voice shall be heard.

5 God shall thunder wonderfully with his voice, he that doth great and unsearchable things.

6 He commandeth the snow to go down upon the earth, and the winter rain, and the shower of his strength.

7 He sealeth up the hand of all men, that every one may know his works.

8 Then the beast shall go into his covert, and shall abide in his den.

9 Out of the inner parts shall a tempest come, and cold out of the north.

10 When God bloweth there cometh frost, and again the waters are poured out abundantly.

VER. 32. Hands, or clouds, which are compared to a hand. 3 K. xviii. 44. He opens his hand, and light appears. This expression denotes the utmost facility with which a very surprising thing is effected.—To come. Heb. "by this obstacle." He alludes to the sun's eclipse, as if God's hand covered its disk. C.—Prot. "He . . . commandeth it not to shine, by the cloud that cometh betwixt."

VER. 33. To it. The tabernacle of God is designed for his friends. Heb. is very obscure. "Thunder announces rain, and the very animals know it;" (Virgil describes their signs, Geor. i.) or "His thunder announces from above the clouds his wrath to men." C.—"The noise thereof sheweth concerning it, the cattle also concerning the vapour."

CHAP. XXXVII. VER. 1. This thunder, the effects of which are so terrible, that it is often styled the voice of God. C. Ps. xxviii. M.—The consideration of rewards (C. xxxvi. 33.) stimulates the good, while thunder strikes the heart with terror. W.

VER. 3. Earth. Lightning appears from the east to the west. Mat. xxiv. 27.

VER. 4. After. Light travels faster than sound, (H.) though thunder and lightning are produced at the same instant. C.—Found out. Philosophers can only propose their conjectures on the cause of thunder. This sense is confirmed by the Greek, Chal. &c. Heb. may be, "he delays not;" C.—Prot. "he will not stay them;" (H.) rain commonly falling soon after thunder. As the latter is occasioned by the collision of clouds, when they come to a certain distance from the earth, the heat causes them to dissolve into showers, which augment at each crack. C.—Sept. "For he has done great things, which we have not understood." This is connected with C. xxxvi. 24. Then we read, (v. 7.) "that man may know his own weakness." All the intermediate verses have been supplied by Origen from Theodotion, or others. H.

VER. 7. He sealed up, &c. When he sends those showers of his strength; that is, those storms of rain, he seals up; that is, he shuts up the hands of men from their usual works abroad, and confines them within doors, to consider his works; or to forecast their works; that is, what they themselves are to do. Ch.—We are all the servants of God. He marks us in the hand, as such. Isai. xlv. 5. Ezec. ix. 6. Apoc. xiii. 6. The Romans marked soldiers with a hot iron in the hands. Veget. i. 8.—The abettors of chiromancy have hence vainly pretended that they can discover each person's fortune in the lineaments of his hands. C.

VER. 8. Den. Foreseeing the tempest and retreating for shelter.

VER. 9. Partis. The south, (C. ix. 9.) whence storms commonly came in that country, (C.) from the sea or desert of Idumea. H. Ps. lxxvii. 26. Zac. ix. 14. Isai. xxi. 1.—North wind, or pole. W.—Yet the south seems to be designated; (v. 17. and C. xxxviii. 32.) though cold comes from the north, in Idumea as well as here. C.—Mezarim, is rendered by Prot. "north." Marg. "scattering winds." Sept. deporaplav "summits" of mountains.

VER. 10. Abundantly. He causes it to freeze or rain at pleasure. H. Ps. cxlvii. 17. M.

VER. 11. Corn requires rain. H.—Light. As they are transparent, they do not hinder the sun from appearing. Heb. "the brightness of the sky disperses the clouds, and the clouds shed their light" in the rainbow, (v. 15. Grot.) or lightning. Jun. C. M.—Prot. "Also by watering, he wearieth the thick cloud, he scattereth his bright cloud, (12) and it is turned round about by his counsels,

11 Corn desireth clouds, and the clouds spread their light:

12 Which go round about, whithersoever the will of him that governeth them shall lead them, to whatsoever he shall command them upon the face of the whole earth:

13 Whither in one tribe, or in his own land, or in what place soever of his mercy he shall command them to be found.

14 Harken to these things, Job: Stand, and consider the wondrous works of God.

15 Dost thou know when God commanded the rains, to shew the light of his clouds?

16 Knowest thou the great paths of the clouds, and the perfect knowledges?

17 Are not thy garments hot, when the south wind blows upon the earth?

18 Thou perhaps hast made the heavens with him, which are most strong, as if they were of molten brass.

19 Shew us what we may say to him: for we are wrapped up in darkness.

20 Who shall tell him the things I speak? even if a man shall speak, he shall be swallowed up.

21 But now they see not the light: the air on a sudden shall be thickened into clouds, and the winds shall pass and drive them away.

22 Gold cometh out of the north, and to God praise with fear.

that they may do whatsoever," &c. God prohibits or gives rain. H.—Nothing is left to chance. C.—He directeth the clouds as a master does his ship. W.

VER. 13. Tribe. Heb. also, "for correction." H. Amos iv. 7.—Land or promise. Ps. lxxvii. 10.

VER. 15. Light: the rain-bow, according to the best interpreters; or the lightning. C.

VER. 16. Paths. Heb. "the balancings of the clouds, the wondrous works of Him whose knowledge is perfect!" C. xxxvi. 4. Dost thou know what suspends the heavy clouds in the air? C.

VER. 17. Are. Heb. "How thy," &c. It is also beyond thy comprehension, why thou shouldst be too hot when the south winds blows (H.) moderately, though tempests generally proceed from the same quarter, v. 9. If thou art in the dark respecting these things, which thou feelest, how canst thou pretend to fathom and condemn the counsels of God? C.—Job was far from doing either. His friends rather undertook to explain God's reasons for punishing thus his servants, which Job acknowledged was to him a mystery, (H.) till God had enlightened him. C. xxii. 3. Houbigant.

VER. 18. Brass. Heb. "Hast thou with him stretched out (or beaten, as brass, tarkiang; which word Moses uses for the firmament) the heavens, which are as solid (Chal. and like) a molten looking-glass?" which was formerly made of metal. Ex. xxxviii. 8. The Hebrews looked upon the sky as a sheet of brass; and the poets speak of the brazen heaven. Pindar. Nem. vi. Iliad. A.

VER. 19. Darkness. Thou who art so learned, give us some information, what we may blame in the works of God. Cutting irony! C.

VER. 20. He shall be swallowed up. All that man can say, when he speaks of God, is so little and inconsiderable in comparison with the subject, that man is lost, and as it were swallowed up in so immense an ocean. Ch.—The man who should dare to mention what I could reprehend in God's works, would soon be overwhelmed with majesty. C.—Alphonsus IX. king of Leon, (A. D. 1252) surnamed "the wise and the astronomer," said "he could have given some good advice respecting the motions of the stars, if he had been consulted by God;" meaning to ridicule some vain systems of philosophers, then in vogue. Dict. 1774. H.

VER. 21. Light; being hindered by the clouds, and dazzled when they are removed. Yet we presume to judge of the secrets of Providence! C.—Away. As there is a constant vicissitude of these things, so there is of happiness and misery. M.—Sept. "For the light is not seen by all. It is refulgent in beauties, as that which comes thence upon the clouds." If, therefore, this light does not pervade all places, why should we wonder that all do not understand the ways of God? H.

VER. 22. Gold. Sept. "from the north, gold-coloured clouds. Above these, great is the praise and honour of the Almighty." H.—When the wind blows, the clouds are dispersed, and the sky appears serene. Each country has its peculiar advantages. In the north, Ophir, &c. may boast of gold: but what ought to be most conspicuous in the praises given to God, is an humble fear. Pindar begins his Olympic Odes somewhat in the same style. C.—"Water is excellent, and gold . . . But if, dear heart, thou wilt sing of games, regard no other star . . . as brighter than the sun . . . nor shall we celebrate any game more excellent than that of Olympiâ." H.—God disposes of all things as he pleases. He makes 23 We cannot find him worthily: he is great in strength, and in judgment, and in justice, and he is ineffable.

24 Therefore men shall fear him, and all that seem to themselves to be wise, shall not dare to behold him.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

God interposes, and shews from the things he hath made, that man cannot comprehend his power and wisdom.

THEN the Lord answered Job out of a whirlwind, and said:

2 Who is this that wrappeth up sentences in unskilful words?

3 Gird up thy loins like a man: I will ask thee, and answer thou me.

4 Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? tell me, if thou hast understanding.

5 Who hath laid the measures thereof, if thou knowest? or who hath stretched the line upon it?

6 Upon what are its bases grounded? or who laid the corner-stone thereof?

7 When the morning stars praised me together, and all the sons of God made a joyful melody?

8 Who shut up the sea with doors, when it broke forth as issuing out of the womb:

9 When I made a cloud the garment thereof, and wrapped it in a mist, as in swaddling bands?

the golden day succeed a tempest. But it is our duty to praise him with awe, whatever he may ordain. This is the epilogue. Pineda.—Man must praise God with fear, as he cannot do it sufficiently. W.

VER. 23. Worthily. Heb. "the Almighty, we cannot find him out," (H.) or comprehend his nature or mysteries. C.

VER. 24. Fear him, and receive with respect whatever he shall appoint. H.

—And all. Heb. "he fears not any that are wise of heart." He knows that the most intelligent (C.) must confess their ignorance, when they attempt to examine his divine nature. Simonides being desired by Hiero to express his sentiments on this subject, always requested more time to consider of it. Quia, inquit, res videtur mihi tanto obscurior, quanto diutius eam considero. Cicero, Nat. i. 60. Selectæ e Prof. i. 3.—"With thee (says S. Aug. Conf. i. 8.) stand the causes of all instable things," &c. H.—Those who are really wise, will therefore adore God's judgments in silence, while the presumptuous will be forced to yield. This is the excellent conclusion of all that had been said. Pineda.—The sentence is beautiful, but ill-applied (H.) to Job. Philip. See Prov. iii. 7. H.—He convinced the other three with sound arguments, "and this last and most arrogant disputant with silence." W.

CHAP. XXXVIII. VER. 1. Then. Sept. "After Eliu had ceased to speak." H.—Lord. That is, an angel speaking in the name of the Lord. Ch.—The name Jehova (H.) here occurs, though it never does in the speeches; whence many have inferred that the Lord spoke in person; which argument, however, is not conclusive; and that this work was written after the apparition in the burning bush. C.—The Heb. edition would at least be given after that event.—Whirlwind, designed to strike the senses, (H.) and to represent the distressed condition of Job. Pineda.—This awful appearance imposed silence upon all. H.—Some think that a time was allowed for reflection and repentance, before God passed sentence; but the Sept. &c. seem to suppose that the cause was decided as soon as Eliu had ended his discourse. C.—God discusses the controversy, and gives sentence in favour of Job. W.

VER. 2. Words. Many explain this as a condemnation (C.) of the last speaker, (D.) who would otherwise pass without any reproach, (H.) though he had spoken with less reserve than the rest. C.—Pineda allows that this opinion is very plausible; but he thinks that Job himself is reprehended, not for any grievous offence, but for indiscreet expressions. C. xli. The context also seems to require this, as Job takes it to himself. C. xxxix. 33. C.—The change of persons might rather imply the contrary: Who is this? Eliu. 3. Gird up thy loins. Job. H.—Can we admit that the devil got the victory; or, that God falsely declared that Job had spoken right? C. xlii. Houbigant.—Did not the latter maintain the truth with greatest zeal, while his friends certainly mixed unskilful words or inferences with sentences of the greatest consequence? His face I will accept, that your folly be not imputed to you; for you have not spoken right things before me, as my servant Job hath. C. xlii. 8. Heb. "Who is this that darkeneth counsel, by words without knowledge?" Prot. "Who is this who concealeth counsel from me, keeping words in his heart, and thinketh to hide from me?" Sept. Eliu pretended to explain the counsels of God, and perhaps did not utter all that he had in his mind; but God condemns the very harbouring of thoughts, which are contrary to truth and justice. H.—Job's friends laboured under great prejudices, and condemned him without cause, (C.) thinking that they were doing a service to God, like those who put the apostles to death, and persecuted Catholics on account of their religion. But this plea will not excuse them. Here one line suffices to refute the long harangue (H.) of Eliu; (S. Greg. Ven. Bede. &c.) though we have observed, (H.) some understand the words to be ad-

10 I set my bounds around it, and made it bars and doors;

11 And I said: Hitherto thou shalt come, and shalt go no further, and here thou shalt break thy swelling waves.

12 Didst thou since thy birth command the morning, and shew the dawning of the day its place?

13 And didst thou hold the extremities of the earth, shaking them, and hast thou shaken the ungodly out of it?

14 The seal shall be restored as clay, and shall stand as a garment:

15 From the wicked their light shall be taken away, and the high arm shall be broken.

16 Hast thou entered into the depths of the sea, and walked in the lowest parts of the deep?

17 Have the gates of death been opened to thee, and hast thou seen the darksome doors?

18 Hast thou considered the breadth of the earth? tell me, if thou knowest all things?

19 Where is the way where light dwelleth? and where is the place of darkness?

20 That thou mayst bring every thing to its own bounds, and understand the paths of the house thereof.

21 Didst thou know then that thou shouldst be born? and didst thou know the number of thy days?

22 Hast thou entered into the storehouses of the snow, or hast thou beheld the treasures of the hail:

dressed to Job, as a rebuke for his too warm expressions. S. Chrys. S. Aug. &c. C.—The remainder of the discourse is designed for Job's instruction. H.—Hoc (Eliu) despecto ad erudiendum Job verba vertuntur. S. Greg.

VER. 3. Loins, like one about to engage in an arduous task, (H.) or journey, (C.) to explore the ways of divine Providence. H.—Answer my reasons, if thou art able. C.—Heb. "make me know." H.—Only the Creator hath perfect knowledge of all his works, as may appear by induction or example: 1. of inanimate; 2. of living things, v. 39. W.

VER. 4. Foundations. The Hebrews placed the earth in the centre of the universe, resting upon nothing, (C. xxvi. 7. and xxxvi. 30.) or upon itself. See Hesiod, Theog. 325. C.—These questions seem intended to shew, that if God has created all things for man, he will not surely neglect to watch over him. M.

VER. 5. Upon it. He speaks of the world as of a vast house, (C.) or palace, (M.) in which the Architect has shewn his art. H.

VER. 7. Sons. Sept. "all my angels." Hence it appears that the angels were among the first of God's works, formed probably at the same time with the heavens, (C.) or light. Gen. i. 3. H.—The praise of the stars is figurative, (C.) as they tend to raise our hearts to God by their beauty, (H.) whereas that of the angels is real. C.

VER. 8. Shut. Heb. also, (H.) "facilitated the birth of the sea," as a midwife. Grot. C.—Forth. Sept. "ragged." H.—God represents the waters ready to overwhelm all when first produced out of nothing, if he had not shut them up in the abyss, like a child in a cradle, or a wild beast in its den, v. 10. C.

VER. 9. Mist. So Moses says darkness was on the face of the abyss. Obscurity covered it, as swaddling bands do a child's body. C.

VER. 10. Set. Prot. "brake up for it my decreed place." Marg. "established my decree upon it;" (H.) or, "I gave orders to break it," against the shore. Jer. v. 22. Amos v. 8.

VER. 12. Place. Thou art but as yesterday: where is thy power? C.

VER. 13. And didst. Some explain Heb. "that it (Aurora) might spr ad at once to the extremities of the earth. Then the wicked flee before it;" as they hate the light. C. xxxiv. 26. Jo. iii. 20. C.—Sept. and Prot. may be understood in this sense. H.—Allusion may also be made to the shaking of a sieve, to separate the wheat from the chaff; (Amos ix. 9. Luk. xii. 31. C.) or of a carpet, to clean it from the dust. D.—Did God ask thee to help him to exterminate the wicked? The short digression in these three verses, shews the punishment exercised on offenders. It is not contrary to the true spirit of poetry. M.

VER. 14. Seal. Men, formed to the image of God, shall die; and others shall be placed in their stead, (M.) with as much ease as an impression is made upon clay. H.—Garment. The body seems to be the clothing of the soul, and will be changed. Ps. ci. 27. M.—Chal. "their form will be changed to clay, and they shall resemble a tattered garment." Heb. "their seal shall change like clay," &c. All their glory shall perish. C.—Sept. "hast thou taken earth or clay, and formed a living creature, and endued it with speech on the earth?" Is man the work of thy hands? H.

VER. 17. Doors? Sept. "through fear; or have the porters of hell flown away at thy sight?" H.

VER. 19. Darkness. The poetical style of this book represents these things as real beings, in the same manner (C.) as the house, (v. 20) or palace of the sun, &c. are described by the ancients. H.

VER. 23. War. Hail, &c. are like the arrows of God. Jer. x. 13. and i. 25. C.

23 Which I have prepared for the time of the enemy, against the day of battle and war?

24 By what way is the light spread, and heat divided upon the earth?

25 Who gave a course to violent showers, or a way for noisy thunder:

26 That it should rain on the earth without man in the wilderness, where no mortal dwelleth:

27 That it should fill the desert and desolate land, and should bring forth green grass?

28 Who is the father of rain? or who begot the drops of dew?

29 Out of whose womb came the ice? and the frost from heaven, who hath gendered it?

30 The waters are hardened like a stone, and the surface of the deep is congealed.

31 Shalt thou be able to join together the shining stars, the Pleiades, or canst thou stop the turning about of Arcturus?

32 Canst thou bring forth the day-star in its time, and make the evening-star to rise upon the children of the earth?

33 Dost thou know the order of heaven, and canst thou set down the reason thereof on the earth?

34 Canst thou lift up thy voice to the clouds, that an abundance of waters may cover thee?

35 Canst thou send lightnings, and will they go, and will they return and say to thee: Here we are?

36 Who hath put wisdom in the heart of man? or who gave the cock understanding?

37 Who can declare the order of the heavens? or who can make the harmony of heaven to sleep?

38 When was the dust poured on the earth, and the clods fastened together?

39 Wilt thou take the prey for the lioness, and satisfy the appetite of her whelps,

VER. 24. Heat. Heb. kadim, (H.) the "east." Sept. "south wind." Perhaps the east winds produced the same bad effects in Egypt, as the south wind did in Judea; (C.) or this noxious burning wind might proceed from the south-eastern point of both countries. H.

VER. 25. Noisy. Heb. "for lightning, which accompanies thunder!" By these questions, respecting things which to man are impossible, and many inexplicable, God humbles (C.) the pride of the human heart. H.

VER. 26. Dwelleth. This shews the magnificence of God, (M.) at least. H.

VER. 31. Pleiades. The seven stars.—Arcturus. A bright star in the north. Ch.—The same terms occur, and are explained, C. ix. 9. H.

VER. 32. Day-star. Heb. mazzaroth, (H.) corresponds with the "inner parts of the south;" (C. ix. 9.) though some translate, "the signs of the zodiac, or the influences," &c. The antarctic constellations could not be seen in Idumea, while those at the north pole (C.) must appear to those who live on that side of the line, (H.) as the perpetual sentinels of the sky.—Evening-star. Heb. "Wilt thou make hayish and her daughters go to rest?" These indicate the arctic stars. Here two quite opposite stars are meant; (C.) though (H.) with us the evening and morning star be the same, being so styled according as it appears after or before the sun. M.—Prot. "Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth (Sept. also retain the original term, Μαζαροθ) in his season, or canst thou guide Arcturus, with his sons?" The former term signifies things "scattered," the planets, (H.) or "the grains of gross air dispersed" to all the extremities, which returning to the centre, occasion cold. C. xxxvii. 9. Parkhurst.

VER. 33. Reason. Heb. "dominion," (H.) or influence upon the earth. Mathematicians thought they had discovered these laws, and the number of the stars; but daily experience evinces their error. M.

VER. 34. Voice, to mimic the thunder of God, (C.) or to order it to rain. H.

VER. 36. Understanding. That is, to distinguish the hours of the night. Ch.—Sept. "Who gave to women the knowledge of the loom, and the art of embroidering!" H.—It was the part of women to weave, as appears from the conduct of queen Penelope. But the best interpreters translate, "Who has placed wisdom in the reins, or who hath given understanding to the heart," or soul! C.—God gives wisdom to man, and an instinct to cocks, (H.) or the skill, of which the former is deprived, (W.) to know the approach of day. D.

VER. 37. Sleep. The ancients have celebrated this harmony. Cic. Somn. Scip.—Sept. "Who numbereth the clouds in wisdom, or hath bent the sky down to the earth?" Prot. "or who can stay the bottles of heaven?" H.—Canst 40 When they couch in the dens, and lie in wait in holes?

41 *Who provideth food for the raven, when her young ones cry to God, wandering about, because they have no meat?

CHAP. XXXIX.

The wonders of the power and providence of God in many of his creatures.

KNOWEST thou the time when the wild goats bring forth among the rocks, or hast thou observed the hinds when they fawn?

2 Hast thou numbered the months of their conceiving, or knowest thou the time when they bring forth?

3 They bow themselves to bring forth young, and they cast them, and send forth roarings.

4 Their young are weaned, and go to feed: they go forth, and return not to them.

5 Who hath sent out the wild ass free, and who hath loosed his bonds?

6 To whom I have given a house in the wilderness, and his dwellings in the barren land.

7 He scorneth the multitude of the city, he heareth not the cry of the driver.

8 He looketh round about the mountains of his pasture, and seeketh for every green thing.

9 Shall the rhinoceros be willing to serve thee, of will he stay at thy crib?

10 Canst thou bind the rhinoceros with thy thong to plough; or will he break the clods of the valleys after thee?

11 Wilt thou have confidence in his great strength, and leave thy labours to him?

12 Wilt thou trust him that he will render thee the seed, and gather it into thy barn-floor?

13 The wing of the ostrich is like the wings of the heron, and of the hawk.

* Psal. cxlvi. 9.

thou cause it to rain, or to be fair! (C.) or make the celestial bodies (H.) rest from motion! W.

VER. 38. Together. When was the water separated from the earth? H.—Where wast thou when I gave consistency to the rocks? C.

VER. 39. And satisfy. Sept. "or fill the souls of the dragons?" H.—Here Heb. edit. commence the following chap. (C.) and are followed by Prot. (H.) and some others, as the proof of God's superior knowledge begins to be established by the consideration of various animals. W.

VER. 41. Wandering. Sixtus V. reads vagientes, (C.) "crying like children." H.—The ravens presently drive their young away to seek for fresh habitations. Pliny x. 12. Ps. cxlvi. 9. C.—If God provide for such creatures, He will shew still greater attention to man. W.

CHAP. XXXIX. VER. 1. Goats (Ibex. Heb. Yahale. H.) frequent rocks, and places which are almost inaccessible to man. C.

VER. 3. Roarings. They pretend that these animals bring forth with great difficulty. Ps. xxviii. 9. Vatab. &c.—Aristotle (v. 2. and vi. 29.) asserts, that they receive the male bending down, as Heb. may be here explained. "They bend, they divide their young," as they have often two; "and they leave their strings" at the navel, &c. C.

VER. 4. Feed. Being weaned very soon. Pliny viii. 32.

VER. 5. Wild ass, described, C. vi. 5. The industry of man cannot make this beautiful and strong animal serviceable to him. The like would be the case (C.) with many others, if Providence had not ordered it otherwise. H.

VER. 6. Barren. Lit. "salt." H.—This is of a nitrous quality, which renders those countries barren. The salt in snow and dung gives warmth and fruitfulness.

VER. 9. Rhinoceros. See Deut. xxxiii. 17. Num. xxxiii. 22. Sanchez says they are untameable. M.—But this is not always true, when they have been taken young. Malvenda. C.

VER. 10. Valleys, or furrows. Can he be made to harrow!

VER. 13. Hawk. We may also read, "Is the wing of the ostrich like?" Sept. or Theod. "The bird Neelasa is rejoicing, if she take the Asida, &c. the Neessa." H.—Heb. is variously translated. "The ostrich lifts itself up with its wings, which have feathers, as well as those of the stork." Bochart.—It flutters, running like a partridge, swifter than any horse. Adamson.—"Canst thou give to the stork and the ostrich their feathers," which form all their beauty! C.—Prot. "Gavest thou the goodly wings unto the peacock, or wings (673)

14 When she leaveth her eggs on the earth, thou perhaps wilt warm them in the dust.

15 She forgetteth that the foot may tread upon them, or that the beast of the field may break them.

16 She is hardened against her young ones, as though they were not hers, she hath laboured in vain, no fear constraining her.

17 For God hath deprived her of wisdom, neither hath he given her understanding.

18 When time shall be, she setteth up her wings on high: she scorneth the horse and his rider.

19 Wilt thou give strength to the horse, or clothe his neck with neighing?

20 Wilt thou lift him up like the locusts? the glory of his nostrils is terror.

21 He breaketh up the earth with his hoof, he pranceth boldly, he goeth forward to meet armed men.

22 He despiseth fear, he turneth not his back to the sword.

23 Above him shall the quiver rattle, the spear and shield shall glitter.

24 Chafing and raging, he swalloweth the ground, neither doth he make account when the noise of the trumpet soundeth.

and feathers unto the ostrich?" H.—The import of these names is uncertain. M.—Renanin, (from Ron, "to cry, or move quickly,") may signify peacocks, ostriches, &c. Chasida, "a stork," (L. Jer.) falcon, (W.) or heron; noles "a hawk, or a feather." H.—The first term occurs no where else, and may denote any singing birds or grasshoppers, as the last may be applied to the ostrich which has "wings," though it fly not. Grot. C.—Acknowledge the wisdom of Providence, which has thus enabled such a huge animal to travel so fast. M.—See Parkhurst, alos. H.

VER. 14. Dust. This might help to hatch them. C.—Heb. "earth, and warmeth them in the dust." Prot.

VER. 15. Oves, or eggs which she leaves. C.—Ælian (xiv. 6.) asserts that this bird will expose her own life to defend her young. Yet the neglect of her eggs, will suffice to make her deemed cruel. Lam. iv. 3. H.—Her. Other birds leave their nests through fear; (C.) but this, after sitting a while, will depart carelessly, (H.) and if she meet with other eggs on her road, will take to them, thus rendering her own useless. Bochart.

VER. 17. Understanding. This bird has a head disproportionately small; inasmuch, that Heliogabalus served up the brains of 600 at one supper. It greedily eats iron, &c. which may help its digestion, as sand does that of other birds. C.—When it is hunted, it hides its head only, as if this would be a sufficient defence, (Pliny x. 1.) and is taken alive by a man, clothed in the skin of an ostrich, who moves the head with his hand. Strabo xvi.—All which proves its stupidity. C.

VER. 18. High. With her head erect, the ostrich is taller than a man on horseback. Pliny x. 1.—Its wings are used like sails, and enable it to run as fast as many birds can fly, (C.) while it hurls stones at the pursuer with its feet, so as frequently to kill them. Diod. ii.—Rider, as they can travel with equal speed. M. v. 13.—Adamson (Senegal) placed two negroes on one, and testified that it still went faster than any English horse. H.

VER. 19. Neighing. Heb. "thunder," to denote the fierceness of the horse; or "with a mane," (Bochart) "armour" (Syr.) or "terror." Sept. C.—Wilt thou enable the horse to neigh, (M.) when he appears so terrible? H.

VER. 20. Up. Heb. "frighten," (H.) or "make him leap." Bochart. C.—Nostrils. Sept. "of his chest, or shoulders, is boldness." H.—This inspires the rider with courage, and the enemy with fear. But the Vulg. is more followed. C.

—Frænogue teneri

Impatiens crebro expirat naribus ignes.—Silvius vi.

VER. 21. Hoof. Ploughing, or rather prancing, through impatience. C.—Boldly. Heb. "he exults in his strength," being sensible of glory and commendation. C.—Non dubit intellectum adhortationis et gloria fatentur. Pliny vii. 43.

VER. 23. Shield, or lance. Jos. viii. 18. C.—The din of armour does not disturb the horse, which has been inured to such things. H.—It is of singular courage. W.

VER. 24. Ground. This expression is still used by the Arabs, to denote velocity. Grotius.—Sept. "in wrath he will make the earth disappear." H.—Mox sanguis venis melior calet, ire viarum —Account. Heb. "believe that," or "stops not when." He is so eager to rush forward to battle. . . Si quis sorium procul arma dedere,

Stare loco nescit, micat auribus et trenit artus. Georg. iii.

VER. 25. Ha. Lit. "Vah," a sound of joy, (M.) or of contempt. Sept. The trumpet having given the sign, he will say, Well: Euge. Nothing could be more poetically descriptive of the war-horse. H.

25 When he heareth the trumpet, he saith: Ha, ha: he smelleth the battle afar off, the encouraging of the captains, and the shouting of the army.

26 Doth the hawk wax feathered by thy wisdom, spreading her wings to the south?

27 Will the eagle mount up at thy command, and make her nest in high places?

28 She abideth among the rocks, and dwelleth among cragged flints, and stony hills, where there is no access.

29 From thence she looketh for the prey, and her eyes behold afar off.

30 Her young ones shall suck up blood: and wheresoever the carcass shall be, she is immediately there.

31 And the Lord went on, and said to Job:

32 Shall he that contendeth with God be so easily silenced? surely he that reproveth God ought to answer him.

33 Then Job answered the Lord, and said:

34 What can I answer, who have spoken inconsiderately? I will lay my hand upon my mouth.

35 One thing I have spoken, which I wish I had not said: and another, to which I will add no more.

VER. 26. Feathered. Heb. "fly." H.—South, at the approach of "winter retiring" to warmer regions. Pliny x. 8.—Sept. "spreading her wings, looking unmoved, towards the south." The hawk alone can stare at the sun, and fly to a great height. Ælian x. 14.—Hence the Egyptians consecrated this bird to the sun. C.—The eagle is of the same species, and has the same properties. H. Aristotle mentions 10, and Pliny 16 species of hawks. W.

VER. 28. Access. See Abdias iv. Arist. anim. ix. 32.

VER. 29. Off. The eagle was remarkably (C.) quick-sighted, (W.) as well as the serpent. Hor. i. Sat. iii. Homer, II. xvii.—They say it can discern a fly or a fish from the highest situation; (Bochart) and if its young seem dazzled with the sun-beams, it hurls them down as spurious. Pliny x. 3.

VER. 30. Blood, gushing from the animals, which the eagle brings. M.—S. Chrysostom explains this of the culture, (Mat. xxiv. 28. C.) which is of the same species. M.—Some eagles will not touch carcasses, but others are greedy of them. Pliny x. 3. Prov. xxx. 17.—There. Our Saviour quotes this passage. Lu. xvii. 37. C.

VER. 31. Went on. Sept. "answered." This was the conclusion drawn from the display of God's wonderful works. If we cannot sufficiently admire them, why should we be so much surprised, as Job acknowledged he was, at the ways of Providence? It would, therefore, be better to keep silence, v. 35. H.

VER. 32. Be so. Receive instruction, or (C.) instruct him? Wilt thou learn to admire my works? (H.) or dost thou attempt to give me any information? C.—Him. Heb. "it." Sept. "shall he decline judgment with him who is competent?" Ἰκανός. Theod. adds, "the man who accuses God, shall answer it," or stand his trial. H.

VER. 34. Spoken inconsiderately. If we discuss all Job's words, (saith S. Gregory) we shall find nothing impiously spoken; as may be gathered from the words of the Lord himself; (chap. xlii. v. 7. 8.) but what was reprehensible in him was the manner of expressing himself at times, speaking too much of his own affliction, and too little of God's goodness towards him, which here he acknowledges as inconsiderate, (Ch.) or rather as the effect of inculpable ignorance; (H.) as the present order of things being then novel, confounded the sagacity both of Job and of his friends. The wicked had formerly been the victims of justice, but henceforth, says Job, (Heb.) "if it shall not be so, who can convince me of lying?" C. xxiv. 25. Yet he did not perfectly discern the intention of God, in abandoning his servants to the power of satan, till the Lord himself had explained it in the parables of behemoth and leviathan. Then Job testified his conviction and entire submission. C. xlii. 5. Houbigant observes that the Vulg. is perhaps less accurate here, and C. xlii. 3. as God exculpates Job, v. 8. Yet the latter might entertain fear at least, of having exceeded in words, after such pungent questions. We may translate, (H.) Heb. "Behold I am vile, (C.) what shall I answer thee?" Prot. or Sept. "Why am I still judged, being admonished and rebuked by the Lord, hearing such things?" (Grabe, after Origen, marks with an obel what follows, as not found in Heb.) "I, who am nothing, what answer shall I then give to these things?" H.—If we discuss all Job's speeches, we shall find nothing spoken wickedly, but only a species of pride, in talking too much of his sufferings, and too little of God's goodness and justice, which he ought to have confessed. S. Greg. xxxii. 3. W.

VER. 35. One. Sept. "Once I have spoken, but I will not add again." H.—I have spoken too much, but I will be more cautious. Heb. "I have spoken one thing, and I will not answer; (C.) yea, two things, but I will go no farther." Many of my observations may be too strong, as I am not perfectly aware what may be the designs of Providence in my regard. H.

CHAP. XL.

Of the power of God in the behemoth and the leviathan.

AND the Lord answering Job out of the whirlwind, said:

2 Gird up thy loins like a man; I will ask thee, and do thou tell me.

3 Wilt thou make void my judgment: and condemn me, that thou mayst be justified?

4 And hast thou an arm like God, and canst thou thunder with a voice like him?

5 Clothe thyself with beauty, and set thyself up on high, and be glorious, and put on goodly garments.

6 Scatter the proud in thy indignation, and behold every arrogant man, and humble him.

7 Look on all that are proud, and confound them, and crush the wicked in their place.

8 Hide them in the dust together, and plunge their faces into the pit.

9 Then I will confess that thy right hand is able to save thee.

10 Behold behemoth whom I made with thee, he eateth grass like an ox.

CHAP. XL. VER. 3. Judgment. Job had frequently acknowledged that God could not be in the wrong. But he had expressed himself in too forcible language, of which God makes him, as it were, ashamed. C.—Sept. “rejecit thee not my decision? yea, dost thou think that I have judged thee in a different manner, in order that thou mayst appear just?” H.

VER. 6. Scatur. Sept. is shorter: (C.) “Send angels or messengers in wrath, and humble every insulting person. 7. Extinguish the proud, destroy the wicked at once. 8. Hide them in the earth together, and fill their faces with shame.” H.

VER. 8. Pit, or grave. Cause the earth to swallow them up, and I will confess thy power. C.

VER. 10. Behemoth; the elephant, (Ch.) “as some think.” Prot. marg. H.—This is the most common opinion, though Sanchez explains it of the bull; and Bochart, after Beza and Diodati, declares in favour of the hippopotamus, (C.) or “river horse.” Parkhurst even thinks Bochart has proved this “to a demonstration.” The sea or river horse, (H.) is an amphibious animal, (C.) found in the Nile and Indus, and said to have the feet of an ox and the teeth of a boar, but not quite so sharp, while the neighing, back, mane, and tail, resemble those of a horse. Its hide, when dry, is said to resist even a musket-ball. Button. Diet.—We find a good description of this animal in Watson, p. 91. But the plural Behemoth, female (H.) “beasts,” seems more applicable to the elephant, on account of its great size, as it is designated by θήρ, or Bellua, by the Greek and Roman authors. Suidas. 1 Mac. vi. 85. Pliny viii. 8.—It may have received the name of elephant from (C.) αἶψα, “to lead or teach,” (H.) on account of its great sagacity and strength. All that Job says of behemoth, may be well explained of it. The Fathers have supposed that the devil is meant: but we stick to the literal sense. C.—He may, however, (H.) have been hinted at by this name, (W.) as well as by that of leviathan. Houbigant.—With thee, on the same day, or as well as thee. Amama.—Grass. The elephant does so, and is by no means savage. C.—Sept. “Yet, behold, near thee wild beasts, equal to oxen, eat grass.” H.—The spontaneous productions of the earth, and branches of trees, afford the principal sustenance to satisfy the prodigious stomach of the elephant; which is frequently twelve feet high, and of a dark colour. A sword can scarcely pierce it in the back or sides. It has small eyes, eight teeth, and two tusks; which last are sometimes above a hundred weight each, and being cast every tenth year, (Button) afford ivory. The proboscis serves it instead of hands to collect the smallest grain, or to defend itself. H.—The female goes with young a whole year, and the duration of its life is generally supposed to be above a hundred. Elephants inhabit warm climates, and were formerly much used in war, to carry wooden towers, from which twenty, or even thirty, men might throw darts. 1 Mac. vi. 37. Button.—If this greatest and most temperate of all beasts be overcome by the unicorn, or led by the nose, how much more will God enable man to overcome the devil! W.

VER. 11. Loins. The towers were fastened here by an iron chain.—Belly. Yet it is nowhere so easily wounded. 1 Mac. vi. 45. Pliny viii. 20.—Hence some would translate Heb. “and its pain in the belly,” (C.) as it is only subject to an inflammation and flux; profluvium alvi. Pliny. Ælian xvii. 44.—But the original rather denotes the parts of generation, which lie concealed, (Arist. anim. ii. 1. and v. 2.) and are styled the strength. Gen. xlix. 3. Deut. xxi. 17.

VER. 12. Tail, which is very small, and without hair. C.—Vavassor rather thinks “the trunk” is meant. D.

VER. 13. Gristle. Heb. again, “bones.” C.—Sept. “back-bone, like cast iron.”

VER. 14. Beginning, or prince. H.—The elephant may be considered as the king of beasts for strength, agility, gratitude, longevity, &c. None approaches so near to man. Pliny viii. 1. C. Lipsius, 1 ep. 50. Amama.—Sword; which is the rhinoceros, killing the elephant under the belly with its horn; (Pliny viii. 20. Grot.) or God seems to have entrusted his sword to the elephant, for the destruction of his enemies. Nothing can withstand its fury, as it overturns houses and trees with its trunk. Jur. C.

11 His strength is in his loins, and his force in the navel of his belly.

12 He setteth up his tail like a cedar, the sinews of his testicles are wrapped together.

13 His bones are like pipes of brass, his gristle like plates of iron.

14 He is the beginning of the ways of God, he who made him, will apply his sword.

15 To him the mountains bring forth grass: there all the beasts of the field shall play.

16 He sleepeth under the shadow, in the covert of the reed, and in moist places.

17 The shades cover his shadow, the willows of the brook shall compass him about.

18 Behold, he will drink up a river, and not wonder, and he trusteth that the Jordan may run into his mouth.

19 In his eyes, as with a hook, he shall take him, and bore through his nostrils with stakes.

20 Canst thou draw out the leviathan with a hook, or canst thou tie his tongue with a cord?

21 Canst thou put a ring in his nose, or bore through his jaw with a buckle?

VER. 15. Play. No animal is of a milder nature. It never attacks, unless in its own defence. When a crowd of other beasts obstruct its passage, it removes them quietly with its proboscis. Pliny vi. 9. &c.

VER. 16. Places, inasmuch that Ælian (iv. 24.) styles it a “beast of the marshes.” It is fabulous that it is forced to sleep against a tree, as if it could not rise without much difficulty. C.—Sept. (14) “This is the beginning or chief (αρχη) of the creation of the Lord, being made for his angels to play with, or beat. Departing to the craggy rock, it has made sport for the quadrupeds in the field. It sleepeth under all sorts of trees; near the reed and papyrus, and the bottom, or ox-herb.” H.

VER. 18. Wonder. Heb. “make haste,” taking time to render it muddy. Ælian xiv. 44.—It can drink a great deal at once, and then abstain for a week. C.—Run. Heb. “he may draw.” Sept. “may knock at his mouth” (H.) in vain, (C.) as long as it can breathe by holding its trunk out of the water. Arist. ix. 46.—Theod. in the Sept. “If there should be an inundation, it shall not perceive. It confideth that, or when, the Jordan shall knock at its mouth. He shall take it by its eye; laying snares, he shall bore [its] nose.” H.

VER. 19. Stakes. Serpents attack the eyes of the elephant, and sometimes drag it by the trunk into the deep, where it is drowned. Pliny viii. 12. Solin xxxviii.—Others read with an interrogation: “Shall one take it?” &c. Will any one dare to attack it openly? The elephant is taken by stratagem, either in pits covered with a little earth, or by a tame elephant in an enclosure, and (C.) lying on her back to receive the male. Arist. anim. v. 2.—When he has entered, the gate is shut, and the animal is tamed by hunger; being thus taken by his eyes. Judith x. 17. Chal. “They pierce his nostrils with bands.” Thus other animals are led about, (v. 21) and the elephant might be so treated in those days; though of this we have no account. C.—Prot. “his nose pierce through snares;” or marg. “will any bore his nose with a gin?” Here they conclude this chapter, which commences C. xxxix. 31. in Heb. But the Sept. agree with us. H.

VER. 20. Leviathan: the whale, or some sea monster. Ch.—Prot. marg. “or a whirlpool.” H.—But some animal is designated; and Bochart understands the crocodile, which agrees very well with the context. The Thalmudists also say that the calbush is a small fish, which gets into the throat of the leviathan. They mean probably the ichneumon, which kills the crocodile by that means. Leviathan, “the winding serpent,” (C.) often denotes the dragon or crocodile, (Ps. ciii. 26. Isai. xxvii. 1.) which frequents the Nile. H.—It can live as well by land as under water, (Watson, p. 293) and hence may be translated, (H.) “the coupled dragon.” Parkhurst.—Moses mentions the choled, (Lev. xi. 29.) which the Sept. and most others translate, “the land crocodile;” but what could induce the Prot. “to render it tortoise, we are at a loss to determine.” Crocodiles lay about sixty eggs, like those of geese, in the sand, the warmth of which soon hatches them. Their bodies are covered with scales, which are scarcely penetrable, except under the belly; and they are between twenty and thirty feet in length, running very fast, straight forward, though their feet be short, and they cannot turn easily. They have several rows of sharp teeth, which enter one within another, and their throat is very wide. Button.—The same word may however denote whales, (Parkhurst) which are the greatest fishes with which man is acquainted. H.—They may also be styled coupled dragons, because many smaller fishes accompany them, and they are well protected by scales, &c. M.—This huge fish, perhaps the whale, representing the devil, is subject to God. W.—Cord. The crocodile may be taken, but with the utmost hazard; though the Tentyrites attacked it without fear. C. iii. 8. Herodotus (ii. 70.) says it may be caught with a hook, baited with hog’s flesh, while the fisher has a pig grunting, at which the crocodile comes open-mouthed. Having swallowed the hook, it is drawn to land, and its small eyes being filled with dirt it is easily slain. But this method was not yet invented, or was deemed too rash in Job’s days.

VER. 21. Buckle. Lit. “bracelet,” (armilla. H.) or ring. Horses were thus 22 Will he make many supplications to thee, or speak soft words to thee?

23 Will he make a covenant with thee, and wilt thou take him to be a servant for ever?

24 Shalt thou play with him as with a bird, or tie him up for thy handmaids?

25 Shall friends cut him in pieces, shall merchants divide him?

26 Wilt thou fill nets with his skin, and the cabins of fishes with his head?

27 Lay thy hand upon him: remember the battle, and speak no more.

28 Behold his hope shall fail him, and in the sight of all he shall be cast down.

CHAP. XLI.

A further description of the leviathan.

I WILL not stir him up, like one that is cruel: for who can resist my countenance?

2 Who hath given me before, that I should repay him? All things that are under heaven are mine.

3 I will not spare him, nor his mighty words, and framed to make supplication.

4 Who can discover the face of his garment? or who can go into the midst of his mouth?

5 Who can open the doors of his face? his teeth are terrible round about.

ornamented, (Virg. vii. 7.) and other beasts led about. But this fierce animal could not be tamed. Heb. "Wilt thou put a rush through its gills, or nose, or pierce its jaw with a thorn?" like those little fishes which are thus brought fresh to market. C.

VER. 22. Will it lay aside its ferocity, (H.) and flatter thee? M.

VER. 24. Handmaids? or little girls. C. Sept. "Wilt thou tie it like a sparrow for thy boy?" H.

VER. 25. Friends. Heb. also, (H.) "enchanters." C.—Frigidus in pratis cantando rumpitur anguis. Virg. Ec. viii.—Sept. "the nations."—Merchants. Sept. "the generation of the Phœnicians (Heb.) of Chanaan, (H.) famous for merchandise, (C.) inasmuch that the name is used for any merchant. H.—Will they suit the crocodile for sale? C.—Its flesh was much liked. Herod, &c.

VER. 26. Cabins, (gurgustium) the reservoir or basket. C.—Prot. "Canst thou fill his skin with barbed prongs, (for which they have now irons) or his head with fish spears?"—But this is hardly the meaning of the original. C. xli. 6. Heb. "wilt thou fill tents with its skin, or the fish net, with its head?" to catch other fish, or to cover thy tent? &c. The skin is very hard, except under the belly. C.—One defended itself against 36 men, who fired at it six times in vain. Herera.—Sept. "a whole fleet collected would not carry off the skin of its tail." H.—They seem to speak of the whale. C.—Theodotion adds, "and its head in fisher boats." H.

VER. 27. Speak. Heb. "do." H.—Thy rash attempt will prove thy ruin. If thou escape, thou wilt not dare to engage again. C.—Sept. "Wilt thou lay thy hand upon it, remembering the battle with its body? and let it not be done any more. 28. Hast thou not seen it, nor been astonished at what has been said?" H.

VER. 28. Down, whoever engages in the conflict, (M.) except the bold citizens of Tentyra. All the rest are terrified at the very sight. Hence the Egyptians have ever given divine honours to the crocodile. C.

CHAP. XLI. VER. 1. I. Heb. "None is so fierce that dare stir it up." H.—Cruel, or rash, like those of Tentyra. C. iii. 8. C.—This monster is terrible to those that flee, while it retires from the pursuer.—But only these people dare to attack it. Pliny viii. 25.—"I will not ask the crocodile to revenge me of my enemies," as some might do in a rage, through impotence. H. Sanchez. M.—Countenance, even though they might overcome the crocodile. God is here speaking. Sept. "Dost thou not fear, since it is ready for thee, (Grabe substitutes, "me.") for who will resist me?" or, "who shall stand against me, and live? All," &c., v. 2. H.—God ruleth not with cruelty, like a tyrant, but with justice, ease, and power. W.

VER. 3. Supplication. This is explained by the Fathers as spoken of the devil. Amama.—But the Heb. may signify, that God will reward each one according to his deserts, and that Job had consequently no reason to complain; or it means, that the strength and beauty of the crocodile should be made known. C.—"I will not conceal his parts, nor his power, nor his comely proportion." Prot. "I will not keep silence on his account, and the word of power shall take pity on his equal." Theod. in Sept. H.

VER. 4. Garment, or the skin. M.—Who shall look steadfastly, or dare to take off its skin?—Mouth. Prot. "Who can come to him with his double bridle?" (H.) though it be of the greatest strength; or, who will enter its jaws, or put bits in them? It is reported that the Tentyrites jump on the crocodile's back, and having thrown a piece of wood into its open mouth, like bits, which

6 His body is like molten shields, shut close up with scales pressing upon one another.

7 One is joined to another, and not so much as and air can come between them:

8 They stick one to another, and they hold one another fast, and shall not be separated.

9 His sneezing is like the shining of fire, and his eyes like the eyelids of the morning.

10 Out of his mouth go forth lamps, like torches of lighted fire.

11 Out of his nostrils goeth smoke, like that of a pot heated and boiling.

12 His breath kindleth coals, and a flame cometh forth out of his mouth.

13 In his neck strength shall dwell, and want goeth before his face.

14 The members of his flesh cleave one to another: he shall send lightnings against him, and they shall not be carried to another place.

15 His heart shall be as hard as a stone, and as firm as a smith's anvil.

16 When he shall raise him up, the angels shall fear, and being affrighted, shall purify themselves.

17 When a sword shall lay at him, it shall not be able to hold, nor a spear, nor a breast-plate.

18 For he shall esteem iron as straw, and brass as rotten wood.

they hold with both hands, they conduct it to the river side, and kill it. Pliny viii. 25.—Sept. "Who would enter the wrinkles of his breast, (C.) or the folds of its coat of arms?" which may allude to the almost impenetrable scales of the leviathan. H.—Sym. "Who will enter the folds of its scales?" The crocodile can open its mouth so wide as to swallow a heifer, or to let a man stand upright. C.—Each jaw is furnished with thirty-six teeth. Vansleb.

VER. 6. Body. Sept. "entrails are like brazen shields." Prot. "His scales are his pride shut up together, as with a close seal." H.

VER. 9. Sneezing. When the whale breathes, it causes the water to foam. Pineda. M.—The eyes of the crocodile are also (H.) very bright, when out of the water. Pliny viii. 25. They appear first, and therefore were used as an hieroglyphic of Aurora, (Horus i. 65.) or of the morning star. H.—Syr. "His look is brilliant." Arab. "The apples of his eyes are fiery, and his eyes are like the brightness of the morning." Sept. "like Aurora." C.—Olaus (xxi. 5.) says, "that the eyes of the whale shine at night, . . . and at a distance, are taken by fishermen for great fires."

VER. 10. Fire, when they spout water, (M.) or pursue their prey open-mouthed. This description is extremely poetical, like that of anger. 2 K. xxii. 9. C.

VER. 11. Smoke; breath, or streams of water sent upwards.

VER. 12. Breath, like bellows, v. 10. M.

VER. 13. Neck. Some deny that the crocodile has any, being formed like a lizard. But it is a dispute about words. The animal turns with difficulty, so that Thomas Gage assures us he escaped one by going in different directions.—Want. It ravages a whole country. Heb. "fear." C.—Prot. "sorrow is turned into joy before him;" which seems strange. Sept. "destruction runs before him." H.—The poets place fear, carnage, &c., in the train of Mars. C.

VER. 14. Place; though people may shoot at him, they will make no impression. C. xl. 20. 26. H.—If God send his thunderbolts at him, the monster must however perish. C.—Sym. "His flesh being cast for him, as in the foundry, (molten) is immovable." H.—Yet God destroyeth him whom man cannot overcome. W.

VER. 15. Stone. Pineda understands this of the whale's heart. Others suppose that it alludes to its cruel and fearless temper. M.—The Arabs call a valiant man, "heart of stone." C.—Smiths. Prot. "as a piece of the nether millstone," (H.) which must be larger and more compact than that which is above. C.—Sept. "He hath stood immovable as an anvil." H.

VER. 16. Angels. Elim. That is, the mighty, the most valiant, shall fear this monstrous fish, and in their fear shall seek to be purified, (Ch.) by contrition. Sanchez.—R. Levi has given a ridiculous exposition, which is adopted by Sa (Amama) and others, (H. see Ezech. ii. 7. Arist. iv. prob. 32.) as the natural consequence of fear. C. M.—The Fathers refer this to the fall of Lucifer, when the other angels might tremble for their own safety. H.—Angels with reverent fear honour God's power, and his most perfect servants are filled with apprehensions at his judgments; as the most valiant are terrified at the sight of this huge fish. W.—Sept. "If he turn, there is fear among the wild quadrupeds, jumping on the land." Heb. "When he raiseth up himself, the mighty are afraid: by reason of breakings, they purify themselves." Prot. or "spoil themselves," (C.) expecting nothing but certain death. Amama.

VER. 17. Plate. Prot. "habergeon." The precise nature of these arms is not known. C.—Neither offensive or defensive weapons can avail. M.—All agree that the crocodile can be pierced only under the belly. G.

19 The archer shall not put him to flight, the stones of the sling to him are like stubble.

20 As stubble will he esteem the hammer, and he will laugh him to scorn who shaketh the spear.

21 The beams of the sun shall be under him, and he shall strew gold under him like mire.

22 He shall make the deep sea to boil like a pot, and shall make it as when ointments boil.

23 A path shall shine after him, he shall esteem the deep as growing old.

24 There is no power upon earth that can be compared with him who was made to fear no one.

25 He beholdeth every high thing, he is king over all the children of pride.

CHAP. XLII.

Job submits himself. God pronounces in his favour. Job offers sacrifice for his friends. He is blessed with riches and children, and dies happily.

THEN Job answered the Lord, and said:

2 I know that thou canst do all things, and no thought is hid from thee.

3 Who is this that hideth counsel without know-

VER. 19. Are. Lit. "are turned into stubble," as in Heb. H.—They have no more effect. M.

VER. 20. Hammer. Sept. ἄσπερα, means also, "the bottom of a rock." This would not overwhelm the whale; as some are represented like floating islands. Prot. "darts." H.—Chal. "axe." Others have, "the ballista;" an instrument to throw stones. C.

VER. 21. Under him. He shall not value the beams of the sun: and gold to him shall be like mire. Ch. M.—Heb. "sharp stones (or potsherds) are under him; he spreadeth (or lieth upon) sharp-pointed things, as upon the mire." H.—He is not afraid of being hurt.

VER. 22. When. Heb. "a pot of ointment." This boils out very much. C.—The flesh of the crocodile has also the smell of musk; (Bochart) and Peter Martyr asserts, that Columbus found some in America, which plunged into the water, and left behind them the odour of musk or castor. When they are wounded, they give the same perfume to the sea, or rather to the waters, where they abide. The Hebrews style all deep rivers and lakes, seas. C.—Crocodiles were kept in the lake Moeris, being adored and honoured as gods. Herod. ii. 69.—Sept. "He deems the sea as a vase of ointment; (28) and the Tartarus of the abyss, like a prisoner." Theod. adds, "He hath considered the abyss as a walk."

VER. 23. The deep as growing old. Growing hoary, as it were, with the froth which he leaves behind him. Ch.—The Vulg. has well expressed the force of the original, and shews the rapidity with which the crocodile moves. C.—Prot. "one would think the deep to be hoary." The devil transforms himself into an angel (H.) of light. D.

VER. 24. Power. Heb. and Sept. "none like him on earth," for bulk.—One. Sept. "made to be played with, or beaten, by my angels." H.

VER. 25. He is king, &c. He is superior in strength to all that are great and strong amongst living creatures: mystically it is understood of the devil, who is king over all the proud. Ch. S. Greg. xxiv. 4. and 17. W.—Hence Job perceived that God had also now permitted this cruel foe to exercise a dominion over him, and to pull him from his high station, though innocent. H.—This would henceforward be more frequently the order of Providence, and therefore he expresses his entire resignation. C. xlii. Houbigant.—Pride: the strongest and fiercest animals. H.—The crocodile has been seen encountering even the elephant, and gaining the victory. He is king of all fishes. Sept. "of all in the waters." Chal. "of all the sons of the mountains;" or Theod. "of arrogance." This may particularly denote the Egyptians, as the crocodile was one of their gods; and people are often styled after them. Num. xxi. 29. Jer. xlviii. 46. C.—Pharao even means "a crocodile," in Arabic. Bochart, Anim. p. ii. b. v. 16.—He is styled simply, the proud. Ps. lxxxviii. 11. C.—The pride of the Egyptians was notorious. Eze. xxxii. 12. C.

CHAP. XLII. VER. 2. I know. So the Keri orders us to translate, with all the ancient versions, as the Heb. text has, "thou knowest;" which Prof. Chapelow and Schultens deem more "sublime," though one would think it was hardly "sense." Kennicott.—Hid. Heb. "of thine can be hindered." All thy orders must be obeyed. It is in vain to keep silence: (C. xxxix. 34.) I will confess openly thy justice and power. H.—He acknowledges his error, in not having before spoken enough of a just Providence. W.

VER. 3. Who. Heb. "Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge?" Prot. This seems to allude to the words of God. C. xxxvii. 2. Each of my friends has only rendered the ways of Providence more obscure, and I myself have not perfectly understood them. H.—Unwisely. See C. xxxix. 35. W. D.—Heb. "without knowledge, things wonderful to me, which I knew not." H.—Now I comprehend that thou didst not afflict me, but hast given me into the hands of the enemy, as thou wilt hereafter do others of the greatest virtue, that their patience may shine the brighter, and be rewarded. I need inquire no farther, now I see thy design plainly, v. 5. He does not accuse himself of any sin or false assertion, but acknowledges his infirmity in not having understood this before, v. 6. Houbigant.—Sept. "I have been told what I knew not, things ledge? Therefore I have spoken unwisely, and things that above measure exceeded my knowledge.

4 Hear, and I will speak: I will ask thee, and do thou tell me.

5 With the hearing of the ear I have heard thee, but now my eye seeth thee.

6 Therefore, I reprehend myself, and do penance in dust and ashes.

7 And after the Lord had spoken these words to Job, he said to Eliphaz, the Themanite: My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends, because you have not spoken the thing that is right before me, as my servant, Job, hath.

8 Take unto you, therefore, seven oxen, and seven rams, and go to my servant, Job, and offer for yourselves a holocaust: and my servant, Job, shall pray for you: his face I will accept, that folly be not imputed to you: for you have not spoken right things before me, as my servant Job hath.

9 So Eliphaz, the Themanite, and Baldad, the Suhite, and Sophar, the Naamathite, went and did as the Lord great and wonderful, of which I was not apprized." H.—Who can deny God's providence! D.

VER. 5. Seeth thee. Some have thought that God now manifested himself from the cloud. Euseb. Dem. i. 4. Titelman, &c. But all now agree that he only enlightened his understanding, and made known his designs more clearly. C.—Job now perceived that he had spoken too boldly, in saying, Hear, and I will speak, &c., v. 4. The rest of this book is in prose. T.

VER. 6. Reprehend. Heb. and Sept. "vilify." H.—I recall the obscure expression which has occasioned my friends to mistake. D.—Penance. Heb. "groan." Sept. "pine away, I look upon myself as dust and ashes." Such are the sentiments which every one will entertain the nearer he approaches to the divine Majesty. H.—I no longer assert my innocence, but wait patiently in my present forlorn condition, till thou shalt be pleased to dispose of me. How much would the reputation and authority of Job sink, if some of his assertions had been destitute of truth, particularly as the sacred author does not mention which they were! But God exculpates his servant, v. 8. Houbigant.—Chal. "I have despised my riches, and I am comforted with respect to my children, who are now reduced to dust and ashes." I find a consolation in submitting patiently to my sufferings, which I may have deserved on account of my unguarded speeches. C.—Job waits not for God's answer, v. 4. He at once feels an interior light, and is resigned. H.—He had defended the truth against men: now, with more resignation, he is content to suffer, and does penance for himself and others. W.

VER. 7. Two friends. It is astonishing that Eliu is not also reprehended, as he was no better than the rest. Some answer, that God had passed sentence upon him first. Others maintain, that he spoke with greater dignity of God's judgments, and that his ignorance was blameless; while others remark, that he was connected with some of the three friends, or only came accidentally to enter into the debate. God gives sentence in favour of Job, though with some reproof for his manner of speaking.—As. They had maintained false doctrines, and shewed a want of due respect and compassion for their friend; (T.) whereas Job's assertions were true. C.—How then can he be accused of denying the divine justice, or of speaking disrespectfully of Providence? God seemed to interrogate him on this account, though he approved of his sentiments, because some might draw such inferences from his words as all his friends did. But Job entertained no such ideas. He was not guilty of such folly, v. 8. Sept. "Thou hast sinned, and thy two friends, for you have spoken in my presence nothing true like my servant Job."

VER. 8. Offer. Sept. "Thou shalt make an oblation, ἑρπύρα, for you." H.—Yet holocausts seem to have been the only species of sacrifice before Moses. The number seven, has always been in a manner sacred; (C.) being doubled, it shews the greatness of the offence. S. Greg. W.—Job was to present these victims to God, (C.) as the priest and mediator, (D.) of whom God approved. He officiated for his family, (C.) and was the most honourable person there. H.—It seems Job was not present when God gave this injunction; perhaps some time after their debates. C.—Pray. Behold the efficacy of the prayers of the saints, even while upon earth. How much greater will it be, when their charity is greater and unfeigned! H.—The many sacrifices would not have sufficed, if Job had not joined his prayer, as S. Chrys. (or 5 con. Judeus) observes. His mediation did not derogate from God's mercy, under the law of nature; nor does that of other men injure Christ's, under the law of grace, 2 Cor. i. 11. We have here also a proof that both sacrifice and the devotion of the offerer, have their distinct effects; opus operatum, and opus operantis, as the schoolmen speak. Thus Job was honourably acquitted, while his friends were justly rebuked. Eliu needed no express condemnation; as what God says to one, must be applied to another in the same circumstances. C. xxxiii. 14. Protestants are therefore inexcusable, who preach a doctrine not only condemned in their fellows, Luther, &c., but long before in ancient heretics; as the justification by faith alone was in the apostles' time, the rejection of ceremonies in baptism, of confirmation and penance, in the Novatians, &c. See S. Cyp. iv. ep. 2. W.—

had spoken to them, and the Lord accepted the face of Job.

10 The Lord also was turned at the penance of Job, when he prayed for his friends. And the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before.

11 And all his brethren came to him, and all his sisters, and all that knew him before, and they eat bread with him in his house: and bemoaned him, and comforted him upon all the evil that God had brought upon him. And every man gave him one ewe, and one ear-ring of gold.

12 And the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning. And he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses.

13 And he had seven sons, and three daughters.

14 And he called the name of one, Dies, and the name of the second, Cassia, and the name of the third, Cornustibii.

15 And there were not found in all the earth, womer so beautiful as the daughters of Job: and their father gave them inheritance among their brethren.

16 And Job lived after these things, a hundred and forty years, and he saw his children, and his children's children, unto the fourth generation, and he died an old man, and full of days.

Face. Sept. "For I would not accept his face, and if it were not on his account, I had surely destroyed you. For you have not said to me any thing good (Rom. truc), against (or concerning, κατά) my servant Job." They acted both against charity and truth. H.—Before. Prot. "of me the thing which is right." The words underlined were not so in the earlier edition by Barker, printer to James I. (1613) where some of the marg. translations are also omitted, v. 14, &c. The matter is of no farther consequence, than to shew that alterations have taken place since the days of James I. whose Bible is supposed to be the standard of the English Church. The marginal version is also frequently neglected altogether, (A. 1706) though the authors seem to have looked upon it as equally probable with that in the text. Prof. H.

VER. 10. Penance. Heb. "return." He resolved to restore him to his former prosperous condition, while he prayed for those who had so cruelly exercised his patience. C.—Prot. and Vatable, "the Lord turned the captivity of Job:" so any great distress may be styled, though Job was in a manner abandoned to the power and bondage of satan. Sept. "But the Lord gave an increase to Job, and while he was praying for his friends, He forgave them their sin. And," &c. H.—Twice, excepting children, who were living (W.) with God. Rabbins. S. Greg. &c.—Some also include the years of Job's life, but that is not clear, (see Spanheim, c. 7. C.) though not improbable; as he might very well live twice as long as he had done, if we suppose that he was about (H.) 50 when he was so much distressed (Petau); and thus arrived at the age of 140, v. 16. H.

VER. 11. Brethren. Who had before shamefully abandoned him. C. vi. 13. C.—Bemoaned. Lit. "shaked their heads at him," (H.) out of pity, (M.) or astonishment, (T. C.) at his fallen state, and at the present change for the better. They helped to restore him to affluence, in conformity with the will of God, who caused their presents to multiply. The kindred and friends of Job were undoubtedly numerous. H.—Ewe. Kesita, "lamb," as most of the ancients agree, (Spanheim) or a piece of money, (Bochart) marked with the figure of a lamb. Grot. See Gen. xxiii. 19. C.—Ear-ring. Heb. Nezem, an ornament (H.) "for the nose," still very common in the East. Sym. adds, "it was unadorned," (C.) or plain. Sept. "a piece of gold worth four drachms, and not coined," ἀσσυρι. H.—Olester supposes that the nose was perforated, like the ear. But the ornament would thus be very inconvenient, and we may rather conclude that it hung down from the forehead upon the nose. S. Jer. in Eze. xvi. Pineda.

VER. 12. Asses. Sept. "droves of," &c., which would greatly increase the number.

VER. 14. Dies, &c. "Day . . cassia . . and horn of antimony." Heb.—Femima . . Ketsiha . . Keren hapua. This last may signify (H.) "horn of change," (Pagn.) in allusion to Job's different states. M. D.—Sometimes we find the Latin names retained, and at other times translated. It would perhaps be as well to give their force uniformly in English, or rather to insert the original terms, if they could be now properly expressed. But that is impossible. Prot. Femima, "handsome as the day." Ketzia, "superficies, angle, or cassia." Keren-happuch, "the horn or child of beauty." The marginal explanations are given at least in the edit. Edinb. 1787. H.—Cassia, an aromatic herb, which is perhaps not now to be found in Europe, Matthiol. in Dios. i. 12.—The Arabs like to give such names to their children. Spanheim, Hist. Job.—Cornustibii, (Heb. Puc) means a sort of paint, used to blacken the eyelids, (4 K. ix. 30.) or a precious stone, Isai. liv. 11. Chal. "brilliant as an emerald." She was so styled, on account of her great beauty, (C.) in which she was not inferior to her two sisters. Sept. "Horn of Amalthea," (H.) or of plenty, (C.) which is not an approbation of the fable, but to show the abundance which Job now enjoyed. Nicetas.—Cassia might remind him of the bad smells to which he had been exposed. M. T.

VER. 15. Daughters. Sept. Alex. adds, "and sons."—Brethren. This was contrary to the custom of the Jews, (Num. xxvii. 8.) but conformable to the Roman law, and to the Koran. Sur. 4. C.

VER. 16. Years, in all, as Judith is said to have dwelt in the house of her husband 105 years; though it is agreed that she only lived that space of time. H.—Authors are much divided about the length of Job's life. Some suppose that he was afflicted with the leprosy at the age of 70, for several months, (T.)

(678)

or for a whole year, (C.) or for seven, (Salien) and that he lived twice as long after his re-establishment, in all 210. C. T. Sept. "Job lived after his chastisement 170," (Grabe substitutes 140 years. Then he marks with an obel as redundant) "but all the years which he lived were 248;" and adds from Theod. "And Job saw his sons and their children, even the fourth generation." H.— The old Vulg. had also 248 years; while some Greek copies read 740. But Grotius thinks the life of Job was not extended beyond 200. Petau and Spanheim say 189, (C.) and Pineda 210, or rather 280, years. Yet the life of man, in the days of Moses, his contemporary, was not often longer than 120; so that if we allow Job 140, he would be an old man, and might see the fourth generation, v. 10. H.— The Greeks celebrate his festival on the 6th, the Latins on the 10th of May. Pineda.—Days. Here a long addition is found in the Greek, Arab, and old Vulg.; and Theodotion has also inserted it in his version, as it seems to contain a true and ancient tradition, (see Eus. prep. ix. 25.) though the Fathers have properly distinguished it from the inspired text. It stands thus in the Alex. Sept. with an obel prefixed: "But it is written, that he shall be raised again, with those whom the Lord will restore to life." He, this man, as it is translated from the Syriac book, lived in the land of Ausites, (Hus.) on the borders of Idumea, and of Arabia, and was before called Jobab. But marrying an Arabian woman, he begot a son by name Ennon. But his father was Zareth, a descendant of the sons of Esau, and his mother was Bosora; (Arab, a native of Bosra) so that he was the 5th (Arab the 6th) from Abraham. Now these were the kings who reigned in Edom; over which country he also ruled. First, Balac, son of Sempchor; (others have Beer) and the name of his city was Den-naba. After Balac, Jobab, who is called Job. After him, Assom, a leader from the country of Theman. After this man, Adad, son of Barad, who slew Madian in the plain of Moab; and the name of his city was Gethaim. But the friends who came to him were, Eliphaz [son of Sophan] of the sons of Esau, king of the Themanites; Baldad, [son of Amnon, of Chobar] of the Auchiite tyrant; (Grabe substitutes the tyrant of the Saueheans, as they call our Suhites) Sophar, king of the Mineans. What is marked with crotchets, (H.) has been probably taken from Theodotion. See the Greek Catena. What follows occurs in the Alex. MS. C.—"[Theman, son of Eliphaz, he, as the Syriac book is rendered, lived in the land of Ausites, on the borders of the Euphrates. His former name was Jobab, but Zareth was his father, from the sun rising,] or eastern country. H.—Job might very well be the 5th or 6th from Abraham, if he were a contemporary with Moses, as Levi and Anan would live at the same time with Rahuel and Zare; (See 1 Par. i. 35. 44.) so that this tradition agrees with history. But what is said of the Syriac version is not so certain. C.—Some think the Syriac or Arabic was the original text, as the Greek seems to indicate, ὁ υἱὸς ἐλφιαζ ἐκ τῆς συριακῆς βίβλου, ἐν μέν γὰρ κατακλῶν, &c. The passage at the end, where this is repeated, may be an interpolation, as the latter part seems rather to belong to Job. For how could Theman have both Eliphaz and Zareth for his father? Grabe, therefore, marks it as such. It would be too long for us to transcribe (H.) the praises which the Fathers have given to Job, and the resemblance which they have discovered between him and Jesus Christ. See Heb. iv. 15 and xiii. 12. Tert. patient. S. Chrys. hom. xxxiv. in Matt. S. Ambrose, in Pa. xxxvii. 21. observes, that his behaviour on the dunghill was the greatest condemnation of satan, who fell by pride, though so highly favoured. C.—Besides the literal sense of this book, which displays the trials and victories of Job, we may consider him as a lively figure of Christ; who was perfectly innocent, and yet a man of sorrows; we may raise our minds to the contemplation of the greater glory which will attend the bodies of the just, after the resurrection; and, above all, we may discover lessons of morality, enforcing the observance of every virtue, and particularly of patience and resignation. S. Greg. &c. W.—The books of Machabees, which are the only remaining pieces of sacred history, might have been here inserted, as they are in Calmet's edition, that so all the historical part might come together. But it is more common to place those books after the prophets. They only relate a few of the transactions which took place during the 400 or 500 years preceding the Christian era. The rest must be borrowed from Josephus, or from profane authors. It would however, be proper to read those books, and to have an idea of that period, before we attempt to explain the prophecies. H.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS.

THE PSALMS are called by the Hebrews, TEHILLIM; that is, hymns of praise. The author, of a great part of them at least, was king David; but many are of opinion, that some of them were made by Asaph and others, whose names are prefixed in the titles. Ch.—These, however, are not unquestionably of divine authority, though they deserve to be respected. C.—S. Jerom (ad Cyprian) says: "Let us be convinced that those labour under a mistake, who suppose that David was the author of all the Psalms, and not those whose names appear in the titles." Paine is not, therefore, the first who has made this discovery. Watson, 2 Par. xxix. 30.—Psalm lxxvi. compared with Ps. xxxviii. lxx. xxi. cxv. cxlvi. and cxlv. seems favourable to this opinion, (C. T. &c.) which is contrary to S. Ambrose, &c. The matter is not of great moment, as all confess that the 150 Psalms were dictated by the Holy Ghost. D.—S. Aug. (de Civ. Dei. xii. 14.) attributes all the Psalms to David; and it seems best to adhere to this opinion, as it is most generally received. M.—Our Saviour cites the six. Psalm as belonging to David, (Matt. xvii. 44.) agreeably to the title; and the 2d Psalm is also attributed to him, by the apostles, (Act. iv. 25.) though it have no title at all, no more than the first. H.—It has generally been asserted, that when a Psalm is in this position, it must be referred to the author who was mentioned last. But Bellarmine calls this in question; and the titles of themselves afford but a very precarious argument, either to know the author or the real import of the Psalm. C.—S. Jerom himself (ad Paulin.) seems to suppose that David was the writer of all the Psalms, (W.) and that he has left us compositions which may vie with those of the most celebrated pagan bards. In effect, nothing could excel the harmony of these divine hymns, to judge even from a translation. Fleury.—What then would they be in the original? The difficulty of coming to a perfect knowledge of the author's meaning, arises chiefly from the variety of translations and commentaries, which have been more numerous on this work than any other. To examine all minutely, would require more volumes than our present limits will allow. The version which we have to explain, is not that which S. Jerom made from the Heb. and which possesses the same intrinsic merit as the rest of his works: but the Church has declared authentic the holy doctor's corrected (H.) version from S. Lucian, (Bellar. T.) or from the Sept. as the people had been accustomed to sing the psalter in that manner; and it would have been difficult for them to learn another. C.—A critical examination would show, that the Sept. have not so often deviated from the original as some would pretend. See Berthier, &c. Pellican extols the fidelity of our version on the Psalms, though he was a Prot. Ward, Err. p. 6.—When therefore we offer a different version, we would not insinuate that the Vulg. is therefore to be rejected. The copiousness of the Heb. language, (H.) and on some occasions the uncertainty of its roots, or precise import, (Simon. Crit.) ought to make every one diffident in pronouncing peremptorily on such subjects. Let us rather adhere to the decision of the Church, when it is given on any particular text; and when she is silent, let us endeavour to draw the streams of life from our Saviour's fountains, and read for our improvement in virtue. H.—No exhortations could be more cogent, than those which we may find in the Psalms. They contain the sum of all the other sacred books, as the Fathers agree. S. Aug. S. Bas &c. To understand them better, we must reflect upon what key or string they each play. Expositors discover ten such strings of this mysterious harp: 1. God; 2. his works; 3. Providence; 4. the peculiar people of the Jews; 5. Christ; 6. his Church; 7. true worship; 8. David; 9. the end of the world; 10. a future life. On some of these subjects the Psalm principally turns. The titles, composed by Esdras, or the Sept. (W.) or by some other, (C.) will often point out the subject; and if that be not the case, the context and other parts of Scripture will (W.) commonly (H.) do it. W.—The greatest stress must be laid on these. C.—An intimate acquaintance with the history of David, and with the Jewish and Christian religion, will also be of essential service to enable us to penetrate the hidden treasures contained in these most heavenly canticles. H.—David excels all the pagans in point of antiquity, as he lived 100 years before Homer. His natural genius led him to follow the pursuits of poetry and music; (1 K. xvi. 23.) and God inspired him to compose these poems, as works in metre are more easily remembered, and make a more pleasing impression upon the heart. Hence Moses and other prophets adopted the same plan, both in the Old and the New Testament. The pious king not being permitted to build the temple, made nevertheless all necessary preparations for it; and among the rest, procured 288 masters of music to train up 4000 singers. 1 Par. xvii. 25. He foresaw that these Psalms would be of service, not only on the Jewish festivals, but also in the Christian Church. (Ps. lvi. 10. &c.) gathered from all nations, (W.) among whom he sings by the mouths (H.) of the clergy, who are commanded daily to sing or recite some of these Psalms. W.—The psalter takes its name from an instrument of ten strings, resembling the Greek Λ, (Ven. Bede) and sounding from above, to insinuate that we may (W.) here learn to observe (H.) all the decalogue, and to aim at heaven. If difficulties present themselves in the perusal of these sacred writings, we must remember not to trust to private interpretation, (2 Pet. i.) but to the doctrine of the Church, (Jo. xiv. 16. 1 Cor. xii.) which we may find in the works of the holy Fathers, (S. Aug. Doct.) and exercise ourselves in humility, when any thing occurs above our comprehension. S. Greg. xvii. in Ezec. W.—We must pray with all earnestness to the Father of Lights, and surely no prayers can be more efficacious to obtain what we want, than those which he has here delivered. Whether just or sinners whether in joy or sorrow, we may here find what may be suitable for us. H.—In hoc libro spiritualis Bibliotheca instructa est. Cassiod.

PSALM I.

BEATUS VIR.

The happiness of the just: and the evil state of the wicked.

BLESSED is the man who hath not walked in the counsel of the ungodly, nor stood in the way of sinners, nor sat in the chair of pestilence:

PSALM I. Beatus, &c. Theodoret observes, that this psalm has "no title in Heb.," and some have attributed it to Esdras, when he collected the psalms into one book. But the Compl. Sept. reads, "A psalm for David," "without a title among the Hebrews." The Fathers attribute it to David, and suppose that he speaks particularly of Joseph of Arimathea, or of Jesus Christ; though the Jews refer this high encomium to Josias. Jerom (xvii. 7.) has imitated this psalm, which may be considered as a preface to all the rest, and an abridgment of the whole duty of man. C.—Blessed. Heb. also, Manifold are (H.) "the blessings" (Pagnin) both for time (H.) and eternity. W.—Ungodly, who mind no religion, or a false one. H.—Heb. "inconstant."—Sinners, who are still more obstinate. C.—Pestilence. Heb. "scorners," who are the most dangerous sort of people, boldly deriding all religion, and maintaining atheism. There is a beautiful gradation here observed, showing the fatal consequences of evil company. If the virtuous associate with one even of the least contagious, the infection presently catches him, and he is soon introduced among the more dissolute, where he sops with little remorse, till at last he even glories in his shame, and becomes a champion of iniquity. 1 Cor. xv. 23. H.—These three sorts of wicked people may designate pagans, Jews, and heretics. S. Clem. Strom. ii. S. Jerom. C.—He is on the road to heaven, who has not consented to evil suggestions, nor continued in sin, so as to let impiment. W.

Virtus est vitium fugere, et sapientia prima. Hor. i. ep. 1.

—The suggestion, delight, and consent to sin, are here rejected, as well as every offence against God, ourselves, or our neighbours. Hopper.

VER. 2. Will. He is wholly occupied and delighted in keeping God's commandments. W.—This distinguishes the saint from him who only refrains from 2 *But his will is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he shall meditate day and night.

3 *And he shall be like a tree which is planted near the running waters, which shall bring forth its fruit, in due season.

* Josue i. 8.—* Jerom. xvii. 18.

sin through fear. C.—Qui timet invitus obsequat. S. Amb.—Yet even servile fear is of some service, as it restrains exterior misconduct, and may, in time, give place to filial reverence. H.—Meditate, and put in practice. M.—Night. The Jews studied the books of the law so earnestly from their childhood, that they could recite them as easily as they could tell their own names; (Josep. c. Ap. 2. Deut. vi. 6) and is it not a shame that many Christians should be so negligent, that they have never so much as read the gospels! (C.) though they be eager enough after idle books. The sacred writings are the records of our inheritance. They shew us our true destination, and deserve to be most seriously considered from the beginning to the end. H.

VER. 3. Tree. Probably the palm-tree, the emblem of a long life. Job xxviii. 18. The tree of life is watered by the river of living waters, proceeding from the throne of God, who is the source of all grace. Apoc. xxii. 1. Lu. xxi. 38 Jo. iv. 14. C.—Those who make good use of favours received, are continually supplied with fresh graces. W.—And. In the office book a new verse begins here, though not in Heb. which the Vulg. follows. They were not marked by the sacred penman—Prosper, and he rewarded hereafter, though the just man even among the Jews might be here afflicted. Prosperity was only promised to the nation, as long as it continued faithful. Individuals were in the same condition as Christians. They were to trust in the promises of futurity, though some have very erroneously asserted, that there is no mention of eternal felicity in these holy canticles; (Berthier) Ferrand says, hardly in the Old Testament. C.—All this verse might perhaps be better understood of the tree. "And its leaf... and whatever it shall produce," faciet fructum. H.—Some trees are always covered with leaves, like the palm-tree, &c. M.

And his leaf shall not fall off: and all whatsoever he shall do shall prosper.

4 Not so the wicked, not so: but like the dust, which the wind driveth from the face of the earth.

5 Therefore the wicked shall not rise again in judgment: nor sinners in the council of the just.

6 For the Lord knoweth the way of the just: and the way of the wicked shall perish.

PSALM II.

QUARE FREMUERUNT.

The vain efforts of persecutors against Christ and his Church.

WHY have the Gentiles raged, and the people devised vain things?

2 The kings of the earth stood up, and the princes met together, against the Lord, and against his Christ.

^a Acts iv. 25.—^b Acts xiii. 33. Heb. i. 5. and v. 5.

VER. 4. Not so. Heb. "but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away." H.—They are inconstant (S. Jer.) in the good resolutions which they sometimes form. H. Job xxi. 18.—The good corn remains, but they are tossed about by every wind, and their memory perishes, with all their children and effects. C.—They yield to the slightest temptation. W.

VER. 5. Again. So as to gain their cause, (Amama) or to make opposition; as the Heb. yakunu, "stand up," with defiance, intimates. H.—They are already judged, (Jo. iii. 18.) and can make no defence; they being separated from the just, like goats. Kimchi (though he is defended by Amama. H.) and some other Jews, falsely asserts that the souls of the wicked will be annihilated, and that only the just Israelites will rise again. Buxtorf. Syn. 1.—But this is very different from the belief of the ancient Jews, who clearly assert the truth respecting future rewards and punishments. 2 Mac. vii. 9. 14. 23. and 36. Wisd. v. 1. Josephus, or 4 Mac. x. See Job, &c.—The Fathers have adduced many such proofs from the other parts of Scripture, which they had read with as much attention as modern critics. C.—Council, (M.) or rather "counsel," as the same word, Boule, is used by the Sept. as v. 1. (C.) though the Heb. hadath, here be different, and mean a council, or assembly. M.—Sept. and Vulg. may be understood in the same sense. H.—Sinners shall be destitute of all hope at the resurrection, and shall be driven from the society of the blessed. W.—They will not even be able to complain, since they had been so often admonished of their impending fate, (Bert.) and would not judge themselves in time. S. Aug. 1 Cor. xi. Acts xxiv. 16. Prot. "They shall not stand," &c. H.

VER. 6. Knoweth, with approbation. There is only one road which leads to heaven: but these men, having sown in the flesh, must reap corruption. Gal. vi. 8. Berthier.—God will reward or punish (W.) all according to their deserts. H.—To some he will thunder out, I never knew you; while others shall hear, Come, &c. Mat. xxv. 34. &c. C.—In this world, things seem to be in a sort of confusion, as the wicked prosper. But, at the hour of death, each will receive a final retribution. Temporal advantages have been dealt out to the wicked for the small and transitory acts of virtue, which scarcely any one can have failed to exercise; as on the other hand, the afflictions of this world have served to purify the elect from venial faults. H.

PSAL. II. Quare. This psalm has no title, and therefore, S. Jerom, after the Jews, considered it as a part of the former. In Acts xiii. 33. some copies have, in the first, others in the second psalm; and Origen testifies that he saw a copy where this and the former psalm were joined together; and he says, the psalms were not distinguished by numbers or letters, as they have been since. We find in some Gr. and Lat. MSS. "a psalm of David." It is certain that he composed it, speaking of the Messiah, (Acts iv. 25. Heb. i. 5.) though some passages may be applied to himself. The Rabbins would restrain it to him entirely; and some Christians have been so much off their guard, as to allow (C.) that it refers to David in the literal sense, and to Christ only in the spiritual; (Lyrar. Grot.) which would destroy the force of the prophecy. David takes occasion, (C.) from the opposition which was made by Saul, (H.) the Philistines, &c. (2 K. v. 7. Joseph. vii. 4.) to his own exaltation, to foretell the similar rage with which many would resist the Messiah. C.—The Philistines, however, had no kings to oppose David, as Kimchi confesses; and we had better refer the whole psalm to Christ. Berthier.

VER. 1. Raged. Heb. "come together with tumult," (Sym.) "loud cries," like a furious army, composed of several nations. H.—Why have the Philistines, &c. assembled to obstruct my reign? or (C.) "why will the Gentiles be troubled, and the tribes meditate vain things?" S. Jer. Pilate, Herod, and the chiefs of the Jews, met to destroy the Messiah; though, on other occasions, they were at variance. H.—Their attempts were fruitless. Their false witnesses could not agree. C.—The priests had, in vain, meditated on the law, since they had not discovered Him who was the end of it. S. Athan. &c.—People of Israel. Acts iv. 27. M.

VER. 2. Kings. Herod and Pilate, (W.) who acted for the Roman emperor.—Princes, of the priests, (H.) Annas and Caiaphas. But all the rage of Gentiles and Jews against Christ was fruitless, (W.) and wicked, (H.) as the attempt of the surrounding nations to dethrone David was, in contradiction to the divine appointment. He is sometimes styled the Christ, or "anointed of the Lord." Ps. xix. 7. But the Chal. has, "to revolt from the Lord, and fight with his Messiah." So that the ancient Jews agreed with us, (C.) and it would be "rash to abandon the interpretation given by S. Peter." S. Jerom.

VER. 3. Us. Let us no longer be subject to the old law, which is abrogated. (S. Aug.) or the enemies of David, and of Christ, encourage one another (C.) to 3 Let us break their bonds asunder: and let us cast away their yoke from us.

4 He that dwelleth in heaven shall laugh at them: and the Lord shall deride them.

5 Then shall he speak to them in his anger, and trouble them in his rage.

6 But I am appointed king by him over Sion, his holy mountain, preaching his commandment.

7 The Lord hath said to me: Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee.

8 Ask of me, and I will give thee the Gentiles for thy inheritance, and the utmost parts of the earth for thy possession.

9 Thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron, and shalt break them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

^c Apoc. ii. 27. and xix. 15.

subvert their authority, before it be too well established. Prot. still seem to be actuated with the same phrensy; fearing nothing more than the restoration of the Catholic religion; and incessantly pouring in petitions to Parliament to withhold the common rights of subjects from people of that persuasion. H.—"I fear there are more political than religious objectors to emancipation." Nightingale.

VER. 4. Them, who continue rebellious. Prov. i. He speaks thus to shew that we deserve derision. H.—Quod nos derisum digna faciamus. S. Jer.—Yet he will convert many, (W.) even of those who, like S. Paul, were bent on persecuting the faithful. If they still resist, (H.) he will shew the futility of their plans, and triumph over all, as David did over his opponents, and Christ over those who wished to have obstructed his resurrection, and the propagation of his gospel. Thus Jesus has proved his divinity, and confirmed our hopes that he will still protect his Church; as he did when it seemed to be in the greatest danger. C.—God can fear no opposition to his decrees. M.—He is in Heaven, to whom we ought to address our prayers. The Lord seems to be here applicable to Christ. Chal. "the word of God." He has the title of the Creator, Adonai, as the Jews have marked it with a Kamets 134 times, when it is to be taken in that sense. Berthier.

VER. 5. Rage. These, and similar expressions, when applied to the immutable Deity, only denote that men have deserved the worst of punishments. H.—God had discomfited the enemies of David (2 K. v. 20. 24.) by his thunder. But he still more confounded the devil, when Christ descended to take away his spoils; and he chastised the Jews by the ruin of their city, (C.) as he has or will do all persecutors of his Church. H.—He will severely reprehend, and justly punish the obstinate. W.

VER. 6. I am. Heb. "I have anointed . . over Sion, my," &c. S. Jerom and others have read in the first person, what the Sept. translate in the third. The sense is much the same. C.—But the Vulg. seems to be better connected, and the same letters may have this sense, if we neglect the points, which were unknown to the Sept. and of modern invention. These interpreters may also have read a v for i, as these letters are very similar. Berthier.—"But I am anointed king by him over Sion, his holy mountain." Houbig.—Theodoret, observing that Christ is king not only over Sion, but also over all, alters the punctuation: On Sion . . preaching, &c. which is very plausible, since Isaiah (ix. 3.) says, the law shall come forth from Sion, (Berthier) and C. xxxvii. 32. and salvation from Mount Sion. Hence Christ preached frequently in the temple. It is certain David was not anointed here, but at Hebron; and the temple was not built till the reign of Solomon. See Ps. cix. 2.

VER. 7. Thee. Chal. weakens this text. H.—"I love thee as my son, and look upon thee with the same affection, as if I had this day created thee;" which might be applied to David, now settled more firmly on the throne by his late victory. But it literally refers to Christ, either born in time, (v. 1. S. Aug. C.) or baptized; (S. Just.) or rather rising again, (Acts xiii. 33.) and born from all eternity. Heb. i. 5. This shews him superior to the angels. The prophet had both these events in view. Eternity is always the same. Berthier. Bossuet D.—He to whom God may speak thus to-day, at all times, must be God also. Robertson. Lexic. Jo. v. 25.—To this Socinians can make no reply, without giving up the Epistle to the Heb. or allowing that the apostle's arguments were inconclusive. Bert.—The same text may thus have many literal senses. D.—The eternal birth seems here to be the chief, as from that source the nativity baptism, priesthood, (Heb. xv. 5.) and miraculous resurrection of Christ, necessarily spring. H.

VER. 8. Ask. The Messiah must be invested with human nature, and merit all graces for man. When did David ask for such an extensive dominion? Berthier.—But Christ's kingdom extends over the world. His Church cannot fail, as S. Aug. proved hence against the Donatists, and his arguments confute Protestants as well. W.—Our doctors used to refer this psalm to the Messiah, said R. Solomon; but it is better to apply it to David, on account of "Christians." D.

VER. 9. Rule, as a shepherd, (ποιμαίνει) as it is cited Apoc. ii. 26. But he is speaking of vengeance taken on the rebellious; and we might translate, "Thou shalt break," &c. C.—Yet this is not necessary, as a shepherd sometimes beats with severity, to prevent his sheep from straying. H.—The Church guides also use coercion, but for the good of the flock. C.—God brought the murderers of his Son to an evil end, and destroyed their city. H.—He broke the Gentiles, to make them a more noble vessel. Jer. xviii. 4. S. Hilary.—He will execute judgment at the last day.—Apoc. xix. 11. C.—When the clay is still soft,

10 And now, O ye kings, understand: receive instruction, you that judge the earth.

11 Serve ye the Lord with fear: and rejoice unto him with trembling.

12 Embrace discipline, lest at any time the Lord be angry, and you perish from the just way.

13 When his wrath shall be kindled in a short time, blessed are all they that trust in him.

PSALM III.

DOMINE QUID MULTIPLICATI.

The prophet's danger and delivery from his son, Absalom: mystically the passion and resurrection of Christ.

1 The psalm of David when he fled from the face of his son Absalom. [2 K. xv.]

2 WHY, O Lord, are they multiplied that afflict me? many are they who rise up against me.

3 Many say to my soul: There is no salvation for him in his God.

the vessel may easily be repaired; so the sinner may be reclaimed, when he has only just fallen. S. Jer.—Even the most obdurate, are as clay in God's hands. W.

VER. 10. And. Here the prophet may address kings, unless the Father or the Messiah continue to speak. It is evident these words are not to be understood of David's dominions alone. Fear and joy keep the Christian in proper order. Phil. ii. 12. and iii. 1. Bert.—“The love of God pushes us forward, and the fear of God makes us take care where we walk.” S. Theresa.—The one guards us against despair, the other against presumption. Kings are here instructed to support the Church, for which some have been styled, “Most Christian,” “Catholic,” or “Defenders of the Faith.” The Donatists falsely asserted, that they were ever found enemies to religion, because Constantine, &c. attempted to repress their errors. But Julian favoured them, to increase dissensions. See S. Aug. c. Pet. et. c. Gaud. ii. 28. W.

VER. 11. Trembling, with reverential awe and humility, (1 Cor. ii. 3. Amama) as none is sure of salvation. Bell.—More are lost by presumption than by trembling. Amama.

VER. 12. Discipline. Chal. “doctrine.” S. Jer. “adore purely.” Prot. “kiss the Son, lest he be angry,” &c. H.—Houbig. “adore the son, lest he be angry, and you perish. For he comes forward, and shortly his wrath will be kindled.” This version seems to be judicious: that of the Vulg. is less energetic, but comes to the same end, as those who adore the Messiah, must follow his doctrine. Berthier.—Lord and just is not in Heb. H.—The way or projects of sinners will perish; (Ps. i. 6.) they will be hurried before the tribunal, as soon as they are dead; (S. Hil.) and when they least expect it. 1 Thes. v. 2. C.—Some fall from salvation, and God will bring them to judgment at the end of this short life. W.—Heb. “Kiss purely.” Kissing is often used in Scripture to express submission, love, and adoration. S. Jer. c. Ruf. i. Gen. xli. 40. C.—We testify our respect for God, by kissing the Bible, &c. H.—But it cannot be shewn that bar means “a son,” in Heb. C.—Amama blames the Vulg. for withdrawing a text in favour of Christ's divinity. We must, however, submit to the law and faith of Christ with confidence and love, if we desire to escape his indignation and enter heaven. Acts iv. 12. Mr. Nightingale (Portrait of Cath. 1812. p. 117 and 332) may represent this doctrine as uncharitable and groundless, though he allows it has been maintained by most (p. 473) who have professed to be the true disciples of Christ, whether Catholics or Protestants. The principle is good, though some apply it wrong. If he and Lord Milton, (speech. 1812. to whom we must express our manifest obligations) had contented themselves with saying that they believed our doctrine was “unscriptural,” &c. (p. 18) we should not have much wondered; as they could not consistently have said less, and remained out of the Catholic Church. But for any man who has read the Bible, to persuade himself that it is not necessary to profess the one only true religion, wherever it may be, after Christ has so plainly declared, He that believeth not is already judged, and shall be condemned; (Jo. iii. 18. Mark xvi. 16.) and after the apostle has delivered over to satan those who only asserted that the resurrection was past, (2 Tim. ii. 17.) this fills us with astonishment. Not a single text can be produced in favour of the contrary system leading to indifference about religion; which, if true, would shew the preaching of the prophets and apostles as nugatory, and their blood shed in vain. All the “Scriptures” proclaim the necessity of faith and good works. We may observe, that the doctrine of the blessed Trinity seems to be no less objectionable to Mr. N. than the rest of our faith, p. 117, &c. Yet (H.) we must not refuse him the praise of liberality. Catholic Review, &c. Jan. 1813. H.

VER. 13. Trust for salvation through Christ, (D.) acting as he has directed, so that their hope may be well founded. M.—This psalm is quoted six times in the New Testament, which shews the concord of Scripture, and that the prophets saw the promises at a distance, following the law of love, which is as ancient as the world. Berthier.

PSALM III. Domine, &c. Heb. and Sept. have lit. “a psalm to David,” (רִשׁוֹן דָּוִיד) which may mean that it was addressed to him by God, or that he would set it to music himself, (H.) or that it was composed by him, or on his occasion. The part. I. has various meanings, and it does not incontestably prove that the person before whose name it is placed, must be regarded as the author. C.—Yet there is no reason for doubting that this psalm was composed by David. H.—The Jews say he wrote it on the ascent of Mount Olivet. 2 K. xv. 17. But 4 But thou, O Lord, art my protector, my glory, and the lifter up of my head.

5 I have cried to the Lord with my voice: and he hath heard me from his holy hill.

6 I have slept and have taken my rest: and I have risen up, because the Lord hath protected me.

7 I will not fear thousands of the people surrounding me: arise, O Lord; save me, O my God.

8 For thou hast struck all them who are my adversaries without cause: thou hast broken the teeth of sinners.

9 Salvation is of the Lord: and thy blessing is upon thy people.

PSALM IV.

CUM INVOCAREM.

The prophet teacheth us to flee to God in tribulation, with confidence in him.

1 Unto the end, in verses. A psalm for David.

he rather waited till he had re-entered his capital, and herein expressed his gratitude, specifying at the same time the sentiments with which he had been impressed in the hour of danger. Ven. Bede explains this and many other psalms of Ezechias, as he perhaps did not read or attend to the title. C.—This deserves more attention, as it is the same in all Bibles, though all interpreters do not consider them as canonical, no more than that which is prefixed to the Lamentations. Berthier.—They are authentic, being inspired by Esdras or the Sept. W.—But this is doubtful. H.

VER. 2. Why. Let me know the enormity of my sins. All Israel follows Absalom. 2 K. xv. 13. So all rose up against Christ. W.—The Church was assailed on all sides, (C.) and every soul must live in expectation of battle from innumerable enemies. Heb. also, (H.) “How are they multiplied.” Houbig.—David is surprised at the sudden change, and adores the depth of God's judgments, which had been denounced unto him. 1 K. xii. 10. C.

VER. 3. God. His case is desperate. W.—He must therefore be a criminal. This is the usual judgment of the world, though very false, as we have seen in the person of Job; for temporal punishments are frequently an effect of the divine clemency. Some unbribed David on this occasion, as the Jews did Christ. 2 K. xvi. 7. Mat. xxvii. 42. At the end of this verse, Heb. adds, Selah, (C.) selo and Sept. δωδάλμα, (H.) a word which is not much better understood. Houbigant therefore informs us that he has omitted it entirely, as the Vulg. seems to have done, except Ps. lxi. 8. where it is rendered, in eternum, “for ever,” (Bert.) as S. Jerom expresses it semper, in his Heb. version. It would perhaps be as well to leave the original term. H.—It occurs seventy-one times in the psalms, and thrice in Habacuc. Some think it is a sign to raise the voice, or to pause, &c. (Bert.) at the end of the lesson, before the psalter was divided. None, except Eusebius, asserts that it was inserted by the original authors, and it seems now to be useless. C. Dis.

VER. 4. Protector. Heb. “shield.” Glory. God is the hope of his servants, (1 Cor. xv. 31.) and grants their requests. C.—He has not abandoned me, when I had fallen into sin. H.—He gives me the victory, and confirms my throne. W.

VER. 5. Hill. Sion, where the ark had been placed, (C.) or from heaven. M.—Heb. adds, “Sclah.” Prot. H.

VER. 6. Rest, in sin; (S. Athan.) or, I have not lost my confidence in God, though dangers threaten on every side. C.—Jesus remained undaunted, when his enemies surrounded him; he continued (Theod. &c.) free among the dead, and rose again by his own power. H.—If he prayed that the chalice might be removed, it was to teach us how to behave. C.—He was buried, and rose again, and his disciples believed the Scriptures (Jo. ii. 22.) recorded here, and in other places. W.—The same word refers to past and future things. S. Greg. Mor. xx. 1. W.

VER. 7. Thousands. Sept. “myriads.” H.—If my enemies were still more numerous, I should not fear. C.—I beseech thee to help me. W.

VER. 8. Without cause. Heb. “on the jaw.” H.—Without redress. C.—Sept. seems to have read leimom, as “some Jews say that the ancient copies were different.” Origen, A. D. 231. Kennicott.—Teeth. Strength and fury.

VER. 9. Blessing. Abundance of grace is promised to God's servants, who must look up to him for salvation. David gives thanks for the victory, though he grieved at his son's death. W.—He shewed proofs of the greatest clemency on this occasion. It is evident, from this psalm being inserted before many which regard Saul, that no chronological order is observed. C.—Selah occurs a third time here, as some may have ended the lecture at one, while others ordered it to be continued to another, or even to the 3d or 5th verse of the next psalm, if that be its real import. H.

PSALM IV. Cum, &c. VER. I. Unto the end. Or as S. Jerom renders it, victory to him that overcometh; which some understand of the chief musician; to whom they suppose the psalms, which bear that title, were given to be sung. We rather understand the psalms thus inscribed to refer to Christ, who is the end of the law, and the great Conqueror of death and hell; and to the New Testament.—In verses, in carminibus. In the Heb. it is neginoth, supposed by some to be a musical instrument, with which this psalm was to be sung.—For David, or to David, רִשׁוֹן דָּוִיד, that is, inspired to David himself, or to be sung by him. Ch.—Lamentation, from niteach, “to push to an end,” may signify (H.) to the end; and this sense is more noble than (Berthier) “To the precentor or presi-

2 WHEN I called upon him, the God of my justice heard me: when I was in distress, thou hast enlarged me.

Have mercy on me: and hear my prayer.

3 O ye sons of men, how long will you be dull of heart? why do you love vanity, and seek after lying?

4 Know ye also that the Lord hath made his holy one wonderful: the Lord will hear me when I shall cry unto him.

5 ^aBe ye angry, and sin not: the things you say in your hearts, be sorry for them upon your beds.

6 Offer up the sacrifice of justice, and trust in the Lord: many say, Who sheweth us good things?

7 The light of thy countenance, O Lord, is signed upon us: thou hast given gladness in my heart.

8 By the fruit of their corn, their wine, and oil, they are multiplied.

9 In peace in the self same I will sleep and I will rest:

10 For thou, O Lord, singularly hast settled me in hope.

PSALM V.

VERBA MEA AURIBUS.

A prayer to God against the iniquities of men.

1 Unto the end, for her that obtaineth the inheritance.
A psalm for David.

^a Ephes. iv. 26.

dent." C.—Binginoth. H.—"Over the female musicians." C.—"To the chief of the singers on stringed instruments." Duguet.—The psalms which have this title, relate to future times, and to the Church of Christ; (S. Aug. W.) or were to be sung at the close of the Jewish festivals, &c. Bert.—This is considered as a sequel to the preceding, to thank God for the late victory over Absalom. C.

VER. 2. The God. Heb. "When I call, hear me, O God of my justice," source and witness of my virtue. If I have offended thee, I have done no wrong to my rebellious son and his adherents. Many copies read Cum invocarem te, exaudivisti me. C.—Thou. The change of persons intimates that when God is present (S. Aug.) the soul is animated with confidence to speak to him. H.—Prayer. Though his request had been granted, he still continues to address God, as we ought to pray without ceasing. 1 Thess. v. 17.

VER. 3. O. This is a sort of manifesto to the rebels; and an invitation for them to return to their duty, desisting from setting up a false king, or a lie. H.—Dull. Heb. "my glory to shame." But the reading of the Sept. seems preferable, (C.) as the rhyme in Heb. is now lost, (Fourmont) and the text has been altered (Houbig.) by an injudicious junction of words, and by using c for b. In ancient MSS. the words were all joined together, (Bert.) as may be seen in the specimen of the Alex. Sept. given by Grabe. Prot. "How long will ye turn my glory into shame?" &c. H.

VER. 4. Wonderful, (mirificavit) according to the Heb. means also has chosen in a striking manner his appointed ruler, or holy person. Bert.—Holy, often means one set aside, (Lu. ii.) or commissioned, though the person be a pagan. Isai. xlii. 8. Chasid, (H.) particularly signifies a "clement" character, such as a king ought to be. C.—"The Lord has set aside for himself the pious." Pagn. —I am ready to pardon you, but know that if you continue rebellious, you go against the ordinance of heaven. H.

VER. 5. Angry. My soldiers, do not resent this offence too much, kill not the boy; (2 K. xviii. 5.) or (H.) you, my deluded subjects, enter into yourselves. S. Paul (Eph. iv. 26.) cites this as a moral sentence. C.—It is more difficult to moderate anger than to deny access to it entirely. S. Fran. of Sales. H.—Beds. Repent for the most secret evil thoughts, before you fall asleep. W.

VER. 6. Justice. External devotion will not suffice. S. Chrys.—No sacrifice will please God as long as people take part with rebels. C.—Besides external sacrifices, which have always been required, and those of praise and contrition, (Ps. xlix. and l.) we must offer to God the sacrifice of justice, by complying with our duties to him, ourselves, and neighbours, and by hating sin, and also the world, the flesh, and the devil, which prompt us to offend, and thus to give the preference to vanity. For this purpose, we must not trust in ourselves, but in God; and that no one may plead ignorance, the light of reason and grace is given us, plainly indicating that we have a God to serve, and must expect reward or punishment. Heb. xi. 6. W.

VER. 7. The. Houbigant transposes this to v. 9, which is not necessary. David answers those diffident people, (Bert.) who thought they had received no marks of God's favour, and were in great want of provisions, till some were brought by Bezellai. H.

VER. 8. By. Heb. and S. Aug. "From the time of their corn and wine" (C.) gathering. I rejoice "more" than those who live in the greatest affluence, which is nothing but vanity. No mention is made of oil, but the original term, "liquor," includes it. Bert.—S. Jerom found it not in the Hexapla. But it now occurs in the Arab. Syr. &c. C.—David envies not the present prosperity

2 GIVE ear, O Lord, to my words, understand my cry.

3 Harken to the voice of my prayer, O my King and my God.

4 For to thee will I pray: O Lord, in the morning thou shalt hear my voice.

5 In the morning I will stand before thee, and I will see: because thou art not a God that willest iniquity.

6 Neither shall the wicked dwell near thee: nor shall the unjust abide before thy eyes.

7 Thou hatest all the workers of iniquity: thou wilt destroy all that speak a lie.

The bloody and the deceitful man the Lord will abhor.

8 But as for me in the multitude of thy mercy, I will come into thy house; I will worship towards thy holy temple, in thy fear.

9 Conduct me, O Lord, in thy justice: because of my enemies, direct my way in thy sight.

10 For there is no truth in their mouth: their heart is vain.

11 ^bTheir throat is an open sepulchre: they dealt deceitfully with their tongues: judge them, O God.

Let them fall from their devices: according to the multitude of their wickednesses cast them out: for they have provoked thee, O Lord.

^b Psal. liii. 8. and cxxxix. 4. Rom. iii. 18.

of the rebels. H.—He comforts his followers with the assurance of God's favour, which he had again testified by sending provisions. Bullenger.—He may also here express the disappointment of the rebels, who promised themselves great riches, of which Providence would soon deprive them, by restoring the king, whom he had chosen, and hitherto so wonderfully protected. H.—God gave temporal advantages to the just in the old law, as a figure of heavenly rewards. W.

VER. 9. Same, (in idipsum) which signifies with one accord. Acts i. 14. Heb. "altogether," when we shall be united as one people, which I expect will shortly be the case. Confiding in God, I will repose as in the arms of peace. Absalom was already cut off. But all his adherents were not reclaimed. Yet their number was so small, as to cause no apprehensions. H.—Under thy protection, I am secure, (C.) no longer kept between fear and hope. S. Bern.—When I lie down, I can enjoy rest, (Bert.) being free from turbulent passions. H.

VER. 10. Singularly. Art "alone" (Pagn.) the source of all my happiness; (H.) or thou hast taken such care of me, as if thou hadst no other. H.—I am at a distance from the contagion of evil company, (S. Chrys.) which I hate. Bert. —"For thou only art Lord, thou hast made me dwell secure." S. Jer.

PSAL. V. Verba, &c. VER. 1. For her that obtaineth the inheritance. That is, for the Church of Christ, (Ch.) and every faithful soul, which gains the victory and heaven. W.—Nechiloth, may also, (H.) signify musical instruments with holes, or "women dancing," on religious and joyful occasions, as they did when the ark was removed, &c. 2 K. vi. 12. C. Ps. lxxvii. 24. —We may (H.) as well follow the Vulg. and S. Jerom. Some have supposed that David alludes to Saul, Absalom, &c. But in most of the psalms, the wicked in general are reprobated, and the sentiments of the faithful expressed. This psalm contains an excellent form of morning prayer, as an armour against all our spiritual enemies. Berthier.

